

Digitized by the Internet Archive in 2007 with funding from Microsoft Corporation

A GRAMMAR OF LATE MODERN ENGLISH

FOR THE USE OF CONTINENTAL, ESPECIALLY DUTCH, STUDENTS,

BY

H. POUTSMA,

English Master in the Municipal "Gymnasium", Amsterdam.

PART II

THE PARTS OF SPEECH.

SECTION I, A NOUNS, ADJECTIVES AND ARTICLES.

A HISTORY OF THE UNITED STATES

FROM THE FIRST SETTLEMENTS TO THE PRESENT

BY J. W. FULTON

PART II
THE PARTS OF THE

UNITED STATES
FROM THE FIRST

PE
1105
P86g
v.2

PREFACE.

The second part of this Grammar dealing with the Parts of Speech in detail, falls into two sections, the first treating of nouns, pronouns and adnominal words, the second of verbs and particles. Owing to its inordinate bulk, the first section could not conveniently be brought out in one volume and has, therefore, been cut up into two portions of about equal size.

In preparing this part of my work, I have, in the main, proceeded on the same principles as those which guided me in the preparation of its predecessor. The only difference of any importance between this and the earlier part of my work is, that I have now been at greater pains to arrange my quotations chronologically. I have not, indeed, concerned myself much about minor details of chronology, as, for example, the order in which the novels of DICKENS or THACKERAY successively appeared; or the question whether Vanity Fair preceded or followed David Copperfield; but the great landmarks in the history of English Literature have been constantly kept in view. A few additional remarks may not be out of place.

The quotations used to support my statements, have, of course, been taken unaltered from the sources where I found them, but glaring inconsistencies in the use of capitals, hyphens, stops and similar typographical niceties have been removed. The quotations from SHAKESPEARE and the Authorized Version have been produced in modernized spelling, which will, perhaps, be considered improper in a work like the present. The editions used are respectively the well-known Globe Edition edited by WILLIAM G. CLARK and WILLIAM ALDIS WRIGHT and The Oxford Bible for Teachers.

In discussing such an elusive subject as the Syntax of Modern English Grammar, one is confronted by a formidable array of difficulties. It is often said, on what grounds I know not, that English is not bound by any strict rules of syntax. But anybody who has ever given the subject continued thought, must soon have become persuaded, that this is not in accordance with fact. The least change of comparatively insignificant words, the least tampering with the order of words in a sentence or phrase, and the slightest modification of stress and pitch, almost invariably produce changes of meaning which the most obtuse observer could not fail to notice at once. The prevailing freedom never degenerates into licence. Then there is the important influence of rhythm and metre, overlooked or slighted by many grammarians, to which the recent publications of Dr. P. FIJN VAN DRAAT have especially drawn attention.

1055034

To make one's conclusions reliable a large number of quotations is needed. I have, indeed, collected a fair number to support my views: thousands upon thousands are scattered through the pages of my book, and yet in not a few cases the evidence at my disposal was inadequate, and could not be procured in the scanty leisure accorded to me. There are few things so wearisome and so disappointing as going in search of a particular idiom. The expressions one wants have a trick of not turning up when needed, while others, useful enough, but not particularly required for the subject in hand, constantly obtrude themselves on one's notice. The lack of sufficient material accounts for the diffidence with which I had to express myself in many cases, and the profuse use of saving terms.

It is often necessary to make nice distinctions, some of which may, at first sight, seem needless or even puerile, but which, on closer view, will appear to serve a useful purpose. It is then that the great difficulty of precise discrimination, and of neat and concise wording makes itself felt. Many observations have required casting and recasting over and over again, before their final form could be established. Nor will it be wondered at that, as the work was progressing, I have frequently been obliged to revise the disposition of the different headings under which I have discussed my subjects. This, of course, entailed a repeated rehandling of the references to preceding and subsequent paragraphs and observations. Some of them, too many I fear, are, therefore, incorrect. For obvious reasons this applies chiefly to the forward references; the backward references could be properly verified as the sheets were passing through the press. The necessity of ample and proper illustration and nice discrimination is chiefly responsible for the great bulk into which the book has swelled. As the sheets that had left the press, accumulated, I have often seriously considered the advisability of cutting down some branches of, apparently, too luxuriant growth, but the reflection that by a vigorous use of the pruning-knife I might materially injure the usefulness of my book, has stayed my hand.

Some important subjects, which in the books and treatises consulted have been touched upon only in the merest outline, or not at all, have found ample treatment. I may here call attention to the paragraphs dealing with the Adnominal Use of Nouns in the Common Case Form and the Conversion of Adjectives into Nouns. I flatter myself that in this field of English Grammar I have done some useful spadework.

I have, of course, diligently compared my results with those contained in the publications bearing on the subject, which at the moment of writing were at my disposal. Throughout the text I have constantly referred to these to assist the student in forming an opinion for himself. Full details about the books and treatises consulted cannot, conveniently, be given until the book is completed. Also the preparation of the detailed Index of the present part in which so many subjects have to be discussed from more than one point of view, must be deferred until the whole is nearing completion.

I have again had the uninterrupted assistance of my brother, Dr. ALB^s. POUTSMA, who through all the weary pages of this bulky volume has brought all the penetration of his discriminating mind to bear upon a subject, comparatively alien from his own studies, and to whom many important improvements in the way of arrangement and wording are due. I have great pleasure in saying that by his invaluable services he has cemented the feeling of brotherly affection by a sense of sincere gratitude. It is also a pleasant duty for me to acknowledge my indebtedness to the publisher for his generous co-operation in giving the book an attractive appearance, and, last but not least, to the compositor for the unremitting attention he has bestowed on the work entrusted to his care.

In conclusion I must tender my apologies to the reader for the inaccuracies, omissions and other imperfections, which cannot fail to strike him, if he goes carefully through the book. He may rest assured that any communication he should like to make to me regarding any portion of it, will meet a willing ear. In submitting my work to the scrutiny of students of English Grammar, I firmly believe that a few years more of constant study would enable me to ameliorate it in many ways. If then it should be urged that I have been rash in going to press, I can only plead the scantiness of my leisure and the uncertainty of life and vigour. There is a painful truth in the old song which I found quoted in SPENCER, Education, Ch. I:

Could a man be secure
That his days would endure
As of old, for a thousand long years,
What things might he know!
What deeds might he do!
And all without hurry or care.

H. POUTSMA.

AMSTERDAM, Christmas 1913.

TABLE OF CONTENTS.

CHAPTER XXIII.

ADNOMINAL USE OF NOUNS IN THE COMMON CASE	1
NOUNS IN THE COMMON CASE USED ATTRIBUTIVELY §§ 1—13	1
General Observations §§ 1—4	1
Adnominal nouns expressing qualities §§ 5—11	5
Such as are names of substances §§ 5—7	5
Such as are names of persons, animals or things which are considered as the embodiment of a quality § 8	13
Such as denote a particular state, status, function employment or use of what is expressed by the noun modified §§ 9—10	16
Such as are proper names of persons or geographical bodies § 11	17
Adnominal nouns expressing relations §§ 12—13	17
Description of these relations § 12	17
Observations § 13	19
NOUNS IN THE COMMON CASE USED PREDICATIVELY §§ 14—17	23
Predicative nouns which express qualities or relations § 14	23
Observations § 15	23
Predicative nouns approximating to adjectives § 16	24
Observations § 17	28

CHAPTER XXIV.

GENITIVE OF NOUNS	30
FORM OF THE GENITIVE §§ 1—6	30
The genitive of simple nouns §§ 1—2	30
The genitive of compound nouns and word-groups §§ 3—4	33
The uninflected form taking the place of the genitive § 5	37
Observations § 6	38
MEANING AND USE OF THE GENITIVE §§ 7—56	40
The genitive is either individualizing or classifying § 7	40
THE INDIVIDUALIZING GENITIVE §§ 8—39	40
Different relations expressed by the individualizing genitive §§ 8—10	40
Use of the individualizing genitive and its prepositional equivalent apart from considerations of syntax, emphasis and metre or rhythm §§ 11—24	42

The genitive of possession or origin §§ 11—18	42
The genitive of agency or subjective genitive § 19	59
The objective genitive §§ 20—21	60
The genitive of measure §§ 22—23	63
The genitive of apposition or specializing § 24	69
Use of the individualizing genitive and its prepositional equivalent under the influence of considerations of syntax, emphasis and metre or rhythm §§ 25—31	71
The influence of syntactical connections §§ 26—28	71
The influence of comparative emphasis §§ 29—30	74
The influence of metre or rhythm § 31	76
Further observations §§ 32—39	76
The genitive and its equivalent with the preposition of differing in meaning § 32	76
The pleonastic genitive §§ 33—34	77
Prepositions other than of expressing certain functions of the genitive §§ 35—37	83
Use of own §§ 38—39	88
THE CLASSIFYING GENITIVE §§ 40—44	89
Preliminary Observations § 40	89
The classifying genitive denoting a quality § 41	90
The classifying genitive denoting a relation § 42	92
The classifying genitive of proper names § 43	94
Observations § 44	95
THE GENITIVE USED IN FOUR WAYS §§ 45—51	97
THE GENITIVE COMPARED WITH THE COMMON CASE §§ 52—56	101

CHAPTER XXV.

NUMBER OF NOUNS	112
FORM OF THE PLURAL §§ 1—17	112
The plural of simple nouns §§ 1—14	112
The plural of compound nouns and word-groups §§ 15—17	141
USE OF THE PLURAL §§ 18—36	147
Pluralia tantum §§ 18—21	147
Nouns whose singular is non-existent or unusual § 19	148
Nouns that have special meanings in the plural § 20	185
Nouns that are always used in the plural in certain combinations § 21	232
Nouns that are chiefly used in the singular §§ 22—24	240
Nouns that retain the singular form, although expressing a plural idea §§ 25—30	243
Nouns that retain the singular form, when used adnominally §§ 31—35	267
Use of individualizing words § 36	273

CHAPTER XXVI.

CONCORD	277
Definition of concord § 1	277
CONCORD OF NUMBER §§ 2—24	277
How concord of number is exhibited §§ 2—3	277
Concord with single elements of the sentence § 4—20	278
Want of concord between the subject and the nominal part of the predicate §§ 4—5	278
Collective nouns construed as singulars or plurals, according to their meaning §§ 6—11	280
Plural nouns construed as singulars §§ 12—18	299
Indefinite pronouns, nouns of common gender modified by an indefinite pronoun, or two or more nouns of different gender connected by or , referred to by plural pronouns § 19	310
Concord of none § 20	313
Concord with compound elements of the sentence §§ 21—24	314
CONCORD OF PERSON §§ 25—32	319
CONCORD OF GENDER §§ 33—38	325
Preliminary Observations §§ 33—35	325
Pronouns used in referring to names of persons that are of common gender § 36	326
Pronouns used in referring to names of animals § 37	329
Pronouns used in referring to names of inanimate things § 38	332

CHAPTER XXVII.

SEX DENOTED BY NOUNS	339
How the names of living beings may be divided §§ 1—2	339
Sex denoted by nouns that are not etymologically connected § 3	339
Sex denoted by suffixes §§ 4—11	340
Sex expressed by the context § 12	347
Sex indicated by adjectives, nouns or pronouns added to nouns of common gender § 13	349

CHAPTER XXVIII.

GENERAL OBSERVATIONS ON ADJECTIVES	354
Adjectives are either restrictive or continuative adnominal adjuncts § 1	354
Adjectives denote either qualities or relations §§ 2—3	354
Adjectives are either independent or relative §§ 4—5	359
Adjectives are used either attributively or predicatively §§ 6—8	359
Adjectives do not always logically belong to the nouns they modify grammatically § 9	362

CHAPTER XXIX.

CONVERSION OF ADJECTIVES INTO NOUNS 365

Adjectives may be either totally or partially converted into nouns § 1 365

ADJECTIVES TOTALLY CONVERTED INTO NOUNS §§ 2—12 368

Further comments on total conversion of adjectives § 2 368

Such as end in certain suffixes § 3 368

Such as denote a nationality § 4 376

Such as denote a language § 5 376

Such as denote a creed, sect or party § 6 377

Such as are comparatives § 7 377

Such as denote the most characteristic quality of a substance § 8 379

Such as are names of periodicals § 9 379

Such as denote a colour § 10 379

Such as do not answer to a general description § 11 380

Such as have conversion only occasionally and at variance with the genius of the language § 12 383

ADJECTIVES PARTIALLY CONVERTED INTO NOUNS §§ 13—28 387

Further comments on partial conversion of adjectives § 13 387

Such as denote persons §§ 14—20 387

Such as denote a class of persons in a generalizing way § 14 387

Such as denote a nationality and end in a sibilant § 15 396

Such as stand as objects to to commit, to do and to play § 16 398

Such as denote attributes of particular beings or things § 17 399

Such as denote single individuals § 18 400

The superlatives first and last, and the comparatives former and latter § 19 405

Participial adjectives denoting the victims of casualties § 20 405

Such as denote things §§ 21—24 406

Such as denote a quality in a generalizing way §§ 21—22 406

Superlatives preceded by a possessive pronoun § 23 419

The superlatives first and last and the comparatives former and latter § 24 420

Partially converted adjectives denoting an indefinite number of persons or things §§ 25—27 421

The adjective own § 28 425

CHAPTER XXX.

DEGREES OF COMPARISON 427

What words have degrees of comparison § 1 427

FORMATION OF THE DEGREES OF COMPARISON §§ 2—31 427

Comparison of simple words §§ 2—28 427

Regular terminational comparison §§ 2—4 427

Irregular terminational comparison §§ 5—27 429

Terminational and periphrastic comparison compared § 28 474

Comparison of compound words § 29	487
Terminational and periphrastic comparison combined § 30	490
The positive used instead of the superlative § 31	491
USE OF THE DEGREES OF COMPARISON §§ 32—47	491
Comparison of two qualities § 32	491
The comparative varying with the superlative, when two persons or things are compared § 33	492
The use and suppression of the , and the use of (at +) possessive pronoun or definite article, before superlatives §§ 34—38	493
The use of comparatives to express the gradual increase of some quality § 39	503
The use of comparatives to express the proportional increase of two qualities § 40	504
The two ways to express how many times a person, animal or thing exceeds another as to the intensity of a certain quality § 41	506
The use of the preposition by before comparatives and superlatives § 42	507
Intensives before comparatives and superlatives § 43	507
The absolute superlative § 44	510
The absolute comparative § 45	511
English instances of the Latin construction summus mons § 46	511
The inclusive superlative § 47	512

CHAPTER XXXI.

THE ARTICLE.	513
FORM OF THE ARTICLES §§ 1—3	513
MEANING OF THE ARTICLES §§ 4—8	517
USE OF THE ARTICLES §§ 9—74	530
Preliminary observations § 9	530
USE AND SUPPRESSION OF THE INDIVIDUALIZING DEFINITE ARTICLE §§ 10—30	532
Before common nouns §§ 10—22	532
Before common nouns that are modified by an adnominal clause, a prepositional word-group, an adnominal noun in the common case or an adjective §§ 10—14	532
Before the names of certain localities, the names of meals, the names of the main divisions of a day, the names of seasons and the names of months, days and festivals § 15	538
Before common nouns that are used as significant proper names § 16	549
Before the names of conceptions that are single in their kind § 17	554
Before all and both § 18	554
Before certain superlatives §§ 19—20	555
Before one when used as the correlative of the other , another or other § 21	562
Before such words as before-mentioned § 22	564

Before proper names §§ 23—30	564
Before proper names that have assumed the character of common nouns § 23	564
Before significant proper names §§ 24—27	565
Before proper names that are modified by an adnominal adjunct § 28	571
Before compound proper names both or all of whose parts are insignificant § 29	577
Before compound proper names one or all of whose parts are significant § 30	577
USE AND SUPPRESSION OF THE GENERALIZING ARTICLE §§ 31—37	587
Before adjectives partially converted into nouns and before singular nouns that are not collective nouns § 31	587
Before collective nouns § 32	590
Before plural nouns § 33	594
Before material and abstract nouns §§ 34—37	597
USE AND SUPPRESSION OF THE INDEFINITE ARTICLE §§ 38—42	608
Before abstract nouns that are modified by an adnominal clause § 38	608
Before the stems of verbs and before gerunds § 39	608
Before other abstract nouns § 40	610
Before the names of certain disorders, before time or distance preceded by an adjective, before nouns in certain salutations and imprecations and in titles of books, etc. § 41	632
Before abstract nouns, when modified by the determinative such or the exclamatory what § 42	634
SUPPRESSION OF EITHER ARTICLE BEFORE NOUNS IN CERTAIN GRAMMATICAL FUNCTIONS IN WHICH THEIR MEANING IS MODIFIED §§ 43—61	635
Before common nouns that assume the character of proper names, i. e. when they are used in address, as appositions or after specializing of § 43	635
Before nouns used predicatively § 44—52	637
Why the article is apt to be suppressed before predicative nouns § 44	637
Before predicative nouns not preceded by as § 45—47	637
Before predicative nouns preceded by as or its substitute for § 48	644
Before predicative nouns after to turn § 49	647
Before predicative nouns that are followed by an adnominal clause with the relative that , or an adverbial clause with the conjunction as § 50	647
Before abstract nouns standing after to make and followed by an adnominal gerund- or infinitive clause § 51	647
Before predicative nouns that occur both as adjectives and as nouns § 52	648
Before common nouns followed by proper names by way of apposition §§ 53—56	648

Before plural nouns that have assumed the character of indefinite pronouns § 57	657
Before nouns that have assumed the character of indefinite numerals § 58	660
Before half and double §§ 59—60	663
Before other nouns § 61	666
SUPPRESSION OF EITHER ARTICLE FOR THE SAKE OF BREVITY §§ 62—71	667
Suppression of the definite article § 63—66.	667
Before many nouns, or quasi-nouns, used as non-prepositional object, or as part of a prepositional word-group §§ 63—64	667
Before many nouns, when connected with another noun § 65	680
Before many nouns, when forming part of headings in books, essays, etc. § 66	684
Suppression of the indefinite article §§ 67—68	684
when a weak some § 67	684
when a weak any § 68	688
Suppression of either article in enumerations, epigrammatic language, and in verse §§ 69—71	692
VACILLATION BETWEEN THE DEFINITE AND THE INDEFINITE ARTICLE §§ 72—74	694

CHAPTER XXIII.

ADNOMINAL USE OF NOUNS IN THE COMMON CASE.

1. Nouns may be used as adnominal words:
 - a) attributively: Russia needs help to foster her infant colonies. Times.
 - b) predicatively: Charles is a soldier, He will remain a widower, He turned Christian, They parted enemies, They called him madman.
2. Attributive nouns occur:
 - a) in the common case: The commercial policy of Japan is no chance thing. Daily Mail.
 - b) in the genitive case: I ran to the vessel's edge. MARIE CORELLI, Sor. of Sat., II, Ch. XXXIX, 245.
I'm not a lady's man. MRS. ALEX., For his Sake, I, Ch. XII, 203.
Note. Adnominal nouns may also be placed in apposition. Ch. IV.
3. Attributive nouns in the common case are used to express:
 - a) qualities: Russia needs help to foster her infant colonies. Times.
(= young colonies.)
 - b) relations: Nowhere have these complaints been more just than in the China trade. Times. (= the trade to China.)
4. Obs. I. The attributive use of the common-case form of a noun is a highly interesting feature of the English language, to which there is hardly a parallel in either Dutch or German. Occasional instances are, indeed, met with in our language, but as the numerous illustrative word-groups and quotations given below, show, different turns of expression are in the majority of cases necessary to render its meaning. Even when a noun is placed adnominally before another noun, it is mostly felt as a component part of a compound, not as an independent word like an ordinary adjective, which is the case in English. See especially H. BRADLEY, The Making of Eng., Ch. II, 63 ff; JESP., Growth and Structure, § 210.

- II. The independent character of the common-case form of the attributive noun has sometimes rendered it possible,

- α) that such a noun is modified by an adverb. From a too exclusively London standpoint¹⁾. In purely Government work. LECKY¹⁾. A distinctly Church of England institution²⁾.

She was brought up by a very heathen father and mother. HARDY, Far from the Madding Crowd, Ch. X, 91.

- β) that such a noun stands adnominally after a compound of -thing: There was nothing political or partisan in the history of the question. Westm-Gaz., No. 5658, 1c.

- γ) that such a noun is placed in the degrees of comparison, i. e.: when expressing a quality, in the periphrastic comparative or superlative; when expressing a relation, in the terminational superlative. Compare 16.

- i. baby. The little king of Spain is also shown on stamps, but in a more baby state. III. Lond. News.

business. Is it any wonder that the German can even afford to pay the 25 per cent preference and get the business by his more business methods? Times, No. 1826, 1053b.

model. "And baby is the best traveller in the world," said Donati, "and in every way the most model baby." EDNA LYALL, Hardy Nörsem, Ch. XXVI, 239.

pattern. Johnson clung to them as fondly as if they had been the most pattern hero and heroine of romantic fiction. LESLIE STEPHEN, Life of Johnson, 3.

silver. An accent very low | In blandishment, but a most silver flow | Of subtile-paced counsel in distress. TEN., Isabel, II.

- ii. centremost. In the centremost parts of her complicated heart there existed at this minute a little pang of disappointment. HARDY, Far from the Madding Crowd, Ch. II, 420.

headmost. Then as the headmost foes appeared, | With one brave bound the copse he cleared. SCOTT, Lady, I, II.

The headmost horseman rode alone. ib., I, VI.

rearmost. The engine of the express reared up and literally leaped upon the roof of the rearmost carriages of the Tournai train. Graph.

A long straggling troop bore spades and mattocks while the two rearmost of all staggered along under a huge basket of fish. CON. DOYLE, White Comp., Ch. I, 2.

topmost. The wood Seems sunk and shorten'd to its topmost boughs. COWPER, Sofa, (226).

They could descry nothing but one or two spectral black trees, their topmost branches coming up into the clearer air. WILLIAM BLACK, The New Prince Fort, Ch. XIV.

Topmost is sometimes used metaphorically as a quality-expressing word: He walked for a mile or two at his topmost speed. G. GISSING, Eve's Ransom, Ch. XIII.

Terminational comparison of quality-expressing attributive nouns is rare and has a burlesque effect³⁾: The wife is apt to remember that she is the bosomest of her husband's friends. TROL., Prime Min., III, 61.

¹⁾ JESP., Growth and Structure, § 210. — ²⁾ WENDT, Die Synt. des Adj., 19. — ³⁾ STORM, Eng. Phil., 685.

I'd rather be here than in the swellest London club. GISSING, The House of Cobwebs, 37.

The swellest European hotels. MUIRHEAD, The Land of Contrasts, 256. He has the darlingest expression. PUNCH, No. 3651, 498*b*.

It must here be observed, however, that the frequent use of a noun as an attributive adnominal word sometimes causes it to assume the character of a pure adjective, insomuch that there is nothing unusual in its being placed in either one or both of the degrees of comparison. Such, among, perhaps, other nouns are:

chief. Mr. Gumbo proposed to ride by the window for the chief part of the journey. THACK., Virg., Ch. XX, 202.

For the first few weeks she spoke only to the goat, that was her chiefest friend on earth. RUDY. KIPLING, The Light that failed, Ch. I, 5.

choice. No place will please me so, no mean of death, | As here by Caesar, and by you cut off, | The choice and master spirits of this age. JUL. CÆS., III, 1, 163.

He quickly rallied round him the choicest spirits in the Church. BUCKLE, Civilis., III, 111).

He had shown her all his choicest nursery of plants. JANE AUSTEN, Mansfield Park, Ch. X, 108.

dainty. And I would be the girdle | About her dainty waist. TEN., The Miller's Daughter, XXIII.

The hand of little employment hath the daintier sense. HAMLET, V, I, 78.

There stood waiting for her the daintiest of little broughams. M. M. GRANT, Sun-Maid, VII²).

- III. For all that almost any noun can be freely used as an attributive adnominal adjunct, it is in this function to be regarded as a kind of makeshift, employed because there is not a fitting adjective expressing the meaning intended and the language does not admit of coining one from the noun. Thus we find: the Transvaal Government, (FROUDE, Oceana, Ch. III, 61), the Free State magistrates (ib., Ch. III, 52), because there are no adjectives derived from either Transvaal or Free State. Conversely we never say England Government, magistrates, etc. for English Government, magistrates, etc. Nor are, for example, Elizabeth poets or suburb traffic current collocations for Elizabethan poets (SHAW, Hist. of Eng. Lit., Ch. IV) or Suburban traffic (Times).

Compare also the adjectives with the attributive nouns in: The commercial policy of Japan is no chance thing. DAILY MAIL.

The Review of Review is absolutely independent, and is free from any national, sex, class, sectarian and denominational bias. REV. OF REV., CXCV, 226. The tone of these lyrics is rather that of the Restoration poets than that of the earlier Caroline school. STEPH. GWENN, THOM. MOORE, Ch. I, 25.

Note also that the language has recently formed pictorial postcard, which is used by the side of picture-postcard.

- IV. For reasons of euphony, metre, rhythm, etc. the attributive noun is sometimes used, although there is a corresponding adjective, conveying practically the same meaning.

1) MURRAY, s. v. choice; 2) id., s. v. dainty.

colony. In the old colony days, in Plymouth the land of the Pilgrims. LONGFELLOW, Courtship of Miles Standish, I, 1. (Compare: As ancient is this hostelry As any in the land may be, Built in the old Colonial day. Id., Tales of a Wayside Inn, Prel., 10.)

coward. Those Sons of Freedom would have pistolled, stabbed — in some way slain — that man by coward hands and murderous violence. DICK., CHUZ., Ch. XXI, 185a. (instead of cowardly.)

Flanders. The country squire's great coach and heavy Flanders mares. THACK., Virg., Ch. I, 8. (instead of Flemish.)

fool. That 'many' may be meant | By the fool multitude. Merch. of Ven., II, 9, 26. (instead of foolish.)

How this fool passion gulls men potently. MATTHEW ARNOLD, Tristram and Iseult, III, 133.

What if she be fasten'd to this fool lord. TEN., Maud, I, xvi, ii.

The interchange of visits between the journalists of Germany and of Britain affords welcome evidence of the depth and sincerity of the common sentiment of the two nations despite all the fool fury of the demented phobists on either side. Rev. of Rev., CCX, 563a.

light-foot. But light-foot Iris brought it yester-eve. TEN., Cenone, VII. (instead of light-footed.)

money. Money profit rather than advancement of learning must be first regarded in the policy of the institution. The Periodical, 78. (instead of monetary.)

neighbour. And Lilia with the rest, and lady friends | From neighbour seats. TEN., The Princess, Prol., 98. (instead of neighbouring, see the quotation below under taper.)

Portugal. My ship the Swan is newly arrived from St. Sebastian, laden with Portugal wines. FARQUHAR, The Constant Couple, I, 1, (44). (Instead of Portuguese.)

scoundrel. He had a scoundrel dog whom he taught to whine in the most ludicrous manner. WASH. IRVING, Sketch-book, XXXII, 357. (instead of scoundrelly.)

stranger. I saw the stranger lad lift up his head. JOHN HAL., Ch. I, 6. (Compare: She remembered the strange officer's warning. BUCHANAN, That Winter Night.)

taper. I saw the taper spire of a village church rising from the brow of a neighbouring hill. WASH. IRV., Sketch-book, The Voyage, 12b. (instead of tapering.)

victor. And I return to thee, mine own heart's home; | As to his Queen some victor Knight of Faery. SHELLEY, Revolt of Islam, Dedication, 3. (instead of victorious.)

- V. In some cases, especially to meet the requirements of metre, rhythm, 'cursus' or rhyme, or when neither an attributive noun nor an adjective is available, a word-group consisting of of + noun is used to express the meaning intended.

She that finds a winter sunset fairer than a morn of Spring. LOCKSL. HALL, Sixty Years After, 22.

The war of arms in the Far East has ended; the new war of commerce is about to begin. Daily Mail.

The whole agitation would have collapsed like a house of cards.
Rev. of Rev., CXCV, 112a.

To cover (with a gun, pistol, etc.) = to present a gun or pistol at (something) so as to have it directly in the line of fire. MURRAY, s. v. cover, 11.

- VI. Sometimes the noun followed by of + noun logically represents the defining idea, the idea defined being indicated by the noun standing after of. This is especially the case in the colloquial turn of expression instanced in the following quotations with such emotional words as:

devil. I certainly am a devil of a mannerist. BYRON, Letter to Mr. Murray.

There are prisoners here sometimes, who are not in such a devil of a hurry to be tried. DICK., Little Dorrit, I, Ch. I, 4a.

You are letting in a devil of a draught here. Ib., Ch. X, 59a.

love. What a love of a child! Jane Eyre, Ch. XVII, 210.

milksop. That Methodist milksop of an eldest son looks to Parliament. Van. Fair, I, Ch. XI, 107.

slip. She is a frail slip of a woman. Rev. of Rev., CCIV, 573b.

snip. She was a frail slip of a woman with a snip of face. DOR. GERARD, The Eternal Woman, Ch. I.

strip. It was disgusting to Keck to see a strip of a fellow get up and speechify by the hour against institutions which had existed "when he was in his cradle". G. ELIOT, Middlemarch, Ch. XXVI, 342.

termagant. How the old duke adored his termagant of a wife. Mrs. WARD, Lady Rose's Daught., I, Ch. V, 40b.

This is really the relation also between the modifying word-group and the word modified in the turn of expression mentioned in Ch. V, 17, as is clearly seen by comparing the first with the second member of the following sentence: She's a small thing, not much of a figure. G. ELIOT, Mill, V, Ch. V, 312.

- VII. It is interesting to note how a quality or a relation may sometimes be expressed in all the three ways described above. Thus passenger birds (Jane Eyre, Ch. XXIII, 302) = birds of passage = migratory birds (= migrants).

- VIII. An adnominal noun sometimes appears without a head-word: Have patience with me, brother Herluin, and I will die as soon as I can and go where there is neither French nor English, Jew nor Gentile, bond nor free, but all are alike in the eyes of Him who made them. CH. KINGSLEY, Hereward, Ch. XX, 88a.

5. Qualities are expressed:

- a) by names of substances: a cotton apron;
- b) by names of persons, animals or things that are considered as the embodiment of a quality: a giant tree; an infant colony.
- c) by names of persons, animals or things denoting a particular state, status, function, employment or use of what is expressed by the noun modified: a widow lady, a beggar-maid, his clergyman cousin, a fisher-lad, a sumpter-pony.

- d) by proper names of persons, countries, towns, etc. denoting the origin or habitat of what is expressed by the head-word: a Gladstone bag, Ceylon tea, a Bengal tiger.

When the adnominal noun denotes a matter which is felt to differ distinctly in nature from that expressed by the head-word, there is little difficulty in assigning its place among those mentioned under b), but when there is no such difference it often answers both to the description under b) and that under c).

She was not at that time an infant prodigy. WILLIAM MOTTRAM, The true Story of George Eliot, Ch. I, 6.

The Queen left St. Pancras on Wednesday for Sandringham for the purpose of visiting the Princess of Wales and seeing the baby Prince. Daily Mail.

6. To denote the substance that things consist of, or are made of, the unmodified name of the substance is now commonly used: an iron bedstead, a cotton frock.

There she sat, staid and taciturn-looking, as usual in her brown stuff gown, her check apron, white handkerchief, and cap. JANE EYRE, Ch. XVI, 185.

And tripping across the room daintily to a little mother-of-pearl inlaid desk, she opened it with a silver key. THACK., Pend., I, Ch. XXIV, 256.

Then the three men strung their long yew bows. Robin Hood (Grano Series, 139).

The oil painting of Mr. and Mrs. Bowster. MISS BRADDON, My First Happy Christm. (STOF., Handl., I, 72).

7. Obs. I. Sometimes an adjective is used for the same purpose.

- a) The following adjectives may be met with not only in the higher literary style, but in ordinary spoken and written language: birchen, earthen, hempen, leaden, leathern, oaken, oaten, wheaten, wooden, woollen.

Besides the adjectives leathern and oaken we also find the nouns leather and oak, the latter being, perhaps, preferred in matter-of-fact language; the adjective hempen, on the other hand, seems to be more frequent than the corresponding noun; earthen and oaten seem to be the ordinary forms, except in certain compounds, such as earthworks, oatmeal. Wheat is occasionally met with instead of wheaten. Of the other material adjectives mentioned above, it may be said that they are used practically or wholly to the exclusion of the corresponding noun-forms. When these latter are used, they will mostly be found to convey a slightly different shade of meaning. Thus in wood pavement it is almost exclusively the road-metal used in the construction, hardly the construction itself, that is in our thoughts. Compare the Dutch hout-bestrating. The use of wool instead of woollen, as in the quotation cited below is very rare. With leaden compare leaded as in leaded panes (= Dutch: in lood gevatte ruiten).

birchen. Canoe-men in their birchen vessels. PARKMAN¹⁾.

¹⁾ MURRAY, S. V. birchen.

He was sitting on a birchen trunk that had fallen by the stream. HALLIWELL SUTCLIFFE, Through Sorrow's Gate, 23.

earth(en). i. A good store of milk lay in earthen and wooden vessels. SWIFT, Gul. Trav., IV, Ch. II, 193a.

The master sate down beside her on the earthen bank. SCOTT, Bride of Lam., Ch. XVIII, 183.

In this high field's dark corner, where he leaves | His coat, his basket, and his earthen cruise. MATTHEW ARNOLD, The Scholar Gipsy, II.

The door alone let in the day, | Showing the trodden earthen floor. W. MORRIS, Earthly Par., The Man born to be King, 43a.

Still higher . . . the elevation called Bulbarrow . . . swelled into the sky, engirdled by its earthen trenches. HARDY, Tess, I, Ch. IV, 34.

ii. The Russians had thrown up strong earthworks on the banks of the river. KINGLAKE, Crimea, III, III, 340¹⁾.

hemp(en). i. I covered it with the skins of 'Yahoos' well stitched together with hempen threads of my own making. SWIFT, Gul. Trav., IV, Ch. X, 211a.

The 'Bounty' lay motionless upon the placid waters of the quiet little bay, her hempen cable hanging straight up and down from hawse-pipe to anchor. LOUIS BECKE and WALT. JEFFERY, The Mutineer, 10.

The slow match consists of hempen cord, steeped in a solution of saltpetre. Cassell's Conc. Cycl., s. v. match.

ii. The wires in each strand must be twisted round a hemp core. R. F. MARTIN¹⁾.

leather(n). i. The armourer's heart swelled big with various and contending sensations, so that it seemed as if it would burst the leathern doublet under which it was shrouded. SCOTT, Fair Maid, Ch. III, 37.

Mr. Dick never travelled without a leathern writing-desk. DICK., Cop., Ch. XVII, 124b.

He wore ribbed hose and leathern gaiters. MRS. CRAIK, John Hal., Ch. I, 8.

His only clothing was a ragged sheepskin, bound with a leathern girdle. CH. KINGSLEY, Hyp., Ch. I, 1a.

ii. Here he saw a pretty young woman in leather gloves. DICK., Domb., Ch. XII, 108.

The king took a heavy chamois leather case. CON. DOYLE, Sherl. Holm., I, 27.

oaken. i. Beside him, balanced upon the top of a thick oaken cudgel, was a weather-stained silver-laced hat. CON. DOYLE, Refugees, 226.

With his lips compressed and clouded brow, he strode up and down the oaken floor. Id., The White Company, Ch. I, 2.

ii. She opened the oak doors. MRS. WARD, Marcella, I, 105.

Presentation of a carved oak chair to Dr. James. Williams. Graph.

oaten. Meanwhile the rural ditties were not mute, | Temper'd to the oaten flute. MILTON, Lycidas, 33.

You have oaten cakes baked some months before. LONGFELLOW, Rural Life in Sweden.

Butter sinks better into wheaten bread than into oaten cakes. JEROME, Idle Thoughts, III, 48.

wheaten. i. The people live a good deal upon cakes made of oatmeal, instead of wheaten bread. SCOTT, Tales of a Grandf., I, 5.

John Halifax had probably not tasted wheaten bread like this for months. MRS. CRAIK, John Hal., Ch. I, 9.

¹⁾ MURRAY, s. v. earthwork.

ii. It shall suffice that the bread be such as is usual to be eaten, but the best and purest wheat bread that may conveniently be gotten. Book of Common Prayer.

wood(en). i. The man with the wooden leg eyed me all over. DICK., Cop., Ch. V, 38*b*.

ii. They (sc. the motor omnibuses) outpace the 'buses, and, except when the wood pavement is slimy, they are well under control. Rev. of Rev., CXCVI, 342*b*. I am sorry that my chairs all have wood seats. TH. HARDY, Far from the Madding Crowd, Ch. LVI, 465.

wool(len). i. He always wears woollen stockings.

ii. A small wool hat rested on the top of his nose. Wash. Irv., Sketch-Book, The Leg. of Sleepy Hollow, 359.

β) Some are used only occasionally in ordinary style, but are frequent enough in the higher literary language.

ashen. i. And Ronin's mountains dark have sent | Their hunters to the shore, | And each his ashen bow unbent, | And gave his pastime o'er. SCOTT, Lord of the Isles, IV, ix.

Ash = the ashen shaft of a spear. MURRAY, s. v. ash, 3.

ii. The effects of the ashen shower were not instantaneous. Pall Mall Gaz. 1882, 25 Oct. 2/2¹).

brazen. And many other things there be, which they have received to hold, as the washing of cups and pots and brazen vessels. Mark, VII, 4.

Hear the loud alarum bells, | Brazen bells. POE, The Bells, III.

The sun came dazzling thro' the leaves, | And flamed upon the brazen greaves | Of bold Sir Lancelot. TEN., The Lady of Shal., III, 1.

Push the brazen door. W. MORRIS, Earthly Par., ProL, 3*b*.

flaxen. I have often wanted him to throw off his great flaxen wig. GOLDSMITH, She Stoops to Conquer, II (192).

A patent for spinning a flaxen thread. J. NICHOLSON, Operat. Mechanic, 405²).

golden. Hear the mellow wedding-bells, | Golden bells. POE, The Bells, II. The congregation will turn away from its books and prayers, to worship the golden calf in your person. THACK., Virg., Ch. XXIV, 251.

She that holds the diamond necklace dearer than the golden ring. TEN., Locksley Hall, Sixty Years After, 21.

Every door is barr'd with gold, and opens but to golden keys. Id., Locksley Hall, 100.

✓ Reach me my golden cup that stands by thee. MATTHEW ARNOLD, Tristram and Iseult, I, 72.

Then taking from her bosom a small golden medallion attached to a slender golden chain, she placed it in his hands. BUCHANAN, That Winter Night, Ch. II, 24.

They presented little Prince Edward with a golden replica of the King's cup-given to each of the guests at his Majesty's dinner. III. Lond. News.

The building of a golden bridge for the retreat of those whom we wish to evacuate their position is good strategy and sound common sense. Rev. of Rev., CXCVI, 335*a*.

The millionaire must be regarded as the working-bee, the most of whose golden store must at his death be appropriated by the community. Id., CCV, 28.

1) MURRAY, s. v. ashen; 2) id., s. v. flaxen.

silken. She wore a gray silken gown. MRS. CRAIK, John Hal., Ch. X, 104.
When the breeze of a joyful dawn blew free | In the silken sail of infancy.
TEN., Rec. of the Arab. Nights, I.

As there are now no gates, a barrier was made for the occasion by the holding of a red silken rope across the street on either side of the Griffin, which commemorates the spot upon which the Temple Bar stood. Times.

waxen. He blew out the two waxen candles which he had in his hand. MOTLEY, Rise, Hist. Introd., 37b.

In a poor chamber of the Vatican, upon a simple bed beside which burned two waxen torches in the cold morning light, lay the body of the man whom none had loved, and many had feared. MAR. CRAWF., Don Orsino.

The corresponding nouns and the word-groups with the preposition of are also met with in literary diction.

A gold harp leans against the bed. MATTHEW ARNOLD, Tristram and Iseult, I, 17.

I know him by his harp of gold. Ib., I, 19.

- II. Especially in the higher literary style material adjectives are often used to denote one or more special qualities suggested by the substance. See SWEET, N. E. Gr., § 173; and compare also Ch. XXVIII, 7a.

ashen. He was startled by the ashen hue of her face. MARION CRAWFORD, A Tale of a Lonely Parish, Ch. IX, 91.

brazen. Bright clouds, | Motionless pillars of the brazen heavens. BRYANT¹).
A rare monument of brazen mendacity. PARKMAN¹).

flaxen. He was tall and large-jointed with very light blue eyes and almost flaxen hair. (?) Madame Leroux, Ch. X.

glazen. He thus continued to follow with his green glazen eyes the motions of young Mordaunt Merton. SCOTT, Pirate, Ch. IX, 106.

golden. And I have bought | Golden opinions from all sorts of people. Macb., I, 7, 38.

He (sc. the parrot) turn'd on rocks and raging surf | His golden eye. CAMPBELL, The Parrot (Rainb., I, 18).

This gave a golden opportunity to the seniors of which they were not slow to avail themselves. MRS. WOOD, Orv. Col., Ch. VI, 92.

Sweet lips whereon perpetually did reign | The summer calm of golden charity. TEN., Isabel, I.

The poet in a golden clime was born, | With golden stars above. Id., The Poet, I.

Her hair falls about her face like the pale golden halo you see round the head of a Madonna. MISS BRAD., Lady Audley's Secret, II, Ch. III, 50.

One of the golden youths, who had family ties with the Liberal Chief, carried him the story. KATH. TYNAN, Johnny's Luck.

leaden. The leaden weight of the dead air pressed upon his brow and heart. RUSKIN, The King of the Golden River, Ch. III.

Leaden skies, chill mists, and raging gales were their portion for sixty long days. LADY POORE, Our Real Antipodes (Westm. Gaz., No. 5179, 3b).

silken. To be restrained by such mild and silken language. WATTS, Improv. Mind, 90²).

1) MURRAY, s. v. brazen; 2) id., s. v. silken.

Their silken ease | And royal luxury changed for blood and tears. L. MORRIS, Epic of Hades, II, 135¹⁾.

A splendid charger, whose neck...swayed hither and thither to her silken touch. W. WRIGHT, Palmyra and Zenobia, III, 23¹⁾.

In her lovely silken murmur. MRS. BROWNING, Lady Ger. Courtsh., V¹⁾.

waxen. Baby fingers, waxen touches, press me from the mother's breast. TEN., Locksley Hall, 90.

The gentleman in the ample white cravat and shirt-frill is Mr. Riley, a gentleman with a waxen complexion and fat hands. G. ELIOT, Mill, Ch. III, 8.

The gait was feeble, the bearing had lost all its erectness; the bronzed strength of the face had given place to a waxen and ominous pallor. MRS. WARD, Rob. Elsm., II, 175.

wooden. Mr. F. W. Dunn complained of the wooden translations given even by well-taught pupils in examination²⁾.

- III. Also some material nouns are sometimes thus used. See also 8, c, Note. FIJN VAN DRAAT (Rhythm in Eng. Prose, The Adj., § 27 ff.) has been at great pains to show that the choice between material nouns and material adjectives is often determined by the laws of metre and rhythm.

diamond. From the green rivage many a fall | Of diamond rillets musical. TEN., Recollections of the Arabian Nights, V.

gold. I saw the gold sunshine round your head. Henry Esmond (TROL., Thack., Ch. V, 131).

The little gold curls on her temples. MRS. WARD, Rob. Elsm., I, 152. (Compare: Her hair had lost the original gold, which had dazzled the eyes of the poor defunct baroness. DOR. GERARD, Eternal Woman, Ch. XIX.)

iron. Death relaxed his iron features. LONGFELLOW, Norm. Bar., VII.

He felt the loss as much as it was in his iron nature to feel the loss of anything but a province or a battle. MAC., Fred., 696a.

The iron hand is not less irresistible because it wears a velvet glove. O. W. HOLMES, Autocrat of the Breakfast-table, Ch. VII, 65a.

I have known him presume upon his iron strength until he has fainted from pure inanition. CON. DOYLE, Return of Sherl. Holm., Adv. of the Norw. Build.

pinchbeck. Where in these pinchbeck days, can we hope to find the old agricultural virtue in all its purity? TROL., Framl. Pars., Ch. II, 12.

silver. He was a cynic! You might read it writ | In that broad brow crowned with its silver hair. SHIRLEY BROOKS (TROL., Thack., Ch. I, 59).

velvet. Where dew lies long upon the flower, | Though vanished from the velvet grass. SCOTT, Bridal of Triermain, Introd., I.

— Here we may also mention copper beech (= Dutch bruine beuk).

- IV. In older English the number of material adjectives was greater than it is in present English. Those in the following quotations are now quite obsolete, or survive only as archaisms.

azurn. Thick-set with agate and the azurn sheen | Of turkis blue, and emerald green. MILTON, Comus, 893.

¹⁾ MURRAY, S. V. silken. — ²⁾ WENDT, Die Synt. des Adj., 15.

beechen. But one into his waggon drew him up, | And gave him milk from out a beechen cup. W. MORRIS, Earthly Paradise, Proud King, LII.

cedarn. Right to the carven cedarn doors. TEN., Recollections of the Arabian Nights, XI.

Moving toward a cedara cabinet. Id., Ger. and En., 136.

silvern. These sound louder than the silvern notes of the tuneful choir. Rev. of Rev., CC, 136a.

Aspen from asp, now almost forgotten, and linen, from Old English lin, have practically lost their adjectival character.

There's a dance of leaves in that aspen bower. W. C. BRYANT, The Gladness of Nature, IV.

- V. Adjectives in -en are sometimes, especially in poetry and the higher literary style, found in meanings differing materially from those referred to above.

beechen. Thou, light-winged Dryad of the trees, | In some melodious plot | Of beechen green, and shadows numberless, | Singest of summer in full-throated ease. KEATS, Ode to a Nightingale, I.

When beechen buds begin to swell. BRYANT, The Yellow Violet, I.

There's a titter of winds in that beechen tree. Id., The Gladness of Nature.

birchen. He saw your steed, a dappled gray, | Lie dead beneath the birchen way. SCOTT, Lady, I, XXIII.

He pass'd where Newark's stately tower | Looks out from Yarrow's birchen bower. Id., Lay, Intro.d., l. 28,

Boyhood sheds its flood of birchen tears. FRAZER'S *Mag.*¹⁾

But, alas! as his school increased in numbers, he had proportionately recanted these honourable and anti-birchen ideas. LYTTON, Caxtons, II, Ch. I, 29.

brazen. The Brazen Age.

oaken. She was so beautiful that had she stood | On windy Ida by the oaken wood [etc.]. W. MORRIS, Earthly Par., Cup. and Psyche, 10.

- VI. Some material adjectives and nouns may be used to modify names of colour adverbially, the two words being often hyphenated.

ashen. In a cloud it faded, and seems | But an ashen-gray delight. TEN., Maud, I, vi, iii.

(Compare: He turned ashy white. F. ANSTEY, Vice Versa, Ch. XII, 336.)

gold(en). i. Ah me, my dear, it seems but a little while since the hair was golden brown, and the cheeks as fresh as roses. THACK., Virg., Ch. XCII, 991. His beard and moustache were golden-yellow. BUCHANAN, That Winter Night, Ch. III, 34.

Quince. A fruit and the tree that bears it, now widely cultivated, the fruit being golden yellow and much used in making preserves. ANNANDALE, Conc. Dict. From the refulgent feathers of its head . . . arises an upright crest of bare . . . shafted plumes expanding at their tops into webs, forming a crown of rich golden green, shot with blue. Westm. Gaz., No. 5329, 5a.

ii. A sudden splendour from behind | Flushed all the leaves with rich gold-green. TEN., Rec. of the Ar. Nights, VIII.

¹⁾ MURRAY, S. V. birchen.

silver. Hard by a poplar shook away, | All silver-green with gnarled bark.
TEN., Mariana, IV.

VII. In such collocations as chord glottis, cartilage glottis the adnominal noun is loosely thought of as a substance-indicating word.

VIII. The suffix -y sometimes has approximately the same force as the suffix -en of material adjectives. See also SWEET, N. E. Gr., § 173.

ashy. By peaks that flamed, or, all in shade, | Gloom'd the low coast and quivering brine | With ashy rains. TEN., The Voyage, VI. (Compare: ashen shower in Obs. I, β.)

Margaret tottering back towards him with palms extended piteously, as if for help, and ashy cheek, and eyes fixed on vacancy. CH. READE, The Cloister and the Hearth, Ch. XXIII, 88. (Compare: ashen hue in Obs. II.)

barky. In bright alcoves, | In woodland cottages with barky walls, | In noisome cells of the tumultuous towns | Mothers have clasped with joy the new-born babe. BRYANT, An Evening Reverie, 17.

feathery. Rather a childish beauty, though, with large clear blue eyes, and pale golden ringlets, that fall in a feathery shower over her throat and shoulders. MISS BRAD., Lady Audley's Secret, I, Ch. III, 50.

leavy. Now near enough: your leavy screens throw down. Macb., V, 6, 1 (leavy = Mod. Engl. leafy).

silky. Thy silky mane I braided once, | Must be another's care. Mrs. CAR. NORTON, The Arab to his Horse.

waxy. Pen's healthy red face, fresh from the gallop, compared oddly with the waxy debauched little features of Foker's chum. THACK., Pend., I, Ch. V, 53. (Compare: waxen complexion in Obs. II.)

Also the Romance suffix -ous sometimes forms material adjectives.

At the other end they (sc. the vocal chords) are fixed to two movable cartilaginous bodies. SWEET, Phonetics, § 17.

IX. It is hardly necessary to observe that also a word-group consisting of the preposition of (sometimes in) + noun placed after the noun modified is frequently used to indicate the substance that things consist of or are made of.

i. Chests in oak or walnut, looking with their strange carvings of palm branches and cherubs' heads, like types of the Hebrew ark. Jane Eyre, Ch. XI, 125.

A set of tea-things in delf. Ib., Ch. XXXI, 440.

There was not one modern piece of furniture, save a brace of workboxes and a lady's desk in rosewood. Ib., Ch. XXIX, 422.

ii. The summerhouse aloft | That open'd on the pines with doors of glass. TEN., The Lover's Tale, I, II, 1. 40.

Such a word-group all but regularly replaces the material adjective or equivalent noun in the function of nominal part of the predicate or of predicative adnominal adjunct. Ch. XXVIII, 7a.

A boat with two figures in it floated on the Thames, between Southwark Bridge which is of iron, and London Bridge which is of stone. Dick., Our Mut. Friend, I, Ch. I, 1.

In conclusion we may observe that also these word-groups with of are used in a figurative meaning.

A man of great heart, and nerves of iron, was kept in thralldom by the ancestors of the Orsini. LYTTON, Rienzi, I, Ch. V, 41.

In this small woman's frame was a will of iron. T.P.'s Weekly, No. 484, 194b.

8. The use of the second class of quality-expressing nouns is due to the ever active propensity of the human mind to trace resemblances among the varied objects of creation. Thus a tree that is as tall as a giant will be described as a giant tree, one as stunted as a dwarf as a dwarf tree. Here follow some instances of:

a) attributive nouns that are names of persons.

booby. You have heard of a booby brother of mine, that was sent to sea three years ago. CONGREVE, Love for Love, I, 2 (208).

boy. The following them (sc. the military) about, and jesting with them, affords a cheap and innocent amusement for the boy population. PICKW., Ch. II.

darling. She was for rescuing the darling champion from his ravishers. Times.

despot. Last week came one to the county town, | To preach our poor little army down, | And play the game of the despot kings. TEN., Maud, I, x, ii.

dwarf. You, with Much and William Scathelock take a walk up to the dwarf willow thicket, and watch the highway called Watling Street. Robin Hood, 139 (Gruno Series).

A neighbouring brook....bubbled along among alders and dwarf willows. WASH. IRVING, Sketch-Bk., XXXII, 351.

gentleman. He is quite a gentleman sort o'man. G. ELIOT, Mill, I, Ch. VII.

giant. And here she came, and round me play'd, | And sang to me the whole | Of those three stanzas that you make | About my "giant bole". TEN., Talking Oak, XXXIV.

Huge thorni cacti like giant candalabra clothed the glaring slopes. CH. KINGSLEY, Westw. Ho!, Ch. XVIII, 135b.

grandfather. I have...a grandfather-clock. Westm. Gaz., No. 5607, 7a.

hang-dog. Mr. Boxer, sitting opposite in a hang-dog fashion, eyed them with scornful wrath. W. W. JACOBS, Odd Craft, B, 45.

idiot. This sweet and graceful courtship becomes a licentious intrigue of the lowest and least sentimental kind, between an impudent London rake and the idiot wife of a country squire. MAC., Restoration, 579a.

infant. Shall I weep if a Poland fall? Shall I shriek if a Hungary fail? | Or an infant civilisation be ruled with rod or with knout? TEN., Maud, I, iv, viii.

maiden. She was a maiden City, bright and free. WORDSW., Sonn. Extinct. Venet. Repub.

He had not as yet fleshed his maiden sword. L. RITCHIE, Wand. by Seine, 15¹).

There was no blood upon her maiden robes. TEN., The Poet, XI.

A maiden knight — to me is given | Such hope, I know not fear. Id., Sir Galahad, I. 61.

1) MURRAY, S. V. maiden.

The congregation can never be too small for a maiden sermon. TROL., Barch. Tow., Ch. XXIII, 195.

It is nearly half a century since there has been a maiden sessions at Oxford. Daily Tel., 1868, 16 April¹).

I found the earth was almost entirely maiden soil. Archæol. Cantiana, XII, 8¹).

The new steamship sailed from Plymouth on her maiden trip to the Antipodes. Times (weekly ed.) 1884, 31 Oct. 19/4¹).

Macaulay's maiden speech in the House of Commons was delivered in that cause. Westm. Gaz., No. 5625, 4c.

Macaulay himself preferred the speech we reprinted as more powerful and effective than his maiden effort. Ib.

rival. He lives at some distance from the main road without any rival gentry near him. WASH. IRV., Sketch-Bk., Christm. Eve, 85a.

school-boy. He spent the 40 l. on a farewell supper to eight school-boy friends. SYMONDS, Shelley, Ch. I, 16.

snob. There may be a snob king, a snob parson, a snob member of Parliament, a snob grocer, tailor, goldsmith, and the like. TROL., Thack., Ch. II, 83.

spitfire. They gave themselves airs, which alternately mystified and enraged a little spitfire outsider like Marcella Boyce. MRS. WARD, Marcella, I, Ch. I, 8.

stripling. The one interest in literary circles was whether the stripling poet would go down before the storm. Lit. World.

termagant. From even this stronghold the unhappy Rip was at length routed by his termagant wife. WASH. IRV., Rip. v. Winkle.

virgin. Adelaide grew first into consequence through the Burra Burra copper-mine — a hill of virgin metal which was brought there by sea and smelted. FROUDE, Oceana, Ch. VI, 82.

Wicken Fen is about the only piece of virgin fenland left in England. Times.

b) attributive nouns that are names of animals.

bugbear. Indiscretion was my bugbear fault. MRS. GASK., Cranf., Ch. XII, 221.

halcyon. She was taken to spend a few halcyon weeks with her friend Amelia Sedley. TROL., Thack., Ch. III, 98.

monster. The mighty mastiffs, the monster cats, the tower-like men and women (sc. of Brobdingnag). Jane Eyre, Ch III, 19.

I have attended the monster performances at Sydenham. Times.

Monster meeting of Hindus and Mohammedans. Ib. (= mass meeting: In the evening Mr. Chamberlain addressed a mass-meeting in the Free-trade Hall. Ib.)

c) attributive nouns that are names of things.

bubble. The main object of the story is to expose bubble companies. TROL., Thack.; Ch. II, 66.

Many so dote upon this bubble world, | They care for nothing else. TEN., Queen Mary, IV, 3 (631b).^{*} buckram. The English ladies with their confounded buckram airs, and the squires with their politics after dinner, send me to sleep. THACK., Pend., I, Ch. XXV, 269.

common-place. It seemed such a common-place history that I was really glad I had forgotten to tell John the story. MRS. CRAIK, John Hal., Ch. II, 18.

¹) MURRAY, s. v. maiden.

cupboard. He did not feel called upon as a parent to fulfil any expectations which Dick's youthful cupboard love had unintentially excited. F. ANSTEY, Vice Versa, Ch. XIX, 381.

fancy. This anxiety never degenerated into a monomania, like that which led his father to pay fancy prices for giants. MAC., Fred., 664a.

featherweight. She was a tall woman, but a featherweight partner. E. W. HORNUNG, No Hero, Ch IV.

feint. Buller's successful feint attack. Daily Chronicle. (Compare: making a feigned attack. Times.)

game. He conducted himself in a game way. DICK., Bleak House, Ch. LVI, 469.

gift. Gift bread chokes in a man's throat. TROL., Framl. Pars., Ch. XXXVI, 353. Do not look a gift horse in the mouth. Prov.

hook. He had a hook nose. DICK., Little Dorrit, I, Ch. I, 2b.

matter-of-fact. He was essentially a bluff, masculine, matter-of-fact man, and he tells his story in a matter-of-fact way. W. J. DAWSON, The Makers of English Fiction, Ch. I, 6.

mock. But the mock prince passes away. TROL., Thack., Ch. V, 135.

mockery. Many, being subjected to a mockery trial, were infamously executed. SOUTHEY, Wat Tyler (BREWER, Handbook.)

old world. As if the folks at Fubsby's could not garnish dishes better than Gashleigh, with her stupid, old-world devices of laurel-leaves, parsley and cut turnips. THACK., A little Dinner at Timmins's, Ch. VI, (326).

pattern. A little formal, but nothing that might not be sent to a pattern young lady. DICK., Bleak House, Ch. LXIII, 523.

pendulum. And the pendulum spider | Swings from side to side. CHRIST. GEORG. ROSSETTI, Summer (Rainbow, I, 7).

sham. This young lady was not able to carry out any emotion to the full, but had a sham enthusiasm, a sham hatred, a sham love, a sham taste, a sham grief. TROL., Thack., Ch. IV, 3.

sheet. In the middle leaps a fountain | Like sheet lightning. TEN., The Poet's Mind, II.

surplus. If they would rather die, they had better do it, and decrease the surplus population. Christm. Car., I.

trumpery. His active friendship was confined to giving him £10 and a trumpery shawl for a collection of songs. W. GUNNYON, Biogr. Sketch of Burns, 46.

vinegar. Mrs. Sharp, my lady's maid, of somewhat vinegar aspect and flaunting attire. G. ELIOT, Scenes, II, Ch. II, 95.

Note. A particular variety of quality-expressing attributive nouns are such as are used to indicate a colour. (7, Obs. III.) They supply the place of adjectives in -y, which these nouns are incapable of forming.

chestnut. Mr. Martyn shook the reins, and the sturdy chestnut cob trotted off in the direction of Mount Stanning. MISS BRAD., Lady Audley's Secret, II, Ch. III, 50.

ebony. Then this ebony bird beguiling my sad fancy into smiling [etc.]. POE, The Raven, VIII.

hazel. All the spirit deeply dawning in the dark hazel eyes. TEN., Locksl. Hall, 28.

mahogany. Better she, my dear, than a black Mrs. Sedley, and a dozen of mahogany grandchildren. Van. Fair, I, Ch. VI, 54.
Fancy being seen by the side of such a mahogany charmer as that. ib., Ch. XXI, 217.

mulberry. Mr. Trotter gave four distinct slaps on the pockets of his mulberry indescribables. Pickw., Ch. XVI, 141.

raven. Let her... shake back her raven hair | With the old imperious air.
MATTHEW ARNOLD, Tristram and Iseult, I, 95.

Compare with the above: It shines upon the blank white walls | And on the snowy pillow falls. ib., I, 307.

9. The English language is singularly free in the attributive employment of nouns of the third group, especially of names of persons. Thus the noun orphan may stand attributively before boy, girl, child, cousin, nephew, niece, son, daughter, etc., while the use of wees in the same function in compounds is practically confined to weesjongen, weesmeisje and weeskind.

Sometimes the two nouns merely denote two different functions, uses, etc. that are combined in one and the same person or thing. In this case the order in which the two nouns are placed need not necessarily be a fixed one, although it is mostly but one that is in practical use. Thus in warrior bard, bookseller importer, restaurant hotel, the order might be reversed. Also these attributive nouns may be distinguished into:

- a) such as denote persons: the beggar maid (TEN.), his brother volunteers, his clergyman cousin, a young fisher lad, one of the hostage ladies (MC CARTHY, Short Hist., Ch. IV, 56), a few curiosity-dealer (MRS. WARD, Rob. Elsm.), a few girl (Henry Esm., I, Ch. IX, 93), her kinsman lover (TROL., Thack., Ch. V, 134), a maiden lady (ib., Ch. III, 100), the merchant princes of the City (Newc., I, Ch. IV, 140), the minstrel boy (THOM. MOORE), the minstrel wench (SCOTT, Fair Maid, Ch. XXXI, 322), his old-maid sisters, orphan pupils, his philosopher friend, a slave woman (LECKY), the stranger lad (MRS. CRAIK, John Hal., Ch. I), their tradesmen papas, the twin lads (TROL., Thack., Ch. IV, 137), the warrior-bard, a widow lady (Pend., I, Ch. VII, 78), a widow woman (T. P.'s Weekly, No. 477).
 - b) such as denote animals: the parent bird (Ill. London News), two sumpter poneys, a Terrier puppy.
 - c) such as denote things: gossip parlance (TEN., Isabel, II), his island home (READE, Never too late, I, Ch. I, 24), the laurel shrub (TEN., The Poet's Mind), a morality play (Rev. of Rev., CC, 206), prose fiction, a specimen copy, a toy watch (TROL., Thack., Ch. V, 134).
10. Obs. I. Also collective nouns are often preceded by attributive nouns in the above function.
In the old king's time we would have given a thousand for you, when he had his giant regiment that our present monarch disbanded. THACK., Barry Lyndon, Ch. V, 79.
Some proportion of the girls at Cliff House were drawn from the tradesmen class. MRS. WARD, Marcella, I, 15.

II. Sometimes proper names of persons are appropriated for the same purpose.

Queen Anne is on her deathbed, and a Stuart prince appears upon the scene. TROL., THACK., Ch. V, 135.

III. A state is also expressed by the nouns man (gentleman), woman (maid), cock, hen, bull, cow etc. when placed before other nouns to denote sex. Ch. XXVII, 13, b and c.

IV. Sometimes the adnominal noun in its ordinary application denotes a person, the noun modified a thing or animal.

Here is a companion picture by Mr. Sydney Brooks. Rev. of Rev., CCXXVI, 335a.

11. The proper names used to denote qualities (5, d) are names of persons or names of geographical bodies. They may be further distinguished into:

a) fixed epithets, i. e. such as denote a trade variety of whatever is expressed by the head-word:

i. Gladstone bag, Hansom cab, Louis XVI chairs, Pullman cars, Wellington boots.

ii. Brazil nut, Ceylon tea, India rubber, Norway spruce, Russia leather, Skye terrier, Turkey carpets.

b) accidental epithets:

Society owes some worthy qualities in many of her members to mothers of the Dodson class. G. ELIOT, Mill, IV, Ch. I, 250.

A conspicuous quality in the Dodson character was its genuineness. Ib.

In fact he (sc. Lord Dalmeny) was a Gladstone and not a Chamberlain free-trader. Speech.¹⁾

The Macaulay sentence is plain as that of Swift himself. FR. HARRISON.¹⁾

These proper names must, of course, be understood to have primarily expressed a relation of origin, which gradually came to stand for a certain quality. Sometimes it is not easy to decide which is more prominent. This is, for example, the case in:

China pigs have been esteemed a luxury all over the East from the remotest periods that we read of. CH. LAMB, Ess. of Elia, Dissertation upon Roast Pig, (255).

12. The relations which may be expressed by the common-case form of attributive nouns are of a highly varied nature. They may be roughly divided into:

a) such as may also be expressed by genitives, especially when classifying in nature. Ch. XXIV, 7; 52—56. The relation may be:

1) one of possession, origin or agency:

* The Bishop ran off with more than youthful agility to seek the United States Minister. THACK., The Stars and Stripes, I (Compare: In fact as the monarch spoke, the Minister of the United States made his appearance. Ib.)

 Douglas owed his appointment to Court interest. STEPH. GWENN, Thom. Moore, Ch. II, 33.

We hear nothing from Transvaal except by Boer permission. Times.

1) WENDT, Synt. des heut. Engl., 112.

H. POUTSMA, A Grammar of Late Modern English. II.

 Much admirable pioneer work has been accomplished. Rev. of Rev., CCXIII, 217b.

This involves the abandonment of all contentious legislation and concentration on non-party measures of social and administrative reform. Ib., CCXXX, 103a.

2) one of subjection to some action:

baby. He had not, perhaps, any natural taste for baby-worship. TROL., Barch. Tow., Ch. XLIV, 398.

divinity. There is a divinity student lately come among us. OLIVER WEND. HOLMES, Autocr. of the Breakfast Table, Ch. I, 9a.

Government. Here are innumerable chances for a Government defeat. Truth, No. 1802, 81a.

rose. He shared her enthusiasm in rose cultivation. Rev. of Rev., CCXII, 162b.

tariff. It is one more nail driven into the coffin of Tariff Reform. Rev. of Rev., CCXIII, 221a.

This striking example of preference in practice has come as a cold douche to Tariff reformers. Ib.

Note. In the following quotations the attributive noun is almost equivalent to a pleonastic genitive (Ch. XXIV, 21):

In 1862 she married a Thackeray cousin, a young officer with the Victoria Cross. TROL., Thack., Ch. I, 4. (= a cousin of Thackeray's.)

It is not easy to read a Roosevelt Message to Congress without using a bad word. Saturday Review. (= a message of Roosevelt's, or a message from R.)

b) such as may also be expressed by a noun in apposition or a noun preceded by specializing of:

angling. We were all completely bitten by the angling mania. WASH. IRV., Sketch-book, The Angler, 139b.

marriage. He naturally looks for happiness in the marriage state. JANE AUSTEN, Pride and Prej., Ch. XX, 113.

The two bills introduced by women are for raising the marriage age from fifteen to eighteen years. Rev. of Rev., CCXII, 161b.

Of the same nature are the adnominal nouns in:

Mr. Wapshot laid bare to me all the baseness of Mr. Smithers's conduct in the Brough transaction. Sam. Titmarsh, Ch. XIII, 182.

If Captain Sinclair had not had a three thousand majority at his back in 1906, he would have had to whistle for his peerage. Rev. of Rev., CCXXX, 104b.

c) such as may also be expressed by an attributive adnominal adjunct containing a preposition other than specializing of. Although as to their grammatical function these adjuncts are adnominal, yet they are adverbial in import.

chance. The red-room was... very seldom slept in, I might say never, indeed, unless when a chance influx of visitors at Gateshead Hall rendered it necessary to turn to account all the accommodation it contained. Jane Eyre, Ch. II, 9. I found out by some chance expression that he was attending some meeting. Ch. KINGSLEY, Alt. Locke, Ch. VI, 68.

A chance acquaintance may develop faster than one brought about by formal introduction. MAR. CRAWF., Ad. Johnston's Son, Ch. V.

China. Nowhere have these complaints been more just than in the China trade. Times.

court. I hear of Court ladies who pine because Her Majesty looks cold on them. Henry Esmond, II, Ch. XV, 291. (= Dutch: dames aan het hof, not: hofdames, for which the English has lady-in-waiting or maid-of-honour.)

cripple. In its cripple parlours the Ragged School Union pioneered the way for the special schools now provided by the County Councils. Rev. of Rev., CCX, 574a.

Devonshire. His forbears have been Devonshire men for centuries. Lit. World.

emergency. All these things are admittedly emergency measures. Rev. of Rev., CCXXVII, 401a.

farewell. He spent the 40 l. on a farewell supper to eight school-boy friends. SYMONDS, Shelley, Ch. I, 16.

kindred. And still, within our valleys here, | We hold the kindred title dear. SCOTT, Marm., VI, Introd. iv.

life. It is part of the ancient prerogative of the Crown to create life Peers. Rev. of Rev., CCV, 89b.

native. Every one admits that the native question is the most difficult and dangerous of all the questions with which the new legislators will have to deal. Id., CXCv, 229b.

part. He wrote for the Constitutional, of which he was part proprietor. TROL., Thack., Ch. I, 14.

surprise. The Queen paid a surprise visit to the Military Hospital at Milbank on Tuesday afternoon. Daily Mail.

university. He had had a university education. Henry Esmond, III, Ch. III, 334.

d) such as may also be expressed by a noun in the function of predicative adnominal adjunct of the first kind (Ch. VI, 1):

maiden. Have you heard her maiden name? MISS BRAD., Lady Audley's Secret, II, Ch. III, 50. (= Dutch: meisjesnaam.)

schoolboy. It has never been my fortune to meet with him since my school-boy days. SYMONDS, Shelley, Ch. I, 10.

student. No novel indeed is half so delightful as that picture . . . of the student life enjoyed together for a few short months by the inseparable friends. Ib., Ch. II, 22.

13. Obs. I. Owing to the absence of the preposition or any other word to indicate the particular kind of relation, the attributive noun is often unsettled in meaning. Thus a corner kick might mean a kick aimed at the corner, but also a kick discharged from the corner. Similarly the Huxley lecture covers at least three meanings, viz.: the lecture delivered by Huxley, the lecture about Huxley, the lecture as one of a series of lectures instituted by Huxley.

This indistinctness is not, however, such a serious drawback as on the first blush would appear, ambiguity being mostly precluded by established usage, which has usually attached a fixed meaning to a given word-group, or by the connections, which make it quite clear what is meant. Thus to those interested in the game of football, a corner kick exclusively means a kick discharged from the corner.

On the other hand the fact that there is not a fixed meaning which necessarily attaches to the attributive noun, has the advantage of rendering it capable of expressing almost any shade of meaning as occasion arises. Compare mud-guard with dress-guard; letter-carrier with frame-carrier (= carrier attached to the frame of a cycle) and cycle-carrier (= carrier attached to the cycle).

- II. In many cases nouns, though primarily indicating some relation, also mark by implication some quality. Thus an every-day occurrence means primarily an occurrence that happens every day, but may also denote an occurrence of a nature that it may be expected every day, i.e. a common occurrence. Similarly night air = a) air during the night, β) air cold and bleak as the air during the night is apt to be. Further instances are seen in:

His latest book proclaims this with trumpet tones. Rev. of Rev., CCVIII, 361a. Her eyes saw only future scenes of home-sorrow. G. ELIOT, Mill, IV, Ch. III, 257. (Compare: Tom's face showed little radiance during his few home hours. Ib., V, Ch. II, 285.)

Sometimes such a noun passes almost entirely into a quality-expressing word. Compare home question, home truth, home thrust in which home has the meaning of searching, pointed with Home Office, home trade. Further instances may be seen in wild-goose chase, life-and-death struggle (WOLSELEY, The Young Napoleon, Ch. II).

- III. There are also frequent cases that a noun in certain combinations expresses a relation, in others a quality as referred to in 5b and discussed in 8. Thus mountain is a relation-expressing word in mountain air, and mountain goats; it is a quality-expressing word in a man of mountain stature. Some collocations are, consequently, ambiguous. Thus mountain trees may mean trees growing in the mountain, and very tall trees. Compare also infant school with infant colony.

- IV. As some of the above instances show, a relation-expressing attributive noun is often modified by a word or word-group. Frequently two or more nouns or other words, sometimes forming fragmentary sentences, are coupled together to be used adnominally. The following are instances of a varied description:

i. Preferential trade proposals (Times), long-distance trains (ib.), an every-day occurrence (CH. KINGSLEY, Westw. Hol, Ch. XXIII, 169a), a second-hand piece of old stores (DICK., Bleak House, Ch. XXXIV, 293).

ii. Church of England principles (BRADLEY), Church of England children (Times), a House of Commons debate (BRADLEY).

iii. The London, Brighton and South Coast Railway (BRADLEY), a life-and-death struggle (WOLSELEY, the Young Napoleon, Ch. II), Nursery Rhymes with original pen and ink drawings (Books for the Bairns, III).

iv. The Marriage with a Deceased Wife's Sister Bill. Times.

v. Tom (was) equipped in his go-to-meeting roof, as his new friend called it. Tom Brown, I, Ch. I, 85.

I want her to have delicious do-nothing days. G. ELIOT, Mill, VI, Ch. II, 352.

Knock-down furniture. Daily Mail.

I am a lazy, good-for-nothing fellow. MISS BRAD., Lady Audley's Secret, II, Ch. III, 49.

- V. Sometimes a word-group with an adnominal noun is in its turn used adnominally with another noun, or, contrariwise, an adnominal noun serves to modify a word-group containing an adnominal noun.

trade union leaders (Times), the London County Council (BRADLEY), the Marriage Law Amendment Act (id.), the Public Works Loans Bill (Times), the United Kingdom Tea Company (Ill. Lond. News), the University of London school-leaving certificate (Mod. Lang. Quart.), the Times War Correspondent (Times), a livery stable keeper (SAINTSBURY), the Labour Representation Committee (Rev. of Rev., CXCIV, 139b).

The following is an interesting instance of the extremes to which the language is capable of going:

He commenced the establishment of two "Bishop's Barchester Sabbath-day Schools," gave notice of a proposed "Bishop's Barchester Young Men's Sabbath Evening Lecture-Room." TROL., Barch. Tow., Ch. X, 73.

- VI. A word-group with a relation-expressing adnominal noun may be used as the base of a derivative. Thus trade unionist has been formed from trade union, temperance reformer from temperance reform:

He was a staunch teetotaler and temperance reformer. Rev. of Rev., CXCIV, 309a.

- VII. Very frequent is the use of gerunds as adnominal words, as in: boarding schools, calling-time (Mrs. GASK., Cranf., Ch. XII, 224), dancing-master, housing conditions (West. Gaz., No. 5255, 4c), housing reform (Rev. of Rev., CCXIII, 227), the living conditions of British workmen (Westm. Gaz., No. 5255), marking ink, retiring room (JAMES PAYN, Glow-Worm Tales, I, A, 15), sinking fund, training college, trying-on room (WALT. BES., All Sorts and Cond. of Men, Ch. XXV, 178), visiting-day (GOLDSM., Vic., Ch. XII), waiting woman, withdrawing-room (JAMES PAYN, Glow-Worm Tales, I, A, 11).

Sometimes the verbal in ing may, apparently with equal justice, be regarded as a present participle used metonymically. SWEET (N. E. Gr., § 2338) mentions falling sickness (= illness in which the patient falls), dying day, parting glass, sleeping draught as instances of word-groups (or compounds) in which the first element is a present participle, basing his interpretation chiefly on the fact that they are pronounced with even stress. This looks like mistaking cause for effect, and, moreover, seems to apply indubitably only to the first. Dying-day may certainly be understood as the day on which a person dies, but parting glass and sleeping draught seem severally to stand for glass taken at parting and draught taken for sleeping or to induce sleep, i. e. they seem to be gerund formations.

Further instances of doubtful formations are: leaving book (SYMONDS, Shelley, Ch. II, 15), reforming days (Times), retiring pension (MAC., Mad. d'Arblay, 722b), working man (Rev. of Rev.).

In the following word-groups (or compounds), on the other hand, the verbal seems to be an indubitable participle: circulating library (Riv., I, 2), fighting men (MC CARTHY, Short Hist., Ch. IV, 52), flying literature (TROL., Thack., Ch. VII, 165), flying visit (G. ELIOT, Mid., 280), hanging-lamps (THACK., A little Dinner at Timmins's, Ch. VII, 334), leading article, repeating rifles (Rev. of Rev., CCXIII, 254a), standing army.

VIII. Attributive nouns in the common case when expressing a relation are apt to form compounds with their head-words. In this case:

- a) the component parts of the combination give up some of their individuality, which is often attended by their expressing a more special sense than they would convey when detached. Thus in backbone the ideas conveyed by back and bone are not distinctly separated in the mind, and the word has a more special sense than the word-group back bone.
- b) the head-word loses some of its stress. This will become clear when such a sentence as The backbone is the chief back bone of the human body is read out loud.

Compare also school-house (= house which is used as a school) with school house (= house which belongs to a school).

Thus also in the following quotation the adnominal noun does not form a compound with the noun standing after it: The house standing in the valley was somewhat better than the ordinary parsonage houses of the day. G. E. MITTON, Jane Austen and her Times, Ch. I, 12.

For further information about the nature of compounds as compared with combinations in which the first element is merely an adnominal noun, see also BRADLEY, The Making of Engl., Ch. II, 66; and MURRAY, N. E. D., General Explanations, 23.

IX. According to the degree in which the two nouns are considered to have lost their individuality, they are written without a break, with a hyphen, or as separate words. As this loss must appear in different degrees to different persons, we do not find anything approaching to uniformity in the spelling of compounds. Here follow some compounds:

- a) with some special meaning: light-house, collar-bone, day-star, land-slip, turning-lathe.
- b) without some special meaning: fruit-tree, sea-man, moon-light, fire-wood, corn-field, wine-shop, hay-stack.

X. It is hardly necessary to observe that the relations of the first noun of a compound to the second are in the main the same as those expressed by the more independent attributive noun; i. e. they may be:

- a) such as are also expressed by a noun in the genitive: bedside, churchyard, day-star, sun-beam, man-slayer, peace-maker;
- b) such as are also expressed by a noun in apposition or a noun preceded by specializing of: oaktree;
- c) such as are also expressed by an attributive adnominal adjunct containing a preposition other than specializing of: inkstand, tea-spoon, bushranger.

XI. Also compounds are often vague in meaning. Thus fireman may mean a) one who attends to a furnace or the fire of a steam-engine, and b) one who is employed to extinguish fires. Similarly a water-plant might mean a plant growing in the water, or a plant growing near the water, or, on the analogy of water-melon, we might suppose it to mean a plant containing a great deal of moisture, and perhaps growing in a comparatively dry place. SWEET, N. E. Gr., § 1559.

14. Also the predicative use of nouns presents some remarkable features in English. Not only are they found in all the functions which they may have in Dutch, but they are sometimes used to denote a quality or a relation.

i. angel, imp. He is neither angel nor imp. TROL., THACK., Ch. IV, 109.

choice. She had been afraid he would die a bachelor, he was so very choice. MRS. GASK., Cranf., Ch. VII, 130.

devil. Your form is man's, and yet | You may be devil. BYRON, The Deformed transformed, I, 1 (490a).

fool. He was neither stolid nor fool. JOHN OXENHAM, Great-heart Gillian, Ch. V, 41.

God. Man's word is God in man. TEN., Bal. and Bal., 8.

glass. "Is that a fine time?" said the General, with a twinkle in his left eye (The other was glass). MISS J. H. EWING, Jackanapes.

gold. His face was ruddy, his hair was gold. TEN., Victim, III.

hazel. His hair was hazel. W. BESANT, By Celia's Arb., I, Ch. I, 2.

knave. In this business he was both knave and fool. MAS., Engl. Gram.³⁴, § 31, N.

manners. Whispering, sir, before company, is not manners. G. FARQUHAR, The Recruiting officer, III, 1 (289).

partisan. Though the views expressed are decided views, they are not partisan, that is to say they fairly represent the other side of the question as well as the side to which the author has been led to adhere. Times.

virgin. What is it to be a gentleman? Is it to have lofty aims, to lead a pure life, to keep your honour virgin? THACK., The Four Georges, IV, 120.

- ii. Budget. The Parliamentary week, however, has not been all Budget. Westm. Gaz., No. 5007, 1c.

chapel, church. Another place that would have suited her was lost through unconsciously answering that she was chapel. The lady would have nothing in her house but church. G. MOORE, Esth. Wat., Ch. XXI, 151.

county. The Barfields at least were county, and he wished Woodview to remain county as long as the walls held together. Ib., Ch. XLVII, 322.

Nonconformist. There are a large number of schools in which the dominant tone and temper are Nonconformist, and a large number in which they are Church of England. Times.

Nottinghamshire. I hear none (sc. genuine English) but from my valet, and he is Nottinghamshire. BYRON, Letters (Marino Faliero, I, 2 (359a), footnote Lond. Ed.).

15. Obs. I. Sometimes the quality or the relation is expressed by a word-group, mostly a noun preceded by an adjective (or ordinal numeral) or followed by a prepositional word-group, the whole sometimes forming a kind of unit.

i. (eighteenth) century. Mr. Austin Dobson, a delightful authority on everything *eighteenth century*¹⁾.

1) WENDT, Die Synt. des Adj., 27.

(middle-)class. To be a bit better than one's neighbour was considered excessively vulgar and middle-class. OSCAR WILDE, An Ideal Husband, I.

(capital, good) company. We are capital company here. PICKW., Ch. XX.

I never saw him such good company. DICK., Cop., Ch. XVIII, 131b.

(good) form. Is it good form for a lady to drink a glass of wine? E. W. HORNUNG, No Hero, Ch. III. (= zooals het behoort, comme il faut.)

(good) fun. His adventures are very good fun. TROL., Thack., Ch. VI, 139.

(common) knowledge. That Japan needs money is common knowledge. Daily Mail. (= algemeen bekend.)

(bad) manners. It was considered bad manners to put food into the mouth with the knife. GÜNTH., Leerb.

matter(-of-fact). I will be busy and cool and matter-of-fact. MRS. ALEX., For his Sake, II, Ch. IV, 77.

It all seemed pretty matter-of-fact. BARONESS VON HUTTEN, Pam, III, Ch. VI, 145. (Note the modifying by the adverbial pretty.)

(common)place. He was in love, which was commonplace; the course of true love did not run smooth, which was also commonplace; but which was less ordinary, the barrier to his hopes was not the want of money. MARY M. GROSE, The Lady of the Lime Walk plaster(-of-Paris). The trout was plaster-of-Paris. JEROME, Three men in a Boat, Ch. XVII, 224.

(sound common) sense, good strategy. The building of a golden bridge for the retreat of those whom we wish to evacuate their position is good strategy and sound common sense. Rev. of Rev., CXCVI, 335a.

- ii. (High) Church. Her tendencies were High Church. TROL., Framl. Pars., Ch. I, 2.

II. Also proper names are sometimes used to denote a quality or a relation.

- i. That the stuff is genuine Thackeray is best proved by sampling it. Acad., No. 1765, 202b.

The old man took it for granted that the child could not spell, no Yeoland could; and to him, whom she charmed, she was all Yeoland. BARONESS VON HUTTEN, Pam, Ch. X, 52.

As for "Esmond", it is Addisonian in style certainly, but fortunately not Addison. Truth, No. 1802, 82b.

- ii. Kegan Paul was Eton and Exeter (= an Eton boy, and an Exeter college undergraduate)¹⁾.

Even Burns, who lived so close to the mountains, was not Highland enough¹⁾.

16. In English as well as Dutch predicative nouns when not modified by an individualizing adjunct or when not proper names, approximate more or less to adjectives. DEN HERTOOG, Ned. Spraakk., III, §§ 16 and 35. This becomes apparent:

¹⁾ WENDT, Die Synt. des Adj., 23.

- a) by their frequently discarding the definite or the indefinite article, not only when they denote a quality as in many of the above quotations (i. a. with angel, imp, devil, knave, fool, partisan, etc.), but also when they express how a person is related to a person or thing (Ch. XXIV, 36), or when they indicate a state, or an office, function or station. For a detailed discussion see Ch. XXXI, 45 ff. Compare also Ch. XXIV, 36 and FRANZ, Shak. Gram.², § 277.

i. Gumbo bragged... of the immense wealth to which he (sc. his young master) was heir. THACK., Virg., Ch. I, 7.

He was secretary to Mr. A. MASON, Engl. Gram.³⁴, 15, IV, ii. She was daughter to a city tradesman. W. BESANT, St. Kath., Ch. II.

I hope you have no intent to turn husband. Much ado, I, 1, 196.

Lord Arran was twice prisoner in the Tower. Henry Esmond, III, Ch. IV, 346.

Let the boy go with us, lest he prove traitor. LYTTON, Rienzi, I, Ch. I, 13.

- b) by their being often referred to by so. For details see Ch. XXXII, 28.

Alas! Northam was altogether a desert to him then, and Bideford, as it turned out, hardly less so. CH. KINGSLEY, Westw. Hol., Ch. XIV, 119a.

We had been friends — more so than I have had any occasion to mention in the course of this narrative. NORRIS, My Friend Jim, Ch. XII, 79.

- c) by their occasionally admitting of being modified by an adverb of degree.

Anglomane. Emile is as Anglōmane as ever. G. MERED., Lord Ormont, Ch. V, 77.

blockhead. I am blockhead enough to give fifty per cent sooner than not have it; and you I presume are rogue enough to take a hundred if you can get it. SHER., School for Scand., III, 3 (395).

churl. The malady had not been churl enough to injure the fair features of the Viscountess of Castlewood. Henry Esm. I, Ch. IX, 78.

fool. I was the only one that was fool enough to marry him. SYLVIA CRAVEN, The Harvest of Sin, 27.

game. A boxing match came off, but neither of the men were very game or severely punished. THACK., Virg., Ch. XXXVII, 383.

housekeeper. I found that I was not housekeeper enough to know whether things were all as they ought to be. DICK., Bleak House, Ch. LXIV, 525.

iron. Though aged, he was so iron of limb, | Few of our youth could cope with him. BYRON, Siege of Corinth, 746.

man. Though barely twenty, he was man enough to know whether things were all as they ought to be. DICK., Bleak House, Ch. LXIV, 525.

master. He is fully master of the subject. SWEET, N. E. Gr., § 361.

He soon made himself thoroughly master of its construction and method of working. Cassell's Mod. School-Read., George Steph.

matter-of-fact. The story of the shipwrecked sailor was so natural, so matter-of-fact, and so full of good sense that to many it was not a story at all. Hist. of Dan. Defoe. (v. D. VOORT, Eng. Read.-Book, 42.)

partisan. Even in . . . England it was well-nigh impossible for a statesman to find a place or a historian to find an audience, unless he were violently partisan. Westm. Gaz., No. 5329, 9c.

rogue. I am not clever enough; or not rogue enough. Henry Esmond, III, Ch. III, 344.

starch. She was as starch as any Quakeress. THACK., Barry Lyndon, Ch. I, 14.

Note I. The conversion of some quality-expressing nouns into predicative quasi-adjectives is current only when they are connected with enough. Thus the absence of enough entails the use of the indefinite article before fool, i. e. causes this word to reassume its character as a noun.

I was a fool to marry you. SHER., School for Scand., III, 1 (393).

If thou hast never been a fool, be sure thou wilt never be a wise man. THACK. (TROL., Thack., Ch. I, 10.)

Also their being connected with other words in the same grammatical function may make such quality-expressing nouns capable of discarding the indefinite article. See the instances of fool and knave under 14.

II. There is not, of course, anything unusual in the free use of adverbs of degree to modify such words as choice and dainty, which sometimes strip off their substantival character altogether. (4, Obs. II.)

It's so pretty, George, that it looks too choice for me. DICK., Bleak House, Ch. XLIX, 412.

III. When the adverb of degree is more, the predicative noun may be said to stand in the comparative degree.

As for the English settlers they are more Boer than the Boers. Rev. of Rev., CXCV, 147b.

Still more fool I shall appear | By the time I linger here. Merch. of Ven., II, 9, 73.

After all this man is more hero than scoundrel. THACK., Barry Lyndon.

The mining and industrial vote in Charleroi and Liège . . . will be even more Socialist than it was two years ago. Westm. Gaz.

Being more finely formed, better educated, and, though the youngest except Retty, more woman than either, she perceived that only the slightest ordinary care was necessary for holding her own in Angel Clare's heart against these her candid friends. HARDY, Tess, III, Ch. XXI, 176.

IV. The terminational comparative of a predicative noun seems to be very rare, and to be used chiefly for humorous effect, except, of course, of such a word as dainty.

The sweet perfumed double yellow Wallflower is much dwarfer than the old well-known yellow. Garden.¹⁾

The doctor's friend was in the positive degree of hoarseness, puffiness, red-facedness, all-fours, tobacco, dirt, and brandy; the doctor in the comparative—hoarser, puffer, more red-faced, more all-foury, tobaccoer, dirtier and brandier. DICK., Little Dorrit, Ch. VI, 31a.

¹⁾ MURRAY, s. v. dwarf, B, 1.

d) by their occasionally giving up the distinctions of number and sex. It must, however, be remembered that many masculine nouns have a tendency of being used as nouns of common gender. Ch. XXVII, 14', Obs. VI.

i. That I may rest assured | Whether yond troops are friend or enemy. JUL. CÆS., V, 3, 18.

They turned Christian. RUDY. KIPL., Plain Tales, 11.

The casualties on our side are believed to amount to 350, among which must be reckoned some 220 officers and men taken prisoner. Morning Leader.

ii. My wife was heir to the property. THACK., COX'S DIARY, January.

She was thoroughly master of French. ANN. BES., Autobiog., 22.

The ordinary practice, however, is to make such nouns exhibit number and sex, which in most connections is unusual in Dutch.

i. fool. And we that were fools enough to bring up another body's child. MRS. CRAIK, Dom. Stor., B, 73.

They are not fools enough . . . to believe that they cannot get the Budget without destroying the Lords. Sat. Rev. (Westm. Gaz., No. 5185, 18c.)

gambler. Divines and philosophers turned gamblers. MAC., Pitt, 288b.

master. The conquerors became at once masters of almost every part of the Carnatic. Id., Clive, 504b.

Let us be masters of the Channel for six hours, and we are masters of the World. GREEN, Short Hist., Ch. X, § IV, 821.

After a siege of nearly a year the Allies at last became masters of Sebastopol. Ib., Epil., 842.

Its forces cleared lake Ontario, and made themselves masters of Upper Canada.

Ib., Ch. X, § IV, 833.

Both groups are very anxious to make clear to us that they remain masters in their own household. Westm. Gaz., No. 5231, 1b.

prisoner. After being made prisoners at Preston in Lancashire, they were imprisoned in Newgate. SCOTT, Wav., Ch. V, 34b.

At least we would not have been taken prisoners. Henry Esmond, II. Ch. XIV, 271.

Men who are taken prisoners are necessarily 'absent without leave'. Morning Leader.

Since the middle of April we have taken over 1000 prisoners, exclusive of surrenders. Times.

stranger. They are equal strangers to opulence and poverty. GOLDSM., Vic., Ch. IV.

traitor. When our actions do not, | Our fears do make us traitors. Macb., IV, 2, 4.

victim. In the circumstances the settlement of the affair will, of course, be left to France, but Spain, as some of her subjects have become victims, will doubtless co-operate. Daily Mail.

ii. mistress. Well, Julia, you are your own mistress. SHER. Riv., I, 2 (218).

As for Mary, she was mistress enough of herself to whisper to Elizabeth [etc.]. JANE AUSTEN, Pride and Prej.

As to tobacco she was perfect mistress of the subject. DICK., Crick., I, 34. England was sole mistress of the seas. GREEN, Short Hist., Ch. X, § IV, 828.

In real life Marcella would probably before long have been found trying to kick his shins — a mode of warfare of which in her demon moods she was past mistress. MRS. WARD, Marc., I, Ch. I, 11.

It is next to impossible to be mistress in two antithetical genres. Times. She was mistress of Danish, German, English and French. Ib.

- e) by their sometimes requiring either that or which as relative pronouns, even when they are the names of persons, who being impossible in referring to qualities. For full details see Ch. XXXIX, 4.

i. * SIR ANTH. Though he wa'n't the indulgent father that I am, Jack. — ABS. I dare say not, sir. SHER., Riv., III, 1 (241).

I have encouraged him too much — vain fool that I have been. CH. KINGSLEY, Hyp., Ch. IV, 18a.

 A minute ago, the boy had looked the quiet, mild, dejected creature that harsh treatment had made him. DICK., Ol. Twist, Ch. VI, 69.

ii. John is a soldier, which I should also like to be. BAIN, H. E. Gr., 36.

17. Obs. I. Some quality-expressing predicative nouns assume so completely the character of adjectives that they may be followed by a pure prepositional object.

St. Roman's Well is almost absolutely virgin of fact. SAINTSB., Nineteenth Cent., Ch. III, 133. (= devoid of fact.)

- II. When a word is freely used both as an adjective and a pure noun, as is the case with many names of political or religious denominations (Ch. XXIX, 6), the English language mostly treats it as a noun, when it is used predicatively. Thus we mostly find: He is a Liberal, a Conservative, etc.; a Protestant, a Roman Catholic, etc.; a captive, a lunatic, etc. They are Liberals, Conservatives, etc.; Protestants, Roman Catholics, etc.; captives, lunatics, etc.

i. He was a Radical, a Red. MRS. WARD, David Grieve, II, 92. About two-thirds of the population are Protestants, and about one third Roman Catholics. Cassell's Conc. Cycl., s.v. Russia.

ii. The principal is Christian. SHER., School for Scand., III, 1 (389).

They are more than half heathen. SCOTT, Fair Maid, Ch. XXXIV, 367.

Catholic communities have, since that time, become infidel and become Catholic again; but none has become Protestant. MAC., Popes, 563a. (In this quotation the context renders the form chosen obligatory.)

The successor of St. Peter was carried away captive by the unbelievers. Ib., 562a.

Nine tenths of the nation had become heartily Protestant. Id., Hist., I, Ch. I, 74.

Thou art not Christian. CH. KINGSLEY, Hereward, Ch. XIII, 59a. With the documents contained in this volume before us, it seems almost fruitless to discuss whether in these days he was Radical or Tory. Westm. Gaz., No. 5448, 9c.

- III. To denote a person's nationality English uses indifferently either a noun or an adjective.

- i. He was more than half a Frenchman. MAC., Fred., 683*b*.
I am a Frenchman, and incapable of fear. BUCHANAN, That Winter Night, Ch. V, 51.
Angelo Villani . . . is no stranger but a Roman. LYTTON, Rienzi, IV, Ch. I, 153.
- ii. Though I was not always brought up at Rome, I am Roman. LYTTON, Rienzi, IV, Ch. I, 149.
Is he Roman? His name then must be known to me Ib. IV, Ch. I, 155.
My father was Irish on his mother's side. ANN. BES., Autobiog., 13.
Boulanger, as is well known, is English or rather Welsh on his mother's side. Lit. World.
The people who live in England are called English. JESP. and SARAuw, II, 6
-

CHAPTER XXIV.

GENITIVE OF NOUNS.

FORM.

1. The genitive is formed by adding 's or ' to the common-case form. The bulk of singular nouns, and all plural nouns that end in any other letter than s, take 's. All plural nouns in s take ' only. John's book, the millers's horse, Thomas's slate; the children's toys, geese's legs; the boys' books, the heroes' graves.

Also French plurals in x, which is pronounced as z, take only the apostrophe: the Beaux' Stratagem. FARQUHAR.

Note. The s is voiced, unless preceded by a voiceless consonant. It is syllabic, i. e. it sounds as a separate syllable, when the base ends in a sibilant, i. e. either a blade-, or a blade-point consonant.

2. As to the formation of the genitive of singular nouns ending in a sibilant, usage is not always in conformity with the general rule. SWEET, N. E. Gr., § 998; MASON, Engl. Gram.⁹⁴, § 175; STOF., Taalst., IV, 53; HORACE HART, Rules for Compositors and Readers, Appendix III.

- a) Before the word sake abstract nouns ending in a sibilant now mostly take 's:

for his office's sake (CH. BRONTË, Shirley, I, Ch. IV, 67), for acquaintance's sake (BAIN, H. E. Gr., 136), for appearance's sake (BARRY PAIN, Culm. Point)

But omission of the s, whether or not with the apostrophe retained, is not uncommon:

- i. for appearance sake (TEN., Queen Mary, II, (595b), for conscience sake (CH. KINGSLEY, Westw. Hol., Ch. XV, 125a), for convenience sake (ESCOTT, Engl., Ch. II, 17), for old acquaintance sake (SWEET, N. E. Gr., § 998).
- ii. for old acquaintance' sake (DICK., Uncom. Trav., Ch. III, 28; SCOTT, Pirate, Ch. XXXIX, 432), for fairness' sake (W. MORRIS, News from Nowhere, Ch. XXVIII, 210), for goodness' sake (JEROME, Idle Thoughts, IV, 63).

Note. I. In older English it was quite usual to suppress the mark of the genitive ('s) also in the case of nouns not ending in a sibilant. This practice became obsolete about the middle of the 19th century. MURRAY, s. v. sake, II.

For pleasure sake. THOMAS LODGE, Rosalynde, in Pref. to As you like it in Clar. Press, 20.

For sport sake. Henry IV, A, II, 1, 77.

For fashion sake As you like it, III, 2, 236.

For form sake. SHER., Riv., II, 1 (230).

II. From the 17th to the early 19th century sake and its modifier were often connected by a hyphen. MURRAY, s. v. sake, II.

To flatter a man, from whom you can get nothing, . . . is doing mischief for mischief-sake. Swift's Let., II, 127¹).

I shall call . . . the populations . . . Tartars, for convenience-sake. J. H. NEWMAN, Seat. Turks, I, 13¹).

III. The apostrophe of the genitive is seldom, if ever, found wanting after plurals in s modifying sake.

The husbands, for their wives' sake, are fain to admit him. TROL., Barch. Tow., Ch. IV, 30.

(This) does not endear him to those who do not value him for their souls' sake. Ib.

He could for parties' sake . . . maintain a certain amount of necessary zeal. Ib., Ch. XXXIV, 301.

For old times' sake. THACK., Lovel the Widower, Ch. II, 25.

- b) As to proper names the following practice is recommended by MURRAY to compositors and readers (HORACE HART, Rules, Appendix, III):

"Use 's for the genitive case in English names and surnames "whenever possible; i. e. in all monosyllables and dissyllables, and "in longer words accented on the penult; as Augustus's, "Gustavus's, St. James's Square, Nicodemus's, "Zacharias's.

"In longer names, not accented on the penult, 's is also preferable, though ' is here admissible; e. g. Theophilus's.

"In ancient classical names, use 's with every monosyllable, e. g. Mars's, Zeus's. Also with dissyllables not "in es; as Judas's, Marcus's, Venus's.

"But poets in these cases sometimes use ' only; and Jesus' "is a well-known liturgical archaism. In quotations from Scripture follow the Oxford standard.

"Ancient words in es are usually written es' in the genitive, "e. g. Ceres' rites, Xerxes' fleet. This form should certainly "be used in words longer than two syllables, e. g. Arbaces', "Aristides', Miltiades', Themistocles'. To pronounce "another 's (= es) after these is difficult.

¹) MURRAY.

"This applies only to ancient words. One writes — Moses' law; "and I used to alight at Moses's for the British Museum. As to "the latter example, Moses, the tailor, was a modern man, like "Thomas and Lewis; and in using his name we follow modern "English usage."

In the above "Rules" English names and surnames means names and surnames of English persons, and by ancient classical names is meant names of persons belonging to the ancients.

The "Rules" are silent as to the numerous nouns of more than two syllables in is, us and as. Except for poetry, the ordinary practice seems to be to form their genitive by suffixing 's.

The following instances, which are arranged according to the number of syllables of the base, will show that the "Rules" are far from being uniformly applied, so far as the classical names are concerned.

- i. Zeus's action. ROWE and WEBB, Introd. to Ten., Dem. and Pers.
- ii. * Hermes' wand (KEATS, Endym., IV), Dives' chariot (THACK., Newc., I, Ch. V, 51), Brutus' Portia (Merch. of Ven., I, 1, 166), Phæbus' fire (ib., II, 1, 5), Phæbus' cart (Haml., III, 2, 167), Atlas' Daughter (W. MORRIS, Odyssey, I, 59), King Schæneus' city (id., Atalanta's Race, XXXII), Queen Venus' well-wrought image white (ib., LIV), Jesus' public ministry (Harmsw. Cycl., s. v. Jesus Christ, 278c).
  Moses's men (Van. Fair, I, Ch. XXV, 266).
- iii. * Æneas' tale to Dido (Haml., II, 2, 676), Adonis' shoulders (KEATS, Endym., II), Hippotas' son (W. MORRIS, Odyssey, X, 2), Adrastus' bonds (id., The Son of Cræsus, LXIV), Adonis' bane (id., Atalanta's Race, XXX), Achilles' statue (Westm. Gaz., No. 5617, 8c), Cervantes' romance (WEBST., s. v. Dulcinea).
  Laertes's challenge (DEIGHTON, Introd. to Haml., 14), Ulysses's arrival (ROWE and WEBB, Introd. to TEN., Lotos Eaters), Odysseus's own gentleman (THACK., Virg., Ch. XX, 198), Erasmus's own letters (FROUDE, Life and Let. of Erasmus).
- iv. * Erymanthus' side (W. MORRIS, Odyssey, VI, 103), Alcinous' daughter (ib., VI, 139).
  Herodias's daughter (THACK., Newc., I, Ch. XXV, 227), Polonius's shop (id., Sam. Titm., Ch. II, 22), Polonius's opinion (DEIGHTON, Note to Haml., II, 2, 109), Polonius's wit (DOWDEN, Note to Haml., I, 49—51), Synesius's most charming letters (CH. KINGSLEY, Hyp., Pref., 10), Diogenes's assignees (Van. Fair, I, Ch. XVII, 173), Aristophanes's Plato (TOM HOOD, Pract. Guide to Eng. Vers., 11).

As regards the non-classical proper names in s, usage is much more uniform, at least in the spoken language, in which the suffix of the genitive is, apparently, almost invariably pronounced.

In the written and printed language, however, the bare apostrophe is not seldom met with to denote the genitive. Many instances of irregularities and inconsistencies are cited by STOFFEL, in Taalstudie, IV, 55.

Figs' left (Van. Fair, I, Ch. V, 46; in the same chapter: Figs's left), Raggles' house (ib., II, Ch. II, 23), Keats' view (CH. KINGSLEY, Hyp., Notes), Rubens'

Watering-place (HAZLITT, On the Ignorance of the Learned; PARDOE, Sei. Eng. Ess., 234), John Waters' heart (G. MOORE, Esth. Wat., Ch. III, 21), Stephens' inks, Pears' soap (Advertisements).

Note. It is open to doubt whether the suppression of the genitive s in the printed documents is always intended to be phonetic. It may, however, be observed that certain people think they impart to their language a mark of distinction by dropping sibilants, the vulgar often running into the opposite extreme of adding improper sibilants. STORM, *Eng. Phil.*², 799; JESP., Growth and Struct., § 186 and § 191.

How can you talk like that, when you have books upon books already, and masterses and missesses a teaching of you continual. DICK., Domb., Ch. XII, 111.

I do tell 'ee plainly, — face to face, — she be there in madam's drawing-room; herself and Gussy, and them two walloping gals, dressed up to their very eyeses. TROL., Barch. Tow., Ch. XXXIX, 344.

The swellses likes to be looked at. PUNCH.

- c) In the older writers, and in modern poetry, the s is sometimes suppressed in the case of ordinary class-nouns, chiefly for the sake of the metre. ABBOT, Shak. Gram., § 22 and § 471; STOF., Taalst., V. Compare also Ch. XXV, 2, Obs. III.

But upon the fairest boughs, | Or at every sentence end, | Will I Rosalinda write. As you like it, III, 2, 145.

There will come a Christian by, | Will be worth a Jewess' eye. Merch. of Ven., II, 5, 42.

The Princess' favourite. CONGREVE, *The Mourning Bride*¹).

Hard unkindness' altered eye. GRAY¹).

Prayer is innocence' friend. LONGFELLOW¹).

The gifts of those who, longing for delight, | Have hung them there within the goddess' sight. W. MORRIS, Earthly Par., Atalanta's Race, 36a.

In the following quotation it is not clear whether (the) Douglas must be understood as a genitive or as a quality-expressing noun in the common case. (Ch. XXIII, 11.)

Can I not mountain-maiden spy, | But she must bear the Douglas eye? | Can I not view a Highland brand, | But it must match the Douglas hand? SCOTT, Lady, I, xxxv.

The accumulation of sibilants seems to be responsible for the suppression of s in:

How foolish this is! just now you were only apprehensive for your mistress' spirits. SHER., Rivals, II, 1 (228).

3. Compound nouns and word-groups of whatever description, usually have the mark of the genitive attached to the last word. Such a form is often called a group genitive.

Julius Caesar's death; my father-in-law's house; the Lord Lieutenant's residence; the old king's son; the principal offenders' names (DICK., Cop., Ch. VII, 47b).

¹) STOF., Taalst., V.

Colloquially this practice is sometimes carried to grotesque extremes. SWEET, N. E. Gr., § 1016; BRADLEY, The Making of English, 61; ONIONS, Syntax, § 89.

Having purchased the beer and obtained, moreover, the day-but-one-before-yesterday's paper, he repaired to the skittle-ground. PICKW., Ch. XLV, 411. I hate this destroyer of my happiness' letter. SAVAGE, My Official Wife, 162. The United Kingdom Tea Company's Tea. Advertisement.

It sometimes gives rise to obscurity, as may be seen from the puzzle mentioned by JESPERSEN (Prog., § 231): The son of Pharaoh's daughter was the daughter of Pharaoh's son.

4. In some cases the above-mentioned practice is departed from.

a) The mark of the genitive is usually placed after each of a group of nouns, when the head-word refers to each of them separately. Thus John's, Mary's and Jack's books are the books owned by John, Mary and Jack separately, as distinguished from John, Mary and Jack's books, i. e. the books owned by John, Mary and Jack jointly. (27, b, 2.)

Some of the following quotations also illustrate the fact that the adnominal modifiers belonging equally to each of the genitives are often left out before the second, third, etc., when separate ownership is denoted:

Lord Fairfax was the only gentleman in the colony of Virginia to whom she would allow precedence over her. She insisted on the 'pas' before all lieutenant-governors' and judges' ladies. THACK., Virg., Ch. IV, 36.

Buttons laid the table for the children's and Miss Prior's tea. Id., Lovel the Widower, Ch. III, 49.

When hath there been, since our Henrys' and Edwards' days, such a great feat of arms. Id., Henry Esmond, II, Ch. XI, 247.

In early life she had many offers of marriage, but refused them all for the sake of that art to which a wife's and mother's duties are so fatal. CH. READE, The Cloister and the Hearth, Ch. IX, 45.

The presence of the burgomaster in his house, after so many years of coolness, coupled with his wife's and daughter's distress, made him fear some heavy misfortune. Id., Ch. VII, 38.

She had dreamed of an aged and dignified face, the sublimation of all the d'Urberville lineaments, furrowed with incarnate memories representing in hieroglyphic the centuries of her family's and England's history. HARDY, Tess, I, Ch. V, 46.

Note. Occasional instances occur of only the last of such a group of nouns taking the mark of the genitive. FRANZ, *Shak. Gram.*¹, § 42b; JESP., Prog., § 237.

Not of a woman's tenderness to be | Requires nor child nor woman's face to see. CORIOL., V, 3, 130.

A widow gentlewoman, well born both by father and mother's side. SPECTATOR, No. XXXVI¹).

The difference he felt between a quarter of an hour and ten minutes' work. DARWIN, Life and Let., I, 144¹).

¹) JESP., Prog., § 237.

When the persons or things denoted by the different nouns form a kind of unit, the latter practice is the rule:

- i. Mr. and Mrs. Fitzroy Tymmins request the pleasure of Sir Thomas and Lady Kicklebury's company at dinner on Wednesday, at 7½ o'clock. THACK., A Little Dinner at Timmins's, Ch. I (305).
Of course people would say that she had tried to capture Ald. Raeburn for his money and position's sake. Mrs. WARD, Marc., I, 122.
- ii. From papa's and mamma's bedroom the grief... came downstairs. THACK., Virg., Ch. XXVIII, 291.
(They) might be running off to Scotland to-morrow, and pleading papa's and mamma's example for their impertinence. ib., Ch. LXXXI, 852.
They had married.. without previously asking papa's and mamma's leave. ib., 854.

b) Practice is highly varied in the case of word-groups consisting of two nouns, the second of which stands in apposition to the first.

- 1) When the genitive is conjoint (45), the general rule (3) is mostly followed, unless the second noun is accompanied by lengthy adjuncts, which entails the attaching of the mark of the genitive to the first and the placing of the noun modified in immediate succession to it. The result is a construction which is felt as at variance with the genius of the language, and which is, therefore, mostly avoided. (27, b, 1.) Sometimes both nouns receive the mark of the genitive, but this construction seems to be rare. MASON, *Eng. Gram.*³⁴, § 77; JESP., Prog., § 222; The King's English, 64; FRANZ, *Shak. Gram.*¹, § 40.

- i. I acted as a kind of guardian to them both till their uncle Sir Oliver's liberality gave them an early independence. SHER., School for Scand., I, 2 (374).
We ask not our cousin Louis's sword. SCOTT, Quent. Durw., Ch. XXVII, 355.
- ii. It is Othello's pleasure, our noble and valiant general. Othello, II, 2, 1.
For Herod had laid hold on John, and found him, and put him in prison for Herodias' sake, his brother Philip's wife. Matth., XIV, 3.
He had now pitched his nets for Gripe's daughter, the rich scrivener. WYCH., Love in a Wood, I, 2 (24).
Doubtless thou fearest to mee: Balder's voice, | Thy brother whom through folly thou didst slay. *Matth. Arnold*¹).
Another mind that was being wrought up to climax was Nanny's, the maid of all work, who had a warm heart. G. ELIOT²).
He joined his cousin's company, Mr. T. R. Benson. Lit. World, 15/2, 1906.
- iii. My Lord Castlewood feared very much that his present chaplain's, Mr. Sampson's careless life and heterodox conversations might lead him to give up his chaplaincy. THACK., Virg., Ch. LXIX, 723.

- 2) When the genitive is absolute (45, 47), the first element of the noun-group mostly receives the mark of the genitive, the alternative practice being, apparently, mostly followed when the second noun is a proper name standing after a common noun.

¹) JESP., Prog., § 222. — ²) The King's Engl., 64.

- i. There was a carriage and pair standing at the gate, which she recognized as Dr. Madeley's, the physician from Rotherby. G. ELIOT, Scenes, I, Ch. VIII, 60. There was only one close carriage in the place, and that was old Mr. Landon's, the banker. Id., III. Ch. II, 190.
And I know for a fact that Fusby's bill is not yet paid; nor Binney and Latham's, the wine-merchant. THACK., A little Dinner at Timmins's, Ch. VII, 334.
Convoys of treasure were passed to our forces, and to our ally's, the King of Prussia. Id., Barry Lyndon, Ch. IV, 68.
 - ii. What I came here to talk about was a little affair of my young scapegrace, Fred's. G. ELIOT, Middlemarch, II, Ch. XIII, 91.
- 3) When the genitive is used substantively (45, 49), in which case it mostly stands after a preposition, chiefly at, in, into, over and to, and denotes a residence or establishment, practice depends upon whether the noun expressing the narrower meaning, mostly a proper name, precedes or follows the other.
- a) When it precedes, the ordinary practice is to place both nouns in the genitive; not unfrequently it is the last which alone receives the mark of the genitive; while in style which is under the influence of grammar, we sometimes find the suffix attached to the first.
 - i. He invited Pen to dine at his lodgings over Madame Tribsby's, the milliner's, in Clavering. THACK., Pend., I, Ch. III, 38.
Water was brought from the pump close to Wotley's the pastrycook's. Id., Men's Wives, Ch. I (322).
I was so shocked when I recognized him behind the counter at Mr. Grigg's, the mercer's. Id., Virg., Ch. LXXXI, 856.
Martin's pound of candles invariably found its way to Howlett's, the bird-fancier's. Tom BROWN, II, Ch. III, 240.
I bought these books at Mr. Smith's, the bookseller's. SWEET, N. E. Gr., § 91.
In the High Street he stopped at Clifford's, the gun-maker's, and bought a heavy revolver. CONAN DOYLE, Round the Red Lamp, Lot no. 249, 105.
 - ii. I will send Nanny to London on purpose, and she may have a bed at her cousin, the saddler's. JANE AUSTEN, Mansfield Park, Ch. I, 6.
I called at Parker, the publisher's. CH. KINGSLEY, Alton Locke, Pref., 37.
 - iii. As they walk up the town, they dive into Nixon's, the hatter. Tom BROWN, I, Ch. V, 85. (Another edition has Nixon's, the hatter's).
But just then the other man in brown appeared—wheeling his punctured machine. He was taking it to Flambeau's, the repairs. WELLS, The Wheels of Chance, 58.
All this was happening outside Rexton's, the hosier. PUNCH.
- The third construction would, of course, be used when the class-noun is connected with (an)other(s) by and, or is accompanied by a prepositional modifier, as in at Johnson's, the bookseller and stationer, at Johnson's, the bookseller in Farringdon Street. See also JESP., Prog., § 224.
- β) When the noun with the narrower meaning follows, the mark of the genitive is placed at the end, except in the case of the former being a proper name preceded by a title, when the ordinary practice seems to be to attach the mark of the genitive to the first of the nouns.

i. For my part I little expected, when I last saw Keats at my friend Leigh Hunt's, that I should survive him. SHELLEY, Letter to Mr. Severn. At his aunt Pullet's there was a great many toads to pelt in the cellar-area. G. ELIOT, Mill, I, Ch. VII, 51.

ii. * My master was all that time at his estate in Lincolnshire, and at his sister's, the lady Davers. RICHARDSON, Pamela, Letter X, 17. I am staying at my aunt's, Mrs. Mowbray. (STOF., Eng. Leesb. voor Aanv.kl., I, 24.)

 I was at my aunt, Lady Agatha's. OSCAR WILDE, The Pict. of Dor. Gray, Ch. I, 23.

c) Of the deviations from the general practice exhibited by the following quotations, no further instances have been found:

i. When I got to my sister's by marriage. THEOD. WATTS DUNTON, Aylwin, XII, Ch. III, 344.

ii. The first shop we entered was a hosier's and glover's. Daily Mail.

Note. Such a sentence as A few hours' a day steady application does wonders (Mrs. ALEX., For his sake, I, Ch. XV, 256) does not afford a real exception to the general rule (3), the word-group a day being in fact a concealed adverbial modifier, which might be shifted after application: A few hours' steady application a day.

5. The uninflected form is sometimes found for the genitive, when the noun modified is to be supplied from the preceding part of the discourse. JESP., Prog., § 235; FRANZ, Shak. Gram.¹, § 42a.

Her dowry shall weigh equal with a queen. King John, II, 486¹).

I know the sound of Marcius' tongue from everymeaner man.² Coriol., I, 6, 27. My mother for whose sake and the blessed Queen of heaven I reverence all women. TEN.¹)

"Well, I never!" says Mrs. Quiggett, with a shrill, strident laugh, like a venerable old cockatoo. THACK., Virg., Ch. LI, 526.

It (sc. the pin) did not look near so well in the second day's shirt as on the first day. Id., Sam. Titm., Ch. V, 48. (Note, however, the change of preposition.)

And away went the good-tempered old fellow down the slide with a rapidity which came very close upon Mr. Weller and beat the fat boy all to nothing. Pickw., Ch. XXX.

This is even the usual form, when the noun is used in the function of predicative adnominal adjunct of the first kind. Ch. V, 4.

He thought they were but acknowledging his merits as a commander. THACK., Henry Esme., II, Ch. XV, 288.

At length Esmond saw his friend's name in the Gazette as a bankrupt. Ib., III, Ch. IV, 348.

¹) JESP., Prog., § 235.

Sometimes the use of the uninflected form may be owing to the speaker not having arrived at clearness regarding the grammatical function of the word.

Bill Tidd, a very pale young man, with a black riband round his neck instead of a handkerchief, and his collars turned down like Lord Byron Sam. Titmarsh, Ch. VII, 73

Woman's love | Save one, he not regarded. TEN., Lanc. and El., 836.

The uninflected form is unavoidable when the word does not admit of genitive inflection.

"And whose fault is it that I have not done so too?" said Bucklaw — "whose but the devil's and yours, and such like as you? SCOTT, Bride of Lam., Ch. V, 65.

Our terms are lower than any office. Sam. Titm., Ch. VII, 80. (which might be improved by placing those of after than.)

6. Obs. I. The 's of the genitive has sprung from the Old English termination es, which formed the genitive of most masculine and of all neuter nouns of the strong declension: stan — stanes; scip — scipes. As this ending was the only one that never had any other meaning than that of the genitive singular, it was better adapted to become the universal mark of the genitive than any of the other endings used for this purpose, which were equivocal, inasmuch as they were also used in other grammatical functions. BRADLEY, The Making of Eng., Ch. II, 36.

This termination formed a separate syllable, and in a later period was often superseded by is, or ys. The change of pronunciation may have led to the notion of the 's of the genitive being an abbreviation of his, so that the king's crown was thought to stand for the king his crown.

- II. The use of the pronouns his, her and their after a noun instead of a genitive suffix is, however, of early origin and used to be widely prevalent. Towards the 17th century her and their as substitutes for the genitive were disappearing; not so his, which at that period was still common, even in the literary language. FRANZ, Eng. Stud., XVII; id., Shak. Gram.¹, § 45; MÄTZ., Eng. Gram.², III, 236.

A continuation of Olympias her storie. RALEIGH¹).

And now the feast of St. Martin was come, the Dutch their Arch-Saint. FULLER¹).

Pallas her glass. Bac., Adv. of Learn.²) Mars his true moving. Henry VI, A, I, 2, 1²).

Charles his gleeks. Ib., III, 2, 123²).

For Jesus Christ his sake. Bk. of Com. Pray.

In vulgar speech the use of his for 's is still common enough.

Bill Stumps his mark. Pickw., Ch. XI, 92, 99.

In George the First his time. THACK., Pend., I, Ch. XXII, 225.

Seth Bede, the Methody his work. G. ELIOT, Adam Bede, Ch. I, 3.

1) FRANZ, E. S., XVII. — 2) ABBOTT, Shak. Gram.³, § 217.

III. The use of a possessive pronoun as a kind of genitival formative is not confined to English. We find it flourishing in colloquial Dutch, and, according to JESPERSEN (Prog., § 248) it is extremely common in Danish, Norwegian and Swedish dialects, in Middle and Modern Low German, and in some other European languages or dialects. According to the same authority, it seems in the majority of cases to be a form of anacoluthia, arising from the fact that the speaker mentions a word that is prominent in his thoughts without thinking of its syntactical possibilities, and afterwards feels the want of a corrective. This view does not, however, appear very acceptable.

Another possible source of this substitute for the genitive inflection is the occasional sameness of meaning of a person object + possessive pronoun and a genitival adnominal adjunct.

I forgave Miss Jessie her singing out of tune. MRS. GASKELL, Cranf., Ch. II, 29. (Compare: I forgave Miss Jessie's singing out of tune.)

I asked the woman her name. MISS BRAD., Lady Audl., II, Ch. XVI, 184. (Compare: I asked the woman's name.)

Carlo would not refuse the little fellow's petition. EDNA LYALL, Knight Err., Ch. XXXIII, 329. (Compare: Carlo would not refuse the little fellow his petition.)

IV. The apostrophe in the termination 's is intended to show that the vowel of a syllabic suffix has been lost. We still see the vowel in Wednesday (= Wodenesday), the proper name Swineshead (NESFIELD, Hist. Eng., § 114, N. 3), and in the compounds calves-head and calves-foot, articles of food, as distinguished from calf's head and calf's foot, parts of body. (SWEET, N. E. Gr. § 999.) The syllabic es is still frequent in SPENSER and instances are not wanting in SHAKESPEARE. (MAS., Eng. Gram.³⁴, § 76, IV.)

Ful worthy was he in his lordes werre. CHAUC., Cant. Tales, A, 47.

By goddess bones! when I bete my knaves. Ib., B, 3087.

And eke through fear as white as whales bone. SPENS., Faery Queene, III, i, xv. Larger than the moon-es sphere. MIDS., II, 1, 7.

To show his teeth as white as whal-es bone. LOVE'S LAB. LOST, V, 2, 332.

The use of the apostrophe before the genitival -s did not become general until the middle of the 18th century, and as a mark of the genitive plural it seems to be of more recent date still. In the original editions of SHAKESPEARE such a spelling as kings or ladies was used for the genitive singular, for the nominative (or objective) plural, and for the genitive plural. The apostrophe was then used without regard to case-function:

α) to indicate that a syllable was added in pronunciation. Thomas's.

β) to indicate that the ending es was still commonly used, but not pronounced as a separate syllable. Thus SHAKESPEARE has earth's as a genitive singular and prey's as a nominative plural. Compare the modern practice of poets to write kill'd for killed, etc.

γ) to express the plural of a letter, figure, etc. or of a proper name, as is done in Present English. (Ch. XXV, 3, 4.) See also JESP., Prog., § 129; MAS., Eng. Gram.³⁴, § 76.

V. The dropping of the sibilant in such genitives as for acquaintance's sake and Socrates' life (2, a, b) is in accordance with the late Middle English practice, which often dropped the whole ending es in French words and proper names ending in a sibilant. SWEET, N. E. Gr., § 992, 998, 1022.

Melibeus wyf. CHAUC., Cant. Tales, B, 3086.

- VI. It was not until the 13th century that the sibilant came to be used to form the genitive of feminine nouns. In CHAUCER we still find a few instances of the common case doing duty for the genitive case of nouns that in Old English were feminine.

And born him well, as of so litel space | In hope to standen in his lady grace. CHAUC., Cant. Tales, A, 88.

And in the gardin, at the sonne upriste | She walketh up and down, and as hir liste. Ib., 1051.

A trace of the old practice is found in Modern English in Lady-day, with which compare Lord's day. SWEET, N. E. Gr., § 993.

MEANING AND USE.

7. The genitive of a noun or pronoun is a form which is used to express a certain relation between different persons, animals or things. For the sake of brevity the term genitive is often extended to the noun or pronoun which is placed in the genitive.

The person(s), animal(s) or thing(s) indicated by the genitive may be thought of as (an) individual(s) or as the representative(s) of a class. The genitive is, accordingly, meant either to individualize or to classify the person(s) animal(s) or thing(s) indicated by the noun modified. (Ch. IV, 1.)

i. John's book, our neighbours' rights.

ii. a giant's task, old-wives' tales.

A classifying genitive can often be told from an individualizing genitive by the markedly strong stress which it has as compared with the head-word. Compare: That was a father's duty (G. ELIOT, Sil. Marn., Ch. XV, 117) with That was your father's duty. See also 44, Obs. IV and V.

INDIVIDUALIZING GENITIVE.

8. The relations between what is expressed by the individualizing genitive and by the noun modified are of a highly varied nature, but are chiefly of the following description. The noun in the genitive may denote:

a) the person, animal or thing to which that which is expressed by the noun modified, belongs, of which it is a part, or to which it pertains.

My brother's books; the old mare's hoofs; the earth's crust.

b) the person, animal or thing from which that which is expressed by the noun modified, originates.

David's psalms; the pheasant's nest; nature's work.

- c) the person, animal or thing performing the action expressed by the noun modified.

Elizabeth's reign; the horse's breathing; the globe's rotation.

- d) the person, animal or thing subjected to the action expressed by the noun modified.

Gordon's murder (Times); Wildfire's (a horse) loss (G. ELIOT, Sil. Marn., Ch. VIII, 56); their kingdom's loss (Rich. III, I, 3).

- e) the measure as to distance, time, weight, value or carrying capacity of what is expressed by the noun modified.

a hair's breath; an hour's interval; a pound's weight; a shilling's worth; seventy tons' burden.

- f) the thing which is a specimen or a variety of the class of things indicated by the noun modified. (Ch. IV, 16.)

Tweed's fair river (SCOTT, Marm., I, 1); For he attains that rival's name | With treason's charge (ib., II, xviii).

According to the different relations indicated by the genitive we may, therefore, distinguish: the genitive of possession, the genitive of origin, the genitive of agency or subjective genitive, the genitive of undergoing or objective genitive, the genitive of measure and the genitive of specializing or apposition.

From the fact that the genitive in the majority of cases expresses a relation of possession, it is often called the possessive.

9. Obs. I. The description under a) is meant to include a great many other relations of a kindred nature, as illustrated by:

And when he reads | Thy personal venture in the rebels' fight. Macb., I, 3, 91. (= the fight against the rebels.)

Freedom's battle. BYRON, Giaour, 123. (= the battle fought in the cause of freedom.)

Poor Mr. Holbrook's dinner. Mrs. GASKELL, Cranf., Ch. XVI, 302. (= the dinner given by the late Mr. Holbrook.)

Mrs. Winter's dance. Mrs. ALEX., For his Sake, I, Ch. V, 70. (= the dance given by Mrs. Winter.)

This country's history. Times. (= the history of the events connected with this country.)

The week's weather. Ib. (= the weather prevailing in the week.)

The world's fair. Ib. (= the fair bringing together persons and things from all parts of the world.)

It must also be observed that the divisions of the different kinds of genitive cannot always be marked off with precision. On the contrary, many genitives admit of being classed under different headings. Thus the man's mistakes is, perhaps, best described as a subjective genitive, but may also with, perhaps, equal justice be understood as a genitive of origin or even of possession. Such doubtful cases are all discussed under the heading of genitive of possession or origin, those cases in which the noun modified is a gerund or equivalent word being reserved for that of the genitive of agency or subjective genitive.

II. In the Old-English period the functions of the genitive were more numerous than in the present stage of the language. Of one of these, that of forming adverbial adjuncts, some traces are still met with. Go your ways in God's name, sir. CH. KINGSLEY, Westw. Ho! Ch. XXXI, 234b.

Pisistratus must needs go also to town and see the world. LYTTON, Caxt., IV, Ch. III, 93.

For further instances see also Ch. V, 5. Full details will be given in the Chapter about adverbs. The obsolete functions of the genitive are now expressed by prepositions or by apposition.

10. In some cases the relation expressed by the genitive may also be indicated by a preposition. By far the most frequent prepositional substitute for the genitive is of. Of more restricted application are by, from, to, and a few others. (35—37.)

Note. The use of the preposition of to express the meaning of the genitive did not appear until the twelfth century. Save for some special cases as in se cyning of Norwegan, where it has the same meaning as the genitive, this preposition was used in Old English where Modern English would have from or out of. BRADLEY, The Making of Eng., Ch. II, 59.

The use of the individualizing genitive as compared with its prepositional equivalent depends in the main on a) the kind of relation that has to be expressed; b) the meaning of the noun; c) the kind of diction; d) the syntactical connections of the noun; e) the comparative emphasis or stress of the modifying noun and the noun modified; f) the metre or rhythm.

In discussing the prevalence of one or the other construction it seems advisable to disregard provisionally the influences mentioned under d, e, and f.

USE OF THE GENITIVE AND ITS PREPOSITIONAL EQUIVALENT APART FROM CONSIDERATIONS OF SYNTAX, EMPHASIS AND METRE OR RHYTHM.

Genitive of Possession or Origin.

11. The genitive of possession or origin is chiefly used of the names of persons.
12. a) As to ordinary common nouns denoting persons, there is a distinct preference of the genitive over the prepositional construction. Indeed in perusing a few pages of ordinary English prose the observant reader cannot fail to be struck by the fact that, whenever the prepositional construction is used, there is mostly one of the reasons mentioned above (10) that accounts for it. The reason of this preference may be that it is mostly a matter closely connected with the person, which is to be expressed, and for this the synthetic genitive is better adapted than the analytical prepositional construction. Thus the parsonage is better indicated by the parson's house than by the house of the parson. Here follow some quotations in which the synthetic construction has possibly been preferred from this unity being more or less apparent to the speaker or writer.

Mrs. Proudie had discovered a large hole, evidently the work of rats, in the servants' hall. TROL., Barch. Tow., Ch. V, 36.

Mrs. Proudie had also seen that those (sc. the locks) on the doors of the servants' bedrooms were in an equally bad condition. Ib.

He recoiled from the idea of scolding the bishop's wife in the bishop's presence. Ib., 37.

The precentor clearly saw from his companion's face that a tornado was to be expected. Ib., 38.

The doctor indeed wished in his heart to prevent the signora from accepting the bishop's invitation. Ib., Ch. X, 74.

The ceremony of washing the feet of poor persons on the day before Good Friday was instituted in commemoration of Christ's washing the apostles' feet at the Last Supper, and of his injunction that his disciples should in like manner wash one another's feet. MURRAY, s. v. maundy.

Compare with the above the following quotations, in which the use of the analytical construction may have been occasioned by the connection between modifier and head-word having been felt as a less close one.

And now had I the pen of a mighty poet, would I sing in epic verse the noble wrath of the archdeacon. TROL., Barch. Tow., Ch. V, 37.

She, and she alone, could in any degree control the absurdities of her sister. Ib., Ch. IX, 63.

It is not, I presume, probable . . . that you will accept from the hands of the bishop a piece of preferment with a fixed predetermination to disacknowledge the duties attached to it. Ib., Ch. XII, 97.

He merely observed . . . that the duties of the situation had . . . been done to the satisfaction of the late bishop. Ib., 95.

He would marry the lady as the enemy of her brother-in-law. Ib., Ch. XV, 116. Another prince of the same house was raised to the throne by French influence, and ratified all the promises of his predecessor. Mac., Clive, 505a.

- b) The genitive is very common when the noun is used in a generalizing sense, in which case it is often practically equivalent to an adjective.

Of the soldier's great virtues—constancy in disaster, devotion to duty, hopefulness in defeat—no man ever possessed a larger share. MOTLEY, Rise, VI, Ch. VII, 900a. Any comprehensive scheme for extending education is beyond the range of the King's powers. Rev. of Rev., CCLVI, 327b. (Compare: The repeal of exceptional legislation is beyond the scope of Royal prerogative. Ib.)

I hear all the voices of human kind (sc. in the singing of the telegraph wires) . . . the lover's secrets, the sportsman's tips, the merchant's prices, the death-roll from the veld, the latest scores from the Oval. The Comments of Bagshot (Westm. Gaz., No. 5607, 9b.)

- c) Collective nouns indicating persons are often apprehended as the names of organized bodies and, consequently, have the genitive construction frequently enough, although the prepositional would seem to be mostly preferred.

i. I could not blame the assembly's exhortation. SWIFT, Gul. Trav., IV, Ch. X, 210*b*.

Madras was the first in importance of the Company's settlements. MAC., Clive.

Such continued to be the talk . . . at the gentry's houses and the rough roadside taverns. THACK., Virg., Ch. XII, 124.

There were many schemes and proposals which had the meeting's objects in view. WESTM. GAZ., No. 5448, 8*c*.

This . . . is the setting of Society's parade ground. Ib., No. 5607, 8*c*.

The Khalifa began to suspect this tribe's fidelity. Times.

ii. The business of the servant of the Company was not, as now, to conduct the judicial, financial, and diplomatic business of a great country. MAC., Clive, 499*a*.

He (sc. Dupleix) found tools even among the allies of the English Company. Ib., 509*a*.

So we hear futile complaints of the arbitrariness of the Government in persisting in a policy which the country has approved, or the obstinacy of the Government in not yielding the victory to the beaten party. WESTM. GAZ., No. 5631, 1*b*.

But of such collective nouns as express little more than an idea of number the genitive is hardly ever used. Thus it could hardly stand for the construction with of in the leaders of the multitude.

d) The genitive is less freely used of plural nouns in s than of singular nouns. This is owing to the fact that the spoken language does not distinguish between the genitive singular and the genitive plural of such nouns. Thus the boy's parents and the boys' parents sound precisely alike. This leads the speaker to a frequent use of the prepositional construction when he wishes his hearers clearly to understand that he is thinking of more than one possessor. SWEET, N. E. Gr., § 2004.

Thus the analytical construction may have been preferred for greater clearness in:

My mother had married him against the wishes of her friends. Jane Eyre, Ch. III, 25.

Charlemagne was scarcely interred when the imbecility and the disputes of his descendants began to bring contempt on themselves and destruction on their subjects. MAC., Clive, 502*a*.

The wide dominion of the Franks was severed into a thousand pieces. Ib.

e) It may here also be observed that the prepositional construction is practically the only one with adjectives partially converted into nouns. (Ch. XXIV, 14 ff.)

We justified our conquest to ourselves by taking away the character of the conquered. FROUDE, Oceana, Ch. III.

He has taken much interest in the housing of the poor. Rev. of Rev., CXCVI, 350*b*.

13. The greater frequency of the genitive as compared with its analytical equivalent is still more marked in the case of proper names of persons.

a) This applies especially to simple names. SWEET (N. E. Gr., § 2006) even goes so far as to say that "in such a sentence as Where is John's hat? we could no more substitute of John than we could substitute of me for my". Although there can be no doubt that as regards such nouns the genitive is by far the commoner construction, it can hardly be said to be so exclusively used as SWEET'S words imply, seeing that instances of its analytical equivalent are not infrequently met with in different kinds of literature. See the second group of the following quotations:

- i. George's loyal younger brother shared too this repugnance. THACK., Virg., Ch. LXI, 634.

He made up his mind that even as Mrs. Hope she must be dearer to him than any other creature on God's earth. TROL., Barch. Tow., Ch. XXVIII, 239.

I am the most fortunate woman living on God's earth. Ib., Ch. XLIX, 437. (Thus, apparently, regularly in this combination.)

The supposed effect of these attacks on Keats's health was wildly exaggerated by some contemporaries. SAINTSB., Ninet. Cent., Ch. II, 87.

Little need be said of Shelley's character. Ib.

Hunt had to a certain extent started this (sc. the new note), but he had not succeeded in giving it anything like the distinct character which it took in Keats's hands. Ib., 89.

Dr. Annandale not only sets forth the main facts of Burns's career. Westm. Gaz., No. 5027, 11a.

- ii. If they (sc. the Bells) said anything, they said this, until the brain of Toby reeled. DICK, *Chimes*³, I, 36.

Despite all the admonitory looks and pinches of Bumble, [Oliver Twist] was regarding the repulsive countenance of his future master with a mingled expression of horror and fear. Id., Ol. Twist, Ch. III, 42.

He (sc. Harry Foker) would have longed to give his arm to the fair Blanche, and conduct her down the brown carpeted stair; but she fell to the lot of Pen upon this occasion. THACK, Pend., II, Ch. I, 8.

The chair of lone was next to the couch of Glaucus. LYTON, Last Days of Pomp., IV, Ch. III.

Steele, an excellent judge of lively conversation, said, that the conversation of Addison was at once the most polite, and the most mirthful, that could be imagined. MAC., Addison, 751a.

With this negotiation commences a new chapter in the life of Clive. Id., Clive, 515a.

This was but the beginning of the greatness of Dupleix. Ib., 504b.

The health of Clive had never been good during his residence in India. Ib., 509b.

The young lady was not beautiful: but the taste of James was not nice. MAC., Hist., II, Ch. IV, 31.

But the fortitude of Monmouth was not that highest sort of fortitude which is derived from reflection and from self-respect. Ib., II, Ch. V, 186. Even those wild islands which intercept the huge waves of the Atlantic from the bay of Galway, had acknowledged the authority of William. Ib., VI, Ch. XVII, 214.

Here, they said, is an instrument of tyranny more formidable than the High Commission, than the Star Chamber, than even the fifty thousand soldiers of Oliver. Ib., VII, Ch. XX, 311.

It contained a gold ring and a lock of the hair of Mary. Ib., 10, Ch. XXV, 94. But the frame of William was not in a condition to bear even the slightest shock. Ib., X, Ch. XXV, 89.

England, dragged at the heels of Philip into a useless and ruinous war, was left without an ally save Spain. GREEN, Short Hist., Ch. VII, § 3, 369.

- b) Also as regards complex proper names and simple names preceded by a simple title, such as Lord, Lady, Sir, Mr., Mrs., Miss, the genitive is more in favour than the of-construction, although in a less marked degree than in the case of simple proper names. The longer the complex name, the greater the prevalence of the prepositional construction.

- i. The colloquy terminated by the writing of those two letters which were laid on Major Pendennis's breakfast-table in London, at the commencement of Prince Arthur's most veracious history. THACK., Pend., I, Ch. VI, 78.

Two little boys had stolen some apples from Farmer Benson's orchard, and some eggs had been missed off Widow Hayward's stall. Mrs. GASK., Cranf., Ch. XI, 207.

Mr. Mill's book . . . is not sufficiently animated and picturesque to attract those who read for amusement. MAC., Lord Clive, 497b.

- ii. Timothy's Bess, though retaining her maiden appellation among her familiars, had long been the wife of Sandy Jim. G. ELIOT, Adam Bede, Ch. II, 14. The gratitude of Mr. Winkle was too powerful for utterance. PICKW., Ch. II, 19.

The materials placed at the disposal of Sir John Malcolm by the late Lord Powis were indeed of great value. MAC., Clive, 497b.

The effect of the book . . . is, on the whole, greatly to raise the character of Lord Clive. Ib., 408a.

The father of Herbert Spencer, it will be remembered, was also a school-master. CLODD, Pioneers of Evolution, 86.

In the words of Lord Rosebery, "the new King has led the life of a sailor and in Great Britain we all love sailors". Westm. Gaz., No. 5311, 1c.

- c) Apparently regular is the use of the genitive in denoting the residence, the activities, etc. of a firm as in.

At Christie's rooms yesterday the old masters, which formed the collection of the late Sir William Abdy, were sold by auction. Westm. Gaz., No. 5607, 8c. The scheme is to be worked through the existing railway companies, Messrs. Thos. Cook and Son's agency and the well-established hotels and boarding-houses throughout the country. Ib., No. 5625, 6a.

- d) The genitive is much more common than the of-construction of names of persons, whether proper names or common nouns, which are used as parts of proper names of days, buildings, streets, squares, etc. In many cases such names of persons are preceded by Saint.

i. * King's College, Queen's College, Christ's College (at Cambridge).

Christ's Hospital. SAINTSB., Ninet. Cent., Ch. II, 98.

Pompey's theatre. DEIGHTON, Note to Hamlet, III, 2, 96.

 St. John's College (at Cambridge).

St. Valentine's day. SCOTT, Fair Maid, Ch. II, 92.

St. Bartholomew's fair. WASH. IRV., Sketch-bk., XXV, 249.

Saint Bartholomew's Day. CH. KINGSLEY, Westw. Ho!, Ch. II, 10b.

Saint Mary's Abbey. Robin Hood, 149. (Gruno Ser.)

- ii. The theatre of Pompey in the Campus Martius. CLARK AND WRIGHT, Note to Hamlet, III, 2, 96.

Where there has been a French church ever since Queen Bess's time and the dreadful day of Saint Bartholomew. THACK., Denis Duval, Ch. I, 180.

The Church of St. Angelo. LYTTON, Rienzi, II, Ch. V, 109.

The Castle of Saint Angelo. MAC., Hist., Ch. I, 136.

The time was now come round again to the high-day of St. Valentine.

BLACKMORE, Lorna Doone, Ch. XVI, 93.

The Abbey of St. Mary. Robin Hood, 144. (Gruno Ser.)

He was buried in the church of St. Giles, Cripplegate, London. Cassell's Conc. Cycl., s. v. Frobisher.

- e) The genitive construction is practically regular with titles of persons of distinction, consisting of a possessive pronoun and an abstract noun, the latter sometimes preceded by an adjective, the combinations being understood as proper names.

I have not deserved the foul suspicions which your Majesty's words imply. SCOTT, Fair Maid, Ch. XXXV, 374.

The postmaster . . . said . . . that he had taken advantage of his opportunity to study their honour's manners. THACK., Virg., Ch. IX, 83.

She looked up at him, and strove to catch his reverence's eye. Ib., Ch. XXXVIII, 397.

The faithful Fuchs bowed and promised to do her excellency's will. Ib., 403.

I drink to your Highness's health. Id., Henry Esmond, II, Ch. XI, 245.

He's his Royal Highness's right-hand man. Id., Van. Fair, I, Ch. XIII, 131.

One of his Royal Highness's performances was a refutation of Macchiavelli. MAC., Fred., 664a.

You will have me act his Grace's part. Ib.

If your highness's bags do not contain more than eighty thousand, we will meet you. TROL., Thack., Ch. II, 74.

Similar fragmentary ejaculations were all that she ventured upon in my lady's presence. MRS. GASK., Cranf., Ch. XI, 208.

Your Grace's policy hath a farther flight | Than mine into the future. TEN., Queen Mary, I, v, (540b).

You are to go to the bath three times every day. It is his Excellency's order. MAX PEMB., Doct. Xav., Ch. VII, 33a.

Her Majesty's Government have ceased to rely on mere paper. Times.

This matter has not been lost sight of by Her Majesty's Minister at Tangiers. Ib.

Her Majesty's gunboat Hazard is shelling the town of Candia. Ib.

Thus also in such collocations as:

- a) the King's Majesty, the Queen's Grace, etc. when denoting the personages themselves.

But, Sir Thomas, must we levy war against the Queen's Grace? TEN., Queen Mary, II, 1 (596a).

- β) King's (Queen's, State's) evidence (= accomplice or sharer in a crime, offering himself as a witness for the prosecution against the other persons implicated).

14. a) The genitive is also fixed in:

1) certain proverbial sayings, such as:

Old maids' husbands are al'ys (vulgar for: always) well-managed. G. ELIOT, Scenes, I, Ch. VI, 47.

A coward's fear may make a coward vallant. Prov.

A fool's bolt is soon shot. Id.

A man's best fortune, or his worst, is a wife. Id.

A woman's strength is in her tongue. Id.

2) certain compounds and word-groups, such as:

a) blind-man's-buff, blind man's holiday (= the time just before candles are lighted, when it is too dark to work and one is obliged to rest or 'take a holiday', formerly used more widely. MURRAY.) In the winter afternoons she (sc. Miss Matty Jenkyns) would sit knitting for two or three hours, . . . and when I asked if I might not ring for candles to finish stitching my wristbands, she told me to "keep blind man's holiday". Mrs. GASK., Cranf., Ch. V, 87.

ß) my (thy, his, etc.) father's (or mother's), son (or daughter) as equivalents of I, thou, he, etc.

I think our work is well begun, | When we have taken thy father's son. SCOTT, Lay, III, xx.

Where has he been? Where his mother's son should have been ashamed to go. THACK., Pend., I, Ch. VI, 77.

You mean that you — your mother's son — are actually paying honourable attentions to this young person. Id., Virg., Ch. LXXXIV, 895.

This also appears to be the case in such designations as my brother's (or sister's) son (or daughter) for my nephew (or niece); my father's (or mother's) son (or daughter) for my brother (or sister).

To tell lies has not been a habit in our family, Mr. Costigan, and I don't think my brother's son has learned it as yet. THACK., Pend., I, Ch. XI, 120.

Now God forgive me for talking so of my own father's daughter. BLACKMORE, Lorna Doone, Ch. XII, 70.

γ) every mother's son = everybody.

i. That would hang us every mother's son. Mids., II, 1, 79.

ii. Every mother's son of them wishes to be considered Samson and Solomon rolled into one. Mrs. GASK., Cranf., Ch. X, 190.

b) The genitive is almost regular also in the forms of speech illustrated by the following quotations, in which the Dutch has the common case:

i. * New South Wales alone has a revenue of 14 millions against the Commonwealth's 10 millions. Westm. Gaz.

The value of German imports and exports amounted in 1907 to 17 milliard marks, against England's 23.7 milliard marks. Ib.

The three shillings per week to be contributed by the employer, as against the State's threepence, appears to us somewhat excessive. Ib., No. 5625, 6a.

 They sailed two feet for the Spaniards' one. GREEN, Short Hist., Ch. VII, § VI, 419.

The two long and lean Clovelly men . . . ran two feet for the Spaniards' one. CH. KINGSLEY, Westw. Ho!, Ch. XXV, 184b.

 The lightly handled English vessels . . . fired four shots to the Spaniards' one. GREEN, Short Hist., Ch. VII, § VI, 419.

In the third set Miss Fanshaw was five games to Miss Tench's four. G. MOORE, A Modern Lover, 95.

At our present rate of construction we shall in 1911 have twelve Dreadnoughts to Germany's one. Westm. Gaz.

We lost 800 men to France's 3000. Il. Lond. News, Summer Number, 1910.

Canada won by eight points to the United Kingdom's nine. Truth, No. 1800, 1685a.

We shall have to go on quietly building ships—two to Germany's every one. Eng. Rev., 1912, March, 682.

- ii. Trotty said this, taking about six of his trotting paces to one stride of his fatigued companion. DICK., Chimes³, II, 56.

Observe an analogous varied practice with possessive pronouns (Ch. XXXIII, 14, c), and compare also the following quotations:

It having been arranged that Bob Sawyer and Ben Allen should be considered at liberty to fill twice to Mr. Winkle's once, they started fair, with great satisfaction and good-fellowship. PICKW., Ch. XXXVIII, 352.

During the interview (she) had spoken probably three words for every one which her ladyship had been able to utter. TROL., Framl. Pars., Ch. XXXV, 342.

My dear mother . . . thought of me ten times for one thought about herself. BLACKMORE, Lorna Doone, Ch. XII, 72.

15. a) As to the names of animals we find that the genitive is, in the main, confined to those of the larger and more familiar animals, especially when they have personal qualities ascribed to them.

Mr. Murdstone with his horse's bridle drawn over his arm, walked slowly up and down. DICK., Cop., Ch. II, 11b.

The cake made no more impression on his big face than it would have done on an elephant's. Id., Ch. V, 32a.

It was nine o'clock before I heard the old mare's hoofs clattering up the road. MRS. CRAIK, John Hal., Ch. X, 106.

The very lions' manes were burnt off by the heat. CH. KINGSLEY, Hyp., Ch. III, 14a.

How did you come to be taking my pheasant's nest. SWEET, Old Chapel. His horse's feet were in the water. BLACKMORE, Lorna Doone, Ch. X, 57.

With proper names of animals the genitive is as usual as with proper names of persons. Pongo's collar, Oscar's coat.

To hang about a stable, and collect a gang of the most disreputable dogs to be found in the town, and lead them out to march round the slums to fight other disreputable dogs, is Montmorency's idea of "life". JEROME, Three Men in a Boat, Ch. II, 22.

He feebly got upon Winnie's back. BLACKMORE, Lorna Doone, Ch. XI, 63.

- b) When, however, an animal is regarded as a mere object of natural history, as is generally the case with the smaller and less-known species, the preposition of mostly takes the place of genitive inflection.

The head of the armadillos is flat. Cass. Conc. Cycl.

The hair of the badger is employed for making paint-brushes. Ib.

The lungs of the chameleon are capable of great distention. Ib.

16. As to the names of things the of-construction is the usual one.

It is often said that when the genitive is used of the name of a thing, there is a notion of personification. This may be true in the main, but can hardly be said to be applicable to all cases. Thus it seems difficult to find any notion of personification in such collocations as the morning's work, the day's event, his journey's end, an arm's length, to be at one's wit's (or wits') end, and many others mentioned below. See also BRADLEY, The Making of Eng., 60.

In ordinary prose the genitive is quite common:

- a) of proper names of states, provinces, towns, etc. or equivalent word-groups like this country, the town, and also of such nouns as bank, church, university etc. when organized bodies are meant.

- i. Happily for the country, England's councils are not directed by boys. G. MEREDITH, Lord Ormont, Ch. II, 24.

France's religion must be that of France's king. CON. DOYLE, Refugees, 224.

America's foreign trade. Times.

The Canadian people were devoted to British liberality and impressed by Britain's power. Ib.

All Frenchmen should be agreed in the necessity of seeking England's friendship. Ib.

- ii. Of all bad deeds that, under cover of the darkness, had been committed within wide London's bounds since night hung over it, that was the worst. DICK., Ol. Twist, Ch. XLVIII, 439.

That paragon of a clergyman . . . that honoured representative of Oxford's best spirit was . . . misconducting himself. TROL., Barch. Tow., Ch. XLVII, 417.

- The refitting and refounding of the library by Sir Thomas Bodley, is the most magnificent example of Oxford's development. Harmsworth Encycl., s. v. Oxford.

His marvellous facility of composition and splendour of colouring has made him one of New York's most famous painters. T. P's Weekly, No. 472, 653a.

- iii. (We) predicted (that) one day he would be . . . at once his country's brightest honour, and her proudest boast. PICKW., Ch. LI.

The object which actuates and animates me in all my gigantic labours (is) my country's good. Ib.

In the last fiscal year the value of manufactured goods exported from America was for the first time in this country's history in excess of the manufactured goods imported. Times.

He offered to go out in any capacity to do what he could to help to retrieve the Empire's losses. Rev. of Rev., CCLVI, 390b.

He worked for his country and his country's good. Westm. Gaz., No. 5607, 9c.

The State's partner in the Insurance scheme must be solvent. Ib., No. 5613, 2a.

- iv. The cakes (were) baked by the town's chief confectioner. ASCOTT R. HOPE, Old Pot.

The Municipal authorities are taking full advantage of the city's great opportunity. PUNCH, No. 3682, 72b.

- v. The depreciation in the value of the Bank's investments (admittedly the cause of its failure) is attributed to the Boer War. WESTM. GAZ., No. 5642, 1c. (Note the use of its.)

Mr. Lloyd George then proceeded to give the House chapter and verse of the history of a number of the bank's principal investments. Ib., 5b.

The supply of these facilities was doubtless the reason of the Birkbeck Bank's popularity. OUTLOOK (WESTM. GAZ., No. 5642, 16c).

- vi. On the due administration of (this trust) much of the church's welfare might depend. TROL., BARCH. TOW., Ch. XIV, 107.

The Archbishop implied this to be the Church's doctrine. TIMES.

The theatre has been pointed at as the Church's great rival. WESTM. GAZ., No. 5625, 4a.

At the Hanley Town Hall the topic at the morning session was "The Church's Duty in Furthering International Peace." TIMES, No. 1814, 801a.

- vii. The universities' boat race. II. Lond. News.

A few quotations illustrating the alternative practice, apparently the ordinary one, will suffice.

While the Jacobite party was in the last dotage and weakness of its paralytic old age, the political philosophy of England began to produce a mighty effect on France, and through France, on Europe. MAC., HIST. REV., (346a).

During the last seven centuries the public mind of Europe has made constant progress in every department of secular knowledge. Id., POPES, (545a).

Observe the regular use of the prepositional construction in the Church of England = the Anglican Church, the Church of Rome = the Roman Catholic Church.

Those are the sort of men who will ruin the Church of England. TROL., BARCH. TOW., Ch. VI, 40.

Four times since the authority of the Church of Rome was established in Western Europe, has the human intellect risen up against the yoke. MAC., POPES, (545a—b).

When countries, provinces, towns etc. are viewed as geographical areas, i.e. when there is no idea of any personification, the prepositional construction is practically regular.

The position of England, lying as it does in full command of the sea-front of N. W. Europe, has largely determined its part in the economy and politics of the world. HARMSWORTH ENCYCL., s. v. England.

- b) of the names of the principal heavenly bodies, that is of earth (globe), moon and sun (MAS., Eng. Gram.³⁴, § 73), and also of such nouns as nature (in the sense of the creative power) and world. (44, Obs. IV.)

earth. He has brought together a mass of information relating to the earthquakes and other movements of the earth's crust. TIMES.

Polar axis: that axis of an astronomical instrument, as an equatorial, which is parallel to the earth's axis. WEBST., s. v. polar.

globe. Asia is the largest division of land on the globe's surface. CASS., CONC. CYCL., s. v. Asia.

moon. If the moon's orbit were in the same plane as the ecliptic or the path of the earth, then the sun would be eclipsed at every full moon. Ib., s. v. eclipse.

There was but one there who cared much about the moon's beauty. TROL., Barch. Tow., Ch. XIX, 152.

sun. The sun-spots move over the sun's surface independently of the sun's rotation. Cass. Conc. Cyclop.

Woollen materials of all sorts were but ungracious receptacles of the bright sun's glancing rays. MRS. GASKELL, Cranford, Ch. XII, 230.

nature. Dolf gazed about him in mute delight and wonder at the scenes of nature's magnificence. WASH. IRV., Dolf Heyl. (STOF., Handl. I, 125).

He was as welcome as ever to the friendship of nature's and fortune's most favoured, yet most unspoilt minion. CH. KINGSLEY, Westw. Hol, Ch. II, 11b.

All this is nature's work. MAR. CORELLI, Sor. of Sat., II, Ch. III, 44.

world. It must suffice for him to be ordinarily honest according to the ordinary honesty of the world's ways, and to let men's tongues wag as they would. TROL., Barch. Tow., Ch. XXIV, 201.

This world's wealth will make no one happy. Ib., Ch. XXVII, 230.

He was condemned to undergo the world's harsh judgment: not for the fault — for its atonement. G. MEREDITH, Ord. of Rich. Fev., Ch. I, 6.

She loved him, and the world's praise or blame were nothing to her. EDNA LYALL, A Hardy Norseman, Ch. XXIII, 215.

He was never rich in this world's goods. Acad.

The world's maize crop. Times.

Never before have these aspirations found so responsive an echo in the councils of one of the greatest and most powerful of the world's rulers. Ib.

Note. Of the names of the heavenly bodies the prepositional construction is at least equally common.

Nature is often thought of as a kind of female being or goddess, as in the above quotations, hence the genitive is very common. When there is no notion of any personification as in the laws of nature the of-construction is, of course, the ordinary one.

Of world the genitive construction is, perhaps, less common than the of-construction.

earth. The axis of the earth is not at right angles to the plane of this circle (sc. the Ecliptic). Cassell's Conc. Cycl., s. v. earth (Compare: It is to this inclination of the earth's axis that we owe the variations of the seasons. Ib.)

People come from the uttermost ends of the earth, though, of course, there are many Londoners here. BEATR. HAR., Ships, I, Ch. I, 4.

globe. During three hundred years the multiplying millions of the English-speaking races spreading ever more widely over the surface of the globe have turned in their need to the grand simplicity of the Authorised Version. GEORGE V, Speech. (Rev. of Rev., No. 256, 321a.)

moon. Eclipses of the moon can only occur at her full. Cassell's Conc. Cycl., s. v. eclipse.

sun. During a total eclipse, when the bright disc of the sun is obscured, red flames are seen to project from different portions of the sun's edge. Ib., s. v. sun.

nature. The Laws of Nature are simply statements of the orderly condition of things in Nature. H. DRUMMOND, Nat. Law. in Spir. W.2, 51).

world. Mrs. Quiverful had not been slow to learn the ways of the world. TROL. Barch. Tow., Ch. XXV, 211.

1) MURRAY, s. v. nature.

Her father was a soft, good-natured gentleman, not sufficiently knowing in the ways of the world. Ib., Ch. XXIX, 250. (Compare the quotation above.)
Oh, it's the way of the world, my dear. Ib., Ch. XLIII, 384. (In this last combination with way in the singular, the of-construction seems to be fixed.)

c) of the names of epochs:

That morning's breakfast passed heavily off. Pickw., Ch. II.

There was a good deal of noise in the course of the morning's work. Dick., Cop., Ch. VII, 47b.

In the next day's paper or quarter's review many of us very likely admired the work of his genius. Thack., Pend., II, Ch. XXXIV, 362.

He is now thinking of you as he attempts to write his sermon for next Sunday's preaching. Trol., Barch. Tow., Ch. XLV, 407.

The boy's were preparing the morrow's lessons. G. Eliot, Mill, II, Ch. V, 160.
I am going to write to my dear son by Friday's mail. Mrs. Alex., For his Sake, I, Ch. II, 32.

The community on board the 'Lorelei' had been much excited by the day's event. I. Mag.

The week's weather. Times.

Friday's meeting was the 16th day of the inquiry. Ib.

Our Cape Town Correspondent telegraphed under Sunday's date. Ib.

A certain balance there always must be on every year's transactions in order to provide for interest on securities. Ib.

The genitive construction seems to be the one that is mostly preferred, except, perhaps, when a genitive or possessive pronoun modifying the head-word precedes.

i. Mr. Tupman was not in a condition to rise after the unwonted dissipation of the previous night. Pickw., Ch. II.

In the Times of Yesterday we published a report on trade in 1898. Times.
It would be a fatal error in our judgment, were the Unionist Party to repeat the somewhat carping attitude which they adopted towards the Free Amusements Bill of last year. Westm. Gaz., No. 5625, 6a.

ii. * He begged me to express his opinion that your conduct of last evening was of a description which no gentleman could endure. Pickw., Ch. II, 16.

"He gives devilish good dinners," said Foker, striking up for the honour of his host of yesterday. Thack., Pend., II, Ch. II, 27.

Your letter of yesterday did indeed give me a cruel chill of disappointment. Mrs. Gaskell, Life of Charl. Brontë, 242.

 Catherine took the opportunity of asking the other for some particulars of their yesterday's party. Jane Austen, North. Ab., Ch. XV, 109.

There was some connexion between his present situation and his last night's dream. Wash. Irv., Dolf Heyl.

There's her to-morrow's partridge in the larder. Dick., Little Dorrit, Ch. III, 19b.

Having delivered this manifesto (which formed a portion of his last week's leader) . . . the editor paused to take breath. Pickw., Ch. 41.

Since their Sunday's conversation, his lordship was more free and confidential with his kinsman than he had previously been. Thack., Virg., Ch. XVI, 157.

Small beer — will it be believed! — was the only drink with which unhappy gentlemen soothed the fever of their previous night's potation. Van. Fair, I, Ch. VI, 59.

Periphrasis with of would seem to be the rule with to-day, yesterday and to-morrow, when respectively used in the sense of the present, the past and the future; also with the day in the meaning of this (or that) time.

- i. What young lady cares for the puddings of to-day, much more for those which were eaten a hundred years ago? THACK., Virg., Ch. IX, 89.

Before the bishop of Barchester had left the table, the minister of the day was made aware of the fact at his country-seat in Hampshire. TROL., Barch. Tow., XXXVIII, 333.

The plain man, looking at the problem as it exists to-day, is right to hold that he is not dealing with the Bishops of yesterday. Rev. of Rev.

- ii. Yesterday's preacher becomes the text for to-day's sermon. THACK., Eng. Hum., Swift.

As to Bertie, one would have imagined from the sound of his voice and the gleam of his eye that he had not a sorrow nor a care in the world. Nor had he. He was incapable of anticipating to-morrow's griefs. TROL., Barch. Tow., Ch. XIX, 147.

Periphrasis is unavoidable when the epoch is denoted by a noun + adverb.

Dobbin was already in the room, good-naturedly tending his patient of the night before. Van. Fair, I, Ch. VI, 60.

- d) numerous nouns in certain combinations, among others:

arm in at (within) arm's distance (end, length, reach), sometimes with arm in the genitive plural; MURRAY gives within arm reach as a variant of within arm's reach. At (the) arm's end is now obsolete. bed in bed's foot (head); boat in boat's head (crew, etc., almost any noun); cannon in cannon's mouth; death in at (from, to, etc.) death's door; finger in at one's fingers' ends; hair in hair's breadth; hand in hand's breadth and hand's span; harm in out of harm's way; heart in failure of the heart's action, my (your, etc.) heart's blood (content, care, delight, desire); journey in journey's end; life in life's business (end, prime, struggle); mind in mind's eye; nature in in nature's garb; needle in needle's eye; rope in rope's end; ship in ship's cabin (captain, company, crew, doctor etc., almost any noun); spear in spear's length; sword in at the sword's point; tongue in at one's tongue's end; town in town's end and town's people; vessel in vessel's edge (course, arrival, etc., almost any noun); water in water's edge; week in from week's end to week's end, from one week's end to another's; work in the work's end; year in from year's end to year's end, from one year's end to another's.

arm. Hold him at arm's distance. Mrs. Wood, East Lynne, I, 218¹⁾.

Hold death awhile at the arm's end. As you like it, II, 6, 10.

He is a man that one wishes to keep at arm's length.

To work at arm's length = to work awkwardly or disadvantageously. WEBST., Dict., s. v. arm.

The right woman never came within arms' length. ANON, Owen, 2, 265¹⁾.

Wood . . . plied within arm-reach. KANE, Arct. Exp. II, VII, 79²⁾.

bed. He stood at the bed's foot. Van. Fair, I, Ch. XXIX, 314.

She went into the room where Clive was at the bed's foot. THACK., Newc., II, Ch. XLII, 444.

1) FLÜGEL; 2) MURRAY.

An old . . . chair . . . stood at the bed's head. STERNE, Tristr. Shandy, II. XXIX, 142¹).

Advancing to the bed's head. DICK., Ol. Twist, Ch. I, 1a.

boat. An exploit to which no little consequence was attached by the boat's crew. SCOTT, Pirate, Ch. XXII, 242.

He kept the boat's head continually towards the monster. CH. KINGSLEY, Hyp., Ch. III, 12b.

cannon. She shook her head, and smiled as they smile who face cold steel or the cannon's mouth and want to die game. Truth, No. 1800, 1677a.

death. I brought him from death's door. FARQUHAR, The Beaux' Stratagem, IV, I (413).

It's not a time to spare when people are at death's door. G. ELIOT, Mid., Ch. LXX, 527.

This brought the patient to death's door. Westm. Gaz., No. 5335, 8d.

fingers. You seem to have the whole Peerage and Baronetage at your fingers' ends. W. BLACK, The New Prince Fortunatus, Ch. XV.

harm. People send Children to School to keep them out of Harm's way. STEELE, Spectator, XXXVI.

So he was in love, and wished to marry! It was but natural and would keep him out of harm's way. THACK., Virg., Ch. LXVI, 696.

I might have been kept out of a deal of harm's way. Ib., Ch. LXIX, 722.

We were fain to take to our boats again and pull out of harm's way. Ib., Ch. XC, 962.

He wanted her out of harm's way. CH. KINGSLEY, Hereward, Ch. XVI, 68a.

heart. Give me that man | That is not passion's slave, and I will wear him | In my heart's core. Haml., III, 2, 81.

Let us be shy how we ask him to give up his ease or his heart's desire. THACK., Pend., I, Ch. XVIII, 182.

Here she rummaged to her heart's delight. Id., A Little Dinner at Timmins's, Ch. VI, 327.

The Protestant Somersetshire yeomen no doubt cheered him to his heart's content. FROUDE, Ld. Beaconsfield, IV, 61.

Ah me! these Plumstead walks were pleasant enough, if one could have but heart's ease. TROL., Barch. Tow., Ch. XXX, 266.

I will yet have his heart's blood, if I go round the world again. CH. KINGSLEY, Westw. Ho!, Ch. XIV, 118b.

Death was due to failure of the heart's action. Times.

journey. They find their journey's end too often in a galley, dungeon or torture-chamber. CONAN DOYLE, Refugees, 229.

life. My whole life I have lived in pleasant thought, | As if life's business were a summer mood. WORDSWORTH, Res. and Ind.

Would Some One like to have the thing, I wonder, and be reminded of a man whom she knew in life's prime. THACK., Lovel the Wid., Ch. II, 25.

There are some few scenes in life's drama which even no poet should dare to paint. TROL., Barch. Tow., Ch. XXXII, 275.

It was better to go and seek out some fair island and there dwell in joy and pleasure till our lives' end. CH. KINGSLEY, Westw. Ho!, Ch. VII, 58b.

It is one of life's little ironies that men continually go unwhipped of justice for their great crimes and get smartly trounced for the veriest peccadilloes. Rev. of Rev., CXCVI, 337b.

These people are tired with life's struggle. KATH. BATHURST (Ninet. Cent., No. 392, 690).

¹) MURRAY.

man-of-war. Cleveland, with his spy-glass, could see the man-of-war's men boarding by the yards and bowsprit in irresistible numbers. SCOTT, Pirate, Ch. XL, 443.

mind. HAML. My father! methinks I see my father. — HOR. Where, my lord? — HAML. In my mind's eye, Horatio. HAML., I, 2, 185 nature. They spent a large portion of the day in nature's garb by the river side. Tom Brown, I, Ch. IX, 190.

In his devouring mind's eye he pictured to himself every roasting-pig running about with a pudding in his belly. WASH. IRV., Sketch-Book, XXXII, 351.

needle. The happy thought struck him of getting a piece of horse-hair, doubling it, pushing it through the needle's eye. Rev. of Rev.

rope. George Warrington was at a loss how his cousin had been made so to risk his precious existence (for which, perhaps, a rope's end had been a fitting termination). THACK., Virg., Ch. LXXXIII, 767.

sword. In true English fashion they won their markets at the sword's point. CH. KINGSLEY, Westw. Hol., Ch. XVIII, 135a.

By the sword's edge his life shall be foredone. W. MORRIS, Earthly Par., II, III, 348¹).

tongue. She never has an answer at her tongue's end. G. ELIOT, Sil. Marn., Ch. XI, 86.

town. At the town's end she met Mr. Balance. G. FARQUHAR, The Recruiting Officer, V, 6 (344).

I have been all this time . . . with Lord Shelburne, who has the squire's house at the town's end. SWIFT, Journ. to Stella, XXV, 9 June.

The town's people repaired to the cliffs. MAC., Hist., II, Ch. V, 142.

vessel. It appeared certain that the crew, finding themselves unable either to direct the vessel's course, or to relieve her by pumping, had taken to their boats, and left her to her fate. SCOTT, Pirate, Ch. VII, 83.

I fear the consequences of that vessel's arrival with her crew. Ib., Ch. XXII, 246.

I ran to the vessel's edge. MAR. CORELLI, Sor. of Sat. Ch. XXXIX, 245.

The official trials, to which great importance is attached owing to the vessel's enormous horse-power of 70,000 units, were to have taken place early this month. Times, No. 1819, 893c.

water. At a distance of some paces from the water's edge. RID. HAG., Mr. Mees. Will, Ch. VIII, 83.

Lotus-lilies grew thickly by the water's edge. MAR. CORELLI, Sor. of Sat., II, Ch. XXXIX, 235.

week. We did not see a single person from week's end to week's end. THACK., Sam. Titm., Ch. X, 120. (Compare: He brought down with him for the week-end a bundle of novels to review. Westm. Gaz., No. 5642, 9a.)

work. On starting they have ingeniously found some accommodating short cut, which has brought them without fatigue to their work's end in five minutes. TROL., Barch. Tow., Ch. XLVIII, 426.

year. This delicate instinct of self-respect keeps some men spruce and spotless from one year's end to another's. CH. KINGSLEY, Westw. Hol., Ch. II, 17a.

Most of these combinations must be considered as survivals of the Old English idiom.

¹) MURRAY.

Not a few are more or less felt as compounds with the genitive relation but dimly apprehended. In some of them, therefore, the common case occasionally takes the place of the genitive. The same applies more or less to those combinations in which the first element is the name of one of the larger heavenly bodies. (44, Obs. IV; 53b.) See also SWEET, N. E. Gr., § 1999.

When the things denoted by the component parts of the combination are distinctly thought of as separate objects, the genitive is replaced by the prepositional construction.

bed. Mr. Glegg advanced to the foot of the bed before speaking. G. ELIOT, Mill, III, Ch. IV, 202.

Suddenly appearing aware that some one was seated by his side at the head of the bed, he turned sharply round and saw his sister. Ib.

harm. How proud he would be if he could show his young friend a little of London life! — if he could warn rogues off him, and keep him out of the way of harm. THACK., Virg.; Ch. XVI, 168.

life. He knew that he was acting against the recognised principles of his life. TROL., Barch. Tow., Ch. XXVII, 226.

needle. It is easier for a camel to go through the eye of a needle than for a rich man to enter into the Kingdom of God. Matth., XIX, 24.

sword. The captives were driven into the cell at the point of the sword. Mac., Clive, (513b).

tongue. I saw the words on the tip of his tongue before Miss Jenkyns had finished her sentence. Mrs. GASK., Cranf., Ch. I, 22.

17. Sometimes it appears to be the noun modified which favours the use of the genitive. This is shown by the frequency of the head-word being represented by edge and end or by the name of a measure, as may be observed in the above quotations, and especially by the fact that the genitive of all kinds of nouns may modify sake (2a).

For heaven's sake let me hear the worst of it. TROL., Barch. Tow., Ch. XXVIII, 242.

"Then for God's sake", he answer'd, "both our sakes, | So you will wed me, let it be at once. TEN., En. Ard., 505.

There was no persecution for opinion's sake. T. W. HIGGINSON, Hist. U. S., IX, 66¹).

He never loved combat for combat's sake. Rev. of Rev., CCXX, 345a.

I continue to take an interest in him for old sake's sake as they say. STEVENSON, Dr. Jekyll, 17¹).

Ellen and I were once more together in her boat, though Dick, for fairness's sake, was for having me in his. W. MORRIS, News from Nowhere, Ch. XXVIII, 210.

It must be observed that the use of the genitive in connection with sake is now more or less archaic, being usual only in certain combinations, such as for God's sake, for Heaven's sake, for goodness's sake, for old sake's sake. (= for the sake of old friendship). But it would hardly do to substitute the genitive for the prepositional construction in:

For the sake of her money I was prostituting my honour. THACK., Pend., II, Ch. XXXIII, 360.

It became necessary for him to exert himself for the sake of the family. J. PAYN, Some Lit. Rec., 6¹).

Note. Thus also every standing before the noun modified causes a distinct predilection for the genitive.

In almshouse, hospital and jail, in misery's every refuge, he left his blessing. Christm. Car.

When the head-word is modified by own, the genitive is practically obligatory. (39, Obs. I.)

It was the man's own fault. OSCAR WILDE, The Pict. of Dor. Gray, Ch. XVIII, 260.

18. Obs. I. In the following quotations drawn from ordinary prose the use of the genitive is more or less at variance with ordinary practice:

Did not we say, at our tale's commencement, that all stories were old. THACK., Newc., I, Ch. XX, 215.

Failure in any of these arrangements endangers a newspaper's stability. Good Words for 1885.

He was ushered into a London house's library. G. MEREDITH, Lord Ormont, Ch. V, 67.

Mr. Cunard was on board enjoying quietly his ship's success. FROUDE, Oceana, Ch. XX, 338.

When they came to the bight's mouth [etc.]. CH. KINGSLEY, Westw. Hol., Ch. XVIII, 135*b*.

They saw the billows break here and there off the bay's mouth. lb., Ch. XVIII, 135*b*.

We should not have seen the House of Commons' supremacy in taxation challenged in form and in theory as in fact. Westm. Gaz., No. 5167, 1*b*.

While the Lords have been engaged with the Budget, the Commons' Week has been one of considerable industry. lb., 2*a*.

Well-meaning legislators would do well to think more of the present, and concentrate their forces on the hostile powers which are still endeavouring to thwart the Act's chief end. lb., 5642, 4*c*.

At the bottom of the kite's stem is another line terminating in a tangle of large spider's web. Il. Lond. News, No. 3777, 393.

- II. In the higher elevated style, especially in verse, the use of the genitive is often found extended to any noun, to impart dignity to the discourse or to meet the requirements of metre and rhyme.

What! leave the lofty Latian strain, | Her stately prose, her verse's charms. SCOTT, Marm., VI, Introd., vi.

Calf-love is a passion most people scorn, | Who've loved and outlived life and love's young morn. | But there's a calf-love too common by half, | And that is the love of the Golden Calf. Punch.

It is not the great bloodhounds and greyhounds that bark at misfortune's heels. CH. READE, It is never too late to mend, I, Ch. II, 32.

Genitive of Agency or Subjective Genitive.

19. a) With the names of persons, whether common nouns or proper names, the genitive of agency is much more common than its prepositional equivalent, when the noun modified distinctly expresses an action or a state, i. e. when it is a gerund or an equivalent form. The verbal nature of the head-word may be made distinctly apparent by the presence of objects or adverbial adjuncts, and it is these latter which often practically preclude the use of the prepositional construction (26, c).

- i. * Will you have a husband of your friends' choosing. SHER., Riv., I, 2.
He brought up a liberal supply of claret for the company's drinking. THACK., Pend., I, Ch. XVI, 163.
My girl's singing after that little odious governess's is unbearable. Van. Fair, I, Ch. XIX, 196.
Paul was quite alarmed at Mr. Feeder's yawning. DICK., Domb., Ch. XII, 104.
Mr. Barkis's wooing was altogether of a peculiar kind. Id., Cop., Ch. X, 72.
That's Dr. Gwynne's doing. TROL., Barch. Tow., Ch. XLVII, 421.
 Lady Catherine continued her remarks on Elizabeth's performance. JANE AUSTEN, Pride and Prej., Ch. XXXI, 176.
Mrs. Gardiner then rallied her niece on Wickham's desertion. Ib., Ch. XXXVII, 154.
A priest rose and renewed an oration which Hereward's entrance had interrupted. CH. KINGSLEY, Herew., Ch. IV, 33b.
 Mr. Slope had spoken of Mrs. Proudie's interference in diocesan matters. TROL., Barch. Tow., Ch. XXV, 209.
- ii. We could never listen for a quarter of an hour to the speaking of Sir James, without feeling that there was a constant effort, a tug up hill. MAC., Rev., 311b.
He was destroyed by Mercury at the bidding of Zeus. Westm. Gaz., No. 5329, 5a.

For illustrative quotations see also Ch. III, 17, and especially Ch. XIX.

Note. Sometimes the prepositional construction may have been preferred on account of the modifier being a plural (12, d):

After the withdrawal of the servants Pen said to the vicar of Tinkleton. THACK., Pend., II, Ch. XXVIII, 308.
He got a scolding from the bishop in the hearing of the servants. TROL., Barch. Tow., Ch. XLII, 418.

- b) With nouns that do not indicate persons the prepositional construction is the ordinary one:

His ears were deafened by the thundering of the water. Christm. Car.
The only sound heard in the stillness was the hopping of the canary up and down the perches of its prison. HARDY¹⁾.

1) GÜNTHER, Man., § 614.

The sullen murmur of the bees... seemed to make the stillness more oppressive. OSCAR WILDE, The Picn. of Dor. Gray, Ch. I, 7.

In 1865 the sale (sc. of the Danish West Indian possession) was frustrated, when on the point of completion, by the refusal of the United States Senate to ratify the treaty. Westm. Gaz., No. 5613, 2b.

Objective Genitive.

20. The objective genitive is unusual, apparently owing to the reluctance which is generally felt to express the notion of subjection to an action by genitive inflection.

The objective genitive is not, however, so unusual as is often believed. This comparative frequency may be due to the fact that the objective relation is sometimes mixed with the relation of possession understood in its widest sense (9). Thus such combinations as Marley's funeral, the king's accommodation, the lady's amusement may also be interpreted: the funeral which Marley had, the accommodation which the king had, the amusement which that lady had. These and similar combinations may favour the use of others, such as Rizzio's assassination, Eleanor's banishment, her daughter's loss etc. where the relation of possession cannot be thought of.

It must also be borne in mind that, according to a generally observed principle in the matter of word-order (Ch. VIII, 2, a), post-position of the modifying element, as in the punishment of the boy, has the effect of throwing that element into relief, which may be foreign to the speaker's or writer's intention. It may, accordingly, be supposed that the desire of giving prominence to the element modified, will sometimes lead to the use of the genitive construction.

Objective genitives are almost strictly confined to the names of persons, or of animals or things thought of as persons.

They are found before gerunds, nouns of action, and agent-nouns. As to gerunds, the two factors mentioned above seem to operate with the least potency. They make their influence more powerfully felt when the head-word is a noun of action, but in the case of agent-nouns they almost entirely counteract the reluctance referred to above. Thus there is nothing strange in my father's defenders, patrons, persecutors, supporters, but my father's defence, patronage, persecution, support are more or less incongruous, if they are meant to denote the defence, patronage, persecution or support enjoyed or suffered by my father. It follows then that objective genitives are least common before gerunds, rather usual before nouns of action, while before agent-nouns they are as common as ordinary genitives of possession.

It stands to reason that the objective genitive is avoided when it might give rise to misunderstanding. Thus God's love being mostly apprehended as a subjective genitive, it would hardly do to use the same expression to denote an objective relation. It may here also be observed that the love of God, perhaps, owing to its frequent liturgical use is often understood as a substitute for a subjective genitive: The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ, and the love of God, and the fellowship of the Holy Ghost, be with us all evermore. LITANY (Cor. B, XIII).

In the following quotations those of the first group have a gerund as the head-word of an objective genitive, those of the second a noun of action.

- i. * christening. I must present your friend with some little token, on the occasion of Paul's christening. DICK., Domb., Ch. V, 34.
On the occasion of Dora's christening they had expressed their opinion in writing. Id., Cop., Ch. XXXVIII, 278*b*.

drilling. A boy's drilling in Latin and Greek is insisted on. SPENC., Educ., Ch. I, 10*a*.

 crowning. The crowning of King George V took place under peculiarly auspicious circumstances.

- ii. * abandonment. Better avoid the friction and odium of causing the Bill's abandonment now, and then when we come into power, we will repeal it. Sat. Rev. (Westm. Gaz., No. 5625, 16*c*).

accommodation. Some hasty preparations had been made for the King's accommodation. SCOTT, Quent. Durw., Ch. XXVIII, 360.

amusement. He little dreamt that had all his intentions with reference to Mrs. Bold been known to the signora, it would only have added zest to that lady's amusement. TROL., Barch. Tow., Ch. XXVII, 228.

appointment. She wouldn't have Mr. Quiverful's promised appointment cozened away by the treachery of Mr. Slope. Id., Ch. XXVI, 222.

Sir John French's appointment to succeed Sir William Nicholson as Aide-de-Camp General to the King comes in the natural sequence of things. Truth, No. 1802, 75*b*.

assassination. Even the story of Rizzio's assassination presented no ideas to this emissary of commerce. SCOTT, Fair Maid, Intr. 10.

banishment. To the one it appeared as though he were triumphing at Eleanor's banishment. TROL., Barch. Tow., Ch. XXXIV, 298.

discomfiture. The idea of Mr. Slope's discomfiture formed no small part of the archdeacon's pleasure. Id., Ch. XLVII, 421.

dread. The Saxons called him the whale's bane, the seal's dread. KINGSLEY, Herew., Ch. II, 21*a*. execution. A day or two after Amonius's execution. Id., Hyp., Ch. XX, 105*a*.

Mr. Doughty's famous trial and execution. Id., Westw. Ho!, Ch. V, 41*b*.

expulsion. She should not have expressed the idea that her order for Mr. Slope's expulsion could be treated otherwise than by immediate obedience. TROL., Barch. Tow., Ch. XXVI, 218.

loss. It was Jemina's opinion that if anything could console Mrs. Birch for her daughter's loss, it would be that pious and eloquent composition in which Miss Pinkerton announced the event. Van. Fair, I, Ch. I, 3.

Nor should I have mentioned the child's loss at all, but that even that loss was a means of great wordly blessing to us. Sam. Titm., Ch. XII, 165.

The feeling of Emily's loss does not diminish as time wears on. Mrs. GASK., Life of Ch. Brontë, 286.

No tears were shed for her mother's loss. MARIE CORELLI, Sor. of Sat., II, Ch. XXVI, 62.

His faculties were benumbed, and not even pain, the pain of Ewan's loss, could yet penetrate the dead blank that lay between him and a full consciousness of the awful event. HALL CAINE, Decmster, Ch. XXVII, 193.

murder. The army is giving no thought to anything else than crushing the tyrant and avenging Gordon's murder. Times.

preferment. He (sc. Mr. Arabin) had not as yet seen Mr. Harding since Eleanor had accepted him, nor had he seen him since he had learnt his future father-in-law's preferment. TROL., Barch. Tow., Ch. LII, 454.

punishment. Not intending to reprieve Maggie's punishment. G. ELIOT, Mill, I, Ch. V, 30.

rehabilitation. He has nobly devoted his life to his brother's rehabilitation. Times.

robbery. In What Lady Glenmire had said about Mr. Hoggins's robbery, we had a specimen of what people came to, if they gave way to such a weakness. Mrs. GASK., Cranf., Ch. XI, 208.

* adoption. The result was his marriage and the adoption of the new Mrs. Acland's son. Mrs. ALEX., A Life Interest, I, Ch. II, 33.

appointment. She sent Mrs. Quiverful home with an assurance that . . . the appointment of Mr. Quiverful should be insisted on. TROL., Barch. Tow., Ch. XXVI, 223.

loss. She could not bear the loss of her lover. Ib., Ch. XXVIII, 228.
The efforts of the Malcontent nobles, the religious discord, the consummate ability, both political and military of Parma, all combined with the lamentable loss of William the Silent to separate for ever the southern and Catholic provinces from the northern confederacy. MOTLEY, Rise, VI, Ch. VII, 897b.

treatment. The high-handed treatment of the Prince was held by his (sc. Lord Ormont's) advocates to be justified by the provocation and the result. G. MEREDITH, Lord Ormont, Ch. II, 25.

21. Obs. I. Instances of the objective genitive, also of the names of things, are quite frequent in SHAKESPEARE.

Every one did hear | Thy praises in his kingdom's great defence. Macb., I, 5, 98.

He laboured in his country's wreck. Ib., I, 5, 114.

Henry the Seventh succeeding, | truly pitying | My father's loss like a most royal prince | Restor'd me to my honours. Henry VIII, II, 1, 113.

- II. Such words as likeness, picture, portrait may be preceded by a genitive denoting the person (or thing) represented, the combination forming a kind of objective genitive.

effigy. I was staring at my father's effigy. RID. HAG., The Brethren, Ch. II, 18.

picture. On the receipt of my mother's picture. COWPER.

The medallion with your mother's picture and yours, lies always on my heart. BUCHANAN, That Winter Night, Ch. III, 26.

I want you to explain to me why you won't exhibit Dorian Gray's picture. OSC. WILDE, Pict. of Dor. Gray, Ch. I, 12.

portrait. "How many portraits have you painted since last summer, Crowdie?" — "Four, I think — and two I'm doing now, besides Miss Lauderdale's". MAR. CRAWF., Kath. Laud., II, Ch. X, 184.

statue. Achilles' statue is just out of sight round a corner. Westm. Gaz., No. 5607, 8c.

Compare with this: the picture of Dorian Gray. OSCAR WILDE. The oil painting of Bowster and Miss Bowster. MISS BRAD., My First Happy Christm.

In the centre of the room . . . stood the full-length portrait of a young man. OSCAR WILDE, Pict. of Dor. Gray, Ch. I, 8.

- III. In a stone's throw, which has come to be used as the name of a measure, the objective genitive is fixed. See, however, 23, Obs. V.

- IV. Sometimes it appears to be a prepositional object to which the genitive corresponds.

He had absolutely taken that same Mr. Arabin into his confidence with reference to his dread of Mr. Slope's alliance. TROL., Barch. Tow., Ch. LII, 442 (= alliance with Mr. Slope.)

Genitive of Measure.

22. The genitive of measure is used in expressing:

- a) an extent of length, breadth, height, depth, space, etc.

The lowest gallery appeared in a parallel of less than a hundred yards' distance from the height where I stood. SWIFT, Gul. Trav., III, Ch. I (165a). (Compare: It lay nearly twenty miles distant from Yarlishof. SCOTT, Pirate, Ch. III, 31.)

The grisly priest, with murmuring prayer, | A slender crosslet form'd with care. | A cubit's length in measure due. SCOTT, Lady, III, viii.

Onward she came, the large black hulk seeming larger at every fathoms' length. Id., Pirate, Ch. VII, 83

This house stood but little more than three miles' distance from Stratford. WASH. IRV., Sketch-Bk., XXVI, 266.

- b) a length of time, duration, etc.:

We had good winds from the east, though soft and weak, for five months' space and more. BACON, New Atlantis (269).

In six weeks' time I finished a sort of Indian canoe. SWIFT, Gulliver's Trav., IV, Ch. X (211a).

In three days' time he was able to sit in an easy chair. DICK., Ol. Twist, Ch. XII, 27a

They were still like lovers, this husband and wife of twenty-six years' standing. EDNA LYALL, Hardy Norsemen, Ch. XXIII, 209.

The acquaintance of the two was not of a few weeks' standing. II. Lond. News.

An interview of three hours' duration. Times.

- c) the magnitude of a weight.

(He) Gave them a chain of twelve marks' weight, | All as he lighted down. SCOTT, Marm., I, ii.

Twenty-five pounds' weight of biltong. RID. HAG., King Sol. Mines, 68.

- d) the magnitude of a worth or value.

I had not three farthings' worth of business in the world. BURNS, Letter to Dr. Moore.

He had chosen a shawl of about thirty shillings' value. Mrs. GASK., Cranf., Ch. XIII, 242.

Buy a shilling's worth of stamps. WALT. BESANT, Bell of St. Paul's I, Ch. VI, 85.

e) the magnitude of the carrying capacity of a ship.

Four caravels only were furnished for the expedition, the largest of which did not exceed seventy tons' burden. PRESCOTT, Hist. of the Reign of Ferd. and Isab.

23. Obs. I. As like can only be measured by like, the names of measures ought, strictly speaking to be followed by the names of the abstractions that are measured, i. e. respectively by such words as distance, time, weight, worth, burden, or their synonyms. This is actually the case in all the quotations given above. As a matter of fact these words are, however, mostly understood: a moment's time (α) becomes a moment (β).

Sometimes the name of the measure is put in the common case, partitive of being placed before the name of the abstraction: a moment's time becomes a moment of time (γ). This construction is infrequent.

In some cases the name of the abstraction is followed by descriptive of (MURRAY, s. v. of, 38) + the name of the matter measured: a moment's pause of complete silence (δ). In such a combination the name of the abstraction is mostly thrown out, with the result that the genitive is replaced by the common case: a moment's pause of complete silence becomes a moment of complete silence (ε).

This latter construction admits of two modifications: it may be changed into one with a genitive: a moment's complete silence (ζ); the word modified and the modifying word may change functions: a complete silence of a moment (η), this last construction being also found with the name of the abstraction as the head-word: a space of five minutes.

The different constructions here described do not occur with equal frequency, nor are they found with regard to all the different measures mentioned above. Construction (β) is, of course, a usual one with all of them and does not, therefore, require any illustration.

a) With the names of measures of length etc. constructions (ε) and (η) are the ordinary ones.

i. To give Martin Lightfoot a yard of law was never to come up with him again. CH. KINGSLEY, Herew., Ch. I, 12b.

The sight of the miles and miles of houses all round made her miserable. EDNA LYALL, Hardy Norseman, Ch. XXVII, 250. It was a good four miles of walk. CON. DOYLE, Rodney Stone, I, Ch. III, 66.

The viceroy has sanctioned the construction of 550 miles of railway. Times.

ii. At a distance of some paces from the water's edge. RID. HAG., Mr. Mees. Will, Ch. VIII, 83.

When the name of the abstraction is understood, the descriptive noun sometimes stands by way of apposition after the name of the unit.

Another said there was four foot water. DEFOE, Rob. Crusoe, 10.

b) With the nouns denoting a length of time all the above constructions are possible. Construction (γ) is rather unusual. Construction (δ) occurs especially when the abstraction is denoted by such words as pause or interval. Constructions (ε) and (ζ) are very frequent. Construction (η), also quite common, is sometimes replaced by one with the preposition for, in which the prepositional word-group is, of course, an adverbial adjunct. Some quotations illustrating the construction (θ) instanced by a space of five minutes (see preceding page), are given below under vi. For illustration of construction (α) see 22, b.

i. A moment of time will make us unhappy for ever. GAY, Beggar's Opera, II. There can be no harm in mentioning the matter now after twenty years' lapse of time. THACK., Sam. Titm., Ch. X, 130.

He inquired for Rummer and the cold in his nose, told Mrs. Rummer a riddle, asked Miss Rummer when she would be ready to marry him, and paid his compliments to Miss Brett, the other young lady in the bar, all in a' minute of time. Id., Pend., I, Ch. III, 42.

ii. There was a moment's pause of complete silence. MRS. WARD, Marcella, I, 40.

iii. Accept my thanks for some hours of pleasant reading. MRS. GASKELL, Life of Ch. Brontë.

She begged for an extra week of holiday. MRS. CRAIK, A Hero, 45.

To such a temper had eighteen years of misgovernment brought the most loyal Parliament that had ever met. MAC., Hist., I, Ch. II, 232.

That would have spared me eight years of misery. CH. KINGSLEY, Westw. Ho!, Ch. VII, 62b.

After a night of tossing he started for Bideford. Ib., Ch. XIV, 112b.

Three hours of driving brought us back to Ballarat. FROUDE, Oceana, Ch. VIII, 116.

Still it was something to be out in the open air, to get a few minutes of leisure. EDNA LYALL, Hardy Norseman, Ch. XXIV, 218.

To-night there was a moment of calm. MRS. WARD, Rob. Elsm., II, 261.

iv. Peggotty and Mr. Barkis were going to make a day's holiday together. DICK., Cop., Ch. X, 72b.

During my month's holiday she was particularly pleased with me. THACK., Sam. Titm., Ch. I, 2.

A couple of hours' brainwork. MRS. WARD, Marc., I, 76.

Dick Boyce got three months' imprisonment. Ib., I, 95.

An hour's walking would have brought me back to Essendean. STEVENSON, Kidnapped, 17.

Workers just set free from the day's toil. EDNA LYALL, Hardy Norseman, Ch. XXVII, 250.

He could not bear the thought of a day's separation from her. II. Mag.

Thirty-five years' world-wide reputation. Times.

This is what we shall all feel when in our time we are summoned to render an account of our life's stewardship. Rev. of Rev., CXCIV, 226.

Yokohama is fifteen days' steaming from San Francisco. Ib., CCXII, 113b.

v. "I met with a man I haven't seen for years," he said after a silence of some minutes. MRS. ALEXANDER, A Life Interest, I, Ch. I, 25.

vi. We sailed from Peru where we had continued for the space of one whole year. BACON, New Atlantis, (269).

My master allowed me the space of two months to finish my boat. SWIFT, Gul. Trav., IV, Ch. X (210b).

This unique and momentous change, completed, so far as one dialect is concerned, in a space of two centuries, evidently requires to be accounted for. BRADLEY, The Making of English, Ch. II, 48.

vii. There was silence for a few minutes. CH. KINGSLEY, Westw. Hol., Ch. XXXI, 237b.

There was a fight for four hours. Times.

In such a sentence as John had but two hours the start of them (THACK., Henry Es., I, Ch. V, 46) the word-group two hours is rather adverbial than adnominal.

- c) The words denoting a weight are ordinarily found in construction (ε): three pounds of sugar. Compare, however, the construction used in: The floating masses are sometimes from sixty to two hundred and twenty-five pounds in weight. WEBST., Dict., s. v. ambergris.
- d) A more varied practice may be observed with regard to nouns denoting a measure of worth or value.

Very frequent are construction (α) and (δ) with the noun worth as the head-word, in the latter with the name of a commodity in the descriptive word-group: a good shilling's worth, a shilling's worth of tobacco. When the noun in the descriptive word-group is not the name of a commodity, worth is suppressed; i. e. construction (ε): a hundred pounds of debts, or construction (η): a debt of a hundred pounds is used, or the descriptive noun is placed by way of apposition after the name of the money-unit: a hundred pounds expense. In this last construction the apposition may be regarded as a substitute for the genitive (23, Obs. IV, d). Only the three last constructions are here illustrated.

i. He had 1000 l. of debts. THACK., Sam. Titm., Ch. X, 121.

Brough alone is worth half a million of money. Ib., Ch. VII, 80 (million = million pounds.)

She brought me her 1.750 l. of savings. Id., Virg., Ch. LXXXIV, 893.

ii. A reward of 25 pounds is offered to whoever shall discover the offender.

iii. He had never been at one shilling expense to furnish him with food. SMOLLETT, Rod. Rand., Ch. III, 19.

Thirty pounds and twenty-five guineas a year make fifty-six pounds five shillings English money. GOLDSM., Vic., Ch. XI.

Three thousand two hundred loose cash. Sam. Titm., Ch. VI, 58. (pounds is understood.)

Mr. Haldane held out hopes of five millions reduction. Rev. of Rev., CCVII, 228b. (million = million pounds.)

In the following quotation for stands as a substitute for the conjunction as in the function described in Ch. VI, 15.

Whosoever will apprehend the traitor Thomas Wyatt shall have a hundred pounds for reward. TEN., Queen Mary, II, 3.

The names of the money-units penny, shilling and pound when joined to worth are sometimes placed in the common case instead of the genitive. The two nouns are sometimes made to form a kind of compound which may take the mark of the plural. For the exposition of the ordinary constructions with worth see Ch. IV, 10, Obs. II. Compare also Ch. XXV, 29, a, 3.

Construction (α) and (θ) are frequent enough with the noun value respectively as the head-word or as part of the modifying word-group:

i. a shawl of thirty shillings' value.

ii. Send stamps to value of sixpence. II. Lond. News.

The money and jewels to the value of several hundred thousand pounds Mos. Rotsch. (STOF., Handl., I, 52).

More frequent still is the construction (η) with the noun value understood: a shawl of thirty shillings.

Compare also money's worth (= Dutch: waar voor (zijn) geld) with money value (= Dutch: geldswaarde).

i. What need you care, if you have your money's worth. SHER., School for Scand., III, 3, (402).

The public has a shrewd idea that it does not get its money's worth. Rev. of Rev., CCXI, 12*b*.

ii. Old hoards were taken out and examined as to their money value. Mrs. GASKELL, Cranford, Ch. XIV, 273.

There is more depending upon this ring than its mere money value. DEIGHTON, Note to Merch. of Ven., IV, 1, 426.

e) The noun burden is often understood after ton.

A stout ship of three hundred ton. SWIFT, Gul. Trav., I, Ch. I, (163*a*).

II. Word-groups containing the name of a measure of time are often used in describing the magnitude of other matters, varying as to the length of a period.

Who knows what a year or two's Latin may do for him? GOLDSM., She Stoops to Conquer, I.

My faculties have wrought a day's task and earned a day's wages. Mrs. GASK., Life of Ch. Brontë, 311.

Not without three months' salary. THACK., Sam. Titm., Ch. II, 15.

He has a right to claim six years' arrears. LYTTON, Night and Morn., 470. The walk was a solitary walk, . . . but a minute or two's distance from his lodgings. H. J. BYRON, Our Boys.

He owed me fifteen months' rent. Miss BRAD., Lady Audley's Secret, II, Ch. II, 35.

Observe that in stating a distance in a measure of time it is the rule to mention the mode of locomotion: thus half-an-hour's walk (or ride, etc.) from the station, etc., not half-an-hour from the station, etc.

In the following quotation the ordinary practice is not observed:

He (sc. Bismarck) had satisfied himself during his walk that our outposts were only three quarters of an hour from the town. T. P.'s Weekly, No. 479, 33*b*.

III. The action or state whose duration is to be described, is sometimes but dimly present to the speaker's mind, and, consequently, not indicated by a special word.

We were all off at an hour's warning. SHER., Riv., I, 1.

He was always ready to march at a few hours' notice. THACK., Pend., II, Ch. XXXI, 339.

A beard of three weeks' date. DICK., Barn. Rudge, Ch. I, 4*a*.

You cannot at a moment's notice put a stop to all those precautions. Times. Compare: I have already said that when you begin preparations, you cannot stop them in a moment. lb.

IV. The common-case form is sometimes used instead of the genitive.

a) This practice is most common when the name of the measure is a plural, the word feet included.

i. Over against this temple, on the other side of the great highway, at twenty feet distance there was a turret at least five feet high. SWIFT, Gul. Trav., I, Ch. I, (118*a*).

Norna took her seat on a stone about three feet distance. SCOTT, Pirate, Ch. X, 113.

He built a house of three stories height. Id., Guy Mannering, Ch. I.

A much heavier charge of powder is necessary to hit a target a mile off than at a hundred yards distance. Rev. of Rev., CXCV, 228b.

- ii. Any attempt to carry out this ideal would have involved another ten or fifteen years delay. SWEET, Hist. of Eng. Sounds, Pref., 11.
 - iii. He's four pounds weight. CH. KINGSLEY, Westw. Ho!, Ch. XXII, 169b. The vast tobacco warehouses with their millions of pounds weight of smoke-producing material. London and its Environs.¹⁾
 - iv. In another locker I found about thirty-six pounds value in money. DEFOE, Rob. Crusoe (v. D. VOORT, Eng. Reading-book, 43).
- b) The common-case form is only exceptionally used when the name of the measure is a singular, perhaps excepting inch, which owing to the final sibilant may ordinarily reject the mark of the genitive.
- i. I saw this vast body descending almost to a parallel with me, at less than an English mile distance. SWIFT, Gulliver's Travels, III, Ch. I, (164b). He passed them (sc. these remonstrances) on to the editor with . . . a cheerful admonition not to swerve by an inch breadth from the course he was then pursuing. Westm. Gaz., No. 5335, 4b.
 - ii. She might as well have asked him to carry a ton weight on his back. G. ELIOT, Mill, III, Ch. IX, 240.
- c) The numeral more placed after the name of the measure seems to entail the dropping of the mark of the genitive.
- The oldest clerk had not six months more standing in it. THACK., Sam. Titm., Ch. VI, 65.
- d) The nouns denoting a measure of money have the mark of the genitive only when the noun modified is worth or value. When either of these nouns is absent, the common case seems to be regularly used. This appears to be the case also when the name of the money-unit (pound) is suppressed. (23, Obs. I, d.)
- i. She has fifteen hundred pounds a year jointure. WYCH., Plain Dealer, I, 1. He had never been at one shilling expense to furnish him with food, raiment, books or other necessities. SMOL., Rod. Rand., Ch. III, 19. Thirty pounds and twenty-five guineas a year make fifty-six pounds five shillings English money. GOLDS., Vic., Ch. XI, (298). A hundred and fifty guineas reward. THACK., Sam. Titm., Ch. V, 52. I became head-clerk with 400 l. a year salary. Ib., Ch. X, 127. Under no circumstances shall we ever put a penny tax on wool. Westm. Gaz.
 - ii. Four hundred a year jointure. THACK., Sam. Titm., Ch. VI, 58. Three thousand two hundred loose cash. Ib. Mr. Haldane held out hopes of five millions reduction. Rev. of Rev., CCVII, 228b.
- e) The use of the singular common case instead of the plural genitive, as in the following quotation, is more or less vulgar.
- Each bar (of silver) between a thirty and forty pound weight. CH. KINGSLEY, Westw. Ho!, Ch. I, 2a.
- V. Sometimes the genitive forms a kind of compound with the following noun, the compound in its turn being used as the name of a measure. The genitive may be variously related to its head-word. (16, d; 21, Obs. III.) Especially the following compounds are in frequent use:

¹⁾ ELLINGER, Verm. Beitr., 18.

hair's-breadth, hand's-breadth, arm's-length, stone's-throw, hand's-touch, day's-journey, day's-sail. In some of these the common-case form occasionally varies with the genitive.

arm's-length. At last he was within an arm's-length of the sinking child. Il. Mag.

With the newspaper before him at arm's length. THACK., Pend., I, Ch. V, 56.

day's journey. Alexandria was still several days' journey below him. CH. KINGSLEY, Hyp., Ch. III, 12b.

It is a good two days' journey. JEROME, Diary of a Pilgr., 12.

There are districts in France now where a church is not to be seen in a day's journey. CON. DOYLE, Ref., 222.

day's ride. The greatest man within a day's ride of Rouen. ib., 303.

day's sail. Asgard was only ten days' sail up. CH. KINGSLEY, Hyp., Ch. III, 14b.

hair('s)-breadth. i. Not a hair's-breadth beyond. G. ELIOT, Middlemarch, Ch. XXXVI, 260.

She next dusted and arranged the room, which was dusted and arranged to a hair's breadth already. DICK., Cop., Ch. XIV, 100b.

ii. Drawing herself up so as not to lose one hair-breadth of her uncommon height. SCOTT, Guy Mannering.¹⁾ hand('s)-breadth. i. The man's face was within a hand's-breadth of her own. CON. DOYLE, Ref., 207.

ii. Behold, thou hast made my days as an handbreadth. Psalm XXXIX, 5.
I saw the library casement open a hand-breadth. Jane Eyre, Ch. XXIII, 302.
The good sword stood a hand-breadth out | Behind the Tuscan's head. MACAULAY, Lays, Horatius, XLV.

hand's-span. Seventeen years is but a hand's-span in the history of literature. Westm. Gaz., No. 5071, 4c.

hand('s)-touch. i. He had the woman he loved within hand's touch of him. CON. DOYLE, Ref., 303.

ii. I could make out no sound when they were within hand-touch of me. ib., 325.

stone('s)-throw(-cast). i. Rebecca and her husband were but a few stones' throw of the lodging which the invalid Miss Crawley occupied. Van. Fair, I, Ch. XXV, 265.

ii. About a stone-cast from the wall | A sluice with blacken'd waters slept. TEN., Mariana, IV.

Within a stone-throw of the hard white beach. Westm. Gaz.

Compare also: A bow-shot from her bower-eaves. TEN., Lady of Shalott, III, 1.

Genitive of Apposition or Specializing.

24. a) The genitive of apposition or specializing is uncommon and confined to the higher literary language, being almost exclusively found in poetry. In the majority of cases the noun is a proper name. In Dutch the genitive of apposition or specializing is hardly used except when the head-word is a plural, as in De Republiek der Vereenigde Staten. See also Ch. IV, 16, and compare ONIONS, Advanced Eng. Synt., § 94—95.

¹⁾ MURRAY.

i. In Britain's Isle, no matter where, | An ancient pile of buildings stands.

GRAY, A Long Story, I.

No want of timber then was felt or fear'd | In Albion's happy isle. COWPER, Task, I, 58.

On Barnard's towers and Tees's stream | She (sc. the moon) changes as a guilty dream. SCOTT, Rokeby, I, 1.

Where the Trosach's defile | Opens on the Katrine's lake and isle. Id., Lady, VI, xix.

Day set on Norham's castled steep | And Tweed's fair river, broad and deep | And Cheviot's mountain lone. Id., Marm., I, 1.

Oh I'm the chief of Ulva's isle, | And this Lord Ullin's daughter. CAMPBELL, Each flag lay still, | So did the leaves on Cithæron's hill. BYRON, Siege of Cor., XIX.

The azure calm of Mæri's Lake. MOORE, Par. and the Peri.

ii. Macbeth does murder sleep, — the innocent sleep; . . . | Chief nourisher in life's feast. Macb., II, 2, 39.

For he attaints that rival's fame | With treason's charge. SCOTT, Marm., II, viii. For not Mimosa's tender tree | Shrinks sooner from the touch than he. Ib., IV, Introd. vii.

Safe and free from magic power | Blushing like the rose's flower | Opening to the day. Id., Brid. of Triermain, III, xxxix,

And indeed he seems to me | Scarce other than my king's ideal knight. TEN., Id. of the King, Ded. 6.

The horse was worth a kingdom's gift. W. MORRIS, Earthly Par., The Proud King, 87b.

Also the genitives in the following quotations may be considered as instances of the appositional or specializing genitive:

'T was after dread Pultowa's day. BYRON, Mazeppa, I.

Within a window'd niche of that high hall | Sate Brunswick's fated chieftain. Id., Childe Har., III, xxiii.

This applies more or less also to the genitives in:

Far ran the naked moon across | The houseless ocean's heaving field, | Or flying shone, the silver boss | Of her own halo's dusky shield. TEN., The Voyage, IV.

Great and manifold were the blessings, . . . which Almighty God . . . bestowed upon us, the people of England, when first he sent Your Majesty's Royal Person to rule and reign over us. Author. Vers., Epistle Dedic.

To the Queen's Most Excellent Majesty this historical dictionary of the English language is by her gracious permission dutifully dedicated by the University of Oxford. MURRAY.

Likewise even to such genitives as are component parts of proper names, as in:

St. Paul's Cathedral, Gray's Inn, Hudson's Bay, etc.

- b) The constructions mostly used instead of the genitive of apposition or specializing, are that of apposition or that with appositional of: the river Tweed (anciently the river of Tweed), the ideal knight my king; the isle of Britain, the feast of life, the charge of treason, the gift of a kingdom.

Sometimes its ordinary substitute is the common case of an adnominal noun: the mimosa tree. For fuller details see Ch. IV, 12 ff.

USE OF THE GENITIVE AND ITS PREPOSITIONAL EQUIVALENT UNDER THE INFLUENCE OF CONSIDERATIONS OF SYNTAX, EMPHASIS AND METRE OR RHYTHM.

25. As to the names of persons or of animals or things thought of as persons, one or the other construction is sometimes made obligatory or at least highly preferable by the syntactical connections of either of the two nouns concerned, by the exigencies of emphasis or by the laws of metre or rhythm. These factors are sometimes clashing, but more frequently co-operating to bring about the same effect.

26. The syntactical connections make the genitive:

a) unavoidable when the head-word is followed by an apposition.

Thus it was that Laura Bell became Mrs. Pendennis's daughter. Neither her husband, nor that gentleman's brother, the Major, viewed her with favourable eyes. THACK., Pend., I, Ch. VIII, 90.

He purchased the Whittingehame estate, to which the Prime Minister's father, James Maitland Balfour succeeded in 1847. ROB. MACHRAY (Pall Mall Mag.) There are some interesting illustrations, including a portrait of Pitt's mother, Lady Hester Grenville. Westm. Gaz., No. 5607, 10a.

b) practically obligatory:

1) when the head-word is the object of a verb of requesting.
Ch. III, 17.

I beg the court's pardon. PICKW., Ch. XXXIV.

2) when the head-word is followed by of + (pro)noun, whether representing an objective genitive or an apposition, or filling any other grammatical function. It will be observed that Dutch idiom in this case hardly tolerates a genitive-construction, nor its prepositional equivalent either.

He would grumble about the master's treatment of him. THACK., Newc., I, Ch. XII, 144.

We are not going to say a great deal about Pen's courtship of Miss Fotheringay. Id., Pend., II, Ch. VI, 69.

He accepted very complacently the town's opinion of him. Id., Henry Esmond, II, Ch. X, 238.

All the town was indignant at my lord Duke's unjust treatment of General Webb. Id., II, Ch. XV, 287.

Sir Miles himself had agreed in George's view of pursuing quite other than a military career. Id., Virg., Ch. LXI, 633.

I was not surprised at Miss Pole's manner of bridling up. MRS. GASK., Cranf., Ch. XI, 208.

Even Mrs. Jamieson's approval of her selling tea had been gained. Id., Ch. XV, 281.

We can only find space for Napoleon's most interesting summary of Cromwell, in whom, perhaps, he saw a kindred spirit. Acad., No. 1765, 203b.

In the earlier plays, such as the story of Abraham's sacrifice of Isaac, is to be found a preponderance of the pathetic. Il. Lond. News, No. 3698, 344.

Another distinction of the French visit was the King's opening of the King's way. Rev. of Rev., CXCI, 460a.

c) distinctly preferable, although not obligatory:

1) when the adjunct of the head-word begins with another preposition.

His denials only served to confirm his relatives' opinion regarding his splendid expectations. THACK., Virg., Ch. XVI, 167.

Within a few pages of the end we are made unhappy by the lady's victory over that poor young sinner Foker. TROL., Thack., Ch. IV, 111.

(He) thus purposely (ignored) the archdeacon's hitherto unlimited dominion over the diocese at large. Id., Barch. Tow., Ch. V, 32.

I was rather vexed and annoyed at Miss Matty's conduct in taking the note to herself so decidedly. Mrs. GASK., Cranf., Ch. XIII, 247.

2) when the head-word is modified by a clause.

There are so many of the bishop's relatives who always bring their own horses. TROL., Barch. Town., Ch. V, 35.

The malignant Pope was forced to own, that there was a charm in Addison's talk, which could be found nowhere else. Mac., Addison, (751a).

3) when the element modified is made up of two or more co-ordinate members.

It depends mainly on the parson's wife and daughters. TROL., Barch. Tow., Ch. V, 34.

Pitt's childhood and early life are little known. Westm. Gaz., No. 5607, 9c.

4) when a construction in which the owner is indicated by a non-prepositional object may be given as an actual or theoretical equivalent. Ch. III, 14.

"You shall have it (sc. my assistance)," replied Mr. Snodgrass, clasping his friend's hand. Pickw., Ch. II.

Mr. Snodgrass seized his friend's hand warmly. Ib.

The tears rolled down the poor child's face. DICK., Ol. Twist, Ch. III, 39.

He squeezed Foker's hand. THACK., Pend., I, Ch. IV, 50.

She put her card and half-a-crown...into the man's hand. TROL., Barch. Tow., Ch. XXV, 212.

He shook Mr. Harding's hand ruthlessly and begged him to be seated. Ib., Ch. XII, 94.

He took people's money, more by force than fraud. BLACKMORE, Lorna Doone, Ch. XI, 65.

Note. The above syntactical connections, especially those mentioned under 1) and 3), are, however, of no effect when an objective genitive is in question.

Dr. Grantly's proposed visit would have reference to the reappointment of Mr. Harding to the wardenship of Barchester Hospital. TROL., Barch. Tow., Ch. XVII, 133.

He did not feel any peculiar personal interest in the appointment of Dr. Proudie to the bishopric. Ib., Ch. V, 31.

The assassination and burial of the king made a deep impression on the people.

They are sometimes disregarded also when a relation of possession, origin or agency is in question.

The journey of my daughters to town was now resolved upon. GOLDS., Vic. From the time when, as a hostage in France, he first discovered the plan of Philip to plant the Inquisition in the Netherlands [etc.]. MOTLEY, Rise, VI, Ch. VII, 899a.

The last chapters in this volume deal with the relations of Pitt with Catherine of Russia. Westm. Gaz., No. 5607, 10a.

27. The syntactical connections make the prepositional construction

a) unavoidable:

- 1) when the noun in the modifying element is followed by an adjective or participle that has the value of an undeveloped clause. Thus for the hats of the women present, the opinion of the man addressed we could not say the women present's opinion, the man addressed's opinion; nor yet, of course, the women's hats present, the man's opinion addressed.

But there is nothing unusual in the use of the genitive, if the adjective or participle is not felt as an undeveloped clause.

Fitzroy minor's nursery. THACK., A Little Dinner at Timmins's, Ch. VI, 326.

- 2) when the head-word, whether or no modified by an adjective, is preceded by an indefinite article, by a demonstrative, interrogative or indefinite pronoun, or by a numeral; and also when it stands without any modifier beyond an adjective: a (this, which, some, one) friend (old friend) of Dr. Johnson; friends (old friends) of Dr. Johnson. (33, 34.)

b) practically obligatory or, at least, highly preferable:

- 1) when the noun in the modifying element is followed by an adnominal clause, a prepositional adjunct or an apposition.

i. Is my young landlord then the nephew of a man whose virtues are so universally known? GOLDS., Vicar, Ch. III.

Harry played so well that he could beat the parson and soon was the equal of Will, who, of course, could beat both the girls. THACK., Virg., Ch. XVI, 159.

The incapacity of Feversham, who commanded in chief, was notorious. MAC., Hist., II, Ch. V, 173.

ii. The Church of St. Mary of Egypt. LYTTON, Rienzi, II, Ch. V, 189.

iii. Chunda Sahib fell into the hands of the Mahrattas, and was put to death at the instigation probably of his competitor, Mahommed Ali. MAC., Clive, (509a).

- 2) when the modifying element consists of two or more co-ordinate members.

In such a frame of mind he proceeded to pay his respects at the palace the second day after the arrival of the bishop and his chaplain. TROL., Barch. Tow., Ch. V, 31.

Shelley's body was washed ashore on the 19th, and burnt on a pyre in the presence of Byron, Hunt and Trelawney. SAINTSB., Ninet. Cent., Ch. II, 83.

Note. It is hardly necessary to observe that also the genitive is sometimes used in spite of the above connections. 4, a; 4, b, 1. The Gentleman's Name that met him was Mr. Wordly Wiseman. BUNYAN, Pilgr. Progr., (149).

On Thursday Lord Selborne complained of Mr. Lloyd George's and Mr. Churchill's combined invective. Westm. Gaz., No. 5625, 7b.

28. Obs. α) Two or more successive genitives are generally avoided, unless a particular effect, mostly humorous or depreciatory, is intended.

QUEEN. Have you forgot me? — HAML. No, by the rood, not so: | You are the queen, your husband's brother's wife. HAML., III, 4, 15.

What can I do for Dr. Smith's daughter's husband. SWIFT, JOURN. to Stella, LXI.

This is Madam Lucy, my master's mistress's maid. SHER., RIV., I, 1. Scrooge's niece's sisters, and all the other ladies, expressed the same opinion. CHRISTM. CAR.

Captain Boldwig's wife's sister had married a Marquis. PICKW., Ch. XIX.

Whatever is, is right, as the young nobleman sweetly remarked when they put him down in the pension list 'cos his mother's uncle's wife's grandfather vunce lit the king's pipe with a portable tinder-box. PICKW., Ch. LI, 468.

Can you imagine Queen Guinevere's lady's maid's lady's maid being affable to Sir Lancelot. THACK., NEWC., I, Ch. VII, 83.

She snapped her fingers in the Judge's lady's face. Id., VAN. FAIR, Ch. VIII, 82.

But Sam Titmarsh, with a salary of 250 l. . . . was a very different man from Sam the poor clerk, and the poor clergyman's widow's son. Id., SAM. TITM., Ch. VIII, 88.

- β) Instances of two, or even more periphrases with of are common enough.

Passengers are requested to apply to the secretary in case of incivility of any of the servants of the company.

The wife of a clergyman of the Church of England. THACK.¹⁾

"What a condition," said the doctor, "for the son of a clergyman of the Church of England." TROL., BARCH. TOW., Ch. XIX, 149.

Note. No exception is taken to the use of two successive genitives, one individualizing, the other classifying.

Reeves' artists' colours can be obtained at Whiteley's. Advertisement.

29. α) The comparative emphasis of the head-word and the noun in the modifying element, which varies according to the prominence of the ideas they indicate have in the speaker's or writer's mind, may cause either the genitive or the prepositional construction to be the more preferable construction.

- i. "There are so many of the bishop's relatives who always bring their own horses." Dr. Grantly promised that due provision for the relatives' horses should be made. TROL., BARCH. TOW., Ch. V, 35.

He at once saw that open battle against Dr. Grantly and all Dr. Grantly's adherents was a necessity of his position. Id., Ch. VI, 43.

Such is a very inadequate summary of Dr. Rose's treatment of Pitt's Home policy. WESTM. GAZ., No. 5607, 10a.

Thus regularly when the (that or this) + noun replaces a possessive pronoun, even when the reference is to (an) animal(s).

The Major . . . held out hands to Pen, shook the lad's passive fingers gaily and said [etc.] THACK., PEND., Ch. VIII, 91.

¹⁾ JESP., Growth and Struct., § 183.

Thus it was that Laura Bell became Mrs. Pendennis's daughter. Neither her husband, nor that gentleman's brother, the Major, viewed her with very favourable eyes. Ib., Ch. VIII, 90.

With another slight toss and a nod to the postilion, that individual's white leather breeches began to jump up and down in the saddle. THACK., Men's Wives, Ch. II (325).

You might just as well be angry with the turkey-cock for gobbling at you. It's the bird's nature. TROL., Barch. Tow., Ch. XLIII, 384.

Suddenly from a lumpy tussock of old grass . . . started a hare. Sir Geoffrey put his gun to his shoulder, but there was something in the animal's grace of movement that strangely charmed Dorian Gray. OSCAR WILDE, The Pict. of Dor. Gray, Ch. VIII, 259.

But even if he were to admit to you . . . that a snake may possibly be able to swim, he will still treat as the invention of Munchhausen the notion of a snake catching a fish in a fish's own element. HORACE HUTCHINSON, Stranger than Fiction (Westm. Gaz., No. 5631, 2c).

- ii. Running on in this way, Mr. Tupman's new companion adjusted his dress, or rather the dress of Mr. Winkle. PICKW., Ch. II, 13.

And now had I the pen of a mighty poet, would I sing in epic verse the noble wrath of the archdeacon. TROL., Barch. Tow., Ch. V, 37.

Some lineaments of the character of the man were early discerned in the child. MAC., Clive, (498a).

The history of the successors of Theodosius bears no small analogy to that of the successors of Aurungzebe. Ib., (502a).

Both the demeanour of Monmouth and that of Grey, during the journey, filled all observers with surprise. Id., Hist., II, Ch. V, 188.

Those who do not think very highly of the poetry of the pupil do not, as a rule show much greater enthusiasm for that of the master. SAINTSB., Ninet. Cent., Ch. II, 75.

April was not worse, even in imports, than April of last year. Westm. Gaz., No. 5613, 2b.

- b) But the exigencies of emphasis are not always potent enough to change the genitive into the prepositional construction, and sometimes vice versa.

- i. Helen's face looked very pale by the light of the lamp — the Doctor's was flushed. THACK., Pend., I, Ch. VI, 77.

You stand in your mother's presence and call that woman a lady! Ib., I, Ch. VI, 77.

The preacher's immediate object was to preach Mr. Slope's doctrine, and not St. Paul's. TROL., Barch. Tow., Ch. VI, 45.

The features of Mrs. Stanhope's character were even less plainly marked than those of her lord. Ib., Ch. IX, 62.

Our friends found Dr. Proudie sitting on the old bishop's chair. Ib., Ch. V, 32.

- ii. Though he disliked the man, and hated the doctrines, still he was prepared to show respect to the station of the bishop. Ib., 31.

30. Obs. The almost invariable subserviency of the head-word to the proper name in the modifying element entails the prevalence of the prepositional construction:

- a) in giving the title of a writer's compositions or artist's works.

- i. The Poetical Works of S. T. Coleridge.

The Complete Works of Alfred Lord Tennyson.

- ii. Swift's Works (but in the same volume: The Works of Jonathan Swift, D.D., Dean of St. Patrick's Dublin).

When such designations occur in other positions, the genitive is common enough, although its analytical equivalent appears to be the usual one:

- i. This edition of Thackeray's works is complete in seventeen volumes, arranged, as far as possible, in chronological order. The Oxford Thackeray.
- ii. A complete edition of the works of Charles Dickens is now being published... at 6 d. net a volume. Westm. Gaz., No. 5255, 3c.
The hitherto unpublished letters of Henry Fielding ... are of little interest. Ib., No. 5027, 10c.

In the following quotation the prepositional construction is even used in spite of the syntactical connections making the genitive more preferable.

'Its' does not appear in any of the works of Shakspeare published during his life-time. MURRAY, s. v. its.

- β) in speaking of the persons, matters, events etc. connected with sovereigns. MURRAY, s. v. of, XIV.
 - i. The Scotch Parliament proposed the marriage of "the Maid of Norway" with the son of Edward the First. GREEN. 1)
In the reign of George the First this moderate but ancient inheritance was possessed by Mr. Richard Clive. MAC., Clive, (498a).
Throughout the long reign of Aurungzebe the state ... was hastening to dissolution. Ib., (501b).
 - ii. This chapel was fitted up as you see it, in James the Second's time. JANE AUSTEN, Mansfield Park, Ch. IX, 89.
The term (sc. leveller) first arose as the designation of a political party of Charles I's reign. MURRAY, s. v. leveller.

31. The laws of metre or rhythm are responsible for the choice of the construction used in:

- i. All this to season | A brother's dead love, which she would keep fresh | And lasting in her sad remembrance. Twelfth Night, I, 1, 31. (= love for a dead brother.)
June saw his father's overthrow. SCOTT, Marm., IV, xv.
DOGE. Have you long served? — I. BER. So long as to remember Zara's siege. BYRON, Mar. Fal., I, 2 (356b).
From the dark fen the oxen's low | Came to her. TEN., Mariana, II.
But near by is my asses' stall | Who on this night bide in the town. W. MORRIS, Earthly Par., The Man born to be king, 42a.
- ii. The son of Duncan, | From whom this tyrant holds the due of birth, | Lives in the English court. MACB., III, 6, 25.

Note the varied construction in:

And Gareth, a good knight, but therewithal | Sir Mordred's brother, and the child of Lot. TEN., Lanc. and El., 556.

Further Observations.

32. The genitive and the corresponding of-construction sometimes express different ideas. Thus:

1) FOELS.—KOCH, Wis. Gram., § 307.

a) the King's English = standard English, or the English spoken or written by the King; the English of the King = the English spoken or written by the King.

b) the Lord's Day = Sunday (Dutch: de dag des Heeren); the Day of the Lord = the Day of Judgement.

"In the 17th—18th century Lord's day (without the article) was "somewhat widely used (not exclusively among Puritans) as an "ordinary name for Sunday. This use seems to be partially retained "by some Nonconformists, expressions like next Lord's day appearing "occasionally in announcements of services." MURRAY.

Compare with the above also the year of our Lord (= Anno Domini), in which, too, the of-construction is fixed.

c) the horse's master = the owner of the horse; the master of the horse = id., but the Master of the Horse = the officer who has the management of the horses belonging to a sovereign or other exalted personage.

d) Nelson's life = the life led by Nelson; the life of Nelson = a) id., b) the history of Nelson's life.

The first construction is occasionally used in the alternative meaning. This part of Newman's story in Mr. Ward's life is to an Irishman the most interesting. T. P.'s Weekly, No. 491, 417b.

e) the world's end = the uttermost part of the world or globe, the end of the world = the last moment of this world (= French fin du monde).

i. I will go to the world's end with you. CH. KINGSLEY, Hyp., Ch. III, 15a.
I would go with him to the world's end. MURRAY, s. v. end.

ii. What shall be the sign of thy coming, and of the end of the world. Matth., XXIV, 3.

Compare with this the farthest (uttermost) ends of the world, in which the prepositional construction seems to be fixed.

We should see straggling huts built of wood and covered with thatch, where we now see manufacturing towns and seaports renowned to the farthest ends of the world. MAC., Hist., I, Ch. III, 277.

The Catholic Church is still sending forth to the farthest ends of the world missionaries as zealous as those who landed in Kent with Augustin. Id., Popes, (542a).

33. Sometimes the meaning of the preposition of is expressed over again by the genitive inflection of the following noun. This genitive may then be called pleonastic. (SWEET, N. E. Gr., § 201.)

The idiom is most common when a relation of possession is indicated, but is by no means confined to this, being often extended to that of origin and agency, in fact to all those numerous shades of notions which are felt as modifications of that of possession.

The pleonastic genitive is natural to the genius of the language when the noun modified by it is preceded by the indefinite article, a demonstrative, interrogative or indefinite pronoun, or by a numeral; and also when it stands without any preceding modifier beyond an adjective:

A (this, which, some, one) book (fine, large, etc. book) of my brother's;

Books (fine, large, etc. books) of my brother's, wine (excellent, inferior, etc. wine) of my brother's.

Compare Ch. XXXIII, 23, and see also BEEKMAN, E. S., VIII, and FIJN VAN DRAAT, De Drie Talen, XIV.

a) relation of possession.

- i. He had a scoundrel dog, whom he taught to whine in the most ludicrous manner, and introduced as a rival of Ichabod's to instruct her in psalmody. WASH. IRV., Sketch-Bk., XXXII, 357.

He became a friend of Mr. Wilberforce's. VAN FAIR, I, Ch. IX, 88.

Mrs. Lambert had been an early friend of his mother's. THACK., VIRG., Ch. XXII, 225.

At last, one day in early May, a letter reached her from a former friend of her mother's. HARDY, TESS., II, Ch. XV, 126.

- ii. Stubble and Spooney and the rest indulged in most romantic conjectures regarding this female correspondent of Osborne's. VAN FAIR, I, Ch. XIII, 123.

- iii. Which house of your neighbour's was burnt down last night?

- iv. There's no general of Boney's fit to hold a candle to Wittgenstein. VAN FAIR, I, Ch. XXVIII, 295.

- v. BAKER. I shall want another hapenny. Bread's gone up to-day. BOY. Then give me one of yesterday's. PUNCH.

- vi. Some stormy words passed, which ended in the retirement of several of the board. Friends of Mr. B's filled up their places. THACK., SAM. TITM., Ch. X, 121.

Almost all of them, probably, [were] blood relations of Hereward's, or of King Harold's, or of each other. CH. KINGSLEY, Hereward, Ch. XXIII, 97b. (Note the absence of inflection in each other.)

The shouting and yelling which had gained the camp its infelicitous title, were not permitted within hearing distance of Stumpy's. BRET HARTE, The Luck of Roaring Camp, 13.

b) relation of origin or agency:

- i. He had a penny too — a gift of Sowerberry's after some funeral in which he had acquitted himself more than ordinarily well. DICK., OL. TWIST, Ch. VIII, 72.

The insinuating Major had actually got a letter of Miss Rouncey's in his own pocket-book. THACK., PEND., Ch. X, 111.

This is a picture of Turner's. MEIKLEJOHN, The Eng. Lang., 67.

A play of Ibsen's. PUNCH.

- ii. Miss Pole drew herself up at this remark of Lady Glenmire's. MRS. GASK., CRANF., Ch. XI, 207.

Her trouble was the result of that intolerable threat of her father's. MRS. WARD, Marcella, III, 215.

After that really beautiful speech of your wife's. LYTON, Caxtons, XI, Ch. VII, 298.

These questions of Smithers's had a good deal to do with the subsequent events narrated in this little history. THACK., SAM. TITM., Ch. IX, 108.

- iii. Which novel of Dickens's is your favourite?

- iv. To execute any caprice or order of her patient's was her chiefest joy and reward. THACK., PEND., II, Ch. XVI, 164.

It was no fault of the doctors. WASH. IRV., Dolf Heyliger. (STOF., Handl. I, 109.)

- v. After one or two attempts of the lad's. THACK., Pend., I, Ch. XIII, 137.
We are promised 200 letters of Lamb's, that have not been included in the most complete editions ever issued. Lit. World.
Knowing it to be Carver's dwelling (or at least suspecting so from some words of Lorna's), I was led by curiosity to have a closer look at it. BLACKMORE, Lorna Doone, Ch. XXXVI, 216.
- iv. It's all nonsense of Crowdie's. MRS. CRAWF., Kath. Laud., II, Ch. V, 96.

34. Obs. I. Occasionally we meet instances of the pleonastic genitive standing after a noun that is preceded by the definite article.

Since the youth of the count's was to-day with my lady, she is much out of quiet. Twelfth Night, II, 3, 143.

In the golden days of Christ's the young Hospitaliers were wont to have smoking joints of roast meat upon their nightly boards. CH. LAMB, Grace before Meat (PEACOCK, Sel. Ess., 192).

The Sermon on Gunpowder Treason is the earliest composition of Taylor's which we possess. EDM. GOSSE, Jeremy Taylor, Ch. I, 19.
The battered school-book of Tom's, which she held on her knees, could give her no fortitude. G. ELIOT, Mill, IV, Ch. III, 256.

The earliest letters of Gray's which have been preserved are addressed to him there. Life and Poems of Gray (Clarendon Press).
A consideration which is in the spirit of Shelley's. BRADLEY, Oxford Lectures, 171 (Macm.).

Efforts recently made to assign the embarrassments of Shakespeare's to another John Shakespeare of Stratford deserve little attention. SIDNEY LEE¹).

II. The construction is rare and improper after that or those used as determinatives.

And for his government civil, though he did not attain to that of Trajan's. BACON, Advancement of Learning, I, 7, § 6²).

III. The noun modified is sometimes divided from the modifying word-group by other elements of the sentence.

I am much obliged to you for having sent me a copy of the letter you have of my grandmother's. Truth, No. 1801, 22a.

IV. An obvious explanation of the pleonastic genitive is to assume that a noun is understood after the genitive. But to this explanation there are two weighty objections: a) that such a noun is never used now, and has never been used; b) that the idiom is also used when it is impossible to think of one or more things out of a collection of like things, as in the following quotations:

That Paradise Lost of Milton's. EARLE, Phil., § 572.

That gun of Tupman's is not safe. PICKW., Ch. XIX, 164.

When any partitive notion is absent, the construction is, however, possible only after a demonstrative pronoun. Observe that the demonstrative is in this case more or less depreciative. (Ch. XXXVI, 2).

¹) GÜNTHER, Synonyms, § 48. — ²) Note to Hamlet I, 5, 52 (Clar. Press).

It is probable that the idiom arose from the practice, long since obsolete, of placing the genitive after the noun modified. In the expressions in which it survived of was gradually interpolated for clearness. So it would appear that the idiom is an instance of grammatical cumulation, so frequent in English. The term pleonastic genitive used by SWEET (N. E. Gr., § 2010) seems, therefore, to be peculiarly appropriate. See also JESPERSEN, Growth and Struct., § 184 and MURRAY, s. v. of, 44.

There can be no doubt, however, that of when followed by a genitive is mostly understood in a partitive sense. But this partitive sense is more or less vague. Thus such a phrase as two friends of my brother's does not necessarily imply that the number of friends is larger than two, a notion which would be expressed by two of my brother's friends. On the other hand it does not limit the number of friends to two, as is done by my brother's two friends.

- V. The partitive meaning which more or less attaches to the idiom, often causes the common case to be preferred when any such notion is foreign to the speaker's or writer's intention.

a) relation of possession.

- i. The note . . informed Mr. Esmond Warrington that his relatives at Castlewood, and among them a dear friend of his grandfather, were most anxious that he should come to 'Colonel Esmond's house in England'. THACK., Virg., Ch. II, 24.
His wife's father was a great friend of good Bishop Ken. ib., Ch. XXII, 224.
He was a close friend of Ernest Jones. ANNIE BESANT, Autobiography, 72.
The Circumlocution Office, in course of time, took up the business, as if it were a bran-new thing of yesterday. DICK., Little Dorrit, Ch. X, 62a.
- ii. As for Mrs. Kirk: that disciple of Dr. Ramshorn put one or two leading professional questions to Amelia. Van. Fair, I, Ch. XXVII, 289.
In that affair of Mr. Slope, had not all the world conspired against her? TROL., Barch. Tow., Ch. XLVIII, 427. (Compare: Could not this affair of Mr. Slope's be turned to advantage? ib., Ch. XLI, 364.)
- iii. By him also it was recognised as a binding law that every whim of his sister was to be respected. ib., Barch. Tow., Ch. XXXV, 311.
- iv. No less than three pupils of her father had trifled with those young affections. THACK., Pend., I, Ch. VIII, 87.
- v. Both of these Jewish gents, who were connexions of Mr. Abednego, were insured in our office. THACK., Sam. Titm., Ch. X, 127.
She had no other relations than two aunts, maiden sisters of Mr. Spenlow. DICK., Cop., Ch. XXXVIII, 278b.
His friends were old friends of Madame Svengali. DU MAURIER, Trilby, II, Ch. VII, 176.

b) relation of origin or agency.

- i. A play of Shakespeare. BAIN, H. E. Gr., 83.
A symphony of Beethoven; a play of Shakespeare. MAS., Eng. Gram., § 118.
A young lady was reading to him a play of Shakespeare. THACK., Pend., I, Ch. XV, 161.
- ii. This letter of the Parisian great lady did not by any means advance Mrs. Becky's interest with her admirable, her respectable, relative. Van. Fair, I, Ch. XXXIV, 380.
The publication of such books as this of Mr. Landon is of far-reaching import to the public. Academy.
How could I tell Mary of this behaviour of Mrs. Hoggarty. THACK., Sam. Titm., Ch. X, 126.

iii. The reviewer makes merry over certain remarks of Mr. Tylor. LIT. World.

iv. The Lamberts were not squeamish: and laughed over pages of Mr. Fielding, and cried over volumes of Mr. Richardson. THACK., Virg., Ch. XXIII, 240.

In the following quotations of is ambiguous:

Anecdotes of Byron formed his staple. THACK., Pend., I, Ch. XXXIV, 361. I had hoped to gather some traditional anecdotes of the bard from these ancient chroniclers. WASH. IRV., Sketch-Bk., XXVI, 261.

VI. When the head-word is such a noun as portrait, effigy etc., denoting a representation of the person mentioned in the modifying element, the pleonastic construction is never used.

Just over the grave, in a niche in the wall, is a bust of Shakespeare. WASH. IRV., Sketch-Bk., XXVI, 263.

Perhaps you may be interested, Mr. Jarndyce, . . . in this portrait of Captain Swosser. DICK., Bleak House, Ch. XIII, 107.

"Then you mean to give up your profession," said she. — "No, I dont," said he, going on with some absurd portrait of the bishop. TROL., Barch. Tow., Ch. XV, 117.

VII. Sometimes the construction of the sentence makes the pleonastic genitive impracticable or impossible. This is the case:

a) when the head-word is accompanied by an apposition.

Here's a sad affair of our friend Lady Teazle. SHER., School for Scand., V, 2, (425).

He was a friend of his Royal Highness, the Duke of Kent. THACK., Pend., I, Ch. VI, 78.

In Miss Jemima's eyes an autograph letter of her sister, Miss Pinkerton, was an object of as deep veneration as would have been a letter from a sovereign. Id., Van. Fair, I, Ch. I, 2.

Do you mean that a grandson of Henry Esmond, the master of this house, has been here, and none of you have offered him hospitality. Id., Virg., Ch. II, 21.

I believe you are a particular friend of Pickwick, the defendant, are not you? Pickw., Ch. XXXIV, 313. (Compare: Are you, or are you not, a particular friend of the defendant's? Ib.)

This neighbour was a secret kinsman of his dear friend, W. Ladislav. LOCKHARDT, Scott!).

b) When the head-word is modified by a genitive.

He went off with Lord C. an intimate friend of my lady's husband. FERGUS HUME, The Piccadilly Puzzle!).

c) When the element modified is compound.

He was a contemporary of Coleridge and Lamb and Hazlitt. J. H. LOBBAN, Selections from Leigh Hunt, Introd.

The common case is decidedly the rule also when the noun standing after of is a collective noun.

MAR. What are you, and what may your business in this house be? — MISS HARD. A relation of the family. GOLDSMITH, She stoops to conquer, IV, (212).

The friend at whose house we shall sup to-night, hath a son, who is an old friend of our family. THACK., Virg., Ch. XXIV, 245.

VIII. The partitive meaning that attaches to of, may also be responsible for the preference given to other constructions, when any such notion is foreign to the speaker's intentions:

a) The most interesting of these is that with the preposition with instead of of, which is apparently the rule after certain nouns, such as:

favourite. i. I was a favourite with all the servants. DE QUINCEY, Conf., 90.

They were great favourites with her ladyship. TROL., Framl. Pars., Ch. II, 11.

He had been a favourite with three successive generations of the royal house. MAC., Pitt, (292a).

Winnie was a great favourite with the people there. TH. WATTS DUNTON, Aylwin, XVII, 476.

Miss Dorothy Drew . . . was, as a child, a great favourite with her grandfather. Il. Lond. News, No. 3704, 560.

ii. (He) was a prodigious favourite of the Chief himself. THACK., Virg., Ch. XCII, 982.

Scorn and cynicism would be my only opium; unless I could fall into some kind of madness, and fancy myself a favourite of Heaven because I am not a favourite with men. G. ELIOT, Mill, VI, Ch. VII, 383. (Note the varied practice.)

iii. Bunce . . . had long been a favourite of Mr. Harding's. TROL., Barch. Tow., Ch. VIII, 57.

Also the adjective favourite sometimes causes with to be used instead of of:

Julia was — yet I never could see why — With Donna Inez quite a favourite friend. BYRON, Don Juan, I, LXVI.

Hume's Essays were a favourite book with Shelley. HOGG, Life of Shelley, I, 110.

The character of Steele has been a favourite one with recent biographers. GOSSE, Eighteenth Cent. Lit., 194.

habit. i. It was a habit with Scrooge . . . to put his hands in his breeches' pockets. CHRISTM. CAR.

It seems to have become a habit with the German Press . . . to vent feelings of that kind in denunciations of England. Times, No. 1820, 923d.

ii. Now if there's a habit of the populace which I cannot endure, it's the barbarous practice of misplacing the aspirate. GRANT ALLEN, That Friend of Sylvia's.

After the same noun also to is occasionally found: Obedience was now a habit to her. MAX PEMB., Doctor Xavier, Ch. IX, 49a.

passion. It appeared to have become a perfect passion with Mrs. Flintwinch, that the only son should be pitted against him. DICK., Little Dorrit, Ch. V, 28a.

principle. It was a principle with Mr. Bulstrode to [etc.]. G. ELIOT, Mid. sore point. The going to school to a clergyman was a sore point with Tom. G. ELIOT, Mill, I, Ch. IX.

Note also: True sentiment is twin with melancholy, though not with gloom. LYTTON, Rienzi, III, Ch. III, 114.

After the above nouns with may appear also when the definite article precedes.

I always knew that Harry was the favourite son with Madam Esmond. THACK., Virg., Ch. LIV, 559.

b) Other approximate equivalents of the pleonastic genitive may be seen in the constructions used in the following quotations:

i. These locks of hair belonged to a baker's dozen of sisters that the old gentleman had. THACK., Sam. Titm., Ch. I, 2.

ii. A look of surprise and displeasure on the nobleman's part recalled him to better sentiments. Id., Virg., Ch. XV, 153.

Very few people do like strangers to whom they are presented with an outrageous flourish of praises on the part of the introducer. Ib., Ch. XXI, 221. Harry never could relish this condescension on his brother's part. Ib., Ch. LXI, 634.

This considerateness on old Mr. Clare's part led Angel onward to the other and dearer subject. HARDY, Tess, IV, Ch. XXVI, 211.

Resolution. A formal decision etc. on the part of a deliberative assembly or other meeting. MURRAY.

iii. Deceit is, indeed, a sad fault in a child. Jane Eyre, Ch. IV, 35.

35. Besides of there are several other prepositions which may take upon them certain of the functions of the genitive.

a) At, for, to and towards appear to a certain extent as substitutes for an objective genitive after such nouns as dislike, hate, liking, love, which correspond to transitive verbs, but are often constructed with these prepositions through the influence of synonymous words. Ch. XIX, 49, Obs. III.

b) By, as a genitive equivalent, is used only to express a relation of origin or agency. It is especially frequent:

1) when the head-word is also accompanied by an objective genitive or analogous possessive pronoun, or by a phrase with the preposition of representing an objective genitive. See also JESPERSEN, Growth and Structure, § 182.

His friend's assassination by the treacherous Arabs roused his bitter resentment.

His rejection by the widow . . . galled him terribly. TROL., Barch. Tow., Ch. XLIII, 391.

All that the deputation could do was to register a protest in the hearing of the civilized world against the treatment of their country by Japan. Rev. of Rev., CCXII, 115a. (Compare: All the town was indignant at my lord Duke's unjust treatment of General Webb. THACK., Henry Esmond, II, Ch. XV, 287.)

This leads to an able vindication by Dr. Rose of Pitt's fame as a War Minister. Westm. Gaz., No. 5607, 10a.

2) when the head-word is preceded by any of the modifiers mentioned in 27, a, 2 and 33, or is not preceded by any modifier at all beyond an adjective.

We have heard that, about this time, a tragedy by Madame d'Arblay was performed without success. MAC., Mad. d'Arblay, (724a).

From a speech by Mr. Gladstone. LLOYD, North. Eng., 78. (Compare: The sensation of the week has undoubtedly been Mr. Roosevelt's speech at the Guildhall on Tuesday. Westm. Gaz., No. 5323, 1b.)

Also when the definite article precedes, by is sometimes used.

Another strange feature of Wednesday's debate was the speech by the Archbishop of Canterbury. Westm. Gaz., No. 5625, 7b.

- c) The application of from as a substitute for the genitive is also confined to the relations of origin or agency. It seems to be used only when the head-word is preceded by any of the modifiers mentioned in 27, a, 2 and 33, or has no modifier beyond an adjective. In some cases it varies with by.

Nathaniel Pipkin could have sworn he heard the sound of a kiss, followed by a faint remonstrance from Maria Lobbs. PICKW., Ch. XVII, 153.

Everything was made secure against an attack from the enemy. BUCHANAN, That Winter Night, Ch. V, 46.

The landlord had to listen to a long speech from the duke. STOF., Handl., I.

Despite bullying from big boys and masters, Tennyson would "shout his verses to the skies." ANDREW LANG, Ten., Ch. I, 6.

The French flagship "Massena" moored by men from Nelson's old flagship. Rev. of Rev., CLXXXIX, 227.

A visit from your Majesty. IL. LOND. NEWS.

The debate on the second reading of that measure on Tuesday was initiated by a motion for its rejection from Mr. Wyndham. WESTM. GAZ.

Observe the alternate use of of and from in:

In Miss Jemima's eyes an autograph letter of her sister, Miss Pinkerton, was an object of as deep veneration as would have been a letter from a sovereign. VAN. FAIR, I, Ch. I, 2.

- d) In may to a certain extent be understood as a substitute for a genitive in such adnominal adjuncts as in the world, in the kingdom, in the town etc.

He was pronounced by all the neighbourhood the wickedest dog in the street. WASH. IRV., Dolf Heyl. (STOF., Handl., I, 104).

When thus gentle, Bessie seemed to me to be the best, prettiest, kindest being in the world. JANE EYRE, Ch. IV, 29.

Her reply was, that, if he did not keep his promise, she would carry his letters into every court in the kingdom. THACK., Pend. I, Ch. VIII, 89.

The ædile... was celebrated through Pompeii for having the worst paintings in the world. LYTTON, Last Days of Pomp., I, Ch. III, 15b.

Mr. Balfour went over the old ground of argument against the Veto Bill... as if it was the most normal thing in the world that after the jury had pronounced for the one, judgment should be entered for the other. WESTM. GAZ., No. 5613, 1c.

Compare with the above the following quotations with the less usual of:

She already saw Dolf, in her mind's eye... one of the established dignitaries of the town. WASH. IRV., Dolf Heyl. (STOF., Handl., I, 105).

In my blood she venerates the eldest dynasties of earth. LYTTON, Last Days of Pomp., I, Ch. IV, 22b. (In this quotation the alternative preposition would be on.)

In size it (sc. St. Paul's) is fifth among Christian churches of the world. IL. LOND. NEWS, No. 3778, 441.

36. To is also a kind of substitute for the genitive in other connections than that mentioned in 35, a. In literary language we frequently find it after nouns which express how one person (or a number of persons) is (are) related or disposed to another person (or number of persons), or to a thing (or a number of things); i. e. after such nouns as brother, sister, etc.; apprentice, secretary, servant, etc.; prey, slave, victim, etc.; enemy, friend, etc.

In the majority of cases the head-word, when in the singular, is not preceded by any modifier, or by either the indefinite article or no. Such nouns as would have the indefinite article in the singular, of course throw it off in the plural.

i. * The wish is father to the thought. Proverb.

He was son and heir to Sir Anth. Absolute. SHER., Rivals.

The boy had been apprentice to a famous German doctor. WASH. IRV., Dolf Heyl., (STOF., Handl., I, 105).

My young friend, I make no doubt is heir to two thousand pounds a year. THACK., Pend., Ch. XI, 108.

He was . . . Physician to Queen Charlotte. lb., I, Ch. X, 108.

It occurred to him that Mrs. Bold was sister-in-law to the archdeacon. TROL., Barch. Tow., Ch. XV, 114.

He had at length been placed in a post which partook of both characters (sc. military and commercial), that of commissary to the troops, with the rank of captain. MAC., Clive, (505b).

He is cousin to the Loftus boys. Mrs. WOOD, Orville College, Ch. II, 23.

He is brother to the second senior of the school. lb.

She was sister to Mrs. Jones and the widow of a baronet. Pref. Mem. of W. COOPER. (Chandos Clas.)

She was daughter to a City tradesman. WALT. BES., St. Kath., Ch. II.

He was declared heir presumptive to the Danish throne. Times.

He was secretary to Mr. A. MASON, Eng. Gram.³⁴, § 15, N.

The German Emperor is brother-in-law to the Crown Prince of Greece. Spectator (Westm. Gaz., No. 5149, 20c).

The wish was no doubt father to the thought. Westm. Gaz., No. 5561, 5b.

 Romeo, son to Montague. Paris, a young nobleman, kinsman to the Prince. Romeo and Jul.

Lady Magdalen Dacres } Ladies in Waiting to the Queen. TEN., Queen Mary.
Alice }

ii. * Not that I am an enemy to love. SHER., Duenna, I, 1 (310).

He was a great friend to Indians and to an Indian mode of life. WASH. IRV., Dolf Heyl., (STOF., Handl., I, 132).

Her husband had fallen a victim to his zeal for the public safety. lb., 102.

She was a martyr to a curious disorder, called the "spazzums." DICK., Cop., Ch. XXVI.

Upon my word and honour, as a gentleman and an executor to my brother's will too, he left little more than five hundred a year behind him. THACK., Pend., I, Ch. XI, 118.

He was a distant relative to both of these persons. MAR. CRAWF., Kath. Laud., I, Ch. I, 8.

If ever a man was an abject slave to a woman, I was. Titbits, 1895, 389a.

They fell a prey to the angry waves. H. FYFE, Triumphs of Invention, 13¹).

Dr. Rose has not fallen a prey to the wiles of the Sinking Fund. West. Gaz., No. 3607, 10a.

In one respect he may prove a worthy successor to Mr. Chamberlain. Times, No. 1820, 923a.

 Most of the Southron chiefs were friends to the authority of the Queen. SCOTT, Abbot, Ch. I, 10.

 Then you're no friend to the ladies. GOLDSMITH, She stoops to conquer, II (194).

For my part I am no enemy to harmless ornaments. THACK., Sam. Titm., Ch. VII, 79.

37. Obs. I. It is not often that to is placed after any of the above nouns when preceded by the definite article, unless the meaning of the noun distinctly suggests this preposition, as in the case of such words as successor, heir, which are suggestive of to succeed to, or slave which suggests subject to.

Purpose is but the slave to memory. HAMIL., III, 2, 200.

Matilda, though of the royal Saxon blood, was not the heir to the monarchy. SCOTT, Ivanhoe, Ch. XLII, 448.

Miss Beaufort is now the heiress to an ancient name and fortune. LYTTON, Night and Morn., 481.

At fifteen he was the confidential counsellor, as at twenty-one he became the general-in-chief to the most politic, as well as the most warlike, potentate of his age. MOTLEY, Rise, VI, Ch. VII, 902b.

We not only find that science is the handmaid to all forms of art and poetry, but that, rightly considered, science is itself poetic. SPENCER, Education, Ch. I, 35b.

A Little Englander is the most dangerous enemy to his country. Times, No. 1881, 81c.

- II. As to the nouns which express a relation (36), the idiom is at all common only:

- a) when they are in the function of nominal part of the predicate or predicative adnominal adjunct. In this position it is freely used only when the relation is one of kinship: when the relation is one of a different description, it is of limited application. Thus we could hardly say: He is owner to the mill, commander to the squadron, overseer to the work.

Conversely it appears to be regular in such designations as physician to the Queen, purveyor to the Prince of Wales, hatter to the Duke of Cornwall, etc.

The following quotations may show that of may be used after the above nouns, even although they stand without the article:

- i. I was told you were nephew of Lady Drum. THACK., Sam. Titm., Ch. VII, 84.

He was son of Uther and Ygerne. G. C. MACAULAY, Note to Tennyson's Guinevere, 10.

He was an old school-fellow of his, and son of a merchant in that town. CH. KINGSLEY, Westw. Ho!, Ch. XVI, 131a.

Robert, the first marquis of Westminster, was son of the first Earl Grosvenor. Harmsworth Encycl., s. v. Westminster.

- ii. Little Buttons bounced up to his mistress, said he was butler of the family. THACK., A Little Dinner at Timmins's, Ch. VI, 327.

When the boys' grandfather died, their mother . . . proclaimed her eldest son George her successor, and heir of the estate. Id., Virg., Ch. III, 30.

- b) when they stand as part of a nominal clause modifying a proper name. Here we meet to especially in descriptions of the dramatis personæ of a play, varying with of. Compare the last of the first group of quotations given in 36 with the following:

Oliver }
Jaques } sons of Sir Rowland de Boys. As you like it.
Orlando }

Geoffrey, son of Rosamund and Henry. TEN., Becket.

Camma, wife of Sinnatus. Id., The Cup.

Except for descriptions of the dramatis personæ of a play the use of to in appositions or in nominal clauses (Ch. XXI) modifying proper names, would appear to be rare.

Colonel F. W. Rhodes, brother of Mr. Cecil Rhodes, was wounded. Times.
The elder was Mrs. Benjamin Slayback, wife of the well-known member of Congress. MAR. CRAWF., Kath. Laud., I, Ch. I, 7.

Mrs. Thackeray Ritchie, daughter of Thackeray. ROWE and WEBB, Intr. to Ten. Id. of the King.

Further evidence of the variable practice regarding the use of to or of after relation-expressing words, also in connection with the use of the articles, is afforded by the following quotations:

heir. The Heir Apparent to the British Throne was present to do honour to the memory of his friend. Times.

Mr. Harry Esmond Warrington was the heir of immense wealth. THACK., Virg., Ch. XVI, 168.

Nothing more than a nominal dignity was left to the abject heirs of an illustrious name. MAC., Clive, (502a).

victim. It fell a victim to an infantile disorder. The English Newspaper Reader, 25¹).

He (sc. Lord Rosebery) is a victim of insomnia. Daily News.

Shortly after this he became the victim of a passionate attachment to a young lady. ARTHUR C. DOWNER, The Personal Hist. of John Keats, 3.

- III. As to the nouns expressing a disposition (36), the use of to as compared with of depends on the particular shade of meaning expressed by them. When it is rather the disposition than the individual that is meant, to is used, and vice versa. In the former case the noun is mostly preceded by a(n) or no, and is practically equivalent to an adjective. Thus He was a friend to Indians does not materially differ from He was friendly to Indians, any more than I am no enemy to harmless amusements from I am not inimical to harmless amusements. In the latter case the noun takes another modifier than either a(n) or no. We subjoin some further quotations for comparison.

- i. So mak'st thou faith an enemy to faith. King John, III, 1, 263.

He was an enemy to himself in spending his estate. HOWELL, St. Trials, V, 359²).

Some evil genius, enemy to mankind, must have been the first contriver. SWIFT, Gul., II, vii²).

The Minister who was no friend to the young nobleman. SHAFT., Advice to Author, 143²).

- ii. Vice, the Enemy of Religion, is at the same time the Enemy of Humane Society. PENN, Addr. Prot., I, viii, 31²).

The true judge . . . ought to be the enemy of all pandering to the pleasure of the spectators. JOWETT, Plato², V, 229²).

IV. The following quotation is a remarkable instance of divided practice:

I am the son of Marcus Cato, ho! | A foe to tyrants, and my country's friend. JUL. CÆS., 5, 4, 5.

38. In order to express emphatically that the relation of possession, origin or agency is assigned to a particular person, animal or thing (or number of persons, animals or things), the English language uses the adjective own.

Mr. Harding . . . thought the old reddish brown much preferable to the gaudy buff-coloured trumpery moreen which Mrs. Proudie had deemed good enough for her husband's own room. TROL., Barch. Tow., Ch. V, 32.

We cannot do better than quote Dickens's own words. FORSTER, *Life of Dick.*¹⁾

39. Obs. I. Own is especially used after a genitive, as in the above quotations, or after a possessive pronoun (Ch. XXXIII, 18, 19), but before names of kinship it is occasionally met with also after the (in)definite article or without any modifier preceding. Such a name of kinship is then usually followed by to, especially when it modifies a proper name.

- i. "The own maid" had not been able to divine the exact truth. TROL., Barch. Tow., Ch. XXXII, 282.

The horses are all right; there's the own brother to the one that brought you here. ANTH. HOPE, Pris. of Zenda, 39.

- ii. Decimus Brady, of Ballybrady, married an own cousin of aunt Towzer's mother. THACK., Sam. Titm., Ch. III, 33.

Mrs. Waule's mind was entirely flooded with the sense of being an own sister and getting little. G. ELIOT, Mid., IV, Ch. XXXV, 248.

- iii. He married Scully, own cousin to Lord Poldoody. VAN. FAIR, I, Ch. XXVII, 288.

- II. Own sometimes has a meaning which is usually expressed by the adverb even. For further information about secondary shades of meaning that may be expressed by own, see Ch. XXXIII, 19.

The Tory women crowded round her with congratulations, and made her a train greater than the Duchess of Marlborough's own. THACK., Henry Esme., II, Ch. XV, 287.

Her eyes were grey; her mouth rather large; her teeth as regular and bright as Lady Kew's own. Id., New c., I, Ch. XXIV, 281.

I would not have taken the Lord Mayor's own daughter in place of Mary with a plum to her fortune. Id., Sam. Titm., Ch. VIII, 87.

- III. An occasional variant of own, now only used archaically, and often used together with it, is proper. For fuller illustration see Ch. XXXIII, 20.

It is further agreed between them, that the duchies of Anjou and Maine shall be released and delivered over to the king her father, and she sent over of the King of England's own proper cost and charges, without having any dowry. HENRY VI, B, I, 1, 61.

- IV. Own in the secondary meaning of peculiar or special is sometimes used together with either of these adjectives.

King Edward's own special gift was that he brought to bear upon the task of the Sovereign all the kindly human gifts with which nature had endowed him. Westm. Gaz., No. 5311, 1b.

¹⁾ SATTLER, E. S., II, 7.

CLASSIFYING GENITIVE.

40. a) Besides representing a class of persons, animals or things as the owners, originators or performers of what is expressed by the noun modified, we find the classifying genitive indicating certain ideas which are suggested by the modifying noun. These ideas are mostly qualities, sometimes adverbial relations. Thus in a fool's errand the genitive is connotative of a quality, in an evening's repast of an adverbial relation.

b) Sometimes there is an adjective of approximately the same meaning. Compare the following groups of quotations:

boy's-boyish. i. I have still serv'd Afrasiab well, and shown, | At my boy's years, the courage of a man. MATTHEW ARNOLD, Sohrab and Rustum, 45.

ii. In my boyish days. DE QUINCEY, Conf., Ch. II, 11.

In my infant and boyish days. BURNS, Letter to Dr. Moore, 51.

moment's-momentary. i. If the bright moment of promising is sincere in its moment's extravagant goodness. BROWNING, A Soul's Tragedy, II, (32).

ii. Frithiof must have taken it in a momentary aberration. EDNA LYALL, A Hardy Norseman, Ch. XXVIII, 244.

sheep's-sheepish. i. What a plague business had he making sheep's eyes at his daughter? CH. KINGSLEY, Westw. Ho!, Ch. II 20b.

ii. His boy's face gave him quite a sheepish look. DICK., Cop., Ch. III, 15a.

Especial mention may here be made of adjectives in y as equivalents of classifying genitives.

He was busied in doing this friendly office for me. SMOL., Rod. Rand., Ch. XXIV, 175.

He kissed her with a sisterly warmth. THACK., Pend., I, Ch. XXIV, 257.

He made me another of his soldierly bows. DICK., Bleak House, Ch. XXIV, 211.

c) It deserves notice that the classifying genitive, like the uninflected attributive noun (Ch. XXIII, 4, Obs. I), is a peculiarly English idiom. In Dutch, indeed, a noun in the classifying genitive is frequent enough, but only as part of a compound, not as an independent word. Nor is the mark of the genitive distinctly felt as a case-suffix, but rather as a link-sound inserted for euphony: timmermansgereedschap, zusters-kind, kindskind, levensbericht. The vagueness of the suffix accounts for the inconsistency with which it is applied in Dutch. Thus we find it only exceptionally in equivalents of the English classifying genitive, as is shown by the instances given in these §§.

In not a few cases, however, a noun in the classifying genitive is felt as part of a compound also in English, which causes it to be used conjunctively with the noun modified, or joined on to it by a hyphen. Instances are given below 44, Obs. I.

- d) Like the common-case form (Ch. XXIII, 4, Obs. 3), the genitive of a noun, when classifying in function, is to be considered as a kind of makeshift, put into requisition because a fitting adjective expressing the meaning intended, is not available.

But the logicians of St. James and Versailles wisely chose to consider the matter in dispute as a European and not a Red-man's question. THACK., Virg., Ch. VI, 63.

41. When a quality is expressed, the modifying noun and the noun modified are related in various ways, which are, chiefly of the following description:

- a) The noun modified denotes a part of, or something belonging to, what is expressed by the modifying noun.

cat. He is but a cat's paw and we are the cats themselves. CH. KINGSLEY, Westw. Ho!, Ch. V, 54b. (Observe also: cat's eye (a kind of precious stone), cat's meat (flesh of horses, etc. prepared and sold by street dealers as food for domestic cats), etc.)

girl. A girl's voice sang a strange wild melody. MAR. CORELLI, Sor. of Sat., Ch. XXXIX, 235.

fish, lizard, serpent. "A stranger animal," cried one, | Sure never lived beneath the sun: | A lizard's body lean and long, | A fish's head, a serpent's tongue. REV. JOHN MERRICK, The Cameleon.

peacock. She was fanned with peacock's feathers. CH. KINGSLEY, Hyp., Ch. III, 13b.

sheep. Wolves in sheep's clothing. THACK., New c., I, Ch. I, 5.

sow. You cannot make a silk purse out of a sow's ear. DICK., Cop., Ch. XXX, 219a.

virgin. Atalanta, daughter of King Schœneus, not willing to lose her virgin's estate, made it a law to all suitors that they should run a race with her in the public place, and if they failed to overcome her, should die unrevenge. W. MORRIS, Earthly Paradise, Atalanta's Race, Argument.

whale. She was like a whale's tooth for whiteness. CH. KINGSLEY, Westw. Ho!, Ch. VII, 57b.

- b) The modifying noun denotes the person, animal (or thing) of which the quality assigned to what is expressed by the noun modified, is characteristic. Thus slowness is characteristic of a snail, and a slow pace may, therefore, be aptly described as a snail's pace. In using such a collocation as a girl's voice we may, or may not, think of the quality (of weakness) by which the voices of girls are mostly characterized. In the former case the genitive would have to be classed among those mentioned here, in the latter case among those mentioned under a).

boy. He was now a huge, strong fellow of six feet high . . . , but with a simpering boy's face and curlish hair that gave him quite a sheepish look. DICK., Cop., Ch. III, 15a.

child. To talk of burning IOU's was child's play. Van. Fair, II, Ch. I, 5.

That is child's talk. RUDY. KIPL., Wee Willie Winkie.

How that woman can keep her child's heart and child's faith in a world like this, is more than I can understand. MAR. CORELLI, Sor. of Sat., II, Ch. XXVII, 68.

conqueror. I stood awhile on the rug, where Mr. Brocklehurst had stood, and I enjoyed my conqueror's solitude. Jane Eyre, Ch. VII, 39.

courtier. My dear young gentleman there's no need of so many courtiers' words. CH. KINGSLEY, Westw. Hol., Ch. V, 42a.

coward. On one of these many coward's errands, Mr. Holt had come to my lord at Castlewood. THACK., Henry Esme., II, Ch. IV, 183.

deuce. I shall have the deuce's own trouble in getting him home. Id., Pend., II, Ch. XXIX, 323.

devil. Oh Robert Beaufort — could your heart but feel what devil's trick your wealth was playing with a son, who, if poor, would have been the pride of the Beauforts. LYTON, Night and Morn., 90.

Was this vessel another devil's craft set sailing round the world? MAR. CORELLI, Sor. of Sat., II, Ch. XLII, 274.

enemy. It might be an enemy's ship in disguise. WASH. IRV., Storm-Ship, (STOF., Handl., I, 86).

She would have taken her own way with as much coolness through an enemy's country. DICK., Cop., Ch. XV, 109a.

father. That was a father's duty. G. ELIOT, Sil. Marn., Ch. XV, 117.

fool. The Lords are living in a fool's paradise from which they will be rudely awakened. Rev. of Rev., CXCVIII, 566a.

And so the patients and patients' friends go on living in a fool's paradise, often refusing to undergo an operation, until, when too late, it is discovered that the tumour is cancer. Titbits.

In a sudden fool's paroxysm of despair I exclaimed. MAR. CORELLI, Sor. of Sat., II, Ch. XXVII, 91.

I was yet in my fool's dream. Ib., II, Ch. XXV, 56.

He sent us here on a fool's errand. CH. KINGSLEY, Hyp., Ch. III, 56a.

gentleman. There now, that is a very pretty distance, a pretty gentleman's distance. SHER., Riv., V, 3.

giant. A giant's task. MRS. WARD, Rob. Elsm., II, 119.

knave. It is a good knave's trade. JOHN RUSKIN, The King of the Golden River, Ch. II.

man. I have a man's mind, but a woman's might. Jul. Cæs., II, 4, 8.

He left to us his infant son on condition that we should rear him until he came to man's estate. CON. DOYLE, The White Comp., II.

mother. It was a poor little chance of life for her mother's love. MAR. CRAWF., Kath. Laud., II, Ch. VII, 123.

slave. Greek is a slave's tongue. CH. KINGSLEY, Hyp., Ch. III, 13b.

widow. As to Square, who was in his person what is called a jolly fellow, or a widow's man, he easily reconciled his choice to the eternal fitness of things. FIELDING, Tom Jones, III, Ch. VI, 37b.

(old)wives. We'll stop his old wives' tales for him. CH. KINGSLEY, Hyp., Ch. III, 15b.

woman. She had grown up to woman's estate. MRS. GASK., Life of Ch. Brontë, 80.

Her woman's instinct had read the truth. (?), Miss Prov., Ch. XXI.

It required all her woman's tact to avoid betraying what had happened. CH. KINGSLEY, Westw. Hol., Ch. VI, 50b.

yeoman. Here Ellis did yeoman's service. MRS. ALEX., Life Int., I, Ch. XIV, 231.

- c) The modifying noun denotes the person animal (or thing) to which what is expressed by the noun modified is adapted, for which it is destined, or by which it is used: lady's maid, sportsman's tailor, bishop's mitre, judge's wig, widow's weeds, jewellers' cotton, the women's ward of an infirmary, carpenter's shop, smith's forge, boy's book, children's party (for which THACKERAY has child's party, see below).

bishop, judge. The son of a peasant or mechanic may carry a bishop's mitre or a judge's wig in his school satchel. ESCOTT, Eng., Ch. XV, 272.

child. Mrs. Sedley had forgiven his breaking the punch-bowl at the child's party. VAN. FAIR, I, Ch. V, 48.

children. The end of a novel, like the end of a children's dinner-party, must be made up of sweetmeats and sugar plums. TROL., Barch. Tow., Ch. LIII, 459.

doctor. He took his doctor's degree in Erfurt. MACM.'s Recent and Forthcoming Books, March, 1908, 17.

hunter. He saw nothing but the bright hunter's moon. CH. KINGSLEY, Westw. Hol., Ch. V, 43a.

jeweller. (The) unknown lady (was) stopping her ears with jewellers' cotton. DICK., Cop., Ch. I, 5b.

lady. I'm not much of a lady's man. MRS. ALEX., For his Sake, I, Ch. XII, 203.

I am not, in the first place, what is called a ladies' man. THACK, Fitz-Boodle's Confessions, I.

man. Brian Rashleigh was essentially a man's man. MRS. ALEX., For his Sake, Ch. XII, 204.

town. A largely attended town's meeting was held on Monday night at the Hackney Town-Hall. TIMES.

I beg to inform you that at a town's meeting, held here on Friday, May 26, it was unanimously resolved that [etc.]. TRUTH, No. 1801, 7b.

woman. Lady Maxwell, as you once said yourself, is not, I suppose, a woman's woman. MRS. WARD, Sir George Tres., III, Ch. XV, 123b.

42. When an adverbial relation is expressed, the noun in the classifying genitive is mostly the name of:

- a) an epoch, especially:

- 1) a division of a day (56, Obs. III, b, 4).

afternoon. In the open bay window sat merchants and gentlemen over their afternoon's draught of sack. CH. KINGSLEY, Westw. Hol., Ch. I, 1b.

evening. A part of the game was cooking for the evening's repast. WASH. IRV., Dolf Heyl. (STOF., Handl., I, 130).

I had settled to my evening's reading. CH. KINGSLEY, Alt. Locke, Ch. VI, 69.

We took notes of the vicar's or curate's discourse to be reproduced in our own form as our evening's amusement. MISS BRAD., My First Happy Christm. (STOF., Handl., I, 66).

morning. After a hearty morning's meal the encampment broke up. WASH. IRV., Dolf Heyl. (STOF., Handl., I, 136).

2) a day of the week (56, Obs. III, b, 3).

Sunday. People who a generation or two back were content to work on steadily with the regular Sunday's rest, and perhaps one summer holiday, are no longer satisfied with this. Times.

3) a season (56, Obs. III, b, 1).

summer. Not so much life as on a summer's day | Robs not one light seed from the feather'd grass. KEATS, Hyp., I, 8.

He sat down on its (sc. the brook's) margin, as sad a gentleman as you shall meet in a summer's day. TROL., Barch. Tow., Ch. XXXIV, 297. (= a long day.)

They were not created . . . to endure without protection the summer's sun and the winter's storm. ib., XLIX, 436.

Passing the long summer's day | Idle as a mossy stone. MATTHEW ARNOLD, Tristram and Iseult, I, 193.

This adventurous lady would be seen pushing her way through the summer's heat and the winter's snow. Mrs. WOOD, East Lynne, II, 21.

This glycerine protects from summer's heat and winter's cold. Il. Lond. News.

winter. One winter's evening a man in a gig might be seen urging his tired horse along the road. PICKW., Ch. XIV, 118.

What tale did Iseult to the children say, | Under the hollies, that bright winter's day? MATTH. ARN., Tristram and Iseult, III, 151.

One winter's night the winds and waves tore up the great stones and blocks of concrete. GORDON HOLMES, Silvia Craven, 18.

b) a period, represented:

1) as a singular unit:

day. George was highly pleased with his day's business. Van. Fair., I, Ch. XXV, 283.

My faculties have wrought a day's task and earned a day's wages. Mrs. GASK., Life of Ch. Brontë, 311.

Mr. Caudle's goes out to amuse himself when his day's work is done. SARAH GRAND, Heav. Twins, I, 22.

The Squire is a good gentleman, he often gives a day's work. CH. READE, It is never too late to mend, I, Ch. I, 24.

life. Thackeray died, early indeed, but still having done a good life's work. TROL., Thack., Ch. I, 8.

moment. If (the bright moment of promising is) sincere in its moment's extravagant goodness. BROWNING, A Soul's Trag., II, (32).

year. We have had a good year's trade. Westm. Gaz., No. 5501, 1c. (Year's trade may be compared to such a combination as night's rest, but the word-group may also be analysed: a year's good trade or a year of good trade.)

2) as a multiple of a certain unit.

day. It will be a ten days' break for him at any rate. Mrs. WARD, Marcella, II, 273.

After a five days' absence he returned to Paris. Blackw. Mag.

hour. It is but a twelve hours' passage. Van. Fair., I, Ch. XXV, 263.

The village of Marlott . . . (was) . . . for the most part untrodden as yet by tourist or landscape-painter, though within a four hours' journey from London. HARDY, Tess, I, Ch. II, 10.

year. He had spoken of a two years' engagement. Mrs. WARD, Marcella, III, 5. We cannot expect to get a ten years' experience in as many weeks or months. PHILIPS, Mrs. Bouverie, 77.

Note I. Observe: Nine days' wonder, as in: The University Boat Race has long taken so strong a hold on public interest that no unusual incident in connexion with it is merely a nine days' wonder. Times, No. 1840, 271c. It will be a nine days' wonder, and then it will be heard of no more. ROORDA, Supplem., 43. (Compare: That would be a ten days' wonder at the least — That's a day longer than a wonder lasts. Henry VI, C, III, 2, 113.)

II. The noun modified by such a genitive is mostly the name of an action or state, as in all the above instances. This is not the case in: A ten days' beard. RID. HAG., King Solomon's Mines, 102. Behold the child among his new-born blisses, | A six years' darling of a pigmy size. WORDSWORTH, Ode, Intimations of Immortality, VII, 2. The Wedding-guest stood still, | And listens like a three years' child. COLERIDGE, Ancient Mar., I, iv. She was still to him the lovely fifteen years' girl. CH. KINGSLEY, Westw. Hol., Ch. XIV, 118.

Compare with the above Ch. XXV, 32, Obs. I.

In these collocations some such adjective as old seems to be understood. Compare Ch. XXV, 32, Obs. II, and also the following quotation: After a prolonged examination he discovers, in this century-old record, nothing more fitted for the exercise of his ingenuity. G. E. MITTON, Jane Austen and her Times. Ch. I, 5.

It is but natural that the mark of the genitive also in this case is apt to be suppressed.

43. Also proper names of persons are occasionally found in the classifying genitive, mostly denoting a quality.

Cook. When I see your Cook's tourists [etc.]. MAX PEMB., Giant's Gate, Ch. IX, 32a.

Dickens. It is fully illustrated from the "original wood engravings by Barnard, Phiz," and other great Dickens' artists. Westm. Gaz., No. 5255, 3c.

Falstaff. Our vaunted levies of loyal recruits (were) so many Falstaff's regiments for the most part. THACK., Virg., Ch. XC, 658

Gessler. That Gessler's cap is still up in the market-place of Europe, and not a few folks are kneeling to it. THACK., The four Georges, I, 11. In thus facing imprisonment rather than bow to the Gessler's Cap which the jingo majority of 1900 set up in our midst, the Nonconformists are on their old ground. Rev. of Rev.

Jaeger. I detest people who are always doing 'outré' things like that — it's all of a piece with their fads about no stays and Jaeger's woollen clothes. EDNA LYALL, Hardy Norsem., Ch. XIII, 110.

Job. "I told you so, I told you so!" is the croak of a true Job's comforter. TROL., Barch. Tow., Ch. XLIV, 395.

But the worst Job's messenger was Bishop Egelwin of Durham. CH. KINGSLEY, Hereward, Ch. XXV, 107a.

King William. Tom professed himself, albeit a high-churchman, a strong King William's man. THACK., Henry Esmond, I, Ch. X, 101.

Pope. Tennyson also knew Pope and wrote hundreds of lines in Pope's measure. ANDREW LANG, Alfred Tennyson, Ch. I, 5.

Tom Fool. It is a Tom Fool's business. RID. HAG., She, Ch. IV, 48.

Turner. What could be expected from a man who goes to sleep with, every night, a Turner's picture on a chair opposite his bed that "he may have something beautiful to look at on first opening his eyes of a morning"? T. P.'s Weekly, No. 478, 3b. (The reference is to Ruskin.)

44. Obs. I. A noun in the classifying genitive is more closely connected with the noun modified than one in the individualizing genitive. This is often symbolized by the hyphen, or by writing the two component parts of the word-group conjunctively, especially in formations that have been handed down from ancient times, when the genitive was more freely used than it is at the present day. Thus we find:

- a) written with a hyphen: bird's-nest, cat's-mint, crow's-foot, lady's-maid.
- b) written conjunctively: coxcomb (corrupted from cock's comb), craftsman, draftsman, draughtsman, headsman, helmsman, ratsbane, tradesman.

Inconsistencies and irregularities are, of course, very numerous. Thus MURRAY has heartsease and heart's-ease, and in the quotations under this: hearts-ease and heart's ease.

Also in such collocations as a ten days' break mentioned above, the numeral and the following noun form a kind of compound, which is sometimes symbolized by a hyphen.

- II. Owing to this closer union with the noun modified, the noun in the classifying genitive is more rarely replaced by the prepositional construction than that in the individualizing genitive. Quite usual, however, is the construction with of, when the name of a period represented as the multiple of a certain unit, enters into the word-group. Compare Ch. XXV, 32, Obs. I, Note I.

- i. She set up a school of children. THACK., Henry Esm., Ch. VII, 381.
- ii. His friend of fifty years died. Prefatory Memoir to Lamb's Poems and Essays (Chandos).

His love of ten years was over. THACK., Henry Esm., III, Ch. XIII, 446. It was in the month of August 1756 that the great war of the Seven Years commenced. MAC., Fred., (687b).

During a halt of twelve days. Times.

She broke the silence of many hours. BRET HARTE, Outc. of Pok. Flat, 31.

It must, however, be remembered that also the classifying genitive is not freely used of nouns that otherwise admit of the genitive construction, and that of is frequently used in word-groups denoting a quality. Thus not only a man of tact = a tactful man, a work of authority = an authoritative work, a flag of three colours = a tricolor flag, a people of many languages = a polyglot people, etc. (MURRAY, s. v. of, 38), but also, a man of God, a word of man, as in the following quotations:

It is nobler to receive sword and belt from a man of God than from a man of blood. Ch. KINGSLEY, Hereward, Ch. XX, 89b.

I swore that no word of man should make me doubt her innocence. CONWAY, Called Back, Ch. X, 115.

- III. A word-group containing a classifying genitive may in its turn be used adnominally.

I went to the window-seat to put in order some picture-books and doll's house furniture scattered there. JANE EYRE, Ch. IV, 30.

He was very busy at a map or bird's eye view of an island. CH. KINGSLEY, Westw. Ho!, Ch. II, 12a.

- IV. In some cases the genitive may be understood as either individualizing or classifying. Thus in It was his life's task to promote the welfare of his subjects we may apprehend the spaced word-group as equivalent to the task of his life, but also as equivalent to his lifelong task, the difference corresponding to the Dutch de taak zijns levens (or van zijn leven), and zijn levenstaak. The latter view seems to be the more plausible (53, b, Note II), but in It was her life's task and duty to dedicate all her powers to the prosperity and interests of her Fatherland (Times), the fact that task is coupled with another noun causes the genitive to be best understood as individualizing, although also task and duty may be apprehended as an instance of hendiadys. Compare also 16, d.

To give another instance: The appearance of the figures of the polls has provided an evening's amusement for large crowds (Il. Lond. News). In this quotation an evening's amusement may be understood to mean an amusement lasting an evening, but also an amusement enjoyed of an evening.

It is especially the following genitives discussed above, that are more or less ambiguous:

- a) those of the names of the principal heavenly bodies (16, b): the earth's axis, the sun's rays, etc.
- b) those of certain nouns that have the genitive only in certain combinations (16, d): the bed's foot, the boat's head, a hand's breadth, etc.
- c) those of the names of epochs (42, a) or periods (42, b): the evening's repast, the winter's amusements, etc.; a day's work, a five days' absence, etc.

In the majority of cases ambiguous genitives are rendered clear enough by the context or the circumstances of the case referred to. Thus the following genitives, although admitting of two interpretations, will after a moment's thought be apprehended as classifying:

Hot water . . . was, indeed, a requisite in any decent gentleman's house. TROL., Barch. Tow., Ch. V, 36.

I am a poor parson's son. CH. KINGSLEY, Westw. Ho!, Ch. XVIII, 138b.

Tell them that I died like a true earl's son. Id., Herew., Ch. III, 28b.

- V. Modifiers standing before a genitive mostly belong exclusively to the modifying element when it is individualizing, to the whole word-group when it is classifying. SWEET, N. E. Gr., § 2002—3. Compare: He refused to pay his extravagant son's bills. (= the bills of his extravagant son.) He was content to let his widowed mother pay his extravagant tailor's bills. MAR. CRAWF., Kath. Laud., I, Ch. VII, 131.

When the definite article stands before an individualizing genitive, it is also best understood as belonging to the modifying element, although in the expanded construction two definite articles are required. Thus the archdeacon's daughters = the daughters of the archdeacon.

But the definite article or a possessive pronoun, when standing before the individualizing genitive of the names of epochs or periods, belong to the noun modified, or rather to the whole word-group.

There's her to-morrow's partridge in the larder. DICK., Little Dorrit, Ch. III, 196.

At once I saw, by the general's face, that the yesterday's transaction was known to him. THACK., Virg., Ch. LXXVII, 815.

During my month's holiday she was particularly pleased with me. Id., Sam. Titm., Ch. I, 2.

Also when an individualizing genitive forms a kind of unit with its head-word (16, d), the preceding modifiers often belong to the whole word-group.

Only one man of the whole ship's company could dance the hornpipe at all. Truth, No. 1801, 9a.

All and both mostly belong to the whole word-group. (Ch. V, 16; Ch. XXXIII, 9a.)

All (or both) my brother's friends attended the meeting.

All my neighbour's property lies in this county.

In the midst of all the great King's calamities, his passion for writing indifferent poetry grew stronger and stronger. MAC., Fred., (690a).

This was one of the blackest nights in all Newnes's career. T. P.'s Weekly, No. 482, 130c.

But when the genitive is a plural, all and both may belong to the modifying element alone. Compare Ch. XXXIII, 8a.

A peace was concluded . . . to continue for both the kings' lives. BACON, Hist. Henry VII (= the lives of both the kings).

The young farmer drew himself up and looked fearlessly in all his companions' eyes. CH. READE, It is never too late to mend.

Both these men's eyes followed George into the house, and each had a strong emotion they were bent on concealing. Ib., I, Ch. II, 34.

Sometimes one of the modifiers, an adjective, belongs only to the genitive, with which it forms a kind of unit, while another modifier belongs to the whole word-group. Thus in the following quotation old belongs to wives' alone, while his modifies old wives' tales:

We'll stop his old wives' tales for him. CH. KINGSLEY, Hyp., Ch. III, 15b.

Another instance: Alas! . . . my good and dear friend, from what sepulchre have you drawn such dead man's comfort. SCOTT, Quent. Durw., Ch. XXX, 397.

Finally we draw attention to the archaic and unusual construction instanced by All other the Queen's Dominions (*Periodical*¹), in which other belongs to the noun modified. (Ch. XXXIII, 11b.)

THE GENITIVE USED IN FOUR WAYS.

45. Nouns in the genitive are used conjointly, absolutely, substantively and predicatively.

SWEET (N. E. Gr., § 2008) calls the substantive genitive elliptical, but there seems to be no call to assume an ellipsis in such a collocation as at the baker's, any more than there is in all the other cases in which an adnominal word(-group) is used substantively.

46. For the conjoint use of the genitive, whether individualizing or classifying, see the above discussions.

¹) WENDT, Synt. des heut. Eng., 88.

47. a) The absolute genitive is mostly individualizing.

When denoting a relation of possession, origin or agency, the absolute individualizing genitive appears to be used, in the main, of the same nouns as those which admit of the conjoint genitive.

A person with jaundice in his blood shall lie down and go to sleep at noon-day, when another of a different complexion shall find his eyes as a statue's. LEIGH HUNT, A Few Thoughts on Sleep.

She cared for his verses no more than for Dan Chaucer's. THACK., Henry Esmond, II, Ch. X, 240.

The Boers had, or imagined that they had, a list of grievances as long as an Irishman's. FROUDE, Oceana, Ch. III, 45.

He neglects his own business to look after other people's. SWEET, N. E. Gr., § 2007.

His (sc. Shakespeare's) tendencies had usually the same bent as the crowd's. II. Lond. News, No. 3678, 538*b*.

Chambers's is the only Encyclopædia that is always up-to-date. T. P.'s Weekly, No. 471, 631*a*.

b) When other relations are in question, it seems to be exceedingly rare. Such a construction as is illustrated by the following quotation has a singular air about it:

Six weeks' was all the schooling I ever got. THACK., Barry Lyndon, Ch. I, 18.

Note. The absolute individualizing genitive is sometimes replaced by a construction with the determinative that or those followed by of. This construction, however, is decidedly uncongenial to the language. It is rarely used in the case of a simple proper name. Thus we could hardly say The book I have bought, is more expensive than that of John.

The syntactical connections or the demands of emphasis, however, may make it obligatory or desirable.

The most triumphant death is that of the martyr; the most awful is that of the martyred patriot; the most splendid that of the hero in the hour of victory. SOUTHEY, Life of Nelson, Ch. IX, 268.

He might perhaps...make atonement for the distraction which his intrigues had occasioned in the Duke's dominions, and those of his allies. SCOTT, Quent. Durw., Ch. XXX, 384.

At the command of the Duke, sanctioned by that of Louis, Quentin commenced an account of his journey. ib., Ch. XXXII, 418.

Mr. Blondel's house was next to that of Sir Francis Clavering, in Grosvenor Place. THACK., Pend., I, Ch. XXXVI, 386.

Mr. Arabin's church is two degrees higher than that of Mrs. Grantly. TROL., Barch. Tow., Ch. LIII, 461.

We keep, if not our own birthday, those of our children. ib., Ch. LII, 456.

Under whose direction are we to fight, if not under that of Mr. Balfour? Daily Telegraph (Westm. Gaz., No. 5642, 9).

The construction with the determinative that (or those) bears no replacing by the genitive when of is specializing or appositional.

Our own position was purely that of military conquerors. FROUDE, Oceana, Ch. III.

But this construction is clumsy and unusual in the case of a proper name, as in: What noble rivers were those of Potomac and Rappahannoc, abounding in all sorts of fish. THACK., Virg., Ch. XVI, 167. (Rewritten: What noble rivers were the Potomac and the Rappahannoc.)

48. Of the classifying genitive the absolute application is very uncommon, it being the ordinary practice to repeat the noun modified: a gentleman's umbrella and a lady's umbrella. Several instances are, however, found in the following quotation:

We found all kinds of eggs: missel-thrushes' eggs, wood-pigeons', red-starts', red-linnets' and many other kinds as well. SWEET, Old Chapel.

49. Only nouns in the individualizing genitive admit of being used substantively. In this application they denote:

- a) a residence, an establishment or a firm:

Can you, when you return from this lord's, come to Fullerton? JANE AUSTEN, Northanger Abbey, Ch. XXVIII, 216.

How should you like to go along with me and spend a fortnight at my brother's? DICK., Cop., Ch. II, 13b.

Here is my father's, Sir, where the light is. ID., Our Mut. Friend, I, Ch. III, 29.

It (sc. the diamond pin) had come home from Mr. Polonius's as I said on Saturday night. THACK., Sam. Titm., Ch. V, 47.

He was invited to Logwood, Lady Agnes Foker's. ID., Pend. I, Ch. XVIII, 183.

The doctor's is on the other side of the street. ONIONS, Adv. Eng. Synt., §88.

For further illustration see also 3. Compare with the above: And then she orders us to proceed to Mr. Titmarsh's house. THACK., Sam. Titm., Ch. V, 56.

- b) a place of worship (church, chapel or cathedral), a town or village dedicated to a patron-saint, e.g.: St. Paul's, St. Peter's, St. Andrew's, St. Alban's, St. Ogg's, Bury St. Edmund's.

- i. If you will come to St. Cuthbert's some Sunday, I will preach you a sermon on that subject. TROL., Barch. Tow., Ch. V, 37.

St. Stephen's has once more become the centre of the Empire. Rev. of Rev., CXCV, 227a.

- ii. My ship the Swan is newly arrived from St. Sebastian's laden with Portugal wines. FARQUHAR, The Constant Couple, I, 1, (44).

- c) a day dedicated to a patron-saint.

It was nearly midnight on the eve of St. Thomas's, the shortest day in the year. HARDY, Far from the Madding Crowd, Ch. II, 8.

50. Obs. I. Occasionally the substantive genitive is used to indicate other notions, as in:

Our first landing was on the eastern bank, at a place called Verplanck's Point . . . Meanwhile . . . two thousand men . . . were carried over to Stoney Point on the western shore, opposite Verplanck's. THACK., Virg., Ch. XCII, 975. (sc. point.)

He is a little man in the Duke's whom every one loves. DOLF WYLLARDE, The Story of Eden, I, Ch. I, 19. (sc. regiment.)

The Duke's are not all so popular. lb.

- II. Substantive genitives are sometimes vague in meaning. Thus St. Ewold's (TROL., Barch. Tow.) stands successively for St. Ewold's church, St. Ewold's parsonage, the living of St. Ewold, the parish of St. Ewold.

- III. When the substantive genitive denotes a firm, it is felt as a plural and, consequently, governs the plural of the finite verb of which it is the subject.

Reeves' have been established 117 years. Advertisement.

Pickford's have just delivered a heavy case containing what I take to be tin kettles. PUNCH 1900, 26 Oct., 217.

Barclay's assure absolute secrecy: our extensive resources enable us to effect satisfactorily results quickly at least expense. Daily Tel., 1905, 5 Febr., Adv.

- IV. Instead of I am staying at my uncle's (SWEET), we also find I am staying with my uncle (Mrs. ALEX., A Life Interest, I, Ch. VIII, 123). The latter construction alone is possible with word-groups like an uncle of my neighbour's, an uncle of mine, etc.: I am staying with an uncle of my neighbour's, (or an uncle of mine).

SHAKESPEARE, however, has: I do dine to-day at the father's of a certain pupil of mine. Love's Labour Lost, IV, 2, 160.

- V. After foreign names of patron-saints the mark of the genitive is sometimes dropped: the cool shades of San Giovanni (HUGH CONWAY, Called Back, III, 34).

Also plural nouns are frequently found without it.

The shops are really very entertaining, especially the mercers. MISS BURNEY, Evelina, X, 18.

They might have had better balances at their bankers. SPENC., Educ., Ch. I, 22b.

At all booksellers. Advertisement.

The suppression of the mark of the genitive after singular nouns is unusual except, perhaps, when the common noun is followed by a proper name in apposition, or when two (or more) nouns connected by and are used to denote the line of business, the word-group being preceded by a preposition. Compare 4, b, 3, β.

i. They took all their spare clothes to a pawnbroker. W. W. JACOBS, Odd Craft, A, 19.

ii. She desired me to take it on my arrival in London to the great jeweller, Mr. Polonius. THACK., Sam. Titm., Ch. I, 7.

iii. They went off to the grand cook and confectioner of the Brobdingnag quarter. Id., A little Dinner at Timmins's, Ch. IV, 320.

51. a) When the genitive is used predicatively, it mostly denotes (a) person(s) that is (are) thought of as the proprietor(s) or originator(s) of whatever is expressed by the subject: These houses are my uncle's. Those poems are my brother's. The grammatical function is mostly that of nominal part of the predicate, but may be that of predicative adnominal adjunct. Compare Ch. XXXIII, 28, a.

i. Render therefore unto Cæsar the things that are Cæsar's; and unto God the things that are God's. MATTH., XXII, 21.

I love snow and all the forms | Of the radiant frost; | I love waves, and winds and storms, | Everything almost | Which is nature's, and may be | Untainted by man's misery. SHELLEY, Invocation, VI.

Your form is man's. BYRON, The Deformed Transformed, I, 1 (490a). It is often said that his manners are a true gentleman's. DICK., Little Dorrit, Ch. IX, 5b.

There is just a foundation of Wordsworthian scheme in the blank verse; but the structure built on it is not Wordsworth's at all. SAINTSB., Ninet. Cent., Ch. II, 84.

- ii. Two men I honour, and no third. First the toil-worn Craftsman, that with earth-made implement laboriously conquers the Earth and makes her Man's. CARLYLE, Sartor Resartus.

- b) In the higher literary style it is also used to represent a person as assigned, obliged, privileged, entitled, etc. to do the action indicated by the subject. Observe the same practice with possessive pronouns. See Ch. XXXIII, 28, b, where fuller illustration is given.

What I am truly, | Is thine and my poor country's to command. Macb., IV, 3, 132.

All his (sc. Gladstone's) ends were his country's, his God's, and Truth's. JOHN MORLEY 1).

- c) The predicative genitive does not bear replacing by the construction with the preposition of. Thus such a sentence as This horse is of our neighbour* is impossible. Nor is its place often taken by a construction with the determinative that or those. (47, Note.)

In the following quotations approximate equivalents of the predicative genitive are used:

- i. It is not for an old soldier to ask many questions. Wash. Irv. 2).
It is for our merchants and manufacturers to consider whether they will ignore this rivalry. Times.
- ii. The contest was long, and he (sc. William the Silent) fell in the struggle; but the victory was to the dead hero, not to the living monarch. MOTLEY, Rise, VI, Ch. VII, 900a.

THE GENITIVE COMPARED WITH THE COMMON CASE.

52. The difference between the individualizing genitive and the common case of attributive nouns is on the whole distinctly perceptible. Thus there is no difficulty in distinguishing between his mother's tongue, the darling's champion, the idiot's wife, the boy's friends, his kinsman's friend, etc. and his mother-tongue, the darling champion, the idiot wife, the boy friends, his kinsman friend, etc.

Observe also the difference which a change of the common case into the genitive would involve in:

One of directors is reported to have said that the trouble was due to Lloyd George finance. Westm. Gaz., No. 5636, 1c (= finance after the style of Lloyd George).

1) WENDT, Synt. des heut. Eng., 88. 2) FOELS.—KOCH, Wis. Gram., §382.

53. There are, however, not a few cases in which the relation expressed by the genitive is vague or dimmed by other associations, causing the common case to be substituted for the genitive, with numerous irregularities and inconsistencies. Compare also Ch. XXIII, 12.

a) A notable instance of divided usage may be seen in complex proper names of buildings, streets, parks, countries, bays, rivers, etc.

1) When the first part of such a complex proper name denotes a person, the language is highly arbitrary, some nouns taking the genitive, however, as regularly as others reject it.

- i. St. Paul's Cathedral, Lincoln's Inn, Gray's Inn, Queen's College, Regent's Park, Drake's Island, Behring's Straits (Cas. Conc. Cycl.), Hudson's Bay (ib.), Pompey's theatre (DEIGHTON, HamI. III, 2, 96).
- ii. Buckingham Palace, Victoria Station, Marlborough House, Steinway Hall, Balliol College, Magdalen College, Hyde Park, Frobisher Strait (Cas. Conc. Cycl.), Davis Strait (ib.)

When such complex proper names are preceded by the definite article belonging to the noun modified (or the whole word-group), the common-case form is mostly used, except in those names in which the definite article is also found absent. (Ch. XXXI, 30, d, 1.)

i. the Albert Hall, the Alexandra Palace, the Swishtail Seminary, the Clarendon hotel, the Garrick Theatre.

ii. (the) St. James's Hall, (the) Martin's Hall.

Thus also the common case or the genitive is used in the following quotations, according as the definite article, or another modifier, is felt to belong to the noun modified or the modifying noun.

i. The Government tariff scheme. Times.

(Some) appear to be torn between an equal dislike both of the Lansdowne Bill and of the Government Bill. Westm. Gaz., No. 5619, 1c.

The Parisian reported... that she had no Titanic passengers. Times, No. 1842, 301d.

ii. The Dutch Government's methods. Rev. of Rev., CCXII, 284b.

It seems to us extremely unlikely that the Peers will do other than reject the Government's scheme. Westm. Gaz., No. 5466, 2a.

Much nonsense has been talked in the heat of the moment about the Government's House of Lords policy. Ib., No. 5490, 1b.

The Titanic's passengers in the Carpathia numbered 868. Times, No. 1842, 301d.

Compare also the following pairs of quotations:

i. * The ghosts of the Prior children peeped out from the banisters. THACK., Lovel the Widower, Ch. II, 25.

 Do you think, when I spoke anon of the ghosts of Prior's children I mean that any of them are dead? Ib.

ii. * On the Réaumur thermometer the distance is divided into 80 degrees. Cas. Con. Cycl., s. v. thermometer.

 Réaumur's thermometer is used only in North-Western Europe. Ib.

Irregularities are not wanting. Thus the genitive seems to be uncalled for in:

I have had the honour to be appointed by your committee to the trying task of reading the Williams' Lecture on Murder. DE QUINCEY, On Murder considered as one of the Fine Arts (PEACOCK, Sel. Es., 305).

It was arranged that Mr. Slope should not return in the Stanhope's carriage to Barchester. TROL., Barch. Tow., Ch. XLI, 364.

The Hudson's Bay Company has gradually extinguished this custom. Times. (Compare: From this point the Hudson Bay Company's steamers cover the whole distance to the Arctic Ocean. Ib.)

I have been taken to task lately . . . for writing about a Montagu's harrier seen in Sussex. Westm. Gaz., No. 5631, 2c.

- 2) When the modifying part of a geographical name is not the name of a person, it almost regularly has the common-case form.

i. Portland Bill, Calais Roads, Delagoa Port, Trafalgar Bay.

ii. Trafalgar's Bay (Il. Lond. News).

- 3) It will not seem strange that, when the modifying noun is a plural in s, and also when it is a singular in s, the mark of the genitive is apt to be neglected.

Thus: All Souls College, a United States security, St. Pancras Church (THACK., Sam. Titm., Ch. X, 120), by the side of All Souls' College, a United States' security (Christm. Car., II, 26), St. Pancras' Church.

- b) It is but natural that when the modifying noun is one that hardly admits of the genitive in the present stage of the language, the common case is mostly preferred to the genitive.

Abbey. Carved stones of the Abbey-ruin in the park. TEN., Princ., Prol., 14.
chestnut. The day when in the chestnut shade | I found the blue Forget-me-not. Id., The Miller's Daught., XXVI.

city. With that Adrastus' bonds were done away, | And forthwith to the city gates he ran. W. MORRIS, The Earthly Par., Son of Cræus., LXIV.

cottage. I left our cottage threshold. WORDSWORTH, Nutting, 4.

gateway. A happy lover who has come, | To look on her that loves him well, | Who lights and rings the gateway bell, | And learns her gone and far from home. TEN., In Mem., VIII, 1.

mast. It was a fine sunny morning when the thrilling cry of "land!" was given from the mast-head. WASH. IRV., Sketch-Bk., The Voyage.

Note I. Such combinations of a similar nature as have the mark of the genitive, have come down to us from the older stages of the language, which made a much more extensive use of the genitive than the present. (16, d.) Also in these the common case not infrequently takes the place of the genitive, especially when the head-word is such a word as side beginning with a sibilant.

bed. Bessie stood at the bed-foot with a basin in her hand. Jane Eyre, Ch. III, 16.

I slipped to my feet at the bed-side. DICK., Cop., Ch. IV, 22b.

He put on his hat, and, pausing by the bed-side on his way to the door, added [etc.]. Id., Ol. Twist, Ch. I, 21.

boat. Often, where clear-stemm'd platans guard | The outlet, did I turn away | The boat-head down a broad canal. TEN., Rec. of the Arab. Nights, III.

finger. When one is five-and-twenty, one has not chalk-stones at one's finger-ends that the touch of a handsome girl should be entirely indifferent. G. ELIOT, Mill, VI, Ch. II, 353.

He was a business man to his finger-tips. Westm. Gaz., No. 5335, 2a. If ever there was a being who was a man of letters to his finger-tips, it was he. T. P.'s Weekly, No. 495, 545b.

(Compare also: The instances are not to seek, — are at the fingers of us all. TROL., Thack., Ch. I, 11.)

moon. He laid it out on my bed in the moonlight. Dick., Cop., VI, 43a.

pin. To the majority . . . it matters not a pin-head whether the Poems were the work of Ossian, the son of Fingal . . . or of a James Mac Pherson. Daily News, 1894, 11 June 6/2. (Thus also with no alternative genitive: pin-point, pin-prick.)

On the other hand the s is sometimes a Late-English insertion.

This is the case with bridesman and bridesmaid, which have taken the place of an earlier brideman and bridemaid. Compare bridegroom, bride-bed, bride-chamber, etc. (MURRAY).

II. In the following quotations the common-case form of life corresponds rather to a classifying than an individualizing genitive (16, d; 44, Obs. IV):

He makes it his life work to determine those positions for each sound. LLOYD, Mod. Lang. Quart.

Goethe doubtless puts his own deepest insight into the Chorus Mysticus with which he closes Faust, his great life-work. DAVIDSON, Prolegomena to 'In Memoriam', Ch. XI, 88.

Lamartine and John Stuart Mill had life partners who were perfectly congenial. T. P.'s Weekly, No. 478, 4a.

c) Quite common is the use of the common case instead of the genitive before gerunds. Ch. XIX, 5.

54. Also when the genitive is classifying, it is mostly clearly distinct from the common-case form of the noun. Compare a giant's task with a giant tree, a sportsman's tailor with a sportman tailor.

55. But the vagueness is often greater than in the case of the individualizing genitive, which causes a more frequent substitution of the common case. The genitive sometimes seems to be avoided because the context might cause it to be understood as individualizing. Thus in such a sentence as Now health forsakes that angel face (BURNS, On the Illness of a Favourite Child) the placing of angel in the genitive might misrepresent the author's ideas.

The common-case form is used for the genitive.

a) occasionally with names of persons.

angel. And hearken, my merry-men! What time or where | Did she pass, that maid with her heavenly brow, | With her look so sweet and her eyes so fair, | And her graceful step and her angel air. SCOTT, Bridal of Triermain, I, iv.

So sweet a face, such angel grace, | In all that land had never been. TEN. The Beggar Maid.

And to and fro | With books, with flowers, with Angel offices, | Like creatures native unto gracious act, | And in their own clear element, they moved. Id., Princ., VII, 11. Compare: She had an angel's face. Mrs. Wood, East Lynne, I, 121.

baby. Her baby face looked exquisite now in its perfect peace. EDNA LYALL, Hardy Norseman, Ch. VII, 60.

He stooped to kiss the baby face that was temptingly offered to him. Id., Ch. XII, 97. A fault, common especially in bad southern English, and found almost invariably in baby speech, is the substitution of [v, f] for [ð, θ]. RIPPMANN, The Sounds of Spoken English, § 31. (Compare: In "ladies' speech" the [ðu] occurs even in stressed syllables, and may then be confidently described as a sign of affectation. Id., § 44.)

bachelor. But he was little disposed to marriage, he said, . . . spoke rather contemptuously of the institution, and in favour of a bachelor life. THACK., Pend., II, Ch. VII, 71.

He often asked me to his bachelor home. JAMES PAYN, Glow-Worm Tales, II, A, 17. (Compare: You know I am only to stay in my bachelor's quarters a month longer. THACK., Sam. Titm., Ch. V, 56.)

boy. And you liken — boyish babble — this boy-love of yours with mine. TEN., Locksley Hall, Sixty Years After, 6.

dame. It was a poor old-fashioned dame-school. WILLIAM MOTTRAM, The True Story of George Eliot, Ch. I, 6. (Compare with this the legend of a picture on the preceding page: The Dame's School, Griff. George Eliot's First School.)

demon. A mode of warfare of which in her demon moods she was past mistress. Mrs. WARD, Marcella, I, Ch. I, 11. (Compare the quotations with deuce and devil in 41, b.)

foot. The coach was going at a footpace up a steep hill. DICK., Cop., Ch. V, 38b.

He went out at a foot-pace. RUDY. KIPLING, Wee Willie Winkie, 200. Compare: Catherine was driving at a foot's pace up a steep hill. Mrs. WARD, Rob. Elsm., I, 126. (foot = pedestrian.) (The construction with the genitive is not mentioned in MURRAY, and seems to be rare.)

giant. But Douglas rose, | And thrust between the struggling foes | His giant strength. SCOTT, Lady, II, xxxiv, 22.

Her father was, in his way a remarkable man. A stalwart, of giant strength, self-reliant, energetic and practical. WILLIAM MOTTRAM, George Eliot, Ch. I, 4. Sublime courage, unfailing skill, giant strength, paternal tenderness — these things may win for some man the imperishable title of Father of United South Africa. Rev. of Rev. (Compare: a giant's task. Mrs. WARD, Rob. Elsm., II, 191.)

guardian. Being permitted in this way to revisit the scenes of his enterprise, and keep a guardian eye upon the river. WASH. IRV., Rip van Winkle.

infant. How quickly the infant eye comprehends the look which precedes the verbal expression of an idea. J. HABBERTON, Helen's Bab., 41.

maiden. O Walter, I have shelter'd here | Whatever maiden grace | The good old Summers, year by year | Made ripe in Summer-chace. TEN., Talking Oak, X.

maniac. "His cousin what?" I shriek with a maniac laugh. THACK., Lovel the Widower, Ch. II, 27.

master. He has shown how much may be done for a place in hours of leisure by one master spirit. WASH. IRV., Sketch-book, Roscoe, (14a).

In every line from Addison's pen Steele found a master-stroke. THACK., Henry Esm., II, Ch. XI, 245.

It is better to reproduce in another tongue the master-piece of a master-mind — provided you do it well — than to brew small beer of one's own. Not. and Quer. It is hardly necessary to remind either classical scholars or lovers of English literature of the influence which the master minds of antiquity have exercised upon the greatest English writers. Times. (Compare: It is a master's work. Acad.)

minstrel. O minstrel Harp, still must thine accents sleep? SCOTT, Lady, I, 1.

missionary. I do not understand a missionary life. Jane Eyre, Ch. XXXIV, 495.

partisan. This reception will go far to wipe out from his memory the unfairness of the partisan attacks upon him. Times.

To those who take a purely non-partisan view of the question, the outbreaks that occur from time to time on the Rand are rather alarming. Daily Mail.

peasant. And much it pleased him to peruse | The songs of the Sicilian muse, | Bucolic songs by Meli sung | In the familiar peasant tongue. LONGFELLOW, Tales of a Wayside Inn, Prel. (Compare: Greek is a slave's tongue. Ch. KINGSLEY, Hyp., Ch. III, 13b.)

Peasant German has lost much more of its original grammar than has the German spoken by the educated people. H. BRADLEY, The Making of English, Ch. II, 18.

They had such a man ready to hand in M. Fallières, of peasant origin. Rev. of Rev., CXCV, 120.

sailor. Upon the body in the well were found a sailor hat with the name "H. M. S. Swift," no collar of any kind [etc.]. Truth, No. 1801, 11a.

scoundrel. "A penny saved is a penny got;" | Firm to this scoundrel maxim keepeth he. THOMSON, Castle of Indol., I, L.

seraph. Yes; to thy tongue shall seraph words be given. CAMPBELL, Pleasures of Hope, I, 183.

shepherd. He has 35.000 shepherd dogs to look after 1.500000 sheep. Titbits, No. 1291, 400a.

spendthrift. The colonel was right when he rebuked him for his spendthrift follies. THACK., Virg., Ch. LIII, 554.

vagabond. There is always, however, a kind of vagabond consolation in a man's having nothing in the world to lose. WASH. IRV., Dolf Heyl. (STOF., Handl., I, 125).

woman. The special advantage of this system of woman work among the poor is that the ladies are able to obtain all the discipline and habits of devotion in sisterhoods, without life vows. Times, No. 1809, 707b.

yeoman. He (sc. Dickens) did yeoman service to the children's cause. Times, No. 1832, 112b. (Compare: 41, b.)

Note. The uninflected form is regular with adjectives and participles partially converted into nouns. (Ch. XXIX, 14a.)

the sick ward of a hospital; the condemned hold (GAY, Beggar's Opera, III, 2); to be placed on the Retired List (Times No. 1843, 333b).

In the following quotation the absence of the mark of the genitive gives rise to obscurity:

That life (sc. of William the Silent) was a noble Christian epic. MOTLEY, Rise, VI, Ch. VII, 898b. (= the epic of a noble Christian.)

Also proper names of persons are often kept in the common case.

I have the happiness to name her Ladyship among my acquaintances — and you bear, sir, a Rosherville face. THACK., Pend., I, Ch. X, 106.

b) more commonly with the names of animals.

animal. It would appear that this superstition as to names is later than the first giving of animal names to groups. ANDREW LANG, A cad., MDCCLXV, 212b.

bird-of-prey. Gladstone had a wonderful eye — a bird-of-prey eye. Times.

cat-and-dog. She and her sister lead a cat-and-dog life together. Jane Eyre, Ch. X, 107.

eagle. Thou hast an eagle eye. BULWER, Rienzi, I, Ch. I, 16. (Compare: The Duke of Omnium (saw) with his eagle's eye that the welfare of his countrymen at large required that some great step should be initiated. TROL., Framl. Pars., Ch. VIII, 78.)

ferret. He was endeavouring to pierce the darkness with his ferret eyes. Christm. Car., II, 31.

goose. Where gott'st thou that goose look? Macbeth, V, 3, 12.

lion. "If you stir, Mr. Cary, you have to do with Richard Grenville!" thunders the lion voice. CH. KINGSLEY, Westw. Ho!, Ch. XII, 108. But never in the worst moments did that lion heart show signs of weakness. Rev. of Rev., CCI, 238b.

ostrich. Strings of various coloured birds' eggs were suspended above it (sc. the mantel-piece): a great ostrich egg was hung from the centre of the room. WASH. IRV., The Legend of Sleepy Hollow, (353).

rabbit. A rabbit mouth that is ever agape. TEN., Maud, I, x, ii.

serpent. And one, in whom all evil fancies clung | Like serpent eggs together, laughingly | Would hint at worse in either. TEN., En. Arden, 476. She contrived by means of an angel face, a serpent tongue and a heart as hard as a diamond, to make every weak man fall in love with her. CH. KINGSLEY, Westw. Ho! Ch. XXIX, 218b.

The serpent smile is your countrymen's proper distinction. LYTTON, Rienzi, II, Ch. V, 108.

wild beast. In the hunted air of the people there was yet some wild-beast thought of the possibility of turning at bay. DICK., Tale of Two Cities, I, Ch. V, 45.

wild-cat. When a political party has been kept too long in opposition, it is inclined to adopt all manner of wild-cat theories. Rev. of Rev., CCVIII, 341a.

Note. Sometimes the use of the common case seems to be favoured by the occurrence of a sibilant at the end of the modifier. Compare: horse-flesh (-meat) with dog's-flesh (-meat).

c) almost regularly with the names of things in late formations.

funeral. While through the meadows | Like fearful shadows | Slowly passes | A funeral train. LONGFELLOW, Afternoon in February, I.

State. He has recognized the justice of the demand for secular education in the State schools. Rev. of Rev., CXCIV, 138a.

vegetable. A vegetable life may not be the highest ideal of holiday refreshment. But [etc.]. Times.

village. I saw the taper spire of a village church rising from the brow of a neighbouring hill. WASH. IRV., Sketch-bk., The Voyage, 12b. The red sun flashes | On village windows. LONGFELLOW, Afternoon in February, I.

56. Obs. I. When the modifying noun is a plural in s there is variable practice, the apostrophe being written by some and omitted by others. Thus we find ladies' waiting-room, savings' bank, servants' hall by the side of ladies waiting room, savings bank, servants hall.

Some compounds are always written without the apostrophe. Such, among others, are bees-wax, swansdown.

Thus also in adnominal word-groups made up of a numeral and the name of a measure of time (42, b, 2; Ch. XXV, 32, Obs. I), the apostrophe is sometimes omitted.

John Keats was born, a seven months child, on the 29th of October 1795. W. M. ROSSETTI, Prefatory Notice to the Poetical Works of John Keats.

What possible inroad upon the authority of the Boers could the five-years franchise have ever made, if Mr. Schreiner's figures are all correct. Daily Chronicle.

A notable instance of divided practice is also afforded by trade union, the usual form, and its variants trades union and trades' union.

- i. The trade union endeavours to supply the workman with a reserve fund, that will enable him to stand out for his price. Harmsworth Encycl., s. v. trade unions.
If a trade union comes into the State scheme, some understanding will have to be arrived at. Westm. Gaz., No. 5625, 2a.
- ii. The letter was from the secretary of a Midland trades union. Mrs. WARD, Marc., II, 234.
- iii. They are bound to say this to every man joining a trades' union. CH. KINGSLEY, Alton Locke, Pref., 102.

The plural also appears under three forms: trade unions, trades unions and trades' unions.

- i. A quarter of a century ago trade-unions were regarded as criminal conspiracies. Graph.
The object for which trade unions have been formed, may be expressed briefly as overcoming or offsetting the disabilities of labour. Harmsworth Encycl., s. v. trade unions.
The Friendly Societies and the trade unions all have criticisms to make and amendments to propose. Westm. Gaz., No. 5625, 2a.
- ii. The custom of congregation gave the guilds, of which our trades unions are the degenerate successors. WALT. BESANT, Lond., I, 62.
- iii. The misdoings of the Trades' Unions are no argument against the extension of the suffrage. CH. KINGSLEY, Alton Locke, Pref., 103.

Another instance of variable practice may be seen in woman suffrage, the usual form, and its variants woman's suffrage, women suffrage and women's suffrage.

- i. It is a rather stubborn fact, which has its bearing on the Woman Suffrage question, that adult suffrage would give us a majority of female voters. Westm. Gaz., No. 5642, 2a.
The movement for Woman-Suffrage and equality between the sexes. T. P.'s Weekly, No. 467, 492a.
Mr. Lloyd George's speech . . . was mainly devoted to woman suffrage. Times, No. 1822, 959b.

ii. Woman's suffrage. TEN BRUG., Dict.³, s. v. woman.

iii. Portugal and women suffrage. Rev. of Rev., No. 256, 365a.

She was hearty in her condemnation of recent militant Women Suffrage tactics. T. P.'s Weekly, No. 496, 596b.

iv. Recent demands for women's suffrage have ended in disaster. Harmsworth Encycl., s. v. suffrage.

To the end of his life he was a strong opponent of women's suffrage. 11. Lond. News, No. 3775, 330a.

- II. It is interesting to compare adnominal word-groups that are made up of a numeral and the name of a measure. The genitive plural is all but regularly used, when the measure is one of time (42, b, 2; 56, Obs. I), the uninflected form is the rule, when the measure is one of another description: a five-pound note, a two-foot rule, a four-mile journey; but a five hours' journey. See also Ch. XXV, 32, Obs. I.

In the following quotation the common case is exceptionally used for the genitive:

I made the hour-and-a-half trip between New York and Hillcrest. JOHN HABBERTON, Helen's Babies, Ch. I, 10.

The chief political event of the week is the hour-and-a-half speech which Mr. Balfour made at Edinburgh on Wednesday. Westm. Gaz., No. 5430, 1c.

The common-case form sometimes seems to have a more distinctly classifying meaning than the genitive plural. Thus according to KRUSINGA (A Gram. of Pres.-Day Eng., § 343) "the difference 'between (α) a three-mile journey and (β) a three miles' journey seems 'to be that (α) is more of a compound and used to denote a kind of 'journey (compare a two-year-old horse); whereas (β) applies to a 'special case.'"

- III. In conclusion some words should be devoted to the use of the genitive, as compared with the common case, of the names of seasons, months, days and parts of the day, when used adnominally.

a) When the genitive is distinctly individualizing, as appears from the absence of the (in)definite article, it does not bear replacing by the common case. (16, c.) Of the names of seasons and months the genitive is, however, used only in the higher literary style, especially poetry, the analytical construction being the rule in ordinary language.

i. Darkly that day rose: | Autumn's mock sunshine of the faded woods | Was all the life of it. TEN., Aylmer's Field, 610.

ii. Alike to him was time or tide, | December's snow, or July's tide. SCOTT, Lay, I, xxi.

iii. Friday's meeting was the 16th day of the inquiry. Times.

Our Cape Town Correspondent telegraphed under Sunday's date. Id.

Another strange feature of Wednesday's debate was the speech by the Archbishop of Canterbury. Westm. Gaz., No. 5625, 7b.

iv. That morning's breakfast passed heavily off. Pickw., Ch. II.

b) When, however, the individualizing function is dimmed (44 Obs. IV), and especially when the genitive is distinctly classifying, common case often takes its place.

- 1) Of the names of seasons only summer and winter seem at all to admit of the classifying genitive, autumn and spring having, apparently, regularly the common case instead. This latter form appears to be more frequent than the genitive also in the case of winter and summer. Compare the quotations given in 42, a, 3 with the following:

autumn. Even the indefatigable Mr. Towers had stolen an autumn holiday. TROL., Barch Tow., Ch. XXXIII, 287.

A still September afternoon, lightly charged with autumn mists. Mrs. WARD, Sir George Tres., III, Ch. XXI, 177a.

spring. The spring fashions were arrived. Mrs. GASK., Cran., Ch. XII, 231. The poplar was bursting into spring beauty. Ib., Ch. XIV, 260.

summer. So now my summer task is ended, Mary. SHELLEY, Revolt, Ded., 1. There was a certain person in the village with whom on those golden summer evenings I should have liked to have taken a stroll in the hay-fields. THACK., Sam. Titm., Ch. I, 2.

There is a saying that the weather will not settle to its summer fineness "until the cuckoo has eaten up the mud". Westm. Gaz., No. 5631, 2c.

winter. The house was sheltered from the winter cold and the summer heat. LYTON, Caxtons, II, Ch. III, 40.

The genitive is regular in in a summer's day (= in a long day), any summer's day (= practically every day in summer).

I'll assure, a' (vulgar for he) uttered as brave words at the bridge as you shall see in a summer's day. Henry V, III, 6, 67.

A proper man, as one shall see in a summer's day. Mids., I, 2, 77.

spoke of the Montagu's harrier, and that was of a fact which I have seen with my own eyes, and a fact which I have shown any summer's day, until some three years ago, on a certain stretch of Ashdown Forest. Westm. Gaz., No. 5631, 2c.

Conversely midsummer appears to have the common case regularly.

midsummer. Three o'clock upon a still, pure, bright midsummer morning. CH. KINGSLEY, Westw. Hol., Ch. XII, 107a.

- 2) Of the names of months only the common-case form has been found in a classifying meaning.

A fresh May-dawn it was, | When I walked forth upon the glittering grass, | And wept, I knew not why. SHELLEY, Revolt, Dedic., 22.

It was a very fine May day. Jane Eyre, Ch. XXXIV, 491.

And oft in ramblings on the wold, | When April nights began to blow, | And April's crescent glimmer'd cold, | I saw the village lights below. TEN., The Miller's Daught., XIV. (April's crescent is an instance of an individualizing genitive.)

He was thinking of the poor emaciated soul George had seen him tending in the cottage garden on that April day. Mrs. WARD, Sir George Tres., Ch. XXIV, 209a.

The captives, or hostages, who were hurried away that terrible January night at the command of Akbar Khan, had yet to be recovered. JUSTIN MCCARTHY, Short Hist., Ch. IV, 55.

- 3) Of the names of days also the common case seems to replace the classifying genitive almost regularly. Compare the quotation in 42, a, 2 with the following:

The lonely Hall, | Whose Friday fare was Enoch's ministering. TEN., En. Ard., 100.

He had heard something of Mrs. Proudie and her Sunday schools. TROL., Barch. Tow., Ch. XLIII, 386.

I wonder whether Mrs. Grantly would like me to drive over and inspect her Sabbath-day school. Ib.

The Saturday Westminster Gazette.

Would you kindly permit me to inquire through your "Saturday Letter-Bag" for information as to [etc.]. Westm. Gaz., No. 5625, 4c.

An occasional variant of Sunday best is Sunday's best.

Little family parties dressed in their Sunday best. JEPHSON¹⁾.

To go to fair I drest . . . in my Sunday's best. SOUTHEY¹⁾.

- 4) Of the names of parts of a day the classifying genitive is, indeed, frequent enough (42, a, 1), but the common case seems to be more frequent, being apparently, regularly used in many combinations, such as morning (evening, night) air, morning (evening) dress (party), afternoon (morning) school (lessons), morning (evening) prayers.

evening. The table was set for the evening repast. WASH. IRV., Dolf Heyl. (STOF., Handl., I, 141).

morning. Morning parties, as a rule, are failures. TROL., Barch. Tow., Ch. XLII, 367.

In a private house or in private grounds a morning party is a bore. Ib.

She was dressed in her brightest of morning dresses. Ib., Ch. XLVI, 409.

Eleanor was dressed a full hour before the time fixed in the Ullathorne household for morning prayers. Ib., Ch. XLIX, 434.

night. She was a wonderful object to look at in her night attire. THACK., Henry Esmond, I, Ch. V, 46.

¹⁾ MURRAY.

CHAPTER XXV.

NUMBER OF NOUNS.

FORM.

1. The usual way of forming the plural of English nouns is by adding s or es to the singular.

2. Obs. I. The s is voiced, unless preceded by a voiceless consonant. In the termination es the s is always voiced, and es is syllabic, i. e. sounded as a separate syllable, when preceded by a sibilant. This equally applies to such nouns as in the singular have the sibilant followed by silent e: horse — horses; age — ages.

In the following nouns the th, though voiceless in the singular, becomes voiced through the influence of the termination of the plural: bath — baths, mouth — mouths, oath — oaths, path — paths, wreath — wreaths. In the plurals laths, truths and youths the th is pronounced by some with voice, by some with breath; in growths and heaths it seems to be breathed with most, if not all, speakers.

In the above nouns the th is preceded by a long vowel, which may be considered as the cause of its becoming vocalized. When preceded by a short vowel or a consonant, the th invariably remains breathed in the plural: death — deaths; month — months. This is also the case when the preceding vowel has become lengthened through the r as in birth — births; fourth — fourths. In hearths, however, the th is voiced.

In unstressed positions the voiceless th is preserved: twentieth — twentieths. Compare: WEBST., Princ. of Pron., § 99; SWEET, N. E. Gr., § 1001; KRUISINGA, A Gram. of Pres. Eng., § 282.

As to the pronunciation of cloths, MURRAY (N. E. D., s. v. cloth) observes that northerners generally pronounce the th with breath, Londoners usually with voice, the preceding vowel being lengthened. Some Londoners make the th breathed in compounds as table-cloths, neck-cloths, many to the same when the word is used as a material noun (kinds of cloth).

- II. The plural suffix s has come down from the Old English as, which terminated the nominative and accusative plural of the most numerous class of masculine nouns of the strong declension: stān — stānas. On account of its never meaning anything else than the nominative or accusative plural, it was better adapted to become the universal termination for the plural than any of the other plural endings used in English, which might also have other grammatical functions. BRADLEY, The Making of English, Ch. II, 36.

In course of time the ending as degenerated into es, sometimes into ys or is, which continued to be syllabic. Syllabic es is still the ordinary mark of the plural in CHAUCER. In SPENSER, however, the syllabic es has already disappeared, except, of course, after sibilants. EMERSON, Mid. Eng. Read., § 123; FRANZ, *Shak. Gram.*², § 188. And fyry Phebus ryseth up so brighte, | That al the orient laugheth of the lighte, | And with his stremes dryeth in the greves | The silver dropes, hanging on the leves. CHAUC., Cant. Tales, A, 1493—1497.

A GENTLE Knight was pricking on the plaine, | Ycladd in mightie armes and silver shielde, | Wherein old dints of deepe wounds did remaine, | The cruel markes of many a bloudy field. SPENSER, Faery Queene, I, i, 1.

In the form clothes the ending es is never pronounced as a separate syllable. The distinction between cloths and the plurale tantum clothes 'is chiefly of the 19th century'. MURRAY, s.v. clothes.

Another common suffix for the plural in Old English was an, which terminated all nouns of the weak declension: nama — naman; sunne — sunnan; ēage — ēagan. The ending an has survived in en, which is found in the plural of a few English nouns to this day.

Some of these plurals in en, however, must not be traced to Old English, but to Early Southern Middle English, which exhibited a movement towards making en the regular plural ending of nouns. Thus shoes was in this dialect shoon, but in Old English scōs or scēos. For further details see EMERSON, Mid. Eng. Read., § 132; BRADLEY, The Making of English, Ch. II, 40; JESPERSEN, Growth and Structure, § 185; KERN, Vereenvoudiging, 14.

- III. In SHAKESPEARE the termination of the plural, when preceded by a sibilant, written s, se, ss, ce and ge, is frequently left unpronounced, and sometimes even left unwritten. ABBOT, *Shak. Gram.*³, § 471; FRANZ, *Shak. Gram.*², § 189.

i. As the | dead car casses of | unburied men. Coriol., III, 3, 122.

Thinking | upon | his ser/vices took, | from you. Ib., II, 3, 231.

ii. It is | so. Are | there ba/lance here | to weigh The flesh? Merch. of Ven., IV, 1, 256.

My sense | are stopped. Son., CXII.

3. The bulk of English nouns take s. The termination es is added:

a) to all nouns ending in a sibilant: i. e. a blade —, or a blade-point consonant: bus — bus(s)es; gas — gases; glass — glasses; box — boxes; topaz — topazes; fez — fez(z)es; quiz — quizzes; waltz — waltzes; dish — dishes; church — churches.

b) to nouns in o that have become thoroughly English: buffalo — buffaloes. Thus also: cargo, echo, flamingo, hero, negro, no, potato, tomato, volcano.

In the case of such nouns in o as have still more or less a foreign ring about them, usage is arbitrary and far from uniform. Thus we find s as well as es in the plural of bravo, calico, commando, desperado, domino, embargo, fresco, grotto, indigo, innuendo, magnifico, memento, motto, mosquito, pallisado, peccadillo, photo, portico, salvo, stiletto, tobacco, tornado, torpedo. See especially FOWLER, Concise Oxford Dict., Pref., 6.

A simple s is invariably added to:

- 1) nouns ending in oo, and such as have the o preceded by a vowel: cuckoo, Hindoo; cameo, duo, folio, nuncio, ratio, seraglio, studio, tercio (= tertio), trio.
- 2) Italian and Latin terms of art and science: canto, cento, crescendo, duodecimo, octavo, quarto, piano, proviso, rondo, solo [plural also solis (9)], tyro, virtuoso [plural also virtuosi (9)], zero.
- 3) some words borrowed from the Spanish and the Portuguese: albino, gaucho, guanaco, merino.

Note. The e may have been retained in the termination of nouns ending in o, to denote length of vowel, this being one of the functions of this letter in many German dialects. The retention of the e may also be due to a desire of exhibiting the voiced pronunciation of the s, simple os, as in chaos suggesting the breath-sound. MASON, Eng. Gram.³⁴, § 49.

The following illustrative quotations must suffice:

i. bilboes. You shan't go to the bilboes this bout. SMOLLETT, Rod. Rand., Ch. XXIII, 16b.

buffalo. The Pontifical State is abandoned to buffaloes and wild boars. MAC, Popes, (559a).

cargo. There should be a more rigid examination of cargoes. Times.

dominoes. I was never weary of playing at dominoes with Mrs. Primmins. LYTON, Caxtons, I, Ch. IV, 19.

fresco. Their open interiors all and each radiant with the gaudy, yet harmonious colours of frescoes. Id., Last Days of Pomp., I, Ch. I, 10a.

innuendo. Mr. Joshua Rigg, in fact, appeared to trouble himself little about any innuendoes. G. ELIOT, Mid., IV, Ch. XXXV, 250.

jingo. When the jingoes left office, they had raised the expenditure on war to £ 76,367,000. Rev. of Rev., CXCVI, 333a.

memento. The soldier was offering for sale all sorts of mementoes of the fight. THACK., Van. Fair, I, Ch. XXXV, 388.

mosquito. Lapland is a country that abounds in mosquitoes and knots. Daily Mail (LLOYD, North. Eng., 86).

motto. One of our motatoes is this haughty address to the Romans, — 'If we fall, ye fall also'. LYTON, Rienzi, II, Ch. I, 80.

peccadillo. It is one of life's little ironies that men continually go unwhipped of justice for their great crimes and get smartly trounced for the veriest peccadilloes. Rev. of Rev., CXCVI, 337b.

salvo. At three in the afternoon the batteries fired salvoes. Daily Chron.

veto. What with *veto*es and retaliation *veto*es, the whole thing (sc. the Women's Parliament) would be absurd and impossible. T. P.'s Weekly, No. 492, 474c.

ii. bravo. Can you dwell in your father's house, without towers and fortresses, and the bought swords of bravos? LYTTON, Rienzi, I, Ch. VIII, 53.

commando. The news of the British disasters have undoubtedly encouraged many waverers to join the Boer commandos. Times.

curio. I am too fond of curios to part with this. Il. Mag.

duo, trio. The talking was done in duos and trios more or less inharmonious. G. ELIOT, Mid., I, Ch. X, 62.

gazebo. Gazebos or summer-houses hanging over peagreen canals. THACK, Notes on a Week's Holiday (PARDOE, Sel. Eng. Es., 449).

mustachio. The captain coming out, curling his mustachios, mounted the black charger pawing among the straw. Id., Van. Fair, I, Ch. XIV, 136.

photo. They (sc. those pictures) are some photos of the Khaibar and Tirah. Mrs. WARD, Lady Rose's Daught., I, Ch. V, 41a.

piano. They went off to the piano, which was situated, as pianos usually are, in the back drawing-room. THACK., Van. Fair, I, Ch. IV, 32.

punctilio. These treaties ought to have been officially notified with all due punctilios to the other signatories. Rev. of Rev., CXCVI, 348a.

octavo. Other gentlemen carried under their arms goodly octavos. DICK., Pickw., Ch. XXXIV, 305.

salvo. Salvos of cannon were likewise fired. MOTLEY, Rise, IV, Ch. II, 571.

studio. She was known in all the studios of the quarter. THACK., Van. Fair, I, Ch. XIX, 200.

tercio. England was armed to confront the tercios of Spain, when Parma awaited the Armada's sails. Acad.

c) to nouns ending in y preceded by a consonant, the y being changed to i: lady — ladies.

When the y is preceded by a vowel, the plural is formed by simply suffixing s: boy — boys; key — keys; quay — quays.

In the digraph qu the u is a consonant; hence the plural of colloquy and soliloquy, etc. is colloquies, soliloquies, etc.

Note I. From an historical point of view it would be more accurate to say that the ie has been changed in the singular to y: the Early Modern English way of spelling these words in the singular being ladie, glorie, etc. The ie was kept in the plural probably to show that the following s was voiced, simple is, as in crisis, suggesting the breath-sound. MASON, *Eng. Gram.*³⁴, § 49; NESFIELD, Hist. Eng. and Deriv., § 109; JESPERSEN, Mod. Eng. Gram., I, 3.134.

II. The plural of fly when denoting a light one-horse covered carriage is mostly written flies. JESPERSEN, Mod. Eng. Gram., I, 3.138.

i. I remarked very few carriages, mostly cabs and flies. THACK., A Little Dinner at Timmins's, Ch. VII, (334).

No flies so pleasant as Brighton flies. Id., Newc., I, Ch. IX, 102.

ii. Flies came and went. Mrs. WOOD, Orville College, Ch. I, 11.

III. The plural of sty in the sense of 'pen or inclosure for swine', is sometimes written styes. There is, of course, nothing unusual in the spelling styes as the plural of stye (also spelled sty) in the sense of 'small inflammatory tumour on the edge of the eye'.

Sheep of half-a-dozen different breeds and styes of bloated preposterous pigs. HUXL., Darw., Ch. I, 15.

It reminds them of the horrible acts of vandalism committed by people who have torn down beautiful ruins in order to build cottages and walls of pigstyes. Westm. Gaz.

IV. Weak ey was till lately changed into ie before the plural s. Instances of the old practice are occasionally met with in the latest English. SWEET, N. E. Gr., § 1021; ALFORD, Queen's Eng.⁸, § 37.

i. When Mildred was about fifteen, he made one of his rare journies to London. (?), Mad. Leroux, Ch. II.

The monies expended on you in your minority far exceed the sum to which you are entitled. THACK., Van. Fair, I, Ch. XXV, 257.

ii. A purser is a commissioned officer who has the charge of the provisions, clothing, etc., and of the public moneys on shipboard. WEBST., Dict.

V. Nouns in i, of which there are but few, generally add s only; occasionally the plural of alkali is also written with es, and this seems to be the ordinary practice with macaroni. MURRAY; SWEET, N. E. Gr., § 1021.

houris. The houris of the theatres especially were so ravishing and angelic that to see them was to set the heart in motion. THACK., Newc., I, Ch. I, 6.

macaroni. Sure never were seen two such beautiful ponies; | Other horses are clowns, but these macaronies. SHER., School for Scand., II, 2, (378).

He wore his hair in the fashion which I remember to have seen in caricatures of what were termed, in my young days, Macaronies. CH. LAMB, Es. of Elia, The South-Sea House.

Peri. The Peris are a sort of half-fallen female angels, who dwell in the air, and live on perfumes; and though banished for a time from Paradise, go about in this world doing good. JEFFREY, Thomas Moore.

On going into Fusby's a week afterwards he found the Peris drinking out of blue cups. THACK., A Little Dinner at Timmins's, Ch. V.

ski. On these occasions practically every one is to be seen on skis. II. Lond. News, No. 3850, 150.

taxi. They have to catch trains and taxis. Eng. Rev., No. 53, 158.

d) to some nouns ending in f, the f being changed to v. The nouns which regularly change f into ves are calv, elv, half, leaf, loaf, self, sheaf, shelv, thiev and wolv.

Note I. Already in Old English f, like th and s, became voiced in voiced surroundings, although the symbol was retained. Thus wulf — wulfas, hlaf — hlāfas; Modern English: wolf — wolves, loaf — loaves. Compare COOK-SIEVERS, Old Eng. Gram.³, § 192, 2; KALUZA, Hist. Gram., § 81; EMERSON, Mid. Eng. Reader, § 98; SWEET, N. E. Gr., § 731; id., Sounds of Eng., § 181; JESPERSEN, Mod. Eng. Gram., I, 2.541.

II. In the plural of wife, knife and life the f is also changed into v.

III. Besides beeves, the common form, we also find beefs, the latter being apparently the ordinary form in America. The singular beef in the sense of ox occurs only occasionally since the 16th century; the plural is now found only in archaic and technical language. See MURRAY, s. v. beef; SATTLER, E. S., X.

IV. The plural of staff is sometimes staves, but mostly staffs; when it means a corps of officers, either military or civil, the plural is always staffs. Also of compounds, such as flagstaff, distaff, etc., the plural is mostly formed by simply adding s: flagstuffs, etc. The plural staves has developed a new singular stave (= Dutch duig). SWEET, N. E. Gr., § 1001; JESPERSEN, Progr., § 133, footnote.

V. Dwarves and wharves are occasionally met with in English writers, instead of the more usual dwarfs and wharfs. (In America wharves is, apparently, the common form. WEBST.) Scarves, however, seems to be rather more common than scarfs. NESFIELD, Hist. Eng. and Der., § 110.

VI. Hooves occurs occasionally beside the more usual hoofs. See the quotation from STEVENSON in MURRAY, s.v. hoof, 1; and below.

VII. For the rest nouns in f and fe form the plural according to the general rule.

beef. i. A pound of man's flesh taken from a man | Is not so estimable, profitable neither, | As flesh of muttons, beefs or goats. Merch., I, 3, 168.

Has he land and beefs? Henry IV, B, III, 2, 353.

ii. All the villages, nine hundred yards round the city, (were obliged) to deliver in every morning six beeves, forty sheep, etc. SWIFT, Gul., I, Ch. II, (119b).

Madam Esmond had beeves, and horses, and stores in plenty. THACK., Virg., Ch. VII, 70.

And men brought in whole hogs and quarter beeves. TEN., Ger. and En., 601.

belief. The lecturer's beliefs exactly coincided with all his own ready-formed notions. EDNA LYALL, Don., I, 84.

gulf. There were gulfs between them — gulfs which, as it seemed to him, could never be bridged again. Mrs. WARD, Rob. Elsm., II, 268.

hoof. On burnish'd hooves his war-horse trode. TEN., Lady of Shal., III, iv. [Compare with this the unusual hooved instead of hoofed in: Beautiful Paris, evil-hearted Paris, | Leading a jet-black goat white-horn'd, white-hooved, | Came up from reedy Simois all alone (TEN., CEnone, IV); and also leavy, which many modern editors altered into leafy, in: Now near enough: your leavy screens throw down (Macb., V, 6, I).]

scarf. Men and women alike are much given to bright silk neckties, scarves and shawls. ESCOTT, Eng., Ch. VI, 81.

staff. i. * Mr. Grummer pocketed his staff, and looked at Mr. Dubbley; Mr. Dubbley pocketed his staff and looked at the division; the division pocketed their staves and looked at Messrs. Tupman and Pickwick. DICK., Pickw., Ch. XXIV, 218.

 Here it is that the architects and surveyors with their several stuffs are domiciled. ESCOTT, Eng., Ch. III, 59.

The railway companies mastered the difficulties of the situation and filled up their depleted stuffs. Times, No. 1808, 682d.

ii. * O sir, there's Trapland the scrivener, with two suspicious fellows like lawful pads, that would knock a man down with pocket-tipstaves. CONGR., Love for Love, I, 1, (205).

The judges and the tipstaves parted the combatants. MAC., Hist., II, Ch. V, 99. Over the altar are still seen the French flagstaves, taken by the garrison in a desperate sally. Id., IV, Ch. XII, 239.

 Serving wenches... sate plying their distaffs. SCOTT, Bl. Dwarf, Ch. III. It began with the erection of flagstuffs. DICK., Domb., Ch. IX.

The mayor and corporation-men appeared in full robes, with maces and tipstuffs. CH. KINGSLEY, Westw. Ho!, Ch. XXIX, 216b.

waif. This was the land which we have regarded as a refuge for the waifs and strays of our superfluous population. FROUDE, Oceana, Ch. VIII, 115.

wharf. The gates leading to factories and wharves. W. BESANT, Bell of St. Paul's, I, Ch. II, 37.

4. The plural of proper nouns is, in the main, formed according to the rules described in 1 and 3.

With regard to those in y and o, the most common practice is to add s: Henry — Henrys; Cato — Catos. Some writers insert an apostrophe before s: Henry's, Cato's; others form the plural of these nouns as if they were class-nouns: Henries, Catoes. Singulars in y of one syllable, such as Paul Pry, would hardly be pluralized in any way but by taking s or 's. JESPERSEN, Mod. Eng. Gram., I, 3.135.

Proper nouns ending in a sibilant generally add the simple apostrophe, occasionally es, or 's: the Chambers' or the Chambereses or the Chambers's. SWEET, N. E. Gr., § 1021; TEN BRUG., Taalst., VI.

propers names in y. All the Marys and Elizabeths they had married. JANE AUSTEN, Persuasion, Ch. I, 2.

Though she does not come of such good blood as the Malonys or Molloys, let me tell ye, she's of an ancient family. THACK., Van. Fair, II, Ch. VIII, 83.

Off the Scillys a member of... "the inferior sex" is sighted and has to be taken on board. II. Lond. News, No. 3860, 464c.

proper names in a sibilant. i. Why, in fact, did the Timminses give that party at all? Id., A Little Dinner at Timmins's, Ch. VII, 334.

The Carolingian race had been exhausted by producing a race of Pepins and Charleses. MOTLEY, Rise, Introd., 12b.

The impious heretics — the Drakes and Raleighs, Grenvilles and Cavendishes, Hawkinses and Frobishers had dared to violate that hidden Sanctuary. CH. KINGSLEY, Westw. Hol, Ch. XXIX, 218a.

ii. I have not been to the Rooms this age, nor to the Play, except going in last night with the Hodges's for a frolic. JANE AUSTEN, Northanger Abbey, Ch. XXVII, 209.

5. To express the plural of a letter, figure or any character or sign, or of a word or phrase mentioned without regard to its syntactical function, the letter s, generally preceded by the apostrophe, is appended: the two l's in all; the two o's in 400; the why's and wherefore's of the question.

Some writers, however, omit the apostrophe in such cases, joining the s immediately to the letter, character or word: the two ls in all, etc.

Others still write the names of letters with their proper plural endings, instead of the letters themselves: the two ells, the two efs, the two esses. (WEBST.) This practice seems to be very rare.

i. Several dozen of "How-are-you's?" hailed the old gentleman's arrival. DICK., Pickw., Ch. VII, 59

Mamma drops her H's. THACK., Pend., I, Ch. XXIV, 251.

You don't need to be on your p's and q's with him. MRS. WARD, Marcella, I, 230.

You'll have to mind your p's and q's, or else you'll be dropped on. G. MOORE, Esth. Wat., Ch. I, 6.

I said a few "yes's" and "really's" during this long speech. EL. GLYN, Refl. of Ambrosine, II, Ch. III, 107.

He discusses literature, as though he were a rather daring Victorian of the '90's. Eng. Rev., 1912 Aug., 153.

The present authors are able to dot some of the i's. Athen., No. 4463, 513a.

- ii. The hes would quarrel and fight with the females, as fiercely as with each other. SWIFT, Gull., IV, Ch. VII, (204a).

In L. W. S. these us are lost. SWEET, A. S. Read., Gram. Intr., 47.

These adjectives often lose one of the rs. Ib., 149.

A great deal has been written about the Whys and Wherefores of the action of Germany. Rev. of Rev., CXCVI, 347b.

But if 'ifs and ans were pots and pans', as the old jingle has it, there'd be no trade for tinkers'. Id.

The plural of abbreviations is mostly indicated by 's, if only initials are used (M.P.'s); by s, if more letters are retained (Bros., Profs., Drs.). Another way of indicating the plural, especially applied to titles, is by duplication: LL.D., MSS., pp.

- i. To talk of burning IOU's was child's play. THACK., Van. Fair, II, Ch. I, 5. It is easy to understand the quick taming of the ordinary Labour M.P.'s. Eng. Rev., 1912, March, 685.

The Dean proposes . . . to confine the B. D. and D. D. degrees to those who understand divinity in its true sense. How many of the present D.D.'s do this? Athen., No. 4405, 361a.

The boys grew up to positions of trust and are now J. P.'s. Punch, No. 3674, 413c.

- ii. So the bishop was searched for by the Revs. Messrs. Grey and Green. TROL., Barch. Tow., Ch. XLII, 368.

- iii. MSS. should always be accompanied by remittance to cover the amount of charges and stamped addressed envelope for return. T. P.'s Weekly, No. 491, 447a.

6. Some nouns form their plural by vowel-mutation: foot — feet; goose — geese; tooth — teeth; louse — lice; mouse — mice; man — men.

Note I. The preservation of the mutation-plural in these nouns may be owing to the fact that their plural occurs more frequently than, or at least as frequently as, their singular. JESPERSEN, Growth and Structure, § 185; KERN, Vereenvoudiging, 14.

II. The forms lice and mice stand for Middle English lys and mys: the ce recording the fact that, when inflectional s in many words came to be pronounced with voice, the breath-sound was retained in these words. Compare 11, s.v. dice. The compounds dormouse and titmouse are pluralized: dormice, titmice.

III. Compounds of man of English make also change man to men. Such are alderman, cabman, woman; Dutchman, Englishman, and a great many others.

He captured two Dutch East Indiamen. Westm. Gaz., No. 6011, 9c.

Compounds of woman form the plural by changing this part to women: countrywoman — countrywomen, horsecwoman — horsecwomen, gentlewoman — gentlewomen.

In these compounds of man no difference is heard in speech between the singular and the plural, except in the case of woman — women. Note also that gentleman in the vocative does not lose the e-sound in the last syllable. SWEET, N. E. Gr., § 1004.

Anglicized foreign compounds of man, such as German, Norman, Ottoman, Roman, Turcoman, and those nouns in man, which are not really compounds of man, such as cayman, talisman, form the plural, according to the general rule, by affixing s: Germans, caymans, etc. Mussulman, however, is pluralized either Mussulmen or Mussulmans. Proper nouns in man also form the plural in this way: Longman — Longmans.

Thus also proper names in foot simply take s in the plural: Longfoot — Longfoots.

IV. Foot has foots in the sense of 'bottoms, dregs' (MURRAY, s. v. foot, 22); goose has gooses in the sense of 'tailor's smoothing-iron' (id., s. v. goose, 5).

7. Of the Old English weak declension (2) but a few traces are found in Modern English. The only pure instance of the plural being formed by affixing en is ox, plural oxen.

Note. In the forms brethren and children there is also vowel-change. The Old English brōðor had in the plural brōðor or brōðru. The singular brōðor developed the Modern English brothers. In Early Middle English another plural breðre or breðer sprang up, formed on the analogy of the mutation plural fēt, singular fōt, and suggested by the Old English dative singular brēðer. The shortening of the ē in Middle English was due to its being followed by two consonants. To the new plural the weak ending en was added, resulting in the Modern English brethren. The present differentiation between brothers and brethren (11, a) was not observed in Middle English. Compare COOK-SIEVERS, Old Eng. Gram.³, § 285; KALUZA, Hist. Gram., § 121; EMERSON, Mid. Eng. Read., § 135.

The Old English cild had in the plural cild and, less commonly, cildru or cilderu. The latter developed into childre or childer, with short i, the shortening being due to the three successive consonants (1000—1200). These forms have maintained themselves in the Northern dialects to the present day. In the Southern, and later in the Midland dialects, the weak ending en was added. Compare COOK-SIEVERS, Old Eng. Gram.³, § 290; EMERSON, Mid. Eng. Read., § 132; JESPERSEN, Mod. Eng. Gram., I, 4.221.

I thought more o' th' childer nor of mysel. Jane Eyre, Ch. XXIX, 419.

We han done our best to gi' the childer food. Mrs. GASK., Mary Barton, Ch. VI, 59.

Gold won't buy back childer. CH. KINGSLEY, Westw. Ho!, Ch. II, 15a.

I'll hand it down to my childer's childer. ZANGWILL, The Next Religion, I, (63).

Compare also Childermas, usually Childermasday or -tide; also called Innocents' day [Matth. II, 16] (= 28 Dec.).

Another instance of a plural formed by vowel-mutation and suffixing en, although in a concealed form, is kine, a plural form of cow. Kine has now given way to cows, but is still occasionally met with, especially in poetry. TENNYSON has kine as a singular. The old plural ky, in a large variety of spellings, survives in dialects.

Besides the above en-plurals, Early Modern English had eyne (in SPENSER and SHAKESPEARE), shoon (in SHAKESPEARE and MILTON), treen (in SACKVILLE), hosen (in the Authorised Version). For these Late Modern English has eyes, shoes and hose, the last of which nouns has one and the same form for the plural and the singular (8). Also SHAKESPEARE has only hose.

These old plurals in en are still now and again met with as archaisms, and survive in certain dialects. BURNS has both een and ee.

eyne. Shed thy faire beames into my feeble eyne. SPENSER, Faery Queene, Introd., IV.

For ere Demetrius look'd on Hermia's eyne. MIDS., I, I, 242.

And his half-open'd eyne he shut straightway. THOMSON, Castle of Indolence, I, LXXIV.

This said, poor Mailie turn'd her head, | And closed her een among the dead. BURNS, The Death and Dying Words of Poor Mailie.

Their eldest hope, their Jenny, woman grown, | In youthfu' bloom, love sparkling in her ee, | Comes hame. Id., The Cotter's Sat. Night, IV.

Hawks will not pick out hawk's een. SCOTT, Redgauntlet.¹⁾

hosen. Then these three men were bound in their coats, their hosen and their hats. Bible, Daniel, III, 21.

Last, twenty yeomen, two and two, | In hosen black and jerkins blue. SCOTT, Marm., I, viii.

I did lift her over the stream, she having on her hosen and shoon, whilst I had but my wooden sandals. CON. DOYLE, The White Comp., 7.

But when I was turned fourteen years old, and put into good small-clothes, buckled at the knee, and strong worsted hosen, knitted by my mother, it happened to me, without choice, I may say, to explore the Bagworthy water. BLACKMORE, Lorna Doone, Ch. VII, 38.

kine. i. And behold there came out of the river seven kine. Bible, Gen., XLI, 18.

The deserted hamlets were set on fire; and the troops departed, driving away with them many sheep and goats, nine hundred kine, and two hundred of the small shaggy ponies of the Highlands. MAC, Hist., VII, Ch. XVIII, 25.

The fields between | Are dewy-fresh, browsed by deep-udder'd kine. TEN., Gard. Daught., 46.

The dearthness of milch-kine ever since Michaelmas has been remarked. Graph.

ii. Sadly the far kine loweth. TEN., Leonine Elegiacs, 9.

iii. The inn lasses went afield with petticoats kilted to milk the kye. JAMES PURVES, Walking Tours. (STOF., Eng. Leesb., I, 136.)

The father cracks of horses, pleughs, and kye. BURNS, The Cotter's Saturday Night, VIII.

shoon. Spare none but such as go on clouted shoon. Henry VI, B, IV, 2, 195.

How should I your true love know | From another one? | By his cockle hat and staff | And his sandal shoon. Ham I., IV, 5, 26.

The dull swain | Treads on it daily with his clouted shoon. MILTON, Comus, 635. Not in vain | He wore his sandal-shoon and scallop-shell. BYRON, Childe Harold, IV, CLXXXVI.

Withal there came to me | A little child and did off hastily | My shoon and hosen. W. MORRIS, The Earthly Paradise, Prol., 8b.

Gerard can paint, Gerard can write, but what can you do to keep a woman, ye lazy loon? Naught but wait for your father's shoon. CH. READE, The Cloister and the Hearth, Ch. IX, 45.

treen. The wrathful Winter, 'proaching on apace, | With blustering blasts had all ybar'd the treen. THOM. SACKVILLE, Induction to the "Mirror of Magistrates", I.

8. Some nouns have the same form in the plural as in the singular. Such are:

¹⁾ De Drie Talen, XXIII, 148.

a) craft, deer (reindeer), hose, sheep and swine.

Note I. Craft, originally used collectively by watermen, fishermen and seamen only in the expression small craft (= small trading vessels, boats, lighters, etc.), afterwards without small in the same sense, subsequently in the general sense of vessels of all kinds, is now also used to denote a small vessel or boat, or any sailing or floating vessel. MURRAY.

II. Deer, sheep and swine belonged to that class of Old English neuter nouns which in the nominative and accusative had the same form in the plural as in the singular. Deer is occasionally found with the mark of the plural; sheeps occurs in certain dialects. MURRAY, s. v. deer, 2, b; KERN, Vereenvoudiging, 18; KRUSINGA, Bonner Beitr., XVIII, § 464.

In Old English deer meant a wild animal in general. In this sense we still find it once used in SHAKESPEARE, and SATTLER quotes an instance from Late Modern English.

Swine is now chiefly used as a collective noun of the type of cattle. In Early Modern English it frequently denotes a single animal, where Present English mostly has hog or pig. The use of swine to denote a single animal is not, however, so unusual as is often thought. Thus MURRAY's definition of lard is: 1) the fat of a swine, 2) the internal fat of the abdomen of a swine.

III. Further traces of this want of inflection for the plural have been preserved to the present day with some other nouns. Thus head is still uninflected in such collocations as fifty head of cattle. Uneducated people still say year for years. For more details see 29.

IV. The plural of hose was formerly hosen (7). Its ordinary meaning is now stockings, but the word was originally used to imply the breeches or chausses. FAIRHOLT, Costume in England, 512. (Note to As you like it, II, 4, 6 in Clar. Press). It still denotes a covering of the legs in trunkhose [= trunks (19, a)], which sometimes has the s of the plural. Also when denoting a flexible tube used in extinguishing fires, it is sometimes placed in the plural: hoses.

craft. i. He not only discovered that there is a North-East passage to India, but actually made it in his little craft. II. Mag.

Was this great vessel with smoking funnels and grinding engines another devil's craft set sailing round the world? MARIE CORELLI, Sor. of Sat. II, Ch. XLII, 274.

ii. Behind them lay two long, low, ugly-looking craft. CH. KINGSLEY, Westw. Ho!, Ch. XIX, 141b.

Eighty odd craft made up their fleet. W. BESANT, By Celia's Arbour, I, 2. The strength of the future lies in these craft. Lit. World.

deer. i. They saw several deer grazing peacefully in the distance. His reindeer are from Lapland. Times, No. 1826, 1049d.

ii. Are the princes of the Crusade turned hares or deers in the eyes of King Richard, that he should slip hounds on them? Black's Sir W. Scott's Read., Story of the Talisman, 46.

iii. But mice and rats and such small deer | Have been Tom's food for seven year. King Lear, III, 4, 144. (perhaps = game. A. SCHMIDT.) The vendors of chickens and rabbits and such small deer. All the Year Round. 1)

1) SATTLER, E. S., X.

Next day we were to shoot rabbits and pheasants, and there was lively curiosity as to how our heroic friend . . . would shape among these small deer. Westm. Gaz., No. 5149, 12b.

hose. i. 'Faith, here's an English tailor come hither for stealing out of a French hose. Mac b., II, 3, 16.

He bought his doublet in Italy, his round hose in France. Merch. of Ven., I, 2, 80.

From his waist to his heels he was clad in a pair of tight-fitting buckskin hose fastened by laces (called points) to his doublet. CH. READE, The Cloister and the Hearth, Ch. I, 8.

ii. She was mending those eternal pairs of stockings, little and big — grey and white — socks and long hose. MRS. CRAIK., A Hero, 82.

I followed him with my eyes . . . his ribbed hose and leathern gaiters. Id., John Hal., Ch. I, 3.

I doffed my shoes and hose, and put them into a bag about my neck. BLACKMORE, Lorna Doone, Ch. VII, 39.

iii. * The two fourgons carry about 4000 ft. of hose of different sizes. Times.
 Others were at the same time getting fire-hoses fitted and passed to the scene of the fire. (?) A Ship on Fire (STOF., Leesb., I, 3).

iv. * The captains of the river-craft talk of a little square-built Dutch goblin in trunk-hose and sugarloaf-shaped hat. WASH. IRV., Storm-Ship (STOF., Handl., I, 88).

You had but to supply figures with beards and ruffs and rapiers and trunk-hose to make the picture complete. THACK, Newc., I, Ch. XXVII, 301.

White satin his trunk-hose, | Inwrought with silver. TEN., Queen Mary, III, 1, (605a).

 Certain I had heard that every Spaniard carries a tail like a devil under his trunk-hose. — Ay, but see what trunk-hoses! Id., III, 1, (606b).

sheep. The sheep were patiently browsing. STEVENSON.

swine. i. How like a swine he lies. Taming of the Shrew, Ind., I, 34.
And the swine, because it divideth the hoof, yet cheweth not the cud, it is unclean unto you Bible, Deut., XV, 8.

The domestic swine fairly dotes on snakes. All the Year Round.¹⁾ ii. I never threw away pearls to swine, as the saying is. CAPT. MARRYAT, Perc. Keene.²⁾

b) the names of nationalities in ese, such as Chinese, Portuguese, etc., and the noun Swiss.

Note. Instead of the singular Chinese, which sounds like a plural, we often find Chinaman, especially in familiar style. Switzer is used by SHAKESPEARE and SCOTT instead of Swiss. For such singulars as Chinee and Portuguee see 13.

i. Before arriving at the mine, we passed through a location of Chinese. FROUDE, Oceana, Ch. VIII, 117.

Li Hung Chang is one of the most intelligent and enlightened Chinese of the present age. Hazell's Annual.

Many of the 130,000 Maltese who possess no political rights, have interests opposed to those of Dr. Mizzi and the enemies of British rule. Times.

On the 7th, 8th, and 10th of May nine Chinese . . . were examined on a charge of gambling . . . Nineteenth Cent., No. CCCXCVII, 535.

ii. Some 6000 men are employed on the works, most of them are Italians and Swiss. Graph.

The Pope's body-guard consists of Swiss. Note to Hamlet, IV, 5, 79 (Clar. Press).

1) SATTLER, E. S., X. 2) FLÜGEL, s. v. swine.

iii. Where are my Switzers. HAMIL., IV, 5, 96.

They (sc. the Dutch) levy regiments of the stubborn Switzers and hardy Germans to protect the treasures they have amassed. SCOTT, Abbot, Ch. III, 32.

- c) some nouns borrowed from the Latin, and belonging in that language to the fifth declension, in which the nominative of the singular and the plural are the same: series, species. (9.)

series. If we lower the tongue, starting from [i] and [i] respectively, we obtain the two parallel series: [etc.]. SWEET, Sounds of Eng., § 64. In going down either of these series, it will be seen as well as felt that [etc.]. Ib., § 80.

Of all the many cheap series of standard works to the production of which so many publishers have . . . devoted themselves, 'Everyman's Library' maintains its triumphant lead. Daily Telegraph.

species. Those beings which the world calls improperly suits of clothes, are in reality the most refined species of animals. SWIFT, Tale of a Tub, Sect. II.

With the lower parasitic species the males are of small size. DARWIN, Descent of Man, Ch. IX, 265.

- d) the French ab(b)at(t)is, chamois and corps.

Note. Abatis, the ordinary spelling both in English and French, is sometimes pronounced as in French.

The spellings shammy and shamoy are still frequently used to denote a kind of leather, but the name of the animal is now always written chamois. In the plural the s may be pronounced, as is always done with the plural corps.

abatis. Mines are run under the man's credit, abatis are constructed around his markets. MISS TARBELL (Rev. of Rev., CXCVI, 41a).

chamois. Rabbits stamp loudly on the ground with their hind-feet as a signal! Sheep and chamois do the same with their fore-feet. DARWIN, Descent of Man, Ch. IV, 100.

corps. The sand-bank was dotted with English soldiery, of half-a-dozen corps. RUOY. KIPLING, The Light that failed, Ch. II, 17.

9. Many foreign nouns are used in English in the singular without any change of form, and are, accordingly, pluralized more or less regularly in the same way as is done in the language from which they have been taken. For foreign pluralia tantum see 19, h.

To those ignorant of Latin, Greek and Italian the following observations may be acceptable.

In Latin the termination a when belonging to nouns of the 1st declension is changed into ae (vertebra — vertebrae), the suffix ma of nouns of the 3rd declension being changed into mata (dogma — dogmata, stigma — stigmata, thema — themata);

the termination us of nouns of the 2nd declension is changed into i (bacillus — bacilli, radius — radii, tumulus — tumuli), of nouns of the 4th declension remains unaltered (apparatus — apparatus, hiatus — hiatus), of nouns of the 3rd declension is changed into either era or ora (genus — genera, tempus — tempora); the termination x is mostly changed into ces (apex — apices, calyx — calyces, radix — radices, vortex — vortices);

the termination um is changed into a (datum — data, desideratum — desiderata, erratum — errata, stratum — strata).

(Note that data answers to the Dutch gegevens, dates to the Dutch datum s.)

In Greek the termination on is changed into a (phenomenon — phenomena prolegomenon — prolegomena);

the termination sis is changed into ses (in which e represents ei) crisis — crises)
Thus also oasis — oases.

In Italian the terminations e and o are mostly changed into i (cicerone — ciceroni, dilettante — dilettanti, libretto — libretti, solo — solì, virtuoso — virtuosi).

- a) Some of these loan-words, especially such as are still distinctly felt as aliens, prefer the foreign plural. Thus we find it regularly, or practically regularly:

- 1) with nouns in sis (crisis — crises), also with the Latin amanuensis — amanuenses and axis — axes.

(Note that the ordinary meaning of amanuensis in English is one who copies or writes from the dictation of another.)

- 2) with the following, among many others:

α) bacillus, calyx, formula, genus, hiatus, lamina, stratum, vertebra;

β) phenomenon, prolegomenon;

γ) dilettante;

δ) bureau, château, madame, tableau.

- b) Some, especially such as have passed into common use, mostly have their plural formed in the ordinary English way: asylum — asylums, chorus — choruses, convolvulus — convolvuluses, crocus — crocuses, crucifix — crucifixes, dogma — dogmas, encomium — encomiums, enigma — enigmas, nostrum — nostrums, rhododendron — rhododendrons, syllabus — syllabuses, etc.

- c) With some usage is more or less equally divided: appendix — appendixes — appendices, automaton — automatons — automata, candelabrum — candelabrams — candelabra, criterion — criteria — criteria, focus — focuses — foci, fungus — funguses — fungi, simile — similes — similia, spectrum — spectrums — spectra, stigma — stigmas — stigmata, triumvir — triumvirs — triumviri, vortex — vortexes — vortices, etc.

adieu — adieux — adieux, beau — beaus — beaux, plateau — plateaus — plateaux. (In all these plurals the x is pronounced as z).

conversazione — conversaciones — conversazioni, solo — solos — solì, soprano — sopranos — soprani, virtuoso — virtuosos — virtuosi.

Lit(t)erati, the plural of the Latin lit(t)eratus, has also been considered to be the plural of the Italian litterato (also litterato). This last is now the ordinary singular, instead of lit(t)eratus, which has become rare. Literati is sometimes used as a singular through ignorance.

Rhinoceros sometimes remains unchanged, but the ordinary plural would seem to be rhinoceroses. (Compare, however, 29.)

- d) Sometimes each plural belongs more or less strictly to (a) particular meaning(s) of the singular. Thus:

genius has geniuses (= Dutch genieën) and genii (= Dutch geniën), the latter being practically a plurale tantum, as the singular is replaced by genie or jinnée;

index, in the sense of the Dutch bladwijzer, mostly has indexes sometimes indices, the latter plural being almost regularly used for the other meanings: exponent, etc.;

stamens has stamens in the sense of the Dutch meeldraad, the form stamina, a plurale tantum, being used only figuratively in the sense of the Dutch kern, pit.

Here follow some illustrative quotations. When only one plural is given, it must not be concluded that the alternative does not exist, or even is less frequent.

adieu. i. He departed, taking with him from many an anxious fellow besides myself, our adieux to friends in Old Ireland. THACK., Barry Lyndon, Ch. IV, 65.
I shall pass over my adieux with my kind hostess. Ib., Ch. V, 77.

ii. I presume... you are prepared to receive my adieux. SCOTT, Bride of Lam., Ch. XXI, 222.

His adieux were not long. JANE AUSTEN, Northanger Abbey, Ch. XV.

analysis. Sanatogen has probably been put to more severe and searching analyses and tests than any other specific of modern years. Rev. of Rev., CCXXIII, 101*b*.

apparatus. i. There are more elaborate methods, ... which involve special training in physics and mathematics and in handling complicated apparatus. SWEET, Sounds of Eng., § 288.

ii. The many apparatus designed to apply electricity. NAPHEYS.¹⁾

appendix. i. New and enlarged edition, with supplement of additional words; key to names in Mythology and Fiction, and other valuable appendices. ANNANDALE, Conc. Dict.

ii. The Appendixes include illustrative matter for which there was no natural place elsewhere. COOK, First Book in Old English, Pref., 8.

bacillus. Milk, however many tubercle bacilli it may contain, may be rendered an absolute safe article of food by being raised to the temperature of boiling water. Times.

automaton. i. "Do you think so?" said the Princess ... "Have these automata, indeed, souls?" DISRAELI, Coningsby, IV, xi, 167.¹⁾ ii. Three petty chieftains were sitting, stolid and silent, at a table and might have been taken for automatons. LYTTON, Rienzi, II, Ch. I, 74

beau. i. Poets will think nothing so checks their fury, | As wits, cits, beaux, and women for their jury. FARQUHAR, The Constant Couple, Prologue, 2.

ii. Young sparks of his Acquaintance ... the Beaus of those Days. BIRCH.¹⁾ bureau. The establishment of information bureaux for all foreigners without distinction will be seen to be indispensable. Rev. of Rev., CCXXII, 538*a*.

cactus, candelabrum. Huge thorni cacti, like giant candelabra, clothed the glorious slopes. CH. KINGSLEY, Westw. Hol., Ch. XVIII, 135*b*.

(Candelabra is erroneously used as a singular in: A smartly dressed woman ... had taken from a travelling-bag some silver salt-cellsars and a big candelabra of the same metal. BARONESS VON HUTTEN, What became of Pam, Ch. IV, 30.)

chrysalis. The chrysalides (if that is the right way to write of more than one chrysalis) are generally found by digging in the mossy earth of trees. HOR. HUTCHINSON, The Insect-Hunter (Westm. Gaz., No. 5329, 4*c*).

convolvulus. The lustre of the long convolvuluses | That coil'd around the stately stems. TEN., Enoch Arden, 571.

crisis. It is the duty of the Government, when crises of this kind arise, to know what they want and to say what they mean. Times.

But even these especial crises in her malady could scarcely have equalled in pain the constant watchfulness and anxiety of Lamb's early life. Prefatory Memoir to Lamb's Poems and Essays (Chandos).

crucifix. The silver crucifixes were melted down. MAC., Popes, (561*b*).

château. The châteaux of the Loire are famous in song and prose. Westm. Gaz., No. 4943, 15*b*.

¹⁾ MURRAY.

We journey with her to the châteaux of the Loire. Ib.

datum. As I have given the facts from which I have drawn my interpretation of the principal agent, the reader has sufficient data for his own judgment. LYTTON, Rienzi, Preface.

dictum. Look at Mr. Roosevelt's dicta about the Courts. Saturday Rev.

dilettante. There are many ways of seeing landscape quite as good (sc. as a walking tour); and none more vivid, in spite of canting dilettantes, than from a railway train. R. L. STEVENSON, Walking Tours.

dogma. Mr. Keats had advanced no dogmas which he was bound to support by examples. Quarterly Review, Article upon Keat's 'Endymion.'

emphasis. He then began to read in a good round resonant voice, with clear enunciation and careful attention to his pauses and emphases. WALT. BESANT, The American Claimant.

enigma. Words that she would spell quite correctly in her letters to me, became perfect enigmas when she wrote to my father. MRS. GASKELL, Cranford, Ch. XIV, 259.

focus. The Clarendon Press was one of the foci of York Powell's life in Oxford. The Periodical, XXXVII, 78.

formula. i. The ordained agencies for teaching have been mumbling little else but dead formulas. SPENC., Educ., Ch. I, 23a.

ii. I have, therefore, laid down the most stringent rules and the clearest formulae in my power. TOM HOOD, Eng. Versification, Preface, 11.

fungus. i. Fairy-ring: a circular band of grass differing in colour from the grass around it, a phenomenon supposed in popular belief to be produced by fairies when dancing; really caused by the growth of certain fungi. MURRAY.

Champignon: A name applied originally (as in French) to fungi or mushrooms generally. Ib.

ii. A castle covered with moss and wall-flowers and funguses and creeping ivy. TROL., Thack., Ch. VI, 140.

genius. i. There were hosts of these geniuses, and any reasonable person would have thought it honour enough to meet them DICK., Pickw., Ch. XV, 132.

It was even said that one or two distinguished geniuses had condescended to borrow money of him. THACK., Virg., Ch. LXIII, 661.

Saints and geniuses are always rare. WILLIAM MOTTRAM, George Eliot, Ch. I, 6.

ii. * I know too where the Genii hid | The jewell'd cup of their king Jamshid. MOORE, Paradise and the Peri.

The genii of the storm afflict me with keen hail. SHELLEY, Prom. Unbound, I, 1, 43.

 Her mother was of human birth, | Her sire a Genie of the earth. SCOTT, Bridal of Triermain, II, III.

hiatus. i. It was printed in the usual Greek characters, with all the hiatus filled up by conjecture. Monthly Mag. 1)

ii. Those hiatuses at the bottom of the sea, whereby the abyss below opens into it and communicates with it. FRANKLIN. 1) hippopotamus. i. A considerable body of bitter water containing leeches . . . crocodiles and hippopotami. LIVINGSTONE, Zambesi, III, 81. 1)

ii. The tusks of hippopotamuses often appear on the surface. LYELL, Princ. Geol. III, 221. 1) hypothesis. I have desired to put before you the principles upon which all hypotheses respecting the history of Nature must be judged. HUXLEY, Lect. and Es., 44b.

Phonology is, therefore, a speculative science, dealing largely with more or less probable hypotheses. SWEET, Sounds of Eng., § 266.

1) MURRAY.

incubus. Mary and I have had a dozen (sc. governesses) at least in our day; half of them detestable and the rest ridiculous, and all incubi — were they not? CH. BRONTË, Jane Eyre, Ch. XVI, 214.

index. i. A diligent search through the indices to 'Notes and Queries' fails to discover any notice to the name of Jarndyce. Notes and Queries.

One of the first indices to the solution of the question lies in the situation of the oil-bearing regions. Nature.¹⁾

His son's empty guffaws struck him with pain as the indices of a weak mind. STEVENSON.¹⁾

The figures 2, 3, ... m denoting the number of factors which produce the powers, are called Indices. BARN. SMITH.¹⁾

ii. And in such indexes, although small pricks | To their subsequent volumes, there is seen | The baby finger of the giant mass | Of things to come at large. Troilus and Cressida, I, 3, 343.

Tastes are the indexes of the different qualities of plants. ARBUTHNOT.²⁾

The indexes may be of use to students of a more advanced stage. ABBOT, Shak. Gram., Pref. to the 3rd Ed., 22.

lamina. Such crystals may be easily cloven into the thinnest laminae. TYNDALL, Glac. of the Alps, I, Ch. I, 15.

larva. If you see a certain plant, you may look in your books and see what larvae there is a chance of finding on this at the moment. HOR. HUTCHINSON, The Insect-Hunter (Westm. Gaz., No. 5329, 4c).

lazzarone. i. When he got a bit of sunshine, the old lazzarone basked in it. THACK., Pend., I, Ch. V, 59.

ii. Neither are picturesque lazzaroni or romantic criminals half so frequent as your common labourer. G. ELIOT, Adam Bede, II, Ch. XVII, 154.

lexicon. Lexicons. Clar. Press Adv.

lit(t)eratus. i. * You do not happen to have any place at your disposal which would suit a decayed Literatus? CH. LAMB.¹⁾

A folio edition of the Iliad, published at Venice, by a literato, who calls himself Villoison. COWPER.¹⁾

There was Lady Blanche Bluenose, the eminent literati. THACK., Cox's Diary, February.

ii. There was such a row among the literati as to the persons who should be appointed, that the plan was given up. Id., The four Georges, III, 74.

magus. Whence the wise men of the East who came to see Christ, are called simply Magi. *Penny Cycl.*¹⁾ memorandum. May I ask you if you could spare a few minutes to send me some notes or memoranda as to the books which you found by experience most useful to you? Rev. of Rev., CXCVIII, 568b.

nostrum. Among many nostrums which he possessed, there was one of the venereal disease, that brought him a good deal of money. SMOL., Rod. Rand., Ch. XIX, 126.

parenthesis. The pronunciation given in parentheses is the nearest that can be expressed in English letters, as pronounced in Southern English. SWEET, A. S. Primer, 3.

phenomena. Science most properly concerns itself with matter and motion, and reduces phenomena, as far as it can, to mechanism. OLIVER LODGE, Introd. to Huxley's Essays.

It was not my intention to confine myself to the glaciers alone, but to make my work a vehicle for the familiar explanation of such physical phenomena as had come under my notice. TYNDALL, Glac. of the Alps, I, Ch. I, 9.

1) MURRAY.

2) WEBSTER.

plateau. The principal mountain ranges of Asia either form the boundaries of these lofty plateaus, or traverse their interior. Cas. Conc. Cycl.

rhinoceros. i. From their allies, the tapirs, the rhinoceroses differ in having only three toes on each foot. Harmsw. Enc.

ii. In his first day's shoot in Nepal, the King Emperor's bag included three tigers and three rhinoceros. Times, No. 1825, 1025d.

soprano. Italian soprani piped their Latin rhymes in place of the hymns which William the Pious and Doctor Luther sang. Thack., The Four Georges, I, 5.

stamen. i. In botanical use, a flower consists normally of one or more stamens or pistils (or both), a corolla and a calyx. Murray.

ii. There are valetudinarians in reputation as well as constitution, who, being conscious of their weak part, avoid the least breath of air, and supply their want of stamina by care and circumspection. Sheridan, School for Scand., I, 1, (370).

The bones are the stamina of animal bodies. Webst.

The ligneous parts of trees are the stamina which constitute their strength. lb.

stigma. If any Seneschal . . . had . . . endeavoured to palm upon posterity supposititious stigmata, I conceive the impostor would have chosen the Queen's cabinet and the bedroom for the scene of his trick. Scott, Fair Maid, Introd., 13.

These men . . . bore the stigmata of their punishment on their bodies. E. J. Dillon, The Breakdown of Turkey (Eng. Rev., Febr. 1912, 504).

stimulus. There are well-known cases in which great writers have had recourse to artificial stimuli. Westm. Gaz., No. 4967, 7b.

stratum. It is written only in the geologic strata — that fortunate day when a wave of the German Ocean burst the old isthmus, which joined Kent and Cornwall to France. Emerson, Eng. Traits, 84b.

syllabus. It has been embodied in the syllabuses drawn up by nearly all the School Boards. Rev. of Rev., CXCVII, 451b.

symposium. Shelley's rooms were generally chosen as the scene of their symposia. Symonds, Shelley, Ch. II, 26.

tableau. Pageant = a stage or platform on which scenes were acted or tableaux represented. Murray, s. v. pageant, 2.

thesis. His theses got into print. Rev. of Rev., CCVI, 128a.

10. a) Of a few foreign nouns which, in passing into English, underwent a slight change in the singular, there is, besides the regular English plural in s, a foreign plural also.

cherub (†cherubim, †cherubin) — cherubs or cherubim (†cherubin, †cherubims, †cherubins); seraph (†seraphim, †seraphin) — seraphs or seraphim (†seraphin, †seraphims, †seraphins);

bandit — bandits or banditti.

Note I. "Cherubin and plur. cherubins are the original English forms, as still in French. But, in the process of Biblical translation, 'cherubin has been supplanted by cherub, and cherubins has been 'improved' successively to cherubims or cherubim; while concurrently 'cherub has been popularly fitted with a new plural cherubs.'" Murray. The form history of seraph is probably analogous to that of cherub. The forms marked with a † are now obsolete (archaic) or vulgar (dialectal).

In the sense of a beautiful and innocent child and that of an image or picture meant to represent a celestial spirit, only the forms cherubs and seraphs are used.

It may be added here that also the Hebrew teraphim, a plurale tantum, is sometimes used as a singular, which may be pluralized regularly: teraphims. Besides these the Anglicized forms teraph and teraphs are met with.

II. Banditti, an Anglicized plural of the Italian banditi, "is more common than bandits, especially in reference to an organized band of robbers; in which sense it has also been used as a collective singular. In the 17th century this was taken as an individual singular, with plural in is (ies)." MURRAY. Also bandit is sometimes used in a collective sense.

cherub (seraph). i. * A cherub's face, a reptile all the rest. POPE, Prolog. Sat., 331.
Never seraph spread a pinion | Over fabric half so fair. POE, The Haunted Palace.

 As he lay in bed, face upward, he seemed to be nothing but a face — like a conventional cherubim. DICK., Cop., Ch. XXI, 153b.

Firing one day at some flying creature, he was very much dismayed, when it fell, to find that he had shot a cherubim. MRS. GASKELL, Cranford, Ch. XVI, 311.

 O, cherubin, | Thou wast that did preserve me. TEMP., II, 1, 152.

Turn thy complexion there, | Patience, thou young and rose-lipp'd cherubin, — | Ay, there, look grim as hell! Othello, IV, 2, 63.

ii. * And Mammon wins his way where seraphs might despair. BYRON, Child of Har., I, ix.

The cherubs painted on the scutcheon answered as well for her as for Sir Pitt's mother. THACK., Van. Fair, I, Ch. XIV, 151.

I... | From my high nest of penance here proclaim | That Pontius and Iscariot by my side | Show'd like fair seraphs. TEN., St. Simeon Stylites, 166.

 Then methought, the air grew denser, perfumed from an unseen censer | Swung by seraphim, whose footfalls tinkled on the tufted floor. POE, The Raven, XIV.
Perhaps the daintiest children seem but an earthly order of cherubim. ANSTEE, Vice Versa, Ch. X, 93.

The seraphim, according to the ancient Hebrew doctrine, were an order of angels who hovered round the throne of God on mighty wings, chanting His praises and bearing His messages to earth; their chief attributes were power and wisdom. The cherubim were silent, mysterious spirits, and are generally pictured as not of human shape — winged heads without bodies. ROWE and WEBB, Selections from Tennyson, Note to The Palace of Art, 133.

 To thee Cherubin, and Seraphin: continually do cry. Book of Com. Pray., Te Deum.

* Thou shalt make two cherubims of gold. EXODUS, XXV, 18.

There shall we be with Seraphims and Cherubims. BUNYAN, Pilgr. Progr., I, (147).
Rabbins tell us that the Cherubims are a Set of Angels who know most. Spectator, DC.

 There's not the smallest orb which thou behold'st | But in his motion like an angel sings | Still quiring to the young-ey'd cherubins. Merch. V, 1, 62.

teraph. Mrs. Tulliver's teraphim, or household gods. G. ELIOT, Mill, III, Ch. II.

bandit. i. Every baron in the land was a bandit. HOOD.¹⁾ ii. * He was one of those wild German bandits whom the Colonna held in their pay. LYTTON, Rienzi, I, Ch. II, 24.

At the foot of the stairs grouped some dozen of the bandits whom the old Colonna entertained. Ib., II, Ch. I, 74.

¹⁾ MURRAY.

 Banditti infest the beautiful shores of Campania. MAC., POPES, (558b).
The nobles supported themselves less as sagacious tyrants than as relentless banditti. LYTTON, Rienzi, I, Ch. II, 18.

Do you think, O blue-eyed banditti, | Because you have scaled the wall, | Such an old moustache as I am | Is not a match for you all. LONGFELLOW, The Children's Hour, VIII.

 Deer-stealers are ever a desperate banditti. SCOTT.¹⁾

 But Enid in their going had two fears, | One from the bandit scatter'd in the field, | And one from Edyrn. TEN., Ger. and Enid, 817.

- b) Cyclops is used in the singular by the side of cyclop. The corresponding plurals are cyclopes and cyclops. The singular cyclop is regularly used by POPE in his translation of the Odyssey. WEBSTER. Some writers have cyclopeses in the plural.

i. * Ulysses and his crew having reached the island of Sicily, strayed into the cave of Polyphemos, the giant Cyclops. BREWER, Read. Handb., 1156b.

I had felt early some stirrings of ambition, but they were the blind gropings of Homer's cyclops round the walls of his cave. BURNS, Letter to Dr. Moore, (53a).

A little cyclops, with one eye | Staring to threaten and defy. WORDSWORTH, To the Daisy, IV.

 In front of the helmet was a huge glass eye like that of a cyclop. MAC., Hist., Ch. XIX.¹⁾ ii. * In works of art the Cyclopes are represented as giants with one eye in their forehead. NETTLESHIP, Dict. Clas. Ant.

In 'Hesiod Theogony 140' we find three Cyclopes, who forged the thunderbolts for Zeus. LIDDELL and SCOTT.¹⁾

 The cyclops round the anvil suspend their ringing hammers. WASH. IRV., Sketch-book, The Stage Coach, (83b).

All the representations of the Cyclops make them the possessors of only one eye, situated in the centre of the forehead. CAS. CONC. CYCL.

 The one-eyed children of the Ocean God, | The man-destroying Cyclopeses. SHELLEY.¹⁾

- c) The semi-French portmanteau and purlieu, the latter a plurale tantum, mostly form the plural by adding s.

portmanteau. i. Feeling in his pockets for the keys of his portmanteaus. G. ELIOT, Felix Holt.¹⁾

She had not only emptied his purse, but his portmanteaus. THACK., Newc., I, Ch. XXVIII, 307.

The portmanteaus and carpet-bags have been stowed away. DICK., Pickw., Ch. XXVIII, 245.

ii. Violet's portmanteaux were packed. MISS BRADDON, Vivien III.¹⁾

Trunks and portmanteaux. TRUTH, No. 1802, 115b.

purlieu. Brokers had been incessantly plying for custom in the purlieus of the the Court. MACAULAY.²⁾

But his home was no longer in the ancient und picturesque *purlieu*s which he loved so well. Prefatory Memoir to Lamb's Poems and Essays (Chand. Clas.).

- d) Mr., short for Mister, has in the plural Messrs., an abbreviated form of Messieurs.

¹⁾ MURRAY. ²⁾ WEBSTER.

Note. Messrs. is now chiefly used as part of the name of a firm. Less frequent is the use of Messrs. as a title common to several gentlemen not constituting a firm, Mr. being mostly repeated before the name of each of the gentleman referred to. (17, c.)

SHAKESPEARE has one instance of monsieurs.

- i. The Messrs. Bell desire me to thank you for your suggestion respecting the advertisement. MRS. GASKELL, Life of Ch. Brontë, 228.
- ii. Lady Agnes voted the two Messieurs Pendennis most agreeable men. THACK., Pend., I, Ch. XVI, 176.
The Messrs. Foker and Pen strolled down the High Street together. Ib., Ch. III, 42.
Messrs. Tupman, Winkle and Snodgrass repaired to their several homes. DICK., Pick w., Ch. XXVI, 234.
- iii. A short time afterwards Mr. Chopper and Mr. Birch, the next clerk, were summoned. THACK., Van. Fair, I, Ch. XXIV, 250.
- iv. Now I would pray our monsieurs | To think an English courtier may be wise, | And never see the Louvre. HENRY VIII, I, 3, 21.

The plural of Madam(e) is Mesdames. This form is also employed to supply the want of an English plural of Mrs. In this latter application Mesdames is, however, rarely used, Mrs. being mostly repeated before each of the following proper names. When there is only one proper name common to a number of ladies, Mrs. is mostly placed before the plural of that proper name. (17b.)

A dialogue between Mesdames Bridget and Deborah. FIELDING, Tom Jones, I, Ch. VIII.

The two ugly elderly German favourites, Mesdames of Kielmansegge and Schulenberg, whom he created respectively Countess of Darlington and Duchess of Kendal. THACK., The Four Georges, I, 20.

- e) Esquimo is also spelled Eskimo, Esquimau and Esquimaux, the plural being spelled Esquimos and Esquimau. According to KRUISINGA, (A Gram. of Pres.-Day Eng., § 307, N.) the forms in o are also used in a plural or collective meaning.

The Eskimo rarely feeds his dogs in the summer time. HARMSWORTH Encycl.

It is an error to suppose that where an Esquimau can live, a civilized man can live also. CAPTAIN MC CLINTOCK.¹⁾

Thumbs and hands are given to an Esquimaux, as well as to scholars and surgeons. LYTTON, Caxtons, III, Ch. II, 58.

The early history lesson can be safely hinged on to the child's play-interest, and there will be no reluctance in learning of the surroundings and implements of ancient Briton, or of Roman, of Esquimaux, or of Arab. Rev. of Rev., CCXXIV, 172a.

- ii. One of my Esquimos started to the Pole. PEARY, Nearest the Pole.
The Eskimos are the primitive people inhabiting the region of N. America extending from Greenland to Alaska. HARMSWORTH'S Encycl.
The Esquimaux, pressed by hard necessity, have succeeded in many ingenious inventions. DARWIN, Descent of Man, Ch. V, 133.
- iii. These Esquimo called themselves Ogluli Esquimo.²⁾

11. Besides the nouns mentioned in 9, d, the following have two plurals with a difference in meaning or in use: brother — brothers —

1) WEBST. 2) KRUISINGA, Gram. of Pres.-Day Eng., § 307, N.

brethren, die — dies — dice, pea — peas — pease, penny — pennies — pence.

a) The ordinary plural of brother is now brothers.

The older form brethren is still used:

1) regularly to denote fellow-members of a Christian society or of the Christian religion as a whole: fellow-christians, co-religionists generally. In this meaning it is often used with inclusion of women.

Dearly beloved brethren, the Scripture moveth us in sundry places [etc.]. Book of Com. Pray.

He was somewhat given to over-severity to his weaker brethren. G. ELIOT, Sil. Marn., I, Ch. I, 6.

At this time the senior deacon was taken seriously ill, and being a childless widower, he was tended night and day by some of the younger brethren or sisters. Ib., I, Ch. I, 7.

2) almost regularly in certain proper names of Christian associations, most, if not all, of them used in conscious or unconscious allusion to The Brethren, as the members of the early Christian churches were called.

i. Farewell to the Brethren of St. James's Lodge, Torbolton. BURNS, Title of a Poem. (Compare with this the first lines of this poem: Adieu! a heart-warm, fond adieu! | Dear brothers of the mystic tie!)

It was the custom of their Lantern Yard brethren to call them David and Jonathan. G. ELIOT, Sil. Marn., I, Ch. I, 6.

The Brethren, or Plymouth Brethren have 25 places of worship in London. Whitaker's Almanac.

She had been brought up in the strictness of the Plymouth Brethren. G. MOORE, Esth. Wat., Ch. III, 21.

ii. The Rosicrucians . . . were often known as Brothers of the Rosy Cross. ANNANDALE, Conc. Dict.

3) a) regularly to denote fellow-members of a guild, corporation or order, and, by extension, persons of the same profession, trade or society, when there is no defining word(-group).

The general made certain of his young officers welcome at his table, a kind of hospitality which, I believe, is not now common among his brethren. THACK., Van. Fair, I, Ch. XXIV, 251.

The man of letters cannot but love the place which has been inhabited by so many of his brethren. Id., Pend., I, Ch. XXIX, 309.

One of the pleas which Congreve set up for himself and his brethren was that, though they might be guilty of a little levity here and there, they were careful to inculcate a moral, packed close into two or three lines, at the end of every play. MAC., Com. Dram., (585*b*).

John Murray has more knowledge of what concerns his business than any of his brethren. Athen.

β) When, however, the nature of the profession, trade, etc. is indicated by some word(-group), brothers not seldom takes the place of brethren. See especially the second of the following quotations.

i. The brothers of the whip exchange a pinch of snuff. CARLYLE, French Rev.

Gradually the name of Thackeray as one of the band of brethren was buzzed about, and gradually became known as that of the chief of the literary brothers. TROL., Thack., Ch. I, 22.

I and he, | Brothers in Art. TEN., Gardener's Daught, 3.

We are a cosmopolitan band of good brothers-in-arms here around Ladysmith. Daily Chron.

- ii. The persons least surprised at the Rev. Amos's deficiencies were his clerical brethren, who had gone through the mysteries themselves. G. ELIOT, Scenes, I, Ch. II, 19.

The strongest interests and the strongest feelings concurred to mitigate the hostility of those who had lately been brethren-in-arms. MAC., Mach., (36a). He acted what he thought and felt, with a directness rare among his brethren of the poet's craft. SYMONDS, Shelley, Ch. VIII, 182.

Iffley Lock and Mill is a favourite subject with the river-loving brethren of the brush. JEROME, Three Men in a Boat, Ch. XVIII, 232.

The impression made upon him by the warm welcome he received from his English brethren of the pen seems to have been a lasting one. Lit. World.

- 4) often to denote persons (animals) in the same case or position: comrades, fellows, companions, associates.

- i. O, my dear brethren and fellow-sojourners in Vanity Fair, which amongst you does not know and suffer under such benevolent despots? THACK., Van. Fair, I, Ch. XXXIII, 363.

Down, down with every foreigner, but let your brethren go. MAC., Lays, Ivry, 48.

Thou shalt not find the ministers of God are less eager than their lay brethren for the happiness of men. LYTON, Rienzi, I, Ch. V, 43.

She used to watch, | Near that old home, a pool of golden carp; | And one was patch'd and blurr'd and lustreless | Among his burnish'd brethren of the pool. TEN., Mar. of Ger., 650.

When the monasteries, the homes of the literary class, were filled with foreign monks, the superiors in education of their native brethren, the vernacular culture could not but suffer. BRADLEY, The Making of Eng., Ch. II, 32.

If they are proud of having beaten them, they are still prouder of having made them their political brethren. Graph.

Economically speaking, what I take from my brethren should go to my debit, only what service I do them, should go to the credit of my account. Stead's Annual, 1906, 23b.

Mr. Balfour was the first great sacrifice to the injured manes of our slaughtered brethren in South Africa. Rev. of Rev., CXCIV, 132b.

- ii. Oh God, to hear the insect on the leaf pronouncing on the too much life among his hungry brothers in the dust. DICK., Christm. Car., Ch. III, 62. The workmen in the great jewellers' shops struck, saying they had no grievance of any kind, but they could not continue to work when their brothers all over Russia were striking for liberty. Rev. of Rev., CXCI, 500b.

Pitt's noble heart was broken in striving that she (sc. Freedom) should not pass us for ever to take refuge with our brothers across the Atlantic. CON. DOYLE, Rodney Stone, I, Ch. I, 10.

Far away in the background were the glorious snow-capped Alps, with Monte Rosa and Grand Paradis towering above their brothers. CONWAY, Called Back, Ch. III, 33.

- 5) often in the literal sense of sons of the same parents, especially in poetry, and occasionally in prose to produce a humorous effect.

- i. And live at home in blameless ease; | For these my brethren's sake, for me | And, most of all, for Emily. WORDSWORTH, White Doe, II, 60.

Call not thy brothers brethren. BYRON, The Deformed transformed, I, 1. And Both my brethren are in Arthur's hall. TEN., Gar. and Lyn., 81.

- ii. It was not until he remitted considerable sums of money to England, that the bankers, his brethren, began to be reconciled to him. THACK., Newc., I, Ch. V, 57.

Thus frequently in comparisons:

- i. You should live together in one house, like brethren and friends. SWIFT, Tale of a Tub, Sect., II.
I pray you all to live together | Like brethren. TEN., Queen Mary, IV, 3, (631*b*).
ii. The Romans were like brothers | In the brave days of old. MAC., Lays, Horatius, XXXII.

Note. The Authorised Version has only brethren, irrespective of meaning. According to AL. SCHMIDT brothers and brethren are used indiscriminately by SHAKESPEARE. SWIFT also observes no difference in The Tale of a Tub.

- i. And Joseph knew his brethren, but they knew him not. Genesis, XLII, 8.
But be not ye called Rabbi: for one is your Master, even Christ; and all ye are brethren. Matthew, XXIII, 8.
ii. Thou hast a better place in his affection | Than all thy brothers: cherish it my boy, | And noble offices thou mayst effect | Of mediation, after I am dead, | Between his greatness and thy other brethren. Henry IV, B, IV, 4, 22ff.
b) Dice is the modern spelling of Middle English dys, in like manner as lice and mice are the modern spellings of the Middle English lys and mys. (6).

This spelling with ce came into use in the transition from Middle English to Modern English, and served the purpose of showing that the original breath-sound of the sibilant had been retained. At that time it had become the general practice to pronounce breathed s, th and f with voice in weak syllables. Especially was this the case with the sibilant in inflectional es, as in the genitive singular mannes (Modern English man's) and the plural stones. The breath-sound was then retained for the s in strong monosyllables like ges and pens (Modern English geese and pence), also in such words as hennes, ones, twies (Modern English hence, once, twice), which at that time seem to have already become monosyllabic.

The Middle English dys was used chiefly in a collective sense, the singular being rare before the time of SHAKESPEARE; so that the s may not have been felt as a mark of the plural. Hence the use of dice as a singular (a dice) and of dices as a cumulative plural, down to the 17th century. Compare truce, a concealed plural (14). SWEET, N. E. Gr., § 861 and § 997; SKEAT, Etym. Dict., s. v. die, hence, etc. MURRAY, s. v. die; NESFIELD, Hist. Eng., § 109, N.

The form dice is now chiefly used in the meaning of the Dutch dobbelsteen, dies in that of muntstempels.

- i. The immensity of the stake which he was hazarding on a most uncertain die DISRAELI.¹⁾ ii. * Dice-player = one who plays or gambles with dice. MURRAY.
France and Austria were both playing with coggled dice. MORLEY.¹⁾
 Protesting never to touch a card or throw a dice again. Mrs. E. HEYWOOD.¹⁾
 Ne at the dices with him to play. Bk. Curtasye.¹⁾

¹⁾ MURRAY.

iii. The dies used for the 3 d. and 5 d. New South Wales stamps have been in use for forty years. Times.

- c) The form pease is chiefly used in a collective sense, but is also found preceded by a number-indicating word. Conversely peas, though mostly denoting separate seeds, is not infrequently met with in a collective sense. Many writers use the spelling peas throughout.

i. *He is as like him as two peas. THACK., Van. Fair, I, Ch. XXIX, 302.

 How vulgar it is to eat peas with a knife. Id., Sam. Titm., Ch. III, 36.
Wharton devoted himself to his green peas. Mrs. WARD, Marcella, II, 208.
We also put in a cabbage and about half a peck of peas. JEROME, Three men in a Boat, Ch. XIV, 179.

ii. * In each bladder was a small quantity of dried pease. SWIFT, Gulliver's Trav., III, Ch. II, (165*b*).

 She was much interested in the prospect of a few pease and cabbages as in former days she had been in the culture of expensive flowers.
G. MOORE, Esth. Waters, Ch. XLIX, 327.

- d) For the rise of the spelling pence see the observation under dice.

The form pence is the only one used when the value is meant, but is not infrequently met with also when the coin is referred to. The form pennies always indicates coins. The plural of halfpenny seems to be usually halfpence. Names of coins ending in pence form the plural regularly by adding s. Thus also any multiple of penny is pluralized when considered as a unit. MURRAY, s. v. penny, B, 1, c.

i. * The books cost him only eight pence each.

Bardolph stole a lute-case, and sold it for three halfpence. Henry V, III, 2, 47.

 Many people had, after hard begging, thrown her pence. EDNA LYALL, We Two, I, 21.

How many pounds of copper are there in a million of pence, each weighing an ounce? YOUNG, Arithmetic.

 William Wood of Wolverhampton obtained in 1723 a patent authorising him to coin halfpence and farthings to the value of £ 108000. D. LAING PURVES, Life of Swift, 29.

He rattled his halfpence in his pockets as he walked home. (?), M. d. Leroux, Ch. XIII.

He disinterred all the cheese and halfpence he had buried in the garden. DICK., Barn. Rudge, Pref.

I shall show you that, on many occasions, he gave halfpence, and on some occasions even sixpences. DICK., Pickw., Ch. XXXIV, 310.

* "Here, you little beggars," Dobbin said, giving some sixpences amongst them. THACK., Van. Fair, I, Ch. XXII, 229.

 How many eightpences go to a sovereign?

ii. These pieces obtained the appellation of gold pennies, gold halfpennies, and gold farthings, WALTER MERREY (RICHARD BITHELL, Merchant's Dict., s. v. penny).

He distributed silver pennies to be kept as a memento of the occasion. Times.

13. Some nouns, though properly singulars, have been mistaken for plurals:

Alms is now mostly construed as a plural in ordinary language. In literary language it is, however, sometimes treated as a singular, in accordance with the Early Modern English practice. See especially JESP., Growth and Structure, § 187:

- i. Beggars that come into my father's door | Upon entreaty have a present alms.
Taming of the Shrew, IV, 3.

Who seeing Peter and John about to go into the temple asked an alms. Acts, III, 3.
He was engaged in conversation with a beggar man that had asked an alms of him. Spectator, CCLXIX.

I have enough to give and enough to keep; as large a daily alms as a deacon gives would never be missed by me. SCOTT, Fair Maid, Ch. VI, 66.

And Enoch set himself, | Scorning an alms, to work whereby to live. TEN., En. Arden, 807.

We ask an alms before some city gate. W. MORRIS, Earthly Par., Cupid and Psyche, 99a.

A round £ 100000 is a goodly alms. 11. Lond. News.

- ii. His wealth | A fountain of perennial alms. TEN., Queen Mary, II, 1, (600b).
An outcast mother of the street stretched out of her rags a brown hand and arm, asking alms for the sake of the little children. G. MOORE, Esth. Wat., Ch. XX, 144.
He didn't see anything, but put out his hands towards me as if asking alms. Punch.

Eaves is now always construed as a plural. From the supposed plural a new singular has been formed, which is, however, as yet rarely met with. (13, c.)

- i. The eaves rest commonly on small arcades or corbel-tables. FREEMAN.¹⁾

There was no counting now on Lord Ormont's presence in the British gathering seasons, when wheat-ears wing across our fields or swallows return to their eaves. GEORGE MERED., Lord Ormont, Ch. III, 43.

The swallows sported about the eaves. WASH. IRV., Dolf Heyl.

- ii. The water trickles to the eave and then drops down. TYNDALL.¹⁾

Forceps, from the Latin forceps, plural forcipes, although properly a singular, is sometimes construed as a plural, and, accordingly, used with the individualizer pair (36): on the table lay a forceps, these forceps are very easy to handle, a pair of forceps.

Some writers also have forcepses for the plural. The form forcep, as the name of one of the branches of the prehensile organs in certain animals, is now obsolete.

- i. One of two posterior legs is converted into a forceps. DARWIN, Descent.¹⁾

- ii. These forceps can seize firmly hold of any object. Id., Origin of Species.¹⁾

- iii. Dunstan caught his sable majesty by the nose with a pair of red-hot forceps. COBH. BREW., Read. Handb., s. v. Dunstan.

- iv. Then must the tooth be taken hold of with some of these toothed forcipes. T. JOHNSON.¹⁾

- v. The eggs at the origin of each forceps would contain but one forcep. Univ. Magaz.¹⁾

- vi. Tridactyle forcepses certainly exist on some star-fishes. DARWIN, Origin of Species.¹⁾

Riches, an adaptation of the Old-French richeise, is always construed as a plural. "The conversion into the plural form may have been assisted by Latin divitiæ." MURRAY.

What signify riches, my dear friend? — do they not take unto themselves wings, as the wise man saith? SMOL., Rod. Random, Ch. XVI, 101.

¹⁾ MURRAY.

Note. Summons (Middle English somouns, from the Old French semonce), though apparently a plural, is a true singular and is usually construed as a singular. It has a regular plural: summonses. According to HODGSON (*Errors*⁸, 144), summonses has fallen into disrepute, summons being also used for the plural.

- i. His summons carries no kind of compulsion with it. ESCOTT, England, Ch. XXV, 465.
- ii. During a couple of hours David had but three summonses from below to attend to. Mrs. WARD, Dav. Grieve, I, 229.
There were three summonses just taken out by the sanitary inspector against Mr. Boyce. Id., Marcella, I, 135.
The Prime Minister yesterday issued summonses to his colleagues to attend a further Council for this week. Daily Chron.
We are not disposed to regret the outcome of the cross-summonses which arose from the very disgraceful disturbances at the time of the Chelmsford election. Westm. Gaz.

13. a) In some cases a new singular has been coined from the supposed plural by divesting the latter of the plural termination. EARLE, Phil., § 381; NESFIELD, Hist. Eng., § 116.

Burial, from Mid. English burieils. When the e was changed to a in Mod. English, burials seemed to be a plural like victuals, vitals, espousals, etc.

Cherry, from Mid. English cheris.

Pea, from Mid. English pese, plur. pesen or peses. Pease may be apprehended as a singular in many compounds (31), such as pease-meal, peas(e)-cod (= peapod), pease-pudding. In some the form pease varies with pea, as in pea(se)-bloom, pea(se)-blossom, pea(se)-soup.

Marquee, from Mod. English marquees, a modified spelling of French marquise.

Riddle, from Mid. English redels.

- b) In some words the process has not yet been fully accomplished.

Assets is from the Anglo-French assetz, in the law-phrase aver assetz (= to have sufficient, viz. to meet certain claims). Assets, regularly treated as a plural, is still the ordinary form, but asset as a singular is by no means uncommon.

- i. His mother, Donna Inez, finding, too | That in the lieu of drawing on his banker, | Where his assets were waxing rather few, [etc.]. BYRON, Don Juan, X, xxxi.
Lenders wish to have their assets as available as they can. ROGERS, Polit. Econ., Ch. XV, 213.
A man's property and sums owing to him are called his assets. Sir R. G. C. HAMILTON and JOHN BALL, Book-keeping, 5.
- ii. One of the most valuable assets that Great Britain possesses, is the coal of the South Wales mining fields. Daily Mail.
To prevent the sale to a foreign and not over-friendly Power of an asset that would add enormously to the efficiency of its navy. Ib.
Hitherto the Queen Alexandra has been regarded more or less as an ornamental asset of the Empire. Rev. of Rev., CXCI, 583a.

In the event of a dissolution of partnership the value of any existing insurance as an asset can be ascertained and dealt with as with any other asset. Weekly Statement of Mut. Life Ins. Comp.

Chicken is in some dialects felt as a plural, of the type of oxen, which causes chick to be used as the singular. We also find it occasionally regarded as a kind of collective noun of the type of cattle. For the rest chick is generally understood as a diminutive of chicken, and, accordingly it often denotes the young bird still in the egg or only just hatched. Figuratively chick often stands for young child. When an article of food is meant, chicken is the only word; conversely the form chick is regular in the phrase (n)either chick (n)or child. Note also peachick as the only form. ALFORD, The Queen's English, § 44; SATTler, E. S., XII; SWEET, N. E. Gr., § 1967.

- i. * As East remarked, he cackled after him like a hen with one chick. HUGHES, Tom Brown, II, Ch. II, 218.
The female of the cassowary pays court to the male and leaves him to incubate the eggs and care for the young chicks. Rev. of Rev., CCXI, 58b.
Now and again a kestrel will take to eating the chicks of pheasants. Westm. Gaz., No. 5231, 4c.
 Why should any one exchange with me — a poor, blind, gouty old creature, with no chick or child to care whether she lives or dies? Mrs. WARD, Lady Rose's Daughter; I, Ch. I, 14a.
In earlier days rich had he been and great, | But had no chick or child to bless his house. W. MORRIS, Earthly Par., The Story of Rhodope, XII.
 John no one thwarted, much less punished; though he twisted the necks of the pigeons, killed the little pea-chicks. CH. BRONTË, Jane Eyre, Ch. II, 11.
* It was not long, however, before the chicks proved to be the bringers of revenue instead of more cares and larger expenses to the modest household. T. P.'s Weekly, No. 474, 713c.
- ii. Children and chicken must ever be picking. HAZLITT, Eng. Prov.¹⁾
Do you keep chicken? DEAN ALFORD, The Queen's English.
- iii. We had a chicken for dinner. Ib.

Kickshaws (= Dutch li flapjes) is a corruption of the French quelque chose. "The original French spelling was frequent in the 17th century, "but the commonest forms follow the pronunciation que'que chose, "formerly regarded as elegant and still current in colloquial French. The word "was sometimes correctly taken as singular, with plural -choses etc.; more "commonly it was treated as a plural, and a new singular kickshaw afterwards "formed from it." MURRAY. The word occurs only twice in SHAKESPEARE, once under the form of kickshaws in Henry IV, B, V, 1, 29, where it may be understood as a singular; and once under the form of kickshawses in Twelfth Night I, 2, 122.

- i. * A kinde of daintie dish or quelque chose used in Italie. FLORIO.²⁾
 Making quelque-choses of unsavoury Meat. MOUFET and BENNET.²⁾
- ii. He despised your French kickshaws. THACK., The four Georges, III, 80.
I hate your kickshaws, though I keep a French cook for those who are not of my way of thinking. Id., Sam. Titm., Ch. VII, 75.
- iii. The Chef is instructing a kitchen-maid how to compound some rascally French kickshaw. Id., G. Cruikshank.²⁾

1) MURRAY, s. v. chicken, 6. 2) Id., s. v. kickshaws.

- iv. Some pigeons, Davy, a couple of short-legged hens, a joint of mutton, and any pretty little tiny kickshaws, tell William cook. Henry IV, B, V, 1, 29.

Art thou good at these kickshawses, knight? Twelfth Night, 1, 2. 122.

- c) Some newly coined singulars have not as yet found their way into the literary language.

Such are eave from eaves (13), shay from chaise, and Chinee, Portuguese, etc. from Chinese, Portuguese, etc. STORM, Eng. Phil., 800.

shay. "How shall we go?" — "It's too* warm to walk." — "A shay?" suggested Mr. Joseph Tuggs. "Chaise", whispered Mr. Cymon. "I should think one would be enough", said Mr. Joseph Tuggs aloud, quite unconscious of the meaning of the correction, "However, two shays, if you like." Dick., Sketches.¹⁾

Master sent me over with the shay-cart to carry your luggage up to the house. Id., Pickw., Ch. XXVIII, 248.

Mr. MIDDLEWICK (a retired butlerman). My boy'll be here soon; I sent the shay. — SIR GEOFFREY CHAMPNEYS (a county magnate). Sent the what? — MID. The shay — the shay. — SIR G. Oh, the chaise? — MID. No, only one of them. H. J. BYRON, Our Boys, 1, 1.

Chinee. For ways that are dark | And for tricks that are vain, | The heathen Chinee is peculiar. BRET HARTE, Plain Language from Truthful James, 1.

"You boys have no taste whatever; one might as well play to — to —". She paused for a comparison. "To the heathen Chinee," suggested her companion. EDNA LYALL, DONOVAN, 1, 55.

Portuguese. I had an attack of fever and was in a bad way generally, when one day a Portugee arrived with a single companion — a half-breed. Now I know a Delagoa Portugee well. RIDER HAGGARD, Sol. Mines, 25.

14. In some nouns plurality has got disguised through orthography, with the result that they are construed as singulars.

Baize (= Dutch baai) stands for bayes, baies, etc., which are adaptations of the French baies, a plural of the feminine form of the adjective bai used as a noun. Bai = chestnut-coloured; compare *a*bay horse*.

Bodice for stands bodies, the ce representing the earlier pronunciation of the final s (11, b). "The original phrase (was) a pair of bodies. Even with "the spelling bodice the word was formerly (like pence, mice, dice, truce) "treated as a plural." MURRAY. Bodice has developed a new plural: bodices.

Chess represents the Old French and Anglo-French eschecs, the plural of eschec, of which there are many secondary forms.

Pox is an an absurd spelling for pocks; compare the illiterate sox for socks. The singular form still appears in pock-marks. The plural pox occurs chiefly in the compounds chicken-pox (= Dutch waterpokken), cow-pox (= Dutch koepokken) and small-pox (= Dutch kinderpokken), which seem to be ordinarily construed as singulars. HODGSON, Errors⁸, 144. Cowpock, etc. are, apparently, only in vulgar use for cowpox, etc.

¹⁾ FRANZ, E. S. XII.

i. I have just heard that there is a shocking chicken-pox in the village. MAR. EDGEWORTH.¹⁾

Cowpox is transferred to man and from one person to another by the introduction of a virus. FLINT.¹⁾

Small-pox was raging in the neighborhood. Graph.²⁾

ii. If I hadn't a family, and that family hadn't the cowpock. DICK., Cop., Ch. V, 35a.

Poultice represents the Latin pultes, plural of puls = thick pap, or pap-like substance.

Sledge is, apparently, a re-spelling of sleds, plural of sled, the word still used in Canada for sledge. The spelling sledge may have come into use through the influence of sledge in sledge-hammer.

Trace is probably a re-spelling of the French traits, the plural of trait = line. The form traces would then be a double plural.

Truce might be spelled trews as the Modern English representative of the Middle English trives, and its variants, meaning pledges of truth. The spelling ce has to be accounted for as that of dice. (11, b.)

They had nothing now to fear from the Turk, for they had concluded a truce with him. CH. KINGSLEY, Westw. Ho!, Ch. XXIX, 218a.

Welkin represents the Middle English wolkne, welkne and many more variants.

"Well done, men of Devon!" shouted Amyas, as cheers rent the welkin. CH. KINGSLEY, Westw. Ho!, Ch. XX, 152a.

15. In forming the plural of compound nouns and substantival word-groups, except such as contain a noun placed in apposition to another noun (17), only the last member receives, as a rule, the mark of plurality: brother-officer — brother-officers, penny-a-liner — penny-a-liners, forget-me-not — forget-me-nots, go-between — go-betweens, ne'er-do-well — ne'er-do-wells, three-year-old — three-year-olds, merry-go-round — merry-go-rounds, etc. The situation will be changed . . . in such a way as to increase the work of the Lieutenant Governors. Westm. Gaz., No. 4949, 1c.

In the next race were seen the well-known three-years-olds Le Nord and Alloway. Graph.

The custom of the Temple obliging each novice to give a dinner to some brother Templars, embarrassed him at first. STEPH. GWENN, Thom. Moore, Ch. I, 19.

She had evidently held his displeasure as a rod in pickle over the heads of all the ne'er-do-wells. MRS. GASKELL, Cranford, Ch. V, 94.

A Governor General is a governor who has under him deputy- or lieutenant governors. MURRAY.

Note. Also compounds of ful(l) mostly follow this rule, but sometimes we find the mark of the plural attached to the first member of the compound, the word ful(l) being kept in the singular.

i. Two handfuls of marbles. MORRIS, Eng. Accidence, § 78, k.

There were calves still young enough to want bucketfuls of fragrant milk. G. ELIOT, Silas Marner, Conclusion, 156.

ii. At seven in the morning, in bed, a tumbler of new cream and two tablespoonsful of rum. DICK., Letters.³⁾

1) MURRAY. 2) SATTLER, E. S., XVI. 3) TEN BRUG., Taals., VI.

Then came two donkeysful of children. THACK., Newc., I, Ch. XXVII, 302.
When there was a stoppage and boiling water could be obtained, bucketsfull of tea were made and poured down their throats. CONWAY, Called Back, 187.

In such a sentence as We had our hands full of work (MORRIS, Eng. Accid., § 78, k), hands and full are, of course, detached words. A similar interpretation may also be put on:

There was such a crowd you might have thought it was a Derby day. Several coaches full of ministers of all denominations. THACK., Newc., I, Ch. V, 55.

16. To the rule described in 15 there are the following exceptions:

- a) Word-groups (or compounds) in which, after the French idiom, the adjective is placed after the noun (Ch. VIII, 87, a) mostly have the mark of the plural attached to the noun.

The rule holds good chiefly in the literary language, i. e. when the nature of the adjective as an adnominal modifier is distinctly understood.

But in the popular language in which the individual meaning of the noun and the adjective is not distinctly felt, we observe a tendency to put the inflection at the end. SWEET, N. E. Gr., 1019. This seems to apply especially to knight-errant and court-martial. According to MURRAY attorney generals is 'better' than attorneys general.

- i. The children of brothers and sisters are usually denominated cousins, or cousins-german. WEBST., Dict.

Book-prices current is rapidly becoming the most extensive, as it has long been the best, of books of bibliographical reference. Not. and Quer. These battles royal between him and Lady Henry were not uncommon. Mrs. WARD, Lady Rose's Daught., I, Ch. V, 42a.

It is, certainly, a very singular accident, that a small society as that of Merton should have sent out two successive Governors-General of Canada. Sir G. C. LEWIS.¹⁾

Youth, we are damsels-errant, and we ride, | Arm'd as ye see, to tilt against the knights | There at Caerleon. TEN., Pelleas and Ettarre, 61.

The purpose of this little book is to provide for schools a simple outline of the rise, expansion, and present form of those National Institutions, of which all English children are already the heirs-apparent. ANNA BUCKLAND, Our National Institutions, Preface.

Augusta was not prepared to find knights-errant thus prepared, at such cost to themselves, to break a lance in her cause. RID. HAGGARD, Mees Will, Ch. IV, 36.

It was an object in search of which numerous knights-errant spent their lives. WEBST., App., s. v. St. Graal.

Cnut's courts martial really exercised this kind of jurisdiction. FREEMAN.¹⁾

- ii. Without waiting the judgment of court-martials. STEELE, Spect., CCCCXCVII.¹⁾

From what giants and monsters would these knight-errants undertake to free the world? BERKELEY.¹⁾

Note. SHAKESPEAPE has letters-patents (Rich. II, II, 1, 202; ib., II, 3, 130; Henry VIII, III, 2, 250); but the modern practice is to attach the mark of the plural only to the noun.

¹⁾ MURRAY.

- b) Compounds consisting of a noun and a prepositional word-group or an adverb, have the noun placed in the plural: commanders-in-chief, fathers-in-law, heirs-at-law, men-at-arms, quarters-of-an-hour, bills of fare;

blowings-up, callings-over, hangers-on, knockers-up, lookers-on, lyings-in, standers-by, whippers-in.

i. He had the honour of singing his songs at the tables of the most illustrious generals and commanders-in-chief. THACK., Pend., I, Ch. V, 58, He bethought him of all the hours, half-hours, and quarters-of-an-hour during which she had been employed in her pretty task. WILLIAM BLACK, The New Prince Fortunatus, Ch. XXI.

ii. I dare say thou hast often admired its magnificent portals ever gaping wide, and disclosing to view a grave court, with cloisters and pillars, with few or no traces of goers-in or comers-out. LAMB, Essays of Elia, South-Sea House, 3.

Breakings-up are capital things in our school days, but in after life they are painful enough. DICK., Pickw., Ch. XXX.

At length, after several droppings asleep and fallings forward towards the bars, and catchings backward soon enough to prevent being branded in the face, Mr. Dowler made up his mind that he would throw himself on the bed in the back-room and think — not sleep of course. Ib., Ch. XXXVI, 336.

The punt-about is the practice-ball, which is just brought out and kicked about anyhow from one boy to another before callings-over and dinner. HUGHES, Tom Brown, I, Ch. V, 93.

(I) Delight myself with gossip and old wives | And ills and aches, and teetings, lyings-in. TEN., Holy Grail, 564.

He sends forth to his clergy either blessings or blowings-up, according to the state of his digestive organs. TROL., Framl. Pars., Ch. III, 25.

- c) Some compounds or word-groups in which one noun stands adnominally before another noun, have both members placed in the plural. This is the case:

1) when the adnominal noun is in the genitive: bird's-nest — birds'-nests, lady's costume — ladies' costumes, fox's tail — foxes' tails, gentleman's umbrella — gentlemen's umbrellas.

Your hair reminds me of eagles' feathers; whether your nails are grown like birds' claws or not, I have not yet noticed. CH. BRONTË, Jane Eyre, Ch. XXXVII, 537.

Farmers' sons are apeing fine gentlemen, and farmers' daughters caring more to make bad music than good English cheeses. HUGHES, Tom Brown, I, Ch. II, 89.

Mr. Crawley returned a note with her compliments, an an intimation that it was not her custom to transact bargains with ladies' maids. THACK., Van. Fair, I, Ch. XXXII, 345.

Note. Not infrequently do we find the genitive singular:

There were three peacock's feathers displayed over the mantelpiece. DICK., Cop., Ch. V, 38a.

Though he had not reached his fortieth year, he had already crow's feet about his eyes. G. ELIOT, Broth. Jac., 395.

We had been sowing dragon's teeth at the Diamond Fields, and the old harvest was springing from them. FROUDE, Oceana, Ch. III, 52.

A measure which it is asserted has practically dried up all Peter's pence in France. Rev. of Rev., CXCVII, 454b.

Convolvulus minor and major are florist's names of well-known garden annuals. MURRAY, s. v. convolvulus.

King Midas has ass's ears. Cas. Conc. Cycl., s. v. Midas.

- 2) Sometimes when the attributive noun denotes a particular condition, function, status, employment or use (Ch. XXIII, 5c; 9).

It is especially the following nouns that have both members in the plural number:

- a) such as have man or woman, or a compound of either, for their first member.

The keeper of a chandler's shop in a front-parlour, who took in gentlemen-boarders, lent his assistance in making the bed. DICK., Little Dorrit, Ch. VIII, 45a.

He lived in a little street near the Veterinary College in Camden Town, which was principally tenanted by gentlemen-students. Id., Copa, Ch. XXVII, 199a. The women-servants, who were about the place, came to look and giggle at me. Ib., Ch. V, 35b.

It was one of her practices to have the women-servants for half an hour every Sunday afternoon in the library and instruct them in the life of Christ. G. MOORE, Esth. Wat., Ch. III, 27.

Their tradesmen papas were sometimes ready to deal on favourable terms with Mrs. Frederick. Mrs. WARD, Marcella, I, 15.

Eight of the women suffragists are released from Holloway Gaol. Rev. of Rev., CCIV, 657a.

Note. Sometimes we find the adnominal noun kept in the singular. One of the most eminent of our woman astronomers has passed away in Miss Elizabeth Brown. II. Lond. News.

Woman suffragists in Wall-Street. Times, No. 1822, 959b. (According to WENDT, Synt. des heut. Eng., woman suffragists is more common than women suffragists.)

- β) Such as have knight, lord, and, perhaps, some other titles for their first member. SWEET, N. E. Gr., § 1019.

The priory of St. John of Jerusalem, the chief seat in England of the Knights-Hospitallers, was founded in the year 1700. WALT. BESANT, London, I, 16. On the first day of Michaelmas sittings the Lords Justices, when they march up Westminster Hall, wear black robes, liberally sprinkled with gold lace. ESCOTT, England, Ch. XXIV, 415.

The Lords-Lieutenants and their Deputies held the command under the King. Mrs. WARD, Marcella, I, 287.

They both were Lords Marchers, whose lands lay on the border of Wales. GOSSE, Gray, Bard, Note to 14.

After this the order of knights-bannerets was allowed to die out. MURRAY, s. v. banneret.

Note. Occasionally we find the mark of the plural attached only to either the first or the last noun.

- i. It was also agreed that the association should consist of Lords-Lieutenant of counties in England and Wales. Daily Chron.

Peers, Bishops, Lords-Lieutenant of counties, Members of Parliament, clergy of all demominations will be good enough. Mrs. HUMPHREY, Etiquette, 16.

He defended the impartiality of the Lords-Lieutenant. Westm. Gaz., No. 5060, 2b.

- ii. He prated about his own affairs and past splendour, and all the lords, generals, and Lord-Lieutenants he had ever known. THACK., Pend., I, Ch. V, 59.
Two Knight Templars. TEN., Dram. Pers. to Becket.

The Lord Chancellors are raised to the peerage. ANNA BUCKLAND, Our Nat. Inst., 14.

There are five ordinary judges in this court, who are called Lord Justices. Ib., 60.
That a Radical Ministry should employ the Crown to induce the Lord-Lieutenants to undertake a new and somewhat distasteful duty is entirely in accordance with the ideas of modern democracy. Rev. of Rev., CCXV, 442b.

It is interesting to observe the nice shade of difference in the meaning of the adnominal nouns in the following quotation. In the first it is understood as that described under c), in the second as that described under b) in Ch. XXIII, 5.

- i. They often recruited their banditti garrisons by banditti soldiers. LYTTON, Rienzi, I, Ch. II, 20.
ii. His principedom | Close on the borders of a territory, | Wherein were bandit earls, and caltiff knights. TEN., Ger. and En., 35.

Compare with the first of the two above quotations:

The election is notable, too, from the fact that two Suffragists candidates who stood, polled respectively 22 and 32 votes. Westm. Gaz., No. 5484, 5b.

Note. In this connection mention may also be made of the compounds menkind and womenkind, denoting the men or women belonging to a particular circle or establishment, as distinct from mankind, the human species or the male sex, according to the accent; and womankind, the female sex. Instead of womenkind the form womankind is very common. MURRAY gives no instances of mankind in the sense of menkind. For menkind and womenkind we also find menfolk and womenfolk.

- i. * I had breakfasted with the Family, and the Men-kind were gone abroad. in C. MATHER, Magn., Ch. VI, 12.1)
, Where the family meals take place, and where the Basque menkind are served first. MONTH.1)

 It is quite a mistake to imagine that the heroines of sensational fiction live more crowded and romantic lives than real women. Take for instance those who go with their menfolk to far corners of the Empire, where the latter are playing the parts of watchdogs of civilisation. Westm. Gaz., No. 5137, 15b.

- ii. * The womenkind were busy with their domestic avocations. GORDON HOLMES, Silvia Craven, 14.

 Chafing under the persecution which his womankind had inflicted upon him. THACK., Pend., II, Ch. XIX, 211.

He hurried out of his house to his chambers, and to discharge the commissions with which the womankind had intrusted him. Id., A Little Dinner at Timmins's, Ch. VI.

She was at any rate their natural guardian in those matters, relating to womenkind. MRS. WARD, Marcella, I, 159.

 The womenfolk don't understand these things. JEROME, Idle Thoughts, VIII, 121.

If the Anglo-Indian official, and especially his women-folk, could realise that, a good deal of the trouble in India would disappear. Rev. of Rev., CCXXXI, 205b.
What about the man in the street, the railway guard, the 'bus conductor, the cabman, the humbler clerks, and their womenfolk . . .; will they get beyond one visit? Westm. Gaz., No. 4961, 12a.

1) MURRAY.

Here, at any rate, was a revival of old days, with women-folk paying flattering attentions. W. PETT RIDGE, New Scheme, (Westm. Gaz., No. 4983, 3c.) Any man who shows the white feather, runs every risk of being killed by his womenfolk. Il. Lond. News, No. 3669, 239.

17. a) Word-groups consisting of a class-noun and a proper name standing in apposition to it, mostly have the mark of the plural attached to the former, at least in the formal literary style.

The Misses Osborne were excellent critics on a Cashmere shawl. THACK., Van. Fair, I, Ch. XII, 117.

Yonder are the Misses Leery looking out for the young officers of the Heavies. ib., I, Ch. XXII, 229.

The Misses Plaskwith. LYTON, Night and Morn., 62.

I would collect evidence and carry it home to lay before my father, as the family friend of the two Misses Jenkyns. Mrs. GASKELL, Cranford, Ch. XII, 221. She had a countess coming, an honourable John and an Honourable George, and a whole bevy of Ladies Amelia, Rosina, Margaretha, etc. TROL., Barch. Tow., Ch. XXXV, 307.

The Messrs. Bell desire me to thank you for your suggestion respecting the advertisement. Mrs. GASKELL, Life of Charl. Brontë, 228.

The Ladies Devenish were not disposed to make her life any easier than it needed to be. FLOR. MARRYAT, A Bankr. Heart, I, 230.

This book is an attempt to revive the fairy-tale after the manner of the brothers Grimm. Manch. Guardian.

The sisters Findlater. Rev. of Rev., CCVI, 216b.

- b) In the spoken language some of these words-groups, have the mark of the plural attached to the proper name. SWEET, N. E. Gr., § 1020.

I will alter this: this shall be altered, were there ten Mrs. Yorkes to do battle with. CH. BRONTË, Shirley, II, Ch. XVI, 329.

The Miss Crumptions, or to quote the authority of the inscription on the garden-gate: 'The Misses Crumpton' [etc.]. DICK., Sketches, The Misses Crumpton.

Are there Mrs. Nicklebies — or, to speak more correctly, are there Mistresses Nickleby in France? THACK., Dickens in France.

It was remarked that the young Master Gashleighs, when they came home for the holidays, always wore lacquered highlows. Id., A Little Dinner at Timmins's, Ch. VI, 337.

The Miss Notleys. Id., Pend., I, Ch. XXIX, 316.

The two doctor Thomsons. SWEET, N. E. Gr., § 1020.

Such things are never forgotten by the Mrs. Paches of this world. Mrs. BELLOC LOWNDES, Jane Oglander, Ch. VI, 88.

This practice is, however, impossible when the different members of one and the same family are referred to, and the proper name is mentioned only once.

Mr., Mrs. and the Misses Johnson.

The very blackest view is the one taken by the numerous Mrs. and Misses Grundy, to say nothing of the almost equally numerous Grundys, Esq.¹⁾

Compare this with the varied practice in: Sir Thomas Clubber, Lady Clubber, and the Miss Clubbers. PICKW., Ch. II, 13.

Mrs. Smithie, Mrs. Smithie, and the Misses Smithie. ib.

1) KRUISINGA, A Gram. of Pres.-Day Eng., § 315.

Note I. In some combinations the popular language often transposes the two nouns, so that the mark of plurality may be conveniently placed at the end. (Ch. IV, 13.)

The Smith brothers. SWEET, N. E. Gr., § 1020.

The Dodson sisters. G. ELIOT, Mill, III, Ch. III, 197.

II. The reason why in such word-groups as Doctor Thomson, King William, etc. the mark of the plural is often attached at the end, may be that the common noun in this position loses to a large extent the character of head-word and becomes an adjunct-word, which causes it to assume more or less the character of an adjective. In fact King William differs but little from Royal William. Ch. IV, 4 Obs. I. Ch. XXXI, 53. See also SWEET, N. E. Gr., § 90.

The placing of the mark of the plural at the end has, moreover, the effect of uniting the two nouns into a kind of compound.

- c) When the class-noun refers to persons bearing different names, it is placed in the plural, if it is not repeated before each proper name. (10, d.)

Messrs. Snodgrass, Winkle, and Tupman, all smile in company. DICK., Pickw., Ch. XXVIII.

Messrs. Pendennis and Bows. THACK., Pend., II, Ch. XI, 123.

Young Masters Alfred and Edward clapping and hurrying by his side. Id., Newc. I. Ch. XVI, 183.

The emperors William and Francis Joseph. Times.

Lieutenants Walton and Sword. Ib.

Generals Buller and Warren. Morn. Lead.

Drs. Johnson and Smith.

Thus also when the proper names are preceded by two class-nouns, as in:

So the bishop was searched for by the Revs. Messrs. Grey and Green. TROL., Barch. Tow., Ch. XLII, 368.

USE.

18. From their meaning a great many nouns are used only or chiefly in the plural, either absolutely, or exclusively in certain significations or combinations.

This plural meaning, however, is not always distinctly felt, so that we meet with not a few instances in which, although the plural form of the noun is retained, its constructions are that of a singular. The orderly discussion of this matter belongs of right to the Chapter on Concord, but has, for practical purposes, been incidentally given in this Chapter à propos of the several nouns concerned.

For want of a convenient English word, nouns that are used only in the plural are often called by the Latin name of pluralia tantum, singular plurale tantum.

According partly to their meaning, partly to their origin, the pluralia tantum have been divided into certain groups. Especially owing to this twofold principle of division some have found a place in two or more groups. When necessary, these have been discussed or illustrated where it seemed most convenient to do so.

The nouns that are usually placed in the plural only in certain of their meanings, the singular being quite usual in others, are discussed in a separate §. This has also been done with such as have the plural for their ordinary form only in certain collocations.

19. The nouns of which the plural is the only or usual form are chiefly the following:

a) the names of certain articles of dress, chiefly for the lower limbs, and of certain tools or instruments consisting of two conspicuously symmetrical or equal parts, or mostly used in pairs, such as:

- 1) breeches, breeches, chausses (now usually pronounced as in Mod. French), *cuisse*s, drabs (= drab breeches), drawers (similarly swimming-drawers), ducks, (galli)gaskins, greaves, knee-smalls (= knee-shorts), knickerbockers (often shortened to knickers), *pantaloon*s, pumps, *rational*s (g) (= bloomers), leathers, *overall*s, shorts (g), small-clothes, smalls (g), spatterdashes, stays, tights (g), trousers, trunks (20) (= trunk-hose (8a), Dutch poftbroek).
- 2) bellows, bilboes, calipers (= caliper compasses), chains (20), compasses (20), derbies, eye-glasses (20), fetters, gives (= gyves), handcuffs, irons (20), leading-strings, manacles, *nutcracker*s (20), pincers (= pinchers), pliers, reins, scales (20), scissors, shackles, shears, snuffers, spectacles (20), tongs, trammels, tweezers.

Note I. After a numeral or the indefinite article these nouns require to be preceded by the individualizer pair. (36.) See, however below. Analogously a pair of corsets is sometimes used for a corset.

II. Bellows is mostly construed as a singular: the bellows wants mending, a bellows is a kind of instrument. In some dialects it has received a second plural: bellowses.

But we also find it construed as a plural and preceded by the individualizer pair (36): the bellows want mending, he has ordered another pair of bellows. After a numeral pair is, however, mostly dispensed with: two pair(s) of bellows, more usually: two bellows.

Also some of the other nouns mentioned above, are sometimes treated as singulars: a scissors, a trousers.

Very rarely are the singulars of most of the above words met with. Eye-glass, however, seems to be in common use for eye-glasses. See also STORM, Eng. Phil.², 686.

III. Breeches is a cumulate plural, the Old English brēc forming its plural by mutation: brēc. This brēc came afterwards to be considered as a singular, as in:

But in our childhood our mothers maids haue so terrified vs with an ouglie diuell hauing hornes on his head, fier in his mouth, and a taile in his breech. REGINALD SCOT, Discovery of Witchcraft, VII, Ch. XV.

CH. KINGSLEY has breeks archaically in:

Thou art no old tarry-breeks of a sea-dog. Westw. Ho!, Ch. XXX, 229b.

Compare also: My coat and my rest, they are Scotch o' the best, | O' pairs of quid breeks I cae twa, man. BURNS, The Forbolton Lassies, XVIII.

barnacles. i. The barnacles are the handles of the pincers placed over and enclosing the muzzle. YOUATT, Horse XXI, 457.¹⁾ ii. One on' em's got his legs on the table, and is a drinkin' brandy neat, vile the t'other one—him in the barnacles—has got a barrel o' oysters atween his knees. DICK., Pickw., Ch. XXX, 266.

bellows. i. Flattery is the bellows blows up sin. Pericles, I, 2.

Suppose the reverse—the enthusiasm gone to dust, or become a wheezy old bellows. GEORGE MERED., Lord Ormont, Ch. III, 61.

Bagpipe: a musical wind-instrument consisting of a leathern bag which receives the air from the mouth or from a bellows. ANNANDALE, Conc. Dict.

You want to be something better than a bellows. W. BESANT, All Sorts and Cond. of Men., Ch. XXXV, 239.

ii. When the disease was more stubborn and violent, he let in his nozzle while the bellows were full of wind. SWIFT, Gul. Trav., III, Ch. V, (174b).

iii. He had a large pair of bellows, with a long slender nozzle of ivory. Ib., III, Ch. V, (174b).

Twelve pair of Bellows, rang'd in stated row, | Are joined above, and fourteen more below. MASON.¹⁾

iv. The lungs are like two elastic bellows. RIPPMMANN, Sounds of Spok. Engl., § 4. The walls were hung with bright dish-covers, warming-pans, quaint old bellows and kitchen implements. EDNA LYALL, Hardy Norseman, Ch. XVIII, 150.

v. Twenty bellowses in all he had. HOBBS.¹⁾ bilboes. You sha'n't go to the bilboes this bout. SMOL., Rod. Rand., Ch. XXIII, 166. A magician keeps me here in bilboes for which you have no picklock. CH. KINGSLEY, Westw. Ho!, Ch. XXIX, 219b.

chains. The gentleman is in chains already. GAY, Beg. Op., III.

compasses. Fix one point of a pair of compasses at B, and with the distance BO sweep a circle. TYNDALL, Glac. of the Alps, Ch. II, 16.

cuisses. And all his greaves and cuisses dash'd with drops | Of onset. TEN., Morte d'Arthur, 215.

derbies. Just hold out the hands while I fix the derbies. CON. DOYLE, Sherl. Holm., I, 97.

drabs. The latter (sc. the sporting Winkle) communicating additional lustre to a new green shooting coat, plaid neckerchief, and closely-fitted drabs. DICK., Pickw., Ch. I.

ducks. At Auckland there came on board in white ducks, which hung on his emaciated form like clothes on a prop, a man to all appearance in the last stage of consumption. Times.

eye-glasses. i. "She has her notions, you know", said Mr. Brooke, sticking his eye-glasses on nervously. G. ELIOT, Mid., V, Ch. XLIX, 357.

ii. "My dear Chettam, it won't lead to anything, you know", said Mr. Brooke, seating himself and sticking on his eye-glass again. Ib., V, Ch. XLIX, 358.

galligaskins. He was generally seen trooping like a colt at his mother's heels, equipped in a pair of his father's cast-off galligaskins. WASH. IRV., Rip van Winkle.

¹⁾ MURRAY.

He had somehow picked up a troop of droll children, little hatless boys with their galligaskins much worn. G. ELIOT, Mid., V, Ch. XLVI, 342.

CLOWN. I am resolved on two points. — MAR. That if one break, your gaskins fall. Twelfth Night, I, 6, 27. (a pun on the word points, which Maria takes in the meaning of tags used for keeping up the breeches.)

greaves. The sun came dazzling thro' the leaves | And flamed upon the brazen greaves | Of bold Sir Lancelot. TEN., Lady of Shalott, III, 1.

irons. The tyrant sent him up the country in irons. MAC., Clive.

knee-smalls. (He) played some part in blue silk knee-smalls. DICK., Nich. Nick., Ch. XXIII.

knee-shorts. A very dusty skeleton in a blue coat, black knée-shorts, and silks, fell forward in the arms of the porter. Id., Pickw., Ch. XXI.

leggings. So by way of indemnification, Mr. Weller contorted his features from behind the wheelbarrow, for the exclusive amusement of the boys with the leggings. Id., Ch. XIX, 165.

overalls. He was dressed in a tarnished green travelling-jacket, with a broad belt round his waist, and a pair of overalls, with buttons from the hips to the ankle. WALH. IRV., Sketch-Bk., XVI, 150.

pantaloons. My pantaloons were made a good eighteen months before. THACK., Sam. Titm., Ch. I, 8.

pumps. It was quite painful to see how humble and civil he was to John of the Tapioca, a blear-eyed old attendant in dingy stockings and cracked pumps. Id., Van. Fair, I, Ch. XX, 208.

rationals. The criminal law was invoked against poor Mrs. Spragne in order to decide whether innkeepers may or may not refuse to serve ladies in 'rationals'. Times.

reins. Bulstrode holds the reins and drives him. G. ELIOT, Mid., V, Ch. XLVI, 344.

scissors. i. I have paid fifteen-and-six for a silver scissors. THACK., Sam. Titm., Ch. II, 21.

. Here is the scissors. BAIN, Comp., 295.

ii. Tom saw her go at once to a drawer, from which she took out a large pair of scissors. G. ELIOT, Mill, I, Ch. VII, 54.

shorts. It was a pleasant sight to behold Mr. Tupman in full Brigand's costume... the upper portion of his legs encased in the velvet shorts. DICK., Pickw., Ch. XV, 131.

smalls. Very few people but those who have tried it, know what a difficult process it is, to bow in green velvet smalls. Id., Ch. XV, 133.

shackles. The shackles of an old love straitened him. TEN., Lanc. and El., 870.

trunks. Equally humorous and agreeable was the appearance of Mr. Snodgrass in blue satin trunks. DICK., Pickw., Ch. XV, 131.

spectacles. On the whole it appears . . . | That the spectacles plainly were made for the Nose | And the nose was as plainly intended for them. W. COWPER, Report of an Adjudged Case, VI.

stays. Margaret clasped her stays across her plump figure. G. MOORE, Esth. Waters, Ch. II, 10.

tights. Marley in his pig-tail, usual waistcoat, tights and boots. DICK., Christm. Car., I, 17.

Did you ever dance in tights? WALT. BESANT, All Sorts and Cond. of Men, Ch. XXX.

trammels. Now when the wine has done its rosy deed, | And every soul from human trammels freed. KEATS, Lamia.

At last, Cowper threw off the whole trammels of French criticism and artificial refinement. FRANCIS JEFFREY, Ess., Ford (Univ. Libr., 49).

If a man can so write as to be easily understood, and to convey lucidly that which he has to convey, without accuracy of grammar, why should he subject himself to unnecessary trammels. TROL., Thack., Ch. IX, 199.

trouser(s). i. Besides the clothes in which you see me, I have scarcely a decent trousers in my wardrobe. STEVENSON.¹⁾ ii. My first glance is always at a woman's sleeve. In a man it is perhaps better first to take the knee of his trouser. CON. DOYLE, Sherlock Holmes, I, 123.

b) the names of certain parts of the human or animal body, which are made up of several more or less separate parts, such as:

bowels, entrails, (eye)-lashes, fauces, gums, guts, intestines, lights (g, 2), loins, numbles (= entrails of a deer), posteriors (h), viscera (h), whiskers, withers.

Note. The singulars bowel, (eye)-lash, gum, gut, intestine and viscus are occasionally met with, especially as medical or scientific terms, and when a defining adjective precedes, as in the little (small) gut, the great (large) gut, the small intestine, the large intestine. Also whisker is found in the singular, apparently in the same sense as the plural whiskers.

bowel(s). i. The seat of the disease, namely the bowel. NATURE.²⁾

ii. Scrooge had often heard it said that Marley had no bowels, but he had never believed it until now. DICK., Christm. Car., I, 18.

A place where Miners live, who labour in the bowels of the earth. Id., III, 74.

(eye)-lash(es). i. She fought him (sc. sleep) to the last eye-lash. HARPER'S *Mag.*²⁾

ii. Looking through their fingers or their eye-lashes. TYNDALL.²⁾ gum(s). i. * The hiss of such a consonant as the blade-fan-open... is formed not only between blade and gum, but also between the sides of the tongue and the back teeth. SWEET, Sounds of Eng., § 128.

In some languages, as in English, t, d, n are not strictly dental, but alveolar;

i. e. the contact is with the gum close behind the teeth. MURRAY, s. v. dental, 2.

 She had small teeth and a good deal of gum when she smiled. Queer Stories (Truth No. 1800, 1676b).

ii. The gums extend from the teeth-rim to the arch-rim. SWEET, Princ. Phon., § 31.

gut(s). i. They (sc. the fæces) may lie in any part of the great gut. J. M. DUNCAN.²⁾

ii. A king may go a progress through the guts of a beggar. Hamlet, IV, 3, 34.

intestine(s). i. I was about to tell him I had never seen a wounded intestine. SMOL., Rod. Rand., Ch. XXII, 110.

The duodenum is that part of the small intestine which immediately succeeds the stomach. The rectum is that part of the large intestine which opens externally. HUXLEY.²⁾

ii. The contents of the stomach and intestines were of a similar nature.²⁾ *Med. Journ.*²⁾ lights. The lungs, or as they are vulgarly termed lights, are eaten as a part of the pluck or fry. E. SMITH, Food.²⁾

1) GÜNTHER, Man., § 374. 2) MURRAY.

loins. In Britain we are girding up our loins for a war with the Lords. Rev. of Rev. CCV, 3a.

thews. For nature crescent does not grow alone | In thews and bulk. Haml., I, 3, 12.

That fierce and sturdy giant, who, in all popular commotions, towered above his tribe, with thews of stone, and nerves of iron, stood now colouring and trembling. LYTTON, Rienzi, I, Ch. X, 59.

Miss Thorne made up her mind . . . to trust . . . to the thews and sinews of native Ullathorne growth. TROL., Barch. Tow., Ch. XXXV, 312.

viscus(-era). i. He well says that probably no limb, no viscus is so far a vessel of dishonour as to lie wholly outside the renewal of the spirit. Westm. Gaz., No. 5335, 8d.

ii. Viscera = the contents of the great cavities of the body, as of the head, thorax and abdomen; but especially those of the abdomen, as the stomach, intestines, etc. WEBST., Dict., s. v.

whisker(s). i. Sir Brian had a bald head and light hair, a short whisker cut to his cheek, a buff waistcoat, very neat boots and hands. THACK., Newc., I, Ch. VI, 68.

ii. In face Hobson Newcome, Esq., was like his elder brother, but he was more portly in person. He allowed his red whiskers to grow wherever nature had planted them. Ib., I, Ch. VI, 69.

withers. Let the galled jade wince, our withers are unwrung. Haml., III, 2, 255.

Mr. Lowther may well say, . . . that his withers are unwrung, and there, so far as he is concerned, the incident is at an end. Westm. Gaz., No. 5549, 1c.

- c) the names of certain physical or mental derangements, such as: chills, creeps, dismals (g), dumps, fidgets, glanders, gripes, horrors (20), hysterics (g), jerks, jumps, measles, mumps, pathetics (g), pouts, rickets, shakes (20), shivers, sullens (g), staggers, sulks, tantrums, thrills (20), vapours (20).

Note I. Probably these nouns are, at least partly, construed as singulars, but the evidence is scanty. See the quotations with glanders and measles. Compare also HODGSON, Errors⁸, 144.

II. Of some of them the singular form is also in occasional use.

III. Blues is a contraction from blue-devils in the meaning of depression of spirits.

IV. Vapours has almost disappeared from the language.

V. All the above nouns, except glanders and measles, belong to the colloquial or the vulgar language.

VI. After the indefinite article or a numeral they are preceded by one or the other of the individualizers fit or spell. (36.)

blues. I see you are awfully in the blues. Mrs. ALEX., For his Sake, II, Ch. VIII, 142. (Compare: I am very blue at times. Ib., II, Ch. II, 38.)

blue-devils. I must get to work or the blue-devils will get the better of me. EDNA LYALL, Donovan, II, 250.

chills. It gave me the chills to think of killing him. CON. DOYLE, The Sign of Four.¹⁾

¹⁾ Drie Talen, XXIII, 146.

creeps. She was constantly complaining of the cold, and of its occasioning a visitation in her back, which she called the 'creeps'. DICK., Cop., Ch. III, 20a. It gave one just the creeps to listen to her crying and moaning. G. MOORE, Esth. Waters, Ch. XVII, 106.

dismals. What business have you to indulge in a fit of the dismals on this gala-day? EDNA LYALL, To right the wrong.¹⁾ (= low spirits, dumps, blues.) The learned serjeant considered it advisable to undergo a slight relapse into the dismals before he concluded. DICK., Pickw., Ch. XXXIV, 311. (= dismal subjects, a sense not recorded by MURRAY.)

dumps. She is in the doleful dumps because her father was not in sufficient agonies of grief at parting with her last night. Mrs. ALEX., A Life Interest, II, Ch. II, 24.

glanders. Glanders has broken out in the American mules remount-farm at Stellenbosch. Times.

gripes. The cold water will give the baby the gripes for certain. G. MOORE, Esth. Waters, Ch. XIX, 129.

horrors, jumps. "I've got 'em agin Bill, I've got 'em agin". — "Got what agin?" growled Bill. "What's the matter now?" — "It's the jumps, Bill", gasped the other, "the 'orrors — they've got me and no mistake". ANSTEY, Vice Versa, Ch. XVI, 302.

jerks. Tea-time and Miss Pross making tea, with another fit of the jerks upon her. DICK., Tale of two Cities, II, Ch. VI, 119.

measles. Measles is a disease which, when it occurs in healthy children, is attended by only an insignificant mortality. Times.

Fiscal malady may be a brief measles, which we shall get over, or a virulent disease, which will be incurable for years. Westm. Gaz.

pouts. If you gets the young men at the quintain, you'll have all the young women in the pouts. TROL., Barch. Tow., Ch. XXXV, 308.

shivers. You give me the shivers. ANNIE BESANT, Autobiography, 4. Cold shivers went down Trilby's back as she listened. DU MAURIER, Trilby, I, 99.

staggers. To buy a horse for a £10 note, to sell it for £20; then to buy it back for £5 by pointing out that it had the staggers. Rev. of Rev., CXCVI, 418b.

sulk(s). i. For a week or fifteen days her continued sulk excited little suspicion. G. MOORE, Esth. Waters, Ch. XI, 63.

ii. The whole of her first year was one continual series of sulks, quarrels and revolts. Mrs. WARD, Marcella, I, Ch. I, 6.

sullens. We can speak a little to it, being ourself but lately recovered — we whisper it in confidence, reader — out of a long and desperate fit of the sullens. CH. LAMB, Last Es. of Elia, Popular Fallacies, (397).

tantrums. He might strike her dead in the midst of her tantrums. CH. BRONTË, Jane Eyre, Ch. II, 8.

The squabbles and the cabals, the sulks and the tantrums of Ministers, even in an English cabinet, are remarkably like the carryings-on in the servants' kitchen. Rev. of Rev., CCIII, 477a.

thrills. To be signalled to in a marked manner by a strange young lady of great personal attractions might be a coveted distinction to other schoolboys, but it simply gave Mr. Bultitude cold thrills. ANSTEY, Vice Versa, Ch. XI, 313.

He had thrills of horror every ten yards at the idea of the supernatural things he was about to witness. W. W. JACOBS, Odd Craft, B, 39.

vapours. The man has got the vapours in his ears, I believe: I must expel this melancholy spirit. FARQUHAR, Rec. Off., I, I (256).

¹⁾ MURRAY.

Wine can clear the vapours of despair. GAY, Beggar's Opera, III. He rose refreshed at an earlier hour than usual; and what he considered a fit of vapours of the previous night was passed away. LYTTON, Night and Morn., 455.

d) the names of certain games, such as:

all-fours, billiards, cards, checkers, draughts, fives, forfeits, graces, letters, marbles, ninepins, quoits, skittles.

Note I. Probably also these nouns are, at least partly, construed as singulars. See especially the quotations under billiards.

II. Ninepins has developed a new singular, which in its turn admits of being pluralized like an ordinary noun.

all-fours. Ham had been giving me a lesson in all-fours. DICK., Cop., Ch. III, 16b.

billiards. Billiards is played in England on an oblong table, 13 ft. long by 6 ft. broad. Harmsworth Encycl., s. v. billiards.

Billiards is usually played by two persons. Ib.

Nor is billiards a game which puts much muscular strain on the players. Westm. Gaz., No. 5361, 4c.

cards. Mrs. Mirvan was at cards. MISS BURNLEY, Evelina, Ch. XI, 26.

Cards are a temporary illusion. CH. LAMB, Mrs. Battle's Opinions on Whist.

fives. Men were playing at fives. THACK., Pend., I, Ch. XXXI, 340.

forfeits. There were more dances, and there were forfeits. Christm. Car., II, 39.

letters. We sat round a large table and played at 'letters', sedulously 'shuffling' the handsome capitals as we gave each other long jaw-breaking words. Whyte Melville.¹⁾ ninepins. i. To play at ninepins.

ii. Will you see an English nobleman knocked about like a ninepin? *New Monthly Magaz.*²⁾

He knocked his adversaries down one after the other like so many ninepins.

GORDON HOLMES, Silvia Craven, 19.

The author sets up his four ninepins. GOSSE.³⁾ skittles. Life is not all beer and skittles. HUGHES, Tom Brown, I, Ch. II, 40.

e) the names of certain substances, such as:

ashes, coals, curds, dregs, embers, groats, grounds, grouts, hards (= herds, hurds), hops, husks, lees, molasses, oats, sediments, slops, soapsuds.

Note I. The singular ash, although much less frequent than the plural ashes, is pretty common, particularly in speaking of cigars or pipes. Especially in scientific language it is sometimes found preceded by the indefinite article. The singular is regular in the names of certain varieties, and in compounds, such as volcanic ash, black ash, bone-ash, copper-ash, pearlash, potash (but wood-ashes). In transferred meanings, on the other hand, it is only the plural form that is used. MURRAY; SATTLER, E. S., XVI.

¹⁾ MURRAY, s. v. letter, 1d. ²⁾ FLÜGEL, s. v. ninepin.

³⁾ JESPERSEN, Growth and Structure, § 189.

II. Coal in the meaning of a piece of carbon glowing without flame is often used as an ordinary object-noun, with an indefinite article and with an ordinary plural. In the usual meaning of a kind of mineral the singular is now more common than the plural, and almost the only form when a defining word precedes, as in digged (earth, pit, sea, stone, etc.) coal, brown (black, cannel, cherry, parrot) coal. Thus also charcoal. The plural is, however, regular in certain expressions, such as to heap (cast, gather) coals of fire on the head of a man (Compare Bible, Rom., XII, 90) (= to produce remorse by requiting evil with good), to blow the coals (= to fan the flames of passion, etc.), to blow hot coals (= to rage fiercely), to stir coals (= to excite strife or ill-feeling), to carry (bear) coals (= to do dirty or degrading work, to submit to humiliation or insult), to haul (call, have) over the coals (= to call to task), to carry coals to Newcastle. In the second meaning coal is found with an indefinite article in the sayings as black as a coal, a cold coal to blow at (= a hopeless task to perform), and in dialects also to denote a piece of coal generally. MURRAY.

III. Curd and ember are not infrequently found as object-nouns with an indefinite article.

IV. Grout is also met with in the singular.

V. Hards (hurds) is sometimes construed as a singular. MURRAY.

VI. Hop as a singular is used chiefly to denote the plant, the plural form being to all appearance regular when the ripened cones of the female hop-plant are meant.

VII. Lees is sometimes construed as a singular.

VIII. Oat is found in the singular only in the sense of oat-plant, the more usual form, and when preceded by a defining adjective denoting a variety, as the white oat, the false oat. MURRAY. Note the expression to sow one's wild oats, and its variations.

ashes. i. * "T is not poverty that's the hardest to bear, or the least happy lot in life," said Mr. Addison, shaking the ash out of his pipe. THACK., Henry Esmond, II, Ch. XI, 350.

 Everything is covered with a white ash, which in the photograph^s looks like snow. Chamb. Mag.¹⁾

Gun-cotton leaves no ash or fouling matter. Ib.¹⁾

The wood-fire makes no soot, and leaves only a white ash as clean as the flame itself. Graph.¹⁾ ii. * A thousand villages to ashes turn. ADDISON, The Campaign.

The brands were dying, | Amid their own white ashes lying. COLERIDGE, Christabel, 157.

He knocked the ashes out of his pipe. DICK., Cop., Ch. LI, 365b.

The woman who had left on a door-step the little pot of hot ashes [etc.]. Id., Tale of Two Cities, I, Ch. V, 44.

Pickwick, who has choked up the well, and thrown ashes on the sward. Id., Pickw., Ch. XXXIV, 311.

 Even before the funeral rites had been performed over the ashes of Pius the Sixth, a great reaction had commenced. MAC., Popes, (562a).

And from his ashes may be made | The violet of his native land. TEN., In Memoriam, XVII, 1.

1) SATTLER, E. S., XVI.

-  Alas, alas! we poor mortals are often little better than wood-ashes. G. ELIOT, Scenes, II, Ch. I, 79.
- coal. i. * "I heard but an indistinct noise," said the youth, his face glowing like a heated coal. SCOTT, Fair Maid, Ch. XI, 60.
One man can put the live coal in a right place. CH. KINGSLEY, Herew., Ch. XVIII.
He threw a large coal at him. MURRAY, s. v. coal, 5, b.
 Coal was already the ordinary fuel in some districts. MAC., Hist., I, Ch. III, 312.
Both coal and coke are sent off as wanted. ESCOTT, England, Ch. IX, 123.
Within are vast stacks of coal, of coke and fire-bricks. Ib.
Summers-Howson would naturally be unwilling to tempt his assistant to burn more coal than was absolutely necessary. BARRY PAIN, Culminating Point.
- ii. * A piece of Flesh broiled on Coals. ADDISON.
The fire-wood was burnt into embers, or live coals. DE FOE, Rob. Crusoe.¹⁾
On the coals I lay, | A vessel full of sin: all hell beneath | Made me boil over.
TEN., St. Simeon Stylites, 166. (Comp. Bible, Revelation, IX.)
 He said that they should have no more coals if they came to hear you preach.
G. ELIOT, Middlemarch.²⁾
A roaring fire, composed of something short of a bushel of coals. DICK., Pickw., Ch. XIV, 119.
 When you ask for Wallsend coals, see that you get them. All the Year Round.²⁾
* I knew by that service the men would carry coals. Henry V, III, 2, 50.
Publicola damned one poor man to a wretched immortality, and another was called pitilessly over the coals, because he had mixed a grain of flattery with a bushel of truth. TROL., Thack., Ch. II, 82,
What do you think of his having had me over the coals this evening? DICK., Little Dorrit.³⁾
- curd(s). i. This acid transforms the milk into a curd. J. BAXTER.
ii. He has a decided liking for curds. HUGHES, Tom Brown, I, Ch. II, 23.
- dregs. The dregs of a battle, however brilliant, are ever a base residue of rapine, cruelty and drunken plunder. THACK., Henry Esme., II, Ch. XII, 255.
Jingoism is the ultimate product of the drivelling brain of the dregs of our people. Rev. of Rev., CCI, 256a.
Sir Wilfrid returned to his warm room and the dregs of his tea. Mrs. WARD, Lady Rose's Daught., I, Ch. V, 39b.
- ember(s). i. And each separate dying ember wrought its ghost upon the floor.
POE, The Raven, II
ii. When the embers sank to a dull red, I undressed hastily. CH. BRONTË, Jane Eyre, Ch. IV, 28.
War in Spain is a fire which cannot be raked out; it burns fiercely under the embers. MAC., War of the Succession, (255a).
- grout(s). i. Wherefore should we turn the grout | In a drained cup? ROSSETTI.⁴⁾
ii. Old women might have told fortunes in them better than in grouts of tea.
DICK., Little Dorrit, Ch. V, 28b.
- hards. These Regalia were smuggled out by a clergyman's wife under a quantity of hards of lint. SCOTT.⁴⁾
- hop(s). i. The hop is remarkable among the Nettle family for its twining stem.
OLIVER.⁴⁾
ii. *The planting of hops increased much in England during this reign. HUME.⁴⁾
 When they smelt the hops, it seemed as if their throats were tightened. WALT. BES., All Sorts and Conditions of Men., Ch. IV, 43.

1) MURRAY, s. v. coal. 2) SATTLER. 3) Drie Talen, XXIII, 147. 4) MURRAY husk(s). i. It is certain that, as Christianity passes beyond its mediæval phase, and casts aside the husk of out-worm dogmas, it will more and more approximate to Shelley's exposition. SYMONDS, Shelley, Ch. V, 101.

"It's true enough in the main," he said, "master: I could sift grain from husk here and there, but let it be as it is." DICK., Chimes³, II, 52.

ii. There were husks in his corn, that even Game Chickens couldn't peck up. Id., Domb., Ch. XII, 206.

Often the husks of acorns are mixed with the meal to add to the volume of this awful food. Rev. of Rev., CCVI, 118a.

lees. i. He scrawled upon a wall with his finger dipped in muddy wine-lees — blood. DICK., Tale of Two Cities, I, Ch. V, 44.

I will drink life to the lees. TEN., Ulysses, 7.

And no sooner have you passed the straps over your shoulder than the lees of sleep are cleared from you. STEVENSON, Walking Tours (W. PEACOCK, Sel. Ess., 537).

ii. The wine of life is drawn, and the mere lees | Is left this vault to brag of. Macb., II, 3, 100.

molasses. Don't think, young man, that we go to the expense of flower of brimstone and molasses just to purify them. DICK., Nich. Nickleby, Ch. VIII, 44a.

oat(s). i. * I was prepared to undertake the superintendence of the oat from its birth to its reaping. GRANT ALLEN, Hilda Wade, Ch. VII, 194.

 Had the wild oat not been sown, | The soil, left barren, scarce had grown | The grain by which a man may live. TEN., In Memoriam, LIII, II.

ii. * Oats in their tongue are called 'hunnh'. SWIFT, Gul. Trav., IV, Ch. II, (192b).

In the United Kingdom oats are the chief crop. Graph.

 He will sow his wild oats. THACK., Van. Fair, I, Ch. X, 97.

I've pretty well done with my wild oats. G. ELIOT, Mid., IV, Ch. XLI, 306.

f) many words in ing derived from gerunds, especially when denoting a substance that is the product of an action, or anything thought of as the subject of an action, such as:

bearings, belongings, clippings, cuttings, diggings, drainings, earnings, hangings, incomings, leavings, lodgings, losings, outgoings, parings, savings, scrapings, soundings, surroundings, sweepings, trappings, trimmings, winnings, workings.

Note I. Most of these are virtually only a variety of those mentioned under e). It is hardly necessary to observe that the product of the action may also appear as a singular object so that some of the above nouns are also used as ordinary object-nouns with an ordinary singular and plural.

II. In this connection mention may also be made of innings, which, although not formed from a verb to in, is yet felt as a plural verbal noun of the type of surroundings. It is ordinarily construed as a singular, i. e. has the finite verb of which it is the subject in the singular, and is frequently found with the indefinite article. No evidence is available to show what is the form of the modifying demonstrative pronoun. See also STORM, Eng. Phil.², 686.

III. Bearings is used as a more or less strict plurale tantum in different shades of meaning: α) devices upon an escutcheon: armorial bearings; β) supports: the bearings of a floor; γ) parts of a machine which bear the friction: to oil the bearings; δ) relative positions of surrounding objects, especially in the phrases to take (lose) one's bearings (= Dutch poolshoogte nemen, de kluts kwijt raken).

IV. Diggings is sometimes treated as a singular (MURRAY); i. e. it is occasionally found with the indefinite article. Note also that diggings is colloquially used in the sense of lodgings, quarters.

bearings. i. In the twelfth century armorial bearings were invented. BUCKLE.¹⁾ ii. Each floor lying upon the horizontal bearings furnished by these ledges. SMEATON.¹⁾

iii. Heated bearings in machinery may be relieved by the use of graphite as a lubricator. Print. Trades Journ.¹⁾

iv. All bearings herein given are magnetic. Merc. Mar. Mag.¹⁾

v. He had utterly lost his bearings. EDNA LYALL, A Hardy Norseman, Ch. VI, 53. He was in the act of taking his bearings by such landmarks as were still visible. FRANKF. MOORE, The Secret of the Court, 6.

At dawn of September 6, 4.20 a. m., the first bearings of the day were taken. Grisnez bore south-west by south, and Calais east-south-east. Times, No. 1840, 713c.

belongings. She was learning to love Cranford and its belongings. Mrs. GASKELL, Cranford, Ch. XII, 230.

clippings. The tin clippings are wastefully thrown into the river. Manch. Guardian.¹⁾ cutting(s). i. A cutting from the City Press of May 31. Notes and Quer.

ii. Dirty cuttings from the shambles at three-ha'pence a pound. LAMB.¹⁾ diggings. i. * The diggings, as they term the places where the lead is found, were about sixteen miles distant. MARRYAT.¹⁾

 We took out the hamper and started off to look for diggings. JEROME, Three men.¹⁾ ii. It was a goldfield and a diggings in far-away Australia. BOLDEWOOD.¹⁾ drainings. You would like your baby to have the best of everything, and the drainings of any bottle that's handy. G. MOORE, Esth. Waters, Ch. XVIII, 117.

earnings. In him woke | With his first babe's first cry, the noble wish | To save all earnings to the uttermost. TEN., Enoch Arden, 86.

It was my pride to bring him up on my earnings. G. MOORE, Esth. Waters, Ch. XXII, 154.

hangings. She set fire to the hangings of the room next her own. CH. BRONTË, Jane Eyre, Ch. XXXVI, 526.

"Where am I?" cried Irene, rising from the couch. "This room — these hangings — Holy Virgin! do I dream still! LYTTON, Rienzi, I, Ch. VI, 47.

incomings. The incomings and outgoings of his private purse are faithfully set down. Westm. Gaz., No. 5249, 4b.

innings. i. On Saturday the Englishmen's first innings was completed for 312. Times.

The Englishmen's innings was finished off for the addition of six runs. Id.

The innings was declared closed. Daily Mail.

ii. The county were therefore victorious by an innings and 22 runs. Times.

At the Oval on Wednesday Kent were beaten by an innings and 345 runs. Id.

journeyings. In the course of his two months' journeyings the President is expected to deliver no fewer than seventy-five set speeches. Times.

1) MURRAY.

leavings. Their leavings made a luxurious supper for all the waiters. Graph.¹⁾ lodging(s). i. She has a lodging at the turnkey's. Dick., Little Dorrit, Ch. VIII, 45a.

For months past David had been hoarding up a few in his lodging. Mrs. WARD, David Grieve, I, 310.

ii. They hired quiet lodgings in the neighbourhood of the barracks. THACK., Van. Fair, I, Ch. XVI, 165.

losings. My losings were never more than nineteen-pence a-night. Id., Sam. Titm., Ch. I, 2.

One hears of the winnings, but they say very little about the losings. G. MOORE, Esth. Waters, Ch. IV, 35.

outgoings. The balance of income over outgoings was only £ 60 a year. Law Times.¹⁾ parings. The prattle of children paddling in the gutter, and sailing thereon a fleet of potato parings. Mrs. CRAIK, John Hal., Ch. I, 6.

saving(s). i. The £ 816,000 not yet "issued" by the Treasury, will, we may assume, be paid out before long, and cannot be regarded as a saving. Times.

ii. The savings of years of economy. WEBST., Dict., s. v. savings.

You will find nothing but three pound five of my own savings. G. ELIOT, Sil. Marn., Ch. I, 8.

His illness made a big hole in her savings. G. MOORE, Esth. Waters, Ch. XXI, 146.

surroundings. It took the servants by surprise, and made them feel that they were out of place in such surroundings. Ib., Ch. XXXIII, 237.

Mr. Boyce was not very favourably struck with his daughter's surroundings. Mrs. WARD, Marc. I, Ch. II, 13.

Venice and its surroundings. Harmsworth Encycl., s. v. Venice.

The patient should be removed from overwork, and from bad hygienic surroundings. Id., s. v. phthisis.

sweepings. They sent him for troops only the sweepings of the galleys. MAC., Clive.

The sweepings of streets are often used as manure. WEBST., Dict., s. v. sweepings.

trappings. These but the trappings and the suits of woe. Haml., I, 3, 86.
 The gold wrought into his armour, with the gorgeous trappings of his charger, betokened his rank. LYTTON, Rienzi, I, Ch. I, 15.

Maisie would not even allow him to put one ring on one finger, and she would laugh at golden trappings. RUDY. KIPLING, The Light that failed, Ch. V, 71.
 The heavy cart-horses slipped and stamped upon the rough stones, shaking their bells and trappings. OSCAR WILDE, Dorian Gray, Ch. VI, 118.

winnings. The pocket-book fell from him, and out of it the thousand-pound note which had been the last of the unlucky Becky's winnings. THACK., Van. Fair, II, Ch. XIX, 204.

workings. Life-belts capable of generating oxygen when in use, are suspended in every accessible part of the workings. Rev. of Rev., CXCVI, 344b.

- g) a great many nouns that were originally adjectives. Ch. XIX.
 Some of these words are now seldom, if ever, used as adjectives; they are marked with an *. Others are as yet more or less uncommon in the function of nouns; they are marked with an †.
 Of some we also meet with occasional or frequent instances of the singular, sometimes with a different meaning. Note especially physic = the healing art (now archaic) and = medicine (now chiefly colloquial); and physics = natural science.

¹⁾ MURRAY.

1) The majority may be known by certain suffixes, belonging to the foreign element of the language, such as:

a) able: †(dis)agreeables, drinkables, eatables, †indescribables, †inseparables, †intellectuals, †irreconcilables, movables, †respectables, valuables, †undesirables, vegetables.

β) al: academicals, *annals, bacchanals, bridals, canonicals, chemicals, *credentials, *espousals, †externals, nuptials, pontificals, rationals (a), regimentals, *reprisals, theatricals, *victuals, vitals.

γ) ary: †extraordinaries, necessities.

δ) ent: †pertinents.

ε) ible: combustibles, edibles, †invisibles.

ζ) ic: aesthetics, athletics, acoustics, ca(l)listhenics, dialectics, dynamics, economics, ethics, gymnastics, hysterics (c), italics, mathematics, mechanics, metaphysics, optics, physics, phonetics, polemics, politics, statistics, tactics.

Note. It will be observed that most of these nouns in ics are names of arts and sciences. These are singular in meaning, and are, accordingly, mostly construed as singulars.

The first nouns in ic of this kind that were adopted in English (before 1500), mostly had the singular form, and this form has been retained to the present day in some, such as arithmetic, logic, magic, music, rhetoric. The plural logics seems to be in occasional use.

In recent times some writers, following German and French usage, have preferred to use the singular throughout: dynamic, economic, polemic, etc.

Names of practical matters, such as gymnastics, politics, tactics usually remain plural in construction as well as in form.

Such of these words in ics as have an uncertain construction have the verb to be in the singular, when the nominal part of the predicate is a singular: mathematics is a science.

Some of them are occasionally found in the singular number with the indefinite article, or preceded by a word denoting number. MURRAY; WEBSTER; STORM, Eng. Phil.², 686; WENDT, E. S., XV, 471; id., Syntax des Adjectivs, 48; id., Synt. des heut. Eng., 131.

II. Bridal, really a compound (bride-ale), has assumed its present form and pronunciation through association with the adjectives of Latin origin in al.

III. Nuptial is used in the singular by SHAKESPEARE, except in two instances. (Othello, II, 2, 8; Pericles, V, 3, 80). For the instance in Mids., I, 1, 125, the second and later folios read nuptials.

IV. Victuals governs the singular number of the indefinite numerals: much (little) victuals. Poets often use the singular victual to avoid the common-place associations attaching to the word, but the singular is also frequent in dialects.

aesthetics. Recognising thus the true position of aesthetics and holding that, while the cultivation of them should form a part of education from its commencement, such cultivation should be subsidiary. SPENC., Educ., Ch. I, 31b.

bridal(s). i. The bridal of Triermain. SCOTT.

ii. (I) will clothe her for her bridals like the sun. TEN., Mar. of Ger., 231.

canonicals. I did not at all wonder to find a cheat in canonicals. SMOL., Rod. Rand., Ch. IX, 53.

Most of us, at some moment in our young lives, would have welcomed a priest of that natural order in any sort of canonicals or uncanonicals. G. ELIOT, Mill, VI, Ch. IX, 403.

credential(s). i. If he goes, he will leave Trinity a sound classical scholar... and he will carry a credential which will always be of infinite value to his career. PHILIPS, Mrs. Bouverie, 7.

Mr. Haldane has produced a new Army scheme, which has at least this great credential in its favour: it reduces the money spent on the Army by two millions instead of increasing the expenditure. Rev. of Rev., CCVII, 228b.

ii. He had no credentials and the whole mission was a joke, a mere farce. MAC., Fred., (670b).

"We have no doubt his liberality is well represented by his surviving partner" said the gentleman, presenting his credentials. DICK., Christm. Car., I, 9.

disagreeables. A little credulity helps one on through life very smoothly — better than always doubting and doubting and seeing difficulties and disagreeables in everything. MRS. GASKELL, Cranford, Ch. XI, 212.

essential(s). i. They still make the recognition of their absolute sovereignty an essential in any negotiations. Times.

ii. Mr. Timothy Shelley was a very ordinary country gentleman in essentials, and a rather eccentric one in some details. W. M. ROSSETTI, Shelley's Adonais, Memoir of Shel., 3.

The anecdote is in its essentials confirmed by two independent witnesses. W. GUNNYON, Biographical Sketch of Burns, 34.

economics. i. Economics has come out into the open. Eng. Rev., 1912, July, 638.

ii. He really understood economics — in fact, he had invented them. CHESTERTON (Il. Lond. News, No. 3777, 396a).

ethics. i. Ethics is the science of the laws which govern our actions as moral agents. SIR W. HAMILTON.¹⁾

To Spencer also ethics was the crown of all human thought.²⁾

ii. Such, it appears to me, are the ethics of the play. DOWDEN, Introd. to Rom. and Jul., 34.

externals. Howsoever his externals might be altered, he was at bottom the same individual Gawky whom I have already described. SMOL., Rod. Rand, Ch. XXI, 136. Externals have a great effect on the young. CH. BRONTË, Jane Eyre, Ch. XI, 116.

extraordinary(ies). i. She made it (sc. her behaviour) look like an extraordinary. RICHARDSON.³⁾

ii. The blank lines are left for any extraordinaries that may occur. Regul. and Ord. Army.³⁾

Not only the king's ordinary revenues, but the extraordinaries. CARLYLE.³⁾

Extraordinaries comprehend the expenses for barracks, marches, encampments, staff, etc. STOCQUELER.³⁾ fundamentals. The worshippers of this deity had also a system of their belief, which seemed to turn upon the following fundamentals. SWIFT, Tale of a Tub, Sect. II.

¹⁾ WEBSTER. ²⁾ WENDT, Die Syntax des Adjectivs, 48. ³⁾ MURRAY.

Given these two fundamentals, upon which the mandate of Ministers is unmistakable, the Bill is remarkable for the tenderness with which it deals with denominational schools. Rev. of Rev., CXCVII, 450b.

gymnastic(s). i. It would be utterly contrary to the beautiful economy of Nature, if one kind of culture were needed for the gaining of information and another were needed as a mental gymnastic. SPENCER, Educ., Ch. I, 36o.

ii. Through the miscellaneous activities of his life, he gains a better balance of physical powers than gymnastics ever give. Ib., Ch. I, 36a.

hysterics. The youngest was subject to hysterics. G. MOORE, Esth. Waters, Ch. XX, 135.

indescribables. Mr. Trotter gave four distinct slaps on the pocket of his mulberry indescribables. DICK., Pickw., Ch. XVI, 141.

inseparables. I hope we shall be inseparables for many weeks to come. Id., Sketches by Boz.¹⁾ intellectuals. Those instructions they give being too refined for the intellectuals of their workmen. SWIFT, Gul. Trav., III, Ch. II, (167b).

invisibles. You are as familiar with these antiquated monastics, as Swedenborg with his invisibles. LAMB.²⁾ mathematics. i. Mathematics is the science of quantities; its students are mathematicians. MURRAY, s. v. ic, 2.

Mathematics has not a foot to stand upon which is not purely metaphysical. DE QUINCEY.³⁾ ii. It was those infernal mathematics, which I have always neglected. THACK., Pend., I, 209.

Do mathematics make one's manners masculine? — Well, they have not done so as yet in your case. But still they are not womanly pursuits. SARAH GRAND, Our manifold Nature, 34.

irreconcilables. The prospect of two General Elections in quick succession appears to have abated the zeal of the irreconcilables. Rev. of Rev., CXCVII, 458a.

metaphysics. All parts of knowledge have their origin in metaphysics, and finally, perhaps, revolve into it. DE QUINCEY.³⁾

The Scotch metaphysics he (sc. Carlyle) respects as being, in its day, a powerful protest against sensationalism. J. D. MORELL.³⁾ movable(s). i. Every movable was packed off. DICK., Christm. Car., II, 37.

ii. A palace furnished with the most rich and princely movables. EVELYN.³⁾ necessary (ies). i. Maps are a necessary for children. Lit. World.

ii. The valley supplied its inhabitants with all the necessaries of life. JOHNSON, Rasselas, Ch. I, 5.

I was not only destitute of necessaries, but even of food. SMOL., Rod. Rand., Ch. XXIII, 163.

nuptial(s). i. I will bid the duke to the nuptial. As you like it, V, 2, 38.

I must employ you in some business | Against our nuptial. MIDS., I, I, 125.

ii. Her aunt had insisted that her nuptials with Mr. Thornhill should be consummated at her house. GOLDS., Vic., Ch. XXXI, (465).

It was intended that the nuptials should be celebrated at Cashmere. MOORE, Lalla Rookh.

optics. Can all that optics teach, unfold | Thy form to please me so? CAMPB., To the Rainb., III.

Yet those same bleared optics had a strange penetrating power. HAWTHORNE, Scarlet Letter.²⁾

¹⁾ FIJN VAN DRAAT, De Drie Talen, XIV. ²⁾ MURRAY. ³⁾ WEBST.

pathetics. As Mr. Weller said this, he inflicted a little friction on his right eye-lid, with the sleeve of his coat, after the most approved manner of actors when they are in domestic pathetics. DICK., Pickw., Ch. XXXI.

pertinents. The whole farm with all its pertinents is let to six tenants. THE DUKE OF ARGYLL, Scotland as it was and as it is.¹⁾ phonetics. i. Phonetics is the science of speech-sounds. SWEET, Primer of Phonetics.

Since then phonetics has made no progress in this country. Ib.

Phonetics is still regarded by the majority of educated persons as either a fad or a fraud, possibly a pious one. H. C. WYLD, Hist. Study of the Mother-tongue, Introd., 16.

ii. Phonetics are in a much more advanced state. SWEET, Handb. of Phon., 100.

Note. In SWEET'S latest publication on phonetics, The Sounds of English, phonetics is construed as a singular throughout.

physic(s). i. To admit certificates from schools of physic may prevent the possibility of ascertaining a regular education. Med. Journ., XIX, 468.²⁾

As bad as the wrong physic, — nasty to take and sure to disagree. G. ELIOT, Mid., Ch. X.²⁾

ii. Physics is the mother of the sciences. SPENCER, Education, Ch. II, 45a.

After all this physics and metaphysics. Daily News.³⁾ polemic(s). i. Plato's constant polemic against them. LEWES, Hist. Phil., 116. Its columns have been humming ever since with vehement polemic. Rev. of Rev., CCVI, 128a.

ii. Religious polemics have seldom formed a part of my studies. H. K. WHITE.²⁾ politics. i. Politics, as a profession, was, therefore, of importance to him. TROL., Framl. Pars., Ch. II, 14.

Politics is a game. CHESTERTON (Il. Lond. News, No. 3690, 40c).

ii. * Politics were excluded. CH. LAMB., Es. of Elia, South-Sea House.

Cape politics had been so disagreeable a subject that persons in authority at the Colonial Office dismissed them from their minds. FROUDE, Oceana, Ch. III, 48. English politics are free from that acerbity. ESCOTT, England, Ch. XXII, 401. What is it? Nothing about politics, I hope? They don't interest me. OSC. WILDE, Dorian Gray, Ch. VI, 98.

 She had spared the time from her idleness to cultivate a language or two, a little music, a few politics. BEATR. HARRADEN, The Fowler, Ch. III, 32.

regimentals. He now, therefore, entered, handsomely dressed in his regimentals. GOLDS., Vic., Ch. XXXI, (468).

Perhaps their regimentals are alike, and she is something blind. SHER., Rivals, V, 2, (260).

reprisal(s). i. Such a proceeding would be barbarous if used towards any other nation, but would only be a just reprisal against the British. Times.

They use every effort to scare the people of this country into some kind of reprisal. Id.

That this fear of reprisal is justified may be gathered from the following instance. Nineteenth Cent., No. CCCXCVII, 536.

ii. The neighbouring kings were but too ready to make reprisals on him for his, champion's murders and robberies. CH. KINGSLEY, Herew., Ch. V, 36b.

Japan is in a position to exercise reprisals against them. Times.

1) FIJN VAN DRAAT, De Drie Talen, XIV. 2) MURRAY.

3) WENDT, E. S., XV, 471.

respectables. For 'respectables' to settle in such slums | Where toil hums, | And to dwell amidst much dirt and noise and vice | Is not nice. PUNCH.
Some of the 'respectables' objected to the enrolment of the bard. W. GUNNYON, Biographical Sketch of Burns, 38.

statistic(s). i. * Accurate statistics may be difficult to obtain, but they are the only basis on which the work of dealing with the disease must rest. Rev. of Rev., CC, 185a.

Statistics show that moderate consumers of alcoholic drinks live considerably longer than drunkards and total abstainers. MAR. CRAWF., Kath. Laud., II, Ch. X, 180. Taking the experience from these official statistics, we are in a position to say [etc.]. Westm. Gaz., No. 4949, 1c.

 Mr. W. L. Wilson contributes to the Daily Express some remarkable statistics concerning the results of eleven elections. Rev. of Rev., CCXXII, 11b.

He cited numerous statistics to show the progress of the movement. Times.

ii. Now the death-rate is perhaps as familiar as any statistic.¹⁾ tactics. The Boer tactics were admirable. Times.

To a certain extent these tactics have been successful. Id.

President Roosevelt has shown himself fully aware of these insidious tactics. Rev. of Rev., CCXIII, 225b.

theatricals. * It (sc. wh) is taught by professors of elocution, and is, therefore, commonly heard at recitals and also at amateur theatricals. W. RIPPMMANN, The Sounds of Spoken English, § 26.

 I got the orders from my old friend Scrauncher, who does the theatricals for the Daily Scarifier. MISS BRADDON, Captain Thomas.

undesirable. China Town was honeycombed underground by passages down which criminals and other undesirables disappeared. Rev. of Rev., CXCVIII, 608a.

valuables. The valuables which she had secreted in the wadding. THACK., Van Fair.

victual(s). i. * If you want fresh water, or victual, or help for your sick..., write down your wants. BACON, New Atlantis, (270).

 There came a fair-hair'd youth, that in his hand | Bare victual for the mowers. TEN., Ger. and Enid, 202.

Glad to be gone from a land of sand and sickness and sorrow, | Short allowance of victual, and plenty of nothing but Gospel. LONGF., Courtship of Miles Standish, V.

 In this country, where there's some shelter and victual for man and beast. G. ELIOT, Adam Bede, I, Ch. VI, 65.

ii. * Nor could all the world persuade him, as the common phrase is, to eat his victuals like a Christian. SWIFT, Tale of a Tub, XI, (90b).

 Herrings are a light victuals. SWIFT.²⁾

 My children can eat as much victuals as most, thank God. G. ELIOT, Mill, Ch. I, 4.

vital(s). i. Forced to keep the fire of my nature continually low, to compel it to burn inwardly and never utter a cry, though the imprisoned flame consumed vital after vital — this would be unendurable. CH. BRONTË, Jane Eyre, Ch. XXXIV, 501.

ii. Corruption of manners preys upon the vitals of the state. WEBST., Dict.

A man in an officer's uniform in Prussia is a little God — the uniform makes the deity. Now when it is seen how easy it is for ex-convicts to obtain a uniform, the cult has been hit in its vitals. Rev. of Rev., CCIII, 458b.

1) WENDT, Die Syntax des Adjectivs, 48.

2) STORM, Eng. Phil., 685.

2) Many do not answer to a general description:

ancients, betters, blacks, blues (c), bygones, commons, dismals (c), goods, greens, hards (e), lights (b), minutes, moderns, news, odds, posteriors (b), rapids, roughs, savages, shorts (a), smalls (a), sullens (c), tights (a), sweets, wilds, whites woollens.

Here we may mention also the names of certain regiments, parties, clubs, etc.: the Blues, the Greys, the Heavies, etc.

Note I. Ancient was originally used as a partially converted adjective in denoting the civilized nations of antiquity: the ancient, like the learned. In the meaning of ancient classic, the singular is occasionally met with, and this is quite usual when the word is used to denote an old or aged man (patriarch). The term Ancient of Days is a scriptural title of the Almighty (DAN. VII, 9). For the other meanings of ancient, all of them more or less obsolete, see MURRAY.

II. Better as a singular is not uncommon. When superiority in rank or station is in question, the plural betters is sometimes met with as a singular in writers of the 16th to the 18th century. MURRAY, s. v. better, 7.

III. Bitter is occasionally found in the singular in the sense of a bitter substance in general. In the sense of bitter, unpleasant experiences and in that of a liquor seasoned by a bitter substance, the plural seems to be regular.

IV. Blacks in the sense of black clothing worn in mourning is said by MURRAY to belong to an older stage of the language and to Lowland Scotch. Compare I found him in deep sables (THACK., Lovel, Ch. I, 23). In the meaning of black or dress trousers it has only recently come into use. To denote a man of black skin the singular is not infrequent, but the usual application of the word in this sense is the collocation the blacks, i. e. the black people as a class. It may here be observed that the corresponding use of white in the sense of a man of white skin seems to be confined to the plural. (XVI.) See also WENDT, die Synt. des Adj. im heut. Eng., 43.

V. Blues is a strict plurale tantum as the name of certain companies of troops and as the name of a certain disease. (c.)

VI. Commons is used as a plurale tantum to denote persons or provisions. Note especially short commons = insufficient rations, scant fare. In the sense of House of Commons, the word is sometimes followed by the singular form of the finite verb, and referred to by singular pronouns.

VII. Goods is sometimes found with the indefinite article in colloquial style.

VIII. Greens as a plurale tantum is colloquially used in the meaning of green vegetables, such as are boiled for the table, and, especially in America, to denote freshly-cut branches or leaves for decoration.

IX. Modern is regularly used in the plural in the moderns = the nations which arose out of the ruins of the empires of Greece and Rome, the people of which are called 'the ancients'. SMART. The singular is occasionally met with in the sense of a man of modern times.

X. News is now hardly felt as an adjective converted into a noun. It is now all but regularly construed as a singular in every respect, but is never found preceded by the indefinite article: for the Dutch een nieuwtje English has a piece (an item) of news (36). In SHAKESPEARE news is often construed as a plural: the news, the news are good. In the latest English such constructions are felt as archaisms, except, perhaps, in describing news referring to separate events.

XI. Also odds has lost its adjectival meaning almost entirely. It is construed as a singular in the meaning of difference, especially in the colloquial phrases What's the odds? or Where's the odds? (= What does it matter?) See however Ch. XXVI, 18b.

It is construed as a plural in the meaning of α) superiority in numbers or resources (= Dutch overwicht, overmacht); β) chances, especially in the phrase the odds are.

In the meaning of advantage conceded by one of the parties in proportion to the assumed chances in his favour (= Dutch voorgift), usage is divided.

In many connections the number of odds is not shown. See the 4th group of quotations below, where some instances exhibiting different meanings are given.

The combination odds and ends may be an alteration of odd ends. MURRAY, s. v. odds, 7.

XII. Rapids varies with the singular rapid, but the latter is much less common.

XIII. Rough (= rough fellow, Dutch woesteling) is mostly used in the plural, but the singular is not uncommon. The singular seems to be quite usual in the sense of a man who is averse to ceremony (= Dutch ruwe kerel).

XIV. Strait is mostly found in the plural, both in the sense of a narrow pass(age) (either in a mountain or in the ocean), and in that of distressing necessity; but the singular is not infrequent.

XV. Sweet as a singular in the meaning of sweet thing is also met with. For sweet in the sense of a sweet person woman or girl see Ch. XXXIX, 18d.

XVI. White in the sense of a man of a white complexion seems to be current only in the collocation the whites, meaning the white people as a class.

ancient(s). i. * The ancient, it may be, were too severe. HOOKER.¹⁾

Neither is there any likelihood that enue and malignity died and were buried with the ancient. Bible Transl., Pref.¹⁾

 The only method by which a poet may reckon on ever becoming an ancient himself. LOWELL.¹⁾

 "My father, sir," replied Mr. Weller. "How are you, my ancient?" DICK., Pickw., Ch. XX.

ii. We always return to the writings of the ancients. Sir W. JONES.¹⁾ better(s). i. It never entered his head that he was in any respect their better. THACK., Pend., I, Ch. XXX, 317.

¹⁾ MURRAY.

- ii. * The family endeavour to cope with their bettors. GOLDS., Vic., Ch. X.
The distinctions lately paid us by our bettors awakened that pride which I had laid asleep, but not removed. Ib.
 A squire or a gentleman, or one that was her bettors. STEELE, Spect., CCLXVI.
I look upon myself as her bettors. FIELDING, Jos. Andrews, IV, Ch. I, 203.
- bitter(s). i. A little bitter mingled in our Cup, leaves no relish of the sweet. LOCKE, Hum. Underst., II, XXI.¹⁾ Camomile yields a useful bitter. MURRAY.
- ii. Whether Mrs. Blifil had been surfeited with the sweets of marriage or disgusted by its bitters . . . I will not determine. FIELDING, Tom Jones, III, Ch. VI, 38a.
Seek the sweets of life, the bitters come.²⁾
Some Americans drinking their morning's bitters. J. FLINT, Let. Amer., 54.²⁾
- black(s). i. * Lucy had laid aside her black for the first time. G. ELIOT, Mill, VI, Ch. X, 407.
 The black had long completed his master's toilette. THACK., Virg., Ch. XLVI, 476.
The jailer was touched at the sight of the black's grief. Ib., 486.
The black will lose nothing that he now has. Westm. Gaz., No. 4925, 1c.
- ii. * Just in your blacks for your poor uncle. Punch.
 My old blacks show the white seams so, that you must rig me out with a new pair. THACK.
 It was more of the red men and the blacks that we were afraid. THACK., Virg., Ch. XC, 955.
There have been no risings of blacks against whites in the Transvaal. FROUDE, Oceana, Ch. III, 47.
- blues. Vainly endeavouring to prevail on their soldiers to look the Dutch blues in the face. MAC., Hist., Ch. XVI.
- bygones. Let bygones be! TEN., The First Quarrel, XIII.
Once set thinking of bygones by the stimulus of Mellor and its novelty, Marcella must needs think, too, of her London life. Mrs. WARD, Marc., I, Ch. II, 15.
- commons. i. * Let but the commons hear this testament. Jul. Cæs., III, 2, 135.
 The Commons resolved that acquisitions made by the arms of the State belong to the State alone. MAC., Clive, (539a).
The House of Lords has the right to discuss and throw out any measure sent up into it from the Commons, and the Commons has the same right in regard to bills passed by the Lords. ANNA BUCKLAND, Our Nat. Inst., 15.
The Commons lost much in his going. It welcomes him back as it welcomes back all able men who can minister to its fondness for the sharp clash of intellect against intellect. West. Gaz., No. 5255, 4c.
 The Commons were dealing with the largest Naval Estimates ever presented to the country. Westm. Gaz., No. 5261, 4a.
- ii. Sizar = one of a class of students in Cambridge University who get their commons or food free and receive certain emoluments. ANNANDALE, Concise Dict.
The gruel was served out and a long grace was said over the short commons. DICK., Ol. Twist, Ch. II, 33.
Short commons, no work and intolerable dulness do pull a fellow down. EDNA LYALL, Donovan, II, 47.
- goods. i. He has strongly recommended me to make a trial of your goods. Business Letter Writer, I.

1) MURRAY. 2) KONRAD MEIER, E. S., XXXI, 321.

- ii. Currents which are a goods that will not keep. G. ELIOT, *Mid.*¹⁾
- greens. * The leaves of the manioc make excellent 'greens'. DU CHAILLU, *Equat. Africa.*²⁾
-  Two great wax tapers, called Christmas candles wreathed with greens. WASH. IRV.³⁾
- The staircase was 'trimmed with greens', to use an expression current in the States. *Globe.*²⁾
- minute(s). i. The minute of a letter to Elizabeth was submitted to the ambassador. MOTLEY, Netherl., VII, Ch. I, 409.⁴⁾
- ii. The Minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed. Folklore, Vol. XI, 2, 184.
- modern(s). But here the severe reader may justly tax me as a writer of short memory, a deficiency to which a true modern cannot but, of necessity, be a little subject. SWIFT, Tale of a Tub, Sect. VI, (75a).
- ii. In these abstracted tasks of poetry the moderns outvie the ancients. LEIGH HUNT, A Few Thoughts on Sleep, (W. PEACOCK, Sel. Es., 292).
- The ancients had not yet been permitted to condemn the moderns to the lot of humble imitators. FRANCIS JEFFREYS, Es., Ford, 41.
- news. i. For more unwelcome news | Came from the north, and thus it did import. Henry IV, A, I, 1, 50.
- Look here comes more news. Henry IV, B, I, 1, 59.
- How dares thy harsh rude tongue sound this displeasing news. Rich. II, III, 4, 74.
- As cold waters to a thirsty soul, so is good news from a far country. Bible, Prov., XXV, 25.
- Ill news runs apace. BAIN, H. E. Gr., 130.
- ii. * These news are everywhere; every tongue speaks them. Henry VIII, II, 2, 39.
- I can tell you strange news that you yet dreamt not of — Are they good? — As the event stamps them; but they have a good cover, they show well outward. Much ado., I, 2, 4—7.
- These* are no news at all. FARQUHAR, Const. Couple, I, 1, (49).
- What are the news in Perth? SCOTT, Fair Maid, Ch. XXX, 312.
- Whose moody aspect soon declared, | That evil were the news he heard. Id., Lady, II, xxvii.
- But tell me are your news of a sad or pleasant complexion? Id., Quent. Durw., Ch. XXV, 322. (Thus, apparently, regularly in this novel.)
- Such were the news. THACK., Henry Es., II, Ch. I, 157.
- Are there any news of the Collector of Boggley Wollah? Id., Van. Fair, II, Ch. III, 27.
- He could not face his mistress himself with those dreadful news. Id., I, Ch. XIV, 152.
- These news* be mine. TEN., Gar. and Lyn., 534.
-  The News of the British disasters have undoubtedly encouraged many waverers to join the Boer commandos. Times.
- No news are the best news. Id.
- odds. i. * A little sooner or later, what's the odds? THACK., Pend., Ch. XVIII, 194
- So long as it helps me; and don't hurt you, what's the odds? Punch.
-  And arter all though, where's the odds. DICK., Pickw., Ch. XIX, 167.
-  There is no great odds betwixt us. DICK.⁵⁾
- * There's no great Honour in getting a Victory when odds is taken. BAILEY.⁶⁾

1) STORM, Eng. Phil., 686.2) MURRAY, s. v. green, 11b.3) TEN BRUG., Taalst., VI.4) MURRAY, s. v. minute, 6.5) WEBST., s. v. muddle.6) MURRAY, s. v. odds, 4, c.

- ii. * Judging is balancing an account and determining on which side the odds lie. LOCKE.¹⁾

 We must not abide these odds. LYTTON, Rienzi, I, Ch. I, 14.

In spite of their courage, they are no match for our trained soldiers even at these odds. Times.

 Are the odds in favour of fame against failure so great? LYTTON, Caxt., IV, Ch. III, 91.

Even thus the odds were against him. MAC., Fred., (688b).

The odds are in my favour. MRS. ALEX., For his Sake, II, Ch. IV, 79.

- iii. Odds were taken that he would kill three of his opponents before he himself fell. SCOTT, Fair Maid, Ch. XXXIV, 362.

"I'll bet you twenty-five cents to a gold watch that you can't guess what's happened — at Routh's." — "Twenty-five cents — to a gold watch? Oh — I see. Thank you — the odds don't tempt me. What did happen?" MAR. CRAWF., Kath. Laud., II, Ch. XIII, 240.

- iv. * These companies are to-day by all odds the greatest power in the world. Rev. of Rev., CXCVI, 419b. (= far and away).

 I do not know that Englishman alive | With whom my soul is any jot at odds. Rich. III, II, 1, 70. (= in disagreement.)

The Council are all at odds. TEN., Queen Mary, II, 1, (595b).

 That makes no odds. THACK., Van. Fair, I, Ch. XVI, 171.

* He gave the odds of 100 to 1 (in twenties) against Kangaroo, who won the Derby. THACK., Van. Fair.

 It is not strange that even his heart should now and then have sunk when he reflected against what odds and for what a prize he was in a few hours to contend. MAC., Clive, (518a).

What warrior was there, however famous and skilful, that could fight at odds with him? THACK., Van. Fair, I, Ch. XXXII, 350.

 It is odds but I make a hairpin of it (sc. the straw). CH. READE, the Cloister and the Hearth, Ch. II, 12. (= It is not improbable, the chances are.)

- v. My brain is filled with all kinds of odds and ends. WASH. IRV.¹⁾
He began to hum odds and ends of the greatest music. OUIDA.²⁾ posteriors. This leader had usually a favourite as like himself as he could get, whose employment was to lick his master's feet and posteriors. SWIFT, Gul. Trav., IV, Ch. VII, (203b).

rapid(s). i. Mortal boat | In such a shallow rapid could not float. SHELLEY, Witch, XLI.

When I thought my thirst | Would slay me (I) saw deep lawns, and then a brook, | With one sharp rapid. TEN., Holy Grail, 381.

- ii. The Lachine rapids in the St. Laurence. WEBST.

rough(s). i. She is much too good for such a rough as I am. THOMAS, W. Goring.³⁾

- ii. There was a lot of Irish chaps, reg'lar roughs, a-breaking stones. HUGHES, TOM BROWN.

savage(s). i. You gave me time to breathe; allowed me to play with the savage. LYTTON, Rienzi, II, Ch. I, 81.

The savage only appears stupid, because the cursory traveller does not understand him. Times, No. 1826, 1049a.

- ii. The mountainous interior is inhabited by a race of bloodthirsty savages. Rev. of Rev., CXCVI, 385a.

1) WEBST. 2) TEN BRUG., Taalst., VI. 3) FLÜGEL.

strait(s). i. * And since the day, when in the strait | His only boy had met his fate. BYRON, Siege of Corinth, 760.

 You would be glad that she would have some one to protect her in such a strait. MRS. WARD, David Grieve, III, 98.

ii. * At this distance he hoped to decoy the enemy out, while he guarded against the danger of being caught with a westerly wind near Cadiz, and driven within the Straits. SOUTHEY, Life of Nelson, Ch. IX, 247.

 I have been shocked to think of the straits you have been reduced to. EDNA LYALL, Donovan, II, 111.

I forbid you to touch this, unless you are in the last straits. II. Mag.
The merchants who traded with these parts were now driven to sore straits, because no goods came to them from their friends. (?)

sweet(s). i. Cheese, sir; or would you like a cold sweet? BERN. SHAW, You never can tell, II, (257).

ii. * She had known and relished the sweets of prosperity. SMOL., Rod. Rand., Ch. XXIII, 169.

Here Catherine and Isabella, arm in arm, again tasted the sweets of friendship. JANE AUSTEN, North. Ab., Ch. V, 23.

 Sweets to the sweet; farewell! HAMLET, V, 1, 266.

I enter'd, from the clearer light | Imbower'd vaults of pillar'd palm, | Imprisoning sweets, which, as they clomb | Heavenward, were stay'd beneath the dome | Of hollow boughs. TEN., Rec. of the Arab. Nights, IV.

whites. i. Mr. Uppington made an arrangement satisfactory to the majority of the whites in the colony. FROUDE, Oceana, Ch. III, 61.

ii. The eyes of the dancing girls rolled till only the whites were seen. Rev. of Rev., CXCVIII, 618a.

iii. The interests of all white men in Africa are solidaire. Id., CCVI, 117a.

wild(s). i. We sometimes | Who dwell this wild, constrained by want, come forth | To town or village nigh. MILTON, Par. Reg., I, 331.

A wild where weeds and flow'rs promiscuous shoot. POPE, Essay on Man, I, 7.

The King was hunting in the wild. TEN., Victim, III.

And close beneath, a meadow gemlike chased | In the brown wild. Id., Ger. and Enid, 219.

ii. But hosts may in these wilds abound, | Such as are better miss'd than found. SCOTT, Lady, I, xvi.

The wilds of America. WEBST.

Then he cried again, | 'To the wilds!' TEN., Ger. and Enid, 28.

h) some nouns, borrowed from the Latin or Greek, which have retained their original garb also in English. Such are:

aborigines, agenda, anthropophagi, antipodes, arcana, data, effluvia, errata, facetiae, fascies, Floralia, insignia, lares, larvae, lemures, manes, minutiae, paraphernalia, penates, postulata, propaganda, regalia.

In this connection we may also mention the Anglicized Latin words: calends (kalends), ides, nones.

Note I. Of aborigines the singular aborigine (in 4 syllables) has been formed. Besides this we also find aborigen (aborigin), and aboriginal for the singular. Of these singulars aboriginal seems to be the most usual, its plural is sometimes used instead of aborigines. MURRAY.

II. Agenda is also used as a singular when denoting a book for writing memorandums in.

III. Of anthropophagi the singular anthropophagus is occasionally met with. MURRAY.

IV. Antipodes was formerly, quite regularly, pronounced in three syllables. This gave rise to the formation of a singular antipod(e), which is still used in the transferred sense of the exact opposite of a person or thing. MURRAY. The plural form antipodes seems to be more usual in this meaning.

V. Arcanum is mostly used in the plural, but the singular is not infrequent. In Early Modern English arcana was sometimes treated as a singular with plural arcanas. MURRAY.

VI. Also datum is not rare as a singular. Observe that for the Dutch datum, data the English has date, dates.

VII. Effluvium as a singular does not seem to be very rare. The plural effluvia has often been carelessly, or ignorantly, treated as a singular with a new plural effluvias or effluviae.

VIII. Erratum occurs mostly in the plural, but the singular is also met with. In Early Modern English 's or es was sometimes added to mark the plural more distinctly. In the same period errata was sometimes construed as a singular in the sense of list of errata. MURRAY.

IX. Insignia is sometimes erroneously used as a singular with a plural in as.

X. Paraphernalia is sometimes construed as a singular.

XI. Propaganda has passed into the language of the common people, to whom it has lost all character of a plural. We find it, therefore, regularly dealt with as an ordinary singular.

Of the other loan-words mentioned above the singular is practically never used, and they are always construed as plurals.

aborigines, etc. i. * The Cimex lectularius is apparently an aborigin of the country. R. F. BURTON.¹⁾

 American = an aborigine of the American continent; now called an 'American Indian'. MURRAY, s. v. American.

The Australian aborigine is not a great or serious foe to his neighbour. T. P.'s Weekly, No. 503, 808c.

The aborigine is a true nomad. Ib., 808b.

 The thoughtless aboriginal is delighted at the approach of the white man. DARWIN.¹⁾ ii. * It will be as well to call the race by the name officially given to it. The Government styles them 'aboriginals', the word 'native' is almost universally applied to white colonists born in Australia. TROL.¹⁾

 The aborigines of Germany had their bards, their battle-songs and their sacrificial songs. B. TAYLOR.¹⁾ agenda. i. Notwithstanding all that has been done there still remain many agenda. MAURY.¹⁾ ii. Agenda is also used for a book containing notes or memorandums of things necessary to be done. CHAMBERS, Cycl. Sup.¹⁾ anthropophagus (i). i. That same hair-mantled flint-hurling Aboriginal Anthropophagus. CARLYLE.¹⁾

¹⁾ MURRAY.

ii. A poor New Zealander, whose forefathers had from time immemorial been anthropophagi. J. LANG.¹⁾ antipode(s). i. * Forbes he hated, for he was the very antipode to himself. G. MACDONALD.¹⁾

 He was a man in all respects the antipodes to Richard Seddon. Rev. of Rev., CXCIX, 11a.

Alfred Beit was in almost every respect its exact antithesis and antipodes. Ib., CC, 139a.

ii. One of the reassuring signs of the times is the attention which is being paid to the curse of gambling both here and in the Antipodes. Ib., CCIII, 462b.

arcenum (a). i. The pursuit of the great arcenum. SCOTT, Kenilworth, Ch. XXII.¹⁾ The infallible arcenum for that purpose. BURKE.¹⁾ ii. Under the impression that you might have some difficulty in penetrating the arcana of the Modern Babylon in the direction of the City Road [etc.]. DICK., Cop., Ch. XI, 78b.

calends, ides, nones. The Romans reckoned the days forward to the Kalends, Nones or Ides next following. Thus 'on the 27th of May' was ante diem sextum 'Kalendas Junias'. This was loosely rendered into English as 'the sixth of the Kalends of June', or 'the sixth Kalends of June. MURRAY.

datum (a). i. The omission of a material datum in the calculation, namely, the weight of the charge of powder. HUTTON.¹⁾ ii. As I have given the facts from which I have drawn my interpretation of the principal agent, the reader has sufficient data for his own judgment. LYTON, Rienzi, Preface.

With the data I had given, the man would at once be identified by the police. HUGH CONWAY, Called Back, Ch. X, 116.

effluvia, etc. i. * The doctrine that magnetism is an effluvia issuing forth from the root of the tail of the Little Bear. DRAPER.¹⁾

 A strong effluvia of the stable. BECKFORD.¹⁾

ii. * The face of the sun will by degrees be encrusted with its own effluvia. SWIFT, Gul. Trav., III, Ch. II, (168).

Its rooms and passages steamed with hospital smells, the drug and the pastille striving vainly to overcome the effluvia of mortality. CH. BRONTË, Jane Eyre, Ch. IX, 89.

 The putrid effluviae in prisons. IMISON.¹⁾

 The fam'd Perfumes of Summer! Men to Rapture with effluvias move. T. PAINE.¹⁾

errata, etc. i. * The company of stationers made a very remarkable Erratum or Blunder in one of their Editions of the Bible. Spectator, DLXXIX.¹⁾

 Such Misnomers are so frequent in him, as might make a sufficient Errata at the end of his History. HEYLIN.¹⁾ ii. * The errata are put immediately before the body of the work or at the end of it. J. JOHNSON.¹⁾

 That a number of errata's be raised out of Pope's Homer. SWIFT.¹⁾

 The errataes at the end of the books. GERBIER.¹⁾

facetiae. He read tit-bits from its columns of facetiae which made me the melancholy creature you now behold. JAMES PAYN, Glow-Worm. Tales, II, A, 18.

fascēs. All of the same proud patrician blood, all worthy to be attended by the fascēs and to command the legions. WEBB, Introd. to Macaulay's Lays, 14.

Floralia. The Floralia were popular festivals at which naked courtesans danced unpunished before the eyes of the citizens. Rev. of Rev., CCX, 575.

¹⁾ MURRAY.

insignia(as). i. In his hand he bore a slender white wand, the dreaded insignia of his office. WASH. IRV.¹⁾ ii. * King Harold received in due order the insignia of his kingly office. FREEMAN.¹⁾

 Bells, ladle, and the fool's cap... Insignias of their liking. H. W. IRELAND.¹⁾

lares, larvæ, lemures. In Roman belief the Larvæ, in contrast to the Lares (the good spirits of the departed), were the souls of dead people who could find no rest, either owing to their own guilt, or from having met with some indignity, such as a violent death. They were supposed to wander abroad in the form of dreadful spectres, skeletons, etc., and especially to strike the living with madness. Similar spectres of the night are the Lēmūrēs. NETTLESHIP and SANDYS, Dict. Clas. Antiquities.

manes. Peace to the manes of the Bubble. CH. LAMB, Es. of Elia, South-Sea House, 4.

minutiæ. Impatient speed and indifference to minutiæ were indeed among the cardinal qualities of his intellect. SYMONDS, Shelley, Ch. II, 15.

paraphernalia. i. Romanticism is certainly in the ascendant during the last quarter of the nineteenth century, both in poetry and in household paraphernalia. ESCOTT, England, Ch. XXVIII, 503.

ii. A ponderous paraphernalia is a concomitant of respectability. O'DONOVAN.¹⁾ penates. John Walter broke up his household in Printing House Square, set up his penates at Bearwood. PEBODY.¹⁾ penetralia. These two rooms were set apart for the reception of visitors who neither by rank nor familiarity were entitled to admission in the penetralia of the mansion. LYTON, Last Days of Pomp., I, Ch. II, 15a, For six years she lived in the innermost penetralia of the Imperial Household. Rev. of Rev., CXC VII, 534a.

postulata. These postulata being admitted, it will follow [etc.]. SWIFT, Tale of a Tub, Sect. II.

propaganda. i. The Catholics and the Jews have never used their schools as engines of sectarian propaganda. Rev. of Rev., CXC VII, 452b.

ii. A propaganda of mutual hate was raging between their subjects. Rev. of Rev., CXC VIII, 557b.

He insisted that propaganda was active in the Army. Ib., CCXXIV, 108b.

It is this direct propaganda of promises that the Free Traders have to meet. Westm. Gaz., No. 4949, 1b.

regalia. I have gotten the warrant for searching for the old regalia of the Scottish Crown. J. W. CROKER.¹⁾

i) some proper names of geography and of constellations.

1) names of countries, states, provinces, islands, etc.:

the Antilles, the Azores, the Brazils, the Grisons, the Hebrides, the East (West) Indies, the Low Countries, the Moluccas, the Netherlands, the Sporades, the United States (of America).

2) names of mountain ranges, such as:

the Alps, the Andes, the Apennines, the Balkans, the Cameroons, the Carpathians, the Pyrenees, the Urals (= the Ural Mountains).

3) names of constellations, such as:

the Hyades, the Dioscuri, the Pleiades.

¹⁾ MURRAY.

Note I. The numerous names of towns in s, such as Athens, Brussels, Lyons, Marseilles, Treves, etc., and the noun Flanders are only apparent plurals, and are regularly construed as singulars.

II. Alp is occasionally met with in the singular. SHAKESPEARE has Alps followed by a singular verb and referred to by a singular pronoun. DICKENS humorously speaks of an Alps of testimony.

III. The Balcans is also the name of the States covering the peninsula in which this mountain range is found. Similarly Camaroons is mostly used to denote the district in which this range of mountains is situated.

IV. The Brazils seems to be giving way to Brazil, at least in the language of the educated.

V. The United States (of America) is also construed as a singular. SCHULZE, Beit. zur Feststellung des mod. eng. Sprachgebrauches, 19.

Alp(s). i. I marked him | As a far Alp; and loved to watch the sunrise | Dawn on his ample brow. DE VERE, Mary Tudor, IV, 1.

ii. * The Banner of St. George was carried far beyond the Pyrenees and the Alps. MACAULAY.¹⁾

 The valleys, whose vassal seat | The Alps doth spit and void his rheum upon. Henry V, III, 5, 52.

If it came within the scope of reasonable probability that further proofs were required, they might be heaped upon each other until they formed an Alps of testimony. DICK., Chuz., Ch. I, 4a.

Antilles. The Antilles have been divided into two groups: the Greater Antilles and the Lesser Antilles. Cas. Conc. Cycl.

Balkans. * The simplest way of solving the whole problem would be to move the Balkans southward and sink them in the Dardanelles. Graph. The highlands of East Servia form the transition between the Transylvanian Alps and the Balkans. Harmsworth Encyclopædia, s. v. Servia.

 Uneasiness in the Balkans. Times.

Unrest in the Balkans. Rev. of Rev., CCI, 229a.

When he was twenty-two, he went with his regiment to the Balkans. lb., CCII, 363b.

There is certain to be war in the Balkans. lb., CCIV, 564a.

Brazil(s). i. He . . . asked Lady Steyne . . . how his dear friend, George Gaunt liked the Brazils. THACK., Van. Fair, II, Ch. XIV, 145.

The ship remained some months at the Brazils. MAC., Clive, (499b).

ii. In his intercourse with natives of India he employed the smattering of Portuguese which he had acquired when a lad in Brazil. lb., (519b).

Canaries. He got clapt into the Inquisition at the Canaries. CH. KINGSLEY, Westw. Hol., Ch. XVI, 132a.

Downs. We cast anchor in the Downs about nine in the morning. SWIFT, Gul. Trav., IV, Ch. XI, (213b).

Camaroons. In the Camaroons the German Empire already possesses a colony of nearly 200,000 square miles in area. Times, No. 1803, 515a.

The rivers would be of the first importance for the trade of the Camaroons. lb., 575d.

Himalayas. The Himalayas are the loftiest mountains in the world. Cas. Conc. Cycl.

¹⁾ FOELS-KOCH, Wiss. Gram., § 261.

Hyades. And when | Thro' scudding drifts the rainy Hyades | Vext the dim sea.
TEN., Ulysses, 10.

Indies. Much against the minds of many of the Spaniards themselves, that cruel and bloody Inquisition was established in the Indies. CH. KINGSLEY, Westw. Hol, Ch. XX, 153b.

the Low Countries. She (sc. Elizabeth) was resolute in her refusal of the Low Countries. GREEN, Short Hist., VII, § 3, 371.

Moluccas. Amboyna is one of the Moluccas. CAS. CONC. CYCL.

Philippines. Puertorico will be next considered, the Philippines being reserved for the last. TIMES.

Pleiades. Alcyone, the brightest of the Pleiades, is a star of the third magnitude. CAS. CONC. CYCL.

United States. i. If he had done so, perhaps the United States had begun to exist twenty years sooner than they actually did. CH. KINGSLEY, Westw. Hol, Ch. XXIX, 217a.

Our conditions would include, of course, the open door to the Pacific for our merchant ships in peace, and for our battleships in all wars to which the United States were not a party. TIMES.

The United States are not, as many Americans and some foreigners seem to imagine, exempt from the laws of nature. Ib.

ii. * The United States is as anxious as Germany for the punishment of such offenders. DAILY TELEGRAPH.

The United States is not co-operating with the German or any other Government. TIMES.

 The United States will not participate in any effort to bring about mediation. It will not participate in any note of interrogation regarding Great Britain's ultimate intentions. Ib.

The United States has considerably increased this balance in its favour. Ib.

The United States will increase its fleet in the Pacific. WESTM. GAZ.

 The United States, of course, still produces more wheat than she requires. Ib., No. 5179, 17b.

The United States is the greatest coal country, the greatest lead country and the greatest cotton country in the world. We need not, therefore, be surprised to find that her imports are smaller than our own. Ib., No. 5271, 4a.

* The unoccupied lands, properly the inheritance of the collective British nation — whole continents large as a second United States — were hurriedly abandoned to the local colonial governments. FROUDE, Oceana, Ch. I, 16.

Urals. We crossed the Urals. HUGH CONWAY, Called Back, Ch. XI, 124.

i) many nouns not answering to a general description, such as:

acclamations, amends, annals, annates, archives, arms, arrears, assets (13), auspices, banns, barracks, bounds, cates, chattels, clothes, confines, duds, environs, exequies, fallals, fumes, gallows, gewgaws, hallows, justs (= jousts), kickshaws, lauds, (dis)likes, lineaments, matins, obsequies, (out)skirts, perquisites, plaudits, precincts, proceeds, raptures, remains, roads, slops, sweepstakes, thanks, throes, tidings, togs, traps, vails (= vales), vespers, vestments, viands, wages, wares, weeds.

Note I. Acclamation in the singular is found in the phrase by acclamation.

II. Amends occurs chiefly in the collocation to make amends. As far as the evidence goes, it is construed as a singular and may even be preceded by the indefinite article.

III. Annal in the singular is sometimes used to denote the record or entry of a single year, or a single item in a chronicle.

IV. Archive is sometimes found in the singular.

V. Arms as a plurale tantum is found in two meanings: a) weapons; b) heraldic insignia or devices. Note especially:

the following compounds and word-groups: fire-arms, small-arms (= those not requiring carriages, as opposed to artillery), stand of arms (= complete set for one soldier), man-at-arms (= one practised in war, fully-armed knight), man-in-arms (= armed man), companion in arms;

the following phrases: to arms, in arms (= armed, prepared to fight), up in arms (= in active readiness to fight, actively engaged in struggle or rebellion), to take up arms, to bear arms (= to serve as a soldier), to lay down arms, to turn one's arms against (= to make war upon, to attack), under arms (= standing or marching arms in hand), Stand to your arms! (= Stand in order of battle with arms presented), Present arms! Shoulder arms! Slope arms! Trail arms! Carry arms! etc. See especially SATTLER, E. S., XVI.

The singular arm is used to denote a) a kind of troops of which an army is composed, b) a particular species of weapon. (Compare a wine, a sugar, etc.)

VI. Arrear is mostly used in the singular in the expression in arrear, and occasionally when not preceded by in.

VII. Auspices is always used in the plural in the sense of patronage, as in the expression under the auspices of. The plural is also usual in the meaning of omen, as in under the fairest auspices, and in the unusual, although original, meaning of observation of birds for the purpose of obtaining omens.

VIII. Barrack is mostly used in the plural when it is used in its ordinary meaning: a set of buildings erected or used as a place of lodgement or residence for troops, but the singular is not uncommon. This is even the ordinary form when there is occasion to use the indefinite article or a distributive numeral: a barrack, every barrack. Sometimes we find the plural form after the indefinite article.

IX. Chattel is occasionally used in the singular, especially when a distinctly single object has to be denoted. Note also goods and chattels, a comprehensive phrase for all kinds of personal property.

X. Firstling is occasionally met with in the singular.

XI. Fume in certain shades of meaning is occasionally found in the singular.

XII. Gallows is said to have become a singular. The evidence for this statement is, however, somewhat unsatisfactory. Instances are, indeed, given of gallows preceded by the indefinite article, but, none with a demonstrative pronoun or a numeral. Nor do the illustrative quotations adduced in MURRAY clearly show whether we should say the gallows is or are. There is a plural gallowses, but, according to MURRAY, this form is now seldom used, the formation being felt to be somewhat uncouth. Instead of a gallows the older language used a pair of gallows, the present language a set of gallows (36) (MURRAY, s.v. pair, 6). See also HODGSON, *Errors*⁸, 144.

XIII. Gewgaw is sometimes used in the singular.

XIV. J(o)ust, occasionally spelled giust, is sometimes met with to denote a single encounter, in which case it may be preceded by a numeral: a j(o)ust, two j(o)usts. The plural j(o)usts is also found with the indefinite article: a j(o)usts.

XV. Like is seldom met with in the singular, but dislike is quite common in the singular as the opposite of liking. Likes and dislikes are often coupled together (Dutch sympathieën en antipathieën).

XVI. Matins is sometimes construed as a singular.

XVII. Perquisite as a singular occurs now and then, although rarely.

XVIII. Precinct also is rarely found in the singular.

XIX. Rapture is rather frequently met with in the singular.

XX. Remain in some shades of meaning is occasionally met with in the singular.

XXI. Roads seems to be the regular form when a proper name precedes: Yarmouth roads. When no such noun precedes, the singular form seems to be the rule.

XXII. Sweepstake is occasionally found in the singular to denote a person who wins all. The plural is regularly used to denote the money staked or won at a horse-race. It may then be preceded by the indefinite article, but is otherwise treated as a plural.

XXIII. Thanks is always used as a singular in SHAKESPEARE, except for the combinations a thousand thanks (Taming of the Shrew, II, 85; Henry V, IV, 4, 64; Henry VIII, I, 4, 74) and many thousand thanks (Henry VI, C, III, 2, 56). Thus we meet with much thanks, little thanks, that thanks, thanks..is, a liberal thanks. ALEX. SCHMIDT, s. v. thanks.

In Present English thanks seems to be ordinarily construed as a plural. Thus regularly in such phrases as many thanks for, our (all, no) thanks are due to. On the other hand it is dealt with as a singular in to get little (much) thanks. For the rest no sufficient evidence is available at the time of writing to settle all points of concord.

Here mention may also be made of the prepositional phrases thanks to (= owing to, Dutch dank zij) and no thanks to (= no credit to, Dutch niet te danken aan).

XXIV. Throes seems to be a strict plurale tantum, but death-throe is sometimes used in the singular.

XXV. Tidings, now almost regularly construed as a plural throughout, is used indiscriminately as a singular and a plural in SHAKESPEARE. See AL. SCHMIDT, s. v. tidings. SCOTT has little tidings instead of few tidings.

XXVI. Toil was formerly also found in the singular.

XXVII. Vespers is sometimes construed as a singular and may be preceded by the indefinite article.

XXVIII. Vestments is especially used in the plural when the dress of officiating clergymen is referred to: the ecclesiastical or sacerdotal vestments. ANNAND., Conc. Dict. In SHAKESPEARE only the plural is met with.

XXIX. Wages is much more common than wage, but there is a decided tendency to use the singular form when a defining adjective precedes: living wage, average wage, etc., but board wage is only vulgarly used for board-wages. The plural requires the plural form of the demonstrative pronouns, but the indefinite numerals are the singular. Compare also Ch. XXVI, 16. Occasionally it has the finite verb of which it is the subject placed in the singular.

XXX. Wares is almost the only form, but the singular is regular in compounds, such as tinware, hardware, earthenware, etc. Thus also woman's ware, which may be regarded as a kind of compound.

XXXI. Weeds as the name of clothing is the ordinary form, besides which the singular weed is in ordinary use in Early Modern English, especially to denote a single garment. Except for the collocation widow's weeds, the word is now only met with in the higher literary style.

For weed(s) as the name of a plant see below (20).

The other nouns mentioned above are practically strict pluralia tantum.

XXXII. Clothes can now hardly be considered as the plural of cloth, from which it differs materially in meaning. The plural of cloth is now regular: cloths. To translate the Dutch kledingstuk we may use article of clothing (dress), garment, etc.

XXXIII. Bounds is especially met with in certain combinations, such as to go beyond all bounds, to keep within (due) bounds.

XXXIV. Duds is used only in slang or colloquial language as a depreciative or humorous term.

XXXV. Hallows has been preserved only in All-Hallows.

XXXVI. Togs, from the Latin toga, only used in slang or colloquial language, corresponds to the Dutch plunje.

XXXVII. Traps, used only in slang or colloquial language, may be an abbreviation of trappings.

XXXVIII. Vails (vales), shortened from avail, is obsolescent, perquisites, short perks, being the ordinary word now.

acclamation(s). i. He was received throughout the fleet with a shout of answering acclamation. SOUTHEY, Life of Nelson, Ch. IX, 254.

A general acclamation concluded the sitting of this species of privy council. SCOTT, Fair Maid, Ch. VII, 74.

ii. The theatre resounded with acclamations. MAC., Fred., (678b).

amends. * Well, my dear, you shall come at night, and I'll make you amends. — Madam, I will have amends before I leave the place. FARQUHAR, Const. Couple, II, 5, (77).

Seeing here a possibility of making amends for the casting-vote he had given with an ill-satisfied conscience. G. ELIOT, Middlemarch, V, Ch. L, 366.

 Those who have most distinguished themselves by railing at the sex, very often make an honourable amends by chusing one of the most worthless persons of it for a companion and yoke-fellow. SPECTATOR, DXXX, (69).

 There is great amends made in the representation. FARQUHAR, The Beaux' Stratagem, Advertisement.

* It will make us but little amends that they will be beauties. FIELDING, Jos. Andrews, IV, Ch. II, 205.

annal(s). i. Here and there may be seen an annal, expressed in riper language, which must be marked as the interpolation of a later Editor. Earle.¹⁾

¹⁾ MURRAY.

- ii. Let not Ambition mock their useful toil, | ... Nor Grandeur hear with a disdainful smile | The short and simple annals of the poor. GRAY, Elegy, 32.
Sir Walter Scott is undoubtedly the most remarkable writer that figures in the literary annals of the nineteenth century. G. H. T., Memoir of Sir Walter Scott, 12.

annates. At the Reformation the right to the annates was transferred to the Crown; in the reign of Queen Anne they were given up to form a fund for the augmentation of poor livings, known as Queen Anne's bounty. MURRAY.

archive(s). i. Some rotten archive, rummaged out of some seldom-explored press. CH. LAMB.¹⁾

- ii. There remain in the various archives of the Netherlands and Germany many documents from his hand which will probably never see the light. MOTLEY, Rise, VI, Ch. VII, 901*b*.
Send the archives to Potsdam. MAC., Fred., (697*b*).
God hath now | Sponged and made blank of crimeful record all | My mortal archives. TEN., St. Simeon Stylites, 158.

arm(s). i. * The married women of each arm of the Service stationed in India receive pay. Harper's *Mag.*²⁾

Since the adoption of long-range weapons of precision there has been an active controversy as to the value of cavalry and the method of using that arm. Athen.³⁾

 The Enfield rifle is still superior to any arm. *Chamb. Mag.*²⁾

- ii. * It was plain that an appeal to arms was at hand. MAC., Pitt, (301*a*).

He had taken arms for the house of Stuart in 1715. Id., Fred., (675*b*).

Bavaria took up arms. Ib., (668*b*).

Saxony was all in arms behind him. Ib., (670*b*).

Of the males in the vigour of life, a seventh part were probably under arms. Ib., (673*a*).

The scene in the interior of St. Paul's was, if possible, still more grand and touching, where were gathered almost all that survived of his companions in arms. ROWE and WEBB, Intr. to Tennyson's Ode on the Death of the Duke of Wellington.

Some of the peasants carried arms like the soldiers. BUCHANAN, That Winter Night, Ch. V, 51.

These men were openly carrying arms with the avowed intention of using them. Rev. of Rev., CXCIX, 10*a*.

 The arms quartered on the shield along with his own were not, to be sure, poor Rose's. She had no arms. THACK., Van. Fair, I, Ch. XIV, 151.

Any person who without proper royal authority uses ... the royal arms ... is liable to be restrained by injunction or interdict. Times.

arrear(s). i. * This long arrear of the government is very hard upon us. GAY, Beggar's Opera, II, 1.

Molly, kind and faithful in spite of a long arrear of unpaid wages. THACK., Van. Fair, II, Ch. XVII, 182.

The burdens of the war had been terrible, almost insupportable; but no arrear was left to embarrass the finances in time of peace. MAC., Fred., (700*b*).

 Our wages are sometimes a little in arrear. SHER., School for Scand., III, 2 (395).

- ii. * He was cogitating in his mind his ways and means of paying certain arrears of rent. DICK., Ol. Twist, Ch. III, 8*b*.

He has a right to claim six years' arrears. LYTON, Night and Morning, 770.
He received the arrears of two and three quarter years of sipping in one attack of delirium tremens. RUD. KIPLING, Plain Tales, XXIII, 177.

1) MURRAY. — 2) SATTLER, E. S., XVI. — 3) TEN BRUG., Taalst., XI.

He had large arrears of sleep to make up. EDNA LYALL, Donovan, Ch. XLIII.

 I am greatly in arrears in my correspondence, reports, etc. Rev. of Rev., CXCVIII, 569a.

auspice(s). i. This auspice (sc. the publication of a pamphlet) was instantly followed by a speech from the throne, in the very spirit of the pamphlet. BURKE.¹⁾ ii. * All sortileges, auspices, divinations and other works of the devil were forbidden. MILMAN.¹⁾

 Under these unpromising auspices the parting took place and the journey began. JANE AUSTEN, North. Ab., Ch. II, 7.

The company began under the fairest auspices. LYTTON, Caxtons, II, Ch. II, 33.

 Published under the auspices of the Royal Society of Literature. LINGARD.¹⁾

banns. "He," said the parson, "with the consent of Fanny, before my face put in the banns. FIELD., Jos. Andrews, IV, Ch. II, 205.

To my thinking, she's just as much married as if the banns had been read in all the churches in London. THACK., Van. Fair, I, Ch. XX, 211.

barrack(s). i. I wish any one in a barrack would say what you say. THACK., Van. Fair, I, Ch. XVIII, 187.

The high wall being that of a barrack. HARDY, Far from the Madding Crowd, Ch. XI, 98.

I'll proclaim your share in the performance in every barrack in the kingdom. EM. LAWLESS, A Colonel of the Empire, Ch. X.

The conscription carries off village lads to the life of the barrack and the town, from which half of them, apparently, never return. TIMES.

ii. * Three days afterwards Dobbin found George in his room at the barracks. THACK., Van. Fair, I, Ch. XVIII, 191.

 The college building had been seized for a barracks. Harper's Mag.¹⁾ bounds. Why was he rejoiced beyond all bounds to see them? DICK., Christ. Car., II, 31.

Their interests would be better consulted by keeping their singers within bounds. THACK., New c., I, Ch. I, 9.

Religious impulses like other impulses must be chastened and kept within due bounds. G. C. MACAULAY, Pref. to Tennyson's Holy Grail, 16.

cates. The Tempter, I warrant you, thought these cates would go down without the recommendatory preface of a benediction. CH. LAMB, Grace before Meat (PEACOCK, Sel. Es., 188).

With the decay of my first innocence, I confess a less and less relish daily for those innocuous cates. Ib., 190.

chattel(s). i. If at the age of eighteen she marries, she becomes little more than the chattel of her husband. ESCOTT, England, Ch. X, 137.

ii. Deliver up to me the chattels of the mad Charles Stewart. SCOTT.¹⁾

The bulk of his goods and chattels . . . were with the regimental baggage. THACK., Van. Fair, I, Ch. XXVIII, 292.

confines. If the fame of that treatise were to extend to the furthest confines of the known world. DICK., Pickw., Ch. I, 3.

duds. Her mother is getting on her duds. RUDY. KIPLING, Gadsb., 11.

Just look at the duds she 'as got on. G. MOORE, Esth. Wat., Ch. XIII, 88.

exequies. The festival of Adonis was celebrated with the representation of funeral exequies. THIRLWALL.¹⁾ fume(s). i. His two chamberlains | Will I with wine and wassail so convince, | That memory, the warder of the brain, | Shall be a fume. Mac b., I, 7, 66.

¹⁾ MURRAY.

The wind falls faint as it blows with the fume of the flowers of the night. SWINBURNE.¹⁾

- ii. The fumes of choice tobacco scent the air. DICKENS.¹⁾

Suddenly an idea mingled with the alcoholic fumes which disturbed his brain. BRET HARTE, Outcasts, 24.

furies. Before he landed at Southampton, the Jameson raid had taken place and the furies of racial hatred were unloosed. Rev. of Rev., CCV, 28*b*.

- gallows. i. I prophesied, if a gallows were on land, | This fellow could not drown. Temp., V, 1, 217.

So was the black-horned thing seated aloof on a rock, surveying a distant crowd surrounding a gallows. CH. BRONTË, Jane Eyre, Ch. I, 3.

Gibbet = a gallows with a cross-beam or an arm projecting from the top, on which notorious malefactors were hanged. ANNANDALE, Conc. Dict.

The sign-post of the White Hart Inn served for a gallows. MAC., Hist., II, Ch. V, 201.

 I like thy wit well, in good faith: the gallows does well; but how does it well? it does well to those that do ill [etc.]. Hamlet, V, 1, 50.

He continued to swing there at night long after the gallows was taken down. WASH. IRV., Dolf Heyl (STOF., Handl., I, 114).

 He took the maior aside and required of him that a paire of gallowses should be framed and erected. HAYWARD.¹⁾

- ii. Previous to this epocha, gallowses had been erected at Naples. HELEN M. WILLIAMS.¹⁾ gewgaw(s). i. The toy and the gewgaw no more can divert. R. W. HAMILTON, Pop. Educ., X, 318.

- ii. Leave your diamond-pin up-stairs; our friends to-day don't like such gewgaws. THACK., Sam. Titm., Ch. VII, 79.

just (jousts). i. * The just was a separate trial of skill when only one man was opposed to another. STRUTT.¹⁾

Seldom hath pass'd a week but giust | Or feat of arms befell. SCOTT, Marm., I, xiv. And no quest came, but all was joust and play. TEN., Merlin and Vivien, 143. Henceforward let there be, | Once every year, a joust for one of these (sc. diamonds). Id., Lanc. and El., 61.

 Eight jousts had been, and still | Had Lancelot won the diamond of the year. Id., 67.

- ii. * Hand in hand they moved | Down to the meadow where the jousts were held. Id., Ger. and Enid, 537.

Are you so sick, my Queen, you cannot move | To these fair jousts? Id., Lanc. and El., 79.

 The cry of a great jousts | With trumpet-blowings ran on all the ways | From Camelot. Id., The last Tournament, 51.

lauds. Breviary = a book containing the daily service of the Roman Catholic or Greek church. It is composed of matins, lauds, first, third, and ninth vespers and the compline or post-communio. WEBST., s. v. breviary.

(dis)like(s). i. I do not care a straw for his like or dislike. F. M. CRAWFORD, Greifenstein, III, xxii, 41.1)

She had a small flower-garden, for which she had rather an affection; but beyond this no other like or disliking. THACK., Van. Fair, I, Ch. IX, 86.

- ii. Her odd likes and dislikes. BLACK, Pr. Thule, Ch. XII, 180.1)

All that the Chancellor said about his likes, his dislikes... carefully reported. Manch. Exam.¹⁾

¹⁾ MURRAY.

Compare: The convenience of States has to be taken into account; the possible liking and disliking of peoples whom perhaps the bride and bridegroom have never seen, and are destined never to see. MC. CARTHY, Short Hist., Ch. XVIII, 245.

lineaments. The general lineaments of the era that was passing away. KIRK.¹⁾ He examined his lineaments, in the hopes of detecting a likeness to the Chandos portrait. J. PAYN.¹⁾

matins. The warriors left their lowly bed, | Looked out upon the dappled sky, | Muttered their soldier matins by | And then awaked their fire. SCOTT, Lady, V, II. Matins are preceded by the Pater Noster, the Ave Maria, and the Credo. J. M. NEALE.¹⁾

obsequies. Her obsequies have been as far enlarged | As we have warranty. Ham l., V, 1, 250.

Call it not vain: — they do not err, | Who say, that when the poet dies, | Mute Nature mourns her worshipper, | And celebrates his obsequies. SCOTT, Lay, V, 1.

(out)skirts. i. We found a party of Uhlans reconnoitring in the outskirts of Grandpré and immediately attacked them. BUCHANAN, That Winter Night, Ch. V, 52. There is much that is profoundly impressive in the appearance of their outskirts as the traveller enters them by night. ESCOTT, England, Ch. VI, 74.

ii. Now, Sir, young Fortinbras, | ... Hath in the skirts of Norway, here and there | Shark'd up a list of lawless resolute. Ham l., I, 1, 97.

In his way to the lodgings of a friend, who lived in the skirts of the town, he was picked up by the watch. SMOL., Rod. Rand., Ch. XX, 133.

He now entered the skirts of the village. WASH. IRV., Rip van Winkle.

perquisite(s). i. Of all the arguments in the way of business, the perquisite is the most prevailing. GAY, Beggar's Opera, II, 1.

ii. Your father's perquisites for the escape of prisoners must amount to a considerable sum in the year. Id., II.

plaudit. Mr. Morley introduced his first Indian Budget on July 20th, and won plaudits from the House for the manner as well as the matter of his speech. Rev. of Rev., CC, 123b.

But what is that to the horror of seeing Marguerite return from heaven in order to join hands with the Devil and her seducer in acknowledging the plaudits of the crowd? Id., CC, 157a.

precinct(s). i. I would as soon have thought of walking into the Doctor's own library at Grey Friars, as of entering into that awful precinct. THACK., Newc., I, Ch. V, 50.

ii. The sound of his voice was heard . . . down staircases to the Court of Requests and precincts of Westminster Hall. MAC., Pitt, (293b).

More than once it (sc. the Exhibition) held within its precincts at one moment nearly a hundred thousand persons. MC. CARTHY, Short Hist., Ch. IX, 109. The public are not admitted within the turbulent precincts of "the House". ESCOTT, England, Ch. VIII, 108.

They do not even respect the holy precincts of the church. BUCHANAN, That Winter Night, Ch. V, 47.

proceeds. It was a very vivid and very suggestive representation of the ways and manners of those rough warriors, who, having garnered the loot of the world got drunk on its proceeds. Rev. of Rev., CCV, 35b.

rapture. i. Who was this, stealing in the chamber — a tall grey man, with a face full of eager love and rapture? BUCHANAN, That Winter Night, Ch. XV, 129.

ii. I held my daughter in my arms, whose silence only spoke her raptures. GOLDS., Vic., Ch. XXXI, (473).

But my raptures were not lasting. SMOL., Rod. Rand., Ch. XXII, 156.

¹⁾ MURRAY.

remain(s). i. A traditional remain of his office of server. Times.¹⁾

The supposition that Low Hill is a Druidical remain. J. H. LUPTON.¹⁾

ii. He made a scanty breakfast on the remains of the last night's provisions. WASH. IRV., Dolf Heyl (STOF., Handl., I, 123).

On visiting those disinterred remains of an ancient City [etc.]. LYTTON, Last Days, Pref.

He must destroy all remains of this detestable will. EDNA LYALL, Donovan, I, 64. She lies in the same vault containing the remains of the famous author and statesman. Lit. World.

responsions. Congregation yesterday rejected the solution which would have rendered Greek unnecessary as a subject for Responsions. Times.

road(s). i. My ships | Are safely come to road. Merch. of Ven., V, 1, 278.

ii. The sixth day of our being at sea we came into Yarmouth roads. DEFOE, Rob. Crusoe, 8.

A great many ships from Newcastle came into the same roads. Ib.

The Armada dropped anchor in Calais roads. J. R. GREEN, Short Hist., Ch. VII, Sect. VI, 419.

An enormous number of the yachts have already arrived in the Cowes Roads. Daily Mail.

sweepstakes. Every noon there was a sweepstakes for the number of miles in 24 hours. FROUDE, Oceana, Ch. XIX, 301.

A few days after he tried to persuade her to take a ticket in a shilling sweepstakes he was getting up among the out- and in-door servants. G. MOORE, Esth. Waters, Ch. V, 33.

thanks. i. To his Subscribers the Author returns his most sincere thanks. BURNS, Pref. to the First Edition.

The letters consisted for the most part of compliments, thanks, offers of service, assurances of attachment. MAC., Fred., (690*b*).

The man was too awkward to put his thanks into words. MRS. GASK., Cranf., Ch. XIII, 245.

To those who wrote the play... all thanks are due. Westm. Gaz., No. 5525, 8*d*. Many (a thousand) thanks for your kind letter.

ii. * For this relief much thanks. Hamlet, I, 1, 8.

Your wife would give you little thanks for that. Merch. of Ven., IV, 1, 280. It's little thanks I get for what I do for folks i' this world. G. ELIOT, Mill, I, Ch. XII, 111.

 Yet your good will | Must have that thanks from Rome, after the measure | As you intended well. Coriolanus, V, 1, 46.

 Thanks to men of noble minds is honourable meed. Tit. Andr., I, 215.

* I have heard it, Pompey; | And am well studied for a liberal thanks | Which I do owe you. Ant. and Cleop., II, 6, 48.

iii. Thanks to the political crisis, the States General were assembled. MRS. GORE, A Life's Less., II, 136.²⁾

That the incident terminated without an appeal to arms was no thanks to Lord Randolph. Rev. of Rev., CXCI, 89*a*. (Compare: That increasing acquaintance with the laws of phenomena, which has through successive ages enabled us to subjugate Nature to our needs, is scarcely owed to the appointed means of instructing our youth. SPENC., Educ., Ch. I, 23*a*.)

throe(s). i. And was the Old World coming speedily to its death-throe? CH. KINGLEY, Hyp., Ch. X, 54.

ii. Round her new-fallen young the heifer moves, | Fruit of her throes. POPE, Iliad, XVII, 6.

¹⁾ MURRAY.

FLÜGEL.

Nine years elapsed before it saw the light. His throes in bringing it forth had been severe and remittent. BOSWELL, Life of Johnson, 85*b*.

It is at least conceivable that in the throes of revolutionary frenzy he himself might perish. Rev. of Rev., CXCVIII, 562*b*.

tidings. i. And when the people heard these evil tidings, they mourned. Bible Exodus, XXXIII, 4.

I am to shew thee these glad tidings. Id., Luke, I, 19.

The next tidings were that he was married. JANE AUSTEN, Persuasion, Ch. I, 6.

ii. * The tidings comes that they are all arrived. King John, IV, 2, 115.

Now, Travers, what good tidings comes with you? Henry IV, B, I, 1, 33.

 He welcomed his nephew to France, and, in the same breath, asked what news from Scotland. "Little good tidings, dear uncle," replied young Durward.

SCOTT, Quent. Durw., Ch. V, 75.

toil. i. Why do you go about to recover the wind of me, as if you would drive me into a toil? Hamlet, III, 2, 365.

ii. Where chiefs, with hound and hawk who came | To share their monarch's silvan game, | Themselves in bloody toils were snared. SCOTT, Lady, II, xxviii, 15.

In order to drive a deer into the toils it was needful to get to the windward of him. MADDEN, The Diary of Master William Silence, 33, Note (DOWDEN, Hamlet, III, 2, 365).

Do you know whom she has got into her toils. Mrs. WARD, Lady Rose's Daughter, I, Ch. II, 22*b*.

She tried to get Robert into her toils. OSCAR WILDE, An Ideal Husband, I.

traps. Have I got all my traps? DICK., Cop., Ch. XXII, 166*b*.

vails. The lackeys rose up from their cards to open the door to him, in order to et their "vails". THACK., Virg., Ch. II, 13.

These ignominious vails Pitt resolutely declined. MAC., Pitt, (298*a*).

vespers. i. * Vespers was still far off. CONAN DOYLE, The White Comp., Ch. I, 1.

 We should see a new and vaster and far more horrible Sicilian vespers. Rev. of Rev., CCXXVIII, 511*a*.

ii. Vespers were performed before the sovereigns. LEIGH HUNT, The Story of King Robert of Sicily.

vestment(s). i. They frown at the sight of even the most modest sacerdotal vestment. RIDER HAGGARD, Lysbeth, Author's Note.

ii. Some (priests) flung away their sacred vestments. MAC., Popes, (560*a*).

A quaint old carved oak chest half filled with priests' vestments. MISS BRADDON, Lady Audley's Secr., I, Ch. I, 4.

viand(s). i. Still cupboarding the viand. Coriolanus, I, 1, 103.

ii. Soon after our dinner was served in, which was right good viands. BACON, New Atlantis, (274).

He loved to eat in the open air and shared his viands liberally with the wasps. Rev. of Rev., CCIX, 572*b*.

wage(s). i. * By the end of six months he was receiving a wage of fourteen shillings as salesman. Mrs. WARD, David Grieve, I, 250.

Three half-pence an hour was the average wage of a working man in England. HALL CAINE, The Christian, II, 69.

Thousands of them are just earning a living wage. Rev. of Rev., CCVII, 385*a*.

 What's to make me sure as the house won't be put o' board wage afore we're many months older. G. ELIOT, Adam Bede, Ch. XXXII, 300.

i. * The wages are pretty good. THACK., Van. Fair, I, Ch. XIV, 148.

The wages of these people were laid out in powder and arms. FROUDE, Oceana, Ch. III, 52.

If the wages satisfy you, I think you will suit me very well. G. MOORE, Esth. Wat., Ch. XXII, 143.

 The wages of sin is death. Bible, Romans, VI, 23.

Last week my wages was 7s. 6d. CH. KINGSLEY, Cheap Clothes and Nasty, 66.

I think I shall be able to manage till my first quarter's wages comes to me. G. MOORE, Esth. Waters, Ch. III, 25.

 These (those) wages were utterly insufficient.

* If any servants have too little wages, or any husband too much wife: let them repair to the noble Serjeant Kite. FARQUHAR, The Recruiting Officer, I, 1, (251).

The poor lad had but little wages to receive. FIELD., Jos. Andrews, IV, Ch. I, 203.

Mary is living in a place where they don't give her as much wages as she deserves. Mrs. GASKELL, Wives and Daught., Ch. XV, 157.

The manufacturers there enjoy the advantage of paying much less wages for much longer hours of work. Westm. Gaz., No. 4943, 9.

He quite compelled us to hold our tongues, by threatening to lay information against us, for paying him too much wages. BLACKMORE, Lorna Doone, Ch. XXXVIII, 228.

iii. If you please I had rather be at Board-Wages, CONGREVE, Love for Love, I, 1, 12.

ware(s). i. Small woman's ware, such as thread and pins. G. ELIOT, Romola.¹⁾ The capital of cotton and the capital of hardware supply materials both for parallel and contrast. ESCOTT, England, Ch. VI, 91.

ii. One of the youngsters espied the cart of Dobbin and Rudge, at the Doctor's door, discharging a cargo of the wares in which the firm dealt. THACK., Van. Fair, I, Ch. V, 40.

I can't show such wares as mine in this fair for every fly to settle on and pay nothing. G. ELIOT, Romola, Ch. XIV, 121.

weed(s). i. They left me then, when the grey-hooded Ev'n | Like a sad votarist in palmer's weed | Rose from the hindmost wheel of Phœbus' wain. MILTON, Comus, 190.

Oh, for his arms! Of martial weed. | Had never mortal Knight such need! SCOTT, Brid. of Trierm., III, xx.

At least put off to please me this poor gown, | This silken rag, this beggar-woman's weed. TEN., Ger. and Enid, 679.

ii. To such my errand is, and but for such | I would not soil these pure ambrosial weeds. MILTON, Comus, 15.

Who would rob a palmer of his weeds? Ib., 390.

You must even do like other widows — buy yourself weeds. GAY, Beggar's Opera, II, 1.

No matter how her weeds of widowhood might have become her, she would probably have doffed them soon to wed another lover. Rev. of Rev., CCV, 37a.

20. Among the nouns which are more or less strictly pluralia tantum only in certain of their meanings, the majority are found in the plural also in a meaning or in meanings corresponding exactly to that or those of the singular, so that they mostly have more meanings in the plural than in the singular. Thus chains as a plurale tantum = fetters, but the word is also the plural of chain in its ordinary meaning. Similarly accents not only has the meaning corresponding to the singular accent, but also stands for speech or language.

These relative pluralia tantum are very numerous, so that anything like an exhaustive discussion cannot be attempted in these pages. Nor do they present any distinct features according to which they might be conveniently divided into groups. The most remarkable among them are, therefore, simply enumerated in alphabetical order, while only those meanings are mentioned which are peculiar to the plural. The definitions of these meanings are in substance those of MURRAY, WEBSTER or ANNANDALE, more or less shortened.

accents = speech, language.

How many ages hence | Shall this our lofty scene be acted over | In states unborn and accents yet unknown! JUL. CÆS., III, 1, 113.

O Minstrel Harp, still must thine accents sleep? SCOTT, Lady, I, 1.

accomplishments = ornamental attainments or acquirements. Sometimes used in the singular in, apparently, the same meaning.

i. She had neither beauty, genius, accomplishment, nor manner. JANE AUSTEN, North. Abbey, Ch. II, 8.

He was a man of great reading, no small ability, considerable accomplishment, excellent good sense and humour. THACK., Newc., I, Ch. VIII, 97.

ii. Such a dashing young fellow as he is, with his good looks, rank and accomplishments would be the very husband for her. THACK., Van. Fair, I, Ch. XXI, 216. But it was not solely or principally to outward accomplishments that Pitt owed the vast influence which, during nearly thirty years, he exercised over the House of Commons. MAC., Pitt, (294a).

accounts = a) registers of facts relating to money; b) the art of drawing up commercial calculations (= Dutch handelsrekenen). Also regularly used in the plural in the phrases to cast accounts, to keep accounts, to balance (or square) accounts with any one, to settle (the) accounts.

i. In very ancient times accounts were kept by means of tallies and chalk-marks. Sir R. G. C. HAMILTON and JOHN BALL, Book-keeping.

Here he checked the housekeeper's accounts. THACK., Van. Fair, I, Ch. XXIV, 246. Some days we can get through our accounts in 'alf the time we can at other times. G. MOORE, Esth. Waters, Ch. XXX, 214.

ii. A knowledge of the theory and practice of accounts is an important part of the education of every man. Sir R. G. C. HAMILTON and JOHN BALL, Book-keeping, Pref.

I am versed in book-keeping and accounts. Business-letter writer, XX.

iii. Can you cast accounts. LYTTON, Night and Morning, 81.

I went over from Drumble once a quarter at least to settle the accounts. Mrs. GASK., Cranf., Ch. XV, 286.

acquirements = personal attainments of body or mind. Occasionally in the singular in apparently the same meaning.

i. A man of greater ability and acquirement than Stein. SEELLEN.¹⁾ ii. They found it advisable to employ these unoccupied intervals with rubbing up their historical or geographical acquirements. DOR. GERARD, Etern. Woman, Ch. XII.

¹⁾ MURRAY.

addresses = dutiful or courteous approach to any one especially to a lady in courtship (= Dutch aanzoek). Occasionally in the singular in, apparently, the same meaning.

- i. She is taken with Sir Lucius's address. SHER., Riv., II, 2, (238).

I have your respected mother's permission for this address. JANE AUSTEN, Pride and Prej., Ch. XIX, 108.

Make your addresses to the fair. FARQUHAR, Const. Couple, I, 1, (46).

It is usual with young ladies to reject the addresses of the man whom they secretly mean to accept, when he first applies for their favour. JANE AUSTEN, Pride and Prej., Ch. XIX, advances = movements towards closer acquaintance or understanding, overtures. May be used in the singular preceded by every, and in the plural modified by some understood as an indefinite numeral.

She felt much honoured by Mr. Pipkin's addresses. DICK., Pickw., Ch. XVII, 132.

- i. She doggedly refused and rejected every advance. MRS. GASK., Cranf., Ch. XV, 291.

- ii. Notwithstanding some advances she made, I could not be prevailed upon to yield her the least attention. SMOL., Rod. Rand., Ch. XIX, 124.

- iii. The girls had made the most cordial advances to her. THACK., Van. Fair, I, Ch. XX, 212.

Frederic had some time before made advances towards a reconciliation. MAC., Fred., (690b).

Her resistance to his advances nettled him. MRS. ALEX., A Life Interest, I, Ch. XI, 191.

advice(s) = communication(s) from a distance. Also occasionally in the singular in the same meaning.

- i. I have sure advice that she is gone to meet her father. SCOTT, Fair Maid, Ch. XXX, 313.

- ii. Though advices came down to him that many thousands of the citizens had been enrolled as volunteers for the good cause, nothing was done. MAC., Hist., II, Ch. V, 159.

Advices from Colesberg of the 15th inst. say that many colonial Dutch have joined the Boers in that district. TIMES.

affairs = a) transactions of a general kind; b) commercial or professional business; c) public business transactions or matters concerning men or nations collectively; d) matters, things in an indefinite or vague way (Ch. XXXI, 57).

- i. There is a tide in the affairs of men | Which, taken at the flood, leads on to fortune. JUL. CÆS., IV, 3, 218.

- ii. His own affairs were in a very anxious state. MRS. GASK., Cranf., Ch. XIV, 274. A knowledge of the theory and practice of accounts is an important part of the education of every man. It enables him to exercise a due control over his own affairs, or the affairs of others which may be intrusted to him. SIR R. G. C. HAMILTON and JOHN BALL, Book-keeping, Preface.

- iii. Gradually he acquired such an aptitude for affairs as his most intimate associates were not aware he possessed. MAC., Fred., (661b).

He was his own treasurer, his own minister for trade and justice, for home affairs and foreign affairs. Ib., (671b).

- iv. The inhabitants of the village, while discussing the position of affairs, had suddenly been startled by the appearance of six mounted Uhlans. BUCHANAN, That Winter Night, Ch. V, 45.

airs = artificial or affected manner, show of pride, haughtiness.

They give themselves such airs. JANE AUSTEN, North. Abbey, Ch. VI, 30.

He puts on airs. WEBST., Dict.

You will find your companions easy enough to get on with, if you don't go giving yourself airs. ANSTEV, Vice Versa, Ch. II, 37.

antlers = branched horn of a stag or deer.

He (sc. the hart) is of a green colour, and his antlers have full sixty points. ROBIN HOOD, Ch. III, (146) (Gruno Series).

appearances = the general aspect of circumstances or events, the 'look' of things. Also regularly in the plural in the phrases to keep up (to save) appearances.

- i. Appearances are at least against you. CH. KINGSLEY, Westw. Ho!, Ch. XIX, 146b. How deceptive are appearances. PUNCH.
- ii. My only chance of success depends on my keeping up appearances — lulling suspicion. MRS. ALEX., A Life Interest, I, Ch. IV, 72.

appointments = equipment, outfit, accoutrements. Occasionally met with in the singular, especially in earlier writers, to denote a single article of outfit.

- i. I have not one appointment belonging to me which I set so much store by, as I do by these jack-boots. STERNE, Trist. Shandy, III, Ch. XXII.
- ii. "Oh, oh! my old friend!" said the Prince recognising the figure as well as the appointments of the French glee-woman Louise. SCOTT, Fair Maid, Ch. XXX, 318.

articles = a) formal agreement drawn up in articles; b) indictment drawn up in articles. As a plurale tantum also met with in the collocation the articles of war (= the regulations made for the government of the military and naval forces of Great Britain and the United States [= Dutch krijgswet]).

Note especially: a) articles of apprenticeship, articles of association (= rules, conditions, etc., upon which a commercial agreement is founded), b) marriage articles (= Dutch huwelijksvoorwaarden), c) to enter into articles with a man (= Dutch een overeenkomst met iemand aangaan, het met iemand op een accoordje gooien).

- i. Parting with him! why, that is the whole scheme and intention of all marriage articles. GAY, Beg. Op., I.
He had been instrumental in drawing up the marriage articles himself. GOLD-SMITH, Vic., Ch. XXXI, (469).
I was obliged to retrench and enter into articles with the porters of certain taverns. SMOL., Rod. Rand., Ch. XXIII, 161.
I'll teach the scoundrel to give intelligence to others, while he is under articles with me. Ib., Ch. III, 46.
She was forbidden by the articles of her engagement to have 'followers'. MRS. GASK., Cranf., Ch. III, 54.
I have a great mind to chuck the whole thing up. I would, if my articles hadn't been signed. OSC. WILDE, Dorian Gray, Ch. V, 93.
- ii. Certain articles presented against this Archbishop. BURTON.¹⁾
- iii. The Articles of War are to be read once in every three months to the Officers and Men. Regul. and Ord. Army.¹⁾
It was a city obeying the articles of war. MOTLEY, Rise, IV, Ch. I, 562.

assizes = sessions held periodically in each county of England for the purpose of administering civil and criminal justice. Sometimes found preceded by the indefinite article or a singular demonstrative pronoun; in this position the singular form is, however, more usual.

¹⁾ MURRAY.

- i. In addition to the ordinary half-yearly assizes, at which both civil and criminal causes are heard, there is now in some of the counties a special assize for criminal cases only. Cas. Conc. Cyclop., s. v. assize.

What is now wanted is some sort of international assize which will do for libelled nations what the Liverpool Assize did for the libelled soap firms. Rev. of Rev., CCXII, 122a.

It sometimes happens in thinly populated districts that there are no criminals to be tried; this is called a "Maiden Assize," and the sheriff presents the judge with a pair of white gloves. ANNA BUCKLAND, Our Nat. Inst., 50.

- ii. Two lawyers' clerks were discussing the cases to come on that assizes. Mrs. GASK., Mary Barton, Ch. XXVI, 267.

A plague upon you, sir, and a black assizes for you, for you will come to the gallows yet. CH. KINGSLEY, Westw. Hol., Ch. IV, 29b.

attainments = personal acquirements. Occasionally found in the singular.

- i. Men that count it a great attainment to be able to talk much. GLANVILL.¹⁾ ii. Tom began . . . examining him as to his literary attainments. HUGHES, Tom Brown, I, Ch. V, 87.

A French poet of modest attainments . . . was French tutor of the three daughters of Protector Somerset. SIDNEY LEE, French Renaissance in England, I, Ch. X, 45.

auxiliaries = foreign troops in the service of a nation at war. Occasionally met with in the singular to denote a soldier belonging to an auxiliary force.

- i. A Gaul and a Roman happened to challenge one another to wrestle; the legionary fell, the auxiliary mocked him. MERIVALE.¹⁾ ii. When Xanthippus, a Lacedæmonian arrived with a Body of Auxiliaries. DRYDEN.¹⁾ balusters = structure of uprights and handrail.

Stooping till her head looked over the balusters. G. MOORE, Esth. Waters, Ch. XIII, 79.

The main staircase . . . was of hard oak, the balusters . . . being turned and moulded in the quaint fashion of their century. HARDY, Far from the Madding Crowd, Ch. IX, 81.

bands = a) bonds, bondage; b) strips hanging down in front as part of a conventional dress, clerical, legal or academical.

- i. He left me on pretence of finding a proper person to unite us in the bands of wedlock. SMOL., Rod. Rand., Ch. XXII, 150.
He struggled fiercely with his chain, | Whispered, and wept, and smiled; | Yet were not long those fatal bands. BRYANT, The African Chief, VIII.
ii. It was this man that Jonathan Swift advised to take orders, to mount in a cassock and bands. TROL., Thack., Ch. VII, 161.

ban(n)isters = balusters. Occasionally used in the singular in the same meaning. The spelling with single n is the usual one. The word is a corruption of balusters. In the singular meaning of upright post, the form baluster is the ordinary one.

- i. Here, leaning over the banister, I cried out suddenly [etc.]. CH. BRONTË, Jane Eyre, Ch. IV, 27.

"Is it — is it for the child?" cried Lady Ann, reeling against the banister. THACK., Newc., I, Ch. IX, 114.

- ii. She kept looking over the banisters to see if she could get a glimpse of Mr. Rochester. CH. BRONTË, Jane Eyre, Ch. XIII, 141.

¹⁾ MURRAY.

As I went up and down that darkling stair, the ghosts of the Prior children peeped out from the banisters. THACK., Lovel the Widower, Ch. II, 25.

bays = leaves or sprigs of the bay-tree or bay-laurel woven into a wreath or garland to reward a conqueror or a poet. Also occasionally in the singular in the same meaning.

- i. The gain of Civil wars will not allow Bay to the Conqueror's Brow. COWLEY.¹⁾
- ii. Your bays may hide the baldness of your brows. BYRON, Don Juan, Dedic., VII. Murray, we are told, might have been an Ovid, but he preferred to be lord chief justice, and to wear ermine instead of bays. THACK., Virg., Ch. LXIII, 659.

beads = a) rosary; b) string of beads for the neck. Bead (archaically bede) in its original sense of prayer occurs as a singular in to bid a (his, etc.) bead; mostly as a plural in to say one's beads. With distinct reference to the use of the rosary we find bead as a plural also in the expressions to tell or count one's beads.

- i. * He seeks a rocky cell,—Like hermit poor to bid his bead. SCOTT, Bridal of Trierman, III, iv.
-  To fetch the priest... | To bury her and say her bede. W. MORRIS, Earthly Par., I, 1, 152¹⁾.
- ii. Do they wear beads? She cannot find her beads. MURRAY.
- iii. All the people said their beads in a perfect silence. BURNET, Hist. Ref., II, 55.¹⁾ He counts his beads, and spends his holy zeal. J. BARLOW, Conspir. Kings, 78.¹⁾ beginnings = initial stages (in a person's career). The singular form with the same meaning appears occasionally.

- i. Out of this humble beginning sprang . . . that great institution now housed in the Royal Exchange. II. Lond. News, No. 3810, 621.
 - ii. They have fought their way up from humble beginnings to the front rank. Rev. of Rev., CXCVIII, 568a.
- The tale may have been invented to sharpen the contrast between his high achievements and his humble beginnings. *Introd. to 'The Merch. of Ven.'*⁴ (Clar. Press).

boards = stage.

This general officer had written one or two comedies, which were still acted on the London boards. Mrs. GASK., Cranf., Ch. VII, 129.

Molière and his contemporaries had lived their lives on the boards. ANDREW LANG, Ten., Ch. VIII, 170.

bonds = bondage.

I may be my own master before I get into the bonds of matrimony. G. ELIOT, Scenes, II, Ch. II, 95.

Some men are weary of the bonds of love. W. MORRIS, Earthly Paradise, Atalanta's Race, 36b.

Compare: There is one great bond between all races and between all nations. T. P.'s Christm. Numb. of 1911, 2b.

boots = a) instrument of torture, b) servant in hotels who cleans the boots. Also in certain compounds, such as clumsy-boots, lazy-boots, sly-boots, smooth-boots, in which it stands for fellow, person.

- i. He (Monmouth) tried to throw the blame on others, particularly on Argyle, who would rather have put his legs into the boots than have saved his own life by such baseness. MAC. Hist., II, Ch. V, 189.

¹⁾ MURRAY.

ii. I'm the boots as b'longs to the house. DICK., Sketches.

No boots admires and envies me. Id., Uncom. Trav., Ch. I, 11.

iii. You're the most creasing and tumbling Clumsy-boots of a packer. DICK., Our Mut. Friend.¹⁾ brains = a) the nervous system contained in the skull when not considered as part of the organic system: a dish of brains; b) intellectual power. Brain as a singular is chiefly used in two ways: a) as an ordinary object noun to denote the nervous substance in the skull as part of the animal organism. In this case it may be preceded by the indef. art. and be pluralized like any other object-noun: a brain, ten brains (Comp. mane); β) as a material noun: brain is heavier than water.

Also in denoting intellectual power, some writers prefer the singular.

When by the word is meant the centre of sensation, the organ of thought, etc. the popular language prefers the plural, the dignified language the singular.

The plural is regular in many phrases, such as to dash (knock) out a person's brains, to blow out (any) one's brains.

The singular is regular in the phrases to have anything (music, gambling, any object of admiration or antipathy) on the brain (= to be crazy on the subject of), to turn one's brain (= to render giddy, to bewilder, to render vain or imprudent).

Usage is divided as to the phrases to beat (busy, cudgel, drag, melt out, puzzle, rack) one's brain(s) (= to exert oneself in thought or contrivance); also in the phrase to crack one's brain(s) (= to render oneself insane); but the plural is more common than the singular.

Brains in the sense of intellectual power is construed now as a plural, now as a singular. The use of the singular form of the indefinite numerals would, however, seem to be the rule: much (little) brains. Compare also Ch. XXVI, 16.

i. * He fired, over the boy's head, exactly in the very spot where the tall man's brain would have been, had he been there instead. DICK., Pickw., Ch. XIX, 165.

The brain of a porpoise is quite wonderful for its mass. HUXLEY, Darwiniana, Ch. V, 176.

It may be safely said that an average European child of four years old has a brain twice as large as that of an adult Gorilla. HUXLEY, Man's Place in Nature, Ch. II, 107.

The human brain is the most marvellous machine in the world. Rev. of Rev., CCXX, 390a.

 Brain is heavier than water. Ib.

 She has fascination, resource, brain. Mrs. WARD, Marc., I, Ch. III, 29.

He's got an unusual brain and a wonderful memory. Id., David Grieve, I, 70. In the coming day Brain is to stand above Dollars. ANDREW CARNEGIE (Rev. of Rev., CCV, 28).

* I hasten to fulfil an important duty — that of giving the productions of a sublime genius to the world . . . as they sprang, living and warm from his heart and brain. Mrs. SHELLEY, Pref. to First Col. Edition, 1839.

Men who are not perplexed overmuch by fatigue of the brain. THACK., Van Fair, II, Ch. VIII, 81.

Suddenly an idea mingled with the alcoholic fumes that disturbed his brain. BRET HARTE, Outcasts, 24.

¹⁾ MURRAY.

(If) he should sorrow o'er my state | And marvel what possess'd my brain.
TEN., In Memoriam, XIV, iv.

He paced restlessly up and down the room with his brain on fire. ANSTEY, Vice Versa, Ch. II, 30.

* Zounds! the girl's mad! — her brain's turned by reading. SHER., Riv., IV, 1, (261).

If they (sc. the Bells) said anything, they said this, until the brain of Toby reeled. DICK., Chimes³, I, 36.

When a gentleman is cudgelling his brain to find any rhyme for 'sorrow' besides 'borrow' and 'to-morrow', his woes are nearer at an end than he thinks for.
THACK., Pend., I, Ch. XV, 147.

He cudgels his brain into framing illustrations which he takes for proofs. LESLIE STEPHEN, G. Elliot, Ch. VIII, 117.

The lithe, thin-lipped Countess is racking her small brain for caressing words and charming exaggerations. G. ELIOT, Scenes, I, Ch. II, 28.

He was racking his brain for some excuse by which to draw Stephen away.
EDNA LYALL, Don., II, 150.

Sigrid racked her brain to think of some way of making money. Id., A Hardy Norseman, Ch. XVIII, 163.

Mr. Balfour has the Irish on the brain, and we need not attach serious importance to what he says when he sees green. Westm. Gaz., No. 5283, 1b.

He may sometimes have been . . . derided . . . as a man afflicted with postal reform on the brain. Times, No. 1831, 89b.

- ii. * As the result of the careful weighing of more than 900 human brains, Professor Wagner states that one-half weighed between 1200 and 1400 grammes. HUXLEY, Man's Place in Nature, Ch. II, 166.

 His skull was the great blue vault of Immensity, and the brains of it became the clouds. CARLYLE, Hero Worship, 18.

 At the bottom a calf's tongue and brains. — Let your brains be knocked out, my good sir, I don't like them. GOLDSMITH, She Stoops, II.

Dead as the stones on which her brains and blood were scattered. CH. BRONTË, Jane Eyre, Ch. XXXVI, 527.

* Are we to expect a heavy dragoon with strong desires and small brains to become prudent all of a sudden? THACK., Van. Fair, I, Ch. XVI, 164.

You have got more brains in your little finger than any baronet's wife in the county. Id., I, Ch. XV, 158.

She's as stuck-up as if her brains had made the money, and not his. LLOYD, North. Eng., 118.

Brains without practical experience will go farther than practical experience without brains. JOHN STUART MILL.

 She did not pester their young brains with too much learning. THACK., Van. Fair, I, Ch. XVI, 164.

When she spoke, he brought all the force of his brains to listen. Id., I, Ch.
XVI, 165.

There was more stimulus in the air than such brains as Daddy's could rightly stand. Mrs. WARD, Dav. Grieve, I, 273.

 Cudgel thy brains no more about it. Haml., V, 1, 62.

I shall knock your brains out, if you have any. GAY, Beggar's Opera, I.
It was a mercy of God you did not knock your brains out against some post in your career. SMOL., Rod. Rand., Ch. XVIII, 121.

They are melting their brains out, this hot day, to guess at the riddle. LYTTON, Rienzi, I, Ch. IX, 55.

Give your brains a racking. BROWNING, Pied. Piper, 29. (with which compare: It's easy to bid one rack one's brain. Id., 38.)

Often did he rack his brains for some means of cheering the 'débutant'. EDNA LYALL, Knight Errant, Ch. XVI, 132.

The old man was racking his brains for some argument. CH. KINGSLEY, Hyp., Ch. IV, 18*b*.

 Brains were not everything, though, of course, brains counted. And at any time he would back the man with greater force of character and fewer brains against the man with more brains and less force of character. BONAR LAW (Times). Madam has far too much brains to be taken in by that vapouring vain little villain. (?) Mad. Leroux, Ch. XIII.

We have never regarded him as having much brains. Il. Lond. News, No. 3816, 894*a*.

breakers = heavy ocean waves which break violently into foam against a rocky coast or in passing over reefs or shallows. Sometimes the singular is used collectively.

i. Across the boundless east we drove, | Where those long swells of breaker sweep | The nutmeg rocks and isles of clove. TEN., The Voyage, V.
Following up | And flying the white breaker, daily left | The little footprint daily wash'd away. Ib., Enoch Arden, 21.

ii. Suddenly we heard a shout of 'Breakers ahead!' and every one turned pale. BEERBOHM.¹⁾ brows = a) head; b) countenance. In poetical language also used for eyebrows. The singular brow, the literary word for forehead, seems to be likewise used loosely for the head in general.

i. And many a wizard brow bleach'd on the walls. TEN., Merl. and Viv., 595.
ii. * And round the champion's brows were bound | The crown that Druidess had wound | Of the green laurel-bay. SCOTT, Brid. of Triermain, III, xxxix.
And he laid | His brows upon the drifted leaf and dreamed. TEN., Last Tourn., 405.

Then Annie with her brows against the wall | Answered [etc.]. Id., Enoch Arden, 313.

Then, those two brethren slowly with bent brows | Accompanying, the sad chariot-bier | Past like a shadow thro' the field. Id., Lanc. and El., 1131.

I sat up in the bed and pressed my hands to my throbbing brows. CONWAY, Called Back, Ch. II, 23.

 Though all things foul would wear the brows of grace, | Yet grace must still look so. Macb., IV, 3, 23.

A heavy thunder-cloud gathering on his brows. ANSTEY, Vice Versa, Ch. XI, 217.

 But under her black brows a swarthy one | Laugh'd shrilly. TEN., Last Tourn., 216.

cards = cardplaying (19*d*). Also used as a plurale tantum in certain figurative expressions, such as to play one's cards well (badly, etc.), to throw (fling) up one's cards, to show one's cards, it is on the cards (= within the range of probability).

i. You might sooner tear a pension out of the hands of a courtier, a fee from a lawyer, a pretty woman from a looking-glass, or any woman from cards. GAY, Beggar's Opera, I, 1.

ii. It was quite on the cards that he was to be raised to the Upper House. MURRAY.
An invasion of England was at least on the cards. MCCARTHY, Short. Hist., Ch. IX, 119.

It is quite on the cards that we may never spend another hour together. NORRIS, My Friend Jim, Ch. XVII, 111.

¹⁾ MURRAY.

chains = fetters (19a).

charges = expenses. According to MURRAY in this application archaic. Note especially the collocation at (rarely upon, or on) any one's charges (= Dutch op kosten van).

i. Charges to be deducted. Including (the) charges.¹⁾ ii. * They had a magnum of claret at dinner at the club that day at Pen's charges. THACK., Pend., I, Ch. XXXI, 339.

They are welcome to make merry at my charges. Id., Lovel the Widower.

 One that serves as a volunteer in the wars upon his own charges. BAILEY.²⁾ checkers = draughts (19d). Used especially by American writers.

cheers = shouts of encouragement, welcome, approbation or congratulation.

He drew down storms of cheers. DICK., Chuz., Ch. XXI, 184a. (= Dutch: oogstie stormachtigen bijval.)

Lord Roberts was received with hearty cheers. Times.

chops (also, less frequently, chaps) = the jaws as united forming the biting and devouring apparatus.

Open your chops again. Temp., II, 2, 89.

If thou hadst as much brains in thy skull as beard on thy chops. SWIFT.²⁾ circumstances = a) external conditions prevailing at the time; b) condition or state as to material welfare, means. In the first application occasionally singular in the same meaning, even where the Dutch idiom would lead one to expect the plural; frequently preceded by the prepositions in or under. Observe also that owing to the frequent vagueness of its meaning the plural often discards the article. (Ch. XXXI, 57.)

In the second meaning usually preceded by some defining adjective: in easy (good, reduced, straitened, etc.) circumstances.

i. If that had ever been the case, her father would never have brought me in this circumstance. GAY, Beggar's Opera, II.

He has strayed or has been forced into political life by irresistible circumstance. T. P.'s Weekly, No. 417, 617c.

He is hemmed in by circumstance, by interests, and above all, by friends. Id., 618c.

ii. * Have you no tenderness, my dear Lucy, to see your husband in these circumstances. GAY, Beggar's Opera, II, 1.

Under these circumstances I dare not press your visit here. MRS. GASK, Life of Ch. Brontë, 121.

That was an act that seemed pardonable under the circumstances. DU MAURIER, Trilby, I, 6.

 His family, though ancient, was in depressed circumstances. Pref. to John Gay's Beggar's Opera.

Her father had once been an opulent farmer, but was reduced in circumstances. WASH. IRVING, Sketches, XXX, 323.

Are you aware how small his means are, and of the straitened circumstances of his widow? THACK., Van. Fair, I, Ch. XXXV, 390.

He had become fairly easy in his circumstances. TROL., Thack., Ch. I, 39.

¹⁾ FLÜGEL. ²⁾ MURRAY.

colours = a) coloured symbols of colleges, clubs, jockeys, etc., rosettes and ribbons worn as party badges; b) flag. In the second meaning preceded by stand or pair when the indefinite article or a numeral precedes (36). Instead of a stand (pair) of colours modern military use has a colour; a colour is also occasionally met with.

In a transferred sense colours denotes the army in such expressions as to serve with the colours, to join the colours, to desert one's colours. Furthermore we find colours in a great many phrases, a) to come off with flying colours, to stick to one's colours, to nail one's colours to the mast (= to adopt an unyielding attitude), to hang out false colours, etc., b) to cast (put) false (lively, etc.) colours upon, to paint in bright (dark, etc.) colours, to see a thing in its true colours, to be in excellent colours.

i. To lose a colour in battle was considered a great dishonour. Graph.
Her Majesty presenting a state colour to the Scots Guards at Windsor Castle. Times.

ii. It still bears on its colours the proud motto 'Primus in Indis'. Mac., Clive, (518b).
When the Prussian infantry wavered, the stout old marshal snatched the colours from an ensign, and, waving them in the air, led back his regiment to the charge. Mac., Fred., (689a).

Presentation of new colours at the Duke of York's school. Graph.

 What! a soldier stay here! to look like an old pair of colours in Westminster Hall, ragged and rusty! FARQUHAR, The Constant Couple, I, 1.

He began life rather brilliantly with a pair of colours. THACK., Pend., I, Ch. V, 58.

Fifty stand of colours fell into the hands of the Prussians. Mac., Fred., (693a).

 An author compares a ragged coin to a tattered colours. ADDISON.¹⁾

* The Russian demand is for 36000 men with a service of five years with the colours. Times.

Special inducements have been offered to Reservists to rejoin the colours. Id.

They joined for 12 years with the colours. Ib.

 Mrs. Chick had nailed her colours to the mast. DICK., Domb., Ch. V, 35.
They gallantly determined to nail their colours to the mast, and to go through Darkness Lane rather than fail in loyalty to their friend. Mrs. GASK., Cranf., Ch. X, 192.

He stood for a vacant fellowship and got it with flying colours. Mrs. WARD, Rob. Elsm., I, 93.

 The armourer, indeed, while he heard the lips that were dearest to him paint his character in such unfavourable colours, had laid his head down on the table. SCOTT, Fair Maid, Ch. II, 34.

He would have liked to protest and declare himself there and then in his true colours. ANSTEY, Vice Versa, Ch. III, 59.

Dr. James, the new President of the Collegè, who took the chair, showed himself in excellent colours. Truth, No. 1802, 74b.

conditions = circumstances (a). Like circumstances frequently found preceded by the prepositions in and under, especially the latter.

The total eclipse of the moon was observed in Dublin on Tuesday night under exceptionally favourable conditions. Times.

Hereford once more had its musical festival, this time under happier conditions than heretofore. Graph.

What might not be the development of the suburban population in such new conditions. The conditions have changed in the interval. Graph.

¹⁾ MURRAY, s. v. colour, 7.

contents = thing contained, things treated of in a writing or document. The singular form is now the rule in the sense of containing capacity, space, area, extent, especially in the collocation solid content. Note also (table of) contents. The pronouns referring to contents are sometimes singular.

- i. * Gaugers glancing at a cask to tell its 'content', as its holding capacity is officially styled. *Chamb. Journ.*¹⁾

 Side by side with, and in close relation to, the study of the content, in the senior classes, the study of structure may proceed. WILLIAM MACPHERSON, Princ. and Meth. in the Study of Eng. Lit., Ch. II, 24.

In these classes we cannot hope to gain for the pupils all that is to be derived from the study of literature: their attention is to be directed mainly to the content of what is read. Ib., 26. (Thus throughout the book.)

- ii. * (He) can tell you the cubic contents of anything in no time. G. ELIOT, Mill, III, Ch. IV, 212.

 The contents were less striking than the title. CH. BRONTË, Jane Eyre, Ch. V, 54.

The most precious contents of the purse were two half-crowns folded together in a bit of paper. Dick., Cop., Ch. V, 32a.

The contents of the Company's warehouses were seized. Mac., Clive.

 There are some shrewd contents in yon same paper, | That steals the colour from Bassanio's cheek. Merch., III, 2, 246.

* An earnest conjuration from the king, | ... That, on the view and knowing of these contents, | ... He should the bearers put to sudden death. Hamlet, V, 2, 44.

She had formed no expectation of its (sc. the letter's) contents. But such as they were, it may well be supposed how eagerly she went through them. JANE AUSTEN, Pride and Prej., Ch. XXXVI, 202.

The epistle was in his friend's handwriting, and these were its contents. Dick., Pickw., Ch. XI, 183.

 He stirred the contents and rolled it about in the glass. WALT. BESANT, The World went very well then, Ch. I, 6.

 After the body of the volume is completed, the contents sometimes follow next. J. JOHNSON.¹⁾ costs = expenses of litigation or other legal transaction. The singular is almost regularly used except in the legal meaning above and in the phrase at all costs (= at any cost = French coûte que coûte). Note especially at any one's cost (= Dutch op iemands kosten), as distinguished from at any one's expense (= Dutch tot iemands nadeel); at one's own cost (= at one's own expense = Dutch op zijn eigen kosten); at the cost of something (= Dutch ten koste van iets); at little cost = at little expense (= Dutch met geringe kosten); to any one's cost (= Dutch tot iemands schade). Compare also: at any one's charges (see above). For further details see SATTLER, E. S., X.

- i. * The cost of his victories increased the pleasure with which he contemplated them. Mac., Pitt, (309a).

Germany would have much to gain by a successful war, but the cost, both in the lives of men and in treasure, would be enormous. Graph.

The new water-works have been built at a cost of £ 20,000. *II. Lond. News.*²⁾

 The dinner so hospitably offered by the Colonel, was gladly accepted and followed by many entertainments at the cost of that good-natured friend. Thack., Newc., I, Ch. V, 49.

1) MURRAY. — 2) SATTLER, E. S., X.

The crofters want the right of every man to live idle at the cost of the estate. W. BLACK, The New Prince Fortunatus, Ch. VIII.

 She had been living a month at her own cost. JANE AUSTEN, Mansf. Park, Ch. XIII, 135.

* To increase the numbers of a nation at the cost of common health or comfort. RUSKIN, Munera P., 2.1)

 It wears out fast, as I can tell to my cost. MARTINEAU, Demerara, III, 41.1)

- ii. * Do I understand that the whole estate is found to have been absorbed in costs? DICK., Bleak House, Ch. LXV, 533.

His friends in Leadenhall Street proposed to reimburse him the costs of his trial. MAC., War. Hist., (655a).

Four others were severally fined* 20 s. and costs. Graph.

 His rustic patrons are apt to consider the costs of schooling a grievous burden. WASH. IRV., Sketch-Bk., XXXII, (346).

 The Government will carry through, without wavering and at all costs, the policy in South Africa they have laid down. Times.

Water at all costs must be had. CON. DOYLE, Siege of Sunda Gunge.

courses = a) points of the compass; b) ways of action, proceedings, personal conduct or behaviour.

- i. Lay her two courses to the wind. Cornhill Mag.

- ii. Since the departure of Becky Sharp, that old wretch had given himself up entirely to his bad courses. THACK., Van. Fair, I, Ch. XXXIII, 358.

Mr. A was getting into bad courses. Id., Newc., I, Ch. VII, 85.

crackers in the compound nutcrackers (19, c).

cups = potations, drunken revelry, especially in the phrases in one's cups, over one's cups.

* There is the jolly Prince, shrewd, selfish, scheming, loving his cups and his ease. THACK., The Four Georges, I, 17.

They were merry, but no riot came out of their cups. Ib., III, 68.

 When in his cups, he was especially hospitable. Id., Van. Fair, I, Ch. XXXIV, 376.

I'll never get in your way when you are in your cups. Id., Henry Esmond, I, Ch. VI, 60.

Many of the wags derided the poor fellow in his cups. Ib., II, Ch. XI, 242.

 They affect, dull souls, the knowledge of the past, play the patron, and misquote Latin over their cups. LYTTON, Rienzi, I, Ch. I, 11.

What is the grandest entertainment at Windsor, compared to a night at the club over its modest cups? THACK., The Four Georges, III, 67.

(the) Customs = a) (the) duties levied upon imports, b) (the) Department of the Civil Service employed in levying these duties. The singular is used to denote the money to be paid by way of duty.

- i. The handkerchiefs will be put in some friend's pocket, not to pay custom. SWIFT.¹⁾

- ii. * Collectors of customs and port-duties. ARNOLD.¹⁾

 Officers of the Customs.

damages = value estimated in money of something lost or withheld; the sum of money claimed or adjudged to be paid in compensation for loss or injury sustained.

Damages, gentleman — heavy damages — is the only punishment with which you can visit him. DICK., Pickw., Ch. XXXIV, 31.

1) MURRAY.

And for those damages she now appeals to an enlightened, a high-minded, a right-feeling jury. Ib.

The jury find for the plaintiff with £ 20 damages. ESCOTT, England, Ch. XXIV, 428. The defendants capitulated and consented to pay damages to the extent of £ 50,000 plus costs. Rev. of Rev., CCXII, 123a.

deserts = that which is deserved. Especially frequent in certain phrases, such as to find (get, have, meet with) one's deserts, to come by one's deserts, to reward a man according to his deserts. In other combinations and shades of meaning the singular is frequent enough.

- i. Use every man after his desert, and who should 'scape whipping? Hamlet, II, 2, 554.

A man who loves only himself, without regard to friendship and desert, merits the severest blame. HUME, Essays, III, 23.

Some will always mistake the degree of their own desert. JOHNSON, Rambler. Pitt having come to his kingdom, and having by good luck, or desert rather, as he considered, assumed almost all the fortune [etc.]. THACK., Van. Fair, II, Ch. V, 55.

Surely a few pin-pricks were her desert. Mrs. WARD, Lady Rose's Daught., I, Ch. VII, 53b.

- ii. * In the spring of 1713, Swift began to realise that there was no prospect of overcoming the resistance which his deserts and his hopes encountered at Court. D. LAING PURVES, Life of Swift, 22.

 The wicked are wicked no doubt, and they go astray and they fall, and they come by their deserts; but who can tell the mischief which the very virtuous do? THACK., Newc., I, Ch. XX, 218.

Ah, good neighbour, | There should be something fierier than fire | To yield them their deserts. TEN., Queen Mary, V, 4, (647b).

I knew that the last and guiltiest of Antony March's murderers had found his deserts. CONWAY, Called Back, Ch. XV, 193.

All was being done to bring the guilty to their deserts. Ib., Ch. X, 114.

devotions = worship, 'prayers' (= Dutch geestelijke oefeningen). Occasionally met with in the singular in, apparently, the same meaning.

- i. Conachar lived with him in his cell, sharing his devotion and privations, till death removed them in succession. SCOTT, Fair Maid, Ch. XXXVI, 379.
- ii. She invited them to join in her devotions. Ib., 376.

She was scrupulous in her devotions, good to the poor, never knowingly did anybody a wrong. THACK., Virg., Ch. IV, 34.

That half-hour in which you perform your devotions. Punch, Life's Little Difficulties.

He was at his devotions. FOWLER, Conc. Oxford Dict.

doors = dwelling-house. In this meaning especially common in the collo-cations (with)in-doors, out of doors (= without doors), to pack out of doors, to go from a man's doors, to enter into a man's doors.

You have your choice — to marry her, or pack out of doors without any fortune. GOLDS., Good-nat. Man, I.

Turning her out of doors. JANE AUSTEN, Northanger Abbey, Ch. II, 8.

Sir Pitt swore that no governess should ever enter into his doors again. THACK., Van. Fair, I, Ch. XXXIII, 359.

In the course of the day Miss Osborne heard her father give orders that that meddling scoundrel, Captain Dobbin, should never be admitted within his doors again. Ib., I, Ch. XXIV, 254.

His fame out of doors depended entirely on the report of those who were within the doors. MAC., Pitt, (293b).

Let your poor wife's only brother go from your doors without a penny in the world. ANSTEY, Vice Versa, Ch. XIX, 375.

You may swear at it and kick it out of doors, but next time you will remember that cats have claws. Rev. of Rev., CXC VII, 486b.

drains = dregs from which the liquid has been drained.

My heart aches, and a drowsy numbness pains | My sense, as though of hemlock I had drunk, | Or emptied some dull opiate to the drains. KEATS, Ode to a Nightingale, I.

draughts (19, d). drawers = a) under-hose worn next to the skin (19, a); b) chest of drawers.

I set out my silver dressing-apparatus upon the ragged cloth on the drawers. THACK., Barry Lyndon, Ch. III, 55.

duties = regular actions required by one's position, profession, religion, etc.

Having thus discharged his devotional duties, he annexed, in the same diary, the following remarkable writing. SOUTHEY, Life of Nelson, Ch. IX, 251.

He had undertaken public duties for which he was ill qualified. TROL., Thack., Ch. I, 44.

I resolved to wait in darkness until Mr. Jay returned to his duties. CONWAY, Called Back, Ch. I, 7.

effects = goods and chattels, movable property. Also used in a wider meaning, as in the phrases no effects, written by bankers on dishonoured cheques when the drawer has no funds in the bank; to leave no effects (= to leave nothing for one's heirs). Note also the common personal effects (= personal luggage as distinguished from merchandise).

With these he lived successively a week at a time; thus going the rounds of the neighbourhood, with all his effects tied up in a cotton handkerchief. WASH. IRV., Sketch-Bk., XXXII.

The bankers declined to cash the Captain's draft, simply writing the words 'No effects' on the paper. THACK. 1)

The people escaped from the town with their effects. WEBST., Dict.

He died leaving no effects. MURRAY.

Sale of household effects. Ib.

The contents of the trunks were insured as 'personal effects'. Ib.

elements = rudiments of learning, first principles of an art or science.

Calculation and geometry and all the other elements of instruction. JOWETT. 1) Euclid's elements were first used in the school of Alexandria. LARDNER. 1) environments = surroundings, sphere. Occasionally in the singular in approximately the same meaning.

i. To the general public a title, an environment and a little action would add much to the interest. PUNCH.

The king prominently reproduces the defects of his environment. Rev. of Rev., CCXI, 20b.

ii. Let us have a look at the life and the environments of the child. HUGHES, Tom Brown, I, Ch. II, 21.

In the more generous and ampler environments of the Colonies they might become respectable citizens. TIMES.

Estates = assembly of the governing classes or their representatives (= Dutch Staten).

1) MURRAY.

The new law had been ratified by the Estates of all the kingdoms and principalities which made up the great Austrian monarchy. MAC., FRED., (665a). The whole nation is represented in the Government by what is called the "three Estates of the Realm". ANNA BUCKLE., Our Nat. Institutions, 9.

(The) Estimates = (the) accounts presented annually to Parliament, showing the probable amount of expenditure on the several administrative departments for the current year (= Dutch Begrooting). Sometimes in the singular in the same meaning, especially after the indefinite article.

- i. Every rixdollar of extraordinary charge was scrutinized by Frederic with a vigilance and suspicion such as Mr. Joseph Hume never brought to the examination of an army estimate. MAC., FRED., (673a).
- ii. Warm debates took place on the Estimates. ID., PITT, (302a).
Mr. Balfour denied that anything which fell from him last year estopped the Government from presenting the Estimates in the form which they had selected. TIMES. (= de Begrooting indienen.)

We give this morning an abstract of the Army Estimates for 1889—1890. ID.

expenses = a) items of outlay incurred by a person in the execution of any commission or duty; money paid to a person in reimbursement of these (= Dutch onkosten); b) expenditure (= Dutch uitgaven).

The singular is ordinarily used in the meaning of amount of money to be expended in carrying out a plan (Dutch kosten); also in certain phrases, such are instanced by at the (an) expense of 40 pounds; at a heavy (considerable, trifling, etc.) expense, or at some (little, much) expense I procured this article; He has been at (put to, brought to) a heavy (considerable, trifling, etc.) expense or He has been at (put to, brought to) little (some, much) expense to get everything right; at my father's (my own, etc.) expense or at the expense of my father, etc.; They laughed at his (your brother's, etc.) expense, or at the expense of your brother; to spare no expense.

Usage is divided as to to be at the expense(s) of (= to defray the costs of) (MURRAY), to go to the expense(s) of (= to spend money (on, or in)).

Except for certain collocations there is much vacillation in the choice of the number. See especially SATTLER, E. S. XII.

- i. * My finances were too weak to support the expense of hiring a horse. SMOL., Rod. Rand., Ch. VIII, 43.

The expense of the war never entered into Pitt's consideration. MAC., PITT, (309a). Of the expense of civil government only a small portion was defrayed by the Crown. ID., Hist., Ch. III, 302.

 Mrs. Norris had not the least intention of being at any expense whatever in her maintenance. JANE AUSTEN, Mansfield Park, Ch. I, 7.

The whole arrangement was to bring very little expense to anybody. IB., Ch. XIII, 135. Instead of contriving to gratify him at little expense, she gave her cook as high wages as they did at Mansfield Park. IB., Ch. III, 30.

They have also at their own expense made tours of Germany. ESCOTT, England, Ch. V, 58.

At a heavy expense I procured the rods. MARRYAT, Olla Podrida.

After having up the whole basement, at the expense of 40 pounds, that nuisance was abated. IB.

I don't like to speak to your papa about it, my dear; he has already been put to such expense. IB.

You defend his veracity at the expense of his understanding. We had a laugh at his expense. FOWLER, Conc. Oxford Dict.

Spare no expense. PUNCH.

- ii. * The king promised to contribute only twenty thousand pounds for architectural expenses. MAC., Hist., Ch. III, *302.

The expenses of his board and schooling were defrayed by his father in goods, not money. THACK., Van. Fair, I, Ch. V, 40.

In this case the expenses of brokerage are saved. ESC., England, Ch. VIII, 112. To form a correct estimate of the true amount of the management expenses. Lit. World.

He paid my expenses. He offered me £ 10 and expenses. FOWLER, Conc. Oxford Dict.

 We sewed our money between the lining and waistbands of our breeches, except some loose silver for our immediate expenses on the road. SMOL., Rod. Rand., Ch. VIII, 45.

To weather these two years, we retrenched our expenses. BURNS, Letter to Dr. Moore, 52a.

 She went to great expenses in new gowns, and bracelets and bonnets. THACK., Van. Fair, I, Ch. XXI, 219.

He had written to ask the signor to come, and was to be at all the expenses of the affair. MRS. GASK., Cranf., Ch. XVI, 309.

exports = exported articles. Not infrequently found in the singular to denote a single article.

- i. The trade and commerce of Rio de Janeiro are very great, its principal export being coffee. Cassell's Conc. Cycl.
- ii. Our exports have been 'cabined, cribbed and confined' by hostile tariffs in every quarter of the globe. Times.

(the) Fates = the Destinies or Parcae.

And thou, fair cause of mischief, hear | The doom thy Fates demand. SCOTT, Brid. of Triermain, II, xxvi.

They cast lots for the farms as the fairest method, thus letting the Fates decide. Rev. of Rev., CCV, 29b.

We can but say that the Fates deal mercifully with him if he (sc. the Sultan) passes in silence to some place of safety. Westm. Gaz., No. 4983, 1b.

features = form or mould of the various parts of the face combined, cast of countenance. Also in the singular to denote the same meaning, especially in the older language.

- i. Doth my simple feature content you? As you like it, III, 3, 3. (Compare the answer: Your features! Lord warrant us! what features?) He equalled him in refinement of feature. TROL.²).
- ii. As Dolf caught a distinct view of his person and features, he was struck with something that reminded him of the old man of the Haunted House. WASH. IRV., Dolf Heyl. (STOF., Handl., I, 130).

finances = pecuniary resources (= Dutch geldmiddelen). The singular form is the rule to denote the management of (public) money, the science which concerns itself with the levying and application of revenue in a state, corporation, etc. (= Dutch geldelijk beheer, finantiewezen). But also the plural form often seems to convey the same meaning.

- i. The report which is first taken, is that of the committee of finance. ESCOTT, Eng., Ch. IV, 51.
His book is most useful in the account it gives of the steps which have been taken to reduce Egyptian finance to order. Lit. World.
This is fanaticism; it is certainly not finance. Westm. Gaz., No. 5036, 1b.
We are to give the House of Lords control of finance as well as of legislation. Id., 5207, 1b.

1) MURRAY.

- ii. * So much has Lalouette's luck drained my finances that [etc.]. THACK., Fitzb. Pap., Pref.

He increased his finances by taking pupils. TROL., Thack, Ch. I, 44.

As to finances they were not making their fortune, but they had paid their way and something more. MRS. WARD, David Grieve, I, 286.

His finances were low. EDNA LYALL, Donovan, II, 156.

 (He was) so clear in stating the most intricate matters, especially in the finances, that, whilst he was speaking, the most ignorant thought that they understood what they really did not. CHESTERFIELD (1001 Gems in prose, 210a).

While Danby was at the head of the finances, the creditors had received their dividends. MAC., Hist., I, Ch. III, 284.

That load which pressed most heavily on the finances of the great continental states, was here scarcely felt. Ib., 285.

Any departure from the simple rules of arithmetic and fact is found to land the finances of the country in a hopeless muddle. Westm. Gaz., No. 5036, 16c.

floodgates, in a figurative meaning.

The "Life of Wallace" poured a Scottish prejudice into my veins, which will boil along there till the floodgates of life shut in eternal rest. BURNS, Letter to Dr. Moore.

The floodgates were opened, and mother and daughter wept. THACK., Van. Fair, I, Ch. XXVI.

fortunes = that which is given to a person by fate or divine providence, lot. Occasionally also in the singular in, apparently, the same sense. The plural is also the rule in the phrases to seek (try, repair, stake) one's fortune(s). The plural is regular in to tell fortunes (= Dutch waarzeggén), the singular in the phrase to tell a man his fortune.

- i. * The contract was made when we were both poor and content to be so, until, in good season, we could improve our wordly fortune by patient industry. DICK., Christ. Car, II, 50.

 He leaves Stratford for London, there to seek his fortune. WALTER RALEIGH, Shakespeare, Ch. II, 42.

Send him out to seek his fortune. CH. KINGSLEY, Herew., Ch. I, 16a.

 The Visier then demanded, if he could tell his own Fortune. Lond. Gaz.¹⁾

- ii. * The sad fortunes of the Rev. Amos Barton. G. ELIOT, Scenes.

Pulteney had resigned a valuable place, and had followed the fortunes of Walpole. MAC., Pitt, (289b).

In an evil hour for his fame and fortunes he accepted the offer. Ib., (301a).

This, when taken with the decline of his fortunes seems to indicate some evil evidence, probably drink, upon him. CON. DOYLE, Sherl. Holm., Blue Carb.

The fortunes of France were at the last extremity. Rev. of Rev., CXCVIII, 583.

 He must repair his fortunes. THACK., Van. Fair, I, Ch. XI, 110.

My parents sent me out into the world to seek my fortunes. CH. KINGSLEY, Herew., Ch. I, 13b.

Bulgaria may decide to stake her fortunes in a gallant effort to liberate the enslaved province. Rev. of Rev., CCIV, 564a.

 Ham was trying to recollect a scheme of telling fortunes with the dirty cards. DICK., Cop., Ch. III, 16b.

fruits = a) vegetable products in general that are fit to be used as food by men and animals, also: fruits of the earth (ground); b) products, revenues.

1) MURRAY.

In the Authorised Version the word is, apparently, mostly singular when used in the first meaning. Thus in Numb. XIII, 26; Deut. XXVI, 2; Isaiah XXVII, 6. Not in Deut. XXXIII, 14; Psalm CVII, 37.

The singular is used, both as a collective noun and as a unit-noun with an ordinary plural, in the more limited sense of the edible succulent products of certain plants. Compare the Dutch fruit (= ooft) and vruchten.

The plural is the rule in certain combinations, such as fruits and flowers, fruits and vegetables, etc., also when a defining adjective precedes: candied fruits, preserved fruits, syruiped fruits, etc. The trade distinguishes green fruits (= oranges, lemons, etc., gathered green and ripening on the way to destination) from green fruit (= apples, pears, etc. consumed in an unripe state); dried fruits (= dried figs, raisins, currants, etc.) from dried fruit (= evaporated apples, pears, etc.).

The plural is regular in the phrase first-fruits, which in its metaphorical meaning is, however, often construed as a singular, i. e. preceded by the indefinite article or a singular demonstrative pronoun.

The singular is the rarer form in the metaphorical meaning of products, in the collocation to bear (yield) fruit. See especially SATTLER, E. S., XII.

i. * Every tree that bringeth not forth good fruit is hewn down, and cast into the fire. Bible, Matth., VII, 19.

Or garden, tempting with forbidden fruit. POPE, Essay on Man, I, 9.

I see trees laden with ripening fruit. CH. BRONTË, Jane Eyre, Ch. XXIII, 303. He strolls on, now lifting the gooseberry-tree branches to look at the fruit, large as plums. Ib.

The silly people take me for a saint, | And bring me offerings of fruit and flowers. TEN., St. Simeon Stylites, 127.

 The rich man enjoyed the fruit of the poor man's labour. SWIFT, Gul. Trav., IV, Ch. VI, (199b).

The toil which stole from thee so many an hour, | Is ended — and the fruit is at thy feet. SHELLEY, Revolt, Ded., 16.

For manners are not idle, but the fruit | Of loyal nature, and of noble mind. TEN., Guin., 333.

Mr. Cremer has good reason to be proud of the fruit of his labours. Rev. of Rev., CXCIX, 2a.

 These thoughts . . . might germinate and bear fruit. CH. BRONTË, Jane Eyre, Ch. XVII, 197.

Sow the same seed of rapacious licence and oppression over again, and it will surely yield the same fruit according to its kind. DICK., Tale of Two Cities, III, Ch. XV, 410.

These principles will bear fruit. Rev. of Rev.

ii. * The Breton peasant can turn all the fruits of the earth to account. JEPHSON, Brittany, II. 1)

 The birds eat the fruits of the surrounding trees. BATES. 1)

The fruits of some species of jungle-trees furnish a variety of poison. BALL. 1)
The very gold and silver fish, set forth among these choice fruits. Christm. Car.
These orchard-tufts | Which at this season, with their unripe fruits, | Are clad in one green hue. WORDSW., Lines comp. a few miles above Tint. Ab., 12.

 There Frederic amused himself by collecting rare fruits and flowers. MAC., Fred., (661b).

Negroes in these climates live principally upon fruits and vegetables. A I the Year Round. 2)

1) MURRAY: 2) SATTLER, E. S., XII.

The candied fruits were so caked and spotted with molten sugar. Christm. Car. They fared sumptuously every day upon dainties — delicate jellies and syruped fruits. HOWELLS, (2).

Green fruits are entirely duty free. All the Year Round.¹⁾

Officially, according to the customs lists, all fruit is divided into three parts — dried fruits, green fruits and nuts. Ib.¹⁾

* The value of the produce of the soil far exceeded the value of all the other fruits of human industry. MAC., Hist., Ch. III, 306.

I could wish that the fruits of my manhood were worthier of the tender and anxious pains bestowed upon my education in youth. LYTTON, Rienzi, Ded. Every day witnessed the fruits of their lawless warfare. Ib., I, Ch. II, 19.

The fruits of the victory were lost by a sudden appearance of Soult on the English line of advance. GREEN, Short Hist., Ch. X, Sect. IV, 825.

 Ye shall bring a sheaf of the first-fruits of your harvest unto the priest. Bible, Lev., XXIII, 10.

Keats died at the age of 26: we have, therefore, only the first-fruits of his genius. W. T. ARNOLD, Introd. to Keat's Hyperion.

As a first-fruits of this dedication [etc.]. Preface to Par. Lost (Clar. Press), 8.

The mayor and corporation-men appeared in full robes, with maces and tipstuffs, to do honour to that first-fruits of the Gospel in the West. CH. KINGSLEY, Westw. Hol., Ch. XXXIX, 216b. (Compare: The scientist sat mutely enjoying the first fruit of his stupendous discovery. SAKI, (Westm. Gaz., No. 5167, 2c).

functions = official duties.

He took upon himself the functions of a lecturer. TROL., Thack., Ch. I, 43.

funds = a) money at a person's disposal; b) stock of the national debt considered as a mode of investment.

i. When he had no funds, he went on tick. THACK., Pend., I, Ch. II, 25.

The knight who happens to be in funds at the time, prefers to kill the little girl. TROL., Thack., Ch. VI, 152.

ii. The funds fell. THACK., Van. Fair, I, Ch. XVIII, 185.

We shall have our town and country mansion, and a hundred and thirty pounds in the funds. Id., Cox's Diary, Feb.

I succeeded to an income, which, being drawn from the funds, I was able to enjoy without responsibilities or anxiety. CONWAY, Called Back, Ch. I, 2.

furies = avenging deities.

He (sc. Surajah Dowlah) sat gloomily in his tent, haunted, a Greek poet would have said, by the furies of those who had cursed him with their last breath in the Black Hole. MAC., Clive, (518a).

gains = sums acquired by trade or in other ways, emoluments, profits, winnings, etc.

No gains without pains. PROV.

If gains be sordid and lucre filthy, where is the priest, the lawyer, the doctor, or the man of literature, who does not wish for dirty hands? TROL., Thack., Ch. I, 44.

gardens = ornamental grounds, used as a place of public resort, usually with some defining word. Sometimes constructed as a singular, i. e. as the subject of a singular finite verb, and preceded by the indefinite article. The singular form is sometimes used in the same sense.

i. I had promised to go with him on the water to Spring-garden. Spectator, CCCLXXXIII.

¹⁾ SATTLER, E. S., XII.

- ii. * And after we have been in the Park we can walk in Kensington Gardens. THACK., Sam. Titm., Ch. III, 28.
I have just returned from my stroll in the Botanical Gardens. Scotsman.
 A natural Zoological Gardens. Lit. World.
The Zoological Gardens was patronised by 21000 persons on Bank Holiday. Daily Telegraph.

glasses in the sense of eye-glasses (19, a).

graces = a) goddesses of charm and beauty; b) attainments, accomplishments. Also in the phrase to be in a man's good graces (= Dutch bij iemand in de gratie staan).

- i. "This cup to the Graces!" said Panda, and he thrice emptied his calyx. LYTTON, Last Days of Pomp., I, Ch. III, 18a.
ii. She secretly o'erheard | Your daughter and her cousin much commend | The parts and graces of the wrestler. As you like it, II, 2, 13.
To some kind of men | Their graces serve them but as enemies. Ib., II, 3, 11.
iii. He was pretty well in Miss Amory's good graces. THACK., Pend., II, Ch. III, 33.
Mrs. Hoggins was really desirous to be restored to Mrs. Jamieson's good graces. Mrs. GASK., Cranf., Ch. XV, 291.
He was without much difficulty received again into the good graces of Stella. D. LAING PURVES, Life of Swift, 29.

grounds = a) enclosed portion of a land of considerable extent, surrounding or attached to a dwelling-house or other building, serving chiefly for ornament or recreation; b) particles deposited by a liquid in the bottom of the vessel containing it (19, e).

Extensive grounds were also laid out around the place. PRESCOTT.¹⁾
One afternoon he chanced to meet me and Adèle in the grounds. CH. BRONTË, Jane Eyre, Ch. XV, 169.

Guards = household troops of the English army consisting of the Foot-guards, the Horse-guards and the Life-guards. A single soldier belonging to the Guards is called a Guardsmen.

- i. The brigade of Guards will be destroyed; ought it not to fall back? KINGLAKE, Crimea, II, 351.¹⁾ ii. Jack the Guardsmen and La Tulipe of the Royal Bretagne are face to face. THACK., Virg., Ch. LXIV, 685.

heaps = large quantity (= Dutch een hoop, hoopen).

Old Lobbs was well known to have heaps of money. DICK., Pickw., Ch. XVII, 151.
You will have had heaps of opportunity. OSC. WILDE, An Ideal Husband, I.
I have given you heaps of opportunities. Ib., IV.

heavens = a) visible sky, b) realms or regions of space in which the heavenly bodies move.

Heaven is also met with in the plural a) occasionally when denoting the abode of the Supreme Being and the blessed after death, β) rather frequently when denoting the Supreme Being, γ) in apostrophe, when its precise meaning is indistinct. It deserves notice that, except for the vocative, the plural is almost always preceded by the definite article. The singular, mostly with the definite article, is occasionally met with also in the sense of sky. (Ch. XXXI, 24a.)

¹⁾ MURRAY.

- i. I will send to thee at the hour of eve, | When the curtains are drawn o'er heaven. (?), The Eng. Merch. and the Saracen Lady (Rainbow, II, 52).

The full power of the clear heaven was not equal to that of a cloudy sky at noon. HARDY, Far from the Madding Crowd, Ch. XIV, 114.

- ii. * The moon was already bright in the heavens. LYTON, Rienzi, I, Ch. IV, 31. The thunder may roar till it splits the heavens. CH. KINGSLEY, Westw. Hol, Ch. XXXII, 240b.

As the sun sank low in the heavens, the breath came slower and slower. ANNIE BESANT, Autob., 126.

Oh, I suppose the heavens must fall because you've lost your pretty plaything. W. BLACK, The New Prince Fortunatus, Ch. XX.

Maps of the heavens, planisphere of the heavens, globe of the heavens. MURRAY. A popular Guide to the study of the Starry Heavens. Advertisement.

 The Planets and Comets move in the Heavens very freely. GREGORY, *Astron.*¹⁾ The great circle of the Heavens, or the path which the earth traverses in its revolution around the sun, is called the ecliptic. Cassell's Conc. Cycl.

 Thus the heavens and the earth were finished. Bible, Gen., II, 1.

I can live down sin | And be his mate hereafter in the heavens | Before high God. TEN., Guin., 633.

* And she was ever praying the sweet heavens | To save her dear lord from any wound. TEN., Ger. and Enid, 44.

The Heavens themselves had called upon Spain to fulfil her heavenly mission. CH. KINGSLEY, Westw. Hol, Ch. XXIX, 218a.

* Heavens make our presence and our practices | Pleasant and helpful to him. Haml., II, 2, 38.

Heavens avert it. FARQUHAR, The Recruiting Officer, II, 2, (269).

 Heavens! it is the Lord Adrian di Castello! BULWER, Rienzi, I, Ch. VI, 47.

But, good-heavens! such a figure, in such a place; a pious, self-respecting, miserably infirm and pleased old man telling such a tale! WORDSWORTH, Letters.

holidays = vacation. Often used in the singular in the same meaning. (Ch. XXXI, 39.)

- i. The last day of my holiday. THACK., Sam. Titm., Ch. I, 3.

Lucy shall have holiday. Mrs. WOOD, East Lynne, III, 275.

In November he took a holiday. Mrs. ALEX., For his Sake, II, Ch. IV, 78.

She's entitled to a week's holiday. HALL CAINE, The Christian, I, 276.

- ii. Blair spent one summer holidays with his mother, Lady Mary, at Spa. SOUTHEY.¹⁾ You have devoted your month's holidays to your aunt. THACK., Sam. Titm., Ch. I, 5. (With which compare: During my month's holiday. Ib., Ch. I, 2.)

honours = a) marks or manifestations of high regard; b) special distinction gained, in a University or other examination, for proficiency in scholarship beyond that required to pass the examination; c) decorations, ornaments; d) the highest trumps in certain games of cards. In the first meaning honours is very common in the expressions to do the honours, the last (funeral) honours, military honours, honours of war. In the meaning given under c) it is chiefly found in poetical language.

- i. * At home honours and rewards awaited him. Mac., Clive, (525a).

He never visited Cawnpore; the reason being, it is believed, that he would not have been received with princely honours. MCCARTHY, Short Hist., Ch. XIII, 184.

¹⁾ MURRAY.

 George did the honours with a princely air. THACK., Van. Fair, I, Ch. XXVI, 275.

He assisted the captain in doing the honours of the princely meal. Miss BRAD., Lady Audley's Secret, I, Ch. II, 19.

As soon as the prince Facilidas had paid the last honours to his father. BRUCE.¹⁾ Their funeral honours claimed, and asked their quiet graves. DRYDEN.²⁾

His remains were buried on the following day with military honours by his brother volunteers. W. GUNNYON, Biographical Sketch of Burns, 49.

She capitulated, or rather marched out with the honours of war. TROL.¹⁾

- ii. A graduate of the University of Cambridge who had taken honours in the Mathematical Tripos. F. ANSTEY, Vice Versa, Ch. V, 98.

Miss Pankhurst has taken her degree with honours in law at Manchester University. Rev. of Rev., CXCIX, 8a.

- iii. The sire then shook the honors of his head. DRYDEN.²⁾

The woods, in scarlet honors bright. COWPER, Task, I, 321.¹⁾

- iv. The honours were divided, but the state, as by this time its habit was, took the odd trick. MAITLAND.¹⁾ horrors = a kind of disease (19, c).

hours = a) stated time of occupation or duty; b) habitual time of getting up and going to bed, especially the latter; c) seven stated times of the day appointed for prayer (also the prayers or offices appointed to be said at these times, and a book containing these). In the two first meanings preceded by a defining word. In the third meaning hours = canonical hours. The plural is also regular in the small hours (= 1,2, etc. a. m.).

- i. After office hours he goes for a ride. MURRAY.

- ii. Their regular hours stupefy me. SHER., Rivals, I, 1.

I keep early hours. Mrs. S. EDWARDS.¹⁾

- iii. In the Church of Rome the canonical hours begin with vespers. Hook.¹⁾

A nun saying her hours. BARING GOULD.¹⁾

Illuminated hours, and golden missals. DIXON.¹⁾

- iv. Both these gifts inevitably (attached), as they believed, to all unlucky infants' of either gender, born towards the small hours on a Friday night. DICK., Cop., Ch. I, 1b.

hulks = dismantled ship used as a prison.

Rather than trade upon this secret of Amory's I would go and join my father-in-law at the hulks. THACK., Pend., I, Ch. XXXIII, 359.

hustings = temporary platform from which, previous to the Ballot Act of 1872, the nomination of candidates for Parliament was made, and on which these stood while addressing the electors. Sometimes preceded by the indefinite article.

* An unpopular candidate had frequently to beat a hasty retreat from the hustings. S. C. HALL.¹⁾

 One thing the stupidest multitude at a hustings can do. CARLYLE.¹⁾

A better friend of Church never stood on a hustings. LYTON, My Novel.³⁾

The members were nominated on an open hustings, exposed to the disturbances of two contending mobs. ANNA BUCKL., Our Nat. Institutions, 24.

imports = commodities imported from abroad. Not infrequently used in the singular when one article is referred to.

- i. Your import is your own food; as much your own, as that you raise . . . out of your own soil. BURKE.¹⁾
- ii. We are not going to ruin because our imports exceed our exports. Times.

indentures = contract by which an apprentice is bound to the master who undertakes to teach him a trade; also contract by which a person binds himself to service in the colonies, etc. Note to take up one's indentures = to receive them back on completion of service. Not infrequently used in the singular in the same sense.

- i. Mr. W. C. D. Whetman supplies proof in an indenture of the 3rd of January, 1648—49, of the sale of Bishop's lands during the Commonwealth to a Parliamentary soldier. Rev. of Rev., CDXI, 210b.
- ii. Recollecting that his indentures were in a box on board, he brought them up. SMOL., Rod. Rand., Ch. XXIV, 179.

irons = fetters. Especially in the phrase in irons (19, a). Also in the compound fire-irons = implements used in tending a domestic fire.

The kitchen fire-irons were in exactly the same position. Mrs. GASK., Cranf., Ch. X, 185.

jaws = mouth. Frequent in certain transferred meanings, as in the jaws of a valley (gulf, sea, etc.), the jaws (faucis) of a flower, the jaws of the tongs, the jaws of a boom (gaff), the jaws of death. The singular is sometimes used in, apparently, the same sense.

- i. But such officers do the king best service in the end; he keeps them, like an ape, in a corner of his jaw; first mouthed to be last swallowed. Ham I., IV, 2, 21.
- ii. We that were awhile since in the jaws of death, were now brought into a place where we found nothing but consolations. BACON, New Atlantis, (276). Your benevolence rescued me from the jaws of death. SMOL., Rod. Rand., Ch. XXIII, 169.

When a man goes near them out of compassion, they open their great jaws. DICK., Domb., Ch. XII, 103.

jinks = lively or boisterous sport; mostly in the combination high jinks.

In Wraxall we find the Prime Minister himself, the redoubted William Pitt, engaged in high jinks with personages of no less importance than [etc.]. THACK., The Four Georges, IV, 100.

In the summer weather the club takes to tents, migrates to the forest, and holds high jinks in Dionysic fashion. FROUDE, Oceana, Ch. XX, 320.

It is easy to guess who is at the bottom of it (sc. raising the rents). It's my lady's high jinks and no mistake. FLOR. MARRYAT, A Bankrupt Heart, II, 22.

You ought to be in bed, my Nell, instead of cutting such jinks. Ib., I, 134.

laurels = distinction. Chiefly, with partial allusion to its original meaning in certain phrases, such as to reap (or win) one's laurels, to repose (or rest, retire) on one's laurels, to look to one's laurels. Also the singular is occasionally met with in the same figurative meaning.

- i. Still he is a poet—poet of a prouder laurel than any contemporary. EMERSON, Repres. Men, Goethe.¹⁾
- ii. 'Tis sweet to win, no matter how, one's laurels. BYRON, Don Juan, I, cxxvi. He did not exactly cover himself with laurels. THACK., Barry Lyndon, Ch. IV, 68. He caught eagerly at the golden opportunity of winning fresh laurels. MOTLEY, Rise, I, Ch. II, 89a.

It is Mr. Derburg who wears all the laurels of the victory. Rev. of Rev., CCVI, 116a.

It showed a disposition to sleep on its laurels. Graph.

¹⁾ MURRAY.

leads = lead covering of a roof.

Having reached the leads, I looked out afar over sequestered field and hill. CH. BRONTË, Jane Eyre, Ch. XV, 130.

The tempest crackles on the leads. TEN., Sir Galahad, 53.

leathers = articles for wear made of leather; colloquially: one who wears leather breeches or leggings.

i. I glanced down at the new patent leathers which I was wearing. CON. DOYLE, Sherl. Holmes.

ii. Out of the way, young leathers. DICK., Pickw., Ch. XIX, 167.

letters = a) a certain game; b) literature. In the meaning of epistle also it is regularly placed in the plural in certain combinations of a formal or legal sense, such as letters dimissory, letters patent, letters rogatory, etc.; letters of administration, caption, ejection, etc. In Early Modern English the plural is also met with without any such defining word.

In the meaning of literature especially frequent in such combinations as man of letters, the commonwealth (or republic) of letters.

j. We sat round a large table and played at 'letters', sedulously 'shuffling' the handsome capitals as we gave each other long jaw-breaking words. WHYTE MELVILLE.¹⁾ ii. * The abbot was cautioned not to receive a member of any other known monastery without dimissory letters from his superior. SOUTHEY.¹⁾

Letters dimissory for a young man who has distinguished himself. C. SIMEON.¹⁾ Richard II was the first to confer the peerage by letters patent. H. COX.¹⁾

 Thy letters have transported me beyond | This ignorant present. MACB., I, 5, 57.

iii. Letters were loved indeed in those quaint times, and authors were actually authorities. THACK., Virg., Ch. LXIII, 660.

In France, every man distinguished in letters was found in their ranks. MAC., Popes, (560b).

This disadvantage would, in all probability, have for ever prevented him from taking a high place among men of letters. Id., Fred., (662b).

There was another field of exertion . . . in the republic of letters. BURTON.¹⁾

The teaching of arts and letters is not wanting to the members of these communities. ESCOTT, England, Ch. VI, 75.

liabilities = debts or pecuniary obligations of a person or company (= Dutch passiva).

A man's property and the sums owing to him are called his assets; the sums owing by him, his liabilities. Sir R. G. C. HAMILTON and JOHN BALL, Book-keeping, 5.

lights = knowledge, information. Frequent in the phrases according (or after) one's lights (the singular is unusual in these combinations). Also a plurale tantum in the legal phrase ancient lights, and in northern (or polar) lights.

i. The editors of the Posthumous Poems, moreover, though diligent according to their light, were neither endowed with remarkable acumen nor possessed of the wide knowledge requisite for the full intelligence of so erudite a poet as Shelley. THOMAS HUTCHINSON, Poet. Works of Shelley, Preface, 7.

He was, according to his light, a just man. Westm. Gaz., No. 5613, 9a.

ii. * In truth nothing more is wanted, — except those inner lights as to which so many men live and die without having learned whether they possess them or not. TROL., Thack., Ch. I, 11.

¹⁾ MURRAY.

To Pen and to Pen's mother he is beneficent after his lights. Ib., Ch. IV, 112. Two faults, however, marred the effect of his sagacity: a supreme insolence of disposition, and a profound belief in the lights of his experience. LYTTON, Rienzi, II, Ch. I, 75.

To become the vehicle of knowledge beyond the lights of men. G. ELIOT, Romolo.¹⁾

They were doing their best according to their lights. Mrs. WARD, Marc., II, 42.

 Ancient lights = window lights, which have been opened and enjoyed without molestation, and have become established by the legal time of prescription. WEBST., Dict.

 Aurora borealis, i. e. northern daybreak; popularly called northern lights. Ib. The northern lights, which are to be seen almost every evening, relieve the darkness. Times.

No satisfactory answer has yet been furnished as to the cause of these polar lights. Cas. Conc. Cycl.

lines = footing. Also regularly plural in the Scriptural My (your, etc.) lines fall (fell, etc.). (Compare Psalm XVI, 6.) Furthermore in (marriage) lines (= marriage certificate), and in the colloquial phrase to be hard lines (on a man).

i. In Lord Rosebery's opinion acquiescence in these opinions is wholly incompatible with the maintenance of the Liberal party on existing lines. Times.

The division was not taken on party lines. Ib.

Languages which have been separate for thousands of years have altered so much from their original form, and have developed on such different lines, that they are often absolutely unrecognisable as relatives. H. C. WYLD, Hist. Study of the Mother Tongue, Ch. I, 9.

ii. Milby was a low place where they would have found it a severe lot to have their lines fall for any long period. G. ELIOT, Scenes, III, Ch. II, 194.

iii. "How should a child like you know that the marriage was irregular?" — "Because I had no lines" cries Caroline quickly. *THACK.*²⁾

She could not produce her marriage lines. MARRYAT.²⁾

iv. I said you couldn't afford to buy me toys. He said that was hard lines on me. G. MOORE, Esth. Waters, Ch. XXVI, 188.

To break off an old connection so suddenly, and, as it chanced, at such a trying moment, was hard lines. EDNA LYALL, Hardy Norseman, Ch. X, 84.

links = ground for the game of golf, provided with loops (= golf-links). Sometimes preceded by the indefinite article.

"Golfing?" "Oh, yes," said the young man indifferently. "There's a fair links." Mrs. WARD, Lady Rose's Daughter, I, Ch. V, 38b.

This would be a jolly good place for a golf-links. SHAW, John Bull's Other Island, 102.

lists = ground inclosed for a combat or competition, especially a tilting-match or tournament. (Properly = palisades or barriers.) The word may be an English adaptation of the Old French lisse (Mod. French lice). For the insertion of the t compare whilst, amongst. Note especially to enter the lists. The singular form is occasionally met with in the same meaning.

i. Rather than so, come, fate, into the list. Macb., III, 1, 71.

The champions, armed in martial sort, | Have thronged into the list. SCOTT, Brid. of Triermain, II, xviii.

1) TEN BRUG., Taalst., VI. 2) MURRAY.

- ii. * The lists are oped, the spacious area clear'd. BYRON, Childe Harold, I, LXXII. They reel, they roll in clanging lists. TEN., Sir Galahad, I.

 The young king himself entered the lists against Luther. GREEN, Short Hist., Ch. VI, § 5, 321.

He entered the lists against the most celebrated advocates of the day. NETTLESHIP, Dict. of Clas. Antiquities, s. v. Julius Caesar.

looks = appearance of the countenance, mien, cast of the features. Frequent in the phrase good looks. Note to be in good looks (= Dutch zijn 'beau jour' hebben). The singular form is sometimes used in the same meaning. Without any defining word looks often means good looks. (Compare parts and spirits).

- i. I suppose his acquirements and abilities . . . make amends for any fault of look. CH. BRONTË, Jane Eyre, Ch. XVI, 191.

- ii. * I asked a man of sorrow and of tears | Whose looks told anguish press'd him more than years. (?), What is Life? (Rainb., I, 20).
Tozer replied that he thought not also, judging from Paul's looks. DICK., Domb., Ch. XII, 105.

 Those hapless creatures who suffer under the misfortune of good looks, ought to be continually put in mind of the fate which awaits them. THACK., Van. Fair, I, Ch. XII, 113.

He was possessed of a certain brilliancy which generally passes for good looks. EDNA LYALL, Don., I, 60.

 Her person was pleasing, and, when in good looks, pleasing. JANE AUSTEN, North. Abbey, Ch. II, 6.

Catherine was in very good looks. Ib., Ch. II, 12.

* I never saw anybody to equal him in looks. RID. HAGGARD, She, Ch. II, 21.

lots = plenty. Only in colloquial language. Lots is sometimes confounded with a lot, another colloquialism, corresponding to the literary a large number (quantity).

Let's have lots of room. DICK., Christm. Car., II, 37.

Lots of tin, I suppose, eh? THACK., Van. Fair, I, Ch. XIV, 147.

manners = external behaviour in social intercourse (= Dutch manieren). The singular form is sometimes used in the same meaning, but mostly corresponds to the Dutch (wijze van) optreden.

- i. She had neither beauty, genius, accomplishment, nor manner. JANE AUSTEN, North. Abbey, Ch. II, 8.

We shall probably see much to be altered in her . . . and must prepare ourselves for . . . much distressing vulgarity of manner. Id., Mansfield Park, Ch. I, 9.

- ii. His manners were dignified. G. ELIOT, Mid., I, Ch. II, 8.

For manners are not idle, but the fruit | Of loyal nature, and of loyal mind. TEN., Quin., 333.

Evil communications corrupt good manners. Rev. of Rev.

marbles = a) sculptures in marble; b) game played with marble balls. In the second meaning constructed as a singular.

- i. Of late years he has decidedly gone in more for sculpture, or as Plush disdainfully terms it "taken to marbles." JAMES PAYN, Glow-Worm Tales, II, C, 42.

What have I myself not suffered from Jebb's lectures upon the Carrara marbles. Ib.

- ii. Marbles is not the popular game it once was. New Bk. Sports.¹⁾ matters = things, affairs, in an indefinite and vague sense (Ch. XXXI, 57). Matters being thus composed, everybody went to rest. SMOL., Rod. Rand., Ch. XIX, 127.

¹⁾ MURRAY.

Those who either attack or defend a minister in such a government as ours, where the utmost liberty is allowed, always carry matters to an extreme. HUME, Essays, III, 24.

We are, however, advancing matters. THACK., Newc., I, Ch. II, 16. (= Dutch loopen op de zaak vooruit.)

means = a) that through which or by the help of which an end is attained; b) resources.

In the first meaning construed as a singular or as a plural. Thus we find a means, this (that) means, but also these (those) means. It is but natural that the plural demonstratives are used when more agencies than one are referred to. In Early Modern English the singular form mean is sometimes met with, in Present English this form is rare.

In the second meaning means is a strict plurale tantum, and construed as such throughout, except with regard to the indefinite numerals: much (little) means. The plural is also regularly used in certain collocations, such as to have means, to find means, (by) fair (or foul) means, means of Grace, by all (manner of) means, by any (manner) of means, by no (manner of) means, by means of, ways and means (see below).

a) i. You may deny that you were not the mean | Of my lord Hastings' late imprisonment. RICH. III, I, 3, 90.

No place will serve me so, no mean of death, | As here by Cæsar, and by you cut off, | The choice and master spirits of this age. JUL. CÆS., III, 1, 161.

I will not practise any violent mean to stay the unbridled course of youth in him.

JONSON, Ev. Man in his Hum., I, 2, 124. (Some editions have means).

You may be able by this mean to review your own scientific acquirements. COLERIDGE.¹⁾

As a mean of passenger transportation. MARK TWAIN, Tramp Abroad.²⁾

ii. * He was thankful to have been the means of making her happy. THACK., Van. Fair, I, Ch. XX, 214.

 Rebecca easily found a means to get rid of Briggs, her companion. Ib., I, Ch. XVI, 165.

Each regarded her as a means of keeping an eye on the other. MRS. WARD, Marc., I, 135.

 Being by that means reminded of his charge, he fell mechanically into his usual trot, and trotted off. DICK., Chimes³⁾, I, 36.

By this means she ensured the personal chastisement of all other youths who dared to lift their eyes to her. CH. KINGSLEY, Hereward, Ch. VIII, 48a.

* Good God, betimes remove | The means that makes us strangers. Macb., IV, 3, 164.

 They have few means of information. Westm. Gaz., No. 5231, 4c.

 With great dexterity these means were now employed. MOTLEY.³⁾

 By fair or foul means we must now enter in. Henry VI, C, IV, 7, 14.

She found means to deceive the servants. SMOL., Rod. Rand., Ch. I, 9.

What was the extent of his income I have no means of saying. TROL., Thack., Ch. I, 33.

The discourse of the preacher was on the fearful condition of those who disobey the discipline of the Church and refuse the means of Grace. WALT. BESANT, St. Katherine, Ch. X.

1) WEBST., Dict. 2) TEN BRUG., Taalst., VI. 3) GÜNTHER, Man., § 369.

These (sc. the Rosebery and Lansdowne Resolutions) adumbrate a Second Chamber which by no manner of means satisfies the Liberal Party or the Country. Westm. Gaz., No. 5496, 1c.

β) * I should esteem it a great favour if you would acquaint me, so far as lies in your power, with information respecting the character and means of Messrs. — Business Letter-Writer, XVI.

The daughter of an Irishman of means, who squandered them and became a burden on his children [etc.]. SAINTSBURY, Ninet. Cent., Ch. I, 37.

 She was parting with one who had little means of serving her. DE QUINCEY, Confessions, Ch. II, 28.

He broke away from surgery, and, having some little means, travelled to the Isle of Wight, Devonshire, and other parts of England. SAINTSBURY, Nineteenth Century, Ch. II, 86.

He would very likely have followed in the steps of his father and grandfather with less means at his disposal, and, consequently greater temptations than theirs and so forth. NORRIS, My Friend Jim, Ch. XII, 80.

memoirs = a) desultory record of events; b) autobiographical record; c) record of the proceedings or transactions of a learned society.

i. Their whole structure serves to prove that they (sc. the Synoptic Gospels) are memoirs and not histories. WESTCOTT.¹⁾ ii. We do not find, in any of his voluminous Memoirs, either deep reflection or vivid painting. MAC., Fred., (663a).

Few sermons can be read with so much profit as the Memoirs of Burns, of Chatterton, or of Savage. WALT. SCOTT (LOCKHARDT, Life of Sir Walt. Scott, Ch. I, 3).

The sensation of the month has been the publication of Prince Hohenlohe's Memoirs. Rev. of Rev., CCIII, 477a.

iii. Memoirs read before the Anthropological Society of London.¹⁾ memoranda = booklet or paper containing memoranda. Felt as a singular, so that the use of a preceding indefinite article is not regarded as an incongruity.

"And now look at this paper." And he drew out a memoranda, scrawled over with figures. LYTTON, Caxtons, X, Ch. I, 248.

merits = a) intrinsic excellences or defects; b) good works viewed as entitling to reward from God. In the first meaning especially frequent in the phrase (up)on one's (own) merits. The opposite demerits, often found in conjunction with merits, is also a plurale tantum.

i. * In pleading, they studiously avoid entering into the merits of the cause. SWIFT, Gul. Trav., IV, Ch. V, 199a.

Nobody could be insensible to Mr. Pipkin's merits. DICK., Pickw., Ch. XVII, 152. It is impossible to enter here into the merits of the controversy. Rev. of Rev., CXCVIII, 565a.

 He has always been content to let his novels advance on their own merits. Standard.

He wishes that measures might be discussed upon their merits. Rev. of Rev., CCIV, 619b.

Each breach of the law must be judged on its own merits. Westm. Gaz., No. 6005, 1c.

ii. His superabundant merits, which are laid up as a rich treasure for his Church. MORTIMER.¹⁾

¹⁾ MURRAY.

Perhaps his exalted appreciation of the merits of the old girl, causes him usually to make the noun-substantive, Goodness, of the feminine gender. DICK., Bleak House, Ch. XLIX, 409.

- iii. I need say nothing here of their special merits and demerits. TROL., Thack., Ch. I, 38.

It seemed to me by no means unprofitable to lay out fifty sous in the purchase of a stall at the theatre, and to judge with my own eyes of the merits and demerits of the play. THACK., Dickens in France.

mews = large stable for carriages and carriage-horses. Originally the name of the Royal stables in London, so called because built where the king's hawks were once mewed or confined. Mews is often found with the indefinite article, but seems otherwise to be treated as a plural. Compare STORM, Eng. Phil.², 686 and 799.

- i. There was some disturbance last night in consequence of the mob assembling round the King's mews. GREVILLE.¹)

- ii. The cabman who stabled his horses in some mews near Praed Street. ANSTEY, Vice Versa, Ch. III, 44.

Miss Tox's bedroom (which was at the back) commanded a vista of Mews. DICK., Domb., Ch. VII, 59.

The mews of London constitute a world of their own. MAYHEW.¹)

- iii. Having a loft, I always say, is one of the great conveniences of living in a mews. DICK., Chimes³, II, 60.

Mr. Turveydrop's great room was built out into a mews at the back. Id., Bleak House, Ch. XIV, 117.

I found that there was a mews in a lane which runs down by one wall of the garden. CON. DOYLE, Sherl. Holm., I, 31.

She saw the black spot pass down a mews and disappear under the eaves. G. MOORE, Esth. Wat., Ch. XV, 96.

Nero, the younger (dog) had dived to the very heart of a peculiarly unsavoury dust-box, standing near the entrance of a mews. MRS. WARD, Lady Rose's Daught., I, Ch. IV, 29a.

morals = moral principles, moral life.

He would not take one without a certificate from the schoolmaster and clergyman of his native place, strongly vouching for his morals and doctrine. THACK., Sam. Titm., Ch. II, 11.

His private morals lay, justly or unjustly, under imputations of the worst kind. Mac., Pitt, (291a).

The Duke of Newcastle, however contemptible in morals, manners and understanding, was a dangerous enemy. Ib., (305a).

nerves = nervousness.

He must be a man of nerve, but without nerves. Good Words (STOF., Leesb., I, 95) (Note the contrast.)

Europe during the last ten years has been in that peculiar stage of nerves in which mere talk about war . . . does but increase the irritation, and accentuate the fears of the timid. Westm. Gaz., No. 5376, 1c.

In order to bring us into his state of nerves he made a series of assertions which are either half-true or totally inaccurate. Ib., No. 5442, 1c.

numbers = a) a large number; b) numerical strength; c) superior numbers; d) poetical rhythm or measure (now uncommon). Also the singular form is used to denote a numerous multitude. Note also the collocation in round numbers, sometimes used figuratively in the sense of the Dutch in ronde woorden.

¹) MURRAY.

- i. Numbers of Pen's friends, frequented this very merry meeting. THACK., Pend., I, Ch. XXX, 319.
- ii. To do the villains justice, they fought bravely; but we far excelled them in numbers. BUCHANAN, That Winter Night, Ch. V, 52.
- iii. The Ghebers are at last borne down by numbers. JEFFREY, Thomas Moore.
- iv. I am ill at these numbers. HAMIL., II, 2, 120.
I lisp'd in numbers, for the numbers came. POPE.
Tell me not in mournful numbers. "Life is but an empty dream!" LONGFELLOW.
- v. Such may be stated, in round numbers, to be the result of the information which Major Pendennis got. THACK., Pend., II, Ch. VII, 75.
Well, ma'am, in round numbers, she's run away with the soldiers. HARDY, Far from the Madding Crowd, Ch. X, 92.

offices = a) ceremonial duties or services; b) rites due to the dead; c) kitchen and rooms connected with it, often including stables and other outhouses. In the second meaning mostly preceded by the adjective last. To denote a single servant's room the singular may be used.

- i. She usually leaves her cloak in the passage as she goes into the pantler's office with the milk. SCOTT, Fair Maid, Ch. XXXII, 334.
- ii. * In offices as strict as Lent, | King James's June is ever spent. SCOTT, Mar'm., IV, xv.
Hitherto he had said his offices regularly, but now he would say special prayers. HALL CAINE, The Christian, I, 298.
Breviary = a book containing the daily offices which all who are in orders are bound to read. ANNANDALE, Conc. Dict.
 I did not doubt that he had thus quietly fulfilled the last mournful offices. LYTON, Caxtons, X, Ch. III, 251.
The last offices for the dead having been performed. Times.
 He hath been in unusual pleasure and | Sent forth great largess to your offices. MACB., II, 1, 14.
She gave her cook as high wages as they did at Mansfield Park and was scarcely ever seen in her offices. JANE AUSTEN, Mansfield Park, Ch. III, 30.
The spacious offices were little used. DICK., Christm. Car., II, 31.
The sleeping-rooms and domestic offices were on its right. MRS. WOOD, Orville College, Ch. I, 7.

oils = a) oil-colour; b) oil-paintings.

- i. Branwell . . . seems to have progressed so far as to paint, very badly, in oils. MISS FLORA MASSON, The Brontës, Ch. VII, 38.
- ii. Mr. Eugenius Maunder had a turn for oils. PAYN, Glow-Worm Tales, I, B, 40.

oilskins = clothes made of oilskin.

The Kaiser in Oilskins. Rev. of Rev., CCXII.

Fox at once threw off his oilskins and plunged in to save him. Westm. Gaz. No. 5371, 8d.

Mr. Tom Wing . . . is going to don oilskins in a week's time and go on a fortnight's voyage to the Faroe Islands. ib., No. 5376, 8d.

orders = a) rank, status, or position of a clergyman or ordained minister of the Church; b) conferment of holy orders. Orders is short for holy orders. It is frequently found in certain phrases: to take orders, to enter (into) holy orders, in orders, in deacon's orders, in priest's orders (= in full orders).

Also in the meaning of command we often find order in the plural; seemingly regularly in certain combinations, such as to have orders, to receive orders, at (by) any one's orders, under (strict) orders, with (strict) orders. SHAKESPEARE has to have order, DRYDEN by my order.

The plural is likewise regular in the phrase standing orders (= Dutch reglement van orde).

- i. * Last year I resigned my orders because I could no longer accept the view of the English Church. MRS. WARD, Rob. Elsm., III, 154.

 About this period he was offered a living of considerable value in Lincolnshire, if he were inclined to enter into holy orders. BOSWELL, Life of Johnson, 85b. A master of arts, in full orders, is desirous of a curacy. MARTINEAU.¹⁾

It is better for a boy's character that his headmaster should be in orders. Times. He told his father that he must give up all thought of taking orders. EDNA LYALL, We Two, I, 25.

It was a settled thing that he should take Holy Orders. Ib., I, 25.

Nor was any undertaking given by the candidate of their choice that he should hereafter enter holy orders. Times.

After some delay Swift was admitted to deacon's orders, in October 1694, and to priest's orders, in January 1694-5. Life of Swift, Prefaced to The Works of the Rev. Jon. Swift.

- ii. In the sacrament of Orders there is given a grace, whereby a priest will always have a perpetual assistance for the discharge of his office. MANNING.¹⁾

- iii. * Villeneuve received orders to put to sea the first opportunity. SOUTHEY, Life of Nelson, Ch. IX, 246.

He twice gave orders to cease firing upon the Redoubtable. Ib., Ch. IX, 259.

Gamekeeper has orders to shoot all dogs found in this enclosure. DICK., Pickw., Ch. II, 18.

At Truncheon's orders she flung the whole shrubbery into the dust-house. THACK., A Little Dinner at Timmins's, Ch. VI, 326.

Boaler has orders to pay your cab. ANSTEY, Vice Versa, Ch. I, 15.

She jerked and pushed him into his place without a word, being apparently under strict orders from the governess not on any account to speak to the boys. Ib., Ch. VI, 130.

They were executed by the orders of the Ameer. MCCARTHY, Short Hist., Ch. IV, 57.

 They have already order | This night to play before him. HAMLET, III, 1, 20. He did it by my order. DRYDEN, All for love, IV, 1 (79).

- iv. The standing orders allow the Speaker to arrest irrelevance. Daily Mail.

pains = a) punishment, penalty, fine; b) suffering or throes of childbirth; c) exertions. In the first meaning pains is said (by MURRAY) to be now obsolete, except in the collocation pains and penalties. The singular form with the same meaning is regular in the phrases on (upon, under) pain of death (bondage etc.).

In the third meaning pains has the finite verb of which it is the subject either in the singular or in the plural, generally the latter. As for its adnominal modifiers we say much (little) pains, not many (few) pains; these (those) pains rather than this (that) pains. But great (small) pains seems preferable to many (few) pains, and instances with the demonstratives are infrequent. Compare also Ch. XXVI, 16.

¹⁾ MURRAY.

We also find pains preceded by the distributive every, which seems an objectionable combination.

In some collocations it is impossible to tell whether pains is regarded as a plural or a singular. Note especially to be at some (the, great, etc.) pains, to spare no pains, to cost (give) no (great, etc.) pains, to be a fool for one's pains (= lit. to be a dupe notwithstanding, or in reward of, one's pains; fig. to lose one's labour). For illustration of this last phrase see especially FLÜGEL, s. v. pains, and STOF., Stud., I, 17.

Instead of the plural the older language also had the singular form pain, which is still occasionally met with in poetry as an archaism.

α) * That's necessary on pain of a fine. MAR. CRAWF., Kath. Laud., I, Ch. VII, 126.

 Compulsion, either in the direct form or in that of pains and penalties. MILL, Liberty, I, 23.¹⁾

Each bottle being marked with the initials of the inventor, to counterfeit which would be to incur the pains of forgery. SCOTT, Fair Maid, introd., 11.

β) She bore unhusbanded a mother's pains. SOUTHEY, Eng. Eclogues, Hannah, 19.¹⁾

γ) i. The labour we delight in physics pain. Macb., II, 3, 55.

Pray thee, take pain | To allay with some cold drops of modesty | Thy skipping spirit. Merch. of Ven., II, 2, 171.

He rolled his kindling eye, | With pain his rising wrath suppressed. SCOTT, Marm., I, xvi.

Sir Tristram of the Woods — | Whom Lancelot knew, had held sometime with pain | His own against him. TEN., The last Tourn., 178.

He quickly snatched away | Their fairest maid and with small pain did slay | Such men as there in arms before him stood. W. MORRIS, Earthly Par., Doom of King Acrisius, 78b.

ii. * All my pains is sorted to no proof. Taming of the Shrew, IV, 3, 43. (sorted = contrived.)

It is obvious that such a racial difficulty as this can only be overcome by taking special pains, and yet in most of our schools no pains at all seems to be taken. Graph.

 Your pains | Are registered where every day I turn | The leaf to read them. Macb., I, 3, 151.

The greatest pains have been taken by the author of the following vocabularies to render them as complete and correct as possible. WEBST., Appendix, Pref. to Modern Geogr. and Biogr. Names.

Hardly any pains are taken to make it (sc. the play) credible. Rev. of Rev., CCII, 358a.

 The answers I have with much pains wringed and extorted from you. SWIFT, Lilliput.

Much pains have been taken to give the most approved spelling. WEBST., Appendix, Pref. to Modern Geogr. and Biogr. Names.

By merely taking a little pains he may make a tremendously effective thing out of it. Punch.

The more she impressed his badness upon him, the less pains did he take to obey her. EDNA LYALL, DONOVAN, I, 21.

* I have deserved her; and now methinks too, with taking all this pains for her, I begin to like her. DRYDEN, Marriage à la Mode, V, 1 (319).

 Yet much he praised the pains he took, | And well those pains did pay SCOTT, Marm., I, xiii.

¹⁾ MURRAY.

-  He took every pains to arrive at a proper conclusion. Sir J. C. MATHEW.¹⁾
- δ) His Majesty, in another audience, was at the pains to recapitulate the sum of all I had spoken. SWIFT, Gul. Trav., I.
 She (sc. Lady Godolphin) refused some time ago to be acquainted with me. You know she is Lord Marlborough's eldest daughter. She is a fool for her pains, and I'll pull her down. Id., Journ. to Stella, LXI.
 The parts which have given the author the greatest pains in composing. FIELDING, Tom Jones, V, Ch. I, 63.
 It cost this great man no pains to pardon him. THACK., Henry Esq., II, Ch. X, 234.
 Many people give themselves extreme pains to frequent company where all round them are their superiors. Id., Newc., Ch. IX, 103.
 The impression at present is that he (sc. Dobbin) is a fool for his pains. Id., Let. to Rob. Bell (Times, No. 1803, 581c).
 You want to let Lynton off his debt, — you are a fool for your pains. He is a born scoundrel, — and has never seen his way to being anything else, — why should you compassionate him? MARIE CORELLI, Sor. of Sat., I, Ch. X, 136.
 He spared no pains to please her during her week's stay. EDNA LYALL, Don., II, 160.
 We were at some pains to acquaint ourselves accurately with the facts. Times.
 He is at great pains to supplement what has been published already with particulars which scarcely merit reproduction. Athen.

Parts = a) portion of an animal body; b) talents; c) region. When denoting a portion of an animal body, parts is mostly preceded by a defining adjective: hinder parts, inward parts. In the meaning of talents also it is often accompanied by a defining adjective; when such an adjective is absent, parts = good parts. (Compare looks and spirits.) According to MURRAY the word in the second meaning is now archaic and rare in speech.

- i. I had occasion to examine the parts of a child very attentively at the birth. UNDERWOOD.¹⁾
 The inward parts of a swine be very like to the inward parts of a man. COGAN.¹⁾
- ii. In the French verses of Frederic we can find nothing beyond the reach of any man of good parts and industry. MAC., Fred., (663a).
 He was allowed to be a man of parts. Ib., (671b).
 His parents expected nothing from such slender parts and such a headstrong temper. Ib., Clive, (498b).
 Though his parts were not brilliant, he made up for his lack of talent by meritorious industry. THACK., Van. Fair, I, Ch. IX, 87.
 He was not a young man of brilliant parts. II. Mag.
- iii. Tell your dad what your impressions of foreign parts are. H. J. BYRON, Our Boys.
 They spends the summer at Woodview and goes to foreign parts for the winter. G. MOORE, Esth. Waters, Ch. XXVI, 181.

prayers = devotional exercises on a small scale, especially in the home-circle. She went to church thrice every Sunday, and as often on week-days as there were prayers. CH. BRONTE, Jane Eyre, Ch. XXI, 288.
 He has come down late for prayers. Punch.
 So you have had prayers without me. Ib.

premises = building with its adjuncts.

I have no desire to put my foot on the premises again. G. ELIOT, Mid., IV Ch. XXXV, 249.

¹⁾ MURRAY.

Meadows was wandering about the premises. CH. READE, It is never too late to mend, I.

points = switch of a railway-track.

Passing over the points at Manningtree, the train gave a lurch. JEROME, Sketches (GRONDH. and ROORDA, Eng. Leesb., III, 51).

presents = present letters or instrument. A legal term used in a deed of conveyance, a lease, a letter of attorney, a bill of sale, etc., especially in the formula (Know all men) by these presents (= Dutch bij dezen).

Witness all men by these presents, that I, Anthony Lumbkin, esquire of Blank place, refuse you, Constantia Neville, spinster, of no place at all, for my true and lawful wife. GOLDSMITH, She Stoops to Conquer, V, (232).

To the hundred thousand ladies and gentlemen who have written me from all parts of the world . . . greeting. Know all of you by these presents that [etc.]. Advertisement.

proceedings = a) happenings, b) course of steps, especially in the prosecution of actions at law; c) record of the proceedings or transactions of a society.

- i. He even remembered an impious opinion of his that the proceedings were 'slow'. ANSTEY, Vice Versa, Ch. I, 13.

There seems to be a widespread misconception concerning this month's Parliamentary proceedings. Rev. of Rev., CCIII, 451a.

- ii. * He therefore commenced proceedings by putting his arm over the half-door of the bar. DICK., Pickw., Ch. XXVII, 240.

 Proceedings were threatened but were withdrawn. G. MOORE, Esth. Waters, Ch. II, 12.

He is now taking proceedings in order to secure an account of his mother's financial affairs. Rev. of Rev., CCVIII, 363b.

- iii. Proceedings of the Royal Society. MURRAY.

prospects = expectations.

Dolf frankly told him his course of life, his severe medical studies, his little proficiency, and his very dubious prospects. WASH. IRV., Dolf Heyl. (STOF., Handl, I, 138).

provisions = stock of food (= Dutch proviand, leeftocht).

He made a scanty breakfast on the remains of the last night's provisions. WASH. IRV., Dolf Heyl. (STOF., Handl, I, 123).

quarters = a) four parts, each containing a limb of a human body divided in the case of execution for high treason, by extension also any part of the human body; b) place of stay or residence, lodgings, especially of soldiers.

Quarters is a strict plurale tantum in the compounds head-quarters and hind-quarters. The plural is likewise usual in the phrases in certain (some) quarters (= circles), at close quarters. The singular quarter is occasionally met with in the meaning hind-quarters. The compound head-quarters is construed with either a singular or a plural finite verb, and may be preceded by the indefinite article.

- a) * Their heads and quarters were still rotting on poles. MAC., Hist., Ch. XII.

 The tickling pleasure which he experienced in his lower regions had rendered him quite callous to any inconveniences he might feel in those remote quarters. CH. LAMB, Es. of Elia, Dis. on Roast Pig, (255).

 The mare's . . . a bit too weak in the hindquarters. G. ELIOT, Sil. Marn., Ch. IV, 28.

* They jawed together fore and aft a good spell, till at last the captain turned out, and, laying hold of a rattan, came athwart Mr. Bowling's quarter. SMOL., Rod. Rand., Ch. XXIV, 175. (= hind-quarters.)

- β) i. He was fain to take up his quarters for the night under the lowly roof of honest Peter de Groot. WASH. IRV., Dolf Heyl. (STOF., Handl., I. 150). I'm in good quarters for the present at least. ib., 143.
Lieutenant Lindsay answered that the soldiers came as friends, and wanted nothing but quarters. MAC., Hist., VII, Ch. XVIII, 21.
Frederic allowed his troops to take some repose in winter quarters. Id., Fred., (693a).
- ii. * He had no quarrel with Mr. Cadogan, but only with those at head-quarters, who had belied him. THACK., Henry Esq., II, Ch. XV, 284.
 The head-quarters of her (sc. Aphrodite's) worship were Paphos, Amathus [etc.]. NETTLESHIP, Dict. Clas. Ant., 39b.
 The original head-quarters was in the palace of Baldwin II in Jerusalem. ANNANDALE, Conc. Dict., s. v. templar.
The head-quarters of the corps is at the Tower of London. Graph.
* In Toulon the French have a fortified head-quarters. Times, 3/11, 1893.
The line to Dartmoor passes through Exeter, an excellent head-quarters for the exploration of the rugged Phillpotts country. Westm. Gaz., No. 6017, 11c.
- γ) * The nonsense that is talked in some quarters about the cause having been lost by impatience of a few working women in the Ladies' Gallery [etc.]. Rev. of Rev., CXCVII, 459a.
 I have seen the opposing forces in Russia at close quarters, and I struggle in vain against the despairing conviction that it is too late. ib., CXCVIII, 564a.
We both desired to come to close quarters. Mrs. WARD, Lady Rose's Daught., I, Ch. II, 22a.

ranks = body of private soldiers, rank and file. Mostly used in the plural also in the sense of number of soldiers drawn up in line abreast (= Dutch gelid). Note especially ranks of death, ranks of war. When used figuratively of other matters than the army, the plural is practically the only form.

- i. He was reduced to the ranks. TEN BRUG., Dict.
To rise from the ranks. FLÜGEL.
- ii. * When the ranks are broken and you have to fight singly. JOWETT.¹⁾
 To paint the Hero's Toil, the Ranks of War. GRAY, Propertius, III, 33.
The Minstrel Boy to the war is gone, | In the ranks of death you'll find him. THOMAS MOORE.
 Scholars like Hooker, gentlemen like George Herbert, could not be found in the ranks of the priesthood. GREEN, Short Hist.¹⁾ recitals = entertainment consisting in recitation.

It (sc. the voiceless w) is taught by professors of elocution, and is, therefore, commonly heard at recitals, and also at amateur theatricals. WALT. RIPPMAHN, The Sounds of Spoken English, § 26.

records = collection of official accounts, documents.

Here they find an inspector of police, who enters the charge in the station-records. ESCOTT, England, Ch. IV, 416.
Here were usually kept the records of the family. LYTTON, Last Days of Pomp., I, Ch. II, 14b.

regards = expressions of regard or deference.

I merely told her that my father was well and sent his kind regards to her. Mrs. GASK., Cranford, Ch. XIII, 238.
Pa's kind regards and hopes his leg's better, and will he lend him his spirit-level. JEROME, Three men in a boat, Ch. III, 25.

¹⁾ MURRAY.

relics = remains (19, f). Occasionally used in the singular.

- i. Such is the South-Sea House. At least such it was forty years ago, when I knew it — a magnificent relic. CH. LAMB, Es. of Elia, South-Sea House, 4.
- ii. All around | The mouldering relics of my kindred lay. SHELLEY, Queen Mab, VII, 188.
The story lies amidst places whose relics we yet trace. LYTTON, Last Days of Pompeii, Pref.

resources = a) (pecuniary) means; b) (mental) powers (= Dutch kunnen).

- i. The national resourees were contributed with unexampled cheerfulness. MAC., Pitt, (309*a*).
They had wished to husband their resources. Id., Hal., (77*b*).
I have at times bought the Nineteenth Century for an important article, and thereby strained my resources. Rev. of Rev., CXCVIII, 570*b*.
- ii. She had a finer sense than any of her counsellors of her real resources. GREEN, Short Hist., Ch. VII, § 3, 371.
Falstaff was never at the end of his resources. WALTER RALEIGH, Shakespeare, Ch. II, 50.
She was thrown upon her own resources. DOR. GERARD, Etern. Wom., Ch. IV.

respects = regards, expressions of respect or deference.

- I'll take another opportunity of paying my respects to Mrs. Malaprop. SHER., Rivals; I, 2, (219).
The young lady came forward to pay her respects to the protector of her friend. THACK., Van. Fair, Ch. XII, 115.
To send one's respects to another. WEBST., Dict.

returns = set of tabulated statistics prepared for general information (= Dutch staat).

Long then may England's trade returns continue to afford their satisfactory testimony to her unimpaired commercial strength and manufacturing energy. ESCOTT, England, Ch. VIII, 119.

rights = a) way in which anything really happened (= Dutch ware toedracht); b) dues; c) justice or correctness of opinion or action.

In other meanings also used as a plurale tantum in The Bill of Rights, to set (put) to rights, by rights. We find within one's (legal) right side by side with within one's (legal) rights, the latter being, apparently the more common form. In one's right(s) is an uncommon variant. The plural seems to be the rule also in to insist (upon) one's rights. Note also of right(s), which does not appreciably differ from by rights.

- i. We will let matters stand over till we can look into this complaint of yours and discover the rights of it. S. BARING GOULD, The Red-Haired Girl (SWAEN, Selection, III, 141).
- ii. I love and honour the Church. I pay her rights duly and cheerfully. SCOTT, Fair Maid, Ch. V, 53.
- iii. We are obliged to say that the rights were with M. Delcassé. Westm. Gaz., No. 5060, 1c. (= Wij moeten M. D. gelijk geven.)
- iv. * Some people would be ashamed to fill up a place belonging by rights to others. G. ELIOT, Mid., III, Ch. XXXII, 227.
A great rock, I have said; but by rights it was two rocks leaning together at the top. STEVENSON, Kidnapped, 181.
Suakim belongs by rights to these savages. Graph.

 I have a thought shall soon set all matters again to rights. GAY, Beggar's Opera, I.

A line from himself to me, or a call at Putney when next in town, might set all to rights. JANE AUSTEN, North. Abbey, Ch. XXVII, 208.

I turned crusty and put her to rights. CH. BRONTË, Villette, Ch. IX, 103.

I'll go put my room to rights. DICK., Chuz.

He tried to set the village to rights. Lit. World.

 General Komaroff was entirely within his rights. Rev. of Rev., CXCI, 89a.

They were acting within their rights. Ib., 89b.

The Colonials were acting within their rights. Times.

She was quite within her rights. MRS. WARD, Lady Rose's Daught., I, Ch. V, 38b.

You're within your legal right. Id., Sir George Tres., III, Ch. XXIV, 204.

The Tsar was within his rights in dissolving the Duma. Rev. of Rev., CCI, 228b.

We were in our right in creating our Navy, and they were not in their right in ordering us to scrap it. THOS. HODGKIN, (Nineteenth Cent., No. 399, 865).

The publishers . . . are no doubt within their right. Athen., No. 4422, 92a.

* It is not to be wondered at if he insisted on his rights. W. GUNNYAN, Biographical Sketch of Burns, 3.

 It was a thing appertaining of rights to them. LYTTON, Night and Morning, 19.

Martin's grandfather was of right the person to decide upon the course that should be taken. DICK., Chuz., Ch. XLVIII, 376a.

rudiments = beginnings of any branch of knowledge.

A man who to good nature adds the general rudiments of good breeding, will never be ridiculous in the best society. SCOTT (in LOCKH., Life of Sir Walt. Scott, Ch. I, 4, N.)

ruins = remains of destroyed or desolate house, fortress, city and the like. Also figuratively of other matters. Sometimes dealt with as a singular.

Thou art the ruins of the noblest man | That ever lived in the tide of times. JUL. CÆS., III, 1, 256.

On the platform of the middle terrace stands the ruins of the chapel. Westm. Gaz.

sables = mourning garments.

Her little boy sate by her side in pompous new sables. THACK., Van. Fair, II, Ch. XXII, 242.

"I can't go out of mourning, ma'am," said the young man looking down at his sables. Id., Virg., Ch. XXV, 256.

He rose, drawing his sables about him. MARIE CORELLI, Sor. of Sat., I, Ch. III, 35.

sands = a) grains of sand, b) areas covered with sand. In the first meaning especially used in referring to the contents of the hour-glass. Here the singular is occasionally met with also.

i. * Herrings are as countless as the sands on the shore. Suggestive lessons, I, 119.

 The sands are numbered that make up my life. HENRY VI, C, I, 4, 25.

Our sands run low. LYTTON, Rienzi, V, Ch. IV, 212.

The sands of the holidays have run out to their last golden grain. ANSTEY, Vice Versa, Ch. I, 7.

The sands are running fast out of the hour-glass. Rev. of Rev., CXCI, 454b.

The Nation warns statesmen that the sands are running out. Westm. Gaz., No. 5436, 16c.

 My sand is nearly run. LYTTON, Rienzi, IV, Ch. I, 149.

- ii. The sea beating loud the mutable sands of the sea-shore. LONGF., Courtship of Miles Standish.¹⁾ scales = apparatus for weighing (19, d). The singular is used in the the expression to turn the scale. The plural is sometimes found preceded by the indefinite article.

Three corpses lay out on the shining sands. CH. KINGSLEY, Three Fishers, III.

- i. Intellectually the balance was nearly even between the rivals. But here, again, the moral qualities of Pitt turned the scale. MAC., Pitt, (299a).

A hair would turn the scale either way. G. MOORE, Esth. Waters, Ch. XX, 138.

- ii. * A large hook in the ceiling that supported the scales on wick the hemp is weighed. SMOL., Rod. Rand., Ch. XXIII, 164.

Thine own fate — that of thy house — that of thousands — that of Britain herself are at this moment in the scales. SCOTT, Redgauntlet, Ch. XXII, 519b.

 He weighed it in a scales. HICHENS, Garden of Allah, I, i, Ch. V, 78.

seeds = prime causes (= Dutch kiemen).

Here I could plainly discover the true seeds of spleen, which only seizes on the lazy, the luxurious and the rich. SWIFT, Gul. Trav., IV, Ch. VII, (204a).

He cherished the seeds of enmity so strongly in his breast, that he imparted his indignation to his wife. SMOL., Rod. Rand., Ch. XXI, 139.

Many of those who reached their country carried with them the seeds of death. MAC., Fred., (669b).

sessions = sitting of justices of the peace, also the magistracy itself. More fully Sessions of the Peace; mostly preceded by defining words: Petty Sessions, Quarter Sessions. Sometimes the word is preceded by the indefinite article. The singular is also met with in the same meaning.

- i. But it is now high time to look about me for a decent execution against next session. GAY, Beggar's Opera, I.

I'll try him only for a session or two longer upon his good behaviour. Ib.

- ii. * The Magistrate is one of the class called stipendiary magistrates, who in places where the magisterial work is arduous, are commonly substituted for the Petty Sessions. ESCOTT, England, Ch. XXIV, 416.

In districts where the business is lighter the Petty Sessions consist of two or more country gentlemen. Ib.

The prisoners must be tried either at the Assizes when the judge comes round on circuit, or the Quarter Sessions, which have power to try most criminal cases except burglary and murder. Ib., 417.

 There is not one in the town where he lives that he has not sued at a quarter-sessions. SPECTATOR, CXXII, (36).

He never missed a sessions. MRS. WARD, Mar. of Wil. Ashe, I, 13.

shakes = a kind of disease (19, c).

shambles = slaughter-house. Sometimes treated as a singular and preceded by the indefinite article. Also the singular form is used occasionally in the same sense.

- i. A ghastly shamble. ARCH. FORBES, Life of Nap. III, 290.

- ii. * Starving wretches swarmed daily around the shambles where these cattle were slaughtered. MOTLEY, Rise, IV, Ch. II, 575.

We no longer slaughter in the shambles and cellars of our crowded capital. SUGGESTIVE LESSONS, I, 86.

1) TEN BRUG., Taalst., VI.

 Far be the thought of this from Henry's heart, | To make a shambles of the parliament-house. Henry VI, C, I, 1, 71.

That hand was found cast out on the street, like the disgusting refuse of a shambles. SCOTT, Fair Maid, Ch. XV, 163.

A shambles reeking with blood. STANL. WEYM., Count Hannibal, 37.

The awful stench from this shambles turns your gorge. Times, 25/8, 1899.

shores = country (with some vague reference to coast). Frequent in the collocation on our shores. The singular form is not infrequent in the same sense.

i. This delusion becomes almost a madness when many exiles who suffer in the same cause herd together on a foreign shore. MAC., Hist., II, Ch. V, 94.

ii. A pretender is on our shores. THACK., The Hist. of the next French Revolution, Ch. I.

Mr. Binnie was just on the point of visiting his relatives, who reside at Musselburgh, near Edinburgh, when he met with the fatal accident which prevented his visit to his native shores. Id., Newc., I, Ch. XXII, 245.

Our home markets have been free to all the world to pour its products on our shores. Times.

Would you consider yourself efficient to undertake the responsibility of defending our shores against an invasion, if necessity arose? Westm. Gaz., No. 5382, 1b. It is announced that King Manael is to find an asylum on our shores. Ib., No. 5436, 2a.

shrouds = set of ropes, reaching from the mast-head to the sides of vessel to support the masts. Occasionally in the singular in the same meaning.

i. In mist or cloud, on mast or shroud, | It perched for vespers nine. COLERIDGE, Anc. Mar., I, xix.

ii. Her rattling shrouds, all sheathed in ice, | With the mast went by the board. LONGF., Wreck of the Hesperus, XVIII.

silks = a) silk stockings, b) silk garments.

i. A very dusty skeleton in a blue coat black knee-shorts, and silks, fell forward in the arms of the porter. DICK., Pickw., Ch. XXI.

Very few people but those who have tried it, know what a difficult process it is, to bow in great velvet smalls and a tight jacket, a high-crowned hat: or in blue satin trunks and white silks. Ib., Ch. XV, 133.

ii. "Oh, no! no need!" cries the widow, rustling in her silks. THACK., Virg., Ch. IV, 38.

spectacles = pair of lenses to assist defective sight (19, a).

spirits = a) temper or disposition of the mind; b) distilled liquor, strong drinks.

In the first meaning mostly accompanied by a defining adjective: good spirits, excellent spirits, his spirits were excellent, etc. Without any such defining word spirits = good spirits. (Compare looks and parts.)

The plural is also regular in the phrase animal spirits = natural buoyancy, 'healthy animalism'.

The plural is frequent when any liquid produced by distillation is meant, as in spirit(s) of wine, spirit(s) of hartshorn, spirit(s) of turpentine (= Dutch geest). When used in the meaning of alcohol (= Dutch spiritus) the singular is the ordinary form: thus methylated spirit (= Dutch brand-spiritus).

- i. * Our analysis shows this to be a remarkably pure spirit. Graph.
The manufacturers of European potato spirit have no vested right to poison the inhabitants of Africa. Times.
Sugar ferments and turns to spirit; spirit ferments and turns to vinegar. Suggestive Lessons, I, 180.
Vodka = an intoxicating spirit distilled from rye and much used in Russia. ANNANDALE, Concise Dict.
 Some people said it was the profuse use of spirit that brought on delirium tremens. THACK., Sam. Titm., Ch. I, 7.
- ii. * The sudden change of my fortune giving me a flow of spirits, I appeared in the most winning and gay manner I could assume. SMOL., Rod. Rand., Ch. XXIII, 165.
I made her drink a glass of the cordial to recruit her spirits. Ib., Ch. XXI, 145.
If you were convinced that Julia were well and in spirits, you would be entirely content? SHER., Riv., II, 1, (226).
Rebecca's wit, spirits, and accomplishments troubled her with a rueful disquiet. THACK., Van. Fair, I, Ch. XXV, 259.
All these boys were in great spirits. DICK., Christm. Car., II, 30.
His spirits became buoyant. MAC., Earl of Chatham, (817a).
Her spirits were depressed. Id., Fred., (665b).
The friends of Hastings were in high spirits when Pitt rose. Id., Warren Hastings, (645a).
 This afforded presumptive proof of the excellent quality of the ale and spirits sold within. DICK., Pickw., Ch. XXVII, 230.
Toddy, now generic for a hot drink of any kind of spirits. FARMER and HENLEY, Dict.
Along the mantelpiece were glass vessels, in which were snakes and lizards and other reptiles preserved in spirits. WASH. IRV., Dolf Heyl. (STOF., Handl., I, 106).

spoils = booty. Not seldom found in the singular.

- i. He neither cracked his whip, nor blew his horn, | But gazed upon the spoil with silent joy. WORDSWORTH, Hart-leap Well, 36.
An ample share of spoil was promised to the King of Poland. MAC., Fred., (683a).
- ii. And I return to thee, mine own heart's home; | As to his Queen some victor knight of Faery, | Earning bright spoils for her enchanted home. SHELLEY, Revolt, Dedic., 4.
Rawdon Crawley did not know what better to do with the spoils than to send them to his old friends. THACK., Van. Fair, I, Ch. XXXIII, 357.
France from her geographical position could not directly share in his spoils. MAC., Fred., (685b).
Every member of the league would think his own share of the war too large, and his own share of the spoils too small. Ib., (687a).

stables = house or shed with stables. Sometimes found preceded by the indefinite article.

- i. The curtain was drawn so as to exclude the dead brick-wall of a neighbour's stables. MRS. GASK., Cranf., Ch. XIV, 260.
- ii. I met him according to appointment at a livery stables over the Iron Bridge. MARRYAT, Making the Best of it (ROBINSON, The Advanced Reader, 33).
I was supplanted by a shabby man with a squint, who had no other merit than smelling like a livery-stables. DICK., Cop., Ch. XIX, 141b.

stairs = staircase. Originally kept in the singular when a series of steps was meant; instances being still frequent enough in the latest English.

After the indefinite article or a numeral stairs is mostly preceded by flight or pair (36), which latter word anciently had the meaning of set.

Sometimes either of these individualizers (36) is dispensed with: a stairs. The plural is now regular in the expressions up-stairs and down-stairs.

- i. She ran nimbly up the stair. CH. BRONTË, Jane Eyre, Ch. IV, 27.
"Thank heaven, that is over", George thought, bounding down the stair. THACK., Van. Fair, I.
- ii. * He would steal cautiously half-way down the stairs. G. MOORE, Esth. Waters, Ch. XX, 135.
It seemed impossible to summon strength and will to beat carpets or sweep down the stairs. Ib., 137.
 We hired a bedroom, up two pair of stairs. SMOL., Rod. Rand., Ch. XIII, 83.
It is number 92, up four pair of stairs. THACK., Van. Fair, II, Ch. XXX, 341.
 I sought a back-stairs which conducted directly to the kitchen. CH. BRONTË, Jane Eyre, Ch. XVII, 202.
* John ran down-stairs. MRS. CRAIK, John Hal, Ch. VIII, 85.

states = representatives of the people or governing classes.

It was with difficulty that the intercession of the States of Holland . . . saved the house of Brandenburg from the stain of an unnatural murder. MAC., Fred., (661a). He had borne the commissions of the States General of Holland. Ib., (668a.)

stays = a) corset (19, a); b) station or fixed anchorage for vessels. In the latter application especially in the nautical phrases in stays (= hove in stays), to miss stays. WEBST., Dict.

In a last endeavour to clear the headlands of Clare, she missed stays. CHARLES LEVER.¹⁾ steps = a) series of steps as at the entrance of a house or carriage (= Dutch stoep or tree); b) portable frame-work of stairs, step-ladder (= Dutch (huis)trap). Preceded by range, flight, line or pair after the indefinite article or a numeral (36). The word is also ordinarily found in the plural in certain collocations as to bend (direct, turn, wend) one's steps, to retrace one's steps, to conduct (guide, etc.) any one's steps, to take steps, in which the original meaning of paces is more or less distinctly felt.

- i. They came thronging up the steps. MRS. CRAIK, John Hal, Ch. VIII, 87.
A great powdered fellow in yellow plush breeches pushed me up the steps (sc. of the barouche). THACK., Sam. Titm., Ch. II, 2.
A hansom really had rolled up to the steps outside. ANSTEY, Vice Versa, Ch. III, 53.
- ii. He then called down a little break-neck range of steps behind a door, "Bring up that tea and bread-and-butter!" DICK., Cop., Ch. IX, 63a.
He stood on the top of the flight of steps, in full view of the mob. MRS. CRAIK, John Hal, Ch. VIII, 85.
She descended the flight of stone steps in front of the château. BUCHANAN, That Winter Night, Ch. V, 52.
A long line of steps led to the front door. Graph.
Just above him was the nursery landing, and near it, leaning against the wall, was the pair of kitchen steps with which he had hopes of reaching the roof. ANSTEY, Vice Versa, Ch. XIX, 361.
- iii. He turned his steps homeward. WASH. IRV., Rip van Winkle.
The Greek bent his steps towards a solitary part of the beach. LYTTON, Last days of Pomp., I, Ch. I, 12a.
They wended their steps towards Connaught Place. Punch.
He retraced his steps through the wood. BUCHANAN, That Winter Night, Ch. IV, 43.
The authorities took immediate steps to secure the regular service. Times.

1) FLÜGEL.

stocks = a) funds lent to the government and forming part of the national debt (= Dutch effecten); b) frame of timbers on which a ship rests while building (= Dutch schorrbalken); c) frame for the confinement of criminals (= Dutch blok); d) contrivance for making children keep their limbs in the proper position.

Stock in the singular may mean transferable shares in a bank or other company (= Dutch aandelen). In the second meaning stocks is especially frequent in the collocation (up)on the stocks, which is also used figuratively. Compare Dutch op stapel.

- i. He himself has not the moneys by him, but is forced to sell stock at a great loss. SHER., School for Scand., III, 1, (390).

I sent to my aunt 120 l. sterling as the amount of the interest of the stock in my name. THACK., Sam. Titm., Ch. VIII, 86.

- ii. * I believe she owns half the stocks. SHER., Riv., I, 1, (214).

The stocks are at ninety, and Mrs. Hoggarty can get three per cent. for her money. THACK., Sam. Titm., Ch. VI, 62.

 The vessel glided quietly off the stocks.

I am told Mr. Dryden has something of this nature new upon the stocks. THOM. BROWN.¹⁾

 Fetch forth the stocks! As I have life and honour, | There shall he sit till noon. Lear, II, 2, 140.

* I hear a flying rumour that the Misses Nettingall have stood Miss Shepherd in the stocks for turning in her toes. DICK., Co p., Ch. XVIII, 133a.

stores = a) supplies, as of provisions, ammunition, arms, clothing and the like for an army, a ship, etc.; b) number of shops managed by one society or firm established in one building (= Dutch warenhuis). In the second meaning sometimes found preceded by the indefinite article. In this case the singular form is also used in the same meaning.

- i. The Japanese captain was so kind as to double this out of his own stores. SWIFT, Gul. Trav., III, Ch. I, (164a).

The vessel, with all her stores and arms, was sold at Dumfries. WILLIAM GUNNYON, Biographical Sketch of Robert Burns, 38.

The last thing he wrote was an epigram on the building of a magazine for arms and stores. THACK., Eng. Hum., Swift, 4, Note.

Then with what she brought | Buy goods and stores — set Annie forth in trade. TEN., Enoch Arden, 138.

- ii. * The stores are situated within five minutes' walk of Victoria Station. Price-List of the Army and Navy Co-operative Society.

 If I was a co-operative stores and family hotel combined, I might be able to oblige you. JER., Three men in a Boat, Ch. I, 5.

 It had become a sort of small co-operative store. Id., Idle Thoughts, XII, 209.

strings in the compound leading strings (19, a).

studies = cultivation of a particular branch of arts or sciences.

Nothing happened to interrupt the quiet course of Adèle's studies. CH. BRONTË, Jane Eyre, Ch. XVI, 184.

Up went the king's cane, away ran the terrified instructor and Frederic's classical studies ended for ever. MAC., Fred., (662a).

He looked forward at this time to a post provided by Government: legal studies in the meantime having lapsed. STEPHEN GWYNN, Thomas Moore, Ch. I, 27.

¹⁾ FLÜGEL.

In the education of girls social accomplishments carried off the palm from more serious studies. JOHN FINNEMORE, Social Life in England, II, Ch. VIII, 59. You find us at our studies, you see, said the Doctor. ANSTEY, Vice Versa, Ch. XIV, 274.

supplies = a) stores or articles necessary for an army or other great body of people; b) grant of money provided by a national assembly to meet the expenses of government.

i. The supplies from France thus effectually cut off. SOUTHEY, Life of Nelson, Ch. IX, 247.

ii. to vote supplies. WEBST., Dict.

It was even recommended that the supplies should be stopped. MACAULAY.¹⁾ tablets = pocket memorandum-book. Now infrequent; formerly called tables.

i. And the Count was proceeding to enter Mr. Pickwick's name in his tablets, as a gentleman of the long robe. DICK., Pickw., Ch. XV, 133.

"Stop!" exclaimed the Count, bringing out the tablets once more. Ib., Ch. XV, 134. Across the waist a girdle served in lieu of pockets for the receptacle of the handkerchief and the purse, the stilus and the tablets. LYTTON, Last Days of Pomp., I, Ch. I, 9b.

ii. My tables, — meet it is I set it down, | That one may smile, and smile, and be a villain. HAML., I, 5, 107.

Therefore will he wipe his tables clean. HENRY IV, B, II, 4, 289.

terms = a) conditions; b) agreement; c) diction, words (= Dutch beoordingen); d) relative position; e) footing.

Terms in the meaning of agreement is chiefly found in certain phrases, such as to come to terms, to make terms, to reduce to terms. In the collocation in terms, in which terms is used in the third meaning, the word is equivalent to terms required by the case (= Dutch geijkte termen).

In the fourth and fifth applications terms without a defining adjective means respectively equal terms and good terms. (Compare looks, parts and spirits).

i. These were hard terms; but not to be rejected. SMOL., Rod. Rand., Ch. XXIII, 165.

Not content with concluding peace on terms favourable to Prussia, he solicited rank in the Prussian service. MAC., Fred., (699a).

Such a place was found on very easy terms. DICK., Bleak House, Ch. LXIV, 525. She (sc. England) at once became the most formidable power in the world, dictated terms of peace to the United Provinces. MAC., Hist., I, Ch. I, 136.

ii. The town may make terms with the enemy. Id., Fred., (697b).

Others were for making terms with the enemy. WALT. BESANT, London, I, 31. The question for the landed and wealthy classes is whether they will make terms with it (sc. the demand for a better and healthier existence . . . for the masses of the people) or be reduced to terms. WESTM. GAZ., No. 5219, 1c.

iii. * My master at last lost patience, and in plain terms taxed me with having embezzled them for my own use. SMOL., Rod. Rand., Ch. XX, 139.

In his letters and conversation he alluded to the greatest potentates of his age in terms which would have better suited Collé. MAC., Fred., (685a).

Methuen speaks in high terms of the intelligent manner in which the Imperial Yeomanry and the Kimberley mounted corps behaved. MORNING LEADER.

He has frequently spoken to me of your house of business in terms of great praise. BUSINESS LETTER-WRITER, I.

 He distinctly and in terms offered her marriage. DICK., Pickw., Ch. XXXIV, 310.

¹⁾ FLÜGEL.

iv. He had maintained a contest, on terms of advantage, against the powers. MAC., Fred., (693a).

He crossed swords on equal terms with one of the greatest statesmen of the century. Times.

This week P. and M. are playing 8000 up, spot-barred, on even terms. Graph. Although he played probably as well as ever he did in his life, he could never quite get on terms with White, who eventually won by 604 points. Graph.

v. * He lived on terms of the greatest intimacy with many persons of the highest rank. Preface to Gay's Beggar's Opera.

They were not upon good terms with each other. SOUTHEY, Life of Nelson, Ch. IX, 257.

The English people showed that it was anxious to live on good terms with its nearest neighbour. Daily Mail.

 We have lived much together, and always on terms. SHER., Riv., V, 1, (275).

terrors = visions of terror (= Dutch schrikbeelden).

It is impossible to express the terrors of my imagination. SMOL., Rod. Rand., Ch. XXII, 155.

The bright cheery day soon put to flight the terrors of the preceding night. WASH. IRV., Dolf Heyl. (STOF., Handl., I, 118).

things = matters, affairs in a vague sense (Ch. XXXI, 57). Sometimes added to (an) other noun(s), as a vague indication of further details. Observe also no great things (= Dutch niet veel zaaks). Compare 21, s. v. shakes.

i. They resolved to bring things to a crisis. MAC., Pitt, (297a).

While things went on quietly, Fox had a decided advantage over Pitt. Ib., (298a).

You carry things too far. GRANT ALLEN, Tents of Shem, Ch. IX.

ii. She would come wistfully into my rooms, bringing me my gruel and things. THACK., Lovel the Widower, Ch. II, 26, iii. Fanny was well enough, but Biddy was no great things. THACK., Pend., I, Ch. XI, 113.

thrills = a kind of disease (19, c).

times = circumstances generally (Ch. XXXI, 57). The plural is also usual in many combinations denoting a particular period, such as the times of the Stuarts, pre-historic times, those godless times, the good old times, things have changed since those times (FOWLER, Conc. Oxf. Dict. s. v. time), pre-Victorian times (Westm. Gaz., No. 6065, 5a).

Note especially abreast of (with) the times (= Dutch op de hoogte van zijn tijd), behind the times (= Dutch zijn tijd ten achter), to keep pace with the times (= Dutch met zijn tijd meegaan).

i. Times grew worse and worse with Rip van Winkle as years of matrimony rolled on. WASH. IRV., Rip van Winkle.

ii. It's very natural that he should think me behind the times. TROL., Framl. Pars., Ch. V, 51.

The Modern Cyclopædia is fully abreast of the times. Athen.

The Magazine you must have to keep abreast of the times. Stead's Annual, 1906, 40b.

Something which serious people must understand and appraise rightly if they are to keep abreast of these times. Westm. Gaz., No. 5149, 1c.

He makes no attempt to keep pace with the times. Ib., No. 6011, 4b.

tithes = tenth part of the increase arising from the profits of land and stock, allotted to the clergy for their support.

I pay her rights duly and cheerfully; tithes and alms, wine and wax, I pay them as justly, I say, as any man in Perth of my means doth. SCOTT, Fair Maid, Ch. V, 53.

transports = manifestations of vehement emotion. Often used in the singular in the same meaning.

- i. We had now, therefore, the satisfaction of seeing them fly into each other's arms in a transport. GOLDSMITH, Vic., Ch. XXXI, (471).
They shook their chains | In transport and rude harmony. Ib., Ch. XXXI, (474).
- ii. The warmest transports of the fondest lover were not greater than mine. Ib., Ch. XXXI, 473.
The news was received at Fort St. George with transports of joy and pride. MAC., Clive, (507b).
The offences of his youth excited, however, transports of rage in the King. Id., Fred., (660b).

travels = a) journeys (voyages) of discovery; b) account of occurrences and observations made during a journey. The singular form is used in the sense of travelling.

- i. Except as a means of travel money had no charm for him. DOR. GERARD, Etern. Wom., Ch. XXV.
It was distant a day's travel. BRET HARTE, Outcasts of Poker Flat, 21.
- ii. Upon the whole, I never beheld in all my travels so disagreeable an animal. SWIFT, Gul. Trav., IV, Ch. I, (189b).
- iii. I have perused several books of travels with great delight in my younger days. Ib., Ch. XII, 214b.
Writers of travels are sunk into oblivion. Ib., IV, Ch. XII, 214b.

troops = army.

The havoc which the war had made among his troops was rapidly repaired. MAC., Fred., (695a).

His feeling about his troops seems to have resembled a miser's feeling about his money. Ib., (659b).

The troops were formed up at 8 a. m. Graph.

trunks = trunk-hose [colloquial (8)].

vaults = large cellar. Sometimes preceded by the indefinite article. STORM, Eng. Phil.², 686.

- i. A thousand a year, besides the rent of the wine-vaults below the chapel. THACK., Newc., I, Ch. XI, 131.
Confound it! there are wine-vaults under the chapel. Ib., 132.
- ii. Mr. Bob Sawyer had himself purchased the spirits at a wine vaults in High Street. DICK., Pickw., Ch. XXXII, 284.

wars = seat of war. Especially in the phrases to be at the wars, to go to the wars, to return from the wars. SATTLER, E. S., XVI.

Is Signor Montante returned from the wars, Much ado, I, 1, 31.

He went to the wars. WASH. IRV., Rip van Winkle.

Some half-dozen of his brothers and kinsmen had gone to the wars. HUGHES, Tom Brown, I, Ch. II, 25.

Dear Madam, Philip is but at the wars. TEN., Queen Mary, V, 5, (648b).

waters = a) tract covered with water; b) water impregnated with such ingredients as to give it medicinal properties or a particular flavour or temperature. In the second meaning mostly preceded by a defining adjective: mineral waters, medicinal waters.

- i. Our fleet was ordered to the Greek waters. BAIN, Companion, 33.
Every region of the waters is alive with its own chosen fish. Suggestive Lessons, I, 114.
- ii. Strong waters are apt to give me the headache. GAY, Beggar's Opera, III.
Neither my master nor I drink the waters. SHER., Riv., I, 1.

ways = a) timbers on which a ship is launched (= stocks); b) courses. Also a plurale tantum in the word-group ways and means (usual meaning: financial resources; means and ways is a rare variant), and in the collocation to find ways (= to find means).

- i. The vessel as she appeared after leaving the ways. Il. Lond. News.
Lady Lucy Hicks Beach cutting the last cord which held the vessel to the ways. lb.
- ii. Let us look up to God, and every man reform his own ways. BACON, New Atlantis, (274).
He has got into bad ways. LYTTON, Night and Morning, 160.
- iii. * He was cogitating in his mind his ways and means of paying certain arrears of rent. DICK., Ol. Twist, Ch. III, 8b.
Philip had despatched Ruy Gomez to Spain for the purpose of providing ways and means. MOTLEY, Rise, I, Ch. II, 88b.
Martha had to shirk many a perplexed question as to ways and means of living in such a house. MRS. GASK., Cranford, Ch. XV, 286.
 There are many other ways and means by which the taxing power may be used to bring the Peers to reason. Rev. of Rev., CCIII, 452b.
 Butlers, cooks, and ladies of high standing furiously discuss the means and ways of evasion and contravention. Eng. Rev., Aug. 1912, 89.
- iv. He will find ways of eluding your father's anger. HOR. WALPOLE, Castle of Otranto, Ch. II, 69.

weeds = useless and troublesome plants. The singular occurs not infrequently to denote a particular noxious plant.

- i. They bid thee crop a weed, thou pluck'st a flower. SHAKESP., Venus, 946.
And I am helpless as a trodden weed. W. MORRIS, Earthly Par., The Son of Cræsus, LXI.
But O the pity | To find thine own first love once more . . . and then — cast her aside, | Foregoing all her sweetness, like a weed. TEN., Holy Grail, 622.
- ii. Small herbs have grace, great weeds do grow apace. RICHARD III, II, 4, 13.
A wild, where weeds and flow'rs promiscuous shoot. POPE, Essay on Man, I, 7.
In a world liable to become overgrown with weeds and choked with refuse, the cleansing work of a firebrand may from time to time be a necessity. OL. LODGE, Introd. to Huxl. Es.

wits = mental faculty. Occasionally found in the singular in the same meaning. The plural is regular in certain phrases, such as to be out of one's wits, to wander in one's wits, to live by one's wits, to lose one's wits, to have all one's wits about one.

In the phrase at one's wits end some writers prefer to write wit's, i. e. the genitive singular instead of the genitive plural. JESP., Growth and Structure, § 181.

Note also the five wits = the five senses.

- i. * Paul had wit enough to shake his head. DICK., Domb., Ch. XII, 105.
O, these are hard questions for my shallow wit. Old Ballad (Rainbow, II, 47).
A fool may learn a wise man wit. lb., 49.
She has brains in plenty (much more wit in her little finger than you have in all your head). THACK., Van. Fair, I, Ch. XV, 158.
Will was one whose wit keeps the roadway. G. ELIOT, Mid., V, Ch. XLVII, 346.
 "I — I didn't receive it," said Paul, at his wit's end. ANSTEY, Vice Versa, Ch. XI, 219.
He was at his wit's end. FLOR. MONTGOMERY, Misunderstood, Ch. V, 67.
He must have been at his wit's end when he had recourse to so lame and impotent a defence. W. GUNNYON, Biograph. Sketch of Burns, 48.

- ii. * The dulness of the fool is the whetstone of the wits. As you like it, I, I, 50. He drained the jug to the great apparent refreshment and steadying of his wits. II. Mag.
George was calling up his courage and wits to open the subject. CH. READE, It is never too late to mend, I, Ch. I, 17.
 The old Marchioness was wandering in her wits. THACK., Henry Esmond, III, Ch. II, 318.
Gay was then living by his wits. MAC., Addison, (773b).
The Duke was scared out of his wits. Id., Pitt, (301a).
The suggestion nearly frightened the Minister of the Interior out of his wits. Truth, No. 1802, 85a.
He was at his wits' end. Mrs. WARD, David Grieve, I, 285.
The Minister of the Interior, driven to his wits' end, ... hit upon an idea which certainly had never occurred to any statesman before. Truth, No. 1802, 85a.
 Four of his five wits went halting off. Much ado, I, I, 66.

works = a) establishment where work is carried on extensively; b) moral duties, or external performances as a ground of pardon or justification (= Dutch goede werken); c) wheelwork or machinery as of a watch.

Works, as used in the first meaning, is often found preceded by the indefinite article, but for the rest seems to be ordinarily treated as a plural. The compound fireworks is mostly preceded by an individualizer, e. g. show, display, after the indefinite article (36), but a firework is also met with.

Note also earthworks (Ch. XXIII, 7, Obs. I, a) and waterworks in the familiar phrase to turn on the waterworks.

- i. * A bit of water between a coal-barge and a gas-works would have quite satisfied us for the night. JEROME, Three men in a boat, Ch. X, 116. They were employed at a mill, a factory, a print-works or a bleach-works. ESCOTT, England, Ch. VI, 81.
 That works is like a millstone round our neck. A. BENNETT, Cupid and Common Sense, 59.
ii. Was not Abraham, our father, justified by works, when he had offered Isaac his son upon the altar. Bible, James, II, 21.
Holy men have bidden penitents to hasten their path upward by penance, self-denial and good works. Ch. BRONTË, Villette, Ch. XV, 202.
iii. The clock was wrong. An icicle must have got into the works. DICK., Christm. Car., II, 31.
iv. * Harry ... had never seen a firework beyond an exhibition of a dozen squibs at Williamsburg on the Fifth of November. THACK., Virg., Ch. XXXVII, 387.
A man's heart is a firework that once in its time flashes heavenward. JEROME, Idle Thoughts, VI, 84.
 The banquet was followed by brilliant fireworks. MACAULAY.¹⁾
 He would aim at being noticeable even at a show of fireworks. G. ELIOT, Mid., IV, Ch. XLI, 306.
A highly successful display of fireworks. JEROME, Variety Patter, 152.
v. You need not go a-turning on the waterworks again. M. E. FRANCIS, The Manor Farm, Ch. XXI.

21. Some nouns, although no pluralia tantum, are always used in the plural in certain phrases or collocations. This applies especially to some names of parts of the human or animal body, which occur in pairs or larger numbers: hands, knees, legs, heels, feel, teeth. These require no illustration in these pages.

1) MURRAY.

Also several of the nouns passed in review in the preceding § are chiefly found in certain fixed combinations.

Besides the above the following nouns may here be mentioned:

age: in the Middle Ages (the singular is occasionally met with); ages ago (= Dutch tijden geleden).

i. * The Middle Age adorned itself with proofs of manhood and devotion. EMERSON, English Traits, Aristocracy, 119a.

Aristo and Bojardo gave the brilliant and vivid colour of their own times, and of the civilization of the later middle age, to the rude material they found in the early legends. F. J. ROWE, Introd. to Ten. Lanc. and El., 30.

 A view of the state of Europe during the Middle Ages. HALLAM.¹⁾

ii. Peggotty has told me — I don't know when, but apparently ages ago — about my father's funeral. DICK., Cop., Ch. II, 7b.

bone: in to make bones about (of). Ch. XIX, 24.

book: in to be (keep) in (on) a man's (good) books (= Dutch bij iemand in een goed blaadje staan (blijven)); to be (keep) in (on) a man's black books (= Dutch bij iemand in een slecht blaadje staan (blijven)); to be (keep) out of a person's books (= Dutch bij iemand uit de gunst zijn (blijven)); to be upon the books (= Dutch ingeschreven zijn); to take one's name off the books (= Dutch zich laten afschrijven); to close the books (= Dutch de inschrijving sluiten); to shut the books (= Dutch de zaken aan kant doen); to keep any one's books (= Dutch iemand's boeken bijhouden).

i. I see the gentleman is not in your books. Much ado, I, 1.

ii. She gave me half-a-sov this half and perhaps she'll double it next, if I keep in her good books. HUGHES, Tom Brown, I, Ch V, 86.

iii. I'm in her black books. (?), The Mischiefmaker, Ch. VII.

Unfortunately he had come to be on the black books of the Triple Alliance. Rev. of Rev.

iv. I am sorry to say I am out of his books.

v. She continued on the books as an out-patient. WATSON.¹⁾

vi. The young scapegrace took his name off the college books. HOLME LEE.¹⁾

vii. You cannot be admitted now because the books are closed.

viii. He has decided to shut the books because the business no longer yields a decent profit

ix. She kept her father's books. G. MOORE, Esth. Waters, Ch. XX, 135.

chance: in the chances are (= Dutch het is best mogelijk).

Open any one of the monthly numbers, and the chances are you will find in one part a neat little doctrinal essay. ANSTEY, Vice Versa, Ch. XI, 222.

The chances are he will not be happy. STEVENSON, Walking Tours (PEACOCK, Sel. Es., 537).

conclusion: in to try (challenge) conclusions (= Dutch 1^o de proef nemen; 2^o zich meten).

i. No, in despite of sense and secrecy, | Unpeg the basket on the house's top, |
Let the birds fly, and, like the famous ape, | To try conclusions, in the basket creep, | And break your neck down. Haml., III, 4, 195.

¹⁾ MURRAY.

- ii. They believed themselves strong enough to try conclusions with their employers. CH. KINGSLEY, Alton Locke, Pref., 41.
 Town-dwellers know better than to try conclusions with street-noises. DOR. GERARD, The Eternal Woman, Ch. I.
 When the cow challenges conclusions with an express train, the cow's miscalculation of the parallelogram of forces does not avail to save her from destruction. Rev. of Rev., CCIII, 452a.

counsel: in to leave (abandon) to one's own counsels (= Dutch voor zich zelf laten zorgen).

I also experienced the glow of independence, mingled with that degree of anxiety which the most conceited boy feels, when he is first abandoned to his own undirected counsels. SCOTT, Fair Maid of Perth, Ch. I, 19.

cudgel: in to take up the cudgels for (in or on behalf of) (= Dutch het opnemen voor).

It was neither my business nor my inclination to take up the cudgels on Hilda's behalf. W. E. NORRIS, My Friend Jim, Ch. XVII, 113.

device: in to leave (abandon) to one's own devices (= Dutch voor zich zelf laten zorgen).

What would you do, if left to your own devices? MRS. WOOD, G. Canterbury's Will, XV.

I abandoned him to his own devices this evening. Truth, No. 1902, 113a.

dog: in to go to the dogs (= Dutch naar den kelder gaan); to throw to the dogs (= Dutch uit het raam gooien, fig.).

- i. Egad, sir, the country is going to the dogs. LYTTON, Caxtons, II, Ch. IV, 45.
 If he stays eating his heart out in London, he will go to the dogs in no time. LYALL, A Hardy Horseman, Ch. X, 84.

- ii. Throw physic to the dogs. Macb., V, 3, 47.

He told Dolf never to despair, but to 'throw physic to the dogs'. WASH. IRV., Dolf Heyl. (STOF., Handl., I, 138).

fit: in to scream (laugh, etc.) oneself into fits (= Dutch zich een stuip schreeuwen (lachen, etc.)); to throw a person into fits (= Dutch iemand een stuip geven); to beat a person (a thing) into fits iemand (iets) de baas af zijn, het geheel van iemand (iets) winnen); to give a person fits (= iemand totaal verslaan, also iemand er duchtig doorhalen); by fits and starts (= Dutch bij buien).

- i. The little wretch screams herself into fits. THACKERAY.¹⁾ ii. Such a proposal would have thrown him into fits. L. HARCOURT.¹⁾
 iii. They had been sometimes known to beat a blustering Nor'-Wester. —; ay, "all to fits," as Toby Veck said. DICK., Chimes, I, 4.
 iv. We goes out and tackles a East Indiaman and he gives us fits. RUNCIMAN.¹⁾
 I rather guess as how the old man will give particular fits to our folks to-day. E. EGGLESTON.¹⁾
 v. They worked well by fits and starts. SARAH GRAND, Heav. Twins, I, 129.

friend: in to be friends with a person (= Dutch vriendschappelijk met iemand omgaan); to make friends with (of) a man (= Dutch vriendschap met iemand sluiten); to drink friends (= Dutch het afdrinken); to feel friends with a man (= Dutch met iemand op hebben). See also Ch. XXVI, 5, e, Note.

¹⁾ MURRAY.

- i. Friends am I with you all. JUL. CÆS., III, 1, 220.

You can't be friends with your own girls. W. BESANT, All Sorts and Cond. of Men, Ch. VII, 66.

Dick is a real good fellow; be friends with him. MRS. ALEX., A Life Interest, I, Ch. III, 59.

Be friends with him as long as you stay here. CH. KINGSLEY, Herew., Ch. III, 27a.

- ii. * I like her and shall make friends with her. MRS. WARD, Marcella, I, 181.
Lady Henry has made great friends with him. Id., Lady Rose's Daught., I, Ch. IV, 33b.

 She resolved to make friends of every one around her who could at all interfere with her comfort. THACK., Van. Fair, I, Ch. X, 93.

- iii. The victory being thus decided, it was proposed to adjourn to a cellar hard by, and drink friends. SMOL., Rod. Rand., Ch. XVIII, 118.

- iv. Tom, notwithstanding his bumptiousness, felt friends with him at once. HUGHES, Tom Brown, I, Ch. I, 86.

grip: in to be at grips (with) (= Dutch bij de haren hebben).

Even the relations of Japan and Russia, so recently at grips with one another, are constantly increasing in intimacy. Westm. Gaz., No. 4919, 2a.

The monarchy is at death grips with murder. Rev. of Rev., CCI, 227b.

gun: in to stick (stand) to one's guns (= Dutch op zijn stuk blijven staan); to blow great guns (= Dutch een storm waaien). In the first expression the singular occasionally takes the place of the plural.

- i. * But Augusta, though she felt sadly inclined to flee, still stood to her guns. RIDER HAGGARD, Mees. Will, Ch. I, 7.

An animated colloquy ensued. Manvers stuck to his guns. MRS. ALEXANDER.¹⁾

 He stood to his gun like a man. EMILY LAWLESS, A Colonel of the Empire, Ch. X.

- ii. I had been in Yarmouth when the seamen said it blew great guns. DICK., Cop., Ch. LV, 392a.

It blows great guns indeed. There'll be many a crash in the forest to-night. Id., Barn. Rudge, Ch. XXXIII, 128b.

hair: in to split hairs (= Dutch haarkloven); grey hairs as the symbol of old age, in allusion to Gen., XLIV, 29.

Note. For to split hairs we also find to split straws; see below.

In the second collocation grey sometimes varies with white, venerable and similar words. Young hairs is occasionally used to mark the opposite of grey hairs. The plural is also sometimes used when grey, etc. are used predicatively.

Early Modern English practice sometimes has the plural where the present has the singular. Observe also the singular number in His hair rose (stood) on end (erect) where the Dutch equivalent Zijne haren rezen ten berge has the plural.

- i. * His hair began to rise on his head. WASH. IRV., Dolf Heyl. (STOF., Handl., I, 119).

The hair of the pupil's head would stand on end with fright. DICK., Pickw., Ch. XVII, 151.

His blood froze, his hair stood erect. LYTTON, Night and Morn., 480.

Uncle Tom's hair stood on end with alarm. GRANT ALLEN, Tents of them, Ch. XI.

My hair stood erect on my head with horror. Id., That Friend of Sylvia's.

 My hair is grey, but not with years. BYRON, Pris. of Chil., I.

¹⁾ MURRAY.

ii. * I cannot split hairs on that burning query. HARDY, Tess, II, Ch. XII, 100.

 Ye shall bring down my grey hairs with sorrow to the grave. Bible, Gen., XLIX, 29.

It would also bring the grey hairs of an indulgent parent with sorrow to the grave. SMÖL., Rod. Rand., Ch. XXII, 151.

The oldest man he seemed that ever wore grey hairs. WORDSWORTH, Resolution and Independence, VIII.

Lady Henry pays no more attention to his cloth than to my grey hairs. Mrs. WARD, Lady Rose's Daughter, I, Ch. I. 11b.

Grey hairs are a crown of glory. CHESTERTON (Il. Lond. News, No. 3828, 340b).

 O let us have him (sc. Cicero); for his silver hairs | Will purchase us a good opinion. JUL. CÆS., II, 1, 144.

How hideously look deeds of lust and blood. | Through those snow-white and venerable hairs. SHELLEY, Cenci, I, 1, 49.

I, who have white hairs and a tottering body, | Will keep at least blameless neutrality. Ib., II, 2, 39.

If peradventure, reader, it has been thy lot . . . to have thy prison days prolonged through middle age down to decrepitude and silver hairs [etc.]. CH. LAMB, Last Es. of El., The Superannuated Man, (322).

He has shown grey wit under young hairs. LYTTON, Rienzi, II, Ch. III, 97.

* And when my hairs are white, | My son will then perhaps be waiting thus. SHELLEY, Cenci, III, 2, 25.

My hairs are grey with suffering, and yours with years. Mrs. GASK., Mary Barton.

 Bind up your hairs. JOHN, III, 4, 68.

Here in her hairs | The painter plays the spider and hath woven | A golden mesh to entrap the hearts of men. Merch. of Ven., III, 2, 120.

half: in to cry halves (= Dutch 'samen deelen' roepen); to go halves (= Dutch half staan, gelijkop deelen, voor de helft meedoen); to do a thing by halves (= Dutch iets ten halve doen).

Note. For to go halves we occasionally find to go half.

i. You cannot cry halves to anything that he (sc. a true Caledonian) finds. He does not find but bring. CH. LAMB, Es. of Elia, Imperf. Sympathies, (203).

ii. * You have consented to go halves in Macheath. GAY, Beggar's Opera, II, 1. I'll go halves in the bet. THACK., Van. Fair, I, Ch. XXXIV, 377.

I wouldn't go halves in the toffee and gingerbread on purpose to save the money. G. ELIOT, Mill, I, Ch. V, 26.

Borrow all you can get, and meantime we'll go halves. W. BESANT, Bell of St. Paul's, I, Ch. V, 82.

Mr. Beit replied that in whatever Rhodes decided to do he would go halves. Rev. of Rev., CC, 140a.

 "I'll go half," he said, "if anybody will do the rest." THACK. (TROL., Thack., Ch. I, 60).

iii. I have no notion of loving people by halves. JANE AUSTEN, North. Abbey, Ch. VI, 28.

Bless these women; they never do anything by halves. DICK., Christm. Car, III, 67.

When Lord Steyne was benevolently disposed, he did nothing by halves. THACK., Van. Fair, II, Ch. XVII, 180.

hook: in the colloquial off the hooks (= Dutch het hoekje om).

Why do you wish her off the hooks. THACK., Pend., I, Ch. XXIII, 238.

Mathilda — as his Reverence expressed it — was very nearly "off the hooks." Id. Van. Fair, I, Ch. XIV, 139.

length: in to carry to lengths (= Dutch het zoo ver drijven); to go (to) all (considerable, etc. lengths (= Dutch tot het uiterste, ver, etc. gaan).

Note. The singular form is retained before specializing of + gerund.

- i. Mrs. Tulliver never went the length of quarrelling with her. G. ELIOT, Mill, Ch. VII, 46.

He went the length of suggesting [etc.]. Times.

- ii. * He carried that policy to lengths to which his father never thought of carrying it. MAC., Fred., (672*b*).

 I felt resolved in my desperation to go all lengths. CH. BRONTË, Jane Eyre, Ch. II, 7.

I am prepared to go to considerable lengths. ib., Ch. XXXII, 456.

There are no lengths to which she would not go. DON. DOYLE, Sherl. Holm., I, 26.

lots: in to cast (draw) lots (= Dutch loten). Occasionally also in other collocations, such as the lots declared.

- i. Lots were cast who should walk up to the master after supper that evening and ask for more. DICK., Ol. Twist, Ch. II, 30.

The guests then draw lots as to who shall begin. DOBSON, Eng. Lit., 37.

The members were bound to take other measures for finding out the truth, and they resolved on praying and drawing lots. G. ELIOT, Sil. Marn., Ch. I, 9.

- ii. The lots declared that Silas Marner was guilty. ib.

mercy: in the tender mercies (= Dutch de genade).

If he could have known that he was an orphan, left to the tender mercies of churchwardens and overseers, perhaps he would have cried the louder. DICK., Ol. Twist, Ch. I, 21.

name: in to call names (= Dutch (uit)schelden).

"Don't call names!" Dobbin replied, getting off the bench very nervous. THACK., Van. Fair, I, Ch. V, 42.

nut: in the colloquial to be nuts on (= Dutch dol zijn op).

I'm nuts on that girl. GRANT ALLEN, Hilda Wade, Ch. II, 58.

She was nuts on Public Houses, was England's Virgin Queen. JEROME, Three men in a boat, Ch. VI, 61.

probability: in the probabilities are (= Dutch het is waarschijnlijk). The singular occurs as an occasional variant.

- i. The probability is that the Turkish army and the survivors of the right wing are not at Chorlu. Westm. Gaz., No. 6065, 1*b*.

- ii. What are the probabilities as the result of the contest? DICK., Pickw., Ch. XIII, 106. The probabilities are all against such a Bill ever passing at all. Truth, No. 1802, 81*a*. round: in to go the rounds (of) (= Dutch de ronde doen (in)). The singular is not infrequent.

- i. The following anecdote . . . is now going the round of the papers. THACK., Paris Sketch-Bk, I.

This celebrated epistle . . . created quite a sensation . . . as it went the round after tea. HUGHES, Tom Brown at Oxf., Ch. II.

- ii. At last we went the rounds at half-past six. MRS. GASK., Cranf., Ch. X, 180.

A story is going the rounds concerning a well-know essayist. Lit. World.

A letter from a London doctor which has been going the rounds of the Press. Times.

sea: in the high seas (= Dutch de open zee). In certain combinations the plural is also common in poetic or rhetorical diction.

- i. When the United States puts a navy on the high seas, it is like a tortoise which puts its head out of its shell. Rev. of Rev., CCXVII, 9b.
The coming war will be fought out on the high-seas. Times.
- ii. England still held the seas. GREEN, Short. Hist., Ch. X, § IV, 810.
Freed from the dangers that threatened her rule in Ireland and in India, and mistress of the seas, England was free to attack France. Ib., Ch. X, § IV, 811.
Whosoever has children, wards, etc. in the parts beyond the seas. CH. KINGSLEY, Westw. Hol., Ch. III, 22b.
No one, since Milton laid down his harp, would have written these lines on England as the sovereign of the seas. STOPFORD A. BROOKE, Stud. in Poetry, Ch. I, 8.

shake: in the colloquial expression no great shakes (= Dutch niet veel z'a'aks). Also, occasionally, without no.

He'd be no great shakes. G. ELIOT, Mill, I, Ch. IV, 24.

Carriages themselves were great shakes too. Mrs. GASK., Mary Barton, Ch. IX, 94.

share: in to go shares (= to go snacks = to go snips = Dutch half staan, also gelijkop deelen); on shares (= Dutch tegen de halve opbrengst).

- i. * Go shares with me. CH. KINGSLEY, Herew., Ch. IV, 33b.

You'd want to go shares in my money. W. W. JACOBS, Odd Craft, D, 86.

 None of them replied solely upon that interest without a present to the s-t-y, with whom some of the c— went snacks. SMOL., Rod. Rand., Ch. XVIII, 117.

- ii. That the place might not fall to ruin before he could reside in it himself, he had placed a country-fellow with his family, in one wing, with the privilege of cultivating the farm on shares. WASH. IRV., Dolf Heyl. (STOF., Handl., I, 109.

side: in to takes sides (= Dutch partij kiezen).

M. Briand subsequently disclaimed any desire on the part of the State to take sides in the great controversy of God and no-God. Rev. of Rev., CCVII,* 238b.

We do not wish to take sides in the squabble. Westm. Gaz.

sky: in to commend (exalt, extol, laud, praise) to the skies (= Dutch hemelhoog verheffen). In rhetorical diction also frequent in other combinations.

- i. Graham was shortly heard lauding her to the skies. CH. BRONTË, Villette, Ch. II, 14.

We exalted Steerforth to the skies. DICK., Cop., Ch. VII, 51a.

Your discernment and intelligence will be extolled to the skies. JEROME, Idle Thoughts, II, 47.

- ii. The skies were tinged with pink. THACK., Pend., II, Ch. VIII, 89.

sort: in out of shorts (= Dutch van streek).

She looked confused and out of sorts. DICK., Cop., Ch. III, 21a.

'Tan't lawful to be out of sorts, and I am out of sorts; though God knows I'd sooner bear a cheerful spirit. Id., Chimes³, II, 54.

star: in to thank one's stars (= Dutch zijn gestarnte zegenen). I thanked my stars a thousand times for the happy discovery. SMOL., Rod. Rand., Ch. XX, 136.

Your mother-in-law is always within hearing, thank our stars for the attention of the dear women. THACK., A Little Dinner at Timmins's, Ch. III, 313.

He was thanking his stars that he was not as Ribot. DU MAURIER, Trilby, I, 207.
Thank your stars, girl, that it was not you, I killed, but the cur. BUCHANAN, That Winter Night, Ch. IV, 37.

Compare: His soldiers had ceased to confide in his star. MAC., Fred., (689b).

starts: in by starts . . . by starts (= sometimes . . . sometimes = Dutch nu eens . . . dan weer); by fits and starts (See above, under fits).

And, in these later years, when he had made you the companion of his misery, he has been by starts your pedagogue, by starts your tormentor, but never, Mordaunt, never your father. SCOTT, Pirate, Ch. XXXIII, 360.

straw: in to split straws (= Dutch haarkloven). Compare pag. 235, s. v. hair:

We won't waste time in splitting straws. DICK., Pickw., Ch. X, 86.

table: in to turn the tables (= Dutch de bordjes verhangen).

Not that I ever suffered from them (sc. governesses); I took care to turn the tables. CH. BRONTË, Jane Eyre, Ch. XVII, 214.

I think I should have turned the tables on him. LYTTON, Night and Morn., 227.

The tables had been turned on the Peers. McCARTHY, Short Hist., Ch. XXIV, 366.

If you can't see that the tables are turned at last, you're a duller knave than I take you to be. ANSTEY, Vice Versa, Ch. XIX, 374.

tale: in to tell (bear, bring, carry) tales (out of school) (= Dutch uit de school klappen, klikken).

Go and tell tales of me. THACK., Lovel the Widower, Ch. III, 50.

There is no use in telling tales out of school. Id., Denis Duval, Ch. I, 183.

No doubt the worthy gentleman was accusing himself of telling tales out of school and had come to a timely repentance. Id., Newc., I, Ch. XII, 150.

Neither you nor yours shall henceforth carry tales of my godson. CH. KINGSLEY, Westw. Ho!, Ch. II, 13b.

turn: in to take turns in (at) + gerund (= Dutch bij beurten (beurtelings) + inf.; to wait turns (= Dutch zijn beurt afwachten); by turns (= Dutch bij beurten).

i. The peasants take turns in receiving travellers. LONGF., Rural Life in Sweden.

We took turns at holding a candle, as, of course, there was no light. Times.

ii. A group of people were waiting turns at the telescope. E. W. HORNUNG, No Hero, Ch. IV.

iii. They kept watch by turns. Folk Lore.

volume: in to speak (express) volumes, and analogous expressions (= Dutch veel zeggen, fig.).

i. Two letters have passed between these parties, letters which are admitted to be in the handwriting of the defendant, and which speak volumes indeed. DICK., Pickw., Ch. XXXIV, 310.

Her blush spoke volumes. GRANT ALLEN, That Friend of Sylvia's.

ii. I questioned age; it heaved a heavy sigh, | Expressing volumes. ANON. (Rainb., I, 20).

iii. Henry shook his head, gazed into the ashpit, and smiled volumes of ironical knowledge. HARDY, Far from the Madding Crowd, Ch. VIII, 71.

iv. Volumes could not have said more. DICK., Pickw., Ch. XIII, 105.

water: in to fish in troubled waters (= Dutch in troebel water visschen); still waters run deep (= Dutch stille waters hebben diepe gronden). Frequently also in certain combinations in poetic or rhetorical diction.

i. And behind these groups there is always the dim figure of the old Sultan fishing in troubled waters. Westm. Gaz., No. 4977, 1b.

ii. My mind misgives me that he is in deep waters. STEPHENSON, Dr. Jekyll, 82.
He went through deep waters. W. RALEIGH, Shakespeare, Ch. II, 62.

I had not the precious faculty of being able on occasions to sit and let the rich waters of life flow over me. THEOD. WATTS DUNTON, Aylwin, XV, Ch. IX, 441.

wind: in to send (fling) to the winds (= Dutch van zich afschudden, aan de winden prijsgeven).

Maggie, if you loved me as I love you, we should throw everything else to the winds for the sake of belonging to each other. G. ELIOT, Mill, VI, Ch. XI, 415.

We see him sending care to the winds under the influences of good-fellowship. W. GUNNYON, Biographical Sketch of Burns, 36.

If there were a hundred Anglo-Japanese treaties, they would all be torn to pieces and flung to the winds rather than that such a foul fratricidal contest should take place. Rev. of Rev., CCV, 3b.

22. Nouns denoting things thought of without limits naturally do not admit of being used in the plural. This applies in the first place to the names of substances, the so-called material nouns, and to the names of actions, states and qualities, the so-called abstract nouns.

As in Dutch, the plural is possible with many such nouns when they occur in a modified meaning: i. e. material nouns may be used in the plural when they have become ordinary object-nouns, or when varieties are meant; abstract nouns are often found in the plural when separate instances or repeated phenomena are referred to, and also, of course, when they have assumed a concrete meaning.

Some of these words are in all, or in certain of their modified meanings practically pluralia tantum. Some are chiefly confined to certain collocations or phrases. For instances see the preceding §§.

23. a) As to material nouns English usage is essentially the same as Dutch. Thus English has coppers, grains, ices, etc. as object-nouns; and, although for the above the Dutch has no analogous equivalents, it is not without instances of such words used in similarly altered meanings: ijzers, papieren. Nor do the two languages present any essential difference as to the use of material nouns to denote varieties. Thus mineral waters = minerale wateren.

- b) For the plurals in the following quotations the Dutch would, however, have the singular of the ordinary equivalent:

Oft have we seen him at the peep of dawn | Brushing with hasty steps the dews away. GRAY, Elegy, 99.

The dews of the evening may endanger the life of her for whom only I value mine. SHER., Rivals, II, 1, (216).

Mary, two more tumblers, two more hot waters, and two more goes of gin. THACK., Sam. Tilm., Ch. II, 19.

There is sweet music here that softer falls | Than petals from blown roses on the grass, | Or night-dews on still waters between walls | Of shadowy granite, in a gleaming pass. TEN., Lotos-Eat, Chor. Song., I.

I find that all plain foods, plainly cooked, agree with me. Rev. of Rev., CCXIX, 246a.

The snows and frosts of an arctic winter. STOR., Handl., III.

24. a) As to abstract nouns English usage differs materially from Dutch.

In Dutch another word expressing an individualized conception is sometimes used to express the modified meaning. Thus we have doeleinden, raadgevingen, sterfgevallen, verdrietelijkheden etc., as the plural of doel, raad, dood, verdriet etc. When no such word is available, another turn of expression is chosen or the noun simply kept in the singular.

In English many abstract nouns admit of being used in an individualized meaning with an ordinary plural. See also 33, and compare Ch. XXXI, 38.

But there is a considerable number of abstract nouns which hardly admit of being used in the plural. Such among many others are bravery, compassion, courage, freedom, happiness, haste, honesty, hunger, hurry, integrity, luck, might, moderation, obedience, patience, pity, quiet, sadness, temperance, willingness, wisdom.

When necessity arises to express plural instances of the notions for which these nouns stand, certain individualizers, such as piece, fit etc. are often put into requisition (36).

belief. The lecturer's beliefs exactly coincided with all his ready-formed notions. EDNA LYALL, Donovan, I, 83.

births, deaths, handwritings. Here on the table was a grand old folio Bible, the names, births and deaths of a century of Fieldings appeared in rusty ink and various handwritings upon its fly-leaf. CH. READE, It is never too late to mend, I, Ch. II, 34.

colds, heats. Neither the colds of winter nor the heats of summer seemed to have any influence on his bodily health. ROORDA, Dutch and Eng. Comp., § 21.

The party soon sallied from the castle towards the spot in which Montreal had designed their resting-place during the heats of day. LYTTON, Rienzi, III, Ch. II, 131.

fears, imaginings. Present fears | Are less than horrible imaginings. Macb., I, 3, 138.

fears, doubts, misgivings. She was a great deal too happy to have fears, doubts or misgivings. THACK., Van. Fair, I.

griefs. Little Sharp with her secret griefs, was the heroine of the day. Ib., I, Ch. XVI, 168.

Religion has consoled many griefs. CH. READE, It is never too late to mend, I, Ch. VII, 85.

hopes, fears. If hopes are dupes, fears may be liars. REV. E. J. HARDY, How to be happy though married, Ch. II, 20.

hopes, vanities. The dearest vanities, ambitious hopes, had all been there. THACK., Van. Fair, I, Ch. XXIV, 247.

Considerable hopes of a settlement were excited by the announcement that another conference has been agreed upon for Tuesday. Graph.

solicitudes. To her the destinies of mankind, seen by the light of Christianity, made the solicitudes of feminine fashion appear an occupation for Bedlam. G. ELIOT, Mid., I, Ch. I, 2.

talks. The conversation runs on with such admirable naturalness, that we can but take it as the echo of such talks as were once the staple of conversation at Chilvers-Coton. LESLIE STEPHEN, George Eliot, Ch. VI, 93.

wait. Acted without any waits whatsoever, Henry VIII, as it is written, would take at least three hours and a half in the playing. BEERBOHM TREE, Henry VIII, 91.

weathers. Destitute people . . . have been in the habit every night of haunting the Embankment, where they have slept in all weathers on the seats and in any corner they could find. II. Lond. News, No. 3686, 834c.

- b) Especial mention may be made of certain gerunds which in their altered meaning are chiefly used in the plural.

(mis)doings. There are few, if any, records left of his doings at the University. TROL., Thack., Ch. I, 5.

We often read in the papers of the rare doings going on there. THACK., Sam. Titm., Ch. V, 56.

The misdoings of the Trades' Unions are no argument against the extension of the suffrage. CH. KINGSLEY, Alton Locke, Pref., 103.

(Compare; it is his doing and his money. LYTTON, Caxtons, I, Ch. IV, 21.

dosings, drowsings. The dosings and drowsings of old people during the day are mild torpors from exhaustion. Rev. of Rev., CCXIII, 273a.

forebodings. i. Many a sad pang would have been spared to him, many a gloomy foreboding warded off. W. GUNNVON, Biogr. Sketch of Burns, 39.

ii. They trembled lest, her engagement being off with Osborne, she should take up immediately her other admirer and Captain. In which forebodings these worthy young women no doubt judged according to the best of their experience. THACK., Van. Fair, I, Ch. XVIII, 189.

gossipings. They never failed, whenever they talked those matters over in their evening gossipings, to lay all the blame on Dame van Winkle. WASH. IRV., Rip van Winkle.

greetings. He stopped at the outer door to bestow the greetings of the season on the clerk. DICK., Christm. Car., I, 18.

happenings. Throughout his long life he daily noted down the happenings of the previous twenty-four hours. Rev. of Rev., CCIV, 644a.

Every dire prophecy as to the effects of sending the Chinese back has been falsified by the actual happenings. Westm. Gaz., No. 5249, 2a.

journeyings. Earl Grey's official journeyings in the Canadian West. Rev. of Rev., CXCI, 459a.

misgiving(s). i. Had I only hearkened to my own misgiving about the miscreant. THEOD. WATTS DUNTON, Aylwin, II, Ch. XI, 116.

ii. The stanzas are misgivings in the hour of despondency and prospect of death. BURNS, Note to 'A Prayer'.

Hitherto it had been impossible for the discontented Whigs not to feel some misgivings. MAC., Pitt, (292a).

rejoicing(s). i. But soon conquests of a very different kind filled the kingdom with pride and rejoicing. Ib., (307a).

ii. The rejoicings in England were not less enthusiastic or less sincere. Ib., (695a). Scarcely had Parliament voted a monument to Wolfe, when another great event called for fresh rejoicings. Ib., (307b).

The crowning of the New King of Norway took place last month amid great popular rejoicings. Rev. of Rev., CXCIX, 6a.

25. The singular preceded by the definite article is sometimes used instead of the plural to denote the whole of a class, nation, sect, etc. Thus the fowl may stand for the fowls, the Spaniard for the Spaniards, the Heathen for the Heathens.

This application is limited, being at all usual only of certain names of nationality, to which it imparts a ring of homeliness. In their grammatical construction these singulars seem to be mostly dealt with as singulars, except heathen, which is understood as an adjective denoting a class of persons in a general sense (like the faithful), and is, accordingly, construed as a plural.

The Turk may also be understood to mean the sultan of the Turks, the Chief Turk, the Grand Turk (Comp. Dutch de Groote Heer). In the following quotations the Dane is similarly applied:

HOR. Friends to his ground. MAR. And liegemen to the Dane. HAMLET, I, 1, 15 (= the king of Denmark).

You cannot speak of reason to the Dane, | And lose your voice. Ib., I, 2, 44.

- i. brute, fowl. I am monarch of all I survey; | My right there is none to dispute; | From the centre all round to the sea | I am lord of the fowl and the brute. COWPER, Solitude of Alex. Selk., I.

leaf. The bursting of the buds and the fall of the leaf. HARDY, Far from the Madding Crowd, Ch. XI, 95.

- ii. Frenchman. We purpose to try Dover. — You will not take it. The Frenchman has strengthened it with one of his accursed keeps. CH. KINGSLEY, Herew., Ch. XXII, 95a.

Pagan. Our good Arthur broke | The Pagan yet once more on Badon Hill. TEN., Lanc. and El., 279.

Polack. His nephew's levies, which to him appear'd | To be a preparation 'gainst the Polack. HAMLET, II, 2, 63. (Now obsolete.)

Roman. For when the Roman left us, and their law | Relax'd its hold upon us [etc.]. TEN., Guin., 453.

Spaniard. He has believed for years that he was called and sent into the world only to fight the Spaniard. CH. KINGSLEY, Westw. Hol., Ch. XXXI, 234b.

Their able modern historian has well likened their first struggle — that between Civilis and the Roman, to their last — that between William the Silent and the Spaniard. Id., Hereward, Ch. IX, 49a.

The men who fought the Spaniard under Elizabeth. Preface to Nursery Rhymes (Books for the Bairns, III).

Turk. They had nothing now to fear from the Turk, for they had concluded a truce with him. CH. KINGSLEY, Westw. Hol., Ch. XXIX, 218a.

Nothing has been done to save our miserable 'protégés', whom Lord Beaconsfield thrust under the heel of the Turk in 1878. Rev. of Rev., CCIV, 564a. Germany, and even Austria, may appear one day as the Protector of the Turk against the Powers who are pressing him to open the Dardanelles. Westm. Gaz.

- iii. heathen. * And his delight in their walks was to tell Harry of the glories of his order, of its martyrs and heroes, of its Brethren converting the heathen by myriads. THACK., Henry Esmond, I, Ch. III, 28.
The heathen are upon him. TEN., Last Tourn., 86.

D'ye call yourself a Heathen? Ye lie, ye cur, the Heathen were not without the starlight from heaven. CH. READE, It is never too late to mend, I, Ch. I, 5.

 Far other is this battle in the west | Where to we move, than when we strove in youth, | And brake the petty kings, and fought with Rome, | Or thrust the heathen from the Roman wall, | And shook him thro' the north. TEN., Pas. of Arth., 69.

Compare: Cheerfulness of Mind is very conspicuous in the Characters of those who are looked upon as the greatest Philosophers among the Heathens. Spect., No. 383.

What is a fat living compared to converting a hundred thousand heathens by a single sermon? THACK., Henry Es., I, Ch. III, 28.

26. Some nouns that have the character of collective nouns of the second kind (i. e. such as denote conceptions thought of without limits), and are, consequently, singulars, mostly correspond to Dutch plurals.

abuse = scheldwoorden; advance = vorderingen; business = zaken; evidence = bewijzen; expenditure = uitgaven; knowledge = kundigheden, kennis; information = inlichtingen; intelligence = berichten; medicine = medicijn(en); merchandise = koopwaren; physic = medicijn(en); produce = voortbrengselen; progress = vorderingen; revenue = inkomsten.

When single instances are to be expressed, most of these nouns have to be preceded by such an individualizing word as piece, item (36); some may be thus used without any such word. Some of the above nouns, in other meanings, are also used as ordinary single-unit nouns with an ordinary plural.

abuse. i. At length the rivals proceeded to personal abuse before a large company. MAC., Pitt, (290a).

She was indifferent to abuse. GREEN, Short Hist., Ch. VII. § III, 376.

ii. Voltaire was always eager to expose the abuses of the Parliaments of France. Clive.

advance. i. Those gentlemen must have quaked with fear and envy when they heard of Mr. Warrington's prodigious successes and the advance which he had made in their wealthy aunt's favour. THACK., Virg., Ch. XXVIII, 289. The aeroplane has made more rapid advance than the motor-car in the same time. Westm. Gaz., No. 5089, 1c.

ii. He made wonderful advances in scholastic learning. THACK., Van. Fair, I, Ch. V, 47.

business. i. The manufacturers are overwhelmed with business. Business Letter-Writer, XIII.

ii. On the order paper there were two items of Government business, the Public Libraries Bill and the Army Annual Bill, down for consideration. Morning Leader.

iii. The summons, unseasonable as it appeared, seemed to link me on again to the petty businesses of life. CH. LAMB, Last Es. of El., The Convalescent, (314).

Gimblet and I are going to make our businesses one. All the Year round.¹⁾

¹⁾ SATTLER, E. S., X.

Now they were busy with their Saturday evening businesses. RUDY KIPLING, Stalky & Co., 73.¹⁾ evidence(s). i. All the abundant and trustworthy evidence which we now possess, leads to the conviction that . . . these structures are the most marked cerebral characters common to man with the apes. HUXLEY, Essays, II, 93.

No evidence is forthcoming to establish accurately. WHITAKER'S Alm. 1901, 246b.
There was no evidence that Miss Holland had been murdered. Times.

ii. Among the clearest pieces of evidence of the great part which the bicycle plays in modern life is the International Cyclists Congress. Times.

iii. * These evidences of an incompatibility of temper induced Miss Betsey to pay him off. DICK., Cop., Ch. I, 120.

In America there is a touch of shame when a man exhibits the evidences of large property. EMERSON, English Traits, Wealth, 113b.

The more the subject was investigated, the more clearly were the evidences of pressure made out. TYNDALL, Glac. of the Alps, I, Ch. I, 7.

 Miss Williams gratified the two evidences with one half. SMOL., Rod. Rand., Ch. XXIII, 161.

expenditure. i. Before any work is taken in hand, an estimate of its expenditure is submitted to the council. ESCOTT, England, Ch. V, 59.

The Foreign Secretary declared that there was a fair prospect that national expenditure could be reduced considerably without endangering national safety. Rev. of Rev., CXCVIII, 558a.

ii. The remaining $ 10,000,000 Bonds . . . can be issued only . . . to reimburse the Railway Company for expenditures made to complete, finish or improve the lines of railway. Private Correspondence.

information. "But all he's got to do", said Paul, boldly offering his information to the very doctor himself, "is to keep on turning as he runs away". DICK., Domb., Ch. XII, 103.

The map of Asia has been carefully revised according to the latest information. Times.

ii. At this very time the horrid practice of poisoning was so common, that, during part of the season, a Prætor punished capitally for this crime above 3000 persons in a part of Italy; and found informations of this kind still multiplying upon him. HUME, Essays, III, 23.

intelligence. i. As the council seemed solicitous for intelligence, they had it in abundance. WASH. IRV., The Storm-Ship (STOF., Handl., I, 86).

Latest intelligence from abroad. Punch.

ii. It was no other than Tommy Traddles who gave this piece of intelligence. DICK., Cop., Ch. VI, 42b.

Doctor Kettle looked not a little dismayed at this piece of intelligence. EMILY LAWLESS, A Colonel of the Empire, Ch. VIII.

iii. * An intelligence that startled me more. LYTON, Caxtons, XIII, Ch. V, 346.

 The faithful still kept intelligences with one another in the colony. THACK., Virg., Ch. XC, 958.

knowledge. i. He that increaseth knowledge increaseth sorrow. Bible, Eccles., I, 18.²⁾

One might say that no kind or amount of human knowledge were too much for woman. M. D. CONWAY, Earthenw. Pilgr., XVIII, 220.²⁾

ii. We must determine the relative value of knowledges. SPENCER, Education.³⁾
We may say that in the family of knowledges, Science is the household drudge. *Id.*³⁾

1) KONRAD MEIER, E. S., XXXI, 320. 2) MURRAY, s. v. knowledge, 11.

3) KONRAD MEIER, E. S., XXXI, 335.

medicine. i. Health restored without medicine. Advertisement.

ii. Stores of medicines and strengthening food were decaying in places where no one wanted them. McCARTHY, Short Hist., Ch. XI, 149.

produce. The value of the produce of the soil far exceeded the value of all the other fruits of human industry. MAC., Hist., I, Ch. III, 306.

progress. i. * With all his advantages Dolf made little progress in his art. WASH. IRV., Dolf Heyl. (STOF., Handl., I, 109).

 I spent my nineteenth summer... at a noted school, to learn mensuration, surveying, dialling etc., in which I made a pretty good progress. BURNS, Letter to Dr. Moore.

ii. Queen Elizabeth in one of her progresses stopped at Crawley to breakfast. THACK., Van. Fair, I, Ch. VII, 66.

Queen Elizabeth, whose progresses are so famous, confined them to her own kingdom of England. Times.

revenue. The Russian monarchy, the youngest of the great European states, but in population and revenue the fifth among them, ... sprang from a humble origin. MAC., Fred., (658b).

Steps have been taken to utilise available surplus revenue for the permanent improvement of the country. Lit. World.

27. Many nouns which in their ordinary meaning are single-unit nouns with an ordinary plural, may also be used as collective nouns of the second kind (i. e. such as denote ideas without limits). In their modified meaning, they are not, however, found preceded by a word denoting number (numeral or noun), which distinguishes them from those mentioned in the next §. See, however under shot. Such as denote persons are construed partly as plurals, partly as singulars. For details see also SATTLER, E. S., XII; LANNERT, An Investigation into the Lang. of Rob. Crus., Acc., II, A, 2; and MURRAY under the respective words. In the case of some nouns a few quotations are added exhibiting their ordinary application. We may distinguish:

a) names of trees:

The chalk hills break into cliffs that overhang the Thames, or form valleys clothed with beech. Mrs. SHELLEY, Note on 'The Revolt of Islam'. The mansion surrounded by woods of oak and beech, looks out upon a spacious lake. MAC., Fred., (661b).

And the yellow down | Border'd with palm. TEN., Lotos-Eaters, III. I enter'd, from the clearer light, | Imbower'd vaults of pillar'd palm. Id., Recol. of the Arab. Nights, IV.

The dusty high-road lay through a forest of pine. H. K. DANIELS, The Simpler Life (in Norway), II (Westm. Gaz., No. 5418, 2c).

b) the following, among many others:

adventure. He was fond of adventure. WASH. IRV., Dolf Heyl. (STOF., Handl., I, 115).

anecdote. i. It is a sad thing to think that a man with what you call a fund of anecdote is a humbug, more or less amiable and pleasant. THACK., Notes on a Week's Holiday.

That fellow is full of anecdote and fun. Id., Newc., I, Ch. XII, 150.

His stores of military anecdote were falling low. SAINTSB., Ninet. Cent., Ch. III, 158.

ii. It is one of the chief pieces of literary anecdote of our times that he (sc. Thackeray) offered himself fruitlessly to Dickens as an illustrator. SAINTSB., Ninet. Cent., Ch. III, 151.

iii. The event was combined with traditionary and genealogical anecdotes. SCOTT, Brid. of Trierm., Pref.

ball. The pistols were seldom loaded with ball. DICK., Pickw., Ch. II, 17.
Having been long since out of powder and ball, they turn southward toward home. CH. KINGSLEY, Westw. Ho!, Ch. XXXII, 239b.

brick. They soon approached a mansion of dull red brick. DICK., Christm. Car., II, 37.

cartridge. i. They fired a volley of ball cartridge over our heads. Rev. of Rev., CXCVIII, 618a.

The men themselves were debarred from giving any help beyond marching hither and thither and firing blank cartridge. Graph.

The police authorities say they believe that Sipido fired with blank cartridge. Morning Leader.

So serious was the rioting in Belfast last evening that the troops were ordered to fire ball cartridge. Daily Mail.

Even when one of the officers fired a shot in the air, laughter and jeering followed, and cries were raised that only blank cartridge was being used. Times, No. 1808, 675a.

ii. Something has been said about blank cartridges. Id., No. 1809, 695b.

ceremony. Immigrants, pauper or otherwise, were treated with scant ceremony. II. Magaz.

There was no occasion for standing on ceremony. EMILY LAWLESS, A Colonel of the Empire, Ch. X.

chronicle. The neighbourhood, at the time of which I am speaking, was one of those highly-favoured places which abound with chronicle and great men. WASH. IRV., The Leg. of Sleepy Hollow, (364).

cliff. Long lines of cliff breaking have left a chasm. TEN., En. Arden, I.

coin. i. There were piled up, after the usage of Indian princes, immense masses of coin. MAC., Clive, (521b).

He searched his pockets for the loose coin he usually carried about him in such abundance. ANSTEV, Vice Versa, Ch. III, 45.

Pushing my hand through the hole in the lid, I drew it out full of gold pieces. "Ah!" I said, replacing the coin, "we shall not go back empty-handed". RIDER HAGGARD, King Sol. Mines, 249.

Imperial gold coin was issued to the value of £ 5,780,446. Times.

The coin was imported into Malta. Morn. Leader.

ii. There was also a considerable increase in the silver coins struck for the colonies. Times.

connection. i. * I have some connection. DICK., Bleak House, Ch. LXIV, 529.

The Miss Carkers had caught the trick of the place and piqued themselves upon their 'aristocratic connection'. MRS. GASK., Cranf., Ch. VII, 124.

She had absolutely no literary connection. RID. HAG., Mees. Will, Ch. IV, 41.

 Brough was a great man among the Dissenting connexions. THACK., Sam. Titm., Ch. II, 11 (= religious society).

It is my object to increase the connexion of the office as much as possible. Ib., Ch. VII, 80.

 He looked for support, not to a strong aristocratical connection, but to the middle class of Englishmen. MAC., Pitt, (287b).

- ii. The motives which may lead a politician to change his connections or his general line of conduct are often obscure. Ib., (298a).

Will's relationship in that distinguished quarter did not, like Lydgate's high connections, serve as an advantageous introduction. G. ELIOT, Mid., V, Ch. XLVI, 341.

Note. The plural is also used in the meaning of acquaintance, friendship. Sir, I solicit your connections. SHER., Rivals, II, 1, (227).

crime. The Conservatives are more concerned to make capital from Irish crime than to see the disaffected districts restored to a state of contentment. Westm. Gaz., No. 4937, 2a.

enemy. The scrub is alive with enemy. RUDY. KIPLING, The light that failed, Ch. II, 23.

fable. I made myself familiar with all its places famous in history or fable. WASH. IRV., Sketch-Bk.

fact. He ordered an investigation, and the Report of the investigators convinced him that fact once more was more terrible than fiction. Rev. of Rev., CXCVIII, 565a. Fact is usually less entertaining than fiction. BRADLEY, Eng. Place-Names.

incident. The charm of variety there was not, nor the excitement of incident. CH. BRONTË, Villette, Ch. I, 2.

invective. i. The chief topic of Pitt's invective was the favour shown to the German dominions of the House of Brunswick. MAC., Pitt, (296b).

A nation convulsed by faction, a throne assailed by the fiercest invective [etc.]. Ib., (310a).

- ii. His sermons abound with the sharpest invectives against those very practices. Id., Bacon, (383b).

His name was already a mark for the invectives of one half of the writers of the age. Id., Com. Dram., (584a).

Colonel Picquart, whose splendid devotion to the cause of justice made him the mark for the savage invectives of the then dominant party. Rev. of Rev., CC, 120a.

metaphor, simile. In both (sc. his sermons and his poems) there was an exuberance of metaphor and simile entirely original. G. ELIOT, Scenes, I, Ch. VI, 49.

proof. i. We do not dispute Pitt's integrity; but we do not know what proof he had given of it, when he was turned out of the army. MAC., Pitt, (295a).

Pitt, on subsequent occasions, gave ample proof that he was one of those penitents. Ib., (295b).

Mr. Stambouloff has given ample proof of courage and ability. Graph.

- ii. The kindness, the earnestness of Eleanor's manner in pressing her to stay, and Henry's gratified look on being told that her stay was determined, were such sweet proofs of her importance with them, as [etc.]. JANE AUSTEN, North Abbey, Ch. XXVIII, 213.

The proofs were all against him. Mrs. MULOCK, The Sculptor of Bruges. He found in South Africa gratifying proofs of the success of the experiment.

Il. Lond. News.

provision. The English fleet found themselves growing short of provision. CH. KINGSLEY; Westw. Hol., Ch. XXXII, 239.

remark. Mrs. Jennings at the Wharf, by appearing the first Sunday after Mr. Gilfil's death in her salmon-coloured ribbons and green shawl, excited the severest remark. G. ELIOT, Scenes, II, Ch. I, 71.

shell. i. A vessel armed with six other guns firing grape-shell. HOBART PASHA.¹⁾

¹⁾ SATTLER, E. S., XII.

Storm'd at with shot and shell, | Boldly they rode and well. TEN., Charge of the Light Brigade, III.

- ii. Engaging batteries at Barcelona with shot and shells. MARRYAT.¹⁾
They threw shells across the bridge. W. RUSSELL.¹⁾ shot. i. * discharges of a gun. Snares or shot may take off the old birds foraging without. THACK., Van. Fair, I, Ch. XII, 148.

 projectiles. Are forty men without shot as good as eighty men with? CH. KINGSLEY, Westw. Ho!, Ch. XXIII, 168b.

The air is dark with the explosion of shells and the hail of flying shot. Punch.

Note. The following is an instance of shot in this meaning rejecting the mark of the plural after a number-indicating word:

Before I leave this place, I'll give you my fowling-piece; she will put a hundred swan-shot through a Dutchman's cap at eighty paces. SCOTT, Pirate, Ch. VIII, 97.

 persons discharging a gun. The banks of the Ganges seemed in a moment alive with shot. MCCARTHY, Short Hist., Ch. XIII, 187.

- ii. * discharges of a gun. Two led horses, which in the field always closely followed his person were struck down by cannon shots. MAC., Hist., VII Ch. XX, 220.

The inspector of police had been firing a few shots into a crowd who had been stoning the military. Graph.

The new quick-firing gun is capable of discharging 20 shots in a minute. Times. He killed him with three shots from a revolver. Pall Mall Mag.

They will have heard the shots. BONER.¹⁾

The shots we had heard were fired at us. Daily News.

 projectiles. The surgeon had extracted the shots from the leg. Mrs. WOOD, Orville College, 22.

 marksmen. They'll be good shots one of these days. DICK., Pickw., Ch. XIX, 163.

stone. One can see by the mounds or heaps of stone, where the Glasgow water-works are carried. QUEEN VICTORIA, More Leaves.¹⁾

The violence of the torrents has brought quantities of stone with them. Ib.¹⁾ subject. The levies, | The lists and full proportions, are all made | Out of his subject. Haml., I, 2, 33.

Why this watch so nightly toils the subject of the land. Ib., I, 1, 72.

verse. i. The majestic aspect of Nature ministered such thoughts as he afterwards enwove in verse. MARY SHELLEY, Note on 'The Revolt of Islam'.

He was now beginning to translate classical passages into excellent English verse. Life and Poems of Gray (Clar. Press).

- ii. "Hast thou flown far, thou restless bird of night?" asks Father Tom, who loves speaking in blank verses. THACK., Newc., I, Ch. XXV, 281.

If much of Leigh Hunt's prose must be called journalism rather than literature, practically the whole of his labours in metre must be called verses and not poetry.

J. H. LOBBAN, Sel. from Leigh Hunt, Intr.

vote. The Liberal vote has fallen from 72.548 in 1906 to 61.366 in 1908. The Unionist vote, on the other hand, has gone up from 41.517 in 1906 to 92.168 in 1908. Rev. of Rev., CCXXII, 564b.

Note. From the practice exhibited by the above nouns we must distinguish the occasional use of the singular for oratorical (poetic) effect, as in:

¹⁾ SATTLER, E. S., XII.

His words came feebly, from a feeble chest, | But each in solemn order followed each, | With something of a lofty utterance drest — | Choice word and measured phrase, above the reach | Of ordinary men. WORDSWORTH, Resolution and Independence, XIV.

She shall see whatever is famous in old story and in modern record. CH. BRONTE, Jane Eyre, Ch. XXIV, 317.

28. Many nouns not only present the same variety of use as those described in the previous §, but may also be found preceded by a word (numeral or noun) denoting number without taking the mark of the plural. Grammatically they are then on a par with such a word as people, which in all respects is dealt with as a plural, although a singular in form: people say, these people, a hundred people, many (few) people. Only the noun fish and the names of some varieties of fishes are sometimes, at least partly, construed as singulars.

a) The nouns here referred to are especially the names of certain wild animals when described as hunted or caught for sport or for profit. When these animals are spoken of in another way, for instance as objects of natural history, as vermin, or as enemies to man's safety, the plural form is used in the majority of cases. Thus it is in accordance with ordinary practice to say to catch fish, to shoot wildfowl, to hunt pig etc.; but the story of the three fishes, to keep fowls, to rear pigs, to kill lions, etc.

Thus also we say to kill duck, pig, when the wild animals, to kill ducks, pigs, when the domesticated animals are meant.

The language is, however, in this respect rather irregular and inconsistent, i. e. not only is the rule often disregarded with one and the same noun, but to a great many names of wild animals it does not apply at all.

SWEET (N. E. Gr., § 1966 ff.) thinks that the frequent use of what he terms collective singulars is due to the analogy of old unchanged plurals (8, a, Obs. II). His view has been endorsed by JESPERSEN (Growth and Struct., § 192). This analogy may be the most important of the factors that have determined the rise of the idiom so far as the names of quadrupeds are concerned, but, as has been pointed out by EILERT EIKWALL in a singularly pains-taking and exhaustive treatise (On the Origin and History of the Unchanged Plural in English, Lund, C. W. K. Gleerup), it does not satisfactorily account for the changed application of numerous names of fishes and birds. As to these latter EIKWALL ascribes the rise of what he prefers to call unchanged plurals to the frequent use of many fish- and bird-names in a material sense, and subsequently as collective nouns with singular construction as an intermediate stage. Mr. EIKWALL'S treatise unfortunately came to hand only when the manuscript was already at the printer's, and could not, therefore, be turned to account. Much valuable material bearing on the subject has also been collected by SATTLER (E. S., X and XII). Many of the following quotations have been drawn from his collections. Compare also KRUISINGA A Gram. of the Dial. of West-Somerset (Bonner Beitr. XVIII, 111).

1) names of quadrupeds:

antelope. i. You may kill a few antelope. SAINTSB., Ninet. Cent.¹⁾ ii. I sighted two antelopes grazing. PINTO, Africa.¹⁾

The true antelopes are remarkable for the graceful symmetry of their bodies bear. I resolved on a trip to the Lobab Valley to shoot some black bear. Graph. I heard of a man now living who has killed bear on the site of the Central Lake Park. FRED. HARRISON, Impressions of America.
CARPENTER.²⁾

beaver. i. Ever caught so many fishes, | Ever killed so many reindeer, Ever trapped so many beaver? LONGFELLOW, Hiaw.³⁾

ii. How the beavers built their lodges. Ib., III, 153.

bison. A herd of four thousand bison endeavoured to cross the river. Good Words.¹⁾ boar. i. I have always found great plenty, particularly of wild boar. LADY MONTAGUE.³⁾

ii. The well-trained dogs rarely fail to drive a few boars within reach of the sportsmen. BOCK, Borneo.¹⁾ buck. Presently the buck were within' range of some of the guns. RID. HAGGARD, Jess, X, 89.

On the following Monday, John . . . departed in a rough Scotch cart . . . to shoot buck at Hans Coetzee's. Ib., Ch. X, 82.

buffalo. i. Beyond Denver we crossed the great prairies where seven years ago the wild buffalo were feeding in thousands. FROUDE, Oceana, Ch. XX, 330.

ii. A few buffaloes wandered about. BOCK Borneo.¹⁾ elk. i. There is much more sport in hunting elk after the Norwegian manner. All the Year Round.¹⁾ ii. In hunting elks you must not think of winking. Ib.¹⁾ gaur. I have killed a good many gaur in various parts of India. Chamb.¹⁾ I came upon three gaur or bison. BELL, Jungle Life.¹⁾ giraffe. Tracks of giraffe and larger game were frequently seen. Graph.

guanaco. i. The plain was apparently as bare of guanaco as it was of grass. DIXIE, Patagonia.¹⁾ ii. Immense numbers of guanacos covered the plain in all directions. Ib.¹⁾

*Guanaco*s resemble our deer, but are much larger. J. HAWKESWORTH.²⁾ moose. There are probably a hundred moose, and a thousand deer for every dog in that part of the Commonwealth. Harp. Weekly.

Between four and five hundred moose are annually eaten at the forts. BUTLER, Gr. North Land.¹⁾ pig. i. Here we had fine sport . . . killing a few pig. Chamb.¹⁾

He told me of the deer and the wild pig in the forests. JOHN MASEFIELD, Lost Endeavour, Ch. VII, 52.

ii. This time there were several pigs, which were quietly driven through the second line. BOCK, Borneo.¹⁾ [Compare also: The recreations suited to a prince were . . . to kill wild hogs. MAC., Fred., (660b)].

roe. Deer and roe are said to be there. LADY BLOOMFIELD, Reminisc.

zebra. A lion makes a kill about every other day, that is to say he consumes nearly 200 zebra and antelope per annum. Westm. Gaz., No. 5277, 12a.

1) SATTLER, E. S., X. 2) MURRAY. 3) TEN BRUG., Taalst., VI.

Thus also quarry.

Eighteen packs of hounds pursue various kinds of quarry. H. A. BRYDEN, French Hunting (Ninet. Cent., CCCXCIX, 900).

Further illustration is afforded by the following quotations:

France is still a land of great forests, wherein roam wild red deer, roe, and boar, as well as foxes and wolves. BRYDEN (Ninet. Cent., CCCXCIX, 909). This number compares not altogether unfavourably with the 471 (sc. packs of hounds) which pursue fox, hare, stag, and otter in Great Britain. Ib., 907.

The district provides not only many rhinoceros, but numerous tigers, wild elephants, marsh deer, sambur and wild boar. Il. Lond. News, No. 3793, 1113b.

There are many tigers in the neighbourhood, as well as rhinoceroses, wild boars, wild elephants, samburs and marsh deer. Ib., No. 3796, 93.

These chapters treat of buck, buffalo, elephant and lion, and the various cats. Ib., No. 3816, 894a.

Wild stags . . . and hinds . . . have been hunted on Exmoor certainly since the days of Elizabeth. Westm. Gaz., No. 6017, 11c.

2) names of birds:

duck. i. Are those duck or mergansers? W. BLACK, The New Prince Fortunatus, Ch. VIII.

Wild duck generally feed during the night. Westm. Gaz., No. 5454, 17c.

ii. * Streaming files of wild ducks began to make their appearance high in the air. WASH. IRV., The Legend of Sleepy Hollow, (360).

Many thousands of square miles would appear as moors overgrown with furze, or fens abandoned to wild ducks. MAC., Hist., I, Ch. III, 277.

 The farmers provided him with a horse. Their wives sent him baskets of chickens and ducks. Ib., Ch. V, 198.

Fowls and farmyard ducks are eaten also. BIRD.¹⁾ fowl. i. * And let fowl multiply in the earth. Bible, Gen., I, 22.

And let them have dominion . . . over the fowl of the air. Ib., I, 26.

And lightnings play'd about it (sc. Excalibur) in the storm, | And all the little fowl were flurried at it. TEN., Gar. and Lyn., 78.

Divers, kittiwakes and other strange fowl had been recently seen there. Graph. There were no wild fowl of any kind to be seen. Id.

 With its abundance of refuse grain, no country ought to produce turkeys and other fowl more abundantly and cheaply. Times.

Hadn't I better kill a couple o' fowl and have th' aunts and uncles to dinner next week? G. ELIOT, Mill, I, Ch. II, 4.

 These (sc. the introductory pages) were those which treat of the haunts of sea-fowl. CH. BRONTË, Jane Eyre, Ch. I, 2.

A jungle abandoned to waterfowl and alligators. MACAULAY.

The noise made by the bookmakers was like that of ten thousand seafowl on a rock. HALL CAINE, Christ., II, 236.

Women, however contemptible for their weakness, appeared to her as better than barn-door fowl, or vermin in their multitudes gnawing to get at the cheese-trap. G. MEREDITH, Lord Ormont, Ch. II, 34.

Pea-fowl occur in a wild state only in the Indian Peninsula and Ceylon. Westm. Gaz., No. 5329, 5a.

In later times pea-fowl were looked upon as a great delicacy of the table. Ib. The wildfowl on the coast, which were so numerous this year as to recall to the older men memories of the good old days . . . these fowl, too, showed their foreknowledge of the changes by a marked restlessness. Ib., No. 5219, 4c.

¹⁾ SATTLER, E. S., XII.

- ii. * Behold the fowls of the air. Bible, Matth., VI, 26.

This lonely domain is a very agreeable haunt for many sorts of wild fowls. • WHITE.¹⁾

The turkey — the largest and most savoury of all our domestic fowls. CHAMB.¹⁾
We shall confine the remainder of this letter to the few domestic fowls of our yards. WHITE.¹⁾

 I laid in a stock of boiled flesh of rabbits and fowls. SWIFT, GUL-TRAV., IV, Ch. X, (211a).

The fowls were all gone to roost. ADAM BEDE.¹⁾

 Guinea fowls, heavy as they are, get up into apple-trees. WHITE.¹⁾

Pea-fowls climb to the highest tops of the highest trees for security. IB.¹⁾ grouse. Immense heaths and downs are paved with quails, grouse, and woodcock. EMERSON, English Traits, Land, 84a.

I fancy there are close on sixty brace of grouse. W. BLACK, The New Prince Fortunatus, Ch. VIII.

gull. Besides these, Mother Carey's chickens skimmed over the water like swallows, with other small varieties of gull. FROUDE, Oceana, Ch. V, 76.

plover. A flock of seventy-five golden plover were massacred by a man with a punt-gun. Westm. Gaz., No. 4919, 2b.

snipe. i. Two or three more snipe spring wild at the sound. Macm. Mag.

Snipe are not nearly so numerous in Ireland as they once were. IB.

Snipe will now and then perch on trees, but never, so far as I have seen, on a tree with foliage. Westm. Gaz., No. 5107, 4c.

Snipe were shot in Battersea fields by Mr. John Burns at a much later date. Punch, No. 3651, 504c.

ii. Others of a more domestic turn hunt hogs, and shoot snipes. THACK., Van Fair, II, Ch. VIII, 84.

What cared he to know how many snipes Lieutenant Smith had shot! IB., 87.

teal. A string of teal scared from some reedy pool on the bog-edge go spreading towards its centre. Macm. Mag.

The moorland was full of snipes and teal. BLACKMORE, Lorna Doone, Ch. XII, 72. (Note the plural form snipes.)

whinchat. If we go out looking for whinchat, with our minds obsessed too much with that little bird, we shall see it almost to a certainty in every hedge-sparrow. Westm. Gaz., No. 4967, 5b.

woodcock. The woods of Bosahan are alive with game-pheasants and woodcock abounding. Id., No. 4937, 3b.

It is a habit that makes all the difference in the bags of woodcock in different parts of England. Id., No. 5219, 4c.

The result is that all the West Country, Wales, and Ireland are filled up with cock, and that the eastern gunner has very few. For they do not go back again. IB.

With the above compare the names of birds illustrated in the following quotations, which, apparently, never throw off the mark of the plural: The recreations suited to a prince, were ... to kill wild hogs, and to shoot partridges by the thousand. MAC., Fred., (660b).

Wagtails will roost in thick bushes, but if they perch on trees during the day, they almost always choose an out-jutting branch with very little screen of leaf about it ... So, too, with the swallows and martins; you may see them perching on the bare branches, but very rarely on the leaf-clad ones. Westm. Gaz., No. 5107, 4c.

¹⁾ SATTler, E. S., XII.

For many kinds, such as tits, finches, warblers and so on, the familiar position is resting or climbing, or hopping on their feet. Ib.

The wild swans come to our East Coast when the Cattegat and the neighbouring sea is frozen. Ib., No. 5219, 4c.

- 3) names of fishes. According to SATTLER'S investigations (E. S., XII), the following names of fishes are regularly kept in the singular: bass, bream, brill, burbot, char, cheven, chub, cod, coalfish, dace, dogfish, flatfish, grayling, green, grilse, hake, humber, jack, ling, lythe, mackerel, menhaden, mullet, murrel, parr, pike, plaice, pouting, roach, ruft, saithe, seer, skate, squid, sturgeon, sythe, tench, vendace, whitebait, whiting, whittis.

The following regularly take the mark of the plural: alli, anchovy, bloater, conger, cuddy, dab, dorce, dory, eel, fireflaw, flounder, goby, grig, gurnard (= gurnet), homeling, kipper, lamprey, latchet, lump, pilchard, poggy, pope, porgy, roker, ruff, sardine, smeer-dab, smelt, smolt, sole, sprat, stickleback, thornback, whitch.

With the following usage is more or less unsettled: barbel, bleak, carp, conger-eel, gold-fish, gudgeon, haddock, herring, halibut, minnow, perch, rock-coddling, salmon, shad, shark, trout, tunny, weaver.

The above lists are not, of course, complete; nor can the result of Mr. SATTLER'S painstaking and elaborate investigations, however valuable, be accepted as an exhibition of strictly observed usage.

The following quotations, collected by ourselves, are intended to show the varied usage with the noun fish and the ordinary or regular practice as regards the names of some of the most common varieties of fishes:

fish. i. * Fresh-water fish are more valued for the sport they provide for anglers than for the market. Suggestive Lessons, I, 97.

Large fish have been caught inside of which have been found other fish, and others again inside these last. Ib., 103.

These noble fish are caught by thousands. Ib., 97.

The Dogger Bank is the breeding ground for myriads of fish. Ib., I, 98.

These fish were once round fish, as they are now at birth. Ib., 104.

They had caught three or four coarse fish and a perch. HUGHES, Tom Brown, I, Ch. II, 24.

I have caught forty fish. JEROME, Three men in a boat, Ch. XVII, 219.

He had caught ten fish. Ib., 220.

 Lastly the 'sculch' or foul fish is hurled overboard. Ib., 100.

ii. We have here but five loaves and two fishes. Bible, Matth., XIV, 17.

Tom and East had learned to swim like fishes. HUGHES, Tom Brown.

The aquariums have greatly added to our knowledge of the habits and nature of fishes. Suggest. Les., I, 102.

Fishes of every size prey upon others which are smaller. Ib., I, 103.

The mackerel tribe belongs to the division of oily fishes. Ib., 116.

If these fishes (sc. herrings) were as rare as they are plentiful, their delicate flesh would rank as a luxury for the rich. Ib., I, 117.

a) names of fishes that are regularly or ordinarily kept in the singular:

carp. The moats were turned into preserves of carp and pike. Mac., Hist., I, Ch. III, 285.

cod. i. The banks of New-Foundland abound with cod. Suggest. Les., I, 97.

ii. Fresh cod is brought from the North-Sea fishing grounds. Ib., I, 97.

dace. I had caught absolutely nothing, except a few dozen dace and a score of jack. JEROME, Three men in a boat, Ch. XVII, 218.

haddock. Haddock, cod, ling and whiting are gutted in heaps and washed down with buckets of salt water. Suggest. Les., I, 100.

hake. When the shoals appear off the coast, they are followed by hake and dogfishes. Ib., 117.

halibut. The so-called flatfish, turbot, brill, plaice, soles, flounders and halibut swarm on the North-sea sandbanks. Ib., I, 100.

jack. I had caught absolutely nothing, except a few dozen dace and a score of jack. JEROME, Three men in a boat, Ch. XVII, 218.

mackerel. Mackerel are caught in the British Channel. Suggest. Les., I, 115.

perch. I caught fifteen dozen perch yesterday-evening. JEROME, Three men in a boat, Ch. XVII, 217.

roach. The river Avon in which chub, dace, roach and other coarse fish are plentiful enough. HUGHES, Tom Brown.

salmon. * The bridge where salmon wait for autumn floods. CH. KINGSLEY, Westw. Ho!, Ch. I, 1a.

Did you get many salmon after I left Strathairon? W. BLACK, The New Prince Fortunatus, Ch. XV.

Severn salmon, also, are esteemed. Suggest. Les., I, 103.

Salmon are said to be gregarious. Ib., 109.

 In former days salmon was rarely seen in many parts of England. Ib., I, 108.

trout. These trout are usually small, and no skill goes to their catching. II. Lond. News, No. 3518, 882c.

Mr. Malloch is able to throw new light on not a few of the mysteries connected with the life-history of salmon and trout. Truth.

turbot. Turbot and brill die hard. Ib., I, 106.

β) names of fishes that regularly or ordinarily take the mark of the plural:

bloater. Herrings when only half salted, or bloated, are called bloaters. Suggest. Les., I, 119.

chick. Flocks of Digby chicks take there the place of the Cornish pilchards. Ib., 119.

flounder. The so-called flatfish, turbot, brill, plaice, soles, flounders and halibut swarm on the North-Sea sandbanks. Ib., 100.

herring. The rivers and the surrounding sea spawn with fish; there are salmon for the rich, and sprats and herrings for the poor. In the northern lochs the herring are in innumerable shoals. EMERSON, English Traits, Land, 84a. (Note the varied practice.)

They are taken, like herrings, in drift-nets. Suggest. Les., I, 116.

Over three billions of herrings are taken out of the North-Sea every year. Ib., I, 117.

pilchard. Pilchards are migratory fish. Ib., 124.

Flocks of Digby chicks take there the place of the Cornish pilchards. Ib., 119.

shark. The wreck was haunted by sharks. II. Lond. News.

sole. Soles, plaice and skate die more quickly. Suggest. Les., I, 100.

Soles are such diet that they are in great request. Ib., I, 105.

sprat. You could hardly tell from their looks whether they (sc. pilchards) were small herrings or large sprats. Ib., 124.

Sprats are a winter fish. Ib., 125.

4) names of animals popularly included among fishes:

clam. i. Pools, where mussel, clam, and wilk, | Clove to their gravelly bed. D. MOIR.¹⁾ ii. Spangles of the richest colours, glowing from a number of large clams. COOK.¹⁾ turtle. The south side of the island swarmed with turtle; they covered the whole beach. SWEET, Story of two Englishmen.

Note. The names of most fishes, and also of some other animals, may be used as pure material nouns, chiefly to denote an article of food, as in On Fridays they have fish (lamb, grouse, cod) for dinner. Also in other applications, however, some are material nouns.

Worm was the favourite lure. 11. Lond. News, No. 3618, 882a.

He also fishes with worm (and) with minnow. lb.

- b) Also cannon and youth, and occasionally horse present the same grammatical features. Cannon is sometimes preceded by the individualizer piece (36). Compare also LANNERT, An Investigation into the Lang. of Rob. Crus., Acc., II, A, 2.

As regards horse the use of the singular instead of the plural form, a survival of Old English practice, seems to be now confined to poetry. See also MURRAY, s. v. horse, I, 1, b. The singular, however, is regular in the title master of the horse.

Youth in a collective sense is also construed as a singular.

cannon. i. * All that day from morning until after sunset the cannon never ceased to roar. THACK., Van. Fair, I, Ch. XXXII, 350.

In that dark row of gaunt sheds the Armstrong cannon are forged. ESCOTT, England, Ch. VI, 89.

In 1372 small cannon were used on board French ships. Rev. of Rev., CXCVIII, 621a.

 Havelock was now moving forward from Allahabad towards Cawnpore with six cannon, and about a thousand English soldiers. MCCARTHY, Short Hist., Ch. XIII, 189.

They had each so many thousand infantry and cavalry, and so many cannon. SPENC., Educ., Ch. I, 27b.

ii. More than two hundred vessels had been assembled, carrying generally ten pieces of cannon. MOTLEY, Rise, IV, Ch. II, 572b.

iii. Cannons are made of iron, brass, bronze, and sometimes of steel rods welded together. WEBST., Dict.

The Armada was provided with 2500 cannons. GREEN, Short Hist., Ch. VII, Sect. VI, 419.

horse. * MACB. I did hear the galloping of horse: who was't came by? — LENNOX. 't Is two or three, mylord, that bring you word Macduff is fled to England. MACB., IV, 1, 140.

A thousand horse, and none to ride! BYRON, Mazeppa, XVII.

A thousand horse, the wild and free, | Like waves that follow o'er the sea, | Came lightly thundering on. lb.

The waves charging "like Phantom hosts of warrior horse". Athen., No. 4434, 437c.

 Equerries are certain officers of the royal household in the department of the master of the horse. ANNANDALE, Conc. Dict.

¹⁾ MURRAY, s. v. *clam*², 1.

youth. i. * Home-keeping youth have ever homely wits. Two Gentl., I, 1, 2.

He admired Pen quite as much as any of the other youth did. THACK., Pend., I, Ch. XVIII, 193.

Soon the couples became leavened with rustic youth to a marked extent. HARDY, Tess, I, Ch. I, 17.

A great deal may be learnt by docile youth from work in the Lake Country. Times.

 Such accounts have been inspected by the parents of many university youth. THACK., Pend., I, Ch. XX, 209.

The expense of educating ten thousand youth is not ten or five times that of one thousand. BELLAMY, Look Backw., 101.

The joke has afforded a moment's amusement to many generations of youth. EARLE, Phil., § 228.

A moderate system of obligatory naval or military training for all our youth is eminently desirable in the interest of the national physique alone. Times.

ii. At the sixth round there were almost as many fellows shouting out "go it, Figs", as there were youths exclaiming "go it, Cuff". THACK., Van. Fair, I, Ch. V, 46.

The story will interest youths of an adventurous spirit. Lit. World.

iii. What follies will not youth perpetrate with its own admirable gravity and simplicity? THACK., Pend., I, Ch. XVIII, 187.

But he was young and youth is curious. Ch. KINGSLEY, Hyp., Ch. I, 1b.

The spiritual and intellectual dangers which beset ardent and intelligent youth on its entrance into the world. NOWELL C. SMITH, Wordsworth's Lit. Criticism, Introd., 4.

29. A few nouns often retain the singular form, although not felt as collective nouns of the second kind (26). They bear some resemblance to those mentioned in 8, and in another respect to those mentioned in the preceding §. From the former they differ in that they are not devoid of a plural form, from the latter in that they cannot be stripped of the mark of the plural unless preceded by a modifying word. As to this latter point compare for instance: Fish are caught in various ways with Hundreds are caught every day by anglers.

As to some of the nouns here referred to the frequent want of inflection is a survival of their declension in Old English, in which certain neuters had the same form for the plural as the singular in the accusative as well as the nominative (8, Obs. II); with others it is due to the action of analogy.

We may distinguish:

a) names of measure;

1) such as denote a set of a definite number. These nouns retain the mark of the plural when not preceded by a numeral, definite or indefinite. In other cases usage is with the majority of them of a varied nature. The nouns in question are brace, couple, pair, yoke, leash, dozen, score, gross, hundred, thousand and million.

Brace originally used of dogs, afterwards came to be applied also to other animals, especially kinds of game and fish; to things, especially pistols; more rarely, and with a touch of humour or contempt, to persons. The plural form (braces) is exceedingly rare.

Couple is often used in the same connections as brace. In these it appears to retain the singular form as regularly. In other combinations the plural form is frequent enough.

Pair, now denoting only a set of two, was anciently also used of a set of an indefinite number, at least in connection with certain nouns. In pair of stairs (steps) this old application survives. (20.) In its present meaning the plural form is quite as common as the singular, and seems to be the rule after an indefinite numeral.

Yoke is used especially of oxen. The singular form seems to be preserved regularly.

Leash, denoting a set of three, is found, especially in sporting language, when the reference is to hounds, hawks, foxes, hares, deer etc. The plural form is, apparently non-existent.

Dozen regularly retains the singular form when partitive of is dropped, no matter whether the preceding numeral denotes a definite or an indefinite number. The plural is more frequent than the singular when of is not suppressed, at least when the preceding numeral denotes an indefinite number.

Score exhibits the same peculiarities as dozen.

Gross, which does not admit of the dropping of partitive of, mostly retains the singular form when a definite numeral precedes, the plural being the rule after an indefinite numeral.

Hundred and thousand,

- (1) when not followed by partitive of mostly retain the singular form, except:
 - (a) when they stand for hundred (or thousand) pounds (men, etc.), and are preceded by an indefinite numeral;
 - (β) in the combinations tens (or hundreds) of thousands.
- (2) when followed by partitive of mostly take the mark of the plural. When it is absent, this is due to a noun being mentally supplied after them, so that they are felt as adnominal words used absolutely. (Ch. IV, 6, c, 1, Note.)

Hundred, when denoting a subdivision of a county, as in the Chiltren Hundreds, of course, takes the plural like an ordinary noun.

Million in the majority of cases is dealt with as hundred and thousand, but takes the mark of the plural:

- (1) regularly (or at least usually):
 - (a) when it stands for million pounds (men, etc.), no matter whether a definite or an indefinite numeral precedes;
 - (β) when it is followed by half or another fractional numeral.
- (2) occasionally when another numeral follows.

All the above nouns regularly take the mark of the plural when not modified by any number-indicating word: dozens, scores, hundreds, etc. of letters.

brace. i. * The gillie was leading or rather holding in two brace of remarkably fine setters. W. BLACK, The New Prince Fortunatus, Ch. VIII.

Ten brace of pointers. CH. READE, It is never too late to mend.

 He shot five brace of birds. MASON, *Eng. Gram.*³⁴, § 55.

I fancy there are close on two brace of grouse. W. BLACK, The New Prince Fortunatus, Ch. VIII.

There were a couple of brace of cold woodcock. CON. DOYLE, Sherl. Holm., II, 169.

I rose and hooked six brace of capital fish. F. FRANCIS.¹⁾

 Three brace of pistols. MARTINEAU.¹⁾

* A lusty brace of twins may weed her of her folly. TEN., Princ., V, 453.

- ii. It could be easily carried by a couple of braces or so of trained elephants. Punch.²⁾ couple. i. * They killed in one day 14 brace of hares, 16 couple of rabbits, 24 brace of pheasants, 13 brace of partridges and 16 couple of woodcocks. TROL.²⁾

 Away they all went, twenty couple at once, . . . all top couples at last. DICK., *Christm. Car.*⁵, II, 45.

Full fourteen couple . . . had retired in an exhausted state. Id., Pickw., Ch. XXVIII, 255.

- ii. Twenty-one couples intend to be married at the same time and place. Graph.²⁾ Only three couples had ventured to claim the bacon. All the Year round.²⁾ pair. i. * Two pair of boots. MASON, *Eng. Gram.*³⁴, § 55.

Four and twenty pair of partners. DICK., *Christm. Car.*⁵, II, 47.

Three pair of eyes were watching her from within the shop. EDNA LYALL, We Two, I, 18.

 Mr. Harthur lives three pair high. THACK., Pend., I, Ch. XXVIII, 302.

It is number 92, up four pair of stairs. Id., Van. Fair, II, Ch. XXX, 341.

- ii. * They sent me home three pairs of pantaloons. Id., Sam. Titm., Ch. VI, 69. The old gentleman begged me to get him six pairs of lamb's-wool stockings. Id., Ch. VIII, 88.

He was provided with two pairs of pistols. Lit. World.

In the same tree three pairs of jackdaws, two or three pairs of starlings . . . were bringing up their respective families. Il. Mag.

There was no knowing how many pairs of legs the new proprietor would require hose for. G. ELIOT, Mid., IV, Ch. XXXV, 250.

 The Opposition have cancelled all their pairs. Daily Mail.

yoke. I have bought five yoke of oxen. Bible, Luke, XIV, 19.

I have seen a man ploughing with six yoke of oxen. All the Year round.²⁾ leash. I have acquired precisely nine hundred and ninety-nine leash of languages. *Münchhausen's Trav.*³⁾ dozen. i. * Three dozen knives. MASON, *Eng. Gram.*³⁴, § 55.

I caught fifteen dozen perch yesterday evening. JEROME, Three men in a boat, Ch. XVII, 218.

"You must taste old Narramore's port wine", said her entertainer. "The fellow sent a couple of dozen". G. GISSING, Eve Madeley's Ransom, Ch. XX. A few dozen very ancient coin were turned up. *Chamb.*²⁾

 He had three dozen of eggs from Alice. MARRYAT.²⁾

A book-case containing a couple of dozen of law-books. RID. HAGGARD, Mees. Will, Ch. XV, 154.

- ii. About 350 dozens of Stilton were pitched at the Cheese Fair. Graph.²⁾ score. i. * The days of our years are three score years and ten. Psalm XC, 10.

Four score years. MASON, *Eng. Gram.*³⁴, § 55.

Across two score towns, I saw the great metropolis itself. JOHN HABBERTON, Helen's Babies, 48.

¹⁾ MURRAY, s. v. brace; 15. ²⁾ SATTLER, E. S., XVI. ³⁾ MURRAY, s. v. leash, 2.

- She is in the middle way between three score and three score and ten years. Rev. of Rev., CXCVI, 360a.
- * Stage-coaches carry you from one end of the kingdom to another in a few score hours. THACK., Barry Lyndon, Ch. III, 30.
- Tavern beloved of artists many score years! Id., Newc., I, Ch. XXVII, 300.
- ii. What signifies breaking some scores of solemn promises. SHER., Rivals, IV, 2 (264).
- How many scores* of thousands of good English dinners have been cooked. II. Lond. News.¹⁾
- I have so many scores of visits to pay. MACAULAY.¹⁾
- gross. i. At last we were persuaded to buy the two gross between us. GOLDS., Vicar.
- Ten gross* of buttons. MASON, Eng. Gram.³⁴, § 55.
- "How much are the telegraph forms?" He admitted with reluctance, that they were free. — "I will take a dozen gross." Punch, No. 3674, 414c.
- ii. The fatherless little stranger was already welcomed by some grosses of prophetic pins. DICK., Cop., Ch. I, 3a.
- One will outlast many grosses of the best steel pens. Advertisement.
- hundred, thousand. i. * Two hundred (thousand) pounds.
- A few hundred years ago. MISS BURNETT, Little Lord Fauntleroy, 165.
- * The garrison is not two hundred strong. COLERIDGE.
- A man who could get ten thousand a year by staying at home, was a fool to risk his life abroad. THACK., Van. Fair, I, Ch. XXI, 218.
- Trumbull himself is pretty sure of five hundred. G. ELIOT, Mid., IV, Ch. XXXV, 244
-  Poor Mrs. Cranch was half moved with the consolation of getting any hundreds at all without working for them. G. ELIOT, Mid., IV, Ch. XXXV, 247.
-  Many thousands are in want of common necessities, hundreds of thousands are in want of common comforts. DICK., Christm. Car.⁵, I, 14.
- To tens of thousands that are killed, add hundreds of thousands that survive with feeble constitutions. SPENCER, Education, Ch. I, 23b.
- The famine seems likely to claim its victims by tens of thousands. Rev. of Rev., CCVI, 117b.
- ii. * In the neighbourhood a town, inhabited by many thousands of natives, had sprung up. Mac., Clive, (409a).
- At a very early stage of his progress, the learner will find himself able to compile a list of some hundreds of German words which have an obvious likeness to the English words with which they agree in meaning. H. BRADLEY, The Making of Eng., Ch. I, 2.
- * How many thousand of my poorest subjects | Are at this hour asleep! Henry IV, B, III, 1, 4.
- I'm not angry with the British public, but I wish we had a few thousand of them scattered among these rocks. RUDY. KIPLING, The light that failed, Ch. II, 16.
- Several hundred* of the enemy's horses have been captured. Times.
- million. i. * According to these reports the number of his English subjects must have been about five million two hundred thousand. Mac., Hist., I, Ch. III, 279.
- * 42,706,835: forty-two millions, seven hundred and six thousand, eight hundred and thirty-five. YOUNG, Arithmetic.
-  Over two million copies of the Author's work have been sold. Lit. World.
-  The capital of the company . . . is five millions sterling. THACK., Sam. Titm., Ch. VI, 69.
- We repented and voted over twenty millions to clear ourselves of the reproach. FROUDE, Oceana, Ch. III, 43.

¹⁾ SATTLER, E. S., XVI.

Baron Hirsch is said to have left twenty millions sterling, apart from his real estate. II. Lond. News.

The total number of registered electors is over ten millions. Id.

* The conclusion at which he arrived was that the population of England was nearly five millions and a half. MAC., Hist., I, Ch. III, 278.

Then it was agreed that the indemnity already mentioned should be paid by the Chinese Government — some four millions and a half sterling, in addition to one million and a quarter as compensation for the destroyed opium. MCCARTHY, Short. Hist., Ch. II, 28.

- ii. Difference in opinions has cost many millions of lives. SWIFT, Gul. Trav.; IV, Ch. V, (197b).

There were only two millions of human beings. MAC., Hist.

The wheat he estimated at less than two millions of quarters. Ib.

A good many millions of money now spent would be in the pockets of the taxpayers. FROUDE, Oceana, Ch. II, 41.

- 2) denominators of fractional numbers. These nouns sometimes stand without the mark of the plural, when placed immediately before the noun modified, which is their ordinary position in the language of arithmetic and statistics. In all other positions the mark of the plural is regularly retained. Compare Ch. XLII, 14, and see also SATTLER, E. S., II.

- a) quarter never takes the mark of the plural when followed immediately by a noun.

New York has now attained the respectable antiquity of two-and-three-quarter centuries. Graph.

He received the arrears of two-and-three-quarter years of sipping in one attack of delirium tremens. RUDY. KIPLING, Plain Tales, No. XXIII, 177.

We did the 20 miles in six and three-quarter hours. Times.

This final catastrophe happened at 2.20 a. m., at or about two-and-three-quarter hours after the vessel had first struck the iceberg. Id., No. 1846, 387b.

- β) With ordinal numerals used as denominators of fractions, usage is divided, but the prevalent practice seems to be to place them in the plural, no matter whether or no they are followed by partitive of.

- i. The longest sword is twenty-seven and five eighth inches. CHAMB.¹⁾

Of the remaining three-fourth parts of my said father's estate, one-fourth part of the three-fourth parts I give and bequeath [etc.]. STEVENSON (Daily News).²⁾

- ii. * It was a dodgy sum, and the right answer was one and seven-eighths donkeys, which, of course, looks as if it must be wrong. BARRY PAIN, A Change of Rôle, Ch. I.

He found that he wanted half thirty-one and three-eighths inches from the corner. JEROME, Three men in a boat, Ch. III, 27.

They are better in design and only half to two-thirds the cost. Times.

 I was told in the strictest confidence that the house one year with another divided a good seven thousand pounds, of which Brough had half, Hoff had two-sixths, and the other sixth went to old Tudlow. THACK., Sam. Titm., Ch. II, 12.

Three-fourths of the Upper House walked in solemn order from their usual place of assembling to the tribunal. MAC., War. Hist., (648b).

Nine-tenths of my customers have been English gentlefolk. Times.

About two-thirds of the population are Protestants. Cassell's Conc. Cycl., s. v. Prussia.

The white people say they pay nine-tenths of the taxes. W. ARCHER (Westm. Gaz., No. 4967, 13b).

Note: Possession is nine-tenths of the law. Mrs. CRAIK, John Hal., Ch. XIX, 190. (= nine points of the law.)

- 3) compounds and word-groups with worth. With such as contain the word penny or shilling usage is divided; those which contain the word pound seem to be regularly kept in the singular. Usage is also varied in other respects, for which see Ch. IV, 10, Obs. II.

i. I can prepare for, and put up with a regularly bad day, but these ha'porth of all sorts of days do not suit me. JEROME, Idle Thoughts, VII, 72. Take a cup of chocolate with two pennyworth of butter and cake. Punch. He bought three shillings' worth of liquor.

We fell to with our swords, and had her (sc. the ship) in fifty minutes, and fifty thousand pounds' worth in her. CH. KINGSLEY, Westw. Ho!, Ch. XXVIII, 214.

They got a couple of thousand pounds' worth out of me. MARIE COR., Sor. of Sat., I, Ch. XVI, 215.

Three thousand pounds worth of Louis d'or and Napoleons. II. Lond. News.

- ii. When they could eat no more, Mr. Pecksniff and Mr. Jonas subscribed for two sixpennyworths of hot brandy-and-water, which the latter gentleman considered a more politic order than one shillingworth. DICK., Chuz., Ch. VIII, 63b.

A few pennyworths of lollipops. (?), Miss Providence, Ch. XVIII.

One of the most interesting five-shillings'-worths he can buy. Lit. World.

- 4) compounds of weight.

i. The stone weighs ten hundredweight. MASON, *Eng. Gram.*³⁴, § 55.

Such an acre of potatoes will produce six thousandweight of solid nourishment. ADAM SMITH.¹⁾

Reduce 5 tons 13 cwt. 2 qrs. 9 lb. 13 oz. 10 drs. to drams. PENDLEBURY, Arithmetic, § 76.

Reduce 6 oz. 13 dwt. and 8 oz. 19 dwt. to grains. lb.

- ii. If my fool's head weighed four pound, and Jack's three pound three ounces and three quarters, how many pennyweights heavier would my head be than Jack's? G. ELIOT, Adam Bede, Ch. XXI, 204.

In the Mediterranean shoals of tunny, a giant mackerel, weighing several hundredweights, are captured for their wholesome food and oil. Suggest. Les., I, 116.

- 5) the nouns horse-power and stone as names of measure. A stone = 14 pounds. Horse-power as the plural of horsepower seems to be in occasional use. Stone occasionally takes the mark of the plural.

horsepower. i. It is estimated that the so-called lean gases discharged from the blast furnaces of Germany are capable of developing one million horse-power. Rev. of Rev., CCIII, 491b.

The German liner 'Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse' had a tonnage of 14349 and 28000 horse-power. Id., CCXIV, 342a.

Orient Company's S.S.-"Ormuz", 6465 tons register, 9,000 horse-power. Westm. Gaz., No. 4943, 11a.

The very up-to-date electric installations on the Jhelum River are expected to produce some day a quarter of a million horsepower. lb., No. 5173, 10b.

- ii. These engines are guaranteed to exert 6600 horses power. Inscription in South Kensington Museum.

1) SATTLER, E. S., XVI.

stone. i. George and Harris and Montmorency are not poetic ideals, but things of flesh and blood — especially George, who weighs about twelve stone. JEROME, Three men in a boat, Pref.

ii. A full-grown man in Western Europe averages about eleven stones. All the Year round.¹⁾

He has brought down a splendid royal stag weighing eighteen stones. Graph.¹⁾

Note. Thus also other compounds of power, such as candle power, retain the single form when multiples are meant.

Where the electrical pressure on any supply is between 100 and 120 volts, the metallic filament lamps must be at least 16 candle power: with a pressure of 200 volts and over these lamps must be at least 40 candle power. Advert.

Observe also the humorous nonce-formation in the following quotation: "What is the matter with Miss Smithers?" said the lady abbess, as the aforesaid Miss Smithers proceeded to go into hysterics of four young-lady power. DICK., Pickw., Ch. XVI, 147.

6) the noun pound when followed by a bare numeral denoting shillings, and the noun foot when followed by a mere numeral denoting inches.

pound. i. Bolder's father was ten pound ten short. DICK., Nich. Nickleby, Ch. VIII, 47b.

"I should say three pound ten was plenty", said Mr. Limbkins. Id., O. Twist, Ch. III, 9a.

ii. * I have sold him for three pounds, five shillings and two pence. GOLDSMITH, Vic., Ch. XII, (304).

Having in his pocket four pounds two shillings [etc.]. THACK., Pend., I, Ch. XXXIII, 354.

 "The money we brought with us," said Martin, "is reduced to a few shillings less than eight pounds". DICK., Chuz., Ch. XXI, 180a.

Incomes of 40,000 pounds at the time of the accession of George III were at least as rare as incomes of 100,000 pounds are now. MAC., Clive, (525b).

foot. i. I'm only five foot four. THACK., Lovel the Widower, Ch. III, 49. He looked round the huge assembly, from his vantage ground of six foot four. EDNA LYALL, We Two, I, 192.

ii. Who stood about five feet in their shoes. HT. MARTINEAU, Loom and Luger, I, vii, 115.²⁾

Note I. In other cases pound and foot, like the names of other measures not mentioned above, reject the mark of the plural only in vulgar or colloquial style and in dialects. MASON, *Eng. Gram.*³⁴, § 55; TEN BRUGGENCATE, Taalstudie, VI; FRANZ, E. S., XII; STORM, *Phil.*², 777.

Ask Mrs. Rouncewell how long she has been here, and she'll answer: "fifty year, three months and a fortnight, by the blessing of Heaven, if I live till Tuesday. DICK., Bleak House, Ch. VII, 52.

They'd have taken care on her, the Union — eight and twenty mile away from where we live. Id., *Chimes*³, II, 55.

She grudged me a hundred pound to get me out of quod. THACK., Van. Fair, II, Ch. XIX, 208.

The gentleman without the elephant is worth five pound. Id., I, Ch. XIV, 150.

1) SATTLER, E. S., XVI.

2) MURRAY.

We measured the heap, as I am a christened man, seventy foot long, ten foot broad, and twelve foot high. CH. KINGSLEY, Westw. Ho!, Ch. I, 2a.
 What with rent etc. my birds cost me close on fifteen shilling apiece. Graph.

II. After one and a half, one and a quarter, one and three quarters, and, perhaps, other mixed numbers whose first element is one, the name of the measure seems to be occasionally kept in the singular.

About $7\frac{3}{4}$ mile due north of the City of Salisbury stands the imposing ancient monument known as Old Sarum.¹⁾

One and a half hour. Mod. Lang. Quart., 1904, Oct., 127.¹⁾

III. The practice of keeping names of measures in the singular was formerly more common than it is now.

One sound cudgel of four foot. Henry VIII, V, 4, 19.²⁾

How many fathom deep I am in love. As you like it, IV, 1, 210.²⁾

This idol they placed in the highest part of the house, on an altar erected about three foot. SWIFT, Tale of a Tub, Sect. II.

There was four foot water in the hold. DEFOE, Rob. Crusoe, 10.

Instructive, from an historical point of view, is Pope's changing year into years in the following lines from SHAKESPEARE:

Twelve year since, Miranda, twelve year since | Thy father was the Duke of Milan and | A prince of power. Temp., I, 2, 51.

According to A. SCHMIDT (Shakespeare Lexicon) SHAKESPEARE has fathom 7 times, fathoms 3 times; mile 6 times, miles 18 times; pound 29 times, pounds 13 times. For details about the practice as regards the names of measures about the beginning of the 18th century see especially LANNERT, An Investigation into the Lang. of Rob. Crus., Accid., II, A.

TENNYSON archaically keeps the name of the measure in the singular in:

All round from the cliffs and the capes, | Purple or amber, dangled a hundred fathom of grapes. The Voyage of Maeldune, 56. (Compare with this: And starr'd with a myriad blossom the long convolvulus hung. Id., 40.

They might have cropt the myriad flower of May. Id., Bal. and Bal., 582.)

- b) the following nouns: counsel in the sense of legal adviser; head when used as an individualizer before certain collective nouns of the second kind (26), especially cattle and game (36); sail in the sense of sailing-vessel or ship of any kind; stand when used as an individualizer before colours, arms, muskets, etc. (36).

After a numeral the plural form of these nouns is rarely met with. MURRAY does not give a single instance under counsel and head. SATTLE (E. S., XVI) gives a few instances of heads. The plural sails may be instanced from SHAKESPEARE. The plural form of these nouns may be more usual when no numeral precedes, but the evidence is very scanty.

counsel. i. Who happen to be in the Lord Chancellor's Court this murky afternoon besides the Lord Chancellor, the counsel in the cause, two or three counsel who are never in any cause? Dick., Bleak House, Ch. I, 2.

¹⁾ KRUISINGA, A Gram. of Pres.-Day Eng., § 321.

²⁾ TEN BRUG., Taalst., VI.

Jenny's position was exceedingly like that of a witness being examined and cross-examined by two counsel who are not at all scrupulous about asking leading questions. MRS. GASKELL, Cranford, Ch. X, 197.

The counsel were by no means fairly matched. MAC., Hist., III, Ch. VIII, 189.

- ii. Counsel usually begin in this way. DICK., Pickw., Ch. XXXIV, 308.

Those gentlemen in silk gowns in the front row are Queen's counsel. The gentlemen in stuff gowns on the back benches are junior counsel. ESCOTT, England, Ch. XXIV, 422.

- head. i. We thus saw about 6300 head of cattle. Contemp. Review.¹⁾

We ought to bag a good many head of game to make up for turning out in this wet mist. EDNA LYALL, Donovan, I, 276.

Thirty thousand head of swine. ADDISON.²⁾

He undertook to walk six miles in one hour, with 300 head of asparagus. CHAMB.¹⁾

They killed more than a quarter of a million head of vermin. Ib.¹⁾

We killed fifty head of wild-fowl. MALMESBURY.¹⁾

The "Hunt" generally pays Reynard's poultry bill — estimated by one authority to amount to at least £ 50,000 annually for nearly half a million head of poultry. Westm. Gaz., No. 5448, 14a.

- ii. I hope this season to bag as many heads as my father. LYTTON, Night and Morning.¹⁾

Wealth is reckoned by heads of cattle. CHAMB.¹⁾

The Count killed 9302 heads of game during his sporting career. Graph.

- sail. i. Their force consisted of twenty sail of the line. SOUTHEY, Life of Nelson, Ch. IX, 242.

Admiral Louis, with six sail, had been detached for stores and water to Gibraltar. Ib., Ch. IX, 247.

The little fleet of five sail assembled in Cawsand Bay. CH. KINGSLEY, Westw. Hol., Ch. XI, 97.

The British fleet was but fifteen sail of the line strong. II. Lond. News.

- ii. I have fifty sails, Cæsar none better. Ant. and Cleop., III, 7, 50.

stand. Fifty stand of colours fell into the hands of the Prussians. MAC., Fred., (693a).

100000 stand of arms occupy the two store-rooms. II. Lond. News.

He offered him at a bargain ten thousand stand of probably obsolescent muskets. HOWELLS.¹⁾

30. Separate mention must be made of certain nouns which as to their grammatical possibilities differ from the nouns mentioned in the preceding §§ and from their Dutch equivalents.

- a) Acquaintance is often found, especially in older writers, as a collective noun, either of the first or the second kind [i. e. denoting a conception either within or without limits (Ch. XXVI, 7)]. When used as a single-unit noun preceded by a numeral, it seems occasionally to stand without the mark of the plural. See the quotation under ii. Compare also LANNERT, An Investigation into the Lang. of Rob. Crus., Accid., II, A, 2.

¹⁾ SATTLE, E. S., XVI. ²⁾ WEBST.

- i. * I wish I had a large acquaintance. JAN AUSTEN, North. Abbey, Ch. II, 1. The wish of a numerous acquaintanc in Bath was still uppermost with Mrs. Allen. lb., Ch. III, 13.

 In reality bosom friends and intimate acquaintance have a kind of natural propensity to particular females at the house of a friend. FIELDING, Tom Jones, III, Ch. VI, 37*b*.

Most of my acquaintance no sooner perceived my change of temper than they abandoned me. SMOL., Rod. Rand., Ch. XXII, 157.

Girls who have been spoilt for home by great acquaintance. JANE AUSTEN, North. Abbey, Ch. XXX, 233.

I am weary of stringing up all my married acquaintance by Roman denominations. CH. LAMB, Es. of Elia, A Bachelor's Complaint, (264).

The two caps reflected on the window-blind were the respective head-dresses of a couple of Mrs. Bardell's most particular acquaintance. DICK., Pickw., Ch. XXVI, 235.

All his acquaintance were aware that he was carrying on a desperate flirtation with Mrs. Crawley. THACK., Van. Fair, I, Ch. XXIX, 309.

These three brethren told casual acquaintance that they were spending their Whitsun holidays in a walking tour through the Vale of Blackmoor. HARDY, Tess, I, Ch. II, 16.

- ii. They had many acquaintance in common. JANE AUSTEN, Pride and Prej., Ch. XXV, 144.

- iii. He had never been introduced to any of Rawdon Crawley's great acquaintances. THACK., Van. Fair, I, Ch. XXVIII, 322.

George was so occupied with his new acquaintances that he and William Dobbin were by no means so much together as formerly. lb., I, Ch. XXIX, 309.

Mr. Hobbs had not many very close acquaintances who were earls. Miss BURNETT, Little Lord, 269.

Quarters were found for the traveller at 44 George Street, Portman Square, by some Irish acquaintances. STEPH. GWENN, Thomas Moore, Ch. I, 19.

- b) Mane is regularly used as an ordinary single-unit noun in English. It is however, placed in the plural when the growth of hair of several animals is referred to.

- i. John Gilpin, at his horse's side | Seized fast the flowing mane. COWPER, John Gilpin, XXIII.

A quantity of dark, grizzled hair, wild as a mane, hid its head and face. CH. BRONTË, Jane Eyre, Ch. XXVI, 358.

When enraged he (sc. the lion) likewise erects his mane. DARWIN, Descent, II, Ch. XVIII, 526.

- ii. It (sc. the river Nile) ran for a hundred and fifty days' journey through deserts where nothing but flying serpents and satyrs lived, and the very lions' manes were burnt off by the heat. CH. KINGSLEY, Hyp., Ch. III, 14*a*.

- c) Offspring is used as a single-unit noun, or as a collective noun of the nature of cattle. It is, apparently, never preceded by a word denoting number, but is occasionally met with in the plural form.

- i. Every offspring is like its parent. HUXL., Darw., Ch. II, 32.

The extent to which an offspring differs from its parent is slight enough. lb., 34.

- ii. Their mongrel offspring are very generally, but not universally, fertile. DARWIN (in HUXL., Darw., Ch. II, 49).

As physical maturity is marked by the ability to produce offspring; so mental maturity is marked by the ability to train those offspring. SPENC., Educ., Ch. III, 70*a*.

It is conceivable that two hermaphrodites, attracted by each other's greater beauty, might unite and leave offspring. DARWIN, Descent of Man, Ch. IX, 264.

- iii. The widows and the offsprings of the poorer, the indigent clergy. TOLDERVY. 1)

How much do these beloved offsprings add to our love and happiness! Mem. Female Philos. 1)

- d) Vote, preceded by an adjective, or a word doing duty as such, is frequently found in a collective sense.

The narrow majority is dependent entirely on the Irish vote. Times.

The majority in its favour against the combined Tory and Irish vote was about 200. Rev. of Rev., CXCVIII, 560a.

Mr. Hughes, the Republican candidate, wins by a majority of 55000, out of a recorded vote of 1.617.786. Ib., CCIV, 656a.

31. When a noun in the common-case form is placed adnominally before another noun, either as an independent word, or as part of a compound, and also when it is part of an adnominal word-group, it is mostly placed in the singular. This is even the usual form when it represents a plural idea as in rose cultivation, foot-warmer, tooth-brush, apple-tree, cycle-manufacturer, three-volume novel, five-act comedy, five-foot rope, three-quarter-inch spikes. The singular form is also retained when the head-word is plural, except in the cases mentioned in 16, c, 2. Thus despot-kings, brother-volunteers, etc.; but gentlemen boarders, women-servants, knights-hospitallers, lords-justices, etc. The plural common-case form is however used:

- a) when the singular would convey a distinctly different meaning, as in teeth-rim (SWEET, Prim. of Phon., § 21).
- b) in the names of acts, bills, committees of Parliament, such as the Crimes Act (Times), the Inebriates Act (id.), the Aliens Act (Rev. of Rev., CXCVI, 339b), the Highways Committee (id., CCVI, 125a).
- c) when the adnominal noun is one of certain pluralia tantum,
- 1) standing by itself:

bellows, e. g.: bellows-maker, bellows-treader, etc.

clothes, e. g.: clothes-brush, clothes-horse, etc. [Comp. a).] commons, e. g.: the Commons House of Parliament. Rev. of Rev., CXCVIII, 566b). [Comp. a).]

gallows, e. g.: gallows air (WASH. IRV., Sketch-Bk., E), gallows-bird, gallows-foot (SCOTT, Fair Maid, Ch. XXIV, 257), gallows-rope, etc.

goods, e. g.: goods station, goods traffic, goods-train, etc. [Comp. a).] hustings, e. g.: hustings-court, hustings-orator, hustings-speech, etc.

1) MURRAY, S. V. offspring, 4b.

Especial mention may here be made of such pluralia tantum as are geographical names (19, 1). When used adnominally these, apparently, retain the mark of the plural regularly.

I swear to the Netherlands People that I will maintain the constitution. Rev. of Rev., 15 Oct. 1898, 358.

The Netherlands railway. Times.

The United States Government. Westm. Gaz., No. 6101, 1c.

The latest company of castaways rescued from the Antipodes Islands were the crew of the four-masted French barque 'President Felix Faure'. Id., No. 5179, 3b.

In the following quotations Netherland may be apprehended as a pure adjective, of a similar nature as inland:

The pistol of the insignificant Gérard destroyed the possibility of a united Netherland state. MOTLEY, Rise, VI, Ch. VII, 898a.

The ancient rugged tree of Netherland liberty. Ib., 898b.

2) in conjunction with other words:

goods, e. g.: dry-goods store (Il. Lond. News), fancy-goods sale, etc.

quarters, e. g.: the new headquarters seat (Graph.).

stairs, e. g.: the down-stairs room (Mrs. WARD, Dav. Grieve, I, 227), the up-stairs window (G. ELIOT, Mill, VII, Ch. V, 483).

Note I. Most pluralia tantum, however, are placed in the singular when used adnominally. Thus:

ash, e. g.: ash-bin, ash-heap, ash-tray, etc.

billiard, e. g.: billiard-ball, billiard-marker, billiard-table, etc.

checker, e. g.: checker-board, checker-book, etc.

colour, e. g.: colour-sergeant.

domino, e. g.: domino-box.

draught, e. g.: draught-board, draught-book, etc.

gymnastic, e. g.: gymnastic-master, gymnastic-entertainment, etc.

skittle, e. g.: skittle-alley, skittle-ground, etc.

spirit, e. g.: spirit-bottle, spirit-phials (DICK., Pickw., Ch. XXVII, 239), etc.

wage, e. g.: wage-receiver (Mrs. WARD, Rob. Elsm., I, 264).

Thus also in such compounds as are illustrated in:

Others devoted themselves to the sodden and lee-dyed pieces of the cask. DICK., Tale of Two Cities, I, Ch. V, 43.

II. With some pluralia tantum usage is variable. Thus with:

custom. i. custom-collector (MURRAY), custom-gatherer (id.), custom-house (id.).

ii. customs-duties (id.), customs-laws (id.), the French-Customs authorities (Times), the customs-officers (Graph.), a customs-house clerk (JEROME, Diary, 44).

door. i. the out and in-door servants (G. MOORE, Esth. Waters, Ch. V, 33), out-door work (WASH. IRV., Rip van Winkle).

ii. out-of-doors reading (CH. LAMB, Last Essays of Elia, [301]), out-of-doors life (Miss YONGE, Heir of Redc., Ch. V, 65), out-of-doors tea-drinking (EDNA LYALL, Donovan, I, 129), out-of-doors statue (Westm. Gaz., No. 5048, 4a).

revel. i. This Lord of Misrule, or revel-master, was sometimes termed a Christmas Prince. Penny Cycl., XIV, 151/1.

ii. At the disposal of the actors were all the properties, scenery and dresses of the Revels Office. Il. Lond. News, No. 3816, Sup. XV.

scissor. i. scissor-bill (WEBSTER), scissor-tail (id.).

ii. a scissors-grinder (CON. DOYLE, Sherlock Holmes, I, 40).

trouser. i. trouser-pockets (G. ELIOT, Mid., V, Ch. XLI, 306).

ii. trousers-pocket (RID. HAGGARD, King Solomon's Mines, 16).

MURRAY has only the Middle-age (Middleage) as the adnominal form, but the Middle-Ages is also met with:

I attribute the quarrelsome nature of the Middle-Ages young men entirely to the absence of the soothing weed. JEROME, Idle Thoughts, VI, 79.

III. The official language has, or at least had, parcels post by the side of book-post and sample-post. MURRAY has only parcel-post, and this may be the present official term. The plural form, however, seems to be common enough:

The book-post, the sample-post and the parcels-post, although under the same management, seem to be all competing together. Graph. (Compare: The cash-on-delivery system has already been adopted by the parcel-delivery companies. Id.

The Samples-Depôt is particularly useful to representatives of English firms coming to Vienna. II. Lond. News, 3815, Sup. VIIIc.)

MURRAY (s. v. hand, 19) has hour-hand, minute-hand, but seconds-hand.

By the seconds-hands of the big old chronometer the defunct doctor had felt many a patient's pulse in his time. THACK., Pend., I, Ch. XVIII, 184.

IV. The plural seems to be the regular form when the noun modified in the adnominal word group is an ordinal numeral as in:
Such a vote requires a two-thirds majority. Westm. Gaz.

V. Observe also the practice in: We were strictly instructed by Authority to shoot only the half or three-quarter grown ones (sc. rabbits. HOR. HUTCHINSON (Westm. Gaz., No. 6011, 2c).

32. Obs. I. Owing to the relation between modifier and head-word being often analogous to one of those commonly expressed by a classifying genitive, and owing to the sameness in sound of the common case plural and the genitive plural, we sometimes find plural modifiers with the apostrophe of the genitive. (Ch. XXIV, 56, Obs. I.)

It may here be observed that the application of such typographical symbols as commas, hyphens, apostrophes, etc. is a matter which in England is largely left to the discretion of press-readers and compositors.

Digging his hands 'deep in his trousers' pockets. THACK., Newc., I, Ch. IV, 41.

He buried his hands in his trousers' pockets. LYTTON, Night and Morn., 194.

A United States' security. DICK., Christm. Car., II, 26.

He threw her out of a two pair of stairs' window. Id., Cop., Ch. I, 2b.

The parcels'-post van on the Embankment by electric light. ANSTEY, Fallen Idol.

The genitive plural even seems to be the ordinary form of the names of measures of time when forming part of an adnominal word-group together with a numeral. For illustration see also Ch. XXIV, 42, b, 2; 56, Obs. I and II.

- i. * Lady Godiva . . . sat . . . in her bower, with her youngest son, a two years' boy, at her knee. CH. KINGSLEY, Herew., Ch. I, 9a.
It will be a ten days' break for him at any rate. MRS. WARD, Marc., II, 273.
Then good morning, my four months' cousin. HARDY, Tess, II, Ch. XII, 98.
 The question . . . was whether the Marshal was to be "the President of a seven-years Republic", or "the seven-years President of a Republic." Periodical.¹⁾

There was equal animation in the three-and-a-half days discussion on the Welsh-Disestablishment Bill. Il. Lond. News, No. 3813, 788c.

- ii. A special four-year Course of Geography is required. Schoolmaster's Year-book, 1906, Advert., 32.

An eight or ten hour day. Rev. of Rev., CCIV, 332a.

An immediate advance of 2 s. a week to all grades who do not receive the eight-hour day. Ib.

Lord Haldane's three-day visit to Berlin caused . . . the greatest interest. Il. Lond. News, No. 3800, 225.

The fifteen-day circular ticket . . . down by boat and back by rail, has again been arranged. Id., No. 3813, 788c.

WENDT (Synt. des Adj., 21) quotes the following instance of the genitive plural of the name of a measure of length in a similar position:

A fifty miles' cruise. H. NORMAN, The World's Book.

The ordinary practice, however, is to retain the name of the measure of length in the singular in adnominal word-groups of this description: If you wish to thoroughly enjoy your dinner, take a thirty-mile country walk after breakfast. JEROME, Idle Thoughts, XI, 183.

We went on, looking into everything, laughing, wondering every step of our five-mile journey. SWEET, Old Chapel.

We settled down to our seven-mile drive. Westm. Gaz., No. 6029, 9b.

- II. If the noun year enters into an adnominal word-group together with a numeral and the adjective old, it is, apparently, almost regularly kept in the common case singular.

- i. Nearest her mother sits the nine-year-old Patty. G. ELIOT, Scenes, I, Ch. II, 19.

"Hold the horse, Willy," said Mrs. Moss to the twelve-year-old boy. Ib., Mill, VI, Ch. XI, 413.

He is only a two-year-old fox-terrier. JEROME, Idle Thoughts, VIII, 123.

Sixty-year-old brandy. JAMES PAYN, Glow. Worm. Tales, II, D, 52.

His eighteen-year-old daughter was attacked by appendicitis. Rev. of Rev., CCXVI, 558a.

After being four days missing, Thomas Martindale, a ten-year-old Penrith boy, who strayed into the fells near Ullswater last Tuesday, turned up safely at Troutbeck on Saturday. Daily Mail.

- ii. She was a chronicle of fifty-years'-old scandal. THACK., Sam. Titm., Ch. II, 24.

- iii. She picked up the revolver, and, aiming at her head, missed and that her two-years-old girl Winifred. Yorkshire Post, 26/8, 1912.

In other adnominal word-groups made up of numeral + name of measure of time + adjective the name of the measure seems to stand regularly in the plural, whether common case or genitive.

¹⁾ WENDT, Synt. des heut. Eng., 109.

i. * Scrooge had not bestowed one thought on Marley, since his last mention of his seven-years' dead partner that afternoon. DICK., *Christm. Car.*⁵, I, 19. (Compare: And yet that face of Marley, seven years dead, came like the ancient Prophet's rod, and swallowed up the whole. Ib., I, 21.)

 That day Sir Lancelot at the palace craved | Audience of Guinevere, to give at last | ... The nine-years-fought-for diamonds. TEN., Lanc. and El., 1160.

ii. * Mother and daughter were seen in the evenings one with a baby at her breast, the other with an eighteen-months'-old child in her arms. G. MOORE, Esth. Waters, Ch. III, 22.

 At an inquest on the body of Joseph Enoch Robinson, the four-months-old child of an Army Reservist [etc.]. Times.

A four-months-long winter. MERRIMAN.¹⁾

Names of measures of length, except foot, are probably as a rule kept in the singular when entering into such adnominal word-groups.

i. His Imperial Majesty rode along the two-mile long lines. II. Lond. News, No. 3794.

ii. The dusty high-road lay through a forest of pine backed on one side by a three-thousand-feet-high fjeld. H. K. DANIELS, The Post-Boy (Westm. Gaz., No. 5418, 2c).

After the indefinite article such a word-group as five-year-old boy is mostly replaced by boy of five or boy of five years old, in which latter collocation old seems to have crept in through the influence of such a sentence as he is five years old. Compare also ONIONS, Advanc. Eng. Synt., § 94, and Ch. XLII, 4.

i. A lad of twelve. MRS. ALEX., A Life Int., I, Ch. II, 33.

ii. A heifer of three years old, and a she-goat of three years old. Bible, Genesis, XI, 9.

A child of twelve years old. THACK., Van. Fair, II, Ch. III, 20.

Note the varied practice in:

She busied herself with sprinkling the linen dried during the daytime, in company with her nine-year-old brother Abraham, and her sister Eliza-Louisa of twelve and a half. HARDY, Tess, I, Ch. III, 25.

Observe also: We do not admire such phrases as 'the sixteen-yearred bride'. Athen., No. 4436, 511a.

III. The use of the plural form of measures other than of either time or length, when connected with a numeral to form an adnominal word-group, does not seem to be so infrequent as we often find it stated: You build a 45.000 tons hotel of thin steel plates. Eng. Rev., 1912, May, 308. You are at night on the bridge in charge of a 150.000 tons ship. Ib. Its one-hundred-pounds projectile is the heaviest that can be man-handled. II. Lond. News, No. 3800, 247.

IV. Instead of twopenny (etc.)-halfpenny some people prefer to say twopence (etc.)-halfpenny.

Two dozen stamps and a dozen twopence-halfpenny ones. SWEET, Prim. of Spok. Eng.

Note also the disparaging sense often conveyed by twopenny or twopenny-halfpenny.

The reason of all this misery, rage and dissension, lies in a poor little twopenny dinner-party in Lilliput Street. THACK., A Little Dinner at Tim., Ch. III, (312).

¹⁾ WENDT, Synt. des heut. Eng., 109.

Can you fancy a twopenny-halfpenny baroness of King Francis's time patronising Bayard? Id., New c., I, Ch. VII, 83.

If she made Firkin a twopenny-halfpenny present, (she) accompanied it with so many compliments, that the twopence-halfpenny was transmuted into gold in the heart of the grateful waiting-maid. Id., Van. Fair, I, Ch. XIX, 195.

33. Contrary to Dutch practice nouns are frequently placed in the plural when the things for which they stand are referred to each of the individuals separately of a group of persons. The plural is even the rule with many names of actions and states. (24.) See also Ch. XXXIII, 13, a.

i. * Some were seen to put their tongues in their cheeks. WASH. IRVING, Sketch-Book, E.

The boys took their places. DICK., Ol. Twist, Ch. II, 8a.

Mr. and Mrs. Fizziwig took their stations, one on either side the door. Id., *Christm. Car.*⁵, II, 47.

She asked him to change seats with her. G. ELIOT, Mid., IV, Ch. XXXV, 246.

They grasped each other's hands. MRS. WARD, Rob. Elsm., II, 258.

With your advantages you might turn the heads of half the-girls in town. EDNA LYALL, Don., I, 140.

Englishmen, as a rule, have broad backs and somewhat tough hides. Graph.

 Both brothers held their breaths. CH. KINGSLEY, Westw. Ho!, Ch. XIX, 146a.

We all three held our breaths. MISS BRAD., My First Happy Christm. (STOF., Handl., I, 71).

The three occupants with their joys and sorrows, their hopes and fears, were each living out an absorbing life story. EDNA LYALL, Hardy Norsew., Ch. XVIII, 165.

The saddest moment in the lives of these two persons was over and done with. MRS. WARD, Rob. Elsm., III, 218.

The only odd part is that we have waited thirty-five years before making up our minds. Graph.

It is to our advantage to grow accustomed to taking deep breaths. RIPPMANN, Sounds of Spoken English, § 4.

- ii. * The poor soldiers of the Temple will not alone place their foot upon the necks of the kings. SCOTT, Ivanhoe.¹⁾

You will see how they pine for their desk or their study. STEVENSON, Virginibus Puerisque, 118.²⁾

 It influenced their life. THACK., Van. Fair, I, Ch. VI, 57.

They sent this little spar out of the wreck with their love to good Mrs. Sedley. Id., Ch. XVII, 176.

We drew our breath again. MISS BRAD., My First Happy Christm. (STOF., Handl., I, 73).

Note. This use of the plural seems to have been more common in Early Modern English than it is now. Thus the Clarendon Press Editors commenting on whither you will, so I were from your sights (Richard II, IV, 1, 315) observe "that the plural is frequently used by SHAKESPEARE and writers of the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries when designating an attribute common to many, in cases where it would now be considered a solecism". As further instances they cite many passages in SHAKESPEARE, as Lear IV, 6, 35; Rich. III, iv, 1, 25; Timon of Athens, I, 1, 255; Pericles, I, 1, 74; Two Gentlemen, I, 3, 48, 49; Henry VIII, III, 1, 68, etc. It is a significant fact that POPE in the above line from Richard II, changed sights into sight. Also in the following quotations the plural seems to stand at variance with Present-English usage:

Do you consent we shall acquaint him with it, | As needful in our loves, fitting our duty. Hamlet, I, 1, 173.

That you vouchsafe your rest here in our court | Some little time; so by your companies | To draw him on to pleasures. Id., II, 2, 14.

34. In indicating different varieties of a thing by an adjective the non-repetition of other modifiers, such as the definite article, a possessive pronoun, etc., mostly entails the use of the plural form. Thus we ordinarily say the Dutch and English languages, but the Dutch and the English language.

i. * It (sc. the Latin) is at this day the basis of the French, Spanish and Portuguese languages. MAC., Hist., I, Ch. I, 4:

The simple words in which the writer of Genesis records the proceedings of the fifth and sixth days of the Creation. HUXLEY, Col. Es., VIII, 1, 35.

In the course of the strife of the fourteenth and fifteenth centuries England had claimed the whole and occupied much of French territory. SIDNEY LEE, The French Renaissance in England, I, Ch. VIII, 30.

 Whichever (course) is adopted, it is of supreme importance that it should be accepted whole-heartedly by the Liberal and Labour Party. Westm. Gaz., No. 5225, 1c.

ii. The parities of circumstance between the Irish Church and the Welsh Church are very remarkable. Eng. Rev., 1912, July, 625.

35. The singular is sometimes used instead of the plural for some oratorical effect, especially in enumerations.

field and highway. And busily all the night (the snow) | Had been heaping field and highway | With a silence deep and white. J. RUSSELL LOWELL, The first Snowfall, I.

ghost and spirit. It was now the witching hour consecrated to ghost and spirit. LYTON, Rienzi, I, Ch. XII, 71.

town and village. Town and village were harried and burnt. GREEN.¹⁾

36. It does not seem amiss that at the conclusion of this chapter a few words should be devoted to certain nouns that are constantly put into requisition before certain pluralia tantum, collective nouns of the second kind (26; Ch. XXVI, 7), and some other words when separate specimens or instances are meant. These nouns are mostly indispensable after the indefinite article or a numeral, but may also be met with after other modifiers. It is hardly necessary to observe that they have certain meanings of their own. Compare also COBHAM BREWER, Dict. of Phrase and Fable, s. v. number. The following are among the most interesting: article, as in an article of furniture, belief, dress, etc.

¹⁾ FOELS.—KOCH, Wis. Gram., § 274.

bit, as in a bit of news, advice, etc.

The best bit of news that has reached us this Christmas time is that C. B., at Biarritz has been taking a thorough rest. Rev. of Rev., CCXVII, 5q.

body, as in a body of troops, etc.

One of his generals, with a large body of troops, was taken at Maxen. MAC., Fred.

bout, which is mostly preceded by a gerund, as in a drinking bout, a shooting bout, or followed by a gerund, as in:

In the meantime we can take an occasional bout at shooting and fishing. WASH. IRV., Dolf Heyl. (STOR., HANDL., I, 138).

Dick had come to that part of the poem, wherein the bard describes as blandly as though he were recording a dance at the opera, or a harmless bout of bucolic cudgelling at the village fair [etc.]. THACK., Henry Esm., II, Ch. XI, 245.

clump, as in a clump of bushes, brushwood, briers, etc. See MURRAY, s. v. brake.

display, as in a display of fireworks (20).

fit as in a fit of fever, coughing, rheumatism, illness, etc.

The agonies of grief and remorse with which she was seized, occasioned her a severe fit of illness. Miss BURNEY, Evelina, II, 6.

At last she was interrupted by a violent fit of coughing. THACK., Sam. Titm., Ch. II, 24.

I hope you won't have a fit of the blues when you are left all alone at this festive season. MRS. ALEX., For his sake, II, Ch. II, 39.

flight, as in a flight of stairs, steps (20), arrows.

They shot another flight (sc. of arrows) into the air. SWIFT, Gul. Travels, I.

head, as in a head of cattle, game, poultry, etc. (29, b; Ch. XXVI, 8, Obs. II.)

Ladislav won't be shipped off like a head of cattle. G. ELIOT, Mid., V, Ch. XLIX, 359.

Note. Head is sometimes dispensed with before cattle (Ch. XXVI, 8, Obs. I); conversely it is sometimes used where it is not absolutely necessary.

i. Innumerable waggons, innumerable cattle remained in the power of the conquerors. MAC., Clive, (519a).

During the last two years the lives of more than 700,000 cattle had been saved. Times.

ii. Next year, twenty head of black men, direct from Africa, were landed from a Dutch ship, in James River, and were immediately bought by the gentleman of the Colony. OLMSTED.¹⁾ item, as in an item of news, crime, mortality, etc.

What a number of items of human crime, misery, slavery go to form that sum-total of glory. THACK., Barry Lyndon, Ch. IV, 70.

In this workhouse was born . . . the item of mortality whose name is prefixed to the head of this chapter. DICK., Ol. Twist, Ch. I, 19.

Every month brings items of news, small in themselves, but significant of much. Rev. of Rev., CCXV, 445a.

lot, as in a lot of goods.

pack, as in a pack of cards, servants (see under parcel, etc.).

¹⁾ MURRAY, s. v. head, 1, c.

pair, as in a pair of breeches, compasses, etc., (19, a), indentures. The application of pair in the obsolete meaning of set (of almost any description), as in a pair of gallows, harness, numbles, armour, beads, cards, organs (clavichords, bagpipes, etc.), drawers, survives only in a pair of stairs, a pair of steps (20).

Will his vouchers vouch him no more of his purchases, and double ones too, than the length and breadth of a pair of indentures. HAML., V, I, 119.

parcel, as in a parcel of servants, fools, etc.

A book, sir, that tells the story of a parcel of servants, and of a pack of footmen and ladies' maids fuddling in ale-houses. THACK., NEWC., I, CH. IV, 46.

park, as in a park of artillery.

The Shah of Persia, finding that his Duma had become the centre of political agitation, dissolved it by the summary process of bombarding it with a park of artillery. REV. OF REV., CCXXII, 6b.

peal, as in a peal of bells, laughter, etc.

A fine new peal of ten bells has been hung in place of the former eight. L. LOND. NEWS, No. 3678, 539.

piece, as in a piece of news (19, g); evidence (expenditure, information, intelligence, etc.) (26); anecdote (27); cannon (28, b); advice, artillery, business, folly, furniture, good fortune, goods, money, service, statistics, water, etc.

He at one time advised her to send him to sea, a piece of advice only given in the most desperate cases. WASH. IRV., DOLF HEYL. (STOF., HANDL., I, 105). Some very trifling piece of business was alleged as a reason for the call. MRS. GASK., CRANF., CH. VIII, 141.

That secret marriage between Katharine and John turned out to have been such a piece of folly. MAR. CRAWF., KATH. LAUD., II, CH. XV, 284.

Considerable sensation has been excited by a startling piece of good fortune which has befallen James Plush Esq. THACK., THE DIARY OF C. JAMES DE LA PLUCHE, ESQ.

Not only not a misfortune, but probably the greatest piece of good fortune which could have come to Clara. DOR. GER., THE ETERN. WOMAN, CH. III.

It's a wonderful piece of goods. THACK., SAM. TITM., CH. II, 23.

Change. Small pieces of money which may be given for larger pieces or for bank-notes. WEBST., Dict.

They were both of that decent phlegmatic order of people, to whom one may at any time safely communicate a remarkable piece of news. CH. BRONTË, JANE EYRE, CH. XXXVIII, 553.

It is owing to her recollection of this piece of good service that I have the permission of wandering through these deserted halls. SCOTT, FAIR MAID, INTROD., 11. A little piece of statistics is worth a great deal of theoretical talk. ENG. REV., 1912, Oct., 467.

To this piece of water his only passage lay through one deep canal. MOTLEY, RISE, IV, CH. II, 573.

Ferry. The place or passage where boats can pass over a narrow piece of water to convey passengers. ANNANDALE, CONC. Dict.

range, as in a range of steps (20).

round, as in a round of ammunition, shot, etc.

The majesty of the law fired blunderbusses in among them, loaded with rounds of shot and ball. DICK., TALE OF TWO CITIES, I, CH. I, 17.

set, as in a set of gallows (19, j), dominoes, draughts, teeth, twins. Besides the two men, a notched and disfigured bench, ... with a draught-board, ... a set of draughts, ... a set of dominoes. DICK., Little Dorrit, Ch. I, 2b. He was the father of two sets of twins. Westm. Gaz., No. 5277, 8b.

show, as in a show of fireworks (20).

spell, as in a spell of work, coughing, sneezing, etc.

The consciousness that after a long spell of work he was entering upon a well-earned holiday, was a very welcome and comfortable thing. W. BLACK., The New Prince Fortunatus, Ch. VI.

stand, as in a stand of arms, colours (20).

stroke, as in a stroke of paralysis.

Just before the stroke of paralysis he had begun to gain strength. Times.

turn, as in a turn of work.

To chafe. To do, accomplish (a turn of work), arch. or obs. MURRAY.

suit, as in a suit of clothes, sables, etc.

I made a suit of clothes wholly of these skins. DEFOE, Rob. Crusoe.

We must fancy our American traveller to be a handsome young fellow, whose suit of sables only made him look the more interesting. THACK., Virg., Ch. I, 7.

volley, as in a volley of shot (27), oaths, laughter.

The captain seized him by the throat with a volley of oaths. SMOL., Red. Rand., Ch. XI, 67.

He and Osborne fired off a ringing volley of laughter. THACK., Van. Fair, I, Ch. VI, 60.

CHAPTER XXVI.

CONCORD.

1. The way in which certain elements of a sentence, or a complex or clauses, are related, causes a certain analogy or agreement in number, person, gender and case, which is called concord. SWEET, N. E. Gr., § 91.

Owing to the fact that the accusative and dative of nouns and their attributive modifiers were made uniform with the nominative long before the Modern-English period, there are no instances of concord as to case to register, except when the genitive is in question. Even here the extensive use of the group-genitive has obliterated almost all traces of concord. For details see Ch. XXIV, 3—4.

CONCORD OF NUMBER.

2. Concord of number is exhibited by:
 - a) the subject and its finite verb;
 - b) the subject and the nominal part of the predicate;
 - c) a (pro)noun and its attributive or predicative adnominal modifiers;
 - d) a noun and the pronouns referring to it.

NOTE. As to concord a compound subject is essentially equivalent to a single plural subject.

Thy body and thy mind are alike unfit | To trust each other. BYRON, Manfred, II, 1.

3. These different manifestations of concord mostly co-incide, i. e. the number of the subject is mostly the same not only as the number of the finite verb, but also of that of the nominal part of the predicate and, in case the subject is a noun, of that of its adnominal modifiers and the pronouns used in referring to it.

These boys have been fast friends since fortune brought them together.

"Why do you doubt your senses?" — "Because," said Scrooge, "a little thing affects them. A slight disorder of the stomach makes them cheat." DICK., *Christm. Car.*⁵, I, 24.

CONCORD WITH SINGLE ELEMENTS OF THE SENTENCE.

4. a) Want of concord is the most commonly met with between the subject and the nominal part of the predicate.

Note I. It deserves notice that in this case the finite verb rigidly follows the subject, at least in carefully written English. For apparent exceptions see 6.

Sometimes some difficulty is experienced in deciding which is the subject, and which is the nominal part of the predicate. This difficulty, however, need not last long, if it is borne in mind that, except for communications in which some part is thrown into prominence from being contrasted with some idea mentioned before or after, the predicate, as containing the information about what we are thinking about, has the stronger stress. TERWEY, Taal en Letteren, II, 138 ff.; DEN HERTOOG, Ned. Spraakk., I, 7, Opm. 2; PAUL, Princ., § 88; MÄTZN., *Eng. Gram.*², II, 156.

- i. * All is but toys. Macb., II, 3, 99.

Soon after our dinner was served in, which was right good viands. BACON, New Atlantis, (274).

His meat was locusts and wild honey. Bible, Matth., III, 4.

Her part in the world was deeds. Mrs. CRAIK, John Hal., Ch. XXV, 261.

The nation is but the individuals who compose it. FROUDE, Oceana, Ch. XXI, 347.

The result of that marriage was four children. HUXL., Darwiniana, Ch. XI, 405.

There's an infallible guide both for you and me, and that's the Holy Scriptures. Mrs. WARD, David Grieve, I, 238.

 Not the least interesting feature of this Supplement are the illustrations.

II. Lond. News, No. 3830, 374b. (The subject has back-position.)

The only difficulty in Finnish are the changes undergone by the stem. SWEET.¹) ('d.)

Their peculiar haunt, it is said, are the deep gorges of the mountain.

Huc's Trav. in Thibet, II, 100.²) (Id.)

- ii. A crowd is not company, and faces are but a gallery of pictures, and talk is but a tinkling cymbal where there is no love. BACON, Essays, Of Friendship, (74).

My slumbers — if I slumber — are not sleep, | But a continuance of enduring thought. BYRON, Manfr., I, 1, 3.

The waves are our pillow, | Our cradle the sea, | The rougher the billow, | The happier we. (?), Our Home is the Ocean, I.

The Scotch Lowlands were not, in the eleventh century, the poor and barbarous country which some have reported them to have been. CH. KINGSLEY, Hereward, Ch. II, 20a.

Portuguese officials in Delagoa Port are the most corrupt lot in the world. Times.

The peasants are still the dark horse of the situation. Rev. of Rev., CCIII, 457b.

II. In the following quotations the discrepancy between the number of the subject and that of the finite verb seems to be due to mere carelessness:

„Stop here,” was Amyas's first words. CH. KINGSLEY, Westw. Ho! Ch. XXV, 190b.

¹) The King's English, 65. ²) HODGSON, *Errors*⁸, III, 131.

The pages which describe how the 34th Osake Regiment wiped out the tradition that had survived since the Saigo rebellion is a typical piece of description. Times.¹⁾

People do not believe now as they did, but the moral inconsistencies of our contemporaries is no proof thereof. Daily Telegraph.¹⁾

- b. There may also be discrepancy as to number between the subject and a predicative adnominal noun of the second kind (7) standing after a passive verb. In this case it is also the subject which determines the form of the finite verb.

i. It was considered bad manners to put food into the mouth with the knife. GÜNTHER, Leerboek, 71.

ii. These pictures were considered a very valuable acquisition.

5. The following are the most important instances of discrepancy in number between the subject and the nominal part of the predicate or the predicative adnominal adjunct.

- a) The nominal part of the predicate is the interrogative what, the subject is a plural noun.

Debts? What were his debts? They were a trifle. THACK., Pend., I.

What were those masses? G. ELIOT, Mill, VII, Ch. V, 482.

- b) The subject is the condensed relative what (Ch. XV; Ch. XXXIX, 7), the nominal part of the predicate or the predicative adnominal adjunct is a plural noun. See also WENDT, E. S., XV.

i. I visited what were at the time the principal sights of the town.

ii. The New-Testament Revised Version of 1881 . . . has not won the place expected for it in the affection of the majority of readers. This failure is largely due to what were considered its many needless alterations in the old version. Westm. Gaz., No. 6017, 15b.

- c) The nominal part of the predicate is the numeral many placed in front-position, the subject is a singular noun or substantival equivalent. (Ch. XL, 93, b.)

Many's the day, and many's the way in which he has backed me. DICK., Little Dorrit, Ch. X, 63a.

Many's the one of us that has drunk to the Frenchman's memory over our wine. THACK., Barry Lyndon, Ch. VI, 97.

Many was the young fellow about town who looked with wonder at the number of these notes. Id., Pend., I, Ch. I, 2.

- d) The subject is the anticipating it representing a substantive clause, the nominal part of the predicate is a plural noun.

It is my orders to you that you publish these banns no more. FIELDING, Jos. Andrews, IV, Ch. II, 206.

It was the Normans who began to build that fine old hall. G. ELIOT, Mill, I, Ch. XII, 103.

- e) The nominal part of the predicate, whether or no preceded by an adjective, denotes a quality (Ch. XXIII, 14, ff.), and differs in number from the subject.

i. Fanny was well enough, but Biddy was no great things. THACK., Pend., I, Ch. XI, 113 (= Dutch beteekende niet veel).

¹⁾ The King's English, 65.

I 'han not seen th' oud ladies since their sorrows, and it's but manners to go and ax after them. MRS. GASK., Mary Barton, Ch. XXV, 261.
She was nuts on public-houses, was England's Virgin Queen. JEROME, Three men in a Boat, Ch. VI, 61.

He is all faults who has no fault at all. TEN., Lanc. and Ed., 132.
She said that she had been taught that it was bad manners to do so in a mixed company. MRS. EWINGS, Jackanapes, 4.

- ii. All these are very good fun. TROL., Thack., Ch. VIII, 173.
I like poneys. They are so little trouble. MARRYAT, Making the Best of it (ROBINSON, The Advanced Reader, 34).
All the weapons are dummy. Westm. Gaz., No. 6029, 1c.

- f) The subject is plural and the nominal part of the predicate is kept in the singular because it has more or less the character of an adjective. (Ch. XXIII, 16, d.)

They turned Christian. RUDY. KIPLING, Plain Tales, 1, 11.

Note I. A very common instance of want of concord in Dutch, that of a singular demonstrative pronoun used as the subject of a plural nominal part of the predicate, as in Dit zijn mijn vrienden, is unknown in English, the demonstrative being made to agree with the nominal part of the predicate: These (those) are my friends. When, however, the latter denotes a quality (e), its subject may be a singular demonstrative: This is bad manners.

II. There are, of course, also cases in which there is want of concord between the accusative and a noun as nominal part of the predicate in the construction accusative with infinitive, but these will not be discussed in detail as being unimportant.

Calenture. A disease incident to sailors within the tropics, characterized by delirium in which the patient, it is said, fancies the sea to be green fields, and desires to leap into it. MURRAY.

III. The singular form of the nominal part of the predicate seems to be improper in:

The thought that these strangers had been a witness to the scene was intolerable to her. RICH. BAGOT, The Just and the Unjust, I, Ch. VI, 208.

IV. In the phrase to be friends with a man (Ch. XXV, 21) the use of the plural is probably due to the blending with another construction, viz: A and B are friends. Compare also KELLNER, Hist. Outl. of Eng. Synt., § 17; and ONIONS; Advanced Eng. Synt., § 24.

6. The other cases of want of concord as to number are mostly due to discrepancy between the form of a noun and the meaning it conveys: the former may be singular, while the latter is plural, and vice versa. Here the English language occupies a unique position among the modern languages. On the one hand it is quite common, or even usual, for a singular noun with a plural meaning to be construed as a plural, on the other hand we meet with frequent instances of a plural noun denoting a singular idea being dealt with as a singular. Anything of this kind is only occasionally found in either French or German or Dutch.

7. Singular nouns with a plural meaning, commonly called collective nouns, are of two kinds: i. e. the idea they express is thought of either within or without limits. Of the first kind are such nouns as party, army, flock, herd, wood, grove, etc.; of the second such as people, clergy, vermin, cattle, game, etc.

Some nouns belong now to this, now to that group. Thus people is a collective noun of the first kind in The English are a wealthy people; while in The Wards are wealthy people, You were away the last time she had people there (TROLL., Framl. Pars., Ch. I, 9) it is a collective noun of the second kind.

8. Obs. I. A peculiar feature of some English collective nouns of the second kind is that they admit of being modified by a word (numeral, adjective or noun) denoting number. Compare Ch. XXV, 36.

cattle. The sound was like that of fifty breaks, with six blood cattle in each. DICK., Pickw., Ch. XLIX, 456.

Innumerable waggons, innumerable cattle remained in the power of the conquerors. MAC., Clive, (519a).

There was little to inclose except a few cattle. FROUDE, Oceana, Ch. VIII, 110.

A few cattle were lifted here and there. EMILY LAWLESS, A Colonel of the Empire, Ch. VII.

During the last two years the lives of more than 700,000 cattle had been saved. Times.

clergy. You see me at the head of a staff of six clergy. HALL CAINE, The Christian, I, 37.

There were eighty clergy. Ib., II, 67.

A number of clergy were present. Times.

Note. According to MURRAY this use of clergy as a 'numeral plural' is rare.

farrow. Pour in sow's blood, that hath eaten | Her nine farrow. Macb., IV, 1, 65.

folk(s). He laid his hands upon a few sick folk and healed them. Bible, Mark., V, 6.

His humble rural petitioner could hardly hope to get a hearing among so many grand folks, who attended his levee. THACK., Pend., I, Ch. I, 13.

Beatrix's three kinsfolk looked at one another at this intelligence. Id., Henry Esmond, III, Ch. X, 415.

Many folk will be anxious to know what Shakespeare's flame was like. Academy.

About half a million old folks received their pension in England and Ireland on New Year's Day, in Scotland on January 2nd. Rev. of Rev., CCXXIX, 4a.

gentry. The six gentry went forward in the order of their rank. HAL. SUTCL., Pam the Fiddler, Ch. VIII, 118.

The three gentry... were dismayed by the loss of their best swordsmen. Ib., 120.

people. There might have been twenty people there. DICK., Christm. Car. This morning a single-handed Negro Entertainer gave his performance on the sands to quite five people. Punch.

Three people had been shot. Rev. of Rev., CCXIII, 226b.

police. Jenkins had got in this man to help him till some more police should arrive. Mrs. WARD, Marcella, II, 75.

Barkly East was relieved yesterday by Captain Wooler with fifty Cape Police and Captain Penny with twenty Hershel Mounted Volunteers. Daily Chron. A body of 50 burgher police were ambushed near Pretoria on the 10th. Times. The magistrate accompanied by 20 police has gone to Palmiet Fontein. Ib. Springing wildly from the platform, he passed through the excited shouting crowd towards a few police who stood a short distance from the stand. Graph.

Now and then an officer took with him a few police and got near enough to hear the fiery harangues. Ib.

A similar feature may also be observed:

a) in such single-unit nouns as fish, fowl, cannon, etc., which, when used in a collective sense, do not take the mark of the plural (Ch. XXV, § 28);

β) in certain names of troops, as infantry, cavalry, rank and file, horse, foot, etc. (Ch. IV, 15).

Also swine now practically belongs to the same category of nouns. (Ch. XXV, 8, a, Note II.)

- II. Some collective nouns of the second kind do not admit of a similar use with a preceding number-indicating word; others require an individualizer (Ch. XXV, 36) when separate units are meant. Thus we can say He expected company but not He expected several company*; and We saw traces of game, but not We traced several game* for We traced several head of game.

These collective nouns may be modified by the singular much and little (less, least). Compare also Ch. XL, 62, c.

company. There was but little company when I went. THACK., Sam. Titm., Ch. VIII, 88.

There was little company kept at the Manor. G. ELIOT, Scenes, II, Ch. IV, 110. Her parents see much company. Id., Mid., III, Ch. XXXI, 218.

game. The King return'd from out the wild, | He bore but little game in hand. TEN., The Victim, IV.

The less small game there is about, the better the chances are of successful stalking. Westm. Gaz., No. 5448, 14a.

society. They had dwelt in solitude, seeing little or no society. R. BUCHANAN, That Winter Night, Ch. I, 12,

Thus also they can be preceded by a great (good) deal of, not by a great many:

They had a great deal of genteel company from Theobald's Road. WASH. IRV., Sketch-Bk., XXV, 253.

Poultry is found with a numeral denoting either quantity or number.

i. He could not raise as much poultry as that. All the Year Round.¹⁾ ii. The poorest occupier of land can commonly maintain a few poultry. ADAM SMITH.¹⁾

- III. When collective nouns of the second kind are preceded by the definite article, a genitive or a possessive pronoun, they are, practically, no longer distinguished from those of the first kind.

¹⁾ SATTLER, E. S., X.

9. Collective nouns of the first kind are construed as singulars as far as the demonstrative pronouns are concerned: this family, that party, etc.

The following quotation affords an instance of a plural demonstrative before a collective noun of this description:

When you and those poor number saved with you | Hung on our driving boat.
Twelfth Night, I, 2, 10.

Usage varies as to the finite verb and as to the personal, possessive and reflective pronouns used in referring to them. These are singular when the individuals making up the collection are thought of jointly, plural when thought of separately. Thus it is easy to account for the alternate use of the singular and the plural in This jury returns a verdict of guilty and This jury are kept without food.

The singular pronouns used in referring to collective nouns are mostly neuter, but the masculine pronouns may also be met with. See the quotations below under enemy, foe, public.

It is but natural that writers and speakers do not always pause to think whether the communication given applies to the individuals of which a collection is composed jointly or separately, nor is this always clear from the circumstances of the situation described, so that there is a good deal of vacillation and, apparently, even incongruity in the choice of the number.

Some particulars about generally observed usage may, however, be given.

- a) 1) The singular construction is regular, or all but regular, when the collective noun denotes a body of things, or of animals to which no personal qualities are ascribed: wood, fleet; shoal, swarm, etc.
- 2) It is the ordinary construction:
 - a) when the collection is a large body of persons, so that it is difficult to think of its constituent members separately: army, community, detachment, force, nation.
 - β) when the collective noun, mostly preceded by all the or the whole is equivalent to everybody: town, world, country; similarly when proper names are used in an analogous way.
- b) 1) The plural construction is regular, or all but regular:
 - a) when the collective noun denotes mere number: hundred, thousand, million; generality, half, majority, number, remainder, remnant, rest, etc. Thus even also when the reference is to things;
 - β) when the collective noun denotes a section of society with distinct reference to some quality: aristocracy, gentry, nobility, peasantry; sex, etc.;

- 1) when the collective noun is felt to be more or less equivalent to the Dutch men (German man, French on): (the) people, (the) public.
- 2) It is the usual construction when the collective noun denotes a small body of persons, even when joint rather than separate action is in question: board, committee, company, council, couple, court, crew, family, government, pair, party, race, staff, etc.
- c) Although the choice of number is to some extent a matter of personal predilection, attentive reading will show that on the whole the plural construction is more in favour than the singular, especially in the choice of the person-indicating pronouns, the use of the singular it, its and itself, primarily suggesting absence of sex, being more or less distinctly felt as incongruous in speaking about persons. The plural construction is also, naturally, preferred when the collective noun is the subject of a plural nominal predicate. For particulars see also BAIN, H. E. Gr., 301; id., Comp., 282 ff.; ONIONS, Advanced Eng. Synt., 18.

Here follow some illustrative quotations; those in which the construction seems to go counter to the sense conveyed are marked with a dagger (†). It must be understood that, when only one construction is illustrated, this does not necessarily mean that the alternative is impossible or even unusual.

admiralty. i. The Admiralty has shown a lack of skill or energy in advertising the Navy. Eng. Rev., 1912, Sept., 283. (Thus throughout in the article in question.)

ii. The Admiralty have increased the standard of chest measurement by half an inch. Standard.

It has been stated this week that the Admiralty were contemplating a programme of six or seven Dreadnoughts. Westm. Gaz., No. 5543, 2a.

aristocracy. Who says that the aristocracy are proud. Mrs. GASK., Cranf., Ch. XI, 206.

The Cranford people were grateful to the aristocracy who were so kind as to live near the town. Ib., Ch. X, 181.

army. i. The army was led into the defile. MASON, Eng. Gram.³⁴, § 380.

ii. † The army of the Queen mean to besiege us. Henry VI, C, I, 2, 65.

artillery. The Artillery are back in camp. Punch, No. 3712, 172b.

assembly. i. The Assembly has decreed. BAIN, H. E. Gr., § 301.

† The Assembly put on its hats and went out. JER., Three men in a Boat, Ch. II, 23.

ii. † The assembly of these magistrates by theory possessed an authority they had neither the power nor the courage to exert. LYTTON, Rienzi, I, Ch. II, 19.

association. We cannot believe for a moment that the British Medical Association will advise its members to stand out. Westm. Gaz., No. 6059, 2d.

audience. i. † Conscious how indifferent his audience is to the naked truth of his poem, his history gradually becomes a romance. SCOTT, Brid. of Trierm., Pref.

ii. Then he rebukes his audience because they will not listen to the truth. TROL., Thack., Ch. IV, 108.

board. i. † (Mr. Bumble) informed him that the board had said he was to appear before it forthwith. DICK., Ol. Twist, Ch. II, 27.

The Board of Trade has issued its new rules for the equipment of vessels at sea. Westm. Gaz., No. 6017, 2b.

ii. The board were sitting in solemn conclave, when Mr. Bumble rushed into the room in great excitement. DICK., O.I. Twist, Ch. II, 33.

The board made periodical pilgrimages to the farm, and always sent the beadle the day before, to say they were going. Ib., Ch. II, 33.

bridal. And issuing from the Gothic arch | The bridal now resumed their march. SCOTT, Lady, III, xx.

bulk. i. † And the public, the great British public? The bulk no doubt is still but little influenced by anything not prodigiously advertised. Westm. Gaz., No. 6023, 7b.

ii. The bulk of the Presbyterian clergy are as fierce as the slave-holders against the abolitionist. Hr. MARTINEAU, Soc. Amer., III, 279.¹⁾

It is unlikely that the bulk of those who polled against Mr. Shaw were influenced by any one specific grudge against the policy of the party for which he stood. Sat. Rev. (Westm. Gaz., No. 6023, 16c).

cabinet. i. † The Cabinet would, in any case, be bound to keep its own counsel. Times.

ii. The Cabinet incline to the Lord Advocate's opinion. Rev. of Rev., CCVII, 227a.

camp. † The camp rose to its feet as one man. BRET HARTE, The Luck of Roaring Camp, 6.

cavalry. i. Cavalry is superior to infantry for making wide turning movements. Harmsworth Encycl., s. v. cavalry.

ii. The cavalry were fifteen thousand. MAC., Clive, (518b).

The cavalry particularly distinguished themselves. MCCARTHY, Short Hist., Ch. XI, 150.

childhood. Childhood is poetic and creative. T. P.'s Weekly, No. 483, 163a.

class. There is a numerous class of readers who imagine that the same words cannot be repeated without tautology. WORDSW., Pref. Note to 'The Thorn'. You need not suppose that your class are martyrs. CH. BRONTË, Shirley, I, Ch. V, 78.

clergy. In our church the clergy do not marry. THACK., Henry Esmond, I, Ch. III, 26.

The clergy were all men of enlarged men and varied culture. G. ELIOT, Mill, II, Ch. IV, 151.

The new Protestant clergy were often unpopular. GREEN, Short Hist., Ch. VIII, § 3, 378.

The publican has thrown his weight into the same scale and the clergy certainly have not remained at home. Westm. Gaz., No. 5219, 2a.

club. † In the summer weather the club takes to tents, migrates to the forest, and holds high jinks in Dionysic fashion. FROUDE, Oceana, Ch. XX, 320.

commission. The Commission were of opinion that bovine tuberculosis could be communicated to man. Athen., No. 4425, 167a.

committee. i. A committee of wine-growers exercised undisputed authority over the entire region. Its orders were obeyed, while the authorities remained helpless spectators. Rev. of Rev., CCXI, 6b.

The Committee recommends the abolition of a separate classification for motor-cycles. II. Lond. News, No. 3832, 480c.

ii. † The Committee declare that the funds entrusted to General Booth have been devoted only to objects set forth in the appeal. Graph.

¹⁾ MURRAY, s. v. bulk, 6.

† The Committee chosen to examine Dr. Cook's records have decided against the explorer's claim. Il. Lond. News, No. 3689, 4.

The Committee... were faced with the task of [etc.]. Ib., No. 3832, 480*b*.

community. The community created the decedents' wealth, it is entitled to a large portion of it as they pass away. ANDREW CARNEGIE (Rev. of Rev., CCV, 29*b*).

company. All the company are convulsed with laughter. Mac., Addison, (755*b*).

The ship's company were mustered. MARRYAT, Midshipsman Easy, Ch. XXVII.

† A company, called the Ohio Company... found themselves invaded in their settlements by French military detachments. THACK., Virg., Ch. VI, 63.

The company still control the catering. Il. Lond. News, No. 3813, 788*c*.

conference. The Conference could do nothing, for its constitution forbids any discussion of the internal political affairs of any of its members. Rev. of Rev., CCXII, 114*a*.

congregation. † You shall go to church to-morrow morning, and see how the whole congregation will turn away from its books and prayers, to worship the golden calf in your person. THACK., Virg., Ch. XXIV, 251.

congress. The American Congress has cut down the proposed programme of naval construction by nearly one half. Rev. of Rev., CCXIX, 234*a*.

He (sc. President Taft) replied, "My dear lady, I do not make the law, Congress does that." RITA, America — Seen through Eng. eyes, Ch. V, 102.

constituency. The Independent imperatively demanded to know whether the constituency of Eatanswill were the grand fellows they had always taken them for. DICK., Pickw., Ch. XIII, 105.

council. The Federal Council... has declared its opinion. Westm. Gaz., No. 5249, 2*b*.

country. The whole country applauds. KING EDWARD VII (Rev. of Rev., CCXII, 120*b*).

couple. The young couple are just setting out for Scotland. GOLDSM., Good-nat. | man, III.

This couple were desirous to consummate long ago. FIELDING, Joseph Andrews, IV, Ch. II, 205.

If a married couple come to settle in the town, somehow the gentleman disappears. Mrs. GASKELL, Cranf., Ch. I, 9.

He was more often inclined to leave the young couple to themselves. THACK., Pend., I, Ch. VI, 70.

court. i. * The court feels indignant that it is conquered. CARLYLE, French Rev., I, Ch. III, 146.

† The court is in mourning. THACK., A little Dinner at Timmins's, Ch. III, 316.

 The Constitution is what the Supreme Court makes it. Rev. of Rev., CCV, 6*a*.

ii. So with the morning all the court were gone. TEN., Mar. of Ger., 156.

It's time the Court go home to dinner. THACK., The four Georges, I, 6.

crew. All the crew were amazed. WASH. IRV., The Storm-Ship (STOF., Handl., I, 88).

The Cambridge crew have already gone into training. MASON, *Eng. Gram.*³⁴, § 183, b.

The crew were saved by lifeboats. Times.

The crew have been dismissed. Ib., No. 1909, 707*c*.

crowd. i. At the foot of the Capitol, an immense crowd was assembled. LYTTON, Rienzi, I, Ch. IX, 55.

† There's a crowd, Monsieur Rigaud, and it doesn't love you. DICK., Little Dorrit, Ch. I, 7*b*.

A very large crowd for Edinburgh was assembled in the streets. Times, No. 1803, 573*b*.

† The great crowd was most enthusiastic. Il. Lond. News, No. 3835, 573.

- ii. The crowd are gone, the revellers at rest. BYRON, Lara, I, XXIX.

It's not at all necessary for a crowd to know what they are cheering about. DICK., Pickw., Ch. XIII, 105.

The crowd were deeply affected — but they uttered no shouts. LYTTON, Rienzi, II, Ch. VIII, 118.

democracy. The democracy are going to vote on the Act. Westm. Gaz., No. 6041, 1c.

detachment. A detachment of two hundred men was immediately sent. BAIN, H. E. Gr., 303.

Duma. The Duma hesitated, discussed and postponed its decision. Rev. of Rev., CCXI, 8b.

electorate. The electorate show it (sc. that the people of this country are converted to the idea of national military service). Outlook (Westm. Gaz., No. 6035, 16c).

enemy. i. * The French admiral beheld the new manner in which his enemy was advancing. SOUTHEY, Life of Nelson, 255.

The enemy was discovered about seven miles out of Ladysmith. Times.

 They encountered the enemy wherever he showed himself and defeated him. MCCARTHY, Short Hist., Ch. IV, 33.

The enemy was surrounded, but he fought for four hours. Morning Leader. Our naval guns have temporarily silenced the enemy's best guns with which he has been bombarding the town. Times.

- ii. Look, yonder are the enemy. SOUTHEY, Life of Nelson, 257.

Suppose the enemy arrive. THACK., Van. Fair, I, Ch. XXVII, 346.

Even the enemy were fellow-creatures. BUCHANAN, That Winter Night, Ch. IV, 38.

The enemy appear to be in large numerical superiority. Times.

The enemy were cut to pieces by the Lancers. Id.

establishment. † Half the establishment was writhing and crying, before the day's work began; and how much of it had writhed and cried before the day's work was over, I am really afraid to recollect. DICK., Cop., Ch. VII, 45a.

Europe. All Europe was on tip-toe with expectation to see how Philip would avenge himself. MOTLEY, Rise.

family. i. Her family has disgraced itself. THACK., Van. Fair, I, Ch. XXI, 221.

Our family has done her quite enough injury already. Id., 223.

Her family was about to arrive. Id., Virg., Ch. II, 12.

Each family in the colony sent one or more of its young ones. FROUDE, Oceana, Ch. III, 35.

† We must have a goose to give to this gentleman in place of the one which your family is now devouring. CON. DOYLE, Sherl. Holm., The Blue Carbuncle.

- ii. The family still resolve to hold up their heads. GOLDSM., Vic., Ch. XI.

Are the family well at the house, Robert? CH. BRONTË, Jane Eyre, Ch. XXI, 269.

As for her husband's family of Warrington, they were as naught in her eyes. THACK., Virg., Ch. IV, 36.

firm. i. The firm found itself in sudden and urgent need of fifty thousand dollars. AGN. & EG. CASTLE, Panther's Cub, I, Ch. III, 28.

- ii. All the time he must have known what the firm were meditating. EDNA LYALL, A Hardy Horseman, Ch. X, 84.

The firm sent him away to manage a branch of their publishing business in Bombay. Miss FLORA MASSON, The Brontës, Ch. XIII, 84.

The manuscript was submitted to a publishing firm, who...handed it to their professional reader. W. L. PHELPS, Es. on Mod. Nov., II, 38.

Note. The plural construction is decidedly the rule, as is also the case with substantive genitives denoting a firm. (Ch. XXIV, 50, Obs. III.)

fleet. i. The British fleet was but fifteen sail of the line strong. II. Lond. News. The American Fleet has made a very successful circuit of the South American continent. Rev. of Rev., CCXIX, 234a.

Thus also: The great Armada is vanquished. CH. KINGSLEY, Westw. Hol., Ch. XXXII, 238b.

ii. The fleet finding themselves growing short of provision, turn southward toward home. Ib., Ch. XXXII, 239b.

The fleet are still bombarding the town. Punch, 1893, 159a.

The fleet have approached closer. Ib.

Note. In these last quotations the word fleet is indicative rather of persons than things.

flock. This exceptional ringing may be caused in two ways — by the rapid feeding of the sheep bearing the bell, as when the flock breaks into new pasture. HARDY, Far from the Madding Crowd, Ch. V, 39.

foe. i. No tidings of the foe were brought, | Nor of his numbers knew they aught, | Nor what in time of truce he sought. SCOTT, Lay, III, xxxi.

ii. And now the foe their covert quit. BYRON, The Giaour, (203a).

The sun is not yet risen, and the foe | Sleep. MATTHEW ARNOLD, Sohrab and Rustum, 36.

force. i. A naval force is a very unsure defence. BURKE.¹⁾ ii. † William by a feint of flight drew a part of the English force from their post of vantage. GREEN, Short Hist., Ch. II, § 4, 80.

generality. The generality of his hearers were favourable to his doctrines. BAIN, H. E. Gr., § 301.

generation. i. Each generation of men goes about its business and its pleasure with immense energy and zest. W. RALEIGH, Six Es. on Johns., V, 98.

A later generation rises against them. Ib., VI, 176.

ii. At this moment the rising generation are supplied with the best of their mental allment by writers whose names are a dead letter to the mass. TROL., Thacker., Ch. I, 28.

The young generation nowadays do not read Scott. Westm. Gaz., No. 5484, 4c.

The rising generation in Scotland simply do not care for Scott. Ib. (In the sequel of the controversy on this subject, which was continued for a considerable time in the same paper, all the correspondents who took part in it construed the word as a singular.)

gentry. The gentry rode their own horses or drove in their own coaches. THACK., Barry Lyndon, Ch. III, 50.

government. i. How can any government be well served, if those who command its forces are at liberty, without its permission, without its privity, to accept princely fortunes from its allies? MAC., Clive, (522a).

The German Government feels itself once more master in its own house. Rev. of Rev., CCVI, 115b.

ii. † The Government have apologized to the British consul for having blown up his house and stables. Punch.

The Government will act wisely for their own interests if they effect the required improvements. Graph.

The Government are not entirely their own masters. Westm. Gaz., No. 5219, 2a.

group. An excited group was gathered round it (so the diligence). BUCHANAN, That Winter Night, Ch. III, 30.

¹⁾ MURRAY, s. v. force; 7.

- guard. i. The guard of the trenches is divided into two bodies. Mil. Engineering³, I, II, 15.¹)
- ii. All the guard were asleep. RUD. KIPLING, Wee Willie Winkie, (200).
- half. i. One half the world does not know how the other half lives. Punch, No. 3710, 135.
- ii. One half of men do not know how the other half live. BAIN, H. E. Gr., 300.
One half of the men were seriously ill. MURRAY.
- herd. i. * The common herd was glad he refused the crown. Jul. Cæs., I, 2, 266.
The herd has been eating and drinking and marrying as usual. CH. KINGSLEY, Hypatia, Ch. II, 7b.
 A valley in which a herd of horses was pasturing. Rev. of Rev., Annual 1906, 8a.
The herd of fallow deer which was generally to be found on the broad expanse of grass. Westm. Gaz., No. 5261, 7b.
- ii. The lowing herd wind slowly o'er the lea. GRAY, Elegy, I.
- House. i. The House (of Commons, or of Lords) resolves. BAIN, H. E. Gr., 301.
(This was) one of the most sophistical and quibbling speeches that the House of Commons has ever listened to. Outlook (Westm. Gaz., No. 6059, 16c).
- ii. † In this business the House of Commons have no weight. BAIN, H. E. Gr., 301.
† The House of Lords have no legislative powers whatever in regard to any money bill. Times, No. 1811, 744b.
- household. † All the household was gone to bed. THACK., Newc., I, Ch. V, 55.
† All the household was equally instructed to pay him honour. Id., Virg., Ch. III, 30.
- humanity. The three combined (sc. presentiments, sympathies and signs) make one mystery, to which humanity has not yet found a key. CH. BRONTË, Jane Eyre, Ch. XXI, 268.
The girl looked around for a moment as if to assure herself that all humanity was out of view. HARDY, For from the Madding Crowd, I, Ch. III, 18.
Humanity is not averse from showing the Creator how things should have been done. Truth, No. 1802, 83a.
- jury. i. If it's near dinner-time, the foreman takes out his watch when the jury has retired. DICK., Pickw., Ch. XXXIV, 304.
- ii. The jury then retired to their private room to talk the matter over. Ib., Ch. XXXIV, 319.
Counsel usually begin in this way, because it puts the jury on the very best terms with themselves. Ib., 308.
The jury were unable to agree. Times, No. 1807, 660c.
The jury were absent for ten minutes. Ib.
- majority. i. Is it to be held that this election has settled nothing, except the passage of the Budget? . . . We are certain that the majority will take no such view. It cherishes a deep and passionate feeling on the question of the Lords. Nation (Westm. Gaz., No. 5219, 16c).
- ii. A large majority of the boys . . . were visited with similar instances of notice, as Mr. Creakle made the round of the school-room. DICK., Cop., Ch. VII, 45a.
The majority of Englishmen are tall. SWEET, N. E. Gr., § 116.
- manhood. English manhood is not peculiar in being lectured from time to time on its manners. Westm. Gaz.
- mankind. i. * Beggar-my-neighbour is not exactly the game in which mankind should waste its resources. Rev. of Rev., CCXIX, 232b.
 Not only can mankind do nothing to avoid earthquakes, but even what he can do to mitigate their worst consequences is very small. Spectator.

¹) MURRAY, s. v. guard, 9.

- ii. All mankind are indifferently liable to adverse Strokes of Fortune. STEELE, Tatler, No. 57.

Mankind are equal to but one thing at a time. FROUDE, Oceana, Ch. V, 77.

- mass. i. † A large mass of intelligent people . . . is now showing deep interest in the drama. Westm. Gaz., No. 6023, 7b.

- ii. The mass were deeply interested. Mrs. GASK., Mary Barton, Ch. V, 46.
The mass of the men did not change their nature because they had learned to pray to Christ. S. R. GARDINER, Outline of English History.

The mass of Tariff Reformers are as determined as ever to treat a victory at this election as a victory for Tariff Reform. Westm. Gaz., No. 5478 1b.

million. † It was commonly believed that half a million of human beings was crowded into that labyrinth of lofty alleys. Mac., War. Hist., (627a).

ministry. i. The ministry is afraid to refuse. Westm. Gaz., No. 5277, 2b.

- ii. The ministry also were tottering. TROL., Barch. Tow., Ch. I, 6.

The ministry were to be out within five days. 1b.

mob. i. The mob was dispersed. BAIN, H. E. Gr., § 301.

Is the mob more bold, more constant? LYTTON, Rienzi, I, Ch. VIII, 52.

- ii. The mob are so pleased with your honour. FARQUHAR, Recruiting Officer, I, 1.
It's always best on these occasions to do what the mob do. DICK., Pickw., Ch. XIII, 105.

multitude. i. The multitude is the only proper judge of those arts whose end is to move the multitude, RUSKIN, Mod. Paint., I, 2, Note. 1)

- ii. The multitude were of one mind. MASON, Eng. Gram.³⁴, § 380.

nation. Happily for itself, the nation preferred another dynasty. THACK., Virg., Ch. III, 26.

It is a complete and comprehensive statement of all their actions of which the nation has reason to complain. Rev. of Rev., CCV, 88b.

A nation which is feeling its way through a new country should not have any laws like those of the Medes and Persians. 1b., CCVI, 7b.

neighbourhood. The children idolise him, and so indeed does the whole neighbourhood. DICK., Pickw., Ch. LVII, 526.

The whole neighbourhood talks about the house. WASH. IRV., Dolf Heyl. (STOF., Handl., I, 113).

number. A large number of the aristocracy are expected. THACK., Pend., II Ch. XXXVIII, 396.

opposition. 1. The Opposition shows no signs of pulling itself together. It is as one of its adherents bitterly complains, the Sick Man of British Politics. Rev. of Rev., CCXIII, 218a.

The Opposition is not unitedly behind the Carsonites in sowing "rebellion" in Ireland. Westm. Gaz., No. 6029, 8d.

- ii. The whole Opposition rose to their feet. Daily Mail.

The Opposition are now alive to the gravity of destroying an unwritten Constitution. Westm. Gaz., No. 5277, 1b.

For some time it appeared that the Opposition were gaining the victory. Times, No. 1807, 664b.

pair. i. They (sc. eagles) not only pair, but continue in pairs all the year round: and the same pair procreates year after year. Encycl. Brit.⁷, XVI, 733/1.²⁾

- ii. 'T is when a youthful, loving, modest pair, | In other's arms, breathe out the tender tale. BURNS, The Cotter's Saturday Night, IX.

The newly-married pair were installed in a compartment by themselves. A. B. EDWARDS, Debenham's Vow, Ch. LXIII.²⁾ parish. i. Ecod! mother, all the parish says you have spoiled me. GOLDSM., She Stoops, V, (227).

1) MURRAY, s. v. multitude, 4. 2) MURRAY, s. v. pair, 3.

ii. † You speak like a lady — all the parish notice it. HARDY, Far from the Madding Crowd, Ch. IV, 36.

Parliament. Until Parliament meets next month, there will be little stirring. Graph. The Parliament, however, was too strong for him (sc. the Shah of Persia). Rev. of Rev., CCXVII, 14a.

Parliament is dealing with something that it does not understand. CHESTERTON (Il. Lond. News, No. 3812, 714).

part. i. † A part of the population has refused to eat meat. Westm. Gaz., No. 5219, 2b.

ii. The chief part of Sir Brian Newcome's family were assembled together. THACK., Newc., I, Ch. XIV, 164.

party. i. † When this little party has gone out smiling to take its walk on the sea-shore, the colonel sits down and resumes the interrupted dessert. THACK., Newc., I, Ch. XV, 179.

The party had better not count its chickens before they are hatched. Westm. Gaz. The Liberal Party is in difficult straits. Rev. of Rev., CCXII, 119a.

ii. The whole party sprang upon their feet. WASH. IRV., Dolf Heyl (STOF., Handl., I, 131).

Strong in faith and hope, the Liberal Party are beginning to count their chickens. Times.

In such circumstances the Government could do nothing but leave the Irish party to follow their own course. Westm. Gaz., No. 5231, 1c.

The Labour Party are determined to support the Government. Ib., No. 6029, 8d.

peasantry. The peasantry, brooding over their misery and their wrongs, were equally stirred by the news from France, GREEN, Short Hist., Ch. X, Sect. IV, 814. So far as the peasantry are concerned, no very serious opposition to the Czar's will is to be expected. Academy.

The peasantry evidently have not lost their faith in it (sc. the Duma). Rev. of Rev., CCVI, 117b.

people. i. How the people shakes itself as if it had one life. CARLYLE.

The English people showed that it cherished no animus against France and that it was anxious to live on good terms with its nearest neighbour. Daily Mail.

ii. There is but one way to restore the greatness of a people — it is an appeal to the people themselves. LYTTON, Rienzi, I, Ch. VIII, 52.

The Irish people saw in this pretended compromise only an attempt to get the thin end of the wedge inserted; while the main grievance which had set their patriotism on fire — the invasion of their national rights, and the attack on their national dignity — remained unabated. D. LAING PURVES, Life of Swift, 30. Tell the people how much I have loved them always. ANNIE BESANT, Autob., 331. The people of England will never consent to undertake the burden on their time and on their purse which a conscript army would involve. Rev. of Rev., CCXI, 13.

populace. If the excited and irritable populace knew I was here, I should be torn to pieces . . . I should be the victim of their fury. DICK., Pickw., Ch. LI. 470. A miscellaneous and indignant populace were assembled. LYTTON, Rienzi, I, Ch. III, 21.

population. The Roman population retained an inordinate notion of their own supremacy. LYTTON, Rienzi, I, Ch. II, 18.

posterity. i. Posterity has not yet confirmed honest Hogarth's opinion about his talents for the sublime. THACK.

Posterity has done nothing for us. Daily News, 1899, May, 2, 6/6.

ii. In so far as posterity are concerned, a cultivated intelligence based on a bad physique is of little worth. SPENCER, Education, Ch. IV, 118b.

priesthood. i. The priesthood . . . is interested solely in theological questions . . . and its representatives in the third Duma were anything but a progressive force. Westm. Gaz., No. 6011, 2b.

ii. The priesthood are doing their best to prepare the country for disestablishment. ib., No. 6117, 2c.

procession. To the assize court the procession took its way. Mrs. WOOD, The Channings, Ch. I, 1.

profession. i. The medical profession has not a high character: it has an infamous character. BERN. SHAW, The Doctor's Dilemma, Pref., xiv.

ii. The whole profession in Middlemarch have set themselves tooth and nail against the Hospital. G. ELIOT, Mid., Ch. XLIV, 325.

proportion. A large proportion of the names on our maps are of great antiquity. H. BRADLEY, Eng. Place-Names (A. C. BRADLEY, Es. and Stud., I, 9).

prosecution. It was announced that the prosecution were in possession of a fact which would supply an adequate motive for even a crime so terrible. T. P.'s Weekly, No. 493, 482c.

public. i. * Do you suppose that the public reads with a view to its own conversion. G. ELIOT, Mid., V, Ch. XLVI, 343.

It is playing it a little too low down upon the British public to ask it to throw up its hat and rejoice over this signal victory over Trusts. Rev. of Rev., CCIV, 568a. The public has frankly given up the attempt to understand the problem of the Army. It has a shrewd idea that even now, after years of Army reform, it does not get its money's worth. ib., CCXI, 12a.

 If the public desires the assistance of an unqualified person, he is at liberty, of course, to employ such. Truth, No. 2801, 24a.

ii. The public were a good deal surprised that Lord Palmerston had taken such a place as that of Home Secretary. MCCARTHY, Short Hist., Ch. X, 128. The public are not admitted into the Stock Exchange. ESCOTT, England, Ch. VIII, 108.

The public are requested to protect their own property. London Parks.

rabble. The rabble call him lord. Hamlet, IV, 5, 101.

Theognis complains that the rabble rule the state with monstrous laws. SYMONDS, Greek Poets, Ser. I, III, 86. 1) race. i. The . . . proscription under which their whole race is placed. FR. A. KEMBLE, Resid. in Georgia, II. 2)

ii. His numerous and high-born race were proud of their descent. LYTTON, Rienzi, I, Ch. I, 75.

If the matter stopped there, the black race would not feel themselves so very much aggrieved. W. ARCHER (Westm. Gaz., No. 4957, 13b).

rank-and-file. If the rank-and-file of the Liberal Party set themselves to do the spade-work of persuasion and demonstration in the constituencies, we shall have no fear of the result. Westm. Gaz., No. 5054, 2a.

rascaldom. How has this turbulent Alexandrian rascaldom been behaving in my absence? CH. KINGSLEY, Hypatia, Ch. II, 7b.

regiment. i. The regiment with its officers was to be transported in ships provided by His Majesty's government for the occasion. THACK., Van. Fair, I, Ch. XXVIII, 292.

ii. Idle People use to gather about a Regiment that are exercising their Arms. STEELE, Tatler, C.

The regiment are out already. RUDY. KIPLING, Wee Willie Winkie, (207). That regiment are devils. ib., 205.

1) MURRAY, S. V. rabble, 2, c. 2) MURRAY, S. V. race, 2, b.

Reichstag. When the Reichstag meets again, it will be asked to discuss a proposal for setting up an Imperial petroleum monopoly. Westm. Gaz., No. 6039, 2b.

remnant. i. And many more (sc. knights) when Modred raised revolt, | Forgetful of their troth and fealty, clave | To Modred, and a remnant stays with me. TEN., Guin., 440.

ii. The remnant of the English were already to be seen. *COOPER.*¹⁾ rest. The rest | That are within the note of expectation, | Already are i' the court. Macb., III, 3, 9.

He observed that the rest of my family were not to be sacrificed to the peace of one child alone. GOLDSM., Vic., Ch. XXVIII, (430).

royalty. And so the Royalty of France is actually fled. CARLYLE, French Rev. Royalty in most countries is fond of the stage, but merely as a spectator. II. Lond. News.

school. School was dismissed. CH. BRONTË, Jane Eyre, Ch. VIII, 78.

It was often his delight, after his school was dismissed in the afternoon, to stretch himself on the rich bed of clover. WASH. IRV., Sketch-Bk., The Leg. of Sleepy Hollow, (348).

senate. i. The Senate is of opinion. BAIN, H. E. Gr., 301.

ii. The senate have concluded | To give, this day, a crown to mighty Caesar. | If you shall send them word you will not come, | Their minds may change. JUL. CÆS., II, 2, 92—96.

set. They are in the set, you know, which runs these big capitalists in return for early tips. RICHARD BAGOT, The Just and the Unjust, I, Ch. IV, 143.

sex. Our sex are like poor tradesmen that put all their best goods to be seen at the windows. GOLDSM., Good-nat. man, IV.

I never heard that when men were unhappy, our sex were less their friends. THACK., Virg., Ch. VI, 66.

shipping. And the shipping where are they? CH. KINGSLEY, Westw. Ho!, Ch. XXX, 225a.

society. It need hardly be said that the society of Lynchester was refined, select, aristocratic in the highest sense. In short butter would not melt in its delicate refrigerated mouth. Mrs. ALEX., For his Sake, I, Ch. II, 23.

Society has the right to defend itself against injury. MCCONNELL (Athen., No. 4437, 557c).

staff. i. A wise manager will never feel that his staff is complete without at least one woman as a member of it. Westm. Gaz., No. 6065, 19.

ii. All my staff are trained nurses. Tit-bits.

The Bulgarian Staff have undoubtedly to reckon with a formidable concentration of Turks to the south of Adrianople. Westm. Gaz., No. 6059, 1b.

table. Until King Arthur's table, man by man | Had fallen in Lyonness about their Lord. TEN., Morte d'Arthur, 3.

throng. In an instant the whole throng were divided by the hereditary wrath of faction. LYTTON, Rienzi, I, Ch. II, 23.

town. The town has asserted that I never yet patronized a man of merit. GOLDSM., Good-nat. man, IV.

The town talks of nothing else. SHER., School for Scand., I, 1, (368).

The whole town knows it. G. ELIOT, Mill, VI, Ch. VIII, 393.

tribe. He — all, all his tribe are blind. LYTTON, Rienzi, I, Ch. VIII, 53.

wardrobe. † I could give away all my wardrobe, and go naked for them. DRYDEN, Marriage à la Mode, III, 1.

¹⁾ MätzN., *Eng. Gram.*²⁾, II, 152

whole. The whole of these goods are now on view. Truth, No. 1802, 119. world. i. All the world loves him. GOLDSM., Good-nat. man, I.

The world is no stranger to your generosity. Ib., IV.

All the world eats too much. Mrs. WARD, Lady Rose's Daughter, I, Ch. II, 18b.

Just now all the world is visiting busily. Graph.

ii. The world have paid too great a compliment to critics. FIELDING, Tom Jones, V, Ch. I, 63.

The whole world are aware that this assumed complaisance is a matter of ceremony. SCOTT, Quent. Durw., Ch. XXVI, 327.

All the world were there. TROL., Barch. Tow., Ch. XXXV, 304.

youth. i. * What follies will not youth perpetrate with its own admirable gravity and simplicity? THACK., Pend., I, Ch. XVIII, 187.

But youth is ever so confident. Id., Barry Lyndon, Ch. III, 54.

Youth is not romantic. T. P.'s Weekly, No. 469, 569a.

 Youth repairs | His wasted spirits quickly, by long toil | Incurring short fatigue. COWPER, Task, I, 27.

ii. The youth of other nations who worked or idled near them, were sometimes caught in the spreading movement. G. ELIOT, Mid., I, Ch. XIX, 138.

We are speaking of a time before Casinos were, and when the British youth were by no means so active in dancing practice as at the present period.

THACK., Newc., I, Ch. XIV, 136.

The innocent dancing youth who pressed round her, attracted by her beauty, were rather afraid, after a while, of engaging her. Ib., I, Ch. XXIV, 270.

In the first group of quotations youth may also be understood to express a personified abstraction. Compare: I questioned age (sc. What was life); it heaved a heavy sigh, | Expressing volumes. ANON., What is Life? (RAINB., I, 20).

Note I. Proper names of towns used as collective nouns are, apparently, regularly construed as singulars.

Cranford had so long piqued itself on being an honest and moral town that it had grown to fancy itself too genteel and well-bred to be otherwise. Mrs. GASK., Cranf., Ch. X, 180.

All London was talking of Rummun Loll. TROL., Thack., Ch. IV, 115.

All Putney was in tears. THACK., Lovel the Wid., Ch. II, 41.

Observe, however, that Eton, etc. may stand for the Eton team, etc. and, accordingly, be construed as a plural.

Eton were said to have one of the finest elevens that the school had ever had. Truth, No. 1800, 1685a.

At the Oval on Wednesday Kent were beaten by an innings and 345 runs. Times.

II. The following quotations must speak for themselves:

i. † About 30 per cent of our population is underfed. Eng. Rev., 1912, Oct., 453.

ii. Ninety-five per cent of the human race suffer from chronic blood-poison. BERN. SHAW, The Doctor's Dilemma, I, 15.

10. Of the collective nouns of the second kind those which may be modified by a number-indicating word (8, Obs. I) are all but regularly construed as plurals throughout, also as far as the demonstrative pronouns are concerned. The others mostly have the demonstrative pronouns in the singular, and for the rest are treated as singulars or plurals according to the same principle as underlies the construction of collective nouns of the first kind.

For the constructions of nouns that are properly single-unit nouns, but are also used in a collective sense, such as fish, fowl etc., see Ch. XXV, 28.

Note I. Folk is now only archaically used as a collective noun of the first kind. As a collective noun of the second kind it has from an early date been largely replaced by the plural folks, the singular being now archaic or dialectical. Both folk and folks are now chiefly colloquial and mostly expressive of kindliness or familiarity. In the literary style they imply slight contempt. Sometimes folk = kind of folk.

In the following quotation a folk is used in the sense of a person:
Poor fellow! He likes us better than the fine folks, who don't care for him now — now he is no longer a fine folk himself. THACK., Virg., Ch. LX, 625.

II. The construction of people as a singular seems to be confined to vulgar language. See, however, the quotation from CH. BRONTË below.

III. Vermin is also met with as a single-unit noun, preceded by the (in)definite article.

cattle. i. Of all the different substances, cattle is that of which the price rises first to this height. ADAM SMITH.¹⁾

The whole price of cattle would fall, and along with it the profit of all those lands of which cattle was the principal produce.¹⁾ ii. The cattle were driven from the hill. SCOTT, Pirate, Ch. IV, 36.

The cattle are grazing | Their heads never raising, | They are forty feeding like one. WORDSWORTH, A Morning in March.

These cattle had not been sent up from the south. CAPT. TAYLOR.¹⁾ company. i. Here comes more company. As you like it, IV, 3, 73. (See 18, b.) Last night there was company to dinner. G. MOORE, Esth. Waters, Ch. II, 10. (See 18, b.)

ii. Other company were there. DICK., Tale of Two Cities, Ch. V, 48.

There were shabby people present, besides the fine company, though these latter were by far the most numerous. THACK., Virg., Ch. XXXVIII, 396.

folk(s). i. It ... did not hold back the Bible from the folk. Academy, 7 Aug., 85/2.²⁾

ii. * What seemed particularly odd to Rip was, that though these folk were evidently amusing themselves, yet they maintained the gravest faces, the most mysterious silence, and were withal the most melancholy party of pleasure he had ever witnessed. WASH. IRV., Sketch-Bk., Rip van Winkle.

"A small matter," said the Ghost, "to make these silly folks so full of gratitude. DICK., Christm. Car., II, 48.

These little folks, having threaded the mighty flood of Regent Street, debouched into the quiet creek of Beak Street. THACK., Lovel the Wid., Ch. I, 15.

The great country folk repair thither at stated intervals. ESCOTT, England, Ch. V, 57.

The old folks are much too content with home, they won't travel. W. BLACK, The New Prince Fortunatus, Ch. VI.

 Our Virginian gentry were a grave aristocratic folk. THACK., *Virg.*¹⁾ fruit. i. The fruit is at thy feet. SHELLEY, Revolt, Ded., 16.

ii. The gods give all these fruit of all their works. SWINBURNE, Atalanta, 380.

fry. i. A race obscene, | Spawned in the muddy beds of Nile | ... And the land stank — so numerous was the fry. COWPER, Task, II, 832.

ii. The fry of the aquatic races are almost as different from their parents as the caterpillar from the butterfly. WOODWARD.²⁾

1) SATTLER, E. S., XII. 2) MURRAY.

A large sea-going steamer following immediately after these smaller fry. SAVAGE, My Official Wife, 245.

The smaller fry are masters of the citadel. Athen., No. 4426, 191c.

furniture. i. My furniture is getting shabby.

Why should they buy many books when they bought so little furniture. G. ELIOT, Mill, III, Ch. VI, 218.

ii. † My furniture were all in their places. Mrs. A. M. BENNETT, Beggar Girl, V, 197.¹⁾ game. i. The game of the royal parks and forests . . . was to him a source of profit. Mac., Fred., (673b).

Then (we) touch'd upon the game, how scarce it was | This season. TEN., Audley Court, 31.

Lions are generally found where game is plentiful. Graph.

People in England are very much under the impression that big game is to be found in all parts of South Africa except just in the neighbourhood of Cape Town. lb.

The game in view was rabbits. HOR. HUTCHINSON (Westm. Gaz., No. 6011, 2c).

The less small game there is about, the better the chances are of successful stalking. Westm. Gaz., No. 5448, 14a. (See 16, d.)

ii. Elephants, rhinoceroses and other great game were abundant. Lit. World.

The bleak heights which the black game love. ESCOTT, England, Ch. III, 39.

"I was ever moderate in my desires," said the Cardinal with a smile; "I shoot at none of these high-flying game." SHORTHOUSE.²⁾

In the following quotation were is probably to be regarded as a past subjunctive: I asked them whether any man-jack of them would be a ha'porth better off if there were no game. Mrs. WARD, Marcella, I, 246.

gentry, (in this application expressing contempt). Reader, if thou meetest one of these small gentry in thy early rambles, it is good to give him a penny. CH. LAMB, Es. of Elia, In Praise of Chimney-Sweepers.

A woman should be very careful when one of these gentry from the sewers of society presents himself as a lover. SARAH GRAND, Man and Maid, 88.

You see what sort of an opinion these gentry have of the country. RIDER HAGGARD, She, Ch. IV, 48.

These gentry of the alarmist clique see red all the time. Rev. of Rev., CCXV, 437b.

kin. Is this another case where our kin across the Atlantic are more careful of undefined English? Westm. Gaz., No. 6039, 4b.

people. i. People even for some years was not absolutely certain of her existence. CH. BRONTE, Jane Eyre, Ch. XXXVI, 525.

ii. While the young people were making themselves perfectly happy, old Lobbs got down the pipe and smoked it. Dick., Pickw., Ch. XVII, 154.

The people pressed round the learned man, with open mouths: now turning their eyes to the picture, now to Pandulfo. LYTTON, Rienzi, I, Ch. IX, 56.

police. The police were upon us with uplifted truncheons. ANNIE BESANT, Autobiography, 324.

The police are organized after European models. Harmsworth Encycl., s. v. Japan.

The police have strict orders to take into custody any person found shooting soil or rubbish on this land. Notice.

During this time a good many of these police go round in the evening. Il. Lond. News, No. 3635, 791.

poultry. i. No other poultry is reared elsewhere on that farm. All the Year Round.³⁾

Those who require to purchase poultry have to pay so much for it. Ch. amb.³⁾

1) MURRAY, s. v. furniture. 2) WENDT, Synt. des heut. Eng., 93.

3) SATTLER, E. S., X.

- ii. The poultry are yours and I will send them for you. MARRYAT.¹⁾
 There are hardly any poultry now. HARDY, Tess, VI, Ch. LI, 460.
 The poultry are being fed. ONIONS, Advanced Eng. Synt., § 18.
- soldiery. The Baron's soldiery are ready at all hours. LYTTON, Rienzi, IV, Ch. II, 163.
- Japanese soldiery were poured into the country. Rev. of Rev., CCXII, 115*b*.
- stock. i. Some of the best stock has been kept in poor buildings. Harmsworth Encycl., s. v. farm.
 ii. Stock are now doing well. Graph.¹⁾
- vermin. i. * And once the laces of a helmet crack'd | And show'd him, like a vermin in its hole. TEN., The Last Tourn., 65.
 An idle person only lives to eat the fruits of the earth, like a vermin or a wolf. TAYLOR.¹⁾
  A weasel taken in a trap was charged with misdemeanours, and the poor vermin stood much upon her innocence. L'ESTRANGE.¹⁾
- ii. Next time that you do me the honour to come here, I trust that we shall have cleared all these vermin from my estate. CONAN DOYLE, Refugees, 337.
 I never anywhere saw so many of these detestable vermin. FROUDE, Oceana, Ch. XV, 234.
 The factor asked if these vermin were not offensive. ANDREW LANG, Blue Fairy Book, History of Whittington.
Vermin are dreadful in a court. lb.

11. Obs. I. Substantive genitives when denoting a firm govern the plural form of the finite verb of which they are the subject. (Ch. XXIV, 50, Obs. III.)

II. Inconsistencies are not infrequent; i. e. collective nouns denoting persons are often found construed as singulars in the beginning of the discourse, naturally mostly as to the finite verb depending on them, while in the sequel they are dealt with as plurals, especially as to the personal pronouns used in referring to them. The change of construction is the natural outcome of the fact that on first observing a body of persons physically or mentally, the speaker or writer is apt to view it as a unit, while he grows more and more aware of its constituent members as he becomes more closely acquainted with it and proceeds in his discourse. Change of construction in the opposite direction cannot, therefore, be expected; nor are instances ever brought forward in discussions dealing with this subject. See also the King's English, 69; and especially C. ALPHONSO SMITH, A Note on the Concord of Collectives and Indefinites in English (Anglia XXIII, 242ff), where a great many instances are given.

army. "Comes his army on?" — "They mean this night in Sardis to be quartered." Jul. Cæs., IV, 2, 27.

A fearful army, led by Caius Marcius | Associated with Aufidius, rages | Upon our territories; and have already | O'erborne their way. Cor., IV, 6, 75.

¹⁾ SATTLER, E. S., XII.

board. Our board meets on Saturday, and never fear I'll account for it to them before I drive you down. THACK., Sam. Titm., Ch. II, 18.

class. There was another class of emigrants who were not disposed to recognise his supremacy. MAC., Hist., II, Ch. V, 106. (See 18, b.)

clique. Supplehouse belongs to a clique which monopolizes the wisdom of England, or, at any rate thinks that it does. But the worst of them is that they are given to talk leading articles. TROL., Framley Pars., Ch. III, 28.

club. Our club however has frequently caught him tripping, at which times they never spare him. ADDISON, Spect., No. 105.

crowd. There was a crowd of people of all sorts outside the tenement house when Glory returned to Brown's Square, and even the stairs were thronged with them. HALL CAINE, The Christian, IV, Ch. XV, 281. (See 18, b.)

family. The family was away, and in their absence John cared very little for their relatives. THACK., Virg., Ch. II, 22.

My family . . . has always been accustomed to have faithful friends round about em. Ib., Ch. XXXIX, 409.

Government. Hence the astonishing absence of any strong popular feeling against the Government, which has expelled the religious Orders . . . The Government believe that so long as they are not driven to shut up the churches or to imprison the clergy, they may do as they please. Rev. of Rev., CCVI, 126b.

House. The fact is . . . that the House does not in the least understand what it is about; — doesn't know what it wants. The question I should like to ask them is: do they intend that the Queen shall have a government, or do they not? Are they prepared to support such men as Sidonia and Lord De Terrier? If so, I am their obedient humble servant; but I shall be very much surprised, that's all. TROL., Framl. Pars., Ch. XXIII, 217.

nation. The nation was becoming daily more enraged at the presence of a man in whom it beheld the incarnation of the religious oppression under which they groaned. MOTLEY, Rise, II, Ch. IV, 203b.

pair. There goes a pair that only spoil each other. GOLDSM., She Stoops, I, (169). (See 18, b.)

party. In nearly every house a bright fire was burning and tea was ready on the table; in some a happy family party was just sitting down to their evening meal; in all there was an air of comfort and rest. O. F. WALTON, A Peep behind the scenes, Mother Mannikin's Chairs, Ch. XX.

The Liberal Party is in difficult straits. They are pledged^o to social reforms which they cannot carry through without money. Rev. of Rev., CCXII, 119a.

people. Blessed is the people that know the joyful sound: they shall walk, o Lord, in the light of thy countenance. Psalm LXXXIX, 15.

But thou, O Lord, | Aid all this foolish people; let them take | Example, pattern: lead them to thy light. TEN., St. Simeon Stylites, 219.

public. The general public has an even more intimate interest, for it is they who will be the principal sufferers. Rev. of Rev., CCXIV, 332b.

That is not what the public is concerned to know. What the public want to know, and what alone they want to know, is how the disaster came about. T. P.'s Weekly, No. 499, 673b.

society. Society finds no more enjoyable way of spending a vacation than drinking unpalatable waters and mingling with their fellows. Eng. Rev., Aug., 1912.

vermin. And I will track this vermin to their earths. TEN., Mar. of Ger., 517.

Also in the following quotation the language is inconsistent:

Not one fourth of provincial tradesmen or farmers ever take stock; nor, in fact, does one half of them ever keep account-books deserving the name. BAIN, H. E. Gr., 302.

12. Nouns which, though plural in form, are more or less distinctly felt to denote singular ideas, are sometimes, especially in colloquial language, construed as singulars; i. e.:

- a) they may have the finite verb of which they are the subject in the singular;
- b) they may have their adnominal modifiers placed in the singular;
- c) they may be referred to by singular pronouns;
- d) they may be preceded by the indefinite article.

It must be understood that a given noun not always exhibits all these peculiarities at once, i. e. it may be dealt with as a singular in one respect and as a plural in another.

Again we sometimes find that the singular construction is more or less regular, sometimes it seems to be used almost indifferently with the plural, sometimes it is only exceptionnally met with, and sometimes, especially in the case of foreign plurals, it is due to misapprehension. In many cases the available evidence is not sufficient to draw reliable conclusions from as to the generally prevailing practice. For details see also STORM, Eng. Phil.², 686; MÄTZN., Eng. Gram.², III, 189; FRANZ, Shak. Gram.², § 271.

13. Among the plural nouns that, as far as the evidence given in the preceding chapter goes, are construed wholly or partially as singulars,

- a) the following have or may have the finite verb of which they are the subject in the singular: alms (12), Alps (19, i), amends (19, j), bellows (19, a), Commons (19, g), damages (20), gardens (20), glanders (19, c), hards (= herds, hurds (19, e), head-quarters (20), innings (19, f), lees (19, e), marbles (20), matins (19, j), measles (19, c), news (19, g), odds (19, g), pains (20), scissors (19, a), tidings (19, g), United States (19, i), vespers (19, j), wages (19, j), and some nouns in ics.
- b) the following have or may have the demonstrative pronouns in the singular: first-fruits (20), news (19, g), pains (20), shanks (19, j), and some nouns in ics (19, g).
- c) the following have or may have the indefinite numerals in the singular: amends (19, j), brains (20), means (20), news (19, g), pains (20), thanks (19, j), tidings (19, j), victuals (19, g), wages 19, j).
- d) the following are or may be referred to by singular pronouns: bellows (19, a), Commons (19), contents (20), marbles (20), news (19, g), United States (19, i), and some nouns in ics (19, g).

- e) the following are or may be preceded by the indefinite article: alms (12), amends (19, j), Alps (19, i), assizes (20), barracks (19, j), bellows (19, a), bettors (19, h), colours (20), diggings (19, f), first-fruits (20), gallows (19, j), goods (19, h), head-quarters (20), hustings (20), innings (19, f), j(o)usts (19, j), links (20), means (20), measles (19, c), mews (20), ruins (20), scales (20), scissors (19, a), sessions (20), shambles (20), stables (19), stairs (20), stores (20), sweepstakes (19, j), thanks (18, j), trousers (19, a), United States (19, i), vaults (20), vespers (19, j), works (20).

Additional instances:

It's hardly the thing for a lady to visit a chambers at that hour of the night. FERGUS HUME, The Piccadilly Puzzle, 74.

P. volunteered to pull it out with a smith's pincers. Sat. Rev., 1902, 26 Feb.

I got a shears. HICHENS, Garden of Allah, II, 226.

With a tweezers we got the intruder out. CONAN DOYLE, Hark. Munro Letters, 148.

Some foreign plurals are sometimes apprehended as singulars, chiefly in a collective sense. (Ch. XXV, 19, h.) Those that appear in this singular meaning only through ignorance on the part of the writer are marked with an *.

agenda, antipodes*, arcana*, effluvia*, errata, insignia*, memoranda, paraphernalia, propaganda, regalia*.

14. It will not seem strange that the singular form of the finite verb is also the ordinary one,

- a) when the subject is the name of a measure modified by a numeral larger than one, and the thing measured is thought of as singular. BAIN (H. E. Gr., 302) compares: Nine tenths of the misery and vice of mankind proceeds from idleness with Nine tenths of the miseries and vices of mankind proceed from idleness (CARLYLE, Life of Schiller, II, 68).

- i. Three parts of him is ours already. JUL. CÆS., I, 3, 155.

Forty Yards is a good distance. SHER., Riv., V, 3, (388).

Two thirds of my income goes in paying the interest of mortgages. CH. BRONTË, Jane Eyre, Ch. XXI, 283.

Nine-tenths of every man's happiness depends upon his reception among his fellows in society. CARLYLE, Life of Schiller, II, 68.

With thee a thousand years is as one day. Ib., 284.

I believe it is by persons believing themselves in the right that nine-tenths of the tyranny of this world has been perpetrated. THACK., The Four Georges, III, 77.

Five pounds is a deal of money to a man with a family. MRS. GASK., Cranf., Ch. XIII, 245.

The apparent increase is £ 43,645,085. But of this £ 30,046,000 was arrears from 1909—10. Westm. Gaz., No. 5507, 1c.

- ii. Two-thirds of the works have now been completed. Graph.

In the following quotation the construction seems to go counter to the meaning. See, however, 18, b.

There happens to be just about forty millions of people in the States. 11. Lond. News.

Note. It seems rational to say twice two is four, etc., not twice two are four, etc.; four farthings makes a penny, etc., not four farthings make a penny, etc. The ordinary practice, however, is to use the plural form of the verb. MAS., Eng. Gram.³⁴, § 482: BAIN, H. E. Gr., 305, N.

i. * Three times one are three. ANNIE BESANT, Autob., 145.

Three times 6 are 18, | Pussy, that is very mean. Books for the Bairns, XVIII.

 4 farthings make 1 penny. PENDLEBURY, Arithmetic, § 66.

24 grains make 1 pennyweight. ib., § 72.

ii. Twice two is four. MASON, Eng. Gram.³⁴, § 482.

b) when a plural subject is the proper name of a book, a house, etc.

'The Three Pigeons' expects me down every moment. GOLDSM., She Stoops, I.

Johnson's 'Lives of the Poets' is a work of great interest. MASON, Eng. Gram.³⁴, § 482.

'The Pleasures of Memory' was published in 1792. BAIN, H. E. Gr., 302.

'The Jolly Beggars' was written in the year 1785. Note to this Poem.

'Poems by Two Brothers' was published with the date 1827. ANDREW LANG, Tennyson, 6.

Note. Sometimes the particular nature of the subject-matter occasions the plural number.

In 1842 were commenced 'The Confessions of George Fitz-Boodle', which were continued into 1843. TROL., Thack., Ch. II, 67.

'The Memoirs of Barry Lyndon' are very pleasant to read. ib., Ch. II, 72.

'Gulliver's Travels' ... were published in two parts or volumes. The Works of the Rev. Jon. Swift, Introd. to Gul. Trav., 110 (William P. Nimmo).

c) occasionally in other cases when a plural subject is meant to represent a singular idea.

O father Abram! what these Christians are, | Whose own hard dealings teaches them suspect | The thoughts of others. Merch. of Ven., I, 3, 161. (See the note to this line in the 'Clar. Press' edition.)

Moneys is your suit. ib., I, 3, 120.

All things is ready. Taming of the Shrew, IV, 1. (All things is evidently understood as equivalent to everything.)

Two dead languages is too much to impose upon the generality of students. BAIN, Comp., 283.

No landlord is my friend and brother, no chambermaid loves me, no waiter worships me, no boots admires and envies me. Dick., Uncom. Trav., Ch. I, 11.

15. Instead of these or those we often meet with this or that before numeral + name of measure, when the idea to be expressed is thought of as a singular rather than a plural: i. e. when it is understood in a collective sense. The practice is especially common in colloquial language. BAIN, H. E. Gr., 309; FRANZ, Eng. Stud. XII and XVII; Id., Shak. Gram.², § 316; MÄTZN., Eng. Gram.², III, 257; ELLINGER, Verm. Beit., 15; id., E. S., XXXI.

There's that ten guineas you were sending to the poor gentleman. GOLDSM., Good-nat. man, I.

I haven't seen her this two hours. G. ELIOT, Mill, I, Ch. V, 30.

I am sick of this — And so am I . . . and have been any time this two years. CH. READE, It is never too late to mend, I, Ch. I, 19.

I suppose you will be going over to help him in his canvassing this next few weeks. MRS. WARD, Marc., I, 223.

Your wife has been waiting this two years for you. CON. DOYLE, Sherl. Holm., I, 232.

The lapse of a year between the age of leaving school and the possibility of street trading may be something for the lads. In that twelve months their parents may have seen the wisdom of putting them to some occupation which gives them promise of the future. Westm. Gaz., No. 5613, 2b.

Regularly is the singular in the combination this many a day, year, etc.

How does your honour for this many a day? Hamlet, III, 1, 91.

I for you | This many a year have done despite and wrong | To one whom ever in my heart of hearts | I did acknowledge nobler. TEN., Lanc. and El., 1205.

16. a) The singulars much and little (less, least) may modify or refer to plural nouns when it is rather quantity than number that is thought of.

JUST. Did you perceive anything in my chocolate cup . . . ? SER. Nothing, . . . unless it was a little grounds. SHER., St. Patr. Day, II, 4.

So much victuals had been cooked at once as were necessary to feed all the mouths which were clamouring around her. SCOTT, Pirate, Ch. XII, 130.

A silly, ill-bred, conceited fool . . . with as little manners as wit in his empty coxcomb. Ib., Ch. XII, 141.

The old fogies, as you call them, at Bays's, are some of the first gentlemen in Europe, of whom you youngsters had best learn a little manners. THACK., Pend., II, Ch. VII, 72.

Pen had never in his life drunk so much spirits-and-water. Ib., I, Ch. V, 63.

Much solitary pipes and ale make a cynic of you. Ib., I, Ch. XXXII, 349.

Too much of such comforts will unfit them for their home. TROL., Framl. Pars., Ch. XXXVI, 350.

Too little is better than too much of these details. ALFRED NOYES, William Morris, Pref. Note.

Much vegetables and potatoes. Our German Cousins (Daily Mail)

, There had once been a great trouble about him. That was a good many years ago — perhaps as much as seventeen years ago. MRS. BELLOC LOWNDES, Jane Oglander, Ch. VI, 88.

- b) Much is repeatedly found in Early Modern English before plurals and collective nouns of the second kind, such as people, cattle, etc.; ALDIS WRIGHT, The Bible Word-Book; MURRAY, s. v. much, 2, b and d.

And I will say to my soul, thou hast much goods laid up for many years. Bible, Luke, XII, 19.

Cornelius gave much alms to the people. Id., Acts, X, 2.

After dinner walked to my Lord's, and there found him and much other guests at table at dinner. PEPYS, Diary, 1664, 17 July.

cattle. And should not I spare Nineveh, that great city wherein are more than sixscore thousand persons that cannot discern between their right hand and their left; and also much cattle. Bible, Jonah, IV, 11.

people. They taught much people. Bible, Acts, XI, 26.

And much people followed him. Id., Mark, V, 24.

They destroyed much people of Israel. Id., Maccabees, A, I, 30.

Thus also archaically in: A nameless city in a distant sea, | White as the changing walls of faërie | Thronged with much people clad in ancient guise. W. MORRIS, Earthly Paradise, Prol., 3a.

youth. Let us know | If 't will tie up thy discontented sword, | And carry back to Sicily much tall youth | That else must perish there. Ant. and Cleop., II, 6, 7.

- c) Less is sometimes met with even when the plural expresses an idea estimated as to number. According to MURRAY (s. v. less, A, I, 1, c) this application is now regarded as incorrect. His latest instance bears date 1579. Late Modern English instances, however, are not at all uncommon.

They have left less signs of their existence than London. W. MORRIS, News from Nowhere, Ch. X, 76.

The coasts of Devon show even less signs of Roman occupation than of British. JOHN LLOYD WARDEN PAGE, The Coasts of Devon and Lundy Island, Ch. I, 8.

The fine old face showed less traces of fatigue than did the girlish features. AGN. & EG. CASTLE, Diamond cut Paste, III, Ch. IX, 306.

Bloomfield Bonnington kills less people than you do. BERN. SHAW, The Doctor's Dilemma, I, 28.

If you can't get more boats, then sell less tickets. Eng. Rev., 1912, July, 591.

The use of less instead of fewer seems to be regular in the combination more or less, as in:

I do not care about more or less blows of a cane. THACK., Barry Lyndon, Ch. VI, 92.

- d) In the following quotations less may express rather an idea of significance than of number:

He will find no less odds against him than this. COWLEY, The Dangers of an Honest Man in much Company, 149.

(He told) the Jury that, if they acquitted this prisoner, they must expect to suffer no less pangs and agonies than he had told the other Jury they would certainly undergo, if they convicted that prisoner. DICK., Old Cur. Shop, Ch LXIII, 230b. I am heartily thankful that my temptations are less, having quite enough to do with those of the present century. THACK., Virg., Ch. XLI, 427.

He would very likely have followed in the steps of his father and grandfather with less means at his disposal, and, consequently, greater temptations than theirs. NORRIS, My Friend Jim, Ch. XII, 8.

The losses which we have suffered are numerically less than a couple of shells judiciously planted might be expected to cause in a European war. Times.

No doubt the receipts in December 1909 were less than normal. Westm. Gaz., No. 5507, 1c.

- e) Quite common is the use of the absolute less instead of fewer in the combination no (one, two, etc.) less than; even when the following plural calls forth an idea of number.

No less than three pupils of her father had trifled with those young affections. THACK., Pend., I, Ch. VIII, 87.

He was followed by no less than ... three persons. MIS BURNETT, Little Lord Fauntleroy, 263.

How many claws has a tiger? — One less than a woman. EDNA LYALL, Donovan, I, 138.

No less than 360 cycles are manufactured daily. II. Lond. News.

There is now ample accommodation for them here, no less than five hospital ships being available. Daily Chronicle.

Compare with the above the following quotations, in which the grammatically correct fewer is used:

- i. The fewer people and the more air the better. MRS. WARD, Rob. Elsm., I, 247.
- ii. In the East End, however, in the whole of the Tower Hamlets the occupation voters are fewer in number than the inhabited houses. Westm. Gaz., No. 5501, 3c.
The failures recorded during the past year have been fewer than for twenty-three years past. Ib., 2b.
- iii. The reader gets no fewer than 28 distinct poems in the 176 pages of the book. Lit. World.
No fewer than 400 (sc. peers) attended fewer than ten times. Rev. of Rev., CCVI, 161a.
In the course of his journeyings the President is expected to deliver no fewer than seventy-five set speeches. Times.

17. The indefinite article may also be met with:

- a) before a word-group, consisting of a numeral and a plural noun, denoting a certain unit, especially when this word-group is preceded by an adjective, or by second, other or any equivalent modifier. MÄTZN., *Eng. Gram.*², III, 189; ELLINGER, Verm. Beitr., 16.

- i. We hadn't been a three months man and wife when that man [etc.]. G. MEREDITH, Ord. of Rich. Fev., Ch. XXVIII, 225.

Since that time twelve months have passed, but what a twelve months. Rev. of Rev., CCII, 373a.

- ii. What was Tom Claypool... with... his heirdom to a poor five thousand acres, compared to this young American prince and charming stranger? THACK., Virg., Ch. XLV, 467.

He turned out 50.000 lines in a single four years. Lit. World.

True you can save a paltry twelve shillings by subscribing for one year. Eng. Rev., 1912, October, Adv. XXVI.

- iii. But this task occupied a second five months. W. H. DIXON, Life of W. Penn, II, 2.1)

May she live on an unshaken throne yet another fifty years. SARAH A. TOOLEY, The Queen (L. v. D. WAL, London Pictures, I).

¹) ELLINGER, E. S., XXXI, 156.

It is well worth paying an extra two guineas. EVA ANSTRUTHER (Westm. Gaz., No. 4972, 9a).

The movement is dead and buried, and will not be resurrected for another twenty years. Rev. of Rev., CCX, 572a.

May 6 was the last day for the denunciation of the treaty of alliance between Germany, Austria and Italy, the arrangement being automatically renewable for a further six years, unless one of the contracting parties should give a year's notice of an intention to denounce it. Times.

Compare with the above the following quotation where the word-group is referred to by one, which shows that it is understood as a singular:

We are by no means sure that when history comes to be written, the first six months will not rank as one of the most important of our time. Westm. Gaz., No. 5371, 1b.

Note 1. In twelvemonth, fortnight (= fourteen night) sennight or se'nnight (= seven night) the word-group has become a compound. Of a similar nature is the word-group instanced in:

She...died in less than a three week. Mrs. GASK., Mary Barton, Ch. X, 117.

II. The once common practice of placing the indefinite article before a numeral to remove its definiteness or to express an approximate estimate (MURRAY, s. v. a, 2), survives only as an archaism, except before the adjective good, when it is still quite common.

i. I have not past a two shillings or so. BEN JONS., Every Man in his Hum., I, 4.¹)

An eight days after these sayings. Bible, Luke, IX, 28.

He had never been in here for a drop of liquor since she went, except a ten days ago. CH. KINGSLEY, Westw. Hol., Ch. XIV, 119b.

Each bar (sc. of silver was) between a thirty and forty pound weight. Ib., Ch. I, 2a.

ii. He came to me, a good six years ago, and robbed me. THACK., Pend., II, Ch. XXXVIII, 408.

The vessel was now a good ten miles to the eastward. CH. KINGSLEY, Westw. Hol., Ch. XIX, 140a.

I'll be bound her waist's a good five-and-twenty inches. EDNA LYALL, Hardy Norse., Ch. XIII, 109.

It was a good four miles of a walk. CON. DOYLE, Rodney Stone, I, Ch. III, 66.

There is a good two inches of water in the boat. JEROME, Three men in a boat, Ch. II, 18.

b) in colloquial or jocular language before certain plural nouns denoting the things with which a person is chiefly occupied professionally.

I worn't always a boots. DICK., Pickw., Ch. XVI, 137.

Don't you know what a Sawbones is? Ib., Ch. XXX, 266.

He engaged a buttons. Queer Stories from Truth, 1908, 201.

Note. Such a word does not undergo any alteration for the plural, but takes the 's of the genitive.

i. There's a couple o' Sawbones downstairs. DICK., Pickw., Ch. XXX, 266.

ii. I could worm ev'ry secret out o' the boots's heart in five minutes. Ib., Ch. XVI, 139

1) MÄTZN., Eng. Gram.², III, 189.

- c) before certain word-groups consisting of an adjective and a plural noun, containing some humorous allusion to a person's disposition.

He's a sly old boots. THACK.¹⁾

You are an old, old Grave-airs. Id., Henry Esmond, III, Ch. III, 330.

I am afraid she is a lazy-boots. Mrs. ALEX., For his Sake, I, Ch. XIII, 222.

She was something of a light-skirts. HENLEY, Burns, 285.

Note. Of the Dutch practice of using the indefinite article before a plural after exclamatory wat (welk) and zulk (zoo), as in wat een menschen, zulk een (zoo'n) menschen, there is no analogue in English. Compare the following quotations:

i. What fearful shapes and shadows beset his path amidst the dim and ghastly glare of a snowy light! WASH. IRV., Sketch-Bk., XXXII, 349.
What myriads of women have cried over it (sc. the teapot), to be sure!
What sick-beds it has smoked by! What fevered lips have received refreshment from out of it! THACK., Pend., I, Ch. XXXII, 347.

ii. The rain descended in such torrents as absolutely to spatter up and smoke along the ground. WASH. IRV., The Storm-Ship (STOF., Handl., II, 83).

18. In some cases the grammatical anomaly seems to go counter to the sense conveyed.

a) When the subject together with (an)other (pro)noun(s) stands before the predicate, the latter is often, by attraction (Ch. XXXII, 4), made to agree with the nearest (pro)noun instead of the real subject (19, a). This construction is especially met with in the older writers, but is by no means uncommon in Present English, especially in the language of the uneducated. SWEET, N. E. Gr., § 117; BAIN, H. E. Gr., 300; The King's English, 66; ABBOT, Shak. Gram.³⁾, § 412; HODGSON, Errors⁸, III, 132; ONIONS, Advanced Eng. Synt., § 17.

i. * The posture of your blows are yet unknown. Jul. Cæs., V, 1, 33.
 Giving you no further personal power | To business with the king more than the scope | Of these delated articles allow. Hamlet, I, 2, 38.
 The amount of that woman's charities are unheard of. THACK., Newc., I, Ch. V, 55.

 Every one of these letters are in my name. Twelfth Night, II, 5, 153.
Not one of them know the situation of doors, windows, or chimnies. BICKERSTAFF.²⁾

Nothing but dreary dykes ... occur to break the blank grey monotony of the landscape. F. W. FARRAR, St. Winifred's, Ch. XXI, 237.³⁾

ii. The venom clamours of a jealous woman | Poisons more deadly than a mad dog's tooth. Com. of Errors, V, 1, 70.

All special rights of voting in the election of members was abolished. J. R. GREEN.⁴⁾

¹⁾ HOPPE, Supplem. Lex. ²⁾ MÄTZN., Eng. Gram.², II, 148.

³⁾ HODGSON, Errors⁸, III, 133. ⁴⁾ The King's English, 67.

In the following quotation the anomaly cannot even be excused on the plea of nearness of the governing noun:

Pray what are become of the books? SHER., School for Scand., III, 3, (401).

Note I. Quite common is this ungrammatical construction, also in Present English, when the subject is the singular distributive (n)either followed by a plural (pro)noun. EINENKEL, Anglia, XXVII, 67; HODGSON, Errors⁸, 155; The King's Eng., 69.

i. Neither of the sisters were very much deceived. THACK.¹⁾

Neither of them are remarkable for precision. BLAIR.²⁾

ii. Either of them are enough to drive any man to distraction. FIELDING, Tom Jones, 8, 19.³⁾

Have either of them told you that I made an offer to your sister? TROL., Framl. Pars., Ch. XXXI, 302.

I don't mean that either of the writers I name are absolutely thus narrow in their own views. RUSKIN, Val d'Arno, 119.³⁾

Compare with the above the grammatically more correct construction in:

In all the years we've been married neither of us has made jokes. SAKI (Westm. Gaz., No. 5388, 9b).

Neither of us has any right to lock up the other on any principle conceivable outside chaos. CHESTERTON (Il. Lond. News, No. 3816, 869c).

II. Very common also is the use of the plural instead of the grammatically correct singular when the subject is either kind or sort followed by of + plural noun. The mistake is no doubt in a large measure due also to the subservient nature of the nouns kind or sort as compared with the following noun. SWEET, Spoken Eng., 35; KELLNER, Hist. Outl. of Eng. Synt., § 12; STORM, Eng. Phil.², 701; MURRAY, s. v. kind, 14, b. Compare also c.

There are a sort of men, whose visages | Do cream and mantle like a standing pond. Merch. of Ven., I, 1, 88.

What kind of trees are those? MURRAY.

Such kind of pamphlets work wonders with the credulous multitude. T. FLATMAN.⁴⁾

b) When the subject stands after the (finite verb of the) predicate, we sometimes find the latter in the singular, although the former is plural.

1) This anomaly is especially frequent, when the sentence opens with. There (Here, Where) is (was), and was common in Early Modern English. Compare the French il y a. In Present English it is considered more or less vulgar or dialectal. ABBOT, Shak. Gram.³, § 335; FRANZ, Shak. Gram.², § 672; HODGSON, Errors⁸, III, 142; LOHMAN, Anglia, III, 137; A. SCHMIDT, Shak. Lexic., I, 82; MÄTZN., Eng. Gram.², II, 151. Compare also MURRAY, s. v. be, A, I, 3.

There's daggers in men's smiles. Macb., II, 3, 146.

1) BAIN, H. E. Gr. 2) MÄTZN., Eng. Gram.², II, 149.

3) EINENKEL, Anglia, XXVII, 67. 4) MURRAY.

For thy three thousand ducats here is six. Merch. of Ven., IV, 1, 84.
There's the two Miss Hoggs. GOLDSM., She stoops to conquer.
Where's her traps? THACK., Van. Fair, I, Ch. XVI, 171.

There was in his countenance none of those winning looks which often told so powerfully with his young friends. TROL., Framl. Pars., Ch. XXVII, 264.
There's things you might repent of. G. ELIOT, Mid., III, Ch. XXXII, 226.
 At his aunt Pullet's there was a great many toads to pelt in the cellar-area. Id., Mill, I, Ch. VII, 51.

I told him there wasn't many months in the year as I wasn't under the doctor's hands. Ib., 50.

There was eighty-six men and boys went down first shift. Mrs. WARD, Sir George Tressady, III, Ch. XXIII, 202a.

You wicked child! where's your commandments? JEROME, Paul Kever, I, Ch. I, 14a.

- 2) Analogously other intransitive verbs are sometimes ungrammatically placed in the singular when preceded by weak there.

There lies two kinsmen digg'd their graves. Rich. II, III, 3, 169.

There comes an old man and his three sons. As you like it, I, 2, 105.

- 3) Much rarer is this ungrammatical singular when there is no weak there, as in:

Just before us lies a couple of Lions in the way. BUNYAN, Pilg. Progr., 173.
 To-morrow ends thine earthly ills. BYRON, Manfr., II, 3.

- 4) Postposition of the subject may also be responsible for the anomaly in:
 That spirit upon whose weal depends and rests | The lives of many. Haml., III, 3, 14.

At this hour | Lies at my mercy all mine enemies. Temp., IV, 1, 259.

Upon the next session of Parliament hangs the destinies of Liberalism for many a year to come. Rev. of Rev., CCXIII, 218a.

- 5) In the following quotations the ungrammatical singular seems to be due to the interrogative what being mistaken for the subject:

What cares these roarers for the name of King? Temp., I, 1, 17.

What is your tidings? Macb., I, 5, 31.

What means these dreadful words and frantic air? G. LILLO, Fatal Curiosity, III, 2, (310b).

But what matters a few failings? THACK., Pend., XLVI.

- c) In adnominal clauses the verb is often placed in the singular although the antecedent is plural, when the latter is preceded by the numeral one + partitive of. The mistake is apparently due to one being erroneously taken for the antecedent. STOF., Es., XXVII, 253; HOLTHAUSEN, E. S., XXXV, 186; HODGSON, Errors⁸, 144; HORN, Herrig's Archiv, CXIV, 368, No. 2; ONIONS, Advanced Eng. Synt., § 65b.

This is one of the very best treatises on money and coins that has ever been published. J. R. McCULLOCH, Lit. and Pol. Econ., 163.1)

This is one of the pleasantest books about Russia that has appeared since the publication of Mr Sutherland Edward's delightful 'Russians at Home'. Spectator, 1871, 3 June, 671.

1) HODGSON, Errors⁸, 145.

This is the epoch of one of the most singular discoveries that has been made among men. HUME.¹⁾

I resemble one of those animals that has been forced from its forest to gratify human curiosity. GOLDSMITH.¹⁾

Compare the grammatically correct:

The neighbourhood, at the time of which I am speaking, was one of those highly-favoured places which abound with chronicle and great men. WASH. IRV., Sketch-Bk., XXXII, 364.

This is one of the few good books that have been written. ONIONS, Advanced Eng. Synt., § 62b.

- d) Sometimes the predicate is placed in the singular when its subject is the word-group more than one.

More than one who took a part in the more extreme developments of the work has since been conspicuous on the rationalistic side of more recent discoveries. OAKELEY, Hist. Notes Tract. Novement, 103.²⁾

- e) In the vulgar language the third person singular of the present tense is often used throughout for all persons singular and plural.

The terms is agreed upon. DICK., Pickw., Ch. XII, 103.

If the clothes fits me half as well as the place, they'll do. Ib.

I takes it (sc. the prescription) reg'lar. Ib., Ch. XX, 179.

I spells it (sc. my name) with a 'V'. Ib., Ch. XXXIV, 317.

The Papers is full of observations. Id., Chimes³, I, 13.

- f) The subservient nature of kind or sort, as compared with that of the following noun, causes the plural of the demonstrative pronouns to be used instead of the grammatically correct singular in such word-groups as these (those) kind (sort) of apples. The practice may be traced to quite early times. FRANZ, Shak. Gram.², § 316, Anm. 2; HODGSON, Errors⁸, 156; ONIONS, Advanced Eng. Synt., § 36.

These kind of knaves I know. Lear, II, 2, 107.

I leave these kind of things entirely to them. GOLDSM., She Stoops, II, (184).

It would surprise you to hear how ready he is at all these sort of things. SHER., School for Scandal, I, 1, (369).

I know many of those sort of girls. TROL., Framl. Pars., Ch. XVI, 154.

I don't like these kind of apples so well as those we had yesterday. SWEET, Spok. Eng., 35.

At these kind of 'afternoon teas'. MARIE CORELLI, Murder of Delicia, Ch. I, 27.

Thus also there is often discrepancy in number when sort (or kind) of + plural noun is the nominal part of the predicate and the demonstrative pronoun is the subject.

These are the sort of rooms . . . which ought to be provided by the country for the use of its bishops. TROL., Framl. Pars., Ch. XXIX, 278.

Conversely thing or person is kept in the singular in the colloquial collocations this sort (kind) of thing (person).

¹⁾ BAIN, H. E. Gr., 308. ²⁾ MURRAY, s. v. more, B, 3.

If you'll be so kind as to give me your keys, I'll attend to all this sort of thing in future. DICK., Cop., Ch. IV, 24a.

One does not, mercifully, often come into contact with that sort of person. RICH. BAGOT, The Just and the Unjust, II, Ch. V, 130.

- g) There also seems to be an anomaly in the regular use of the singular instead of the plural in the collocation all manner of + plural noun, where, however, all may be understood in the sense of any. The whole phrase is, evidently, apprehended as expressing but one idea, so that the individual meaning of manner is disregarded.

When a political party has been kept too long in opposition, it is inclined to adopt all manner of wild-cat theories. Rev. of Rev., CCVIII, 341a.

19. a) Owing chiefly to the want of a singular pronoun of the third person of the common gender, i. e. one that may indicate either a male or a female person (33), the plural pronoun of the third person is often used in referring to:

- 1) the indefinite pronouns anybody (-one), each (-one), everybody (-one), nobody (-one), many a one, the interrogative pronoun who, and the numeral one.
- 2) a noun of common gender when accompanied by an indefinite modifier, or by the numeral one.
- 3) two or more (pro)nouns of a different gender connected by or. See also BAIN, H. E. *Gr.*², 310; TEN-BRUG., Taalst., IX; C. ALPHONSO SMITH, Anglia, XXIII, 242 foll; HODGSON, *Errors*⁸, 152, H. WILLERT, Anmerk. zur Eng. Gram.

i. * How can anybody be happy while they're in perpetual fear of being seen and censured. CONGREVE, Love for Love, II, 2, (281).

Do not you remember how any one can ever tear themselves away from the country? Mrs. WARD, Rob. Elsm., II, 16.

It is worth while to be crushed by any one who can give so much ground for their knowledge. Ib., I, 162.

Anybody could sing, if they were taught. W. BESANT, All Sorts and Cond. of Men.

 He was one of those precious men whom everybody would choose to work for them. G. ELIOT, Mid., II, Ch. XXII, 165.

Nothing could be heartier. His niece looked just the same. So did Topper when he came. So did the plump sister, when she came. So did every one when they came. DICK., *Christm. Car.*⁵, V, 109.

 Nobody prevents you, do they? THACK., Pend., II, Ch. II, 19. Nobody mistook their pew for their fourposter during the sermon. CH. READE, It is never too late to mend, Ch. VII, 83.

* Many a one has been comforted in their sorrow by seeing a good dish upon the table. Mrs. GASK., Cranf., Ch. XIV, 256.

 Who is without their drawback, their scourge, their skeleton behind the curtain? Id., Life of Ch. Brontë, 261.

 There is not one in a hundred of either sex who is not taken in when they marry. JANE AUSTEN, Mansf. Park, Ch. V, 46.

- ii. * The winds play about his house in so riotous a manner that a person must poise themselves in a very exact manner to maintain their ground. ELIZ. MONTAGU, Letters (Westm. Gaz., No. 5201, 5a).

Whenever a person does that, it looks as though their course were weak. TROL., Framl. Pars., Ch. XLI, 397.

As for love, flattery is its very life-blood. Fill a person with love for themselves, and what runs over will be your share. JEROME, Idle Thoughts, II, 48.

Any one who knows . . . how full of gladness and beauty and wonder all creation is to a child, how little they know of fear or anxiety [etc.]. SWEET, Old Chapel.

 If either party fix their attachment upon the substantial comforts of a rental or a jointure, they cannot be disappointed in the acquisition. SCOTT.¹⁾

 Every person has a right to take care of themselves. DICK., Christm. Car.⁵, IV, 91.

* Not one novelist in a thousand ever does tell us the real story of their hero. JEROME, Idle Thoughts, IV, 59.

- iii. When a man or woman loves to brood over a sorrow, and takes care to keep it green in their memory, you may be sure it is no longer a pain to them. ib., II, 32.

Go out into the street, and ask the first man or woman you meet what their taste is, and if they answer candidly, you know them body and soul. ROORDA, Dutch and Eng. Compared, § 107.

Let him or her join themselves unto me and work with me for that especial end. Rev. of Rev., CXCV, 225.

Note I. Also when no difference of sex is in question, the plural pronouns are sometimes met with.

Both these men's eyes followed George into the house, and each had a strong inclination they were bent on concealing. CH. READE, It is never too late to mend, I, Ch. II, 34.

For any white man to marry out of their own colour is to commit social suicide. Daily Mail.

II. Even everything is sometimes found referred to by a plural pronoun.

The fire irons shone like silver and everything in the room was as neat and clean and bright as it was expected for them to be. O. F. WALTON, A Peep behind the scenes, The Little Pitcher, Ch. XVIII. Everything appeared to have gone wrong with him since Nina left; and the worst of it was that he was gradually ceasing to care how they went, right or wrong. W. BLACK, The New Prince Fortunatus, Ch. XX.

- b) In order to avoid this discrepancy, precise speakers often prefer to use the singular pronouns of the masculine and feminine gender in succession. In the case of every, each or either the difficulty may be met by substituting respectively all or both.

Everybody called for his or her favourite remedy. BAIN, H. E. Gr. (Otherwise: All called for their favourite remedies.)

Some person who had pledged his or herself to do what can be done. Rev. of Rev., CXCV, 225.

¹⁾ BAIN, H. E. Gr., 311.

This practice, which is mostly felt as unbearably pedantic, is sometimes justified by the circumstances of the situation described, or used for humorous effect.

Mr. and Mrs. Fezziwig took their stations, one on either side the door, and shaking hands with every person individually as he or she went out, wished him or her a Merry Christmas. DICK., *Christm. Car.*⁵, II, 47.

The penny fare enables every one, even the poorest working man and woman, to drive to his or her destination. GÜNTHER, Leerb., 74.

To push on in the crowd, every male or female struggler must use his or her shoulders. THACK., Newc., I, Ch. VIII, 86.

c) Sometimes there is a halting between two practices:

The institution of property reduced to its essential elements, consists in the recognition, in each person, of a right to the exclusive disposal of what he or she has produced by their own exertions. J. S. MILL.

d) As the finite verb is now almost regularly kept in the singular when any of the above indefinite words or word-groups is the subject, we sometimes meet with harsh discrepancies.

Everybody has their failing, and everybody has a right to do what they like with their own money. JANE AUSTEN, North. Abbey, Ch. XVI, 126.

Every one was eating their best and drinking their worst. CH. KINGSLEY, Westw. Ho!, Ch. XXII, 99a.

Just because a woman is on the stage, everybody thinks they may throw stones at her. MRS. WARD, Rob. Elsm., I, 292.

If anybody knows what I am going to tell, they are not to say one word until it is over. MRS. EWINGS, A Hero, 84.

If any one calls, tell them I will be back in half an hour. SWEET, Spok. Eng., 36.

SHAKESPEARE and other Early Modern English writers sometimes have the finite verb in the plural. ABBOT, *Shak. Gram.*³, § 12.

Now leaden slumber with life's strength doth fight; | And every one to rest themselves betake, | Save thieves, and cares, and troubled minds, that wake. The Rape of Lucrece, 125.

Such smiling rogues as these | ... smooth every passion | That in the natures of their lords rebel. Lear, II, 2, 81.

Such instances as occur in later Modern English seem to be due to attraction, a plural noun, forming part of an adnominal modifier of the subject, intervening between the latter and the finite verb.

Every one of our unknowing actors and actresses were to be implicated, more or less, in the catastrophe. THACK., Catherine, 66a.¹⁾

How could he help taking his part in maintaining undivided that fair realm of America, which every one of his countrymen love as Queen Elizabeth's yeomen loved the realm of England. BESANT and RICE, Golden Butterfly, 162.¹⁾

It is true that not one of the bright particular stars of Polish history were of that line or age. Saturday Rev., 1865, 19 July, 242.²⁾

And so each of his portraits are not only 'a piece of history', but [etc.]. STEVENSON.³⁾

Thus also in: Every one of these letters are in my name. Twelfth Night, II, 5, 154.

¹⁾ H. WILLERT, Anm., 17.

²⁾ HODGSON, *Errors*⁸, 152.

³⁾ The King's Eng., 68.

Even every thing may be found with a plural predicate.

And here I swear by all the Roman gods, | Sith priest and holy water are so near, | And tapers burn so bright and every thing | In readiness for Hymenæus stand, I will not re-salute the streets of Rome, | Or climb my palace, till from forth this place | I lead espoused my bride along with me. Titus Adronicus, I, 1, 325.

Compare with this the construction in the following quotation, where the plural is used after all (= everything) + relative that. No sympathy, no kindness . . . but all that irritate and offend. CH. LEVER, A Day's Ride, I, 86.¹⁾

- e) Very rarely do we find compounds of body (one) coupled with a plural noun as nominal part of the predicate.

The unaccustomed visitor from outside naturally assumed everybody here to be prisoners. DICK., Little Dorrit, Ch. VIII, 45a.

- f) Compare with the quotations under a—e above the following with the regular grammatical construction:

Who can be angry at those assiduities which are meant to please him? GOLDSMITH, She Stoops, II, (186).

England expects every man to do his duty. SOUTHEY, Life of Nelson. He did not know the stories that were told of him. Who knows the stories that are told of him? THACK., Virg., Ch. XXVIII, 290.

It seems natural that every mother should nurse her own child. BAIN, H. E. Gr.

20. The concord of none requires some special discussion. (Ch. XL, 135 ff.) Though the descendant of the Old English nān (= ne ān), corresponding to Modern English not one, and consequently decidedly singular in import, none is mostly construed as a plural.

- a) When used absolutely, in which case it is felt as equivalent to either not one or not any, the singular construction is not uncommon, although less common than the plural.

i. None of my nephews . . . deserves to receive any benefits at your hands. WALT. BESANT, All Sorts and Cond. of Men, Ch. XXXIII, 229. None of the survivors puts the time at more than 15 minutes. Times. It is probable that none of the parties to the arrangement has reached such a pitch of blameless perfection as to be entitled to throw stones at the others. Ib.

ii. I must confess he is not without faults, love. — None of us are. DICK., Bleak House, Ch. XXX, 254.

None of us in the house have liked her. THACK., Van. Fair, I, Ch. VI, 64.

I hope none of you forget church. Id., Sam. Titm., Ch. II, 17.

What has happened at the Théâtre Français may easily be repeated at any of the theatres. None, with the exception of the Opéra, are better protected against fire. Daily Chronicle.

- b) When used substantively, in which case it is almost exclusively used of persons, it is now mostly construed as a plural. The singular construction is, however, common enough, especially in the older writers, after here and there. (18, b.) In Present English the singular none has given way to nobody, or is used as an archaism.

¹⁾ FLÜGEL, Dict., s.v. all, II, 8.

- i. * There is none but he | Whose being I do fear. Mac b., III, 1, 64.
There is none that doeth good, no not one. Psalm, XIV, 3.
 By midday there was none in the court who had not heard of the tidings.
 CONAN DOYLE, Refugees.
  None but the brave deserves the fair. DRYDEN, Alexander's Feast, I.
 The Chief is young and jealous of his rank — none knows the reason better than thou, friend Glover. SCOTT, Fair Maid, Ch. XXVII, 279.
 Had not his poor heart | Spoken with That, which being everywhere | Lets none, who speaks with Him, seem all alone, | Surely the man had died of solitude. TEN., En. Ard., 615.
- Thus frequently in proverbs:
None ever gives the lie to him that praiseth him.
None goes to the gallows for giving ill counsel.
None is so wise, but the fool overtakes him.
None knows the weight of another's burden.
- ii. None wed the second (sc. husband) but who kill'd the first. Ham l., III 2, 192.
None, except his intimate friends, know he has a great deal of wit. Spectator, II.
None are so deaf as those who will not hear. Proverb.
None are so blind as those who won't see. Id.
None know how they are born. LYTTON, Caxtons, I, Ch. II, 9.
- In many cases the context does not show whether none is felt as a plural or a singular.
None of woman born | Shall harm Macbeth. Mac b., IV, I, 80.
 He was never known to be subject to that punishment which it is generally thought, none but a cherub can escape. THACK., Van. Fair, I, Ch. IX, 87.
None can say what effect the triumph of the Revolution might have upon the Social Democrats of Germany. Rev. of Rev., CXCIX, 4b.

CONCORD WITH COMPOUND ELEMENTS OF THE SENTENCE.

21. Also when the subject is compound, the English language in determining the number of the words dependent on it for their form is essentially led by the meaning conveyed, i. e. this number is the singular when the compound subject calls forth a singular idea. This is often symbolized by the fact that the modifiers of the first noun are not repeated before the others. Compare:

A needle and thread was given her, but she could not sew the button on.
A needle and a thread were given her, but she could not thread the needle.
 BAIN, H. E. Gr., 305.

For a discussion see also BAIN, Comp., 285; ONIONS, Advanced Eng. Synt., 22b.

It is in accordance with the above principle that the singular number is used:

- a) when the different members of a compound subject designate the same person or thing.

When the duke died, his son and namesake and successor was an infant.
 BAIN, H. E. Gr., 303.

A similar principle sometimes causes the singular to be used when the members of the compound subject are thought of as synonymous terms, or as representing only different aspects of the same idea.

i. The sceptre shows the force of temporal power | Wherein doth sit the dread and fear of kings. Merch. of Ven., IV, 1, 192.

The very head and front of my offending hath this extent. Othello, I, 3, 80.
The hardship and exposure of a savage life speedily destroys those who are not of a robust constitution. BAIN, H. E. Gr., 303.

The peace and good order of society was not promoted by the feudal system. HALLAM.¹⁾ ii. Our yoke and sufferance show us womanish. Jul. Cæs., I, 3, 84.

b) when the nouns making up a compound subject are the names of the component parts of anything, or of things, actions, qualities, etc. thought of, some way or other as constituents of one whole. See *ABBOT, Shak. Gram.*³, § 336.

All is but toys: renown and grace is dead. Macb., II, 3, 99.

ANT. Is your gold and silver ewes and rams? SHYL. I cannot tell: I make it breed as fast. Merch. of Ven., I, 3, 97.

Hill and valley rings. MILTON, Par Lost, II, 495.

To recover Silesia, to humble the dynasty of Hohenzollern to the dust was the great object of Maria Theresa's life. MAC., Fred., (683a).

Hodge and Smithers is a most respectable firm. THACK., Sam. Titm., Ch. VI, 67.

The wheel and axle was out of repair. BAIN, H. E. Gr., 305.

Bread and butter is my usual breakfast. Ib.

The long and short of the matter is [etc.]. Id., Comp., 285.

The ebb and flow of the tides is now understood. Ib.

The composition and resolution of forces was largely applied by Newton. Ib.

Trial and error is the source of our knowledge. Ib.

The same usage is sometimes met with where the unity is less apparent.

Hanging and wiving goes by destiny. Merch. of Ven., II, 9, 83.

Thy weal and woe are both of them extremes, | Despair and hope makes thee ridiculous. SHAK., Ven. and Ad., 988. (Note the varied practice.)

The wild swans come to our East Coast when the Cattegat and the neighbouring sea is frozen. HORACE HUTCHINSON, Weather Wisdom of the Birds (Westm. Gaz., No. 5219, 4c).

In the following quotations the singular might be used for the plural:

No sooner was the doctor out of sight than pestle and mortar were abandoned. WASH. IRV., Dolf Heyl. (STOF., Handl., I, 110).

Blue and yellow make green. *MASON, Eng. Gram.*³⁴, § 336, N.

Sometimes one of the two nouns is by hendiadys connected with the other by and, but in reality stands for an adnominal adjunct. In this case also the singular number is sometimes used. *FRANZ, Shak. Gram.*², § 673.

i. The blood and courage that renowned them | Runs in your veins. Henry V., I, 2, 118. (= courageous blood.)

1) BAIN, H. E. Gr., 303.

- ii. The public opinion of the great is the opinion of their equals — of those whom birth and accident cast for ever in their way. LYTTON, Rienzi, II, Ch. III, 86. (= the accident of birth.)

On the principle designated above (b), it seems more rational to say two and two is (makes) four than two and two are (make) four. The former practice, however, is far less common than the latter. See also BAIN, H. E. Gr., 305, N.

When will you acknowledge that two and two make four, and call a pikestaff a pikestaff? THACK., Snobs, Ch. XVII.

I help men to carry out their own principles, if they please to say, two and two make five, I assent, so they will but go on and say, four and four make ten. BROWNING, Soul's Trag., II.

Two and two make four. JEROME, Idle Thoughts, VII, 112.

The ordinary matter-of-fact citizen who believes that two and two make four, naturally takes alarm at this prospect. Rev. of Rev., CCXX, 330a.

8 and 4 make 12. PENDLEBURY, Arithmetic, § 30.

Two and two are four, and two are six. Eng. Rev., 1912, July, 582.

It was as though a distinguished mathematician had inadvertently said that two and two made five and his audience had afterwards accused him of inconsistency when he said they were four. Westm. Gaz., No. 5277, 2a.

Sometimes the idea of unity is symbolized by some word, such as this, that, all this (that), gathering up the different items of the compound subject. When the bare all (not followed by the demonstrative) is used for this purpose, the plural seems to be the rule.

- i. To be the leader of the human race in the career of improvement, to found of ancient intellectual dynasties a more prosperous and more enduring empire, to be revered by the latest generations as the most illustrious of the benefactors of mankind, all this was within Bacon's reach. Mac., Bacon, (372a). To think of a story is much harder work than to write it. The author can sit down with the pen in his hand for a given time, and produce a certain number of words. That is comparatively easy, and if he have a conscience in regard to his task, work will be done regularly. But to think it over as you lie in bed, or walk about, or sit cosily over your fire, to turn it all in your thoughts and make things fit — that requires elbow-grease of the mind. TROL., Thackeray, Ch. V, 123.

- ii. Everything about him, his coat, his wig, his figure, his face, his scrofula, his St. Vitus's dance, etc., etc., all are as familiar to us as the objects by which we have been surrounded from childhood. Mac., Boswell's Life, (178a).

His face, his figure, his mode of speech, his habit of thought, all were masculine exceedingly. Rev. of Rev., CXCIV, 306.

22. Sometimes the use of the singular seems to be due to the predicate being connected in thought only with that member of the compound subject which stands nearest to it. This is especially the case.

- a) when the predicate stands before the subject.

And now abideth faith, hope, charity, these three; but the greatest of this is charity. Bible, Cor., A, XIII, 13.

Here comes Bassanio, your most noble kinsman, | Gratiano, and Lorenzo. Merch. of Ven., I, 1, 57.

So doth the Prince of Hell | And his adherents. MILTON, Par. Lost, X, 621.

Sir, here hath been Peachum, and his daughter Polly. GAY, Beggar's Opera, III, 1.
 Upon this there was a fearful cry from heaven, and great claps of thunder.
 WASH. IRVING.¹⁾

b) when the members of the subject form a climax.

- i. My purse, my coffer, and myself is thine. MARLOWE, Jew of Malta, III, 4.²⁾
- ii. Honour, justice, religion itself, were derided by these profligate wretches, M'CULLOCH.³⁾

23. The opposite of the principle referred to in 21 often takes effect:

a) when a singular subject is connected with another noun by the preposition with having the force of and.

- i. The captain with his men were saved, BAIN, H. E. Gr., 305.
The king with his lords and commons constitute our government. ib., 306.
Old Sir John with many more are at the door. ONIONS, Advanced Eng. Synt., § 22b.
Poor Mrs. B's crippled baby, with all his many other failures, were at once forgotten by his patients. JN. HOLLINGSHEAD, Ways of Life, 139.³⁾
 We get a glimpse of the temperament, which is destined to play such havoc when you meet her for the first time, as she, with other boys and girls, are amusing themselves child fashion in a garden. T. P.'s Weekly, No. 504, 2c.
- ii. The empress herself, with her mother Prisca, was condemned. GIBBON.⁴⁾

b) when a singular subject is modified by two or more adjuncts connected by and, so that actually two or more things are meant. BAIN, H. E. Gr., 176; id., Comp., 304; HODGSON, *Errors*⁸, III, 136.

The logical and the historical analysis of a language generally in some degree coincide. BAIN, H. E. Gr., 307.

The material and mental world have their points of union. W. J. FOX, Works, III, 280.⁵⁾

Ornate and grotesque music have common faults. ROB. BUCHANAN, Life of David Gray, 47.⁵⁾

The same practice is sometimes erroneously observed when there is no such plurality.

A moral and honourable mode of action and thought are enforced as a duty. MAYHEW, German Life, II, 95.⁶⁾

An attention to order, neatness and propriety of dress, and manners too, are perfectly consistent with the engaging virtue of which I am treating. MISS APPLETON, Early Education, 139.⁶⁾

His knowledge of French and Italian literature were far beyond the common. Life and Let. of F. W. Robertson, 46.⁶⁾

To be active in the affairs of one's native corporation, and in settling controversies among one's friends there, are employments of the most laudable kind. MELMOTH, Pliny, VII, 15.⁷⁾

¹⁾ BAIN, H. E. Gr., 304.

²⁾ MÄTZN., *Eng. Gram.*², II, 163.

³⁾ HODGSON, *Errors*⁸, 148.

⁴⁾ MÄTZN., *Eng. Gram.*², II, 160.

⁵⁾ HODGSON, *Errors*⁸, III, 137.

⁶⁾ ib., 134. ⁷⁾ ib., 140.

24. As contracted sentences cannot always be strictly distinguished from such as have compound elements, they also exhibit a good deal of vacillation as to the choice of number. Leaving out of account the cases when contraction is grammatically inadmissible (Ch. IX, 7), this vacillation naturally becomes manifest only when the subjects of both (all) members of the contracted sentence are singular. The following are the chief points of interest:

a) When the members of the contracted sentence are connected by as well as, the singular is much more common than the plural.

i. Africa, as well as Gaul, was gradually fashioned by imitation of the capital. BAIN, H. E. Gr., 306.

The opulence of the monks, as well as the number of them, in the time of Henry II, was enormous. Ib.

ii. Your sister, as well as myself, are greatly obliged to you for the comparison. FIELDING.¹⁾

At least, my family, as well as myself, have hands. Id., Jos. Andrews, IV, Ch. II, 206.

The control, as well as the support, which a father exercises over his family, were, by the dispensation of Providence, withdrawn. REV. W. LEGGATT, Account of Ten Years' Educational Experiment among Destitute Boys, 8.²⁾

b) Usage seems to be equally divided when the union is effected by nor, the plural being, however, preferred in the case of the subjects differing in person. It stands to reason that the plural is practically regular when one of the members is plural. For reasons of euphony this plural is placed after the singular. Compare also MASON, *Eng. Gram.*³⁾, § 449 and § 484 (which, by the way are incompatible); ONIONS, Advanced Eng. Synt., § 22.

i. Neither this nor that is the thing wanted. BAIN, H. E. Gr., 307.

Neither John, nor Thomas is mistaken. MAS., *Eng. Gram.*³⁾, § 484.

I will go where there is neither French nor English, Jew nor Gentile, bond nor free, but all are alike in the eyes of Him who made them. CH. KINGSLEY, Hereward, Ch. XX, 88a.

Neither the party nor the nation knows where it stands, nor what are the proposals put forward by a future Unionist Administration. Westm. Gaz., No. 5430, 1c.

Neither Russia nor Austria...intends to make any proposals which will deprive the Allies in any important respect of the fruits of their victory. Ib., No. 6083, 1c.

ii. * Nor heaven, nor earth, have been at peace to-night. Jul. Cæs., II, 2, 1.

Neither Kent nor Sussex were among the greatest of the kingdoms which our forefathers found in Britain. FREEMAN.³⁾

Neither he nor my aunt have ever said a word about taking me abroad with them. Mrs. ALEX., A Life Interest, I, Ch. XIV, 244.

1) MÄTZN., *Eng. Gram.*²⁾, II, 161.

2) HODGSON, *Errors*⁸⁾, 141.

3) BAIN, H. E. Gr., § 307.

* Neither my master nor I drink the waters. SHER., Rivals, I, 2 (214).
Not thou, | Nor I alone, are injured and abused. BYRON, Mar. Fal., I, 2 (357b).

Neither you nor I are ever going to say a word about it. MAR. CRAWF., Kath. Lauderdale, I, Ch. XV, 281.

Neither you nor I are to blame. FLOR. MARRYAT, A Bankrupt Heart, II, 226.

Neither my sister nor I want his money. CHARLES DANCE, The Bengal Tiger.

 Neither John nor his brothers are to blame.

Neither the Emperor nor his people desire war. ONIONS, Advanced Eng. Synt., § 23.

- c) The singular is the rule when the connecting link is or, except when this conjunction is not alternative, i. e. equivalent to and, or when the subjects differ in person. In this latter case the plural is preferred, and this is, naturally, the case also when one of the subjects is a plural.

- i. * John, James, or Andrew intends to accompany you. BAIN, H. E. Gr., 307.
 It was clear that either Monmouth or his uncle was rightful king. MAC., Hist., II, Ch. V, 156.

When Harris or George makes an ass of himself on dry land, I smile indulgently. JEROME, Three Men in a Boat, Ch. XVIII, 233.

* Death, emigration, or personal slavery were the only alternatives. FREEMAN.¹⁾

- ii. * Life or death, felicity or lasting sorrow, are in the power of marriage. JER. TAYLOR.¹⁾

* For whatsoever knight against us came | Or I or he have easily overthrown. TEN., Balin and Balan, 34.

 I asked the boy whether he or his parents were acquainted with the Scripture and ever read it. GEORGE BORROW, The Bible in Spain, Ch. I, 11 (The World's Classics).

"After all," the average Radical will say, "either the Commons or the Lords, either plutocracy or democracy, are to govern this country. The Nation (Westm. Gaz., No. 5329, 16c).

CONCORD OF PERSON.

25. Concord of person is exhibited by:

- a) the subject and its finite verb: I am, thou art, he is, etc.
 b) a noun or pronoun and the pronouns referring to it: I and my friends, he conducted himself with decorum.

In the following §§ a few special points are touched upon.

26. a) In an attributive clause in which the relative pronoun is the subject, the finite verb conforms to the antecedent.

I have done nothing but in care of thee, | Of thee, my dear one, thee my daughter, | Who art ignorant of what thou art. TEMP., I, 1, 18.

Why should I pry into the cares of others, | Who have so many sorrows of my own? G. LILLO, Fatal Curiosity, III, 1 (318).

¹⁾ MÄTZN., Eng. Gram., II, 162.

A poor industrious devil like me, who have toiled . . . to gain my ends, . . . may in pity be allowed to swear and grumble a little. SHER., Riv., IV, 3, (269). You say this to please me, who have no ancestors. LYTTON, Lady of Lyons, II, 1.

I dedicated them (sc. the verses) to you, who were my public and my critic. Mrs. BROWN., Ded., To my Father.

It would ill become me, who have been a humble servant to each of them, to give either any preference. TROL., Thack., Ch. I, 50.

- b) But when in the head-sentence the subject or object is a personal pronoun and the antecedent a (pro)noun in the function of nominal part of the predicate, the verb in the attributive clause is often made to conform to the former. ONIONS, Advanced Eng. Synt., § 63b.

i. I am . . . a plain blunt man, | That love my friend. JUL. CÆS., III, 2, 222. Thou art the God that doest wonders. Psalm, LXX, 14.

If thou beest he who didst outshine myriads. MILTON, Par. Lost, I, 84. I am the person that have had some demands upon the gentleman of this house. GOLDSM., Good-nat. man, III.

ii. You I take to be a prudent old fellow, who have got money to lend. SHER., School for Scand., III, 3 (399).

Note. For further irregularities in Early Modern English see ABBOT, Shak. Gram.³, § 247.

- c) Sometimes we find the person of the finite verb in the adnominal clause depending on a possessive pronoun in the head sentence. (Ch. XXXIX, 6.)

I'm acting for the innocent and good, and not for my own self, who have done no wrong. Mrs. GASK., Mary Barton, Ch. XXIII, 245.

And when I call'd upon thy name as one | That doest right by gentle and by churl [etc.]. TEN., Last Tourn., 74.

Father, you call me wilful, and the fault | Is yours who let me have my will. Id., Lanc. and El., 746.

- d) When the antecedent is a vocative, the finite verb is mostly placed in the second person, but the third person is also met with. ABBOT, Shak. Gram.³, § 247.

i. Our Father which art in heaven.

Oh Lamb of God: that takest away the sins of the world. Book of Common Prayer.

ii. O Lord, that lendst me life, | Lend me a heart replete with thankfulness! Henry VI, B, I, 1, 20.

27. When the subject is the personal pronoun it, representing a substantive clause (Ch. XV, 6; Ch. XXXIX, 7, 22 ff.), the finite verb is regularly placed in the third person singular, while the verb of the clause mostly conforms in person (and number) with the nominal part of the predicate in the head-sentence, probably owing to the fact that this latter is mistaken for the antecedent of the following relative. (Ch. XXXIX, 23, b, 1; 24, b Note II; 25.)

This practice is exhibited by the following paradigm:

It is I	who (that)	am	to blame.	It is we	who (that)	are	to blame.
— thou —	—	art	—	— you —	—	are	—
— he —	—	is	—	— they —	—	are	—

It is I that absolve you from an engagement which is impossible in our present misery. THACK., Van. Fair, I, Ch. XVIII, 191.

It is you who make dress pretty, and not dress that makes you pretty. G. ELIOT, Scenes, I, Ch. III, 3.

- ii. Nay, this time it is thou who forgets. SCOTT, Fair Maid, Ch. XXXI, 315. You ask me, Charles, | for I pretend | 'Tis you that asks |, to recommend books to beguile the weariness | Of travelling on the Scots Express. P. C. BAINBRIGGE (Westm. Gaz., No. 6005).

The Modern English practice is like the French and may have arisen through French influence. In Old English we find Ic hit eom (= I it am) or Ic eom hit, which in Middle English became It am I. ONIONS, Advanced Eng. Synt., § 25.

Who coude rymen in English proprely | His martirdom? for sothe, it am not I. CHAUCER, Cant. Tales, A, 1460.

I am thy mortal fo, and it am I | That loveth so hote Emelye the brighte. Ib., 1736.

Traces of the Modern English practice occur, however, in Middle English.

It is I that dede him kylle. Coventry Mysteries, 291.1)

It is not he that slewe the man, hit is I. Gesta Romanorum.1)

28. When persons of distinction are addressed or referred to by the name of a quality preceded by a possessive pronoun, as in Your (His, Her, Their) Majesty (Lordship, Ladyship, Majesties, Lordships, Ladyships),

a) the finite verb is placed in the third person singular or plural as the case may be,

b) the pronouns used in the sequel of the discourse agree in number person and gender with that of the possessive pronoun before the name of the quality.

I heard say your lordship was sick: I hope your lordship, though not clean past your youth, hath yet some smack of age in you, some relish of the saltness of time; and I most humbly beseech your lordship to have a reverent care of your health. Henry IV, B, I, 2, 104—110.

Why looks your grace so heavily to-day? Rich. III, I, 4, 1.

Am I really to conceive your lordship to be out your senses? FIELDING, Tom Jones, VI, Ch. V, 103a.

I should think your ladyship condescended a great deal below yourself. Id., Jos. Andrews, I, Ch. VIII, 18.

His lordship, my kind patron, bade me to come and watch over him, and I am here accordingly, as your ladyship knoweth. THACK., Virg., Ch. XXXV, 365.

Your Grace hath been | More merciful to many a rebel head | That should have fallen, and may rise again. TEN., Queen Mary, V, II, 3.

Her Majesty counts much on Fortune, I wish she would trust more in Almighty God. GREEN, Short Hist., Ch. VII, Sect. III, 373.

Ah! that your Excellency but saw the great duel which depends on you alone. CH. KINGSLEY, Hypatia, Ch. II, 8a.

If your Majesty would condescend to state your case, I should be better able to advise you. CONAN DOYLE, Sherl. Holmes, I, 22.

1) KELLNER, Hist. Outl. Eng. Synt., § 80, 280.

H. POUTSMA, A Grammar of Late Modern English. II.

29. a) When the subject consists of a word-group containing of or among + personal pronoun, the pronouns used to refer to it in the sequel of the discourse mostly depend on that personal pronoun.

Not one of us . . . will resign our weapon, or quit this hall, unless we are assured at least of our King's safety. SCOTT, Quent. Durw., Ch. XXVII, 355. I doubt whether the wisest of us know what our motives are. THACK., Pend., I, Ch. XXXI, 330.

There are few of us that are not rather ashamed of our sins and follies as we look out on the blessed morning sunlight. G. ELIOT, Scenes, II, Ch. VI, 123.

O purblind race of miserable men | How many among us at this very hour | Do forge a life-long trouble for ourselves. TEN., Ger. and En., 3.

Even those of us who have the courage to be frank with other people, are seldom plucky enough to be frank with ourselves. BEATRICE HARRADEN, The Fowler, Ch. IV, 183.

Mind this, if any of you say a word against him, you'll be dismissed instantly. HARDY, Far from the Madding Crowd, Ch. XXX, 230.

Few of us are the worse for not having too sharp an eye to keep on our own interests. ASCOTT R. HOPE, Old Pot.

I hope none of us will fail to do our duty in preserving the Constitution. Westm. Gaz., No. 5167, 4a.

Many of us have been using our utmost efforts to get this most desirable object carried into effect in this country. Times.

The pronouns of the third person are used only by way of exception.

The Lord grant you that ye may find rest each of you in the house of her husband. Bible, Ruth, I, 9.

In commerce and credit we are so much members of one another that it is becoming extremely doubtful whether any of us can wage a successful war without inflicting almost as much damage upon himself as upon the opponent he sets out to destroy. Westm. Gaz., No. 5376, 1c.

- b) When the subject is followed by a clause of comparison containing a personal pronoun, the latter, apparently, determines the person of the pronouns used in the sequel of the discourse.

"When ladies as young, and good, and beautiful as you are," replied the girl steadily, "give away your hearts, love will carry you all lengths. DICK., Ol. Twist, Ch. XL, 375.

When such as I . . . set our rotten hearts on any man and let him fill the place that has been a blank through all our wretched lives, who can hope to cure us? lb.

30. When pronouns must be used to refer to subjects of different persons, the first person is mostly used when one of the subjects is of the first person, the second when one of the subjects is of the second person and the other(s) of the third person.

You and I have our duties to perform.

You and your friends have manfully fulfilled your duties.

It was some time before either I or the captain seemed to gather our senses. STEVENSON, Treas. Island, Ch. III, 30.

The rule is, however, apparently often disregarded and the pronoun made to agree with the last member of the compound subject.

Your safety, for the which myself and them | Bend their best studies, heartily request | The enfranchisement of Arthur. King John, IV, 2, 51.

My Lord Mayor, — I do not know how to find words adequately to thank you and the members of the Common Council for the honour they have done me. CHAMBERLAIN (Times).

It is all the time what you and your party think convenient to themselves. Westm. Gaz., No. 5173, 5b.

31. a) In the rare case that the members of a compound subject differ in person and the singular form of the finite verb of the predicate seems preferable, the latter agrees as to person with the member that is placed nearest to it. Instances are especially found in Elizabethan writers.

How dost thou and thy master agree? Merch. of Ven., II, 2, 107.

Rosalind lacks then the love | Which teacheth thee that thou and I am one. As you like it, I, 3, 94.

My thoughts and I am for this other element, water. BEN JONSON, Cynthia's Rev., I, 1.

Both death and I | Am found eternal and incorporate both. MILT., Par. Lost, X, 815.

- b) This also applies to contracted sentence with the conjunctions or and nor.

Either my brother or I am going. ONIONS, Advanced Eng. Synt., § 23. Neither you nor he is in fault. Ib.

Note. Such constructions are, however, mostly avoided. Thus the above quotations would by careful speakers be replaced by:

Either my brother is going, or I am, etc.

32. This is, perhaps, the best place to devote a few words to the pronouns which are found to refer to the indefinite pronoun one as an independent word, i. e. when not used as a prop-word after an adnominal word. (Ch. XL, 149 ff; Ch. XLIII.)

- a) When the independent one has a meaning similar to that of the French on, German man, Dutch men (Ch. XL, 151), the pronouns now used by careful writers and speakers to refer to it are one('s), oneself.

I think if one has music in one, nothing will drive it out. JESSIE FOTHERGILL, Made or Marred.

California is a pleasant country with good people in it. If one had to live one's life over again, one might do worse than make one's home there. FROUDE, Oceana, Ch. XX, 321.

One never realises one's blessings while one enjoys them. SAKI (Westm. Gaz., No. 6017, 9a).

But in Early Modern English he and him, and especially his and himself, were mostly used instead. Altogether one's and oneself are rather recent formations, the latter not being met with in SHAKESPEARE. Thus in: To know a man well, were to know himself (Hamlet, V, 2, 144), himself stands for oneself.

The same practice has never fallen entirely into disuse, and seems to be especially in favour with American writers. Modern literature also presents not a few instances in which other equivalents of the French on, such as we, you, and they, and their corresponding possessive and reflective pronouns, are used to refer to one. FRANZ, *Shak. Gram.*², § 292, § 310, Anm. I; Id., Eng. Stud., XVII; TEN BRUG., Taalst., IX; BAIN, Companion, 62; Id., H. E. Gr., 32; MURRAY, s. v. one, 21; ELLINGER, Verm. Beitr., 46; HODGSON, *Errors*⁸, 155.

- i. The more one sickens, the worse at ease he is. As you like it, III, 2, 22. HASTINGS. How can you ever expect to marry? — MARLOWE. Never, unless, as among kings and princes, my bride were to be married by proxy. If, indeed, like an eastern bridegroom one were introduced to a wife he never saw before, it might be endured. GOLDSMITH, She stoops to Conquer, II, (180).

When one has a bad case to conduct, he is very apt to fall into contradictions. W. GUNNYON, Biogr. Sketch of Burns, 47.

And then comes the waking, which is as though one fell asleep upon his beloved's bosom and awoke among thorns and having a crown of thorns about his brows. MAR. CRAWF., Kath. Laud., II, Ch. X, 174.

Baggage = the collection of property in packages that one takes along with him on a journey. MURRAY.

One has to take the conjunct sale over the whole world before he is able to gauge with precision the popularity of an author. Bookman, No. 253, 43b.

- ii. As though one went to tea with a woman for the sake of talking about the very same things you have been doing all day. Mrs. WARD, Sir George Tres, I, Ch. V, 34a.

There are so many things I want to do here and one can do nothing if everything is against you. Id., Marcella, I, 111.

One could not help but laugh, however much you were annoyed. Eng. Rev., 1912, July, 534.

- iii. I grant there is one subject on which it is pleasant to talk on a journey, and that is what one shall have for supper when we get to our inn at night. HAZL., On going a journey (PEACOCK, Sel. Eng. Es., 267).

One feels we are being done in thus paying twice over for the same thing. Il. Lond. News.

People may slur their words or clip them so that half the letters are left out, but one does not miss them as we miss the h. Id.

- iv. One must love their friends with all their failings. REV. E. J. HARDY, How to be happy though married, Ch. IV, 47.

One must be on their guard against "bargains" that are worthless. Id., Ch. XII, 128.¹⁾

- b) The independent one when it is a kind of determinative (Ch. XL, 152), is regularly referred to by he, him, his, himself, or she, her, herself.

Few came to see the last of one who had left none to mourn him. HALL CAINE, Christian, II, 248.

Who would have dared to make a mortal enemy of one who might, ere many weeks were past, have the lives and fortunes of the whole court in the hollow of her hand. CON. DOYLE, Refugees, 121. *

1) TEN BRUG. Taalst., IX.

It may be added that, although the ordinary word used in referring to the indefinite a man and its synonyms a body, a fellow, a person, when devoid of any determinative force (Ch. XL, 195, a, 1) is he or a modification of he: his, him, himself, the indefinite pronoun one or its modification one's, oneself, is also occasionally met with.

- i. A man's religion is the chief fact about him. CARLYLE, Hero Worsh., I, 12.
- ii. Do you think it fair that a man's whole career should be ruined for a fault done in one's boyhood almost? OSCAR WILDE, An Ideal Husband, II.

The same practice is sometimes observed in connection with plurals when used in an indefinite way.

Divisions in one's own ranks are always the hardest things for politicians to bear. T. P.'s Weekly, No. 471, 617*b*.

The indefinite a man, etc. when determinative in function (Ch. XL, 195, a, 2), are always referred to by he etc.

The English can't stand a man who is always saying he is in the right, but they are very fond of a man who admits that he has been in the wrong. OSCAR WILDE, An Ideal Husband, II, 28.

CONCORD OF GENDER.

33. Concord of gender is exhibited only by the pronouns of the third person singular used in referring to nouns.

In Modern English the gender of a noun is determined by the sex of the person, animal or thing of which it is the name.

A noun is of the masculine (feminine) gender, when it is the name of a male (female) person or animal or of any thing thought of as a male (female) being: actor, actress.

A noun is of the neuter gender, when it is the name of any thing without sex and not thought of as a living being.

Some nouns are of variable gender. The variability sometimes depends on a difference in meaning or a difference of associations, but is often due to an arbitrariness of usage. Thus church is neuter when the building is meant, but mostly feminine when it denotes an organized body. (38, 2, β .) Most names of animals are either masculine or neuter, according to the individual fancy of the speaker or writer.

Names of persons that may denote either male or female individuals are said to be of common gender.

Persons, and especially animals, are sometimes spoken about without their sex being taken into account. In this case the want of a singular pronoun not expressing either sex is a serious inconvenience. Sometimes the neuter pronouns are then put in requisition, sometimes masculine or feminine pronouns, the latter occasionally from a fancied prevalence of masculine or feminine qualities in the animal spoken about. BRADLEY, The Making of English, Ch. II, 48.

This inconvenience is also felt when a pronoun must be used to refer to singular (pro)nouns of different gender. (19, a, 3.) The following quotation affords a rare instance of the neuter it being employed to meet the difficulty:

The juice of it (sc. that flower) on sleeping eye-lids laid | Will make or man or woman madly dote | Upon the next live creature that it sees. MIDS., II, 1, 172.

Difference of gender in nouns does not now occasion any difference in their own declension, nor in that of their modifiers, as was the case in Old English, and is still the case in many European languages. The differences of declension which depended on difference of gender, were lost long before the Modern English period. The consequence is that the gender of nouns is now often shown only by the pronouns of the third person singular used in referring to them; or conversely the choice of these pronouns is often the only means to enable us to determine whether the nouns they represent, or are supposed to represent, indicate male or female individuals, or things without sex.

34. From the preceding observations it follows that only when the gender of the noun is not apparent from its meaning, is there any difficulty in the choice of the pronouns, and it is only with such cases that we shall be concerned in the following §§.

The nouns whose gender is not apparent from their meaning naturally fall into three groups: a) such as are names of persons, b) such as are names of animals, c) such as are names of things personified.

35. The names of persons that do not indicate sex are:

- a*) nouns of common gender,
- b*) names of creatures of the imagination, or of beings that are but dimly perceived by the senses.

36. a) The persons that are indicated by nouns of common gender are but rarely spoken of without their sex being known or more or less distinctly thought of by the speaker. When this is done, they are referred to by the masculine pronouns.

Who is a neighbour, he who shows love, or he who shows it not? FRENCH, Parables.¹⁾

Children, however, are often spoken of without their sex being matter of thought. In this case it is the neuter pronouns that are mostly used. It follows then that the pronouns used in referring to such nouns as baby, child and infant are neuter, or either masculine or feminine according as the sex is thought of or no. Sometimes practice is variable in speaking of the same child. Thus THACKERAY in relating the incidents attending the birth and early death of Sam. Titmarsh's first-born, first uses the neuter pronouns, which some lines further on he exchanges for the masculine, while in the concluding sentences of the narrative the neuter pronouns are used throughout. See Sam. Titm., Ch. XII, 163—166.

I have given suck and know | How tender 't is to love the babe that milks me: | I would, while it was smiling in my face, | Have pluck'd my nipple from his boneless gums, | And dash'd the brains out. Mac b., I, 7, 56.

¹⁾ MURRAY.

And she (sc. Haidée) bent o'er him, and he lay beneath, | Hush'd as the babe upon its mother's breast. BYRON, Don Juan, II, CXLVIII.

During the past week scarcely a night had gone over my couch that had not brought with it a dream of an infant ... dabbling its hands in running water. CH. BRONTË, Jane Eyre, Ch. XXI, 268.

In utter amazement, Silas fell on his knees and bent his head low to examine the marvel: it was a sleeping child — a round, fair thing with soft, yellow rings all over its head. G. ELIOT, Sil. Marn., Ch. XII, 97. (In the sequel of the tale, when Silas has observed the child more attentively, it is referred to by feminine pronouns.)

She had to pass our door where stood Mrs. Todd and the baby. It stretched out its little arms to her. Mrs. CRAIK, John Hal., Ch. X, 109.

The individual set up from its cradle in the corner such a terrific squall that we two young men beat a precipitate retreat. Ib., Ch. X, 105.

ii. The terrible announcement that the baby had been taken in the act of putting a doll's frying-pan into his mouth. DICK., *Christm. Car.*⁵, II, 53.

iii. And when thou wouldst solace gather, | When our child's first accents flow, | Wilt thou teach her to say "Father!" | Though his care she must forego? BYRON, Fare thee well, IX.

Seeing that the child in his arms had opened her eyes, and was looking about her, he checked himself to say a word or two of foolish prattle in her ear. DICK., *Chimes*³, II, 53.

The child who was thrown under a train at Birmingham on the 6th instant is progressing as well as can be expected, in spite of the fact that she has lost both arms and a leg. Times.

In the following quotation Punch makes mock of the uncertainty of the gender of such words as baby, child and infant:

Don't object to my calling the baby "it". I didn't know he was a girl.¹⁾

Sometimes when an unknown child is spoken about, or a child is referred to in a generalizing way, the sex is taken for granted.

The attentive sage assured my parents that their first-born would be a great traveller; that he would undergo many dangers and difficulties. SMOL., Rod. Rand., Ch. I, 8. The real objection to a child being a Socialist or Anti-Socialist is that he is something much better, a child. CHESTERTON, II. Lond. News, No. 3815, 828c.

The use of the neuter pronouns in referring to children when the sex is distinctly thought of, expresses kindly and familiar feelings or good-natured slight. Thus in Romeo and Juliet the nurse in speaking of Juliet, her foster-child, uses it. This practice seems to be confined to the earlier stages of the language.

'Tis since the earthquake now eleven years: | And she was weaned . . . but as I said, | When it did taste the wormwood on the nipple | Of my dug and felt it bitter, [etc.]. Rom. and Jul., I, 3, 30.

And yet I warrant, it had upon its brow, | A bump as big as a young cockerel's stone. Ib., I, 3, 52.

The neuter pronouns are similarly found in childish language replacing the pronoun of the second person.

ELI. Come to thy grandam, child. CONST. Do, child, go to it grandam, child; | Give grandam Kingdom, and it grandam will | Give it a plum, a cherry, and a fig. King John, II, 161. (it grandam = its grandam. See Ch. XXXIII, 6.)

¹⁾ WENDT, Synt. des heut. Eng., 98.

In this connection mention may also be made of the occasional use of the neuter pronouns in speaking of grown-up persons, which mostly springs from profound contempt, but may also be prompted by the same feelings as in the case of children. The practice seems to be rare now.

CAP. What, is my daughter gone to Friar Laurence? — NURSE. Ay, forsooth. — CAP. Well, he may chance to do some good on her: | A peevish self-will'd harlotry it is. ROM. and JUL., IV, 2, 14.

KING. A blister on his sweet tongue, with my heart, | That put Armada's page out of his part! — BIRON. See where it comes! Behaviour, what wert thou! Till this madman show'd thee? and what art thou now? LOVE'S LABOUR'S LOST, V, 2, 337.

Here's Wart; you see what a ragged appearance it is. HENRY IV, B, III, 2, 279.

SUF. I'll win this Lady Margaret. For whom? | Why, for my king: tush, that's a wooden thing! — MAR. He talks of wood: it is some carpenter. HENRY VI, A, V, 3, 96.

Cousin Tony promises to give us more of his company at home. Indeed he shan't leave us any more. It won't leave us, Cousin Tony, will it? GOLDSM., SHE STOOPS, IV, (214).

According to KRUISINGA (A Gram. of Pres.-Day Eng., § 353) vulgar English still has the neuter pronouns to express contempt. He quotes:

"Where did ye find it?" asked Mord Em'ly of Miss Gilliken, with a satirical accent. — "Who are you calling 'it'?" demanded Mr. Barden aggressively. "Pr'a'ps you'll kindly call me 'im' and not 'it'."

- b) Beings that are but creatures of the imagination, or about whose essence the mind can have formed but a shadowy conception, are often thought of as belonging to no particular sex, with the result that they are referred to by neuter pronouns.

angel. Talk of an angel and its wings appear. EDNA LYALL, Hardy Norman, Ch. XIII, 109.

apparition, figure, ghost, phantom, spectre, spirit, etc.

His colour changed though, when, without a pause it (sc. the ghost) came on through the heavy door. DICK., Christm. Car., 22.

Though he looked the phantom through and through, and saw it standing before him [etc.]. ib., 18.

Note. The ghost, also called an apparition, phantom, spirit, spectre and vision in the sequel of the narrative, is referred to by the masculine pronouns when recognized as Marley's ghost. With regard to the three other spirits in the tale, which are, of course, much more shadowy than Marley's ghost, the neuter pronouns are used throughout.

figure. In the deep shade, at the farther end of the room, a figure ran backwards and forwards. What it was, whether beast or human being, one could not, at first sight, tell: it grovelled, seemingly on all fours; it snatched and growled like some strange wild animal; but it was covered with clothing, and a quality of dark grizzled hair, wild as a mane, hid its head and face. CH. BRONTË, Jane Eyre, Ch. XXVI, 358.

The street was empty but for a solitary figure sitting on a post with its legs dangling, its hands in its trousers-pockets. DU MAURIER, Trilby, I, 241.

demon. "Alastor" is the Greek name for a vengeful dæmon, driving its victims into desert places; and Shelley prompted by Peacock, chose it for the title of a poem which describes the Nemesis of solitary souls. SYMONDS, Shelley, Ch. IV, 86.

Heaven. We ought to be thankful to Heaven for its mercies. THACK., Virg., Ch. I, 3.

Heaven does not choose its elect from among the great and wealthy. Ib., Ch. V, 48.

Providence. Thus we lived several years in a state of much happiness; not but that we sometimes had those little rubs which Providence sends to enhance the value of its favours. GOLDSMITH, Vicar, Ch. I, (237).

Something told her to change her mind and come on Friday instead of Saturday. It was Providence she said. — I wish Providence would mind its own business and not interfere in my affairs. JEROME, Diary of a Pilgrimage, 22.

A scholar of the Middle Ages driven to madness by the loss of his manuscript by fire knocked at the church door with his head and called Providence to witness that all relations between him and it were sundered. "Hear what I say, for I am in earnest and resolved. If by chance at the point of death I should be so weak as to address you, do not pay any attention". Il. Lond. News.

The use of the masculine pronouns as in the following quotation seems to be rare:

I think Providence knew what He was doing when He refrained from sending you that child. A. and E. CASTLE, Diamond cut Paste, Ch. IX, 104.

37. Most names of animals do not indicate sex. Nor are animals often spoken of with their sex taken into account, and it would be only rational to use the neuter pronouns in speaking of creatures that are practically thought of as sexless. This is not, however, by any means the uniform practice. Except for the cases that an animal is spoken of in a generalizing way or as a mere object of zoology, the masculine pronouns are quite as frequently met with in referring to such animals as are represented more or less as man's companions or as familiar realities. They are almost the rule in lively narrative and in poetry. Feminine pronouns are rare, except in talk about a particular cat or parrot, and in the language of sportsmen about a particular hare.

On the other hand in referring to a male or female animal in a generalizing way, sex is sometimes so little matter of the speaker's thoughts that the neuter pronouns are used. See the quotations below, under cow, female, hen.

It stands to reason that when animals are spoken about as the emblems of certain qualities, or when particular qualities are ascribed to them, the masculine or feminine pronouns are used according as these qualities are supposed to be peculiarly masculine or feminine. Compare COHHAM BREWER, Dict. of Phrase and Fable, s. v. animals.

Finally it must be observed that usage is highly irregular and arbitrary. This will quickly be brought home to any one who takes the trouble of skimming through the pages of an ordinary reading-book where animals are spoken about. STORM, *Phil.*², 1018; WENDT, Synt. des heut. Eng., 99—100. For the practice in DEFOE'S Rob. Crusoe see LANNERT, An Investigation into the Lang. of Rob. Crus., Accid. II, B.

animal. Every animal has his proper instincts and inclinations, appetites and habits. WEBST., s. v. proper.

badger. The badger made his dark hole on the side of every hill. MAC., Hist.¹⁾ bird. There is a bird who by his coat, | And by the hoarseness of his note, | Might be supposed a crow. COWPER, Jackdaw, I. (The masculine pronouns are regularly used in the sequel of the poem.)

A bird in a cage very little bigger than himself makes a mournful rattle now and then in hopping on his perch. DICK., Cop., Ch. V, 39a.

Not a bird of them all was there but liked to have it done to him. BLACKMORE, Lorna Loone.

blackbird. The blackbird trolls his notes far away. II. Magazine.

bullfinch. It'll be the death of the little bullfinch in the shop, that draws his own water. DICK., Chuz., Ch. XLIX, 383a.

butterfly. A brilliant butterfly fluttered past her, and she said quickly: "I must catch him." EDNA LYALL, Donovan, I, 135.

cat. i. The cat looked from one sister to the other blinking; then with a sudden magnificent spring leaped on to Agnes's lap and coiled herself up there. Mrs. WARD, Rob. Elsm., I, 124.

ii. A cat's liking for fish is proverbial, and its aversion to water equally so. (?).

cow. The cow 'moos' to its calf.²⁾ dog. Meanwile the older dog that was basking in front of Captain Waveney, whether it was impatient of this uncertainty on the part of the younger companion, or whether it was jealous, managed unobserved to steal forward a foot or two, until it suddenly stopped rigid. BLACK, The New Prince Fortunatus, Ch. VIII.

donkey. They tied a bell to the donkey's tail when it was charged with two panniers of eggs. Mrs. HENRY WOOD, Orv. Col., Ch. V, 74.

elephant. i. Pliny tells us that an elephant having been punished for his inaptitude in executing some feat, was observed at night to practise what he had vainly attempted during the day. Athen.

ii. The African elephant is chiefly hunted for its ivory. Cas. Conc. Cyclop.

The Indian elephant is distinguished by its concave head and its small ears. Ib.

feather-poke. The feather-poke built his beautiful little nest there. SWEET, Old Chapel.

female. A mammal is an animal of the highest class of vertebrates characterized by the female suckling its young. WEBST., Dict.

finch. There you will hear the distinctive whistle of the hawfinch; but, stalk ever so quietly, you will rarely get a glimpse of the handsome bird, for he is among the shyest of birds. Westm. Gaz., No. 6029, 13a.

fox. Some few ignoble souls hide themselves behind hedges so that should the fox do as he is expected, they may have the advantage of a start. TROL., Good Words, 1879 (STOF., Leesb., I, 45). (Thus throughout in this article.)

goldfinch. A patriarchal gold-fish apparently retains to the last its youthful illusion that it can swim in a straight line beyond the encircling glass. G. ELIOT, Mill, I, Ch. VIII, 65.

grass-hopper. That is the grass-hopper's (voice) — he takes the lead | In summer luxury — he has never done | With his delights. JOHN KEATS, The Poetry of Earth is never dead, 5.

¹⁾ FOELS.—KOCH, Wis. Gram., § 83.

²⁾ KRUSINGA, A Gram. of Pres.-Day Eng., § 356.

The great green grass-hopper and his family are among the comparatively few insects in which there exists a visible organ for the perception of sound. Leisure Hour.¹⁾ hare. i. First catch you hare, then cook him. Prov.

ii. The hare is crouching in her form. SCOTT, The Palmer, V.

The hare is running races in her mirth; | And with her feet she from the splashy earth | Raises a mist. WORDSWORTH, Resolution and Independence, II.

iii. Here they found the unfortunate girl, seated, or rather couched like a hare upon its form. SCOTT, Bride of Lam., Ch. XXXIII, 310.

A hare was roused by the adjutants in a potato-field. The Minister ran after it and brought it to the King. T. P.'s Weekly, No. 480, 65*b*.

kingfisher. We have disturbed a kingfisher who was watching for his prey. He has his nest in a sandy bank by the side of the pond. II. Magaz.

hen. A hen which had laid its thousandth egg.²⁾

lion. And dar'st thou then | To beard the lion in his den, | The Douglas in his hall? SCOTT, Marm., VI, xiv.

mouse. Between us we caught the mouse, and there he is in a pail of water. Mrs. Wood, Orv. College, Ch. VI, 91.

nightingale. The crow doth sing as sweetly as the lark, | When neither is attended, and I think | The nightingale, if she should sing by day, | When every goose is cackling, would be thought | No better a musician than the wren. Merch. of Ven., V, 1, 103. (A writer in Notes and Queries 1891, 285*a* observes: "It is not often that we catch Shakespeare tripping as a field-naturalist; but he has fallen into one or two popular errors concerning the nightingale. The first is that the female bird is the songster, and her song is one of sorrow. Whereas the singer is the male bird, and the song is a buoyantly exulting as that of the lark.")

parrot. A parrot, from the Spanish main, | . . . came o'er, | . . . to the bleak domain | Of Mulla's shore. | To spicy groves where he had won | His plumage of resplendent hue, . . . He bade adieu. CAMPBELL, The Parrot. (Thus throughout the poem.)

pelican. Ask of the bleeding pelican why she | Hath ripp'd her bosom. Had the bird a voice, | She'd tell thee 'twas for all her little ones. BYRON, Mar. Fal., I, 2, (35*a*).

The Pelican, tearing up her breast to feed her young with her own blood was an early symbol of our redemption through Christ. Mrs. JAMESON.³⁾ pig. In his devouring mind's eye he pictured to himself every roasting-pig running about with a pudding in his belly. WASH. IRV., Sketch-Bk., XXXII, 351.

robin. Cheerily the robin sings to his mate who is sitting on five eggs in a nest-box in the apple-tree. II. Magaz.

sheep. Even a sheep will face about a little when she has lambs. G. ELIOT, Mill, I, Ch. VI, 34.

spider, fly. That is how the spider waits for the fly. The spider spins her web. And if the fly shows a strength that promises to extricate him how swiftly does she abandon her pretence of passiveness, and openly fling coil after coil about him until he is secured for ever. M. CH. BRABY.⁴⁾ Compare. It has never struck me that the spider is invariably male and the fly invariable female. Per.⁴⁾ stag. When the stag cries, he is said to bell. GOLDSMITH, Nat. Hist.⁵⁾ The stag at eve had drunk his fill. SCOTT, Lady, I, 1.

1) FOELS-KOCH, Wis. Gram., § 83.

2) KRUISINGA, A Gram. of Pres.-Day Eng., § 356.

3) MURRAY. 4) WENDT, Synt. des heut. Eng., 100.

5) MURRAY, s. v. bell.

stickleback. The first stickleback was a splendid fellow, with fabulous red and blue gills. Tom kept him in a small basin till the day of his death. HUGHES, Tom Brown, I, Ch. II, 24.

stock-dove. Over his own sweet voice the stock-dove broods. WORDSWORTH, Resolution and Independence, I.

tortoise. When the United States puts a navy on the high seas, it is like a tortoise which puts its head out of its shell. Rev. of Rev., CCXVII, 9b.

turkey. It was a Turkey! He never could have stood upon his legs, that bird. DICK., *Christm. Car.*⁵, V. 106.

wren. The wren comes forth from the garden hedge and sings his shrill little morning song. II. Magaz.

The following short extracts in which two or more animals are spoken of, may be taken as fairly exhibiting ordinary practice:

We heard his dog barking loudly, and ran to the place as quick as we could, and saw him with a long snake in his mouth, and shaking it furiously, while it writhed in his jaws and sent out a most pungent and venomous smell. SWEET, Old Chapel.

The next moment we again heard the dog bark, and when we came up to him, we found him with a prickly ball, nearly as big as one of our heads, rolling it about —. Ned was delighted, and cried out, 'A hedgehog, a hedgehog!' Then he said, "Shall my dog kill it? It isn't every day that can kill a hedgehog. Mine can: let him alone a minute, and you'll soon see. Ib.

If pussy lives to be old, she is usually allowed to expire with peace and honour on the parlour hearth-rug. Much the same may be said of the dog, except that his end, when he grows mangy and snappish, is sometimes hastened with prussic acid. With the horse it is far otherwise. His career is almost always one of constant deterioration, and if he could only see in the future (which we hope he cannot), he would be the most miserable of animated beings. Graphic.

Sometimes the pronouns used in referring to a given animal are varied.

We have scotch'd the snake, not kill'd it: | She 'll close, and be herself; whilst our poor malice | Remains in danger of her former tooth. Macb., III, 2, 13. In proportion to its size the strength of the mountain cat is prodigious, and though he is not a fast animal, his agility in climbing is astonishing.¹⁾

Some little mice sat in a barn to spin; | Pussy came by, and she popped her head in; | "Shall I come in, and cut jour threads off?" | "Oh! no, kind sir, you will snap our heads off." GÜNTHER, Leerb., I, 55.

This dog had been sucked and reared by a cat, having lost its own mother. He always showed the cat-like dread of wet feet. Leis. Hour.²⁾

The strength of the lion is such that he can carry off a heifer as a cat carries a rat .. It was anciently much more common in Asia .. If compelled to defend himself he manifests great courage .. It has a horror of fires and torch-lights .. The mane is not fully developed till he is six or seven years old. Cham b. Encycl.³⁾

38. As to personification of inanimate objects we must distinguish between such as is usual in ordinary literary language, such as is confined to the higher flights of poetry, and such as is only met with in homely style, in dialects and in the vernacular of particular trades or professions. STORM, Phil.², 1017.

¹⁾ SATTLER. ²⁾ FOELS-KOCH, Wis. Gram., § 83.

³⁾ WENDT, Synt. des heut. Eng., 99.

a) In ordinary literary language we often find:

1) the masculine pronouns in referring to the sun.

- i. The sun was shining in all his splendid beauty, but the light only seemed to show the boy his own lonesomeness. DICK., Ol. Twist, Ch. VIII, 20a. The sun's diameter is $111\frac{1}{2}$ times that of the earth. His density or compactness is about one quarter of that of the earth. YOUNG, Arithmetic. The sun's mean distance from the earth is about 93 millions of miles. His diameter is about 865000 miles and his mass is 330000 times as great as that of the earth. CAS. CONC. CYCLOP.
- ii. The sun performs one revolution about its own axis in about 25 days, 9 hours and 56 minutes. YOUNG, Arithmetic.

2) the feminine pronouns in referring to:

a) the earth and the moon.

- i. earth. The moon is the name given to the satellite by which our earth is attended in her usual course round the sun. CAS. CONC. CYCLOP.
- ii. The earth revolves on its axis in 23 hours, 56 minutes and 4 seconds. YOUNG, Arithmetic.

It travels in space in the same manner as the other members of the solar system. CAS. CONC. CYCLOP.

- i. moon. Soon it (sc. the east) would boast the moon; but she was yet beneath the horizon. CH. BRONTË, Jane Eyre, Ch. XXIII, 302.

The moon's diameter is 2160 English miles, her mean distance from the earth 237519, and her magnitude $\frac{1}{49}$ th of that of the earth. YOUNG, Arithmetic.

The clouds were driving over the moon at their giddiest speed; at one time wholly obscuring her; at another suffering her to burst forth in full splendour and shed her light on all the objects around: anon driving over her again with increased velocity and shrouding everything in darkness. DICK., Pickw., Ch. XLIX, 448.

Eclipses of the moon can only occur at her full. CAS. CONC. CYCLOP., s. v. eclipse.

- ii. The moon is the name given to the satellite by which our earth is attended in her usual course round the sun. Its large size is entirely due to its proximity to us. CAS. CONC. CYCLOP.

See the bright moon! High up before we know it: making the earth reflect the objects on its breast like water. DICK., Chuz., Ch. XXXVI, 285a.

β) certain social or political institutions, considered as organized bodies, especially the Church and the University, and states.

church. i. The Church of Rome actually regained nearly half of what she had lost. MAC., Popes, (541a).

Many quitted the Established Church only because they thought her in danger. Id., Hal., (56a).

While the sins of the Church, however heinous, were still such as admit of being expressed in words, the sins of the heathen world against which she fought, were utterly indescribable. CH. KINGSLEY, Hyp., Pref., 1a.

You have said yourself that you are the eldest son of the Church. If the eldest son desert her, then who will do her bidding? CON. DOYLE, Refugees, 222.

The Church has brought all her tribulations upon herself. Rev. of Rev., CCVI, 127b.

- ii. Against this vast organisation the Church had been fighting for now four hundred years, armed only with its own mighty and all-embracing message. CH. KINGSLEY, Hypatia, Pref., 1b.

Henry was the Head of the Church. From the primate to the meanest deacon every minister of it derived from him his sole right to exercise spiritual powers. The voice of its preachers were the echo of his will. GREEN, Short Hist., Ch. VII, § 1, 349.

The Church, however, we may be sure, will shortly accommodate itself to the new situation. Rev. of Rev., CCXIII, 220a.

Note. The collective notion dimly implied in church is responsible for the plural construction in:

The Church have no power to inflict corporal punishments. BAIN, H. E. Gr., 301.

University. i. A process of purification was going on rapidly in the University; and I must alter my words if I meant to give the working man a just picture of her. CH. KINGSLEY, Alt. Locke, Pref., 90.

We cannot regret that the University of Oxford has taken the time to consider the advantages and disadvantages of making so great a change in the scope of her studies. Times.

It is not the least achievement of the University that she does somehow or other manage to impress a certain stamp on so many different kinds of metal. A. D. GODLEY, Aspects of Mod. Oxf., Ch. II, 47.

- ii. We may then expect to see women as well as men in the birthday honours list, or even among those upon whom an ancient University deigns to confer its degrees. Rev. of Rev., CCXI, 15a.

Oxford gave him its D. C. L. in 1839. SAINTSBURY, Nineteenth Cent., Ch. II, 51.

states. i. Though England was even then the first of maritime powers, she was not, as she had since become, more than a match for all the nations of the world together. MAC., Clive, (500b).

He was only twenty-seven, yet his country already respected him as one of her first soldiers. Ib.

Under the system of free trade England opened her ports to the goods and manufactures of all the world. ESCOTT, England. Ch. VIII, 114.

Austria had been exerting herself . . . in the interests of peace, and after the fall of Sebastopol she made a new effort with great success. MCCARTHY, Short Hist., Ch. XI, 159.

On the 25th of September 1792 France was declared to be a republic. On the 22nd of September she has practically to say whether she will remain a republic still. Graphic.

England was made by her adventurers. Inscription on Greenwich Hospital. I have sometimes thought that if the Cabinets were all dismissed and an admiral installed in the place of each, Europe would get on better than she does now. Times.

England is a huge fortress with a great wet ditch and like any other fortress she may be forced to surrender. Academy.

- ii. In Pitt's eyes the danger of Ireland lay above all in the misery of its people. GREEN, Short Hist., Ch. X, § IV, 814.

For a matter of three years the prospect was that the United States would henceforth feed Europe cheaper than it would feed itself. ESCOTT, England, Ch. VIII, 116.

Like the other self-governing colonies of the British Empire, the Dominion of Canada is already virtually independent in all respects but one. It cannot make treaties with foreign powers without the consent of the Imperial Government but if this veto were to be withdrawn the bond of Union between the Mother Country and its offspring across the Atlantic would be one of a purely nominal character. Graphic.

In spite of official civilities and individual friendships the Great Republic of the West has no love for the British Empire. In accordance with Monroe-doctrine traditions its citizens deplore the fact that the British flag should wave over such a large portion of the American continent. ib.

An abominable campaign of insult and calumny has been kept up for years past by the Jingo-Unionist Press against Germany and its Kaiser. Rev. of Rev., CXCV, 117a.

We desire to maintain the Chinese empire to prevent its falling into ruins. Times. The Emperor expressed his belief that the German Empire would show more than sufficient patriotism, if it were called upon to assume those further burdens which must be borne for the sake of the honour and the security of the Fatherland. Graph.

That is an outcome of the recent crisis upon which Europe has every reason to congratulate itself. Westm. Gaz.

Compare the following quotations in which geographical areas rather than political bodies are referred to:

Holland is a conquest by man over the sea, it is an artificial country; the Hollanders made it, it exists because the Hollanders preserve it; it will vanish whenever the Hollanders shall abandon it. Lit. World.

The new and revised edition of "Holland and its people", translated by Miss Caroline Filton from the Italian of Signor Edmondo de Amicis, appears in an attractive form. ib.

The use of the masculine pronoun in the following quotation is probably due to the name of the country denoting its ruler:

Such news might create a panic at Vienna, and cause Russia to drop his cards. THACK., Van. Fair, I, Ch. XVIII, 182.

7) ships. The use of the feminine pronouns originated with the language of seafaring men, and has now become universal and, except, perhaps, for smaller craft, is now almost regular.

i. It is impossible not to personify a ship; everybody does, in everything they say — she behaves well; she minds her rudder; she swims like a duck; she runs her nose into the water; she looks into a port. EMERSON, English Traits, Voyage to England, 81b.

The Calypso has been duly fitted out by the Admiralty and is now ready to proceed to her station. Times.

ii. Our steamer slackened speed and presently a little boat put out from the shore. Its only passengers were a woman and a child. Il. Mag.

The wherry held its course. Lit. World.

The boat was attacked by a constant fire from both banks as it drifted along. MCCARTHY, Short Hist., Ch. XIII, 188.

A curious instance of inconsistency is afforded by the following lines:

One summer evening I found | A little boat tied to a willow tree | Within a rocky cave, its usual home. | Straight I unloosed her chain, and stepping in | Pushed from the shore. WORDSWORTH, Prel., I, 357—362.

b) In the higher literary style, especially in poetry, personification is not, of course, confined to any particular object. It is even extended to conceptions that are mere products of our imagination or reasoning faculties.

It is hardly necessary to observe that the assigning of either sex is largely dependent on the individual fancies of writers or speakers. Yet as a general rule we find that:

- 1) winds; mountains, rivers, the ocean; the seasons, Time, Day, Morn; Fear, Anger, Discord, Despair; War, Murder, Law, etc. are mostly spoken of as male persons.
- 2) cities; Nature; the Soul; Night, Darkness; arts and sciences; Liberty, Charity, Victory, Mercy, Religion, etc. are mostly spoken of as female persons.

i. death. And Death, whenever he comes to me, | Shall come on the wild unbounded Sea! BARRY CORNWALL, The Sea, IV, (Rainbow, I, 20). Death relaxed his iron features. LONGFELLOW, The Norman Baron, VII. Compare however: Lo, in the vale of years beneath | A grisly troop are seen, | The painful family of Death, | More hideous than their Queen. GRAY, Ode Eton College, IX.

law. Law is full of absurdities. When once he gets the whip-end, he drives us in strange ways. HUGH CONWAY, Called Back, 64.

love. And love, as he is wont, came in the wake of fortune. Mrs. WARD, Marcella, I, 93.

Love himself stood at the gates with sympathetic face. WALT. BESANT, Bell of St. Paul's, II, 66.

mountains. And, like a glory, the broad sun | Hangs over sainted Lebanon, | Whose head in wintry grandeur towers, | And whitens with eternal sleet, | While Summer, in a vale of flowers, | Is sleeping rosy at his feet. TH. MOORE, Paradise and the Peri.

pot. The earthenware pot cannot become a brass pot whatever he may pretend. W. BESANT, All Sorts and Cond. of Men, 13.

rivers. The river glideth at his own sweet will. WORDSWORTH, Sonnet Composed upon Westminster Bridge, 12.

But in scarce longer time | Than at Caerleon the full-tided Usk, | Before he turn to fall seaward again, | Pauses, did Enid ... behold | ... Three other horsemen waiting. TEN., Ger. and En., 117. (Compare: Say, father Thames, etc. GRAY, Ode Eton Col., 21).

time. Time rolls his ceaseless course. SCOTT, Lady, III, 1, 1.

On the brow of Dombey Time and his brother Care had set some marks as on a tree that was to come down in good time. DICK., Domb., Ch. I, 1. So does Time ruthlessly destroy his own romances. HARDY, Tess, VI, Ch. XLIX, 443.

trees. Even the oak | Thrives by the rude concussion of the storm: | He seems indignant, and to feel | The impression of the blast with proud disdain, | Frowning as if in his unconscious arm | He held the thunder. COWPER, Task, 228. The poplars yonder rustle that their quivering leaves may see themselves upon the ground. Not so the oak; trembling does not become him; and he watches himself in his stout old burly steadfastness, without the motion of a twig. DICK., Chuz., Ch. XXXVI, 285b.

ii. commerce. Commerce on other shores displayed her sail. GOLDSMITH, Traveller, 140.

freedom. Mine shall be the first voice to swell the battle-cry of freedom — mine the first hand to rear her banner. LYTTON, Rienzi, I, Ch. V, 41.

labour. Light labour spreads her wholesome store. GOLDSMITH, Des. Vil., 59.

liberty. Although strange things are done in the name of Liberty, she is still very much esteemed by those who have lost her. II. Lond. News.

mountains. Handsome masses of cumulus hang over and hide the caps of Snowdon and her neighbouring peaks. Westm. Gaz., No. 6171.

nature. Nature hath fram'd strange fellows in her time. Merch. of Ven., I, 1, 51. The love of nature and the scenes she draws, is Nature's dictate. COWPER, Task, 228.

The sight of Nature, in her magnificence, or in her beauty, or in her terrors, has at all times an overpowering interest. SCOTT, Pirate, Ch. VII, 81.

The subtle lawyer (was) accustomed by habit and profession to trace human nature through all her windings. Id., Bride of Lam., Ch. XIX, 195.

Not only were times bad and produce overcheap, but even Nature herself seemed to have gone against them, as shown by the last inclement season. Manchester Guardian.

(They) exemplify some touches of Dame Nature in her work of animal development. Il. Lond. News, No. 3814, 795c. (Dame Nature = Dutch Moeder Natuur.)

remembrance. Remembrance wakes with all her busy train. GOLDSMITH, Des. Vil., 81.

rivers. Tiber trembled beneath her banks. Jul. Cæs., I, 1, 50.

sciences. "History has fared ill in many hands", writes the duke of Argyle. "But in no hands has she ever fared worse than in those of party leaders. When they engage her as their maid-of-all-work, she sinks to the level of a slattern. Lit. World.

Science is not to be trifled with. She demands all or nothing. MAX PEMBERTON, Doct. Xavier, Ch. V, 25b.

sea. I never was on the dull, tame shore, | But I loved the great sea more and more, | And backwards flew to her billowy breast, | Like a bird that seeketh its mother's nest. BARRY CORNWALL, The Sea* (Rainbow, I, 20).

towns. Troy in our weakness stands; not in her strength. Troilus and Cressida, I, 3, 137.

I lived and toll'd a soldier and a servant | Of Venice and her people. BYRON, Mar. Fal., I, 2, (357a).

Rome waits but the occasion to rise simultaneously against her oppressors. LYTON, Rienzi, I, Ch. V, 42.

Rotterdam is the most enterprising of Dutch cities, and she bids fair by her more aggressive policy to rival her elder and wealthier sister Amsterdam. Lit. World.

A few examples will suffice to show that the above and similar things, although personified, may also be referred to by neuter pronouns.

age. I questioned age (sc. What was life); it heaved a heavy sigh, | Expressing volumes. ANON., What is Life? (Rainbow, I, 20.)

law. Hard it is upon the part of the law that it should be so confoundedly down upon us unfortunate victims. DICK., Chuz., Ch. XXVII, 227a.

nature. Spontaneous joys where Nature has its play. GOLDSMITH, Des. Vil., 255.

reason. Reason still keeps its throne, but it nods a little, that's all. G. FARQUHAR, The Recruiting Officer, III, 2, (295).

virtue. Virtue makes the mind invincible. It places us beyond the power of Fortune, though not beyond her malice, which that Goddess sometimes seems to show. W. BESANT, Bell of St. Paul's, II, Ch. XV, 53.

- c) In homely style, often affected in poetry, in dialects and in the vernacular of particular trades or professions inanimate objects often have sex ascribed to them, with a decided prevalence of the female sex. Thus THOMAS RUSSELL (Westm. Gaz., No. 4983, 13) observes: "Have

"you remarked that to every craftsman his instrument is feminine? The sailor's ship, the soldier's gun, the driver's car are all she".

- i. book. "You are provided with the needful implement — a book, sir?" — "Bought him at a sale", said Mr. Boffin. DICK., *Our Mut. Friend.*¹⁾

Excalibur. Take Excalibur, | And fling him far into the middle mere. TEN., Pas. of Arthur, 204. (Thus throughout the poem.)

pillar-box. A brand-new pillar-box stood before me. It shone in the sun-light. "Isn't he a dear?" said Felicity. "Look at his mouth. I think he has the darlingest expression." PUNCH, No. 3651, 498*b*.

pudding. There was four of 'em, for I reckoned 'em up when I had 'em, meat one, beer two, vegetables three, and which was four? — why pudding, he was four. DICK., *Our Mut. Friend.*¹⁾

- ii. bath. "It's (sc. the rubber bath) not watertight", I said bluntly — I am blunt sometimes. "Oo ay", said he (sc. the Scotchman). "She's pairfitly watertight". PUNCH, No. 3651, 408*c*.

coach. He ascertained from the boots and ostler that the Tally-ho was a tip-top goer, ten miles an hour including stoppages, and so punctual that all the road set their clocks by her. HUGHES, Tom Brown, I, Ch. IV, 66.

"All right", was the reply. "Off she goes!" And off she did go — if coaches be feminine, amidst a loud flourish from the guard's horn. DICK., Nich. Nickl., Ch. V, 26*b*.

fiddle. My fiddle sounds the music — She's more wit than I have. HAL. SUTCL., Pam the Fiddler, Ch. I, 9.

fowling-piece. Before I leave this place, I'll give you my fowling-piece; she will put a hundred swan-shot through a Dutchman's cap at eighty paces. SCOTT, Pirate, Ch. VIII, 97.

kettle. Mr. Venus . . . adjusting the kettle on the fire, remarked to himself: "She'll bile in a couple of minutes." DICK., *Our Mut. Friend.*¹⁾ party. THE NEW MAN. — William Harcourt (who has left the situation). "Well, 'Enery Bannerman, so you've took the place, 'ave you? I wish you joy! She used to be a liberal old party, but now she's that contrairy there's no living with her." PUNCH, 1899.

CHAPTER XXVII.

SEX DENOTED BY NOUNS.

1. The names of live beings may be divided into:
 - a) such as indicate sex,
 - b) such as do not indicate sex.
2. The first group contains:
 - a) pairs of words indicating either the male or the female sex, which may be divided into:
 - 1) such as are not, or only remotely, etymologically related: king, queen; father, mother.
 - 2) such as are etymologically related: murderer, murderess; actor, actress.
 - b) words that have no companion-word to denote the individual of the opposite sex: carpenter, nurse.
3. The pairs of words that are not, or only remotely, etymologically related include:
 - a) names of persons, e. g.:

boy (lad)	—	girl (lass)	sir	—	madam
brother	—	sister	sire	—	dame, dam
father	—	mother	sloven	—	slut, slattern
husband	—	wife	son	—	daughter
king	—	queen	swain	—	nymph
monk (friar)	—	nun	uncle	—	aunt
nephew	—	niece	wizard	—	witch.
papa	—	mamma

The years revolves, and I again explore | The simple Annals of my Parish poor; | What Infant-members in my flock appear, | What pairs I bless'd in the departed year; | And who, of Old or Young, or Nymphs or Swains, |
Are lost to Life, its pleasures and its pains. CRABBE, Parish Reg., 8.
I have reared him as became a youth of gentle blood; for on both sides, lady, he is noble, though an orphan, motherless and sireless. LYTON, Rienzi, IV, Ch. I, 155.

b) name of animals, e. g.:

boar	—	sow	colt	—	filly
buck	—	doe	hart	—	roe (hind)
bull	—	cow	milter	—	spawner
bullock (steer)	—	heifer	ram (wether)	—	ewe
cock	—	hen	stallion	—	mare.

4. As to words that are etymologically related, we find that in almost every case the name denoting the individual of the female sex is a derivative of the name denoting the individual of the male sex. The chief suffix by which this derivation is effected is ess, which is attached:

a) to the unmodified base, for instance in:

authoress	from	author	patroness	from	patron
baroness	"	baron	priestess	"	priest
countess	"	count	quakeress	"	quaker
heiress	"	heir	seeress	"	seer
jewess	"	jew	shepherdess	"	shepherd
manageress	"	manager	tutoress	"	tutor.

Here we may mention also such words as goddess from god, princess from prince.

b) to the modified base, for instance in:

actress	from	actor	inheritress	from	inheritor
adulteress	"	adulterer	instructress	"	instructor
adventuress	"	adventurer	laundress	"	launderer
ancestress	"	ancestor	monitress	"	monitor
arbitress	"	arbiter	murderess	"	murderer
conductress	"	conductor	negress	"	negro
directress	"	director	portress (also
doctress	"	doctor	portress)	"	porter
electress	"	elector	sculptress	"	sculptor
empress	"	emperor	sorceress	"	sorcerer
enchantress	"	enchanter	traitress	"	traitor
foundress	"	founder	translatress	"	translator
governess	"	governor	votaress	"	votary
huntress	"	hunter	waitress	"	waiter.

actress. She is the finest actress in the world. THACK., Pend., I, Ch. V, 57. Good heavens, what an actress this woman is! Miss BRADDON, Lady Audley's Secret, II, Ch. III, 43.

ambassadress. Miss Crawley could not wait for the tardy operations of her ambassadress. THACK., Van. Fair, I, Ch. XV, 150.

ancestress. That portrait was an ancestress of mine. Mrs. WARD, Marcella, I, 10.

I often wonder whether my ancestress, Fenella Stanley, had any traditional knowledge of the Queen of Death. TH. WATTS DUNTON, Aylwin, IX, Ch. II, 274.

arbitress. With that he (sc. Arthur) turned his head aside, | Nor brooked to gaze upon; her pride, | As, with the truncheon raised, she sate | The arbitress of mortal fate. SCOTT, The Bridal of Triermain, II, xxii.

authoress. There are naturally many names that we look for in vain in any list of living authoresses. Lit. World.

He dared not talk to her of her books, for he did not even know the names of them; but he let her understand that he knew she was an authoress. W. BLACK, The New Prince Fortunatus, Ch. XXI.

benefactress. This great benefactress was buried at Hughendon and lies in the same vault containing the remains of the famous author and statesmen. Lit. World.

conductress. As a conductress of Indian schools, and a helper amongst Indian women, your assistance will be to me invaluable. CH. BRONTË, Jane Eyre, Ch. XXXII, 451.

directress. Not a soul in Madame Beck's house, from the scullion to the directress herself, but was above being ashamed of a lie. Id., Villette, Ch. IX, 99.

doctress. My mother herself is something of a doctress. Ib., Ch. XVI, 217. The woman holds the position of village doctress and nurse. MRS. GASKELL, Life of Charl. Brontë, 122.

editress. Miss van Norden who acted for some years as editress of the 'Deliverer' at the Army Headquarters. Rev. of Rev., CCI, 239a.

enchantress. The lady is rather unhappy and applies to a sort of enchantress. JEFFREY, Thomas Moore.

giantess. Not that she was a giantess, by any means. DU MAURIER, Trilby, I, 167, (T.)

huntress. Beyond the outmost wall she stood, | Attired like huntress of the wood. SCOTT, Bridal of Triermain, II, ix.

inheritress. She was Marcella Boyce... the inheritress of one of the most ancient names in Midland England. MRS. WARD, Marcella, I, 10.

instructress. She was received by the surgeon as the instructress of his daughter. MISS BRADDON, Lady Audley's Secret, I, Ch. I, 7. He did not find this a disagreeable task, especially when he had so fair an instructress as Bessie. RIDER HAGGARD, Jess, Ch. IV, 29.

manageress. The counter of the confectioner's shop is presided over by an alert and short-tempered manageress. Punch.

mistress. She was too far gone to resist, and when she was mistress of herself again, she found herself in the library with some water in her hand. MRS. WARD, Rob. Elsm., III, 243.

monitress. Let me to-morrow, in the face of Heaven, receive my future guide and monitress. Riv., V, 1, (271).

patroness. Institutions, of which, in life, she was the munificent patroness. THACK., Newc., I, Ch. IV, 38.

poetess. Fel. Dor. Hemans ranks high among English poetesses. COURTH. BOWEN, Stud. in Eng., 11.

The tradition of a more direct self-disclosure than is common among later poets, has been continued without visible break by the poetesses. Academy.

portress. Henceforth on Rosine, the portress, devolved that duty. CH. BRONTË, Villette, Ch. VIII, 85.

prophetess. Even Miss Pole herself, whom we looked upon as a kind of prophetess, was breathless with astonishment. MRS. GASKELL, Cranf., Ch. XII, 224.

protectress. Oliver . . . was led into the room by his benevolent protectress. DICK., Ol. Twist, Ch. II, 26.

Quakeress. I pass over the stories of his juvenile loves — of Hanna Lightfoot, the Quakeress, to whom they say he (sc. George III) was actually married. THACK., The Four Georges, Ch. III, 72.

sculptress. The sculptress died in June last. Rev. of Rev., CCXV, 511a.

seeress. Fenella Stanley seems in her later life to have set up as a seeress. TH. WATTS DUNTON, Aylwin, I, Ch. VI, 34.

The painter had evidently seized the moment when Fenella's eyes expressed that look of the seeress which Sinfi's eyes, on occasion, so powerfully expressed. ib., VII, Ch. III, 256.

traitress. And so did you, traitress. CH. KINGSLEY, Hereward, Ch. V, 38a.

tutoress. Love was Miss Amelia's last tutoress, and it was amazing what progress our young lady made under that popular teacher. THACK., Van. Fair, I, Ch. XII, 119.

visitress. "You are come at last", said the meagre man, gazing on his visitress with hollow eyes. CH. BRONTË, Shirley, II, Ch. XVI, 327.

Keenly, I fear, did the eye of the visitress pierce the young pastor's heart. Id., Jane Eyre, Ch. XXXII, 451.

waitress. A couple of waitresses are endeavouring, with but indifferent success, to satisfy every one at once. Punch.

5. Obs. I. The suffix is not used to form feminine names of animals, lioness and tigress being adoptions from the Old French lion(n)esse, tigresse. MURRAY, s. v. ess; BRADLEY, The Making of Eng., Ch. II, 58.

Pantheress is, however instanced by no fewer than four quotations in MURRAY. We copy one:

Mary Stuart . . . was something between Rachel and a pantheress. FROUDE.

- II. Abbess (masc. abbot), duchess (masc. duke), marchioness (masc. marquess or marquis), are anglicized foreign feminines.

Mistress is a modification of the Old French maistresse.

- III. The suffix ess came into English from the French. At one time, especially in the 16th century, derivatives in ess were formed very freely. Many of these are now obsolete or little used. In the present stage of the language the process may be said to have become extinct. Thus of almost all agent-nouns in er there is no corresponding noun in ess, the former being used indifferently for males and females.

Occasionally we meet with recent formations used in sport, such as:

bishopess. Clive is full of humour, and I enclose you a rude scrap representing the bishopess of Clapham. THACK., Newc., I, Ch. III, 35.

citizeness. Difficult to get any of the free democratic citizens or citizenesses to come. MRS. STOWE.

The French nation saw the English citizen and citizeness — no caricature, but the living reality — and their indignation exploded in laughter. JEROME, Three men on the Bummel, Ch. VIII, 147.

cockneyess. The country dances formed by bouncing cockneys and cockneyesses. THACK., Van. Fair, I, Ch. VI, 55.

millionairess. She is a millionairess now. DOR. GERARD, The Eternal Woman, Ch. XVIII.

The young millionairess, instead of squandering her fortune, takes her chief pleasure in adding to it. Westm. Gaz., No. 4055, 15b.

Note. In SHAKESPEARE the forms heiress, priestess, Jewess and tigress are unknown; the plural princes is used to include both sexes (SHAKESPEARE's contemporaries also have the singular prince as a feminine); traitor is the ordinary word also to denote a female traitor, the form traitress being used only once (in All's Well, I, 1, 184), apparently as a term of endearment; both votary and votarist occur as feminines by the side of vo(a)ress. See A. SCHMIDT, under the respective words; and FRANZ, Die Wortbildung bei Shakespeare, E. S., XXXV.

6. Of the Old English terminations used to form feminines only two have left traces in Modern English:

- a) en, which is still seen in vixen (= she - fox, fox's cub of either sex, but mostly ill-tempered woman). Vixen is derived from vox, in Old English a dialectical variety of fox.
- b) (e)stre, which is still seen in 1) spinster; 2) fibster, huckster, maltster, punster, seamster (also sempster), songster, tapster, trickster; 3) many proper names of persons, such as Baxter, Bowster, Webster; 4) oldster, youngster; 5) teamster, tonguester.

With the exception of youngster, oldster, teamster and tonguester, all these nouns in ster are agent-nouns, formed from verbs. Oldster formed on the analogy of youngster is rare, and so is tonguester.

The words in ster have long since ceased to be felt as nouns denoting female agents. Hence the formation of such words as seamstress (also sempstress) and songstress.

Spinster is the only word in ster which has retained an exclusively feminine meaning, but is no longer a nomen actoris, meaning only unmarried woman. SHAKESPEARE still has it in the original meaning. SCOTT has spinstress in the sense of unmarried woman, which seems to show that he did not feel spinster to be an indubitably feminine word.

In fibster, punster and trickster the ending ster expresses a bad habit. For further details see also SWEET, N. E. Gr., § 1593, and especially FRANZ, Die Wortbildung bei Shakespeare, E. S., XXXV.

oldster. Major Bagstock . . . said of Florence that her eyes would play the devil with the youngsters before long — "and the oldsters too, Sir, if you come to that." DICK., Dom b., Ch. X, 87.

We oldsters, be we ever so old, become boys again, as we look at that familiar old tomb. THACK., New c., II, Ch. XXXVII, 396.

I rather think that we two oldsters are in your way. W. MORRIS, News from Nowhere, 58.

seamster (-stress), sempster (-stress). Tom was a good seamster, as all travellers should be. KINGSLEY, Two Years Ago, I, x, 159).¹⁾

¹⁾ MURRAY.

Izaak Walton followed the trade of a sempster or haberdasher. N. H. NICOLAS Walton's Angler, Life, 2 Note.¹⁾

The wrongs and hardships of the seamstress and the milliner have been set forth in thrilling poetry. Daily News, 1872, 24 July.¹⁾

Among the prisoners . . . were two women — a sempstress and a servant. Id., 1871, 6 Nov.¹⁾

spinster (-stress). O, fellow, come, the song we had last night. | Mark it Cesario, it is old and plain; | The spinsters and the knitters in the sun | And the free maids that weave their thread with bones | Do use to chant it. Twelfth Night, II, 4, 45.

He actually ventured to salute the withered cheek of the spinstress. SCOTT, Pirate, Ch. XII, 132.

songster (-stress). The caged songster can at least exercise his sweet voice unrestrained. Graphic, 1889, 278.

The song had left tears in the eyes of the reprobate Sacha himself, though they did not wash out the love-glances that he threw at the songstress. SAVAGE, My Official Wife, 140.

teamster. The wagons are propelled by means of mules driven by rough teamsters. ALVAREZ, Mexican Bill, 38.

tonguester. Perchance in lone Tintagil, far from all | The tonguesters of the court, she had not heard. TEN., The Last Tourn., 392.

trickster. Good heavens! what an actress this woman is. What an arch trickster — what an all-accomplished deceiver! Miss BRAD., Lady Audley's Secret, II, Ch. III, 43.

7. The following feminines are of foreign coinage:

a) infanta	from infante	e) administrix	from administrator
khediva	" khedive	arbitratrrix	" arbitrator
signora	" signor	coadjutrix	" coadjutor
sultana	" sultan.	dictatrix	" dictator
b) heroine	" hero.	executrix	" executor
landgravine	" landgrave	inheritrix	" inheritor
margravine	" margrave.	mediatrix	" mediator
c) czarina	" czar.	prosecutrix	" prosecutor
d) suffragette	" suffragist.	spectatrix	" spectator
		testatrix	" testator.

Instead of some of these feminines in trix, forms with the more familiar ess are more frequently used. Thus we constantly meet with coadjutress, dictatress, inheritress, spectatress, etc.

inheritrix (-ess). i. I think we acknowledge in the inheritrix of his sceptre a wiser rule and a life as honourable and pure. THACK., The Four Georges, IV, 120.

ii. Marcella Boyce inheritress of one of the most ancient names in England. Mrs. WARD, Marcella, I, 10.

mediatrix. She obligingly consented to act as mediatrix in the matter. CH. BRONTË, Jane Eyre, Ch. X, 105.

prosecutrix. Not one of them had compassion enough to mollify my prosecutrix. SMOL., Rod. Rand., Ch. XXIII, 166.

¹⁾ MURRAY.

A photograph of the prosecutrix in the costume she wore the day she bicycled to Ockham, showed her clothed from the crown of her head to the soles of her feet. Times, 1899, 217b.

spectatrix (-ess). i. She had been a spectatrix of the same scene at a play. ANON., Paul Ferr., 219.1)

ii. The unfortunate Hinda is at last a spectatress of the lofty fate of her lover. JEFFREY, Thomas Moore.

8. a) Woman has sprung from a compound of man, being a modification of wifman, in which man, of course, is used as a noun of common gender like the Dutch mensch.

Man and woman form numerous compounds, which require no comment. In some cases the compound of man answers to a compound of maid, e. g.: milkman — milkmaid.

- b) On tracing back lord and lady to their original forms, it will be found that they have both sprung from compounds which have the word hlāf (= Mod. Eng. loaf) in common: lord = Old Eng. hlāford (once hlāfweard) = Mod. Eng. loaf-keeper; lady = hlāfdige = Mod. Eng. loaf-kneader.

- c) Sometimes a pure alien is used, because the masculine does not allow of having a feminine formed from it. Such are comédienne, vicereine corresponding respectively to comedian and viceroi. Mention may here also be made of the only partially naturalized beau and belle.

belle. Lady Audley is considered the belle of the country. MISS BRADDON, Lady Audley's Secret, II, Ch. III, 49.

comédienne. Comedian succeeded comédienne with monotonous regularity. Rev. of Rev., CCI, 255a.

vicereine. Americans were extremely proud of the distinction which fell to Lady Curzon as Vicereine of India. Daily News.

Just before he went to Canada, Lord Minto married a lady who is suddenly going to make one of the most successful of Vicereines who have ever ruled in India. Ib.

Life at Government House, Calcutta, although it flows easily, entails a vast amount of hard work on the Viceroy and Vicereine. Titbits.

9. Widower affords an instance of the name of the male individual being a derivative of that of the female.

Also of the two words bridegroom and bride the feminine is the original, from which the masculine has been formed. In the 15th and 16th centuries, however, bride was used of either sex. Groom was substituted for gome, the Middle English representative of the Old English guma (= man), when this word had become obsolete.

10. The nouns that have no companion-word to indicate the individual of the opposite sex are:

1) FLÜGEL.

- a) names of occupations or stations (at one time) practised or held (almost) exclusively by either men or women: carpenter judge, minister, milliner, nurse, peasant, surgeon, etc.;
- b) some names of nationality: Greek, Spaniard, Turk.
- c) some other names of persons: citizen, devil, fellow, pedant.

Also some compounds of man, and of woman, wife or maid are without a companion-word to denote the opposite sex: e. g. postman (11, Obs. II), clergyman, exciseman, midwife, fishwife, barmaid.

11. Obs. I. Some of the masculine names of persons mentioned in the preceding § are also occasionally used to denote the corresponding individual of the female sex. They may then be considered as nouns of common gender.

citizen. Her dress was entirely without ornament, except the two narrow purple stripes down the front which marked her rank as a Roman citizen. CH. KINGSLEY, Hyp., Ch. I, 6a.

In 1885 it became the property of a citizen of the United States, Mrs. Abby E. Pope of Brooklyn. ERNEST RHYS, Preface to 'Morte d'Arthur', 8.

The Spartan woman was accustomed from her youth up to account herself a citizen. NETTLESHIP, Dict. Clas. Antiq., 377b.

devil. An ill-tempered little devil! She'll be in a passion all her life, will she? SHER., Riv., III, 3, (250).

fellow. Let me alone two months, that I may go up and down upon the mountains, and bewail my virginity, I and my fellows. Bible, Judges, XI, 37.

She is a good fellow, too. MRS. ALEX., For his sake, I, Ch. XI, 180. Gillian's outreaching fancies set her above and—somewhat apart from her fellows. JOHN OXENHAM, Great-heart Gillian, Ch. V, 40.

peasant. I am a lowly peasant and you a gallant knight; | I will not trust a love that soon may cool and turn to slight. WHITTIER, King Volmar and Elsie.

pedant. But she (sc. Elizabeth) was far from being a mere pedant. GREEN, Short Hist., Ch. VII, Sect. III, 370.

Spaniard. He had discovered her to be a Spaniard. CH. KINGSLEY, Westw. Ho!, Ch. XXVII, 209b.

Rumour called her a Spaniard. G. MEREDITH, Lord Ormont, Ch. II, 39.

statesman. Victoria was a statesman when the Tsar and the Kaiser were in their cradles. Periodical.¹⁾ stripling. Laura had grown to be a fine young stripling by this time. THACK., Pend., I, Ch. XVIII, 193.

youth. Youths of both sexes invade the class-rooms at the summons of the vesper bell. Westm. Gaz., No. 5335, 7b.

- II. But in the majority of cases, when the necessity of denoting sex arises, some sex-indicating word is substituted or added in the same way as in the case of nouns of common gender. (12.)

¹⁾ WENDT, Synt. des heut. Eng., 98.

- i. The post-woman brought two letters to the house. I say post-woman, but I should say the postman's wife. Mrs. GASK., Cranf., Ch. XIII, 235. Causes in which both parties are women are determined by women-judges. BELLAMY, Looking Backward, 120.
 - ii. Another direction was given to our thoughts, by an announcement on the part of the principal shopkeeper at Cranford, who ranged the trades from grocer and cheesemonger to man-milliner, as occasion required, that the spring fashions, were arrived. Mrs. GASK., Cranf., Ch. XII, 231.
- III. Besides chairman, also chairwoman is occasionally met with to denote the female incumbent of the chair:
- i. Edinburgh's School Board. Chairman, Miss Flora Stevenson. Morning Leader.
 - Lady Randolph Churchill, chairman. Graph.
 - ii. Then Tressady perceived that the chairwoman had called upon Lady Maxwell to move the next resolution. Mrs. WARD, Sir George Tres., III, Ch. XIV, 114a.
12. The names of live beings that do not indicate sex include:
- a) nouns of common gender: acquaintance, agent, artist, child, christian, companion, cousin, friend, guest, liege, neighbour, orphan, slave, etc.; novelist, pianist, vocalist, etc.; attendant, correspondent, dependant.
- Among these we may also reckon most names of persons in er, or; mostly agent-nouns, which, though chiefly and, perhaps, originally denoting only men, are now currently used for women also: reader, writer, etc.; cottager, outsider, villager, Londoner, etc.; foreigner, southerner.
- The noun lover is now almost exclusively applied to the male sex, except in the plural when no particular sex is implied in the word. Conversely love mostly denotes a female person, except in address, when it is as frequently used of the male sex. Sometimes it is preceded by lady to denote the female sex more explicitly (lady-love).
- In SHAKESPEARE, and occasionally in later writers, lover as a noun of common gender, is also used in the sense of friend or well-wisher.
- agent. Why should not Miss Matty sell tea — be an agent to the East India Tea Company which then existed? Mrs. GASK., Cranf., Ch. XXIV, 261.
- artist. The baronet's daughter, who was an excellent horsewoman, and a very clever artist, spent most of her time out of doors. Miss BRAD., Lady Audley's Secret, I, Ch. I, 6.
- christian. I shall end this strife, | Become a Christian, and thy loving wife. Merch. of Ven., II, 3, 19.
- companion. Rebecca easily found a means to get rid of Briggs, her companion. THACK., Van. Fair, I, Ch. XVI, 165.
- composer. Who is that remarkably handsome girl? — That's Lady Adela's sister, Lady Sibyl, the composer. WILLIAM BLACK, The New Prince Fortunatus, Ch. XXI.
- dresser. The dresser had been told she would not be wanted yet awhile. ib., Ch. I.

liege. Queen, | Lady, my liege in whom I have my joy, | Take, what I had not won except for you, | These jewels. TEN., Lanc. and El., 1173.

love. i. When my love swears that she is made of truth, | I do believe her, though I know she lies. SHAK., The Pas. Pilgr., I.

ii. * I could interpret between you and your love, if I could see the puppets dallying. Hamlet, III, 2, 259.

And in such a night | Did pretty Jessica, like a little shrew, | Slander her love, and he forgave it her. Merch. of Ven., V, 1, 22.

O, then, what graces in my love do dwell, | That he hath turn'd a heaven unto a hell! Mids., I, 1, 206.

'Tis he! well met in any hour, | Lost Leila's love, accursed Giaour. BYRON, The Giaour, 444.

 "Why, my stupid love", she would say, "we have not done with your aunt yet." THACK., Van. Fair, I, Ch. XXX, 318.

"Dearest love", she said, "do you suppose I feel nothing?" Ib., 319.

iii. Let not me be a witness of the delight which you and your new lady-love will take in each other. F. J. ROWE, Note to Lanc. and El., 1210.

lover. i. In her first passion, woman loves her lover. BYRON, Don Juan, III, III.

ii. He . . . swears brave oaths and breaks them bravely, quite traverse, athwart the heart of his lover. As you like it, III, 4, 45.

It is as easy to count atomies as to resolve the propositions of a lover. Ib., III, 2, 246.

The thought struck him that he should find out who this Platonic lover would be, and in due course he discovered that she was a Miss Williams, a lady of some property living in the neighbourhood. Lit. World.

You will drive me to be a priest, for this must end one way or another. My parents hate me in earnest, but my lover only loves me in jest. CH. READE, The Cloister and the Hearth, Ch. IX, 49.

iii. But love is blind, and lovers cannot see | The pretty follies that themselves commit. Merch. of Ven., II, 6, 36.

iv. Roman, countrymen, and lovers! hear me for my cause. Jul. Cæs., III, 2, 13. I slew my best lover for the good of Rome. Ib., III, 2, 49.

The earth was foe to him, | Let the sea be lover. W. K. JOHNSTON, Terra Tenebra, 34.¹⁾ novelist. Beginning with Hannah More and ending with George Eliot the series includes six of our famous novelists. Lit. World.

possessor. The gas-light showed her the possessor of bright brown eyes. Mrs. WARD, David Grieve, I, 232.

reader. Miss Boyce was a good reader. Id., Marcella, I, 165.

singer. Madame Svengali, the greatest singer in Europe, had suddenly gone out of her mind. DU MAURIER, Trilby, II, 17.

slave. Well, Julia, you are your own mistress, yet have you, for this long year, been a slave to the caprice, the whim, the jealousy of his ungrateful Faulkland. SHER., Riv., I, 2, (218).

speaker. 'Just because a woman is on the stage, everybody thinks they may throw stones at her', cried the speaker, growing half embarrassed as she spoke. Mrs. WARD, Rob. Elsm., I, 292.

The speaker, Mrs. Caxton, was a middle-aged lady. EDNA LYALL, Donovan, I, 125.

successor. William IV was lying dead in Windsor Castle, while the messengers were already hurrying off to Kensington Palace to bear to his successor her summons to the throne. McCARTHY, Short Hist., Ch. I, 1.

¹⁾ MURRAY.

teacher. There is a daughter also, I find — a teacher in a school. Mrs. Wood, Orville College, Ch. VI, 89.

The only reference she gave was to a lady at a school at Brompton, where she had once been a teacher. Miss BRAD., Lady Audley's Secret, I, Ch. I, 7.

visitor. "Dearest Amelia, you are unwell!" the visitor said, putting forth her hand to take Amelia's. THACK., Van. Fair, I, Ch. XXXI, 334.

writer. Miss Hope is a clear and animated writer. Lit. World.

The elder writer did not begin her literary career until after her marriage. Ib.

- b) the bulk of the names of animals, i. e. of all animals whose sexual characteristics are not conspicuous enough for the people to feel the necessity of distinct names for the male and the female: elephant, eagle, whale etc.

The nouns dog and horse, though not usually indicating sex, are also used specifically to denote the male (adult) animal; similarly duck and goose may specifically denote the female, although more ordinarily implying neither sex in particular.

13. When the necessity of denoting sex is felt, and the context has no indications regarding this matter, the nouns mentioned in the preceding § are coupled with other words indicating sex. Such words are:

- a) the adjectives male and female, which may be placed before any of the above nouns.

It is by no means improbable that old Lobbs would have carried the threat into execution, if his arm had not been stayed by the... male cousin, who stepped out of his closet and walked up to old Lobbs. DICK., Pickw., Ch. XVII, 153.

She was as jealous of her as every well-regulated woman should be of her husband's female friends. THACK., A Little Dinner at Timmins's, Ch. III, (312).

- b) the nouns boy — girl, gentleman — lady, lord — lady, man — woman (maid), which are placed mostly before, sometimes after such of the above nouns as denote persons. Thus we have:

- i. boy-friend — girl-friend, gentleman-cousin — lady-cousin, man-servant — woman-servant (or maid-servant);
- ii. orphan-boy — orphan-girl, liege lord — liege lady, liege-man (liege man) — liegewoman (liege woman), servant-man, servant-maid (more commonly servant-girl).

It may here be observed that some of these nouns may have other adnominal functions than that of sex-indicating words. Thus gentleman and lady often indicate rank: gentleman farmer, lady wife.

gentleman. If Deborah had been alive, she would have known what to do with a gentleman-visitor. Mrs. GASK., Cranf., Ch. III, 58.

lady. I. His influence made Marcella a rent-collector under a lady-friend of his in the East End. Mrs. WARD, Marcella, I, 29.

My lady-readers, I am aware, will protest at this. BELLAMY, Looking Backward, 11.

Readers of "The Lady's Pictorial" are already familiar with its bright and picturesque sketches of some of our well-known lady-novelists, now re-published under the title of Notable Women-Authors of the Day. Lit. World, 1893, 59.

The lives of the twelve lady-writers that fill the pages of this pleasant book, embrace a wide period of time. ib., 1993, 10a.

- ii. We wished to ignore the whole affair until our liege lady, Mrs. Jamieson, returned. Mrs. GASK., Cranf., Ch. XII, 231.

I may not yield to any dame the palm of my liege lady's beauty. LYTTON, Rienzi, III, Ch. II, 132.

- iii. The individual for whom the second place was taken, was a personage no less illustrious than Mrs. Dowler, his lady wife. DICK., Pickw., Ch. XXXV, 323.

man. Bring forth men-children only. Macb., I, 7, 72.

The epithet "blue-stocking", was at first given not to the clever women who attended Mrs. Montagu's informal receptions, but to her men-friends, who were allowed to come in the grey or blue worsted stockings of daily life, instead of the black silk considered 'de rigueur' for parties. G. E. MITTON, Jane Austen and her Times, Ch. I, 7.

woman. I have many married women-friends. MARIE CORELLI, Sor. of Sat., II, Ch. XXIX, 116.

She had two or three women-friends in the country. Mrs. WARD, Marc., I, 82.

- c) the nouns cock — hen, bull — cow, boar — sow, dog — bitch, buck — doe, colt — filly, which are placed mostly before, occasionally after the names of certain animals. Thus we have cock-sparrow — hen-sparrow, peacock — peahen, bull-elephant — cow-elephant, bull-calf — cow-calf, boar-pig — sow-pig, dog-fox — bitch-fox, buck-rabbit — doe-rabbit, colt-foal — filly-foal.

The base of peacock—peahen, which in Old English was pāwa, seems to have gone out of use at an early date, so that for a long time there was not a common noun for the male and the female. Peafowl is quite a modern word, the earliest instance quoted by MURRAY dating 1804.

Mr. Roosevelt ... shot a big cow-elephant. Il. Lond. News, No. 3679, 586. Parched with thirst they had at last managed to find a waterpool, but a rhino cow, with her calf, was bathing in it, and had made it too foul to drink. Westm. Gaz., No. 5277, 12a.

Pea-fowl occur in a wild state only in the Indian Peninsula and Ceylon. Id., 5329, 5a.

- d) the pronouns he and she, which are placed before the names of certain animals. Thus we have he-cat — she-cat, he-bear — she-bear, he-fox — she-fox, he-goat — she-goat, he-wolf — she-wolf.

Once he routed two wolves by the power of the human eye and the display of the kodak; once a she-bear and her cubs fled from him through a snowstorm. Westm. Gaz., No. 5201, 13b.

14. Obs. I. For female and male we sometimes find respectively fair and gallant, as more elegant words.

Distinguishable above all, though not loud, was the sonorous voice of the master of Thornfield Hall, welcoming his fair and gallant guests under his roof. CH. BRONTË, Jane Eyre, Ch. XVII, 201.

The superscription was in a pretty delicate female hand, marked "immediate" by the fair writer. THACK., Pend., I, Ch. I, 13.

Occasionally the fair author herself came and dined with us. MARIE CORELLI, Sor. of Sat., II, Ch. XXVIII, 95.

- II. The use of masculine and feminine to denote sex, as in the following quotations, seems objectionable:

King Behanzin's warriors, both feminine and masculine, had evidently grown tired of fighting against the invincible column. Graph., 1893, 630a.

Not to mention that now perished generation of feminine singers, who combined a sort of belated Byronic romanticism of style with a rather humdrum domesticity of sentiment — not to mention this now defunct school in the stronger voiced women-poets from Mrs. Browning, through Miss Christina Rossetti to their later-risen sisters, — we still find in full force the intensely personal note and the necessity of heart-declaration which seem to be the normal characteristics of songstresses' song. Acad., 1891, 179c.

Isn't this a joy to the feminine shopper? RITA, America—Seen through English eyes, Ch. II, 55.

- III. Also proper names of person, particularly such as are in familiar use, are sometimes, especially in colloquial language, placed before names of animals to denote sex: billy-goat — nanny-goat, jack-ass — jenny-ass, tom-cat — tib-cat.

For tom-cat we also find gib-cat, now only archaically or dialectally. Gib is an abbreviation of Gilbert.

In jackdaw, robin-redbreast, jenny-wren and philip-sparrow, tomtit the proper names do not indicate sex.

Jackass is often opprobriously applied to a stupid or foolish person. For who, that's but a queen, fair, sober, wise, | Would from a paddock, from a bat, a gib, | Such dear concernings hide? Hamlet, III, 4, 190.

Melancholy as a gib-cat over his counter all the forenoon, I think I see him making up his cash . . . with tremulous fingers. CH. LAMB, Es. of El., The South-Sea House.

- IV. In Early Modern English we sometimes find he and she used as nouns indicating persons, the former not always distinctly implying sex. Occasional instances occur in the latest English as archaisms. FRANZ, E. S., XVII.

- i. I am that he, that unfortunate he. As you like it, III, 2, 414.

Now let me see the proudest | He, that dares most, but wag his finger at thee. Henry VIII, V, 3, 131.

I'll spend my penny with the best he that wears a head. FARQUHAR, Rec. Offic., I, 1, 613.

The sheep-skin you scorn, I value it more than the skin of any he in Tergou. CH. READE, The Cloister and the Hearth, Ch. XII, 63.

- ii. The shes of Italy should not betray | Mine interest and his honour. Cymb., I, 3, 29.

You are the cruellest she alive. Twelfth Night. I, 5, 259.

I know the rest — you are the charming she, and I the happy man. FARQUHAR, The Const. Couple, V, 3, 538.

Compare with this the vulgar use of him and her in Present English, as in:

"You have a son, I believe", said Dombey. — "Four of 'em, sir. Four hims and a her. All alive. DICK., Dombey, Ch. II, 16.

In Early Modern English he and she are also found before names of persons to denote sex. In later English this use implies great contempt. You would think a smock were a she-angel. The Winter's Tale, IV, 4, 211. If thou wilt curse, thy father, that poor rag, | Must be thy subject, who in spite put stuff | To some she-beggar and compounded thee | Poor rogue hereditary. Timon of Athens, IV, 3, 273.

My he-cousin, Thomson the butcher, is dead or dying. SWIFT, Journ. to Stella, LXI.

As for the old weather-beaten she-dragon who guards you. SHER., Riv., III, 3. The gipsy . . . exerted them (sc. her powers of persuasion) with the usual tact and success of all she-things. BYRON (LYTTON, Life of Lord Byr., 25a).

She is about as elegantly decorated as a she-chimneysweep on May day. THACK., Van. Fair, I, Ch. XXI, 219.

I saw the whole business at once; here was this lion of a fellow tamed down by a she Van Amburgh. Id., Men's Wives, Ch. II, (329).

Note also He Bible and She Bible, a distinction which is based on the different readings of Ruth III, 15 in the two issues of the Authorized Version of the year 1611. The first issue had And when she helde it, he measured sixe measures of barley, and laide it on her: and he went into the citie; the second . . . and she went into the citie.

- V. When the persons mentioned in the discourse are of different sex, the distinction of sex is never expressed.

The vocalists were Miss Anna Williams, Mrs. Brereton, and Mrs. Iver McKay, who were all in good voice. ACADEMY, 1890, 229b.

- VI. Also some of the masculine nouns mentioned in § 4 and § 7 may be met with as nouns of common gender, i. e. they are sometimes used, either without the feminine suffix, or preceded by the adjective female or the nouns woman or lady, to denote the individual of the female sex.

Comparing § 4 and § 12, it follows then that agent-nouns in er and or are of three kinds: a) such as exclusively denote male persons, b) such as mostly denote male persons, but may also be used for female, c) such as are indifferently used for females and males, there being no companion word in ess to denote the female.

In some of the following quotations the use of the masculine forms may be due to the predicative function in which they are employed. (Ch. XXIII, 16, d.)

author. The Lady Emily was her brother's senior by many years, and took considerable rank in the serious world as author of some of the delightful tracts before mentioned. THACK., Van. Fair, I, Ch. XXXIII, 360.

Two of these women, Lady Duffus Hardy and Jessie Fothergill, the latter the gifted author of 'the First Violin', have passed away. Lit. World.

dictator. She was self-appointed dictator and ruled by right of being in a sense the foundress of Shawbridge. (?), The Mischiefmaker, Ch. I.

heir. Hero, the daughter and heir of Leonato. Much ado, I, 3, 57.

My wife was heir to the property. THACK., Cox's Diary, January.

Compare: The death of your brother makes you sole heiress to my estate. G. FARQUHAR, Recruiting Officer, II, 2, (270).

jew. Adieu! tears exhibit my-tongue. Most beautiful pagan, most sweet Jew. Merch. of Ven., II, 3, 19.

Note. According to R. G. WHITE jewess is a modern word, but it occurs in the Authorized Version of 1611 (Acts XVI, 1) and in the earlier versions, even in that of Wiclif. (Note to Merch. of Ven., II, 5, 42 in Clar. Press.) manager. Her husband — he could not be called the landlord, for Mrs. P. was manager of the place — had been, in happier days, captain or lieutenant in the militia. THACK., Lovel., Ch. I, 8.

poet. The poet (sc. Eliz. Barrett Browning) was in her thirtieth year when Miss Mitford saw her for the first time. Literature.

In 1828 the poet was advanced in her twenty-third year and had long been a published author. Ib.

Miss E. H. Hickey is best known as a poet. Lit. World.

regent. Appointed Governess (or Regent) of the Netherlands when only twenty-seven, she displayed an ability which was really astonishing. Rev. of Rev., CCXXIX, 81a.

translator. The translator remarks in her preface that it is only within the present century that the original text of the Parzifal has been collated from the manuscripts. Academy.

The English translator has done her work well. Athenæum.

CHAPTER XXVIII.

GENERAL OBSERVATIONS ON ADJECTIVES.

1. Adjectives are used:

a) as restrictive adnominal adjuncts:

- 1) to classify substances: difficult problems, black swans, red ink.
- 2) to individualize substances: an East-Indian voyage (Westw. Ho!, Ch. XIV, 121a), an Alpine accident (Times), the Russian Foreign Office (ib.).

b) as continuative adnominal adjuncts: that awkward mistake, this troublesome boy, the ambitious, pushing Melbourne (FROUDE, Oceana, Ch. VII, 93), the mighty, opulent Amsterdam (MAC., Hist., III, 47).

For information about the terms restrictive, classifying, etc. see Ch. IV, 1. Compare also Ch. XVI, 1; Ch. XX, 3; Ch. XXI, 2.

Note. When a continuative adnominal adjunct, the adjective sometimes implies some emotion on the part of the speaker. Thus in: As I spoke, poor Mr. Burchell entered the house (GOLDSMITH, Vicar), the adjective poor implies a sense of pity, while in: All the conspirators save only he, | Did that they did in envy of great Cæsar (Jul. Cæs., V, 5, 70), the adjective great implies a sense of admiration. Ch. XXXI, 27, b.

2. Like adnominal nouns, whether in the common case or in the genitive (Ch. XXIII, 3; Ch. XXIV, 7, 40), adjectives may express:

a) qualities: a mild cigar, a beautiful seascape, a wooden bench.

b) relations: the foremost ranks, the left hand; the present reign, the last century, my daily avocations; French wine, musical instruments, nervous system.

He took a keen interest in the larger aspects of public affairs, in the French revolution, the Napoleonic Wars, the Abolition of Slavery, Catholic Emancipation, Parliamentary Reformation, the Poor Law, Factories Education. NOWEL C. SMITH, Wordsworth's Lit. Critic., Introd., I.

3. Obs. I. The relations that may be indicated by adjectives are of an equally varied and vague nature as those that may be expressed by adnominal nouns in the common case. (Ch. XXIII, 12.) They may be roughly divided into:

- a) such as may also be expressed by a noun in the genitive, i. e. by a noun:

- 1) in the genitive of possession: Oh, who can tell? not thou luxurious slave! . . . | The exulting sense. BYRON, Corsair. (= slave of luxury.)
 What a special clatter, crowd, and outcry there was in the Jewish quarter. THACK., Notes on a Week's Holiday. (= Jews' quarter.)
 In his eyes there was the expression which has always appealed to me more than any other expression, whether in human eyes or the eyes of animals. TH. WATTS DUNTON, Aylwin, XV, Ch. I, 415. (= man's eyes. Compare the eyes of animals at the end of the sentence.)

The public health. Times. (= health of the public.)

What shall be said of Mr. Taft, however, whom the American people have just placed in the Presidential chair? Westm. Gaz. (= the chair of the President.)

Thus also by participial adjectives, as in: Come to my woman's breasts, | And take my milk for gall, you murdering ministers! Macb., I, V, 49. (= ministers of murder.)

Note. Almighty wisdom, goodness etc. may be understood as wisdom, goodness, etc. of the Almighty.

Implicitly relying upon Almighty wisdom and goodness, he looked danger in the face with a constant smile. MOTLEY, Rise, VI, Ch. VIII, 898a.

What one sees symbolised in the Roman churches in the image of the Virgin Mother with a bosom bleeding with love, I think one may witness (and admire the Almighty bounty for) every day. THACK., Pend., I, Ch. II, 30.

- 2) in the genitive of origin: He didn't understand politics himself — thought they were a natural gift. G. ELIOT, Mill, I, Ch. VII, 64. (= a gift of nature.)
 3) in the subjective genitive: Hail to the virtues which that perilous life | Extracts from Nature's elemental strife. WORDSWORTH, Composed by the Seashore, 22. (= strife of the elements.)

Our Peking correspondent once more sends us a disquieting proof of Russian action in North China. Times. (= Russia's action.)

The public aid has been invoked for this object. Times. (= aid of the public.)

It is thought that he would have capitalist support. Times. (= support of capitalists.)

- 4) in the objective genitive: This attracted to his house the most eminent musical performers of that age. Mac., Mad. d'Arblay (704a). (= performers of music. Compare: She appears to have been by no means a novel reader. Ib., (703a).)

These things are hidden, except from popular science. ANDREW LANG, Tennyson, Ch. I, 4. (= science (intended) to teach the people.)

The Government is not pursuing any purpose of territorial aggrandisement. Times. (= aggrandisement of territory.)

We entertain vast schemes of territorial conquest. Rev. of Rev., CCXII, 260b. The Royal Funeral Number of the Graphic. (= funeral of the Queen.)

Note α) Also in the following quotation the adjective represents a kind of objective genitive. Compare Ch. XXIV, 21, Obs. II.

That life was a noble Christian epic. MOTLEY, Rise, VI, Ch. VII, 898b. (= epic of a noble Christian.)

β) When the adjective answers to a classifying genitive, it may also indicate a quality. (Ch. XXIV, 40, b).

His boy's face gave him quite a sheepish look. Dick., Cop., Ch. III, 15a.

- β) Such as are also expressed by a noun preceded by specializing of (Ch. IV, 4, Obs. IV; Ch. XXIII, 12, b): Forget not in your speed, Antonius, | To touch: Calpurnia: for our elders say, | The barren touched in this holy chase, | Shake off their sterile curse. JUL. CÆS., I, 2, 8 (= their curse of sterility.)

Their rising senses | Begin to chase the ignorant fumes that mantle | Their clearer reason. TEMP., V, 1, 67 (= the fumes of ignorance.)

The watery kingdom, whose ambitious head | Spits in the face of heaven, is no bar | To stop the foreign spirits. MERCHANT OF VEN., II, 7, 44 (= the kingdom of the waters.)

My resentment was restrained by prudential reasons so effectually, that I never so much as thought of obtaining satisfaction for the injuries he had done me. SMOLLETT, ROD. RAND., CH. VII, 40 (= reasons of prudence.)

So sore was the delirious goad, | I took my steed and forth I rode. SCOTT, MARM., IV, XIX (= the goad of delirium.)

Oh, who can tell . . . | The exulting sense — the pulse's maddening play, | That thrills the wanderer of that trackless way? BYRON, CORSAIR (= the sense of exultation.)

I had no death to fear, nor wealth to boast, | Beyond the wandering freedom which I lost. IB., II, IV (= the freedom of wandering.)

The descendant of such a gentleman a hundred years later was proud of the English name. MAC., HIST., I, CH. I, 16 (= the name of Englishman.)

Then compass'd round by the blind wall of night | Brook'd not the expectant terror of her heart. TEN., EN. ARD., 488 (= terror of expectancy or suspense.)

So mighty was the mother's childless cry. ID., DEM. AND PERS., 31 (= cry of childlessness, i. e. cry caused by childlessness.)

His (sc. William the Silent's) intellectual faculties were various and of the highest order. He had the exact, practical and combining qualities which make the great commander. MOTLEY, RISE, VI, CH. VII, 899 (= the qualities of exactness, practicalness, and combination.)

A certain mysterious feeling . . . steals over me again. DICK., COP., CH. VI, 43b. (= feeling of mysteriousness. Compare: I listen to all they tell me, with a vague feeling of solemnity and awe. IB.)

That poor sinner, Foker, with whom we have all come to sympathise, in spite of his vulgarity and fast propensities. TROL., THACK., CH. IV, 111 (= propensities of fastness.)

This was received by his companion with an incredulous shrug of the shoulders. BUCHANAN, THAT WINTER NIGHT, CH. III, 34 (= shrug of incredulity.)

A generous impulse rushed into Pot's open heart. ASCOTT R. HOPE, OLD POT (GRONDH. & ROORDA, III) (= an impulse of generosity.)

For educational purposes they are unrivalled. REV. OF REV., CXCV, 317b (= purposes of education.)

Instances occur also in Dutch, especially in colloquial language: Dat maakt een slordige indruk. (= een indruk van slordigheid.)

It is hardly necessary to observe that adjectives as applied in the above quotations, are virtually transferred epithets. (9.)

- c) Such as are also expressed by an attributive adnominal adjunct containing a preposition other than specializing of: He wants the natural touch. MACB., IV, 2, 10 (= touch or feeling in the nature of all human beings. Compare: One touch of nature makes the whole world kin, | That all with one consent praise new-born gawds. TROILUS AND CRES., III, 3, 175.) Love, like a cradled infant, is lulled by a sad melody. SHER., DUENNA, I, 1, (311) (= an infant in a cradle.) I have endeavoured in this Ghostly little book to raise the Ghost of an Idea. DICK., CHRISTM. CAR., Pref. (= book about ghosts.)

I daresay those impudent wretches made jokes about the miserable creature's having preferred a watery grave to me. Id., Our Mut. Friend, I, Ch. IV, 56 (= grave in the water.)

Then like a musical adept, | To blow the pipe his lips he wrinkled. BROWNING, Pied Piper, 101 (= adept in music.)

The reports of the Parliamentary debates have suddenly become the most interesting feature in the daily newspapers. Rev. of Rev., CXCv, 227a (= debates in Parliament.)

If Dr. Schofield's principles were acted upon, they would lead to something like a revolution in the treatment of nervous sufferers. Westm. Gaz., No. 5231, 10b (= sufferers from nerves.)

- d) Such as are also expressed by a noun used as predicative adnominal adjunct of the first kind. (Ch. XXIV, 40, b.) This affection had originally been caused by the extremities of hunger, suffered in my boyish days. DE QUINCEY, Conf., Ch. II, 11 (= days as a boy.)

It was during one of my childish visits to Switzerland that I learnt an important fact in connection with my father and his first wife. TH. WATTS DUNTON, Aylwin, I, Ch. VI, 37 (= visits as a child.)

Mowbray House continues to be my editorial and managerial head-quarters. Rev. of Rev., CXCv, 319b (= head-quarters as editor and manager.)

These last adjectives may also be understood to represent adverbial relations (of time). Thus my childish visits = my visits as a child or my visits when I was a child. Compare Ch. VI, 7. This applies especially to such adjectives as do not correspond to a noun in the function of predicative adnominal adjunct, as in:

A patriarchal gold-fish apparently retains to the last its youthful illusion that it can swim in a straight line beyond the encircling glass. G. ELIOT, Mill, I, Ch. VIII, 65 (= illusion when young; not: when a youth.)

- II. Relation-expressing adjectives, like relation-expressing adnominal nouns, often imply a quality in a more or less marked degree. This may also be said of several of the adjectives in the quotations cited above. Sometimes they have become purely qualitative. Thus Parisian novelties, which is almost equivalent to fashionable novelties (Compare: Paris boulevards, in which the modifying noun expresses a pure relation); Bavarian beer, which is now brewed in many places out of Bavaria. In the following quotations the adjectives have become purely qualitative:

The Parisian opinions spread fast among the educated classes beyond the Alps. MAC., Popes, (560b). (= enlightened.)

In fact we are getting autumnal tints even now. Daily News.

No funereal gloom hung over the proceedings. Rev. of Rev., CXCv, 227b. (Compare with this the relation-expressing noun funeral, as in: While through the meadows | Like fearful shadows, | Showly passes | A funeral train. LONGF., Afternoon in Febr., I.)

- III. Sometimes there is an adnominal noun by the side of an adjective, also expressing a relation, but of a different description. Thus an East India Company is a company trading to East India, an East Indian Company is one established in East India.

This differentiation is not, however, rigidly kept up, i. e. the adjective is sometimes used where by analogy the substantive would be expected. Compare the two following groups of quotations:

- i. To whom he taught all the mysteries of the Turkish business. THACK., Sam. Titm., Ch. II, 11.
He had procured his son a writership in return for electioneering services done to an East Indian Director. Id., Newc., I, Ch. VIII, 97.
- ii. The chairman of the directors was the great Mr. Brough of the house of Brough and Hoff, Crutched Friars, Turkey merchants. Id., Sam. Titm., Ch. II, 10.
Mr. John Lidderdale was a Russia merchant. Times.

IV. In Early Modern English we find a much freer use of adjectives than in Present English. This often gives rise to obscurity and misconception. See especially ALEX. SCHMIDT, Shak. Lexic., Gram. Obs., 1415—1417.

What tributaries follow him to Rome | To grace in captive bonds his chariot-wheels? Jul. Cæs., I, 1, 39.

BRUT. A word, Lucilius; How he receiv'd you, let me be resolv'd. — Luc. With courtesy and with respect enough; | But not with such familiar instances, | Nor with such free and friendly conference, | As he hath us'd of old. Ib., IV, 2, 16. (= instances of familiarity.)

And though we lay these honours on this man (sc. Lepidus), | To ease ourselves of divers slandrous loads, [etc.] Jul. Cæs., IV, 1, 20 (= loads of slander.)
Our high-placed Macbeth | Shall live the lease of nature, pay his breath | To time and mortal custom. Macb., IV, 1, 100 (= custom (law) of mortality.)
Let our just censures | Attend the true event. Ib., V, 4, 14 (= the justice (correctness) of our censures (opinions).)

Direness, familiar to my slaughterous thoughts, | Cannot once start me. Ib., V, 5, 14 (= thoughts running on slaughter.)

And finding | By this encompassment and drift of question | That they do know my son, come you more nearer | Than your particular demands will touch it. Haml., II, 1, 12 (= demands or questions regarding particulars.)

Of special interest in this respect are participial adjectives in ed, as in: His banished years. Rich. II, I, 3, 210 (= his years of banishment.)
At our more consider'd leisure. Haml., II, 2, 71 (= at a time fitter for consideration.)

This free use of adjectives sometimes causes an apparent exchanging of adjective and substantive. Thus murderous shame (SHAK., Son. IX) seems to stand for shameful murder.

Sir, here is newly come to court Laertes; believe me an absolute gentleman full of most excellent differences. Haml., V, 2, 112 (= different excellences.)
In companions | . . . Whose souls do bear an equal yoke of love, | There must be needs a like proportion of lineaments, of manners, and of spirit. Merch. of Ven., III, 4, 14 (= proportionate likeness or similarity.)

There is also a transposing of modifier and head-word in:

But (she) communed only with her little maid, | Who pleased her with a babbling heedlessness, | Which often lured her from herself. TEN., Guin., 149 (= heedless babbling.)

Cold and clear-cut face, why come you so cruelly meek, | Breaking a slumber in which all spleenful folly was drown'd. Id., Maud, I, III (= foolish spleen.)

V. A relation-expressing adjective is sometimes joined to a past or present participle.

- i. A foreign-born resident of a country. WEBST., Dict., s. v. alien. (= born in a foreign country.)

American-made boots; foreign-manufactured goods. Times.

The Opposition propose a Canadian-built and Canadian manned Navy. Westm. Gaz., No. 6101, 1b.

ii. The foreign-residing Briton. Times.

VI. A comparison of Dutch and English brings out the fact that in a great many cases for a relation-expressing adjective the Dutch has an adnominal noun as part of a compound. Thus naval hero = zeeheld, naval battle = zeeslag, nautical almanac = zee-almanak, Maritime Fisheries (Times) = zeevisscherij, maritime powers = zeemogendheid, marine shells = zeeschelpen; native country = geboorteland; mercantile marine = handelsvloot; musical instrument = muziekinstrument.

4. Adjectives are either independent or relative, i. e. they either make complete sense by themselves or require a (prepositional) object.

Instances of independent adjectives are high, warm good, etc., as in a high tree, a warm country, a good boy, etc.

Relative adjectives are such as are instanced in the following quotations:

He is averse to active pursuits. WEBST., Dict.

He was bent on a day's lark in London. THACK., Pend., I, CL. XVII, 173.

The ship is bound for Cadiz. SKEAT, Etym. Dict.

The port to which we were bound. FROUDE, Oceana, Ch. II, 30.

The ships were bound on a voyage of discovery. LOUIS BECKE, A First Fleet Family, Ch. XII.

The Boer ideas about the private property of strangers are not consonant with the highest administrative integrity. Daily Chron.

He was deeply conversant in the ancients, both Greek and Latin. BAIN, Comp., 143.

He seemed to be very conversant on the subject. MADAME D'ARLAY, Evelina, XVII, 67.

Further instances in a subsequent Chapter.

5. Many relative adjectives may become independent through having the prepositional object absorbed into them. This is especially the case when the prepositional object is vague or indefinite. Thus sensitive, which is relative in I am not very sensitive to pain (E. W. HORNUNG, No Hero, Ch. V), has become an independent adjective in I did not know that you were so sensitive. The change from relative into independent is analogous to that of transitive into intransitive, for which see a subsequent chapter. Further instances are seen in: able for the struggle — when I was young and able; angry with a person, angry at a thing, angry with a person for a thing — nothing could make him angry.
6. According to its grammatical function an adjective is said to be used
- a) attributively, i. e. connected with its head-word without the aid of a verb: the Old World and the New, the present poet laureate.

- b) predicatively, i. e. connected with its head-word by the aid of a verb, either as nominal part of the predicate or as predicative adnominal adjunct: The man is ill, I found the man ill. This made the man ill.

7. Some adjectives hardly admit of being used predicatively. Such are:

- a) material adjectives. Compare Ch. XXIII, 7, Obs. II.

Note I. Instances of material adjectives used predicatively are very rare. The following are the only ones found up to the moment of writing:

The chariot of the grey dawn is represented as silver, just as the chariot of the bright sun is golden. ROWE AND WEBB, Notes to TEN., Tithonius, 76. He (sc. Moloch) was brazen and had a bull's head. 11. Lond. News, No. 3816, Sup. VII.

The material adjective is used rather absolutely (11) than predicatively in:

On either hand stood candle-sticks, two of silver and two brazen. WALT. BESANT, Bell of St. Pauls, I, Ch. IV, 56.

II. Not infrequent, however, is the predicative use of material adjectives in figurative meanings, i. e. when only part of the attributes they suggest are thought of. Ch. XXIII, 7, Obs. II. See also FIJN VAN DRAAT, Rhythm in Eng. Prose, The Adj., § 28.

ashen. Her lips grew ashen. Mrs. WARD, Rob. Elsm., II, 272.

brazen. The deficient buttons on his plaid frock had evidently been supplied from one of Mr. Jellyby's coats, they were so extremely brazen, and so much too large. DICK., Bleak House, Ch. XIV, 113.

I shouldn't have minded her lie so much if she hadn't been so brazen about it. Queer Stories (Truth, No. 1802, 100b).

flaxen. She wished that her hair was golden instead of flaxen. MAR. CRAWF., Adam Johnstone's Son, Ch. V.

golden. Golden indeed were the expectations with which hopeful people welcomed their historic Exhibition. McCARTHY, Short Hist., Ch. IX, 106. (She looked out) upon the greensward where the deepening light lay golden. AGN. & EG. CASTLE, Diam. cut Paste, II, Ch. IV, 150.

Her hair . . . shone well-nigh as startlingly golden as Emerald's own. Ib., III, Ch. III, 253.

leaden. The sky was gray and leaden. EDNA LYALL, Knight Er., Ch. XIX, 168.

silvern. We can fancy that his (sc. Swinburne's) hero and heroine would be persons in (?) whose lips speech would be golden and silence silvern. Periodical.¹⁾ wooden. The staircase was as wooden and solid as need be. DICK., Little Dorrit, Ch. IV, 22a.

At the commencement they are so wooden and so stiff. PHILIPS, Mrs. Bouverie, 74.

The Wilhelmstrasse is wooden in its methods like all bureaucratic institutions. Eng. Rev., 1912, March, 677.

¹⁾ WENDT, Synt. des heut. Eng., 111.

b) adjectives denoting a pure relation. (2, b.) These adjectives have arisen from the want of an attributive word to represent an adverbial or genitive idea, and it is but natural that they are discarded when this want is no longer felt. Thus we say a daily journal as a much more convenient form than a journal that appears daily (every day), but there is no occasion to say The journals are daily because such a form as The journals appear daily (every day) suits our purpose quite as well.

c) some others; among the rest:

joint. Our joint property.

— live. A live mouse.

lone. Where | Waterfalls leap among wild islands green, | Which framed for my lone boat a lone retreat. SHELLEY, Revolt, Dedic., 16.

Note. Also little is mostly used attributively, but its application as a predicative word is not so infrequent as is often believed.

— And though she be but little, she is fierce. Mids. Night's Dream, III, 2, 325. Being too little... (she) stood on tiptoe to embrace him. DICK, Christm. Car. 5, II, 41.

When they were little. G. ELIOT, Silas Mar., II, Ch. XVII, 133.

We feel so helpless and little in the great stillness. JEROME, Three Men in a Boat, Ch. VI, 70.

8. Some adjectives are used only or mostly predicatively. This is especially the case with:

a) relative adjectives (4).

The attributive use of these adjectives would entail their being placed before the noun together with their prepositional objects, which is contrary to the genius of the language. It will be easily understood that when these adjectives have got rid of this encumbrance, i. e. when they have become independent, they are often used attributively: an able man, his angry brother, etc.

Also when they absorb their object (5), relative adjectives may be used attributively.

Leaving the keyhole to the fog and even more congenial frost. DICK, Christm. Car. 5, Ch. I, 17.

"And it (sc. the job) comes — at last father", said Meg, with a touch of sadness in her pleasant voice. "Always", answered the unconscious Toby. Id., Chimes 3, I, 20.

The conscious footman turned pale. CROKER, Three Advices.

He obtained a like ticket. G. GISSING, Eve's Ransom, Ch. V.

b) adjectives with the prefix a, which, indeed, is mostly a weakened preposition. ONIONS, Advanced Eng. Synt., § 25.

Houses that seemed to have got afloat. DICK, Our Mut. Friend, I, Ch. III, 29.

I had left the lamp alight. (?), Evening Shadows.

All wide earth and deep sky agasp in the naked blaze of the sun. MAART. MAART., My Lady Nobody, I, 9.

Note I. A considerable number of such adjectives used attributively are given by FIJN VAN DRAAT, Rhythm in Eng. Prose, The Adj. § 19 (Anglia, XXIV). We copy the following:

A tall figure of a serious adust look. STERNE, Sent. Journ., 118 (Tauchn.)
No such sweet ashamed emotions. HOPE, Osra, 206 (Tauchn.)

Here is another: In person he (sc. the Duke of Alva) was tall, thin, erect, with a small head, . . . adust complexion [etc.]. MOTLEY, Rise, III, Ch. I, 339a.

II. Of some of these adjectives there is an attributive representative without the prefix. Thus live corresponds to alive, lone to alone. (7, c.)

c) the following:

badly, an illiterate word for poorly. I wur terrable feard a meaaikin mesel badly agayn. MRS. WHEELER, Westmrid., Dial., 45.¹⁾ ill, in the sense of out of health. i. My friend is seriously ill.

ii. A solemn clergyman . . . summoned to administer consolation to a very ill man. MAMIE DICK, My Father, 66.¹⁾ nicely, only in illiterate use. "How's your brother?" — "Oh, he's nicely, thank you." ONIONS, Advanced Eng. Synt., § 35.

poorly. His wife had . . . been poorly. MAC., *Hist.*¹⁾ well, in its varied applications. i. He tries to be well with both. THACK., A Little Dinner at Timmins's, Ch. VII, (322).

He was quite as well at the alehouse as at the castle. Id., Virg., Ch. II, 22.

Will it not be as well if you join him? LYTTON, Rienzi, II, Ch. IV, 106.

If I were rich and happy in mind and circumstance, well and good. Id., Caxtons, XII, Ch. VI, 323.

He does not feel quite well to-day.

ii. But neither pills nor laxatives I like, | They only serve to make the well man sick. DRYDEN, The Cock and the Fox, 401.

For further instances of attributive well see FLÜGEL.

9. Adjectives do not always logically belong to the noun they modify grammatically. Sometimes they express in reality a quality of what is expressed by the predicate. Ch. V, 13, 14. More frequently they are what have been called transferred epithets. BAIN, Eng. Composition, 24. Compare also 3, Obs. I, b.

weeping tears (As you like it, II, 4, 49); a sleepy potion. SWIFT, Gul., I, Ch. I, (117a). tender years (age). THACKERAY, Barry Lyndon, Ch. I, 16; 17. a drunken row. Rev. of Rev., CCXI, 3a.

The detailed discussion of transferred epithets does not belong to the department of grammar, but rather to lexicography. We will, therefore, confine ourselves to a few observations.

a) In poetry, especially in SHAKESPEARE, the use of transferred epithets often gives rise to obscurity.

What prodigal portion have I spent that I should come to such penury. As you like it, I, I, 34 (= What portion have I spent in prodigality, or as a prodigal man.)

I have five hundred crowns, | The thrifty hire I saved under your father. Ib., II, 3, 39 (= the hire I saved by thrift or as a thrifty man.)

Oppress'd with too weak evils, age and hunger. Ib., II, 7, 132 (= evils causing weakness or making a man weak.)

1) MURRAY.

- b) Some adjectives in able and ible, chiefly denoting a capability, are sometimes found to indicate a more active meaning.

He is too disputable for my company. As you like it, II, 5, 31 (= disputatious, fond of argument.)

Yet have I left a daughter, | Who, I am sure, is kind and comfortable. King Lear, I, 4, 328 (= able to comfort.)

Be comfortable to my mother, your mistress, and make much of her. All's well that ends well, I, 1, 86. (= comforting.)

The most comfortable sacrament of the body and blood of Christ. Communion Service.

This was an uncomfortable coincidence. Dick., Cop., Ch. V, 35a.

- c) The transferring of the epithet is often one from subject (normally the name of a person) to object (normally the name of a thing), with the frequent result that the transferred or objective meaning is more usual than the original or subjective meaning. DEAN ALFORD, The Queen's English, § 238; ABBOT, Shak., Gram.³, § 3. The following list might be added to almost indefinitely:

anxious. i. The counsellors of Charles were anxious for their own safety. Mac., Hist.¹) ii. His affairs were in an anxious state. Mrs. GASK., Cranf., Ch. XIV, 274.

careful. i. I shall be careful about getting into these scrapes again. G. MEREDITH, Ordeal of Rich. Fev., Ch. XI, 69.

ii. By Him that rais'd me to this careful height | From that contented hap which I enjoyed, | I never did incense his majesty | Against the Duke of Clarence. Rich. III, I, 3, 83.

This latter use of careful is said by MURRAY to be archaic and obsolete.

careless. i. How can you be so careless!

ii. To throw away the dearest thing he owed, | As 't were a careless trifle. Macb., I, 4, 11.

fearful. i. God knows that fond heart was fearful enough when others were concerned. THACK., Henry Esmond, II, Ch. XI, 251.

Wilderspin is fearful that she may not turn up to day. TH. WATTS DUNTON, Aylwin, IX, Ch. I, 271.

ii. Fear this glorious and fearful name, the Lord thy God. Bible, Deut., XXVIII, 58.

Oh, God! it is a fearful thing | To see the human soul take wing | In any shape, in any mood. BYRON, Pris. of Chil., VIII.

hopeful. i. Joubert hopeful. Daily Chron.

ii. Here comes his hopeful nephew. GOLDSMITH, Good-nat. man, I.

quarrelsome. i. Men who are ill-natured and quarrelsome when they are drunk. FIELDING, Tom Jones, V, Ch. IX.

ii. It staved off the quarrelsome discussion as to whether she should or should not leave Miss Matty's service. Mrs. GASK., Cranf., Ch. XIV, 256.

This latter use of quarrelsome is rare.

In reverent and reverend we find the distinction marked by a difference of form.

10. When several adjectives qualify the same noun we may distinguish between two cases:

1) MURRAY.

- a) All the adjectives denote separate qualities of what is expressed by the following noun: a long, straight street; a rich and generous man; the poor but happy man.

In this case the adjectives should be separated by a comma or connected by a conjunction. They have equal stress and their order of arrangement is immaterial, although in a measure fixed by tradition or euphony.

- b) One of the adjective forms a kind of unit with the following noun, which is qualified by the other adjective: excellent Rhenish wine.

In this case the comma should not be used, nor is it possible to interpose a conjunction between the adjectives. The adjective immediately preceding the noun has weak stress as compared to the other adjectives and the order of arrangement cannot be changed.

11. An adjective is said to be used absolutely when it is detached from its head-word, i. e. when the noun to which it refers is understood because it occurs in a previous or subsequent part of the discourse. When found in immediate connection with the noun it modifies, which mostly follows, but occasionally precedes (Ch. VIII, 84 ff.), it may be said to be used conjointly. Most adjectives may also be turned wholly or partially into nouns, in which case they are said to be used substantively.

The absolute use of adjectives is common only when the noun they modify is found in a subsequent part of the discourse, as in the biggest of the boys, white and red roses. But the English language, unlike the Dutch, is on the whole averse to the absolute use of an adjective when the noun modified precedes. To obviate the monotony which the repeating of this noun would entail, it is mostly replaced by the indefinite pronoun one used by way of prop-word.

Sometimes an adnominal word, though not modifying a noun actually found in the discourse, is yet distinctly associated with a noun that is implied by some element of the sentence. In this case it may also be said to be used absolutely.

He lost the last of his money. TROL., THACK., Ch. I, 8.

In the first place, he half-poisoned all his neighbours, and they in turn were always on the look-out to pounce upon any of his numerous live-stock. HUGHES, Tom Brown, Ch. III, 238.

The subject will be repeatedly reverted to in the discussion of the different kinds of adnominal words.

The use of the prop-word one will be discussed in a subsequent chapter.

Details about the substantival use of adjectives are found in the next chapter.

CHAPTER XXIX.

CONVERSION OF ADJECTIVES INTO NOUNS.

1. a) When an adjective is totally converted into a noun, it has all or most of the peculiar grammatical characteristics of a noun; i. e. so far as its meaning admits, it may be used as the subject or the object of the sentence; it may be preceded by a preposition; it may be preceded by the ordinary noun-modifiers: articles, adjectives, adnominal pronouns and numerals; and it admits of inflection for the genitive and the plural.

Thus we find all the characteristics of a pure noun in such a word as liberal, most of them in (my) bettors, (the) deep, (pure) salt. For illustration see below.

In the case of total conversion the meaning of the adjective often appears specialized, i. e. the quality or relation it expresses is represented as being pre-eminently found in certain classes of persons or things. Thus a brilliant is a diamond of particular brilliancy. Compare also:

He lived on plain wholesome roast and boiled. THACK., The Four Georges, III, 80 (in which roast and boiled stand respectively for roast beef and boiled beef).

- b) When an adjective is partially converted into a noun, it is still to a certain extent felt as an adnominal word, i. e. we are more or less distinctly sensible of a noun being understood after it, wherefore it lacks most of the above characteristics, at least the most typical, i. e. that of being inflected for the plural.

Thus in such a sentence as The blind are much to be pitied, the word blind, indeed, indicates persons, but it strikes us as equivalent to the blind people. It may, it is true, be used as the subject, object etc., of the sentence; it may be preceded by a preposition, but it is found with no other modifiers than the definite article and admits of no inflection whatsoever.

Similarly the English in The English are proud of their country is almost equivalent to the English people. It may be used in the same grammatical functions as the blind. In the place of the definite article, the ordinary modifier, we occasionally find a demonstrative pronoun or even a numeral. But, although distinctly felt as a plural, it does not take the inflection for the plural, neither does it admit of being placed in the genitive, so that we have no hesitation in pronouncing English in the above application a partially converted adjective. See also 15.

Even when an adjective, or adjectival equivalent, exhibits such an indubitably substantival characteristic as inflection for the genitive, there may be something lacking in its conversion: i.e. the inflection for the plural may be wanting. This, among other cases, applies to poor (14, c), to certain past participles (18, b), and to certain comparatives (19).

Once or twice when he ventured on it (sc. the subject nearest his heart), the latter's countenance wore an ominous look. THACK., Virg., Ch. VII, 71.

Compare: His eldest son . . . led his little brothers into mischief . . . A couple of the latter were sitting on the door-step. Id., Pend., I, Ch. V, 60.

Modification by the indefinite article normally infers capability of inflection for the plural. (See, however 13 and 14, c). Therefore in the first section of the present chapter some adjectives have been included which stand with the indefinite article, although at the moment of writing no documentary evidence of pluralization was available.

- c) Many adjectives admit of both total and particular conversion, each sometimes in a great variety of meanings.

As the meaning of the converted adjective is often one that is incompatible with the notion of plurality, it is sometimes impossible to tell whether we have to deal with total or partial conversion. Such doubtful applications will be for the most part discussed under partial conversion. Anything like an exhaustive treatment of the various senses of converted adjectives cannot be attempted in these pages, but must be looked for in the dictionary. We will here confine ourselves to a detailed tabulation of one, taking as an instance the adjective good, which has a very extensive sense-development.

- α) total conversion: i. The goods have not yet come to hand. B. S. Let. Writer, XII.
- ii. To me it seems that a year could never bring anyone a more substantial good than the certitude of having helped another to bear some heavy burthen. G. ELIOT, Letters (Times, No. 1809, 703d).
There is a weird opinion, held by modern stupid people, that Work 'per se' is a Good. Westm. Gaz., No. 6035, 6b.
- iii. It is no good hiding the truth. RIDER HAGGARD, Mr. Mees. Will.
- iv. She was a charitable woman, and did a great deal of good. CH. BRONTË, Villette, Ch. VIII, 86.
- v. The world enjoyed what good was in them. CARL., Sart. Res., Ch. III, 11.
I can't help thinking that there must be some good in him. THACK., Sam. Titm., Ch. XIII, 181.
Out of such friendship no good comes in the end to honest men. Id., Ch. XIII, 180.
I dare say he has good about him. Id., Newc., I, Ch. XII, 151.
Mrs. Doria would hear no good of Lucy. G. MEREDITH, Ord. of Rich. Fev., Ch. XXXV, 314.

- vi. The chances are that she'll come to no good. DICK., *Chimes*³, I, 36.
He wished he might come to good. ib., Ol. Twist, Ch. III, 45.
He came, as most men deem'd, to little good. MATTHEW ARNOLD, The Scholar Gipsy, IV.
- vii. The Tunbridge waters did no good to his deafness. THACK., Virg., Ch. XXIX, 299.
Much good may it do you! Much good it has ever done you! DICK., *Christm. Car.*⁵, I, 11.
- viii. It was his dearest wish and prayer to have it in his power to keep his children under his own eye, till they could discern between good and evil. BURNS, Letter to Dr. Moore, (51a.)
Should he repay good with evil? BUCHANAN, That Winter Night, Ch. IX, 81.
- ix. Mrs. HARDY. Wasn't it all for your good, viper? Wasn't it all for your good? — TONY. I wish you would let me and my good alone, then. GOLDSM., She Stoops, II (194).
"It is for their good, my dear young sir! for their temporal and their spiritual good!" cried Mr. Trail. "And we purchase the poor creatures only for their benefit." THACK., Virg., Ch. I, 5. (Note the use of benefit as an alternative word for good.)
All is ordered for our good. NORRIS, My Friend Jim, Ch. IV, 32.
He was gone to the sea for the good of his health. BLACKMORE, Lorna Doone, Ch. XXVI, 155.
- x. The Duke of Connaught's presence . . . can only make for good. Westm. Gaz., No. 5436, 2a.
- xi. I was with an equal — one with whom I might argue — one whom, if I saw good, I might resist. CH. BRONTË, Jane Eyre, Ch. XXXIV, 500.
- β) partial conversion, some applications of a doubtful nature.
- i. Where the good cease to tremble at tyranny's nod. SHELLEY, Death.
- ii. True knowledge of any thing or creature is only of the good of it. RUSKIN, *Pleasure Eng.*¹⁾
He was going to get all the good out of this. HOWELLS, Silas Lapham.²⁾
- iii. * He could not possibly hold out much longer, 'not a hundred thousand francs to the good, I am told. MAART. MAART., My Lady Nobody, I, 28. (= as a balance on the right side.)
 After the first day's polling the Unionist Party were three seats to the good. Westm. Gaz., No. 5484, 1b. (= in advance.)
Income-tax is up to now £100.000 to the good. Id.
 Lord Selborne's declaration that the Opposition will repeal the Parliament Act is, of course, all to the good of the Liberal Party. Id., No. 6029, 8d. (= to the advantage.)
'The opening of the Austrian Exhibition at Earl's Court naturally brings about a closer intercourse between the subjects of Edward VII and Francis Joseph. That is to the good and only to the good. Rev. of Rev., CXCVIII, 565a.
- iv. You've got rid of him for good and all. DICK., Ol. Twist, Ch. III, 38.
She had quitted Wales for good. TH. WATTS DUNTON, Aylwin, XVI, 463.
- v. The misery with them all was, clearly, that they sought to interfere, for good, in human matters, and had lost the power for ever. DICK., *Christm. Car.*⁵, I, 30.
A God who ordered all things for good. EDNA LYALL, Hardy Norseman, Ch. VI, 51.

1) MURRAY, s. v. good, C, II, 2b. — 2) ib., 4.

- d) There is no conversion in the proper sense of the word, when the head-word is simply omitted for the sake of brevity.

Lassale insisted that she should go to the house of some friend; and he led her to Madame R., there to remain until things returned to normal. (sc. conditions.) T. P.'s Weekly, No. 468, 521c.

The name "Kropp" and "Made in England" on the tang of the blade identifies the genuine. (sc. razor, or article.) Il. Lond. News, No. 3833, Advert.

TOTAL CONVERSION.

2. Total conversion was more usual in Early Modern English than it is now. (14, b, Obs. II.) In the latest English, however, it seems to be on the increase. It is spreading from the language of business, where brevity is particularly aimed at, and often practised regardless of the genius of the language. Thus it is convenient to use empties for empty bottles, packing-cases, jars, etc.; balds for bald people. American English is especially prone to this kind of formations. For instances of late conversion see especially 12.

It must, furthermore, be observed that it is especially adjectives belonging to the foreign (Romanic) element of the language that afford frequent instances of total conversion. With such as belong to the native element instances are less common. Many totally converted adjectives are practically pluralia tantum. Such of these as have already been illustrated in Chapter XXV, 19, g, will be passed over in silence in the following discussions. For information on the subject in hand see also DEN HERTOOG, Nederlandsche Spraakkunst, III, § 47; WENDT, Die Syntax des Adjectivs im heutigen English; FIJN VAN DRAAT, De Drie Talen, XIV, 39 ff.; ELLINGER, Verm. Beitr., 22.

According to certain characteristics most of the adjectives that admit of total conversion, may be united into certain groups, which are sometimes overlapping.

3. A large group is made up by such as end in certain suffixes belonging to the foreign element of the language. Some of these seem to be (still) more or less unusual in their changed function. In the following illustrations they are marked with a †.

Note that the plural form is uniformly used of any converted adjective giving its name to a bill or an act of Parliament. (Ch. XXV, 31, b.)

Some converted adjectives are used in several meanings. The defining of these meanings belongs to the department of lexicography, and has not, therefore, been attempted in these pages.

The suffixes referred to above are chiefly: able, al, an, ant, ar, ary, ate, end, ent, (i)al, (i)an, ien, ible, ic, ile, ine, ior, ist, ite, ive, ute, among which especially those printed in spaced type afford many instances.

adulterant. The quantities of adulterants employed are not to be perceptible at any time to the senses. Times.

aggressive. Austria ... (is) certainly in no position to support a German aggressive. Westm. Gaz., No. 6177, 7a.

alien. As to their citizenship in the language, words may be classed as Naturals, Denizens, Aliens and Casuals. MURRAY, Dict. Pref. to Vol. I, 19.

annual. Convolvulus minor and major are florist's names of well-known garden annuals. MURRAY, s. v. convolvulus.

astrigent. A gargle with some astrigent will be found a simple remedy. WALT. RIPPMAHN, Sounds of Spok. Eng., § 15.

barbarian. I passed through many regions of Asia, among the barbarians of the mountains as a pilgrim. JOHNSON, Ras., Ch. XII, 73.

captive. The English captives were left at the mercy of the guards. MAC., Clive.

casual. See under alien.

ceremonial. This was in fact a revival of a Pagan ceremonial. LYTTON, Rienzi, I, Ch. II, 20.

classic. He is a classic and worthy to tread measures with Molière. GEORGE MEREDITH, Intr. to Congreve's 'The Way of the World'.

The extract from his letters to Madame Novikoff will probably do more to preserve Kinglake's memory to future generations than his classic of the Crimean War. Rev. of Rev., CCXXXI, 275b.

cleric. The new method of locomotion should be restricted to clerics of lesser rank. Westm. Gaz.

clerical. She is a clerical, which offends the Portuguese people. Rev. of Rev., CCX X, 260b.

confidant. Whatever his sensations might have been, however, the stern old man would have no confidant. THACK., Van. Fair, I, Ch. XXXV, 384.

consumptive. I remember reading in New Zealand some proposed regulation for the exclusion of consumptives, who may frequently be met travelling in search of recovery in that part of the world. Times.

constituent. The impolicy of alienating and exasperating the majority of the constituents of a colony which had just been trusted with self-government, is obvious. FROUDE, Oceana, Ch. III, 53.

contemporary. The object of the book is to show the relation of these great ones to the work of their predecessors and contemporaries. Acad., No. 1765, 209a.

cordial. See under lenitive.

corrective. I found myself forced to contemplate administering to him a sharp corrective in the presence of his school-fellows. ANSTEY, Vice Versa, Ch. XIV, 270.

† degenerate. The prisoner ... belongs to that class of semi-responsible degenerates who offer such a singularly difficult problem to the moralist and the jurist. Times, No. 1816, 1b.

dependant. His generosity made him courted by many dependants. JOHNSON, Ras., Ch. XVI, 98.

† detrimental. Victor Mowbray, if his uncle does not make him his heir, is all that any man could desire, but if not his uncle's heir, a mere detrimental. MRS. HUNGERFORD, The Three Graces.¹⁾ (= undesirable suitor, e.g. younger son, slang.)

It was a thousand pities he was such a detrimental. KATH. TYNAN, Johnny's Luck.

¹⁾ FIJN VAN DRAAT, De Drie Talen, XIV.

dissuasives. No dissuasives could alter her resolve. Mrs. GASK., Cranf., Ch. II, 39.
domestic. The Prince now saw all the domestics cheerful. JOHNSON, Ras., Ch. XX, 118.

† eccentric. Wilderspin is one of the noblest-minded and most admirable men now breathing, but a great eccentric. TH. WATTS DUNTON, Aylwin, XV, Ch. VI, 429.

ecclesiastic. The ecclesiastics and reactionaries who had engineered the counter-revolution. Westm. Gaz., No. 4983, 1b.

† electric. The new trains are so clean that passengers are beginning to give the steam trains the 'go by' and wait for an electric. Times.

† effeminate. I can feel thy follies too, and with a just disdain | Frown at *effeminate*s. COWPER, Task, II.¹⁾ elastic. See under rigid.

† epileptic. The hundred or so acres of land are being reserved for the physical incapables, the epileptics and so forth. H. NORMAN, The World's Work.²⁾

† exclusive. He is as much among exclusives as if he were at St. James's. LYTTON, England and the English.¹⁾ exotic. Vases of exotics bloomed on all sides. CH. BRONTË, Jane Eyre, Ch. XVII, 200.

† expectant. Lord Cardigan was an expectant of death. KINGLAKE, The Invasion of the Crimea.

† exquisite. His style is exquisite certainly, as is the style of an exquisite who takes too much and too conscious pains about his dress. Truth, No. 1802, 82a. (= coxcomb, fop.)

† extravagant. Must I confess that Charles — that libertine, that extravagant, that bankrupt in fortune and reputation — that he it is for whom I am thus anxious and malicious? SHER., School for Scand., I, 1 (364).

familiar. i. I whispered to one of the familiars and begged an interpretation of the strange scene before me. WASH. IRVING, Sketch-Bk., The Art of Book-making, 37a.

Timothy's Bess, though retaining her maiden appellation among her familiars, had long been the wife of Sandy Jim. G. ELIOT, Adam Bede, I, Ch. II, 14. His genius made him the familiar of princes. D. LAING PURVES, Life of Swift, 39.

ii. The toad, bat, and cat were supposed to be familiars of witches and acquainted with their mistresses' secrets. Note to Hamlet, III, 4, 190 in Clar. Press. (= spirit.)

It (sc. the "Holy Office") having its familiars in every house. MOTLEY, Rise, II, Ch. III. (= person rendering certain services in the Pope's or some bishop's household.)

fanatic. I hope they will at length put a check to the inordinate capacity of some fanatics for believing evil of political opponents. Westm. Gaz., No. 6153, 4b.

† fashionable. A very pleasing and witty fashionable. THACK., Van. Fair, II, Ch. XIV, 146.

The fashionables wore boots. Id., Sam. Titm., Ch. II, 22.

A host of fashionables . . . entered the room. Id., Pend., I, Ch. XXV, 270.

¹⁾ FIJN VAN DRAAT, Drie Talen, XIV.

²⁾ WENDT, Die Synt. des Adject., 44.

† flippant. The stern were mild when thou wert by, | The flippant put himself to school | And heard thee. TEN., In Memoriam, CX.
The flippants and pragmatics who infest all the highways of society. Fraser's Mag., XII, 269.1) † fundamental. All the Commissioners are agreed on what we may call fundamentals. Westm. Gaz., No. 4931, 1a.

It is one of the fundamentals of our politics that legislation which has for its object the grant of public money or the imposition of burdens upon the taxpayer, is under the entire control of the House of Commons. Ib., No. 5060, 1b.

gallants. Gallants who had served a campaign in Flanders. Mac., Hist., I, Ch. III, 317.

† human. For days too, the dry, tight cold had drawn up the nerves of the humans in it (sc. the high Alpine valley) to a sharp, thin pitch of exhilaration. Westm. Gaz., No. 5219, 3c.

As far as science is concerned, the present humans will still continue to wallow in the mire of ignorance. Ib., No. 6111, 13a.

I almost wish I were a human. Ib., No. 5412, 8d.

illiterate. Mr. Barton's Bill excludes not only idiots and criminals, but illiterates, and persons likely to become paupers. Times.

Think of our 75 per cent of illiterates, of our undeveloped resources, of the ruins which lie around us. Rev. of Rev., CCXIX., 260b.

† imaginative. Mr. Keary considers that Scott was an Intellectual rather than an Imaginative.2) imbecile. It is unfair to put handcuffs on imbeciles. CHESTERTON (Il. Lond. News, No. 3850, 132c).

immorta. Alas! O goddess, if thou slayest me, | What new immortal can I serve but thee? W. MORRIS, Earthly Par., Atalanta's Race, 36b.

Thus for a few shillings, the reader may have a whole bookshelf, of the immortals. Advert. Everyman's Libr.

† incapable. See under epileptic.

The ravages committed by this unfortunate rendering her dismissal necessary, she was succeeded by a long line of incapables. Dick., Cop., Ch. XLIV, 318b.

It cannot be said too strongly that every part of the world is too crowded to want an incapable. Truth, No. 1802, 112b.

The mental incapacity, but physical vigour of certain negroes suggests, at least, that we may make a sub-distinction in our class of incapables. Westm. Gaz., No. 6035, 10a.

† incidental. Apart, then, from the incidentals of these particular volumes, there is more to be hoped for from a study of sixteenth or seventeenth century Holland, than from a similar study of Holland in the succeeding centuries. Westm. Gaz., No. 6111, 11b.

It is this question which Russia was called upon to settle as an incidental in the last rites to the Grand Duke. Ib., No. 4937, 1b.

† incompetent. She stood out from this grotesque rabble of incompetents. BLACK., Highland Cousins.3)

† inconstant. But, alas! the inconstant had no intention to return. SMOL., Rod. Rand., Ch. XXII, 150.

1) MURRAY. 2) WENDT, Die Synt. des Adject., 44.

3) FIJN VAN DRAAT, Drie Talen, XIV.

incurable. A serious and useful scheme to make an hospital for incurables. SWIFT, Title of a Treatise. (Thus passim.)

† indifferent. You only begin to do things, when you have... driven the waverers and indifferents into one camp or the other. Westm. Gaz., No. 6153, 4a.

† inevitable. These are inevitables of the situation. Westm. Gaz., 6165, 1b.

† infuriate. Infuriates dashed at the carriage and horses' heads. FORBES, Memories and Studies.¹⁾ innocent. i. Wouldst thou have had this innocent grow up to the grossness and indocility which too often accompany maturer swinehood? LAMB., Dis. upon Roast Pig, (257).

What an example you set to this Innocent. THACK., Virg., Ch. L, 518.

Thus wandered these poor innocents, | Till death did end their grief. (?), The Children in the Wood, XVI (Rainbow, I, 51).

Note: a) Innocents' Day = Dec. 28, festival of the slaughter of children by Herod (Matth. II, 16). β) Massacre of the Innocents = (in Parliamentary slang) sacrifice of measures at the end of the session for want of time. This is alluded to in: Why should we make haste to clasp hands still dripping with the blood of massacred innocents. Rev. of Rev., CXCIX, 3b. Beside this annual slaughter of the innocents, the massacre which made King Herod infamous, pales into insignificance. Ib., CC, 210a.

ii. "Go along with you!" exclaimed Susan, giving him a push. "Innocents like you, too! Who'll begin next?" Dick., Domb., Ch. XXII, 207. (= idiot.)

† inseparable. Now, Christine Bacon was Marian's 'dearest friend' — all girls have such an inseparable. BROOKS, A Trip to Washington, 2.²⁾

† insolent. I was forced to draw aside to the wall, and wait until the hoary insolent swept by. LYTTON, Rienzi, I, Ch. V, 41.

† insolvent. He opposed the cruel laws against insolvents. DOWDEN, The French Rev. and Eng. Lit.¹⁾

† intellectual. i. See imaginative. (Compare also: The King's English, 22, where it is stated that so recently as 1905 the word was apologized for by The Spectator as 'a convenient neologism'.)

ii. I could wish that men of tolerable intellectuals would rather trust their own natural reason. SWIFT, Letter to a Young Clergyman, (460b).

† intermittent. Ague = the cold fit or rigor which precedes a fever or a paroxysm of fever in intermittents. ANNANDALE, Conc. Dict.

intimate. Mrs. Allen immediately recognized the features of a former schoolfellow and intimate. JANE AUSTEN, North. Abbey, Ch. IV, 19.

He has been an intimate of courts and royal personages. T. P.'s Weekly, No. 496, 577b.

† irreconcilable. We need not give a second thought to the deliberately disloyal utterances of a few Irish irreconcilables. Times.

† irrepressible. It all seemed so very quiet and solemn that even our young irrepressibles were awed into wondering whispers. BROOKS, A Trip to Washington, 46.²⁾ juvenile. The old hands, of course, take no notice of this order to look joyful. Not so the juveniles, who, during many days, cultivate the 'Commercial smile', and look as if afflicted with face-ache. Westm. Gaz., No. 5376, 3a.

Judging from these specimens of aged juveniles the stage does not seem to sap the vitality of those who tread its boards. Rev. of Rev., CXCVI, 360a.

¹⁾ FIJN VAN DRAAT, Drie Talen, XIV. ²⁾ ELLINGER, Verm. Beitr., 22.

- † legitimate. Your legitimates always get fat. MOORE, The Fudge Family, III.¹⁾
- lenitive. We really think it right not to harass him any longer with nauseous remedies, but rather to throw in cordials and lenitives, and wait in patience for the natural termination of the disorder. JEFFREY, Wordsworth.
- mandatory. France is the mandatory of Europe. Rev. of Rev., CCXXVI, 313b.
- mercenary. Mercenary fought not mercenary. LYTTON, Rienzi, I, Ch. II, 20.
- † miserable. Sacha, that miserable, has ruined himself for ever. SAVAGE, My Official Wife, 269.
- In their pride of cheap success (they) belaboured unmercifully the miserables of the commune. FORBES, Memories and Studies.¹⁾
- † militant. King Ferdinand appears to have succeeded once more in controlling his militants. Westm. Gaz., No. 6005, 2a.
- moderate. The allegations of the Standard have elicited from a leading Moderate a repudiation of its charges. Rev. of Rev., CCVI, 125a.
- mortal. I am a mortal and liable to fall. DICK., Christm. Car.⁵, II, 36.
- † national. England is powerless to protect her nationals against the fiat of Russia. Times.
- The Powers . . . have taken precautions for the safety of their nationals. Westm. Gaz., No. 6071, 1b.
- native. A rich native whom he longed to plunder, had taken refuge at Calcutta. MAC., Clive, (513a.)
- † natural. i. See under alien.
- ii. Fortune makes Nature's natural the cutter-off of Nature's wit. As you like it, I, 2, 44. (= half-witted person.)
- You always were the greatest natural that ever was let loose out of leading-strings. Mrs. WOOD, East Lynne, II, 228.
- necessary. Love is a necessary of life to her. BERN. SHAW, Getting Married, (219).
- negative. Two negatives make an affirmative. BLACKMORE, Lorna Doone, Ch. XXXIV.
- † neutral. The invitation of the Russian government to meet at the Hague in July to consider the questions of the rights of neutrals [etc.]. Rev. of Rev., CXC VII, 448b.
- † notable. February has carried off many notables. Ib., CCVII, 289a.
- † obstructive. The obstructives had the game in their own hands. Ib., CXC VII, 486.
- ordinary. They seem for the most part shabby in attire, dingy of linen, lovers of billiards and brandy, and cigars and greasy ordinaries. THACK., Van. Fair, I, Ch. XXVIII, 293.
- orient. The toughest pearl-diver may dive to his utmost depth, and return not only with sea-wreck but with true orients. CARLYLE, Sart. Res., I, Ch. II, 5. (= precious pearls.)
- oriental. Divan = among the Turks, and other orientals, a court of justice. ANNANDALE, Conc. Dict.
- Europeans are essentially envious, while Orientals accept in principle the status quo, because they believe it to be the result of a fatal evolution. Rev. of Rev., CCXXII, 65a.
- original. i. * All that know me do me the honour to say I am an original. WYCH., Plain Dealer, II, 1.

¹⁾ FIJN VAN DRAAT, Drie Talen, XIV.

 I can read Dante in the original. SPENCER, Education, Ch. I, 27a.

ii. Kindly return the testimonials, as they are originals. Everybody's Letter Writer.

The reader familiar with Adonais will recognize the passage in that poem of which we here have the originals. WIL. MICH. ROSSETTI, Shelley's Adonais, 68.

particular. When he had asked Ned a few particulars, he looked up. SWEET, Old Chapel.

Peculiar. This menace is kept before the public by the Peculiar People. The *Peculiar*s, as they are called, have gained their name by believing that the Bible is infallible. BERN. SHAW, The Doctor's Dilemma, Pref., XVII (= one of the Peculiar People, a modern religious sect having no church organization and relying on prayer alone for cure of disease. Now obsolete in this sense. MURRAY, s.v. peculiar B, 1, b.)

A modern doctor thinks nothing of . . . going into the witness-box and swearing a Peculiar into prison for six months. Ib.

† pragmatic. See under flippant.

† persuasive. Had all the artifice of hell been employed in composing a persuasive, it could not have had a more instantaneous or favourable effect. SMOL., Rod. Rand., Ch. XXII, 154.

† pertinent. The whole farm with all its pertinents is let to six tenants. THE DUKE OF ARGYLL, Scotland as it was and as it is.¹⁾

† politic. The morality . . . was made use of not only by the good people who wanted to instruct, but also by the politics and fanatics who wanted to convince or confute. J. J. JUSSELAND, Lit. Hist. of the Eng. People, V, Ch. V, 9.

† political. The gaol was crowded with prisoners, many of whom were 'politicals'. Rev. of Rev., CXC VII, 495a.

preliminary. The exegetical and theological discussions, which are the preliminary of dining, have not been quite so spirited as usual. G. ELIOT, Scenes, I, Ch. VI, 48. She would go to see him without preliminary. Ib., Ch. VII, 58.

private. The party moved on again, the two amateurs marching with reversed arms like a couple of privates at a royal funeral. DICK., Pickw., Ch. XIX, 164.

proficient. A correspondence followed, which may be studied with advantage by those who wish to become proficients in the ignoble art of flattery. MAC., Fred., (663b).

progressive. This makes a solid bloc of Progressives 218 strong. Rev. of Rev., CXC VII, 456b.

reactionary. The Conservative Republicans hold the Centre and the Reactionaries the extreme Right. Ib., 455a. (See also under ecclesiastic.)

† regular. The chief part of the French regulars were gone upon expeditions northward. THACK., Virg., Ch. LI, 533.

† religious. Most religious spent a large part of their working day in the cloister itself.²⁾ requisite. The most important requisite for the practical phonetician is facility in handling phonetic notation. SWEET, Prim. of Phon., Introd., 6.

reverend. The Reverends F. V. Morris, I. G. Ward, etc. Macm. Mag.

revolutionary. In the past he has never hesitated to defend even the excesses of the Revolutionaries. Rev. of Rev., CXC VI 352b.

¹⁾ FIJN VAN DRAAT, Drie Talen, XIV.

²⁾ WENDT, Die Synt. des Adj., 44.

rigid. For convenience we may describe the two sections as the Rigids and the Elastics. Westm. Gaz., No. 6153, 5b.

† romantic. Here was exactly the kind of problem that called on a romantic for a solution. T. P.'s Weekly, No. 474, 714b.

Justin McCarthy lived and died a romantic. Id., No. 495, 546a.

† royal. The Kaiser and the Royals.¹⁾

† solitary. At least, if one had to dispose of a deserted child, the experiment of dropping it by the cottage of a solitary in the hope that he would bring it up to its advantage and to his own regeneration, would hardly be tried by a judicious philanthropist. LESLIE STEPHEN, George Eliot, Ch. VII, 106.

Downward from his mountain-gorge | Stept the long-hair'd long-bearded solitary. TEN., En. Ard., 632.

specific. This bad success, in all appearance, attached him the more to his specific. SMOL., Rod. Rand., Ch. XIX, 126.

stimulant. I supposed she required strong stimulants to excite her to come out of her apathy. Mrs. GASK., Cranf., Ch. XVI, 311.

† ultimate. Before the ultimate is arrived at, a great deal of international legislation will be necessary to keep these half-ton birds of the air (sc. aëroplanes) from endangering the lives of the citizens of the countries over which they fly. Rev. of Rev., CCXXVI, 314b.

† undesirable. Her crew were refused permission to land, on the score that they were destitute undesirables. The Eng. Newspaper Reader, 151.²⁾ unfortunate. i. She thanked you in the name of France, for all your benevolence towards our unfortunates. THACK., Van. Fair, I, Ch. XXXIV, 380.

The aforesaid Martin was one of those unfortunates who were at the time quite out of their places at a public school. HUGHES, Tom Brown, II, Ch. III, 237. His first idea was that some unfortunate had thus ended his life and his miseries. Mrs. CRAIK, The Sculptor of Bruges.

See also under incapable.

ii. Now we have again the same co-workers, a policeman and an unfortunate Sat. Rev.³⁾ (= prostitute, especially a homeless street-walker. Probably, in the first place, the popular usage arose from a misreading of Hood's lines: One more Unfortunate, | Weary of breath, | Rashly importunate, | Gone to her death.)

unseizable. Public curiosity will make a stand for the extradition of another unseizable. Id.³⁾

† unusual. We soon grew to understand and feel that there was an "unusual" amongst us. T. P.'s Weekly, No. 500, 709a.

vegetable. I have dinner at 2 o'clock, fish occasionally, joint or poultry always, two, and sometimes three, vegetables. G. R. SIMS (Rev. of Rev., CCXIX, 240b).

visitant. There are some nations that send few visitants to Palestine. JOHNSON, Ras., Ch. XI, 66.

voluntary. Sitting down to the piano, she rattled away a triumphant voluntary on the keys. THACK., Van. Fair, II, Ch. XIII, 140.

The organ begins a little voluntary. I. ZANGWILL, The Next Religion, I, 54. (= organ solo played before, during, or after service.)

voluptuary. This led many to regard him as a sensual and intellectual voluptuary. MAC., Fred., (664a).

¹⁾ WENDT, Die Synt. des Adj., 44. ²⁾ ELLINGER, Verm. Beitr., 22.

³⁾ FIJN VAN DRAAT, Drie Talen, XIV.

- † vulgar. i. What vulgars call a bore. STORM, Eng. Phil.¹⁾ ii. We talk of a credulous vulgar, without always recollecting that there is a vulgar incredulity. SCOTT, Fair Maid, Introd., 13.

4. Some denote a nationality. These include:

- a) names in an: American, Australian, Belgian, Italian, Prussian, Russian, etc.
 b) a few others: Arab, Asiatic, German, Greek, Norman, Roman, Saxon.

Cannot the Asiatics and Africans invade their coast? JOHNSON, Ras., Ch. XI, 66.

The Persians are called the French of the East; we will call the Arabs Oriental Italians. CARLYLE, Hero Worsh., 44.

The Arabs have a fable that the Great Pyramid was built by antediluvian kings, and alone, of all the works of men, bore the weight of the flood. MAC., Pöpes, (562a).

We must look cautiously at theories as to the Ocean and island routes by which Asiatics may have migrated to people the New World. EDWARD B. TYLOR, Anthropology, Ch. III, 105.

Note. Nationality-names in ese and the word Swiss, although having no inflection for the plural, also come under this heading. (Ch. XXV, 8, b.) Those ending in sh or ch (15), on the other hand, admit only of partial conversion. When these latter nouns are used to denote a language they must, however, be regarded as true nouns. (5.) They deserted together with three others: one Swiss, one Austrian, and one a Russian. Rev. of Rev., CCXXVI, 313a.

5. Some are names of languages.

These adjectives may be regarded as but partially converted into nouns when, as is sometimes the case, they are preceded by the definite article. In the last group of the following quotations they may also be considered to be used absolutely, with the noun language which occurs in a preceding or subsequent part of the discourse, understood. This view however, loses some plausibility from the fact that the definite article might have been suppressed, apparently, without detriment to idiomatic correctness.

- i. * English, like all living languages, changes from generation to generation. SWEET, Sounds, § 4.

 But supposing my own skill in the ancient Scottish were sufficient to invest the dialogue with its peculiarities, a translation must have been necessary for the benefit of the general reader. SCOTT, Fair Maid, Intr., 16. By this compromise the wretched curate was put more than ever into the power of his pupil, and the Greek and mathematics suffered correspondingly. THACK., Pend., I, Ch. VI, 68.

The elder (sc. of the young men) seems to know a power of Latin, though, and speaks the French and the German too. Id., Virg., Ch. LXI, 632.

Can he speak the High Dutch? Ib.

Even Frederic William, with all his rugged Saxon prejudices thought it necessary that his children should know French, and quite unnecessary that they should be well versed in German. The Latin was positively interdicted. MAC., Fred., (662a).

1) FIJN VAN DRAAT, Drie Talen, XIV.

From the Atlantic to the vicinity of the Rhine the Latin has, during many centuries, been predominant. Id., Hist., I, Ch. I, 4.

- ii. The rich and energetic language of Luther driven by the Latin from the schools of pedants, and by the French from the palaces of kings, had taken refuge among the people. Id., Fred., (675*b*).

The flexional languages are not all equally flexional, this character has its degrees. The Greek is not so rigidly flexional as the Latin. But both of them are far more so than any of the languages of modern Europe. Of the great languages, that which has most shaken off inflexion is the English, and next to the English, the French. EARLE, Phil., § 223.

Quotations, words, phrases, proverbs and colloquial expressions from the Greek, the Latin and modern foreign languages. WEBST., Appendix.

It may here be observed that in some combinations the definite article does not bear being suppressed. WENDT, E. S., XV, 471.

- i. What is the French of 'I do not understand'? Think of the French (sc. equivalent). Compare the French (sc. equivalent).
ii. The book has been translated from the German. (But: Translate this from German into English.)

6. Many denote a creed, sect or party.

Most of these end in al, an, ant, ic, ite, ive: Radical, Lutheran, Protestant, Catholic, Methodist, Jacobite, Conservative. (See also 3.)

The Moderates swept the Progressives from the field. Rev. of Rev., CCXX, 331*a*.

7. Some are comparatives, which in their altered application are mostly preceded by a possessive pronoun or a genitive. Those belonging to the native element are usually found in the plural: better, elder, younger; junior, senior, inferior, superior, major, minor.

To these we may add the adjectives coeval, equal and like, as also indicating the result of a comparison.

Note that elder(s) sometimes means practically the same as parent(s). As MURRAY marks this sense as obsolete, it seems advisable to produce all the available evidence to disprove MURRAY's opinion.

better. i. Thou wretched, rash, intruding fool, farewell! | I took thee for thy better. Hamlet, III, 4, 32.

It never entered his head, while conversing with Jack and Tom, that he was in any respect their better. THACK., Pend., I, Ch. XXX, 317.

The American was his match in most things, and his better in many. Id., Virg., Ch. XVI, 159.

- ii. The family endeavour to cope with their betters. GOLDSMITH, Vic., Ch. X.
It isn't for a poor chaplain to meddle with his betters' doings. THACK., Virg., Ch. XXXI, 321.

elder. i. * Holding his own opinion, and asserting his rights as a wise elder. CH. KINGSLEY, Westw. Ho!, Ch. X, 87*b*.

"A cursory visit," said the Doctor, "a formal inspection — you cannot fairly judge boys by that. They will naturally be reserved and contrained in the presence of an elder. F. ANSTEE, Vice Versa, Ch. XIX, 370.

Sara Bernhardt is another youthful elder who sets time at defiance. Rev. of Rev., CXCVI, 360*a*.

 Clive felt a tender admiration for his father's goodness, a loving delight in contemplating his elder's character. THACK., Newc., I, Ch. XIV, 164.

Half the girl's heart went out to this rugged elder whose honour was so touchy. HAL. SUTCL., Pam the Fiddler, Ch. VII, 99.

- ii. * Our elders say | The barren touched in this holy chase, | Shake off their sterile curse. JUL. CAES., I, 2, 7.

When we left the Jews' quarter, the elders of our party wished to return to the hotel. G. ELIOT, The Lifted Veil, 309.

Our concern is for the group of youths from sixteen to twenty-one, who are going the same way as their incorrigible elders. Times.

 While Becky Sharp was on her own wing in the country, Amelia lay snug in her home of Russell Square; if she went into the world, it was under the guidance of her elders. THACK., Van. Fair, I, Ch. XII, 118.

Theo's elders, thankfully remembering their own prime, sit softly by and witness this pretty comedy performed by their young people. Id., Virg., Ch. LXVIII, 717. He ruled with me . . . that the matter had gone out of the hands of the parents on either side; that having given their consent some months previously, the elders had put themselves out of court. Ib., Ch. LXXVII, 819. (Here elders occurs, apparently, to obviate the repeating of parents.)

A stray 'Waverley' came in her way; and when that was returned to its owner before she had finished it, she began writing out the story for herself, till her elders got it back for her. LESLIE STEPHEN, G. Elliot, Ch. I, 11.

She accepted everything with the quiet confidence of a child who is vaguely conscious that there is trouble in the house, but is quite certain that its elders will soon make it all right. EDNA LYALL, Knight Err., Ch. VII, 53.

 The elders of the synagogue, the elders in the Apostolic Church. WEBST., Dict.

The Kirk Session is composed of the Minister of the parish and of lay-elders. McCULLOCK.¹⁾

- junior. i. Percy Bysshe Shelley, the elder of the two (sc. Shelley and Keats) was Byron's junior by four years. SAINTSBURY, Ninet. Cent., Ch. II, 81.

- ii. Persons of Age and Authority spoke kindly to their juniors. BENTLEY.¹⁾ senior. i. The Colonel told his senior briefly, and in broken accents, the circumstances of the case. THACK., Van. Fair, II, Ch. XIX, 203.

He was the girl's senior by several years. BUCHANAN, That Winter Night, Ch. IV, 40.

- ii. Mr. Long waylaid three or four of the seniors as they were filing into the school-hall after chapel. MRS. WOOD, Orv. Col., Ch. VII, 96.

younger. He was his younger by many years. CH. KINGSLEY, Westw. Ho!, Ch. V, 40b.

Note. This seems to be the only application of younger as a (quasi-)noun. Note the use of younger ones as compared with the preceding elders in:

Children of all ages, the elders doing their share in portage, the younger ones held by the hand. Times, No. 1808, 685a.

coeval. He is forlorn among his coevals; his juniors cannot be his friends. LAMB., Essays of Elia.²⁾ equal. i. I never saw your equal. THACK., Van. Fair, I, Ch. XVI, 165.

- ii. Friendship is a disinterested commerce between equals. GOLDS., Good-nat. man, I.

like. i. Every like is not the same. Proverb (HUNT, Note to Jul. Cæs., II, 2, 129.)

1) MURRAY.

2) MURRAY, s. v. coeval, B, 1.

ii. * Therefore 't is meet | That noble minds keep ever with their likes. JUL. CÆS., I, 2, 308.

Pass, and mingle with your likes. TEN., PRINC., VI, 321.

 Are there no harems still left in Stamboul for the likes of thee to sweep and clean? DU MAURIER, Trilby, 210.

The likes of her doesn't condescend to look at the likes of me. MRS. BELLOC LOWNDES, Jane Oglander, Ch. III, 41.

She's not for the likes of me. WILL H. OGILVIE, (Westm. Gaz., No. 5409, 3a).

And that is all very well for him and for "the likes of him". HOR. HUTCHINSON (Westm. Gaz., No. 6053, 2c).

Note I. From the fact that in the last quotation this latter application of like is apologized for by means of inverted commas, it would seem that it is now hardly admissible in Standard English.

II. In the following quotations like appears only partially converted:

i. George hated Jack Firebrace and Tom Humbold, and all their like. THACK., Virg., Ch. V, 46.

These people and their like gave the pompous Russell Square merchant pompous dinners back again. Id., Van. Fair, II, Ch. VII, 77.

You and your like have your fixed ideas of the upper class and the lower. MRS. WARD, Rob. Elsm., III, 205.

To her and her like, birth itself was an ordeal of degrading personal compulsion. HARDY, Tess., VI, Ch. LI, 464.

ii. My aunt did ... the like. DICK., Cop., Ch. LII, 371a.

And lastly ... he said blasphemously that I and mine had cheated your ladyship ... out of many a fat manor ere now ... with more of the like, which I blush to repeat. CH. KINGSLEY, Herew., Ch. I, 9b.

Such dresses, such diamonds — you never saw the like. HALL CAINE, The Christian, I, 331.

8. Some denote the most characteristic quality of a substance: bitter, fat, lean, liquid, salt, sweet, etc.

Some bitter o'er the flowers its bubbling venom flings. BYRON, Child Harold, I, LXXXII.

9. Some are names of periodicals, e.g.: daily, weekly, fortnightly, bimonthly, quarterly. Thus also (a penny) dreadful, etc.

Destined to perish in shilling dreadfuls. F. HARRISON, Choice Books, 67.¹⁾

10. Some are names of colours, and have in their altered function a great variety of meanings. To give an instance: blue = 1) blue colour, 2) pigment of a blue colour, 3) blue clothing or dress, 4) blue species or variety of (animals, objects or substances), 5) blue sky, 6) blue sea, 7) Blue-coat boy, scholar of Christ's College, 8) blue-stocking, 9) female learning or pedantry, 10) second ring from the centre of the largest coloured blue, 11) a man wearing blue as a badge. As a plurale tantum we find blues in the sense of 12) company of troops, distinguished by wearing blue, 13) blue-devils. MURRAY.

The other names of colours are found in an equal variety of meanings.

i. Anight my shallop ... drove | The fragrant, glistening deeps, and clove | The citron-shadows in the blue. TEN., Recol. of the Arabian Nights, II.

¹⁾ MURRAY, s. v. dreadful, C.

I'm on the sea! I'm on the sea! | I am where I would ever be; | With the blue above, and the blue below, | And silence wheresoe'er I go. BARRY CORNWALL, The Sea (Rainbow, I, 19).

As Harry speaks very low, in the grey of evening, with sometimes a break in his voice, we all sit touched and silent. THACK., Virg., Ch. XCII, 990 (Compare: When I wake at night..., in the greyness of the evening, ... some vague image seems to hover on the skirt of vision. BLACKMORE, Lorna Doone, Ch. XX, 114.)

- ii. The three shadows throw their crimsons, and clarets, and bronzes upon the fringe of the deep blue sheet of water. CONAN DOYLE, Ref., 289.

There have been no risings of blacks against whites in the Transvaal. FROUDE, Oceana, Ch. III, 47.

You sit out there (sc. in Paris) on the boulevard after dinner, and all the world goes gaily by — English, Americans, Russians, Germans, Spaniards, Italians and Turks — Whites, Yellows, Blacks, Browns — all colours, shapes and sizes. JOHN OXENHAM, Great-heart Gillian, Ch. VII, 53.

Note I. Peculiar to English is the substantival use of the names of colours when modified by an adjective or an adnominal noun of a classifying import, the whole being preceded by the indefinite article. When a preposition precedes, such a noun as colour or shade is readily supplied, and the adjective may then be considered to be only partially converted. But this is less plausible when there is no preceding preposition. In this latter case the Dutch practice, which rejects the article and, which accordingly, has an adjective that is preceded by an adverbial modifier, is also met with in English.

- i. His nether garments were of a bluish grey. DICK., Chuz., Ch. IV, 23*b*.
Its colour had changed from a gaudy blue to a faint lack-lustre shade of grey. Ib., Ch. II, 13*b*.

- ii. The head-waiter got to be a bright-scarlet. Ib., Ch. LIII, 415*b*.

Meg had turned a deadly white. Id., *Chimes*³, I, 34.

Its nose is a delicate red with black spots. JEROME, Three men, Ch. VI, 67. You know my hair is a sort of golden brown, and a dark red matches it beautifully. Ib., 75.

Their eyes were blue or grey, their hair a light brown. W. ARCHER (Westm. Gaz., No. 4967, 13*b*).

In his last days the hair had become a silver white. T. P.'s Weekly, No. 483, 162*c*.

- iii. The eye was dark blue with an expression both majestic and benignant. MOTLEY, Rise, I, Ch. I, 54*a*.

II. In such a sentence as the following the converted adjective is used in a collective sense, denoting clothes, while the preceding word is an ordinary adnominal modifier:

Lady Winterbourne was dressed from heart to foot in severe black. MRS. WARD, Marcella, I, 163.

11. Many do not answer to a general description. In their changed grammatical function some of these have developed a great variety of senses, for which see the dictionary.

- a) such as belong to the native element, among many others: black (Ch. XXV, 19, g), cold, cool, dark, deep, dry (by analogy to wet, as yet only in occasional use), eastern, flat, good (1*c*), holy (in the Holy of Holies), left, odd (Ch. XXV, 19, g), open, right, rough cold. The cold became intense. DICK., Christm. Car.⁵, I, 16.

(Ch. XXV, 19, g), round (Ch. XXV, 34), runaway, shallow, sweet (Ch. XXV, 19, g), thoroughbred, three-year-old (as the name of a horse, compare: the three-year-old = the three-year-old children), upright, wanton, well, western, wet, white (Ch. XXV, 19, g), wild (Ch. XXV, 19, g), worthy.

He was left out in the cold. FOWLER, Conc. Oxf. Dict. (= not looked after.)
He has caught (a) cold.

cool. The cool of the day, the cool of the evening or the morning. WEBST., Dict. In the cool of the evening Dr. Riccabocca walked home across the fields. LYTTON, My Novel, I, Ch. IX, 31.

Go out into the cool. EDNA LYALL, A Hardy Norseman, Ch. XXII, 201.

dark. (He turned out) after dark. DICK., Christm. Car., I, 2 (= after nightfall). I reached home after dark, drenched to the skin. NORRIS, My Friend Jim, Ch. V, 37.

Can you walk in the streets at dark? LYTTON, Rienzi, I, Ch. VIII, 53 (= at night). Father, I am lonely in the dark. DICK., Crick., II, 47 (Compare: Even in the darkness they have no fear of lying down. BLACKMORE, Lorna Doone, Ch. XX, 117.)

deep. i. If a storm should come and awake the deep, | What matter? I shall ride and sleep. BARRY CORNWALL, The Sea, II (Rainbow, I, 19).

ii. A night my shallop, rustling thro' | The low and bloomed foliage, drove | The fragrant glistening deeps. TEN., Recol. of the Arab. Nights, II.
Love and hate and greed go down into the deep of Nature, but boundaries are our own invention. Truth, No. 1802, 83a.

dry. Such remarks are generally made in the dry. Westm. Gaz., No. 6011, 3a.

eastern. To how many maimed and mourning millions is the first and sole angel visitant, him easterns call Azrael. CH. BRONTË, Villetta, Ch. XVII, 224.

When Easterns of some education say to me: "We can't respect our women; they are not like you English," I give the obvious retort "Because we are brought up differently." Westm. Gaz., No. 5555, 4a.

flat. i. * Striking the flat of his hand against that which the armourer expanded towards him. SCOTT, Fair Maid, Ch. III, 37.

 He was blowed if he didn't think Pen was such a flat as not to know what coaching meant THACK., Pend., I, Ch. III, 41.

ii. The military cleared the piazza with the flats of their swords. Manch. Exam.¹) left. He made a movement as if he would perform the feat of writing with his left. G. ELIOT, Adam Bede, I, Ch. I, 3.

The long-nosed lad, who sat on the other side of the table on Mr. Swindles' left, was everybody's laughing-stock. G. MOORE, Esth. Waters, Ch. II, 15.

open. Together let us beat this ample field, | Try what the open, what the covert yield. POPE, Essay on Man, I, 10.

I should like to draw attention to the historical incident which brought this question out into the open. Westm. Gaz.

right. He sat on the right of Mrs. Brough. THACK., Sam. Titm., Ch. VII, 74.

rough. Wholesale wreckage by an East-end rough. Police News.

round. i. His social obligations compel him to make a round of visits. ESCOTT, England, Ch. I, 9.

He made him turn, and stop, and bound; | To gallop, and to trot the round. MICH. DRAYTON, A Fairy Prince arming himself for Battle (Rainb., I, 24).

ii. The guns and 70,000 rounds of ammunition were seized. Daily Chronicle.

¹) MURRAY.

runaway. They (sc. the policemen) must also be expert wielders of the lasso, which is often used to stop the runaway. 11. Lond. News, No. 3679, 581. The runaway is never brought to a sudden stop with the lariat. Ib.

thoroughbred. Don't take thoroughbreds for cart-horses. MAR. CRAWF., Kath. Laud., II, Ch. VII, 134.

three-year-old. The race was only open to three-year-olds. (Thus also occasionally similar combinations with other numerals: Tell me something else about the emotions of the fifty-year-olds. EL. GLYN, Refl. of Ambrosine, III, Ch. II, 291. Compare also: They make the prettiest, quaintest groups you need wish to see, these London bairns, especially the babies, who toddle in twos and threes, the six-year-old leading the four-or three-year old. Westm. Gaz., No. 5185, 14a.)

upright. gallows = an apparatus for inflicting the punishment of death by hanging, usually consisting of two uprights and a cross-piece. MURRAY, s. v. gallows.

wanton. i. Philip of Spain wondered how "a wanton" could hold in check the policy of the Escorial. GREEN, Short. Hist., Ch. VII, § 3, 371.

What was she after all but a mere capricious wanton. T. P.'s Weekly, No. 468, 522b.

ii. My husband squandered my fortune among wantons. WALT. BESANT, Beyond the Dreams of Avarice.¹⁾ well. We wish well to the Empire and people over whom the venerable Emperor Francis Joseph rules. Westm. Gaz.

western. Japan and China are reorganising themselves without direct European influence, and their commerce benefits more than ever from Westerns. Rev. of Rev., CCXXII, 65b.

wet. The leaves were thick upon the trees, and heavy with wet. DICK., Cop., Ch. L, 356a.

In the wet these boys dwindled, one by one, and shifted into the large empty barn. Westm. Gaz., No. 6011, 3a.

worthy. Such were the two worthies to whom Mr. Pickwick was introduced. DICK., Pickw., Ch. XXX, 267.

"Oh, Barker" — as that worthy presented himself — "has Miss Norah returned yet?" AGN. AND EG. CASTLE, Diam. cut Paste, I, Ch. V, 67.

b) such as belong to the foreign element, among many others:

common (Ch. XXV, 19, g), expert, extreme, future, gentle, infidel, modern (Ch. XXV, 19, g), mute, noble, past, opposite, present, quiet, reverse, sage, saint, savage, simple, sovereign, strait (Ch. XXV, 19, g).

extreme. It was Milner who drove Chamberlain to extremes much more than the other way about. Rev. of Rev.

It is difficult to believe that Mr. Asquith and his colleagues can feel that the result of the elections will justify them in pushing matters to extremes. Westm. Gaz., No. 5219, 16c.

future. I would soon carve out a new future for us both. C. JAMES.²⁾

My sacrifice to Jasper's future might not have been in vain. LYTON, What will he do with it?, II, Ch. VIII.²⁾ gentle. Gentles, perchance you wonder at this show. Mids. Night's Dream, V, I, 126.

¹⁾ FIJN VAN DRAAT, Drie Talen, XIV.

²⁾ MURRAY.

All Cheltenham was drawn out into the High-street, the gentles on one side and the commons on the other. Mad. D'ARBLAY, Diary, 1788, 16 Aug.¹⁾

The simples are not bound to pick up what the gentles throw away. Mrs. Raven's Tempt., III, 8.¹⁾

There is a gentle's voice under a dark cloak. DISRAELI, Viv. Grey, V, Ch. III.¹⁾
 "What! gentles," said he, "have ye finished already? LYTTON, Rienzi, I, Ch. V, 36.

Note. Now only archaically, or as a comic vulgarism for gentlefolks.

mute. We tied on our cloaks as sadly as mutes at a funeral. Mrs. GASK, Cranf., Ch. X, 197.

noble. When the news reached Norman William, he called his nobles to council. DICKENS.

past. The Lords of Life and Death would never allow Charlie Mears to speak with full knowledge of his pasts. RUDYARD KIPLING.¹⁾ sage. The sages who instructed them told them of nothing but the miseries of public life. JOHNSON, Ras., Ch. II, 10.

savage. The savages of the island put our whole party to death. Mrs. INCHBALD, Nature and Art, Ch. X, 31.

simple. I bought an unction of a mountebank, | So mortal that but dip a knife in it, | Where it draws blood, no cataplasm so rare, | Collected from all simples that have virtue | Under the moon, can save the thing from death | That is but scratch'd withal. Hamlet, IV, 7, 145.

The hermit, skill'd in all | The simples and the science of that time, | Told him that her fine care had saved his life. TEN., Lanc. and El., 857.

Note. The use of simple to denote a person is usual only when it is contrasted with noble or gentle. See above under gentle, and compare 25.

They had sworn to spare neither noble nor simple. MOTLEY, Rise, IV, Ch. II, 572a.

12. Finally mention should be made of a conversion that is felt as unusual and more or less at variance with the genius of the language.

a) Many adjectives are frequently found converted into nouns from a desire of convenience, brevity or jocular effect, to denote either persons, or things. Several instances have already been given in 2, and also in Ch. XXV, 19, g. Of especial frequency is conversion of certain opprobrious adjectives, particularly in (reported) emotional sentences, such as *I never saw such a stupid! What a stupid you are. He called us stupid*s, etc. Compare also 18, d, and see *STORM, Eng. Phil.*²⁾, 769. Sometimes inverted commas are used by way of apologizing for the colloquial neologisms.

bald. Since then there have been fewer balds. Advertisement.

brave. Braves of the tribe were these, and brothers gigantic in stature. LONGFELLOW, Courtship of Miles Standish. VII, 30.

There is no concealing the horrors which have accompanied the recent operations against Bambaata and his Zulu braves. Daily News.

1) MURRAY.

Note. This use of brave has been applied since 1800 chiefly to warriors among the North American Indians (after the French in N. America). MURRAY, disorderly. The drunk and disorderlies had been disposed of in the morning. CAMDEN PRATT, Unknown London.¹⁾ droll. Such a thoroughly light-hearted droll. LOCKHART, Scott.¹⁾ friendly. Near Fort Inugu some "friendlies", while gathering corn, have been killed by the rebels. Times.¹⁾ gay. Courtesy is a gallant gay. SCOTT, Rob Roy.¹⁾

gawky. What a gawky it was. THACK., Van. Fair, I, Ch. V, 48.

good. Very good people indeed, you will notice, dress altogether in black, even to gloves and neckties, and they will probably take to black shirts before long. Medium goods indulge in light trousers on week-days, and some of them even go so far as to wear fancy waistcoats. JEROME, Idle Thoughts, XIII, 221.

grown-up. As a child — I never knew what it was to be lonely. But clumsy grown-ups come along and tramp right through the dream-garden. ANNIE BESANT, Autobiog., 41.

Children as well as grown-ups have their foolish moods. JEROME, Paul Kever, I, Ch. I, 15a.

Gift-books for grown-ups. Westm. Gaz.

have-not. Personal service in aid of the have-nots of the world. Rev. of Rev., CCXXVIII, 517a.

nondescript. The nondescript replied in encouraging terms. DICK., Little Dorrit, Ch. IX, 47a.

out-of-work. This winter the out-of-works were seventy-five thousand in Chicago. Rev. of Rev., CCXIX, 295a.

A recruiting sergeant was stopped by . . . no fewer than fourteen out-of-works. Tit-Bits, No. 1291, 388c.

powerful. We find that it consisted of three tribes, termed in the tract 'Of the History of the Men of Alban' the three powerfuls in Dalriade. SKENE, Celtic Scotland.¹⁾

red. He was a Radical, a Red. MRS. WARD, David Grieve, II, 92.

The crowds of foreigners would, some people said, naturally include large numbers of the 'Reds' of all continental nations. MC. CARTHY, Short. Hist., Ch. IX, 108. (Compare: It was more of the red men and the blacks that we were afraid. THACK., Virg., Ch. XC, 955.)

silly. O, don't bother, Maggie! you're such a silly. G. ELIOT, Mill, I, Ch. V, 27. You're just an old silly. AGN. & EG. CASTLE, Diam. cut Paste, I, Ch. III, 39. (Compare: Who'd 'a thought you was so wilful? — you that any one might have taken for one of the silly-softs. G. MEREDITH, Ord. of Rich. Fev., Ch. XXX, 250) stalwart. He was a stalwart of the stalwarts in the war against war. Rev. of Rev., CXCIX, 12b.

An interval of less than a week covers the loss of two stalwarts of the older Liberalism. Westm. Gaz., No. 5555, 2a.

The Lords Lieutenant have come in for their share of blame, no doubt, in the opinion of the mover of the resolution and the 39 stalwarts supporting him on this "burning question". Times, No. 1826, 1053b.

suspect. He soon had under lock and key a vast number of 'suspects'. MC CARTHY, A Hist. of Our Own Times, V.¹⁾ stupid. Men can't bear clever women, and a woman's ideal man is some one she can call a 'dear old stupid'. JEROME, Idle Thoughts, VIII, 128.

¹⁾ FIJN VAN DRAAT, Drie Talen, XIV.

 Won't mis'ess storm and call us *stupid*s? HARDY, Far from the Madding Crowd, Ch. XXXII, 245.

- ii. cast-off. The poor curate's wife with the legion family clothed from the odds and ends of her rich sister's cast-offs. C. JAMES, Rom. Rigmarole, 148.¹⁾ empty. Deductions for empties returned must not be made from remittances. Price List.

These (sc. nuts) were no empty shells; or if there were but the empty shells to find occasionally, these empties were but in the proportion of something like one in seven or eight to those in which you would find the fat nut. HOR. HUTCHINSON (Westm. Gaz., No. 6159, 7a).

encyclical. His Encyclical thus raises far more searching questions. Rev. of Rev., CCI, 237a.

homeward-bound. A homeward-bound went down with her crew. ELIZA COOK, 'T is a wild Night, XII (Rainbow, I, 38).

left-over. What not to do with left-overs. HENRY STEAD, Good House-keeping.

pretty-pretty. Thus the famous closing apparatus on the bridge, paraded as a device of greater safety, with its attachments of warning bells, coloured lights, and all these pretty-pretties, was, in the case of this ship, little better than a technical farce. Eng. Rev., 1912, July, 582.

There are no carpets, curtains, cushions or pretty-pretties of any kind. Punch, No. 3723, 392a.

raw. The literary dispute of which I had seen the beginning, was a "raw", the slightest touch of which made them wince. MRS. GASK., Cranf., Ch. II, 33.

tailor-made. Types in tailor-mades. Westm. Gaz., No. 6129, 15a.

ugly. Well, it gave me pleasure, with all the uglies looming in the future, just to try it (sc. my ball dress) on. EL. GLYN, Reflect. of Ambrosine, I, Ch. III, 35.

wireless. The wonders of his wireless are now familiar to all. II. Lond. News, No. 3481a, Sup., VII.

The following quotation contains several instances of these convenient formations:

He had been told of the special organisation that works exclusively for Self-ridge's;...how "regulars", "longs", "shorts", and "stouts" are again subdivided into all sorts of special fittings. Westm. Gaz., No. 6129, 1c.

- b) Sometimes this occasional conversion is conditioned or favoured by the adjective appearing in connection with its opposite.

generals. The boy seemed to have begun with the generals of life, and never to have concerned himself with the particulars. HARDY, Jude the Obscure.²⁾ (The conversion of particular is not confined to this combination. See 3.)

right(s) ... wrong(s). Don't try to go confounding the rights and wrongs of things in that way. DICK., Our Mutual Friend, I, Ch. I, 7.

I never heard the rights and wrongs of the case. FLOR. MARYAT, Open Sesame, 184.

Two wrongs don't make one right. Proverb.

¹⁾ MURRAY, S. v. legion.

²⁾ FIJN VAN DRAAT, Drie Talen, XIV.

The rights and wrongs of the matter are not affected by these incidents Westm. Gaz., No. 6159, 2a.

The wrongs so far outweigh the rights. Eng. Rev., 1912, Sept. 287 (For rights see also Ch. XXV, 20.)

short(s)...long(s). Two shorts (sc. short syllables) are equivalent to one long. TOM HOOD, Eng. Versific.

sweets...sours. Matrimony is a delicious mixture of sweets and sours.¹⁾ (Sweets is also common enough when standing by itself. Ch. XXV, 19.)

- c) In SHAKESPEARE and in the older Modern English writers we also find converted adjectives that have the value of Present-English abstract nouns (in ness). ABBOT, Shak. Gram.³, § 20; FRANZ, Shak. Gram., § 77.

A sudden pale usurps her check. Venus and Adonis, 589.

Say what you can, my false o'erweighs your true. Meas. for Meas., II, 4, 170.

Let no face be kept in mind | But the fair of Rosalind. As you like it, III, 2, 84.

Demetrius loves your fair. Mids., I, 1, 182.

Go off; I discard you: let me enjoy my private: go off. Twelfth Night, III, 4, 100.

SHYL. This is kind I offer. — BASS. This were kindness. — SHYL. This kindness will I show. Merch. of Ven., I, 3, 143.

They (sc. the orators) hurried away with such a torrent of sublime and pathetic that they left their hearers no leisure to perceive the artifice by which they were deceived. HUME, Es., of Eloquence, XIII, 104.

We find this practice archaically in:

Tho' | I love him heartily, I can spy already | A strain of hard and headstrong in him. TEN., Beck., Prol., (696a).

Thy mortal eyes are frail to judge of fair. Id., Cænone, XIII.

How many among us at this very hour | Do forge a life-long trouble for ourselves | By taking true for false, or false for true. Id., Ger. & En., 4.

Children learn by such | Love's holy earnest in a pretty play | And get not over-early solemnised, | But seeing, as in a rose-bush Love's divine |... Become aware and unafraid of Love. Mrs. BROWN., Aur. Leigh, I, 57.

Thus, perhaps, also after certain interrogative or indefinite pronouns (or numerals) + partitive of. (26, b.)

Some words, primarily adjectives, in which, however, the adjectival character has now become more or less obliterated, exhibit a survival of the old practice. Such are:

evil, in many applications for which see MURRAY, s.v. evil, B.

- i. Sufficient for the day is the evil thereof. Bible, Matth. VI, 34.

The greatest of all mysteries — the origin of evil. TAIT and STEWART, Unseen Univ., VII, 269.²⁾

The world is a mass of injustice, and a little more or less evil makes no difference. EDNA LYALL, Don., I, 263.

- ii. He does no evil. LYTTON, Zanoni, 29.²⁾ good, in almost all the abstract senses illustrated in 1c.

ill in many applications, for which see MURRAY, s.v. ill, B.

- i. Oh yet we trust that somehow good | Will be the final goal of ill. TEN., In Mem., LIV.

¹⁾ TEN BRUG., Taalst., VI.

²⁾ MURRAY.

ii. Strange natures made a brotherhood of ill. SHELLEY, Rev. of Isl., X, vi (= depravity, wickedness).

iii. I can think no ill of him. MURRAY.

To speak ill. FOWLER, Concise Oxf. Dict.

iv. Sick art thou — a divided will | Still heaping on the fear of ill | The fear of men, a coward still. TEN., Two Voices, 107.

short, in the collocation for short, in which for = for the sake of.

Gustavus Adolphus (they call him "Gusty" downstairs for short) is a very good sort of dog. JEROME, Idle Thoughts, VIII, 119.

His baptismal name was Chantilly, but I called him Tilly for short. PAYN, Glow-Worm Tales, I, K, 183.

Compare: What is for shortness called science. SAINTSB., Ninet. Cent., Ch. VII, 327.

Note. With for short compare for good as instanced above 1, c (β, iv and v) and for any one's good (α, ix), in which also for has the meaning of for the sake of or on account of. Frequent instances of similar combinations occur in Middle English. For an exhaustive discussion of the idiom see especially STOF., Int. & Down-ton., 18—25.

PARTIAL CONVERSION.

13. Adjectives are found partially converted into nouns in varied degrees and in different applications, sometimes confined to certain combinations.

Note. Leaving the grammatical function in the sentence out of account, as the least important, the changed nature mostly extends no further than the capability of taking the definite article. Sometimes we also find other modifiers, i. e. a genitive or its equivalent, a possessive or demonstrative pronoun, an adverbial or adnominal adjunct, and even a numeral or the indefinite article, and occasionally inflection for the genitive is possible. But even when preceded by a numeral or the indefinite article, or placed in the genitive, we cannot pronounce these adjectives to have become pure nouns, since they reject inflection for the plural. (1, b.)

In the following §§ the different ways in which an adjective may be partially converted into a noun are passed under review.

14. a) Most adjectives and participles denoting a quality or a state may be used to denote a class of persons in a generalizing way. (Ch. XXXI, 5, b.)

i. He maketh His sun to rise on the evil and on the good, and sendeth rain on the just and on the unjust. Bible, Matth., V, 45.

From ignorance our comfort flows, | The only wretched are the wise. PRIOR, To the Hon. Charles Montague.

He frequented the voluptuous and the frugal, the idle and the busy, the merchants and the men of learning. JOHNSON, Ras., Ch. XVI, 98.

I grow weary to behold | The selfish and the strong still tyrannize | Without reproach or check. SHELLEY, Laon and Cythna, Prelude.

It is seldom that the young know what youth is, till they have got beyond its period. Mrs. SHELLEY, Pref. to First Col. Ed. 1839.

Where the good and the bad and the worst and the best | Have gone to their eternal rest. POE, The City in the Sea.

He, by some law that holds in love, and draws | The greater to the lesser long desired | A certain miracle of symmetry. TEN., Gard. Daught., 10.

Everybody pilgrimized who could, even the poorest and the lowest. WALT. BES., London, I, 69.

The poorest could go as well as the richest, because the pilgrim wanted no money. lb.

The blind are objects of compassion, not of sorrow. ANNIE BESANT, Autobiography, 342.

It has always been my wish to look with an impartial eye alike upon the just and upon the unjust. NORRIS, My Friend Jim, Ch. IV, 26.

Note I. Generalization is not incompatible with some limitation as to time, place or other circumstances, and the converted adjective may, accordingly, be accompanied by some specializing adjunct, i. e. a genitive or its equivalent, a possessive pronoun, a classifying adjective or adnominal noun, an adnominal word-group or an adverbial adjunct. Frequently the specializing element is not expressed. (Ch. XXXI, 5, b.)

i. * I mark thee in the Marble All, | Where England's loveliest shine. THACK., Diary of Jeames de la Pluche, (329).

But signs are not wanting that the passion for justice and for liberty, which thrill through the veins of the world's greatest in the past, has not yet died wholly out of the hearts of men. ANNIE BESANT, Autobiography, 331.

 The lowest vulgar of Athens were his (sc. the orator's) sovereigns and the arbiters of his eloquence. HUME, Es. XIII, Of Eloquence, 105.

The unsoaped of Ipswich brought up the rear. DICK., Pickw., Ch. XXIV, 219. Whitehall was filled with the most corrupt of mankind. MAC., Hist., I, Ch. III, 318.

Lo, the leader in these glorious wars | Now to glorious burial slowly borne, | Follow'd by the brave of other lands [etc.]. TEN., Ode on the Death of Duke of Wel., VIII, 194.

That only shows how mistaken the wisest of us may be every now and then. NORRIS, My Friend Jim, Ch. V, 36.

 Our gentlefolks tremble at the brink (sc. of matrimony) . . . and wait for whole years, until they find a bridge or a gilt barge to carry them across; our poor do not fear to wet their bare feet, plant them in the brook, and trust to fate and strength to bear them over. THACK., Virg., Ch. LXXXI, 853.

The wiseacres who look after the education of our young have been mortified to observe that the last thing in the world the children have been learning is English. Westm. Gaz., No. 5412, 8d.

* This at least is certain, in respect of the lot of the decent poor, that a great deal of superfluous pity is often thrown away upon it. THACK., Virg., Ch. LXXXI, 853.

Is it right or fair to suggest that war is due to the action of the idle rich? Athen., No. 4405, 361.

This (sc. fiscal policy) is scouted as fantastic by the Tariff Reform faithful. Westm. Gaz., No. 6117, 1c.

 Bob's mind was absorbed in possible expedients for the safety of the helpless in-doors. G. ELIOT, Mill, VII, Ch. V, 480.

Persecution makes the stronger among us bitter; the weaker among us hypocrites. ANNIE BESANT, Autobiog., 173.

There is also shewn in the plays the most perfect knowledge of . . . the manners and the methods of the greatest in the land. Sir EDWIN DURNING-LAWRENCE, Bacon is Shakespeare, To the Reader.

 The truly modest and stout say least and are least exceptions. WYCH., Plain Deal., II, 1.

*The mentally deficient, the constitutionally idle, the sick at heart, the pure in spirit, the deaf to music.*¹⁾

There are human tempers, bland, glowing and genial, within whose influence it is as good for the poor in spirit to live, as it is for the feeble in frame to bask in the glow of noon. CH. BRONTE, Villetta, Ch. XIX, 245.

The art of biography has its peculiar difficulties, no doubt, in dealing with the recently dead. Athen., No. 4405, 357a.

In France the decrease in number of the classically trained has elevated the standard of attainment. Ib., No. 4463, 514b.

ii. Only five hundred of the vanquished were slain. MAC., Clive.

The besieged were not without hopes of succour. Id., Fred., (688a).

Till down she came | And found fair peace among the sick. TEN., Princ., VII, 29.

We justified our conquest to ourselves by taking away the character of the conquered. FROUDE, Oceana, Ch. III.

The inspector of police had been firing six shots into a crowd, who were stoning the military. Graph.

II. The converted adjective may also be preceded by an adjective of continuative function.

The lordly manner in which one of your correspondents suggests that cooks and tweekies should be included in the list of the Great Tipped makes one almost think that he must be at least the father, or at best the follower, of cook or scullery-wench. Westm. Gaz.

He may look very well on the outside, but I detect at once in his speech the flavour of the great unwashed, the mob, the commonalty. GRANT ALLEN, That Friend of Sylvia's.

III. Partially converted adjectives are sometimes used adnominally like ordinary nouns. Ch. XXIII. See also WENDT, Die Synt. des Adj., 21; id., Synt. des heut. Eng., 109.

A sick(-)room, a deaf-and-dumb asylum, the retired list (= the list of those retired from active service), mad-doctors, madhouse.

IV. Sometimes an abstract noun takes the place of the adjective.

The rank, talent, and beauty of Great Britain joined in the solemn requiem with which the funeral service closed. Introd. to Ten.'s Ode on the Death of the Duke of Wel. (Macm., Eng. Clas.).

Also word-groups whose primary function is not that of adjectives are sometimes used as converted adjectives.

But the most miserable and, therefore, the most urgently in need of assistance are those convicted of the unpardoned crimes. Periodica!.¹⁾

Nothing short of the wilds of Niagara this picture would conjure up in the minds of the matter of fact. Westm. Gaz., No. 6029, 9c.

b) When no class in a generalizing sense is meant, and also when one person is spoken of either in a generalizing or in an indefinite way, these adjectives now usually stand with a noun or the indefinite one by way of prop-word.

i. Each family in the colony sent one of its young ones. FROUDE, Oc., Ch. III.

The object of this book is to show the relation of these great ones to the work of their predecessors. Acad., No. 1765, 209a.

Try to think of those ten patients as ten shipwrecked men on a raft. BERN. SHAW, The Doctor's Dilemma, I, 31.

¹⁾ WENDT, Synt. des heut. Eng., 117.

- ii. * Never saw I the righteous man forsaken. GOLDSM., Vic., Ch. III.
The prudent man may direct a state; but it is the enthusiast who regenerates it, — or ruins, LYTTON, Rienzi, I, Ch. VIII, 54.
 The Bible is the poor man's comfort and the rich man's warning. CH. KINGSLEY, Alton Locke, Pref., 18.
  Mortality is an event by which a wise man can never be surprised. JOHNSON, Ras., Ch. XVIII, 109.
 Oppression drives even a wise man mad. Rev. of Rev., CCVIII, 341b.

Note I. The use of prop-words after adjectives when a whole class of persons in a generalizing way is meant is uncommon. (Ch. XLIII, 6; compare also 18, c).

To edge his way along the crowded paths of life, warning all human sympathy to keep its distance, was what the knowing ones called "nuts" to Scrooge. DICK., Christm. Car. 5, I, 8.

The wise ones of the earth may ridicule love's mysterious sympathies. MRS. CRAIK, Dom. Stor., E, Ch. III, 116.

Of more frequent occurrence is the use of the determinative those followed by the adjective (or the adjective equivalent) to serve the same purpose. (Ch. XXXVI, 12, c, Note; Ch. XL, 152.)

Mistakes are occasionally committed even by those most experienced. Times, No. 1851, 491, c.

A mere list of those eminent in literature... would be a dull string. Periodical.¹⁾

II. In Early Modern English prop-words were often dispensed with in the case referred to under b, and even in the Latest English instances of the ancient practice are not infrequent as archaisms. The adjective fair seems at all times to have been often used as a singular.

i. Let the dead bury their dead. Bible, Matth., VIII, 22.

So spake the seraph Abdiel, faithful found | Among the faithless — faithful only he | Among innumerable false. MILTON, Par. Lost, V, 898.

The prince, unable to conceal his pain, | Gazed on the fair | Who caused his care. DRYD., Alexander's Feast.

I'll sacrifice it all to thee, my generous fair. FARQUHAR, Constant Couple, I, 2 (57).

I have served at home, sir, for ages served this cruel fair. Ib., III, 2 (298).

Show me the fair would scorn to spy, | And prize such conquest of her eye. SCOTT, Lady, II, v, 15.

And after, oft the knight would say, | That not when prize of festal day | Was dealt him by the brightest fair, | Who e'er wore jewel in her hair, | So highly did his bosom swell, | As at that simple mute farewell. Ib., II, vi, 7.

I trust . . . in my rightful cause, more than in a vain resistance, which would but cost the lives of my best and bravest. SCOTT, Quent. Durw., Ch. XXVII, 355.
 As safe to me the mountain way | At midnight as in blaze of day, | Though with his boldest at his back, | Even Roderick Dhu beset the track. Id., Lady, II, XXXV, 25.

"I was not always," she said, "that which I now am. I was not always the wise, the powerful, the commanding, before whom the young stand abashed, and the old uncover their grey heads. SCOTT, Pirate, Ch. X, 113. (Observe the different application of the two last adjectives.)

Here thy Wisest look'd his last. BYRON, Cors., III, 1.

And his glance follow'd fast each fluttering fair. Id., Lara, I, XXI.

¹⁾ WENDT, Synt. des heut. Eng., 118.

Ginevra Fanshawe was the belle, the fairest and the gayest present. CH. BRONTË, Villette, Ch. XIV, 176.

I'm acting for the innocent and good, and not for my own self. MRS. GASK., Mary Barton, Ch. XXIII, 245. (The speaker is referring to her lover.)

The King sent a message to the Commons expressing his deep regret that so eminent a person as the Chancellor should be suspected of misconduct. His Majesty declared that he had no wish to screen the guilty from justice. MAC., Lord Bacon, (379b).

There are enough unhappy on this earth. TEN., Cenone, 235.

It may be I have wrought some miracles, | And cured some halt and maimed. Id., St. Simeon Stylites, 136.

For in those days | No knight of Arthur's noblest dealt in scorn. Id., Guin., 40.

So let me pass, | My father, howso'er I seem to you, | Not all unhappy, having loved God's best | And greatest. Id., Lanc. and El., 1087.

The mamma of my loveliest smiled radiantly upon her child. MISS BRADDON, Captain Thomas.

Lord Jocelyn asked that industrious idle, or idle industrious, if he knew the object of the building. W. BESANT, All Sorts and Cond. of Men, Ch. XXXVIII, 255.

They had assembled to take leave of, to see, perhaps, for the last time, their nearest and dearest. II. Lond. News.

Their partner is dancing with another fair. Sat. Rev. (Westm. Gaz., No. 5543, 16c).

He (sc. Cardinal Wolsey) was forced to borrow the bare necessities of life. The mighty had fallen indeed! BEERBOHM TREE, Henry VIII, II, 43.

He could not rid himself of the sense that he was a weak-knee'd idler, staying at home among women while his youngest fought for him. HAL. SUTCL., Pam the Fiddler, Ch. VII, 98.

ii. The poor is hated, but the rich has many friends. Bible, Prov., XIV, 20.

None but the brave deserves the fair. DRYDEN, Alexander's Feast.

Was the Righteous ever forsaken? Did the Just man ever have to beg bread? THACK., Virg., Ch. LXXIX, 841.

My tale is here — let the inquisitive take his answer from it. CONWAY, Called Back, Ch. I, 2.

- c) Especial mention may be made of the archaic use of comparatives preceded by the indefinite article to denote a single person. As the plural is never used analogously, there is no total conversion in the proper sense of the term. (1, b.)

Such men as he are never at heart's ease | Whiles they behold a greater than themselves. JUL. CÆS., I, 2, 209.

A braver never to battle rode. SCOTT, Lay, I, Introd., 51.

A braver never drew a sword; | A wiser never at the hour | Of midnight spoke the word of power. Id., Marm., III, xix.

"We talked but now of Wolfe," said I. "Here, indeed, is a greater than Wolfe." THACK., Virg., Ch. XCH, 989.

Jilted for a wealthier. TEN., Locksl. Hall, Sixty Years After, II.

Loudly spake the Prince, "Forbear: there is a worthier". Id., Ger. & En., 556.

The sea is mighty, but a Mightier sways | His restless billows. BRYANT, A Hymn of the Sea, I, 1.

O Time! great Chronos! and is this your power? Have you dried up seas and levelled mountains and left the tiny human heart-strings to defy you? Ah, yes! they were spun by a Mightier than thou. JEROME, Idle Thoughts.

Like a greater than himself, to the critical question at the critical time he did not answer. HARDY, Tess, VII, Ch. LVIII, 515.

The use of a converted comparative to denote a thing, as in the following quotation, seems to be very rare:

Something wild within her breast, | A greater than all knowledge, beat her down. TEN., Princ., VII, 223.

- d) Special mention must also be made of the archaic use of adjectives as vocatives.

Infirm of purpose! give me the daggers. Macb., II, 2, 52.

High and mighty, You shall know I am set naked on your kingdom. Haml., IV, 7, 43.

Dull, that thou art! DRYDEN, All for Love, V, 1, (106).

Outcast of Nature, man! the wretched thrall | Of bitter dropping sweat, of sweltry pain. THOMSON, Castle of Indolence, I, xi.

Go, perverse and obstinate! SHER., School for Scand., III, 1.

I ne'er before, believe me, fair, | Have ever drawn your mountain-air. SCOTT, Lady, I, xxii.

"Off, object!" said Tressilian. Id., Kenilw., Ch. IV, 50.

Fleet-limbed and beautiful, farewell! Mrs. CAROLINE NORTON, The Arab to his Horse, II (Rainb., II, 5).

"Insolent!" cried the Orsini, "Knowest thou him whom thou addressest thus arrogantly? LYTTON, Rienzi, I, Ch. V, 39.

O fairest, hear me now who do thy will. W. MORRIS, Atalanta's Race, 36b.

Not even you, beloved, can I admit to this hour. AGN. & EG. CASTLE, Diamond cut Paste, II, Ch. VIII, 205.

Note I. In the language of rebuke some adjectives are currently thus used after you, also in Present English.

A handsome young fellow, you impudent! begone out of my sight. WYCH., The Plain Dealer, II, 1.

I've swopped all my marls with the little fellows, and cobnuts are no fun, you silly. G. ELIOT, Mill, I, Ch. V, 26.

Compare: This is your doing, Peggotty, you cruel thing. DICK., Cop., Ch. IV, 22b. I don't want your money, you silly thing. G. ELIOT, Mill, I, Ch. V, 27.

II. Quite common is the use of certain adjectives (or equivalent participles), especially dear(est), sweet, as vocatives after my.

Really, my dear, answered she, "I can't say". MAR. EDGEW., Patron., II.¹⁾ Look at the birds, my pretty, look at the birds. DICK., Little Dorrit, I, Ch. I, 3b.

"Is that my brother?" asked the child, pointing to the Baby. — "Yes, my pretty," answered Richards. Id., Domb., Ch. III, 20.

My sweet, I am only going to reason. Id., Cop., Ch. XLIV, 317a.

"And, my sweet," she continued after the curtains had been accorded [etc.]. THACK., A Little Dinner at Timmins's.

"My sweet," she said, "as yet I am not wise." W. MORRIS, Earthly Par., Pym. and the Im., 170a.

For two days she was with me, my beloved. ANNIE BESANT, Autobiog., 126. My dearest, how can you be so rude? BERN. SHAW, You never can tell, I, 220.

Oh, that's all right, my precious. Id., Overruled.

But most adjectives used as vocatives preceded by my, now seem to require a noun or the prop-word one.

How beautiful! how beautiful thou seemest | My boy, my precious one, my rose babe! THACK., A Little Dinner at Timmins's, Ch. I.

¹⁾ MURRAY.

III. Some of these vocatives of endearment are also used without the possessive pronoun.

Sweet, leave me here awhile. Hamlet, III, 2, 237.

Sweet, adieu. I'll keep my oath. Merch. of Ven., II, 9, 77.

I want to speak to you. Only one word, dearest. Dick., Pickw., Ch. XLIX, 456.

"And have you answered them (sc. the letters), Blanche?" she asked, putting them back. — "Oh no! not for worlds, dearest," the other said. Thack., Pend., I, Ch. XXIV, 257.

I am not in the clouds, dear; I am only anxious. Miss Braddon, Cloven Foot.¹⁾

Forget it, sweet! W. Morris, Earthly Par., Doom of King Acris., 81b.

"O sweet," he said, "this thing is even love, | Whereof I told thee. Id., Pygm. and the Im., 170a.

So long, old dear. If we must part, it's nice to part friends. Punch, No. 3728, 494.

IV. In colloquial language dear with the mark of the plural is often used as a vocative, in addressing more persons than one.

i. Now hear me, my dears. Dick., Bleak House, Ch. XIII, 112.

I know, my dears, that we shall not quarrel easily among ourselves. Id., *Christm. Car.*⁵, IV, 101.

I know, my dears, all the Hoskinses in England. Thack., Sam. Titm., Ch. III, 27.

ii. Good-bye, dears. Id., A Little Dinner at Timmins's, Ch. V, (322).

Thus also, occasionally, pretty.

Back to back, my pretties. Goldsmith, She Stoops, II.

V. Dear has further developed into a pure noun with a possessive pronoun or an (in)definite article and with the mark of the plural when more than one individual is referred to: my dear, your dear, his dear; a dear, the dears. Most of these developments are as yet met with only in colloquial style.

Dear is also a pure noun in such interjectional expressions as Dear knows! (= Goodness knows, or Heaven knows, I do not), Dear bless you! Dear help you. Murray, s. v. dear, C.

i. Be it ounce, or cat, or bear, | Pard, or boar with bristled hair, | In thy eye that shall appear | When thou wak'st, it is thy dear. Mids., II, 2, 33.

John Gilpin's spouse said to her dear. Cowper, John Gilpin, II.

You are she, my dearest dear, | Therefore it shall be done. Id., V.

I met my dear. He found his dear. Murray.

ii. She is no longer very young, or beautiful but a dear for all that. Hall Caine, The Christian, I, 332.

Jack Belsize liked to dine with Lady Kew. He said "she was an old dear, and the wickedest old woman in all England;" and he liked to dine with Lady Julia, who was "a poor suffering dear, and the best woman in all England." Thack., Newc., I, Ch. X, 125.

You are such a devoted old dear. Miss Braddon, Just as I am, Ch. XLV.

iii. Things are somehow echoed to the pretty dears. Byron, Don Juan, XV, LXXVI.

Dearest and sweet, indeed, may stand with a possessive pronoun in other functions than the vocative, but exhibit no further development into pure nouns.

What feat do ye | This eve in honour of my sweet and me? W. Morris, Earthly Par., Doom of King Acris., 80b.

¹⁾ Murray.

e) The adjective poor seems to occupy a unique position, inasmuch as it is used not only to denote a class in a generalizing way, but also a specialized number of persons. It may, accordingly, be preceded by the definite article, a genitive or its analogue, by a possessive pronoun, and even by a demonstrative pronoun or (in)definite numeral. As for these last kinds of modifiers, instances are infrequent, some prop-word being mostly added. When poor is modified by a genitive or its analogue or by a possessive pronoun, it is not always clear whether a class in a generalizing way or a specialized number is meant.

i. * He firmly believed that he was doing right, and defending the cause of the poor against the wealthy. MAC., Fred., (675a).

It only concerned the daughters of the poor. Rev. of Rev., CXCv, 307a.

He has taken much interest in the housing of the poor. Ib., CXCVI, 350b.

 The intimate knowledge of the London poor. Athen., No. 4463, 514b.

ii. * England's poor are at least as well cared for as those of most other European countries.

 The proverbial kindness of the poor to the poor is nowhere displayed more abundantly than among the poor of Little Ireland. Good Words.

How the poor of Windsor showed their affection to the Queen. Graph.

Money left to the poor of the parish. MURRAY, s. v. poor, II, 7.

 The surface of England began to look pleasant . . . still her poor were wretched. CH. BRONTË, Shirley, I, Ch. X, 214.

Thou noble Father of her Kings to be, | Laborious for her people and her poor. TEN., Idylls, Ded., 34.

They were too proud to let their own poor wander into another parish to beg. Times.

iii. * Mamma had to attend to her poor. THACK., Virg., Ch. XLV, 466.

Sir Miles regaled his tenants with notoriously small beer, and his poor with especially thin broth. Ib., Ch. L, 513.

They spend their lives among their poor. Rev. of Rev., CCXXVI, 309b.

 How could I do aught but sympathise with any combination that aimed at the raising of these poor? ANNIE BESANT, Autobiog., 100.

 He has taken several poor off our hands. FIELDING, Jos. Andrews, IV, Ch. III, 208.

Are there no beggars at your gate, | Nor any poor about your lands? TEN., Lady Clara Vere de Vere, IX.

Shall I find no poor at Mellor,—no work to do? Mrs. WARD, Marcella, I, Ch. II, 17.

Compare: At that time a great many poor people had to quit the country from want of employment. CROKER, Three Advices (GÜNTHER, Handb., 50).

Note I. In certain collocations or compounds we even find poor, as a class-indicating word, in the genitive.

He that read the loudest, distinctest and best, was to have a halfpenny on Sunday to put into the poor's box. GOLDSMITH, Vicar, Ch. IV.

She draws her mouth till it positively resembles the aperture of a poor's box. SHER., School for Scand., II, 2, (380).

I pay a good deal towards the poor's rates. DICK., Ol. Twist, Ch. IV, 11b.

The use of an adjective denoting a class of persons in the genitive may have been more common in an older stage of the language.

Thine eyes that taught the dumb on high to sing | And heavy ignorance aloft to fly | Have added feathers to the learned's wing. SHAK., Son., LXXVIII.

The man, in life wherever pleased, | Hath happiness in store, | Who walks not in the wicked's way, | Nor learns their guilty lore. BURNS, The First Psalm, I.

But this practice is at variance with the genius of late Modern English. Thus for poor's box and poor's rates we now find respectively poor-box and poor-rates. (14, a, Note III.) Compare also poor-house, poor-law, etc. MURRAY, s. v. poor, II, 7, d.

The Poor-laws ground to the dust not only the paupers, but those who had just risen above that state, and were obliged to pay poor-rates. MRS. SHELLEY, Note on the Revolt of Islam.

If you have no work of your own, I can supply you from the poor basket. JANE AUSTEN, Mansfield Park, Ch. VII, 74.

If she were to turn you off, you would have to go to the poor-house. CH. BRONTË, Jane Eyre, Ch. II, 8.

He built a school and a poor-house. LESLIE STEPHEN, G. Eliot, Ch. I, 3.

We were at a poor-school a few mornings ago. Westm. Gaz., No. 5185, 14a. Compare also: "I am the Poor Man's Friend", observed Sir Joseph, glancing at the poor man present. DICK., Chimes, II, 32.

II. Of the use of poor preceded by the indefinite article + adjective to denote a class of society, as in the following quotation, no further instances have been found:

Café's and restaurants abounded on either hand, electric trams flashed by, crowded with a prosperous poor returning to their homes. MAX PEMB., Doctor Xavier, Ch. XVI, 84b.

III. The construction in the following quotation is probably due to sheer inadvertency on the part of the writer or the compositor:

Our poor is numerous enough already. FIELDING, Joseph Andrews, IV, Ch. II, 205.

IV. Finally it may be observed that rich and, perhaps, other adjectives are, by analogy, occasionally made to assume some of the peculiar applications of poor.

Wherever there are any poor she relieves them; wherever there are any sick, she [etc.]. THACK., Virg., Ch. LIV, 560.

The Prussian system of dividing the payers of direct taxation into three classes, each with approximately equal voting power, so that the few rich in a constituency may counterbalance the many poor, was described by Prince Bismarck as the most wretched of all systems. Westm. Gaz.

f) Also the application of young as a converted adjective requires some comment. Not only is it used to denote a class of persons in a generalizing way, like the adjectives mentioned above under a), but we find it also in the sense of offspring (of animals). In this meaning it is employed to indicate α) a class, naturally with some limitation as to the species of the parent animal, β) a definite or indefinite number of animals.

Instead of young we also find young ones, which seems to be the ordinary term when a particular specimen is referred to. (Ch. XLIII, 3.) In familiar style young one(s) is also met with in the sense of young man (men). (Ch. XLIII, 5.)

The modifiers by which young may be accompanied, are the definite article, a genitive or its analogue, or a numeral. Sometimes any modifier is absent.

In the first of the following quotations old is used to denote a class of animals by analogy with the preceding young; but for the rest it does not, apparently, admit of the extended application of its antonym.

- i. The young and old of both sexes are alike. DARWIN, Desc. of Man, II, Ch. VIII, 238.
The young are coloured in nearly the same manner as their parents. Ib.
- ii. The eggs disclosed their callow young. MILTON.¹⁾
 Round her new-fallen young the heifer moves, | Fruit of her throes. POPE.
 Iliad, XVII, 6.
 Here they hatch out and feed their young. II. Lond. News.
- iii. We know that the annual produce of every pair is from one to perhaps a million young. HUXLEY, Darwiniana, Ch. I, 18.
 These burrows are generally used by the sows wherein to deposit their litter of three or four young. Westm. Gaz., No. 5048, 13a.
 A single oyster can produce 16.000.000 young.
 The squirrel is monogamous, and in the spring 'usually rears two or three young. Id., No. 6059, 13a.
- iv. The bitch is with young.²⁾
- v. It is interesting to note the manner in which the parent bird gets its young ones from the ground. II. Lond. News.
 An eagle that had young ones. Æs. Fables, 22.
- vi. * Give the young one a glass, R., and score it up to yours truly. THACK., Pend., I, Ch. III, 42.
  The man whom all the young ones loved to look at, was now the object of conversation at freshmen's wine-parties. Ib., I, Ch. XIX, 203.

15. a) Adjectives denoting a nationality and ending in the blade-point sibilant (spelled sh or ch) or the blade sibilant (spelled se), are quite commonly used to denote the nation at large (i. e. in a generalizing way), mostly without any limitation, but also frequently with some limitation as to place, time or other circumstances. Occasionally they are also found expressing a (mostly indefinite) number of individuals. Accordingly they are generally found preceded by the definite article, less frequently by a genitive or its analogue, by a possessive pronoun, by a demonstrative pronoun (in this position always depreciative, Ch. XXXVI, 2), by a number-indicating word(-group); and sometimes without any modifier or no other modifier than an adjective:

- i. In India the English and the French had been employed, ever since the peace of Aix-la-Chapelle, in cutting each other's throat. MAC., Pitt, (300b).
 We promised to protect them from the Dutch. FROUDE, Oc., Ch. III, 51.
The Dutch are slow to move, but when moved, are moved effectually. Ib.
 Sigtryg threw up an earthwork, and made a stand against the Cornish. CH. KINGSLEY, Hereward, Ch. V, 38b.
 Our Englishmen are as good as any two Norsemen, as the Norse themselves say. Ib., Ch. XV, 66a.
- ii. William's French are as good as those Norsemen. CH. KINGSLEY, Hereward, Ch. XV, 66a.

¹⁾ WEBST. ²⁾ FLÜGEL.

- iii. What said you, my good Lord, that our brave English | Had sallied out from Calais and driven back | The Frenchmen from their trenches? TEN., Queen Mary, V, 2 (642b).
- iv. No people were ever so little prone to admire at all as those French of Voltaire. CARLYLE, Hero Worship, 13.
They all stick together, those Irish. THACK., Pend., I, Ch. XXIX, 315.
Harp they can, these Cornish, like very elves. CH. KINGSLEY, Hereward, Ch. III, 26b.
Those English have ever been a thorn in our sides. CON. DOYLE, Ref., 95.
He (sc. McCarthy) took his share with the other Irish, when those Irish behaved like rebels and were treated like outlaws. CHESTERTON (Il. Lond. News, No. 3814, 795b).
- v. * Five hundred English, under command of Colonel Edward Chester, abandoned the fortress of Valkenburg. MOTLEY, Rise, IV, Ch. II, 567a.
As yet only ten thousand English and the same force of Belgian troops had been able to assemble. GREEN, Short Hist., Ch. X, § IV, 835.
 Monte Nero being the resort of many English, we did not wish to find ourselves in the midst of a colony of chance travellers. MRS. SHELLEY, Note on Poems of 1821.
The few English that could be brought to resist him would perish at their posts. THACK., Van. Fair, I, Ch. XXXII, 351.
There's a lot of Irish here. Id. Pend., I, Ch. XXIX, 315.
Many British are said to have been wounded. Times.
A considerable number of Colonial Dutch are reported to have joined the Boers. Ib.
The first shipload of refugees, consisting mainly of native Jews, with some Italians, Spanish and French, nearly all of the poorest class [etc.]. Daily Mail.
- vi. There are some English there; one can live wherever there are English. LYTTON, Night and Morn., 230.
You English are strange. GRANT ALLEN, Hilda Wade, Ch. VII, 196.
Cooperation between Irish and Liberals is a familiar fact. Westm. Gaz., No. 5231, 1b.
Liberals, Irish and Labour must, therefore, still fight their own battle and trust to their own right hands. Id., No. 5243, 1c.
We cannot respect our women, they are not like you English. Id., No. 5555, 4a.
Every sort of language seems to be spoken, and one hustles, or is hustled by, Greeks, Turks, Italians, Russians, Dutch, German, Swedes, Poles, Hungarians, and a large element of foreign Jews. RITA, America — Seen through English eyes, Ch. II, 49 (The use of German as a partially converted adjective seems to be very rare.)
 Because they are chiefly home-bred English, they say you have insight. RUDY KIPL., The Light that failed, Ch. III, 37.
- b) But when it is not the nation at large which is meant, these adjectives are generally followed by a noun by way of prop-word, this prop-word often making up a kind of compound with the preceding adjective.
It has been said, with what truth we do not know, that Locke is to-day better known by educated Frenchmen and Germans than by his own country-men.¹⁾
The Boers had, or imagined that they had, a list of grievances as long as an Irishman's. FROUDE, Oceana, Ch. III, 45.

1) WENDT, Die Synt. des Adj., 38.

Note I. These compounds are occasionally met with to denote the nation at large with some limitation.

"I say come, Amelia," the civilian went on; "never mind what she says; why are we to stop here and be butchered by the Frenchmen?" THACK., Van. Fair, I, Ch. XXXII, 353.

King James was flying, the Dutchmen were coming. Id., Henry Esme., I, Ch. IV, 35.

South Africa can only be ruled constitutionally by conciliating the Dutch people there. FROUDE, O.c., Ch. III, 61.

II. A few nationality names, such as Jewish, Swedish, Spanish are never used to denote the nation at large, the Jews, the Swedes, the Spaniards being used instead.

16. Some quality-expressing adjectives preceded by the definite article, may be used to denote what appears a person in a generalizing way, chiefly as objects of the verb to do and occasionally of other verbs, especially to commit and to play. Instances are infrequent. Compare MURRAY, s. v. do, 11, j; play, 34.

i. For my part I watched our new friend with some curiosity and amusement, especially when Caroline and Matilda appeared, trying to do the amiable. Mrs. CRAIK, Domest. Stor., II, 185.

The young gentlemen of our party began to buck up and tried to outvie each other in doing the amiable. DE BONELLI, Travels in Bolivia, I, 28.¹⁾

They do the grand at our expense. TEN BRUG., Eng. Woordenb., s. v. grand.

ii. (The pig) was lying with his head in her lap, and making no effort to play the agreeable beyond an occasional grunt. G. ELIOT, Scenes, II, Ch. I, 72.

iii. He had always a great notion of committing the amiable. DICK., Pickw., Ch. XIV, 125.

Note I. In the above combinations the converted adjective may also, with some justice, be understood to indicate a quality in a generalizing sense. (31.) This is decidedly the more plausible view as regards the adjectives in:

One confesses, goes to mass, and does the proper. R. H. R., Rambles in Istria.²⁾

She affected the masculine in her attire. (?) Marcia in Germany, Ch. IV, 44.

II. After to play it seems to be more usual to place the pure adjective without the article.

When you condescended to play agreeable. THACK., Martins.¹⁾

She stood playing pretty with it (the candle) in her hand. SCOTT, Black Dwarf.³⁾

But we must not play sad now, my dear. LOCKHARDT.²⁾

III. Compare with the above the following quotations in which a noun, or a noun preceded by an adjective, is similarly used in a generalizing sense:

He is accused of having acted the hypocrite. LYTTON, Rienzi, II, Ch. III, 87.

I made a point to act the fine gentleman completely. THACK., Barry Lyndon, Ch. III, 48.

¹⁾ MURRAY, s. v. buck, V7.

²⁾ MURRAY.

³⁾ FLÜGEL.

17. Some adjectives when denoting attributes of particular beings or things, often appear partially as nouns from their head-word being suppressed. They are then virtually proper nouns, may take the inflection of the genitive (as far as their meaning admits), and differ from other proper nouns only in that they are preceded by the definite article. Even this last trace of their originally adnominal nature disappears when they are used as vocatives. We may distinguish:

a) epithets of the Supreme Being, such as the Almighty, the All-Good, the All-Seeing, the All-True, the All-Powerful, the Eternal, the Everlasting, the Highest (the Most High), the Omnipotent, the Supreme, etc.

i. He is in God's Hand now, and the All-Powerful is likewise the All-Merciful. MRS. GASK., Life of Charl. Brontë, 277.

The eye of the All-Seeing is upon thee, and the hand of the All-Powerful shall protect. LYTTON, Rienzi, IV, Ch. II, 164.

Doubt no longer that the Highest is the wisest and the best. TEN., Faith. We have put up our thank-song to the Supreme. MEREDITH, (Athen., No. 4434, 438b).

If it should please the Almighty to spare him for a few years longer. MURRAY.

In sudden whirlwind... | The Spirit of the Highest came. WHITTIER, Ezekiel, IV.1)

After the last solemn messages had been delivered, the All-Merciful bade our father rest. Rev. of Rev., CCXVII, 23b.

ii. This day, at height of noon, came to my sphere | A spirit, zealous, as he seemed, to know | More of the Almighty's works. MILTON, Paradise Lost, IV, 566.

I only want to live like one of the Almighty's creatures. DICKENS, *The Chimes*³, II, 54.

His instinct of the oneness of mankind in the Eternal's eyes was equally intense. STOPFORD A. BROOKE, Stud. in Poetry, Ch. I, 2.

iii. Do thou, All-Good! for such thou art, | In shades of darkness hide. BURNS, A Prayer.

b) epithets of sovereigns placed after the proper name, as Tarquin the Bold, William the Silent, Louis the Desired (THACK., Van. Fair, I, Ch. XXXII, 351).

Note I. Such epithets are also occasionally met with after personal pronouns. See also ELLINGER, Verm. Beitr., 22.

Paint him the ruthless, the daring, the ambitious. SCOTT, Fair Maid, Intro. 14.

And she, the weakly, was left behind, while the strong man was taken. MRS. GASK., Mary Barton, Ch. VIII, 85.

Does he — the cautious, the wily, the profound — does he build fortresses and erect towers, and not see from his battlements the mighty fabric that I, too, have erected? LYTTON, Rienzi, I, Ch. VIII, 53.

And never knightly deed of arms was done | By him, the frank, the chivalrous, the bold, | Which more enduring fame hath nobly won | Than with this simple legend is enrolled. BERN. BERTON, Sir Philip Sidney, X.

1) MURRAY.

II. Epithets standing after proper names may, in a measure, also be considered as ordinary attributive adjectives placed after their head-words. This view will seem plausible when they are compared with ordinal numerals in the same position as in Henry the Eighth.

The different views are sometimes symbolized by the absence or use of the comma.

i. If Hereward will...help us against Harold the perjured, then will William do for him all that Harold would have done, and more beside. CH. KINGSLEY, Hereward, Ch. XV, 65b.

Torfrida was the most beautiful woman in the room; more beautiful than even Richilda the terrible. Ib., XIV, 62a.

ii. And Lady Godiva called for old Abbot Ulfketyl, the good and brave; and fell upon his neck, and told him all her tale. Ib., Ch. XX, 87b.

c) epithets of seas, machines, ships, etc. as the Pacific, the Adriatic, the Atlantic, the Mediterranean; the Swift (bicycle), the Splendid (stove); the Majestic (ship), the Oceanic (ship), etc.

Note. Mention may here also be made of the derisive the many-headed = the many-headed beast or monster, after HORACE Ep. I, 1, 76: Belua multorum es capitum.

Then there came a turnip, then a potato, and then an egg: with a few other little tokens of the playful disposition of the many-headed. DICK., Pickw., Ch. XIX, 170.

18. a) Some participles may be used to denote (a) single individual(s), either with the definite article or with a genitive or its analogue. The practice is common only with some; with not a few, especially those which are marked with a dagger (†) in the illustrations following below, it seems to be more or less unusual.

accused. Ourselves will hear | The accuser and the accused freely speak. RICHARD II, I, 1, 17.

Miss Fodge rushed forward and placed herself between Mr. Barton and the accused. G. ELIOT, Scenes I, Ch. II, 24.

The accused was found guilty. MRS. CRAIK, The Sculptor of Bruges.

adored. Being well fed and the adored of his mistress Ammona had naturally two loaded pin-fire cartridges. RUDY KIPLING, The Light that failed, Ch. I, 8.

anointed. Would God's anointed, accountable to God alone, pay homage to the clamorous multitude? MAC., Lord Bacon, (380a).

bereaved. She could not go to comfort the bereaved. MRS. GASK., Mary Barton.

The bereaved married within a year. TIT-BITS.

† caressed. He was the caressed of the waiters. CH. LEVER.¹⁾ chosen. i. They regarded her not only as the favourite, but as the chosen. HARDY, Tess, IV, Ch. XXVIII, 229.

ii. She was one | Made but to love, to feel that she was his | Who was her chosen. BYRON, Don Juan, II, ccli.

1) WENDT, Synt. des heut. Eng., 108.

To offer them a place in the ranks of His chosen. CH. BRONTË, Jane Eyre, Ch. XXXIV, 494.

Alas! for this gray shadow, once a man — | So glorious is his beauty and thy choice, | Who madest him thy chosen, that he seem'd | To his great heart none other than a God. TEN., Tithonus, 13.

Mr. J. Dumphreys is the chosen of the Unionists. II. Lond. News, No. 3679, 573.

condemned. Drop = small platform or trap-door on the gallows, on which the condemned stands with the halter round his neck, and which is let fall under his feet. MURRAY, s. v. drop, 117.

deceased. On returning to the inn, I learned the whole story of the deceased. WASH. IRV., Sketches, XXX, 323.

departed. Here am I . . . with hardly enough to . . . enable me to live so as not to disgrace the memory of the dear departed. JANE AUSTEN, Mansfield Park, Ch. III, 28.

doomed. In the black prison of the Conciergerie the doomed of the day awaited their fate. DICK., Tale of Two Cities, III, Ch. XIII, 386.

† drowned. The priest hurried to the spot, and immediately flung off his coat and began the usual methods for restoring the apparently drowned. Periodical.¹⁾ elder-born. Royd's wife . . . thought suddenly of Rupert, her elder born. HAL. SUTCL., The Lone Adventure, Ch. II, 36.

eldest-born. He should have been here to claim his right, as the eldest born, to take Kit's place. Id., Pam the Fiddler, Ch. IV, 62.

elect. If the Gods have ceased to guide nations, they have not ceased to speak to their own elect. CH. KINGSLEY, Hyp., Ch. II, 6b.

They (sc. the deputies) are the elect of the people. Rev. of Rev., CCXXVIII, 519b.

employed. The savage outbreaks of industrial war have had the effect of very thoroughly arousing the national consciousness to the importance of securing more effective means for solving disputes as they arise between employers and their employed. Times, No. 1815, 823b.

† envied. He had succeeded ignominiously in his examinations, but he was the envied of some who had taken honours. Periodical.²⁾

† fallen. Mary, who had seen it (sc. the fight) all, had no pity this time for the fallen. HAL. SUTCL., Pam the Fiddler, Ch. VIII, 121. (The reference is to one person.)

first-born. i. I do believe that, every day of her life, the mother thinks of the first-born, that was with her for so short a while. THACK., Sam. Titm., Ch. XII, 165.

ii. And all the first-born in the land of Egypt shall die, from the first-born of Pharaoh, that sitteth upon his throne, even unto the first-born of the maid-servant behind the mill, and all the first-born of beasts. Bible, Exodus, XI, 5. When his first-born was put into his arms, he could see that the boy inherited his own eyes. CH. BRONTË, Jane Eyre, Ch. XXXVIII, 556.

Note. In the following quotation first = first-born: For Minnie whom I loved the worst Died mad in childbed with her first. MASEFIELD, The Everlasting Mercy, 65.

† forsaken. Pen's forsaken was consoling herself. THACK., *Pend.*³⁾ injured. Across all her anxiety for the loved and the injured, those words shot again and again, like a horrible pang. G. ELIOT, Mill, VII, Ch. III, 458.

last named. How you hated every man she shook hands with, every woman she kissed — the maid that did her hair, the boy that cleaned her shoes, the dog she nursed — though you had to be respectful to the last named. JEROME, Idle Thoughts, VI, 94.

¹⁾ WENDT, Synt. des heut. Eng., 119.

²⁾ Ib., 118.

³⁾ FIJN VAN DRAAT, Drie Talen, XIV, 33.

lost. The two gentlemen who were there, turned their heads away. The lost was found again. The dead was alive. The prodigal was on his brother's heart, — his own full of love, gratitude, repentance. THACK., Virg., Ch. XL, 511.

long-lost. I could no longer confirm her belief that the long-lost was really here. MRS. GASK., Cranf., Ch. XV, 297.

oppressed. The oppressed can save himself by martyrdom, but the oppressors must bear the full consequence of moral enfeeblement. Times, No. 1842, 309b.

ordained. And you — God's ordained! I. ZANGWILL, The Next Relig., I, 35.

possessed. And they that kept them (sc. the swine) fled, and went their ways into the city, and told every thing, and what was befallen to the possessed of the devils. Bible, Matth., VIII, 33.

† rejected. It is possible that the rejected of Manchester may become the accepted of Dundee. Newspaper.¹⁾ (The reference is to Mr. Winston Churchill, who was defeated at the poll at Manchester.)

† ruled. The ruler (sc. the spirit) is governed by the ruled (sc. the body). FRANCIS THOMPSON, Health and Holiness, 31.

saved. A later message from the Carpathia, which rescued the saved, gives the number of survivors aboard her as 705. Times, No. 1842, 301b.

slain. The death of the Roman boy was soon forgotten, forgotten almost by the parents of the slain. LYTON, Rienzi, I, Ch. II, 17.

† undefiled. My dove, my undefiled is but one; she is the only one of her mother. Bible, Solomon's Song, VI, 9.

vanquished. Whoever lands on the island (sc. St. Helena) flies to Longwood, where the vanquished of Waterloo resided and was buried. Daily Mail.

This is no rough-and-tumble fight, with no quarter for the vanquished. FRANCIS THOMPSON, Health and Holiness, 31. (The reference is to the fight between the body and the spirit.)

younger-born. Maurice, the younger-born, would go out with the Rising; but Rupert must be left behind. HAL. SUTCL., The Lone Adventure, Ch. III, 61.

youngest-born. i. My lord Percy said he would have the youngest-born or none. Id., Pam the Fiddler, Ch. IV, 58.

ii. Old Richard passed through the chattering throng, and looked for Kit, his youngest born. Ib., Ch. IV, 60.

Note. Thus also in She's an Australian born (AGN. & EG. CASTLE, Panther's Cub, I, Ch. IV, 42) the word-group Australian born may be apprehended as an instance of partial conversion (Ch. XXVIII, 3, Obs. VI), although, of course, it seems more plausible to understand Australian as a noun modified by born.

- b) Some participles occur also with other modifiers, i. e. a demonstrative pronoun, the indefinite article, an indefinite numeral; or without any modifier. A few are also found in the genitive and in the plural, in which last case they have, of course, become pure nouns.

i. One week we were congratulating him on being an advocate, the next this fair unknown had lured him on to the stage. EDNA LYALL, Knight Errant, Ch. XVIII, 163.

Soon . . he must . . render the account of his doings towards this youngest-born. HAL. SUTCL., Pam the Fiddler, Ch. XII, 201.

¹⁾ WENDT, Synt. des heut. Eng., 119.

- ii. What is thy beloved more than another beloved, O thou fairest among women. Bible, Solomon's Song, V, 9. (For the rest beloved occurs only with a possessive pronoun in this book.)
Catharine and an unknown. Catharine driving at a foot's pace, and the unknown walking beside her. Mrs. WARD, Rob. Elsm., I, 126.
A first-born, who died an infant, was yet the eldest son. DEAN ALFORD, The Queen's Eng., § 215.
- iii. Arnold stands, at the beginning of the twentieth century, by virtue alike of his work and its influence, among the few, the very few elect of his generation. ARTHUR WAUGH, Introd. to Matth. Arnold's Poems, 5.
- iv. There has been a rush of unemployed across the border. Rev. of Rev., CCXVI, 562.
- v. I am my beloved's, and my beloved is mine. Bible, Solomon's Song, VI, 3.
Dr. Johnson felt the deceased's pulse before prescribing. Titbits.
And then comes the waking, which is as though one fell asleep upon his beloved's bosom and awoke among thorns and having a crown of thorns about his brows. MAR. CRAWF., Kath. Laud., II, Ch. X, 174.
The Prison Chaplain entered the condemned's cell for the last time. Westm. Gaz., No. 4983, 9a.
- vi. What is the reason that men fall in love with me...and desert their chosen intendeds. DICK., Nich. Nickleby, Ch. XII.¹⁾
The suburb huts where base-borns dwelt. EDWIN ARNOLD, The Light of Asia.²⁾
Craving food of low-borns. Ib.²⁾
Others talk of their beloveds, and they shall be made to hear of mine. SPURGEON.³⁾
- c) With most of the above participles constructions with some prop-word would seem to be unusual. Such combinations as the accused (adored, beloved, bereaved, etc.) one (man or person) would hardly be considered ordinary English. (14, b, Note I.) Less unusual, although also uncommon are such constructions as the man (or person) accused (adored, beloved, bereaved, etc.). Here follow some quotations exhibiting the unusual practice. See also Ch. LIII, 6.
- Again David gathered together all the chosen men of Israel, thirty thousand. Bible, Samuel, B, VI, 1.
Directly she set eyes on Tess, she divined that she was to be the chosen one of somebody who was no common outdoor man. HARDY, Tess, IV, Ch. XXXII, 264.
He who called my boy a coward . . . , because he would not join some crack-brained plan against the valley, which sheltered his beloved one! BLACKMORE, Lorna Doone, Ch. XXXV, 208.

Note I. In the following quotations the genitive is responsible for the use of one:

Silence seemed, on the face of it, best for her adored one's happiness. HARDY, Tess, IV, Ch. XXXI, 251.

Coralie noted . . . the large mourning ring of black enamel . . . that flashed upon the bereaved one's finger. AGN. & EG. CASTLE, Diamond cut Paste, II, Ch. VII, 185.

¹⁾ MURRAY, s. v. intended. ³⁾ Id., s. v. beloved.

²⁾ FIJN VAN DRAAT, Drie Talen, XIV.

II. With other participles, on the other hand, the last-named construction is the usual one.

The man addressed came slowly forward. CH. KINGSLEY, Hyp., Ch. II, 9b.

The construction illustrated by the following quotations would seem to be unusual, pre-position of the participle being, perhaps, due to rhythmic considerations. FIJN VAN DRAAT, Rhythm in Eng. Prose. (Anglia, XXIV, 17 ff.)

The plundered man described his loss. LYTTON, Caxtons, III, Ch. VII, 79.
The sergeant, however, again accused him of being the wanted man. Times.

III. Another substitute for the converted adjective, which is more frequent than that with one, is the construction with the determinative those. (Ch. XXXVI, 12, c, Note; compare also 14, b.)

The chief amongst those confined was Francis Bonnivard. Introd. to BYRON'S Prs. of Chil. (Allman's Clas.).

- d) Analogous in nature to the above participles are the adjective dead and the participial adjective living, which exhibit similar peculiarities in their applications.

Dead is used to indicate a class; a single individual, in which case it may be preceded by the definite or indefinite article or by a possessive pronoun; and also a definite or indefinite number of individuals; but it allows of no inflection for the plural, and cannot, therefore, be considered to have become a pure noun. The use of dead after the indefinite article, and as a plural without any preceding modifier, seems to be rare. Except for military reports, this may also be said of the use of dead after a number-indicating word. See also 20 and Ch. IV, 15.

- i. Let the dead bury their dead. Bible, Matth., VIII, 22.

Around them, still and silent as the dead, clustered the whole English army. DICKENS.

Are they here — The dead of other days? BRYANT, The Prairies, 40.

- ii. * The dead speaks still to you and commends to your care her children. LYTTON, Night and Morning, 104.

The funeral was over: the dead shovelled away. Ib., 41.

She spoke in whispers and walked softly, as if the dead could be disturbed.

DICK., Cop., Ch. IX, 64.

The tablet in the parish church is a tardy recognition of the illustrious dead who sleeps there. Times.

 Lo (As ye lie asleep, so must you lie), a dead. EDWIN ARNOLD, The Light of Asia.¹⁾

 The mother was still beside her dead making arrangements for the burial. Mrs. WARD, David Grieve, I, 307.

I would have none touch my dead save myself, AN. BES., Autoblog., 126.

- iii. * In the heap on the left are forty-nine dead and dying. II. Lond. News, No. 3841, 803a.

 They buried a lot of dead where they fell. Times.

She asks in bewilderment, "Where are the dead?" He answers, "There are no dead", and the curtain falls. CHESTERTON (II. Lond. News, No. 3689, 4c)

It is quite useless to tell children that there are no dead. Ib.

 The field was strewn with dead. Times.

Compare: Dead men tell no tales. Proverb.

Heaps upon heaps of dead men lay strewn all over the ground. DICK. (GÜNTH., Handb., 63).

¹⁾ FIJN VAN DRAAT, Drie Talen, XIV, 33.

Living may indicate both a class of persons and a single individual; in the latter application, apparently, only in conjunction with dead similarly employed. In its converted function it is always preceded by the definite article.

- i. The land of the living. Bible, Psalm XXVII, 13; LIII, 5.

The true way to mourn the dead is to take care of the living who belong to them. BURKE, Cor.¹)

- ii. Still, there was a deep difference between that devotion to the living and that indefinite promise of devotion to the dead. G. ELIOT, Mid., V, Ch. XLVIII, 355.

Every night before I lie down to rest, I look at the pictures and bless both the living and the dead. BUCHANAN, That Winter Night, Ch. III, 27.

- e) Here also mention may be made of such collocations as your obedient for your obedient servant, in which the adjective has the value of a present participle turned into an adjective.

Ladies, your most obedient. SHER., School for Scand., II, 2, (380).

Mr. Snake, your most obedient. lb., I, 1, (365).

"Mr. Surface, your most obedient." — "Sir, your very devoted." lb., I, 1, (366).

Your most obsequious. lb., V, 1, (421).

19. The superlatives first and last, and the comparatives former and latter, are often used to refer to one or more particular individuals out of a series (of two), spoken of in a preceding part of the discourse. They are then preceded by the definite article or a demonstrative pronoun. (Ch. XXX, 11.) The comparatives admit of inflection for the genitive. The use of other superlatives and comparatives to denote single individuals is now archaic. (14, b.)

- i. He was always the first himself to cry at their (sc. of those wonderful Irish ballads) pathos. THACK., Pend., I, Ch. V, 58.

If you dare utter a word against me, you will find that as I am the last to care for a threat, so I am the first to resent an injury. LYTON, Night and Morn., 153.

- ii. The former's phlegm was a check upon the latter's vivacity. L. MURRAY, *Eng. Gram.*⁵, I, 102.¹)

He would have been afraid to offer more, lest he should offend the latter's delicacy. THACK., Pend., I, Ch. V, 58.

The dispute had raged between mother and son during the whole of the latter's last days in Virginia. Id., Virg., Ch. LV, 569.

- iii. The young one is to come first. He is to marry an heiress, and, when he has got her, up is to rise the elder brother! When did this elder brother show? Why, when the younger's scheme was blown, and all was up with him! lb., Ch. LIII, 552.

20. In referring to the casualties of battles or accidents such participial adjectives as killed, slain, wounded etc. are often used to indicate persons in any grammatical combination, without, however, ever taking the inflection for either the genitive or the plural. These words thus used may also be understood as a variety of undeveloped clauses. (Ch. IV, 15.)

¹) MURRAY.

Wagons and long country carts laden with wounded came rolling into the town. THACK., Van. Fair, I, Ch. XXXII, 348.

Our own wounded require my attention. BUCHANAN, That Winter Night, Ch. VI, 59.

The total losses are 24 killed and 46 wounded. Times.

He was lying surrounded by a mass of Dervish slain. Ib.

The killed on British railways last year was 1.117. Rev. of Rev., CCXXVI, 308a.

Dead and dying lying about owing to lack of transport. II. Lond. News, No. 3841, 803a.

In the heap on the left are forty-nine dead and dying. Ib.

Note. The same practice is sometimes extended to cases more or less analogous to that mentioned above.

To how many halt or maimed has Robert taken you? Mrs. WARD, Rob. Elsm. A trainload of 250 cripples and 115 blind arrived at Hunstanton recently for a day's outing. Tit-bits, No. 1291, 404c.

The list of saved is mainly composed of women. Times, No. 1842, 301c.

"What is your average list of killed in a pheasant battue?" — "What — what kind of killed?" I asked laughing. "Guests or beaters or dogs — anything but the birds." EL. GLYN, Refl. of Ambrosine, II, Ch. VIII, 174.

21. Some adjectives admit of denoting a quality in a generalizing way. They are then normally preceded by the definite article. Compare a similar use of nouns, as in The lion is a beast of prey. (Ch. XXXI, 5, b; 31 ff.)

The same combination, definite article + adjective, is used to denote a class of persons (14), but the context mostly precludes all ambiguity. Moreover, when the converted adjective is the subject, the singular or the plural form of the finite verb sometimes brings out whether a quality or a class of persons is referred to.

There was nearly half as much of the entertaining as of the contemptible about the man. POE, Purloined Letter, 183.

These poems are specimens of the burlesque and fanciful. Mrs. SHELLEY, Postscript to sec. Ed.

In this Shelley resembled Plato; both taking more delight in the abstract and the ideal than in the special and tangible. Id., Pref. to first collected Ed., 1839.

Their scope was to awaken mankind to aspirations for what he considered the true and good. Ib.

The mirth of Mr. Bob Sawyer was rapidly ripening into the furious; Mr. Ben Allen was fast relapsing into the sentimental. DICK., Pickw., Ch. XXXVIII, 352.

Going from the general to the particular, we may say that nowhere was a deeper consternation spread than in the electoral division of West Barsetshire. TROL., Framl. Pars., Ch. XXXVII, 355.

In the buildings good sense and good taste combine to produce a happy union of the comfortable and the graceful. MAC., Hist., I, Ch. III, 314.

His (sc. hair) has too much o' the red in it. Mrs. GASK., Mary Barton, Ch. XII, 137.

She passed from the temporal to the eternal. Id., Life of Ch. Brontë, 297.

We needs must love the highest when we see it. TEN., Guin., 654.

This led him to fly at the highest, while he overleaped the facts of ordinary life. SYMONDS, Shelley, Ch. II, 13.

It is worse than useless to deplore the irremediable. Ib., Ch. I, 1.

The beautiful can never die. CH. KINGSLEY, Hyp., Ch. II, 6b.

In their education the useful has of late been trenching on the ornamental. SPENCER, Education, Ch. I, 10.

The early Methodists were firm believers in the miraculous. W. MOTTRAM, The True G. Eliot, Ch. II, 28.

Nothing is certain but the unforeseen. FROUDE, Oceana, Ch. VII, 99.

If let alone, with some allowance for his habits and opinions, the Cape Dutchman would have acquiesced in the inevitable. Ib., Ch. III, 45.

The impossible has to be proved impossible, before men will consent to limit their endeavours to the compassing of the possible. LEWES, Hist. Phil., 60.

We played and set aside for an hour only the obstinate claims of the actual. ANTH. HOPE, The King's Mirror, Ch. II, 37.

Sin is the deliberate and wilful act of a free agent who sees the better and chooses the worse, and thereby acts injuriously to himself and others. Sir OLIVER LODGE, The Substance of Faith.

Note. Many adjectives thus converted occur chiefly or exclusively in peculiar idioms.

bad. i. Stephen would very likely go to the bad altogether. EDNA LYALL, Don., II, 149 (= Dutch de slechte weg opgaan.)

Would not most men have gone to the bad altogether? Mrs. WARD, Marc., I, 116.

ii. He was between £ 70 and £ 80 to the bad. Pall Mall Gaz., 1884, 6 Feb., 4. (= Dutch te kort.)

Even if we allow that the population has increased ten per cent in that time, that will leave us still 100 millions to the bad. Rev. of Rev., CCXIII, 250b.

The actual decrease in the nine months is £ 5,029,000, or £ 2,800,000 to the bad. Westm. Gaz.

better. i. The better is the enemy of good. Proverb (BAIN, H. E. Gr., 29).

ii. His perseverance got the better of me. THACK., Sam. Titm., Ch. XIII, 183. (= Dutch de baas zijn, te slim af zijn, overwinnen.)

I am sure I could have tripped his old heels up easily enough, and got the better of him in five minutes. Id., Denis Duval, Ch. VI, 254.

There is not the slightest doubt that one of the ways in which many animals have the better of man is in being very much more sensitive to and quickly aware of coming changes in the weather. HOR. HUTCHINSON, Weather Wisdom of the Birds (Westm. Gaz., No. 5219, 4c). (= Dutch een voor-sprong hebben.)

iii. The illness of the Prime Minister has taken a decided turn for the better. Times. (= Dutch ten goede.)

Affairs in the Near East have taken a decided turn for the better this week. Westm. Gaz.

Thus also: to alter (or change) a thing for the better, a change for the better.

collective. Women in the collective must make the sacrifice, for the highest civilisation has no value once it is doomed to destruction. Westm. Gaz., No. 5519, 8d. (= Dutch als een geheel, met elkaar.)

common. He stood impassive as if he had witnessed nothing out of the common. HUGH CONWAY, Called Back, 87. (= Dutch buitengewoons.)

The two who waited for him saw nothing out of the common in his appearance. JOHN OXENHAM, The Simple Beguiler (SWAEN, A Selection of Eng. Prose and Poetry; II, 140).

Compare: There is something romantic in it — out of the common way. G. ELIOT, Mill, VI, Ch. III, 358. (See also under ordinary and usual.)

defensive. They compelled him to keep the defensive. SCOTT, Fair Maid, Ch. XXXIV, 366. (= Dutch een verdedigende houding bewaren.)

Thus also: to be on the defensive, to stand on the defensive, to assume the defensive, to act on the defensive.

extreme. It is regrettable in the extreme. Times. (= Dutch uiterst, uitermate.)

full. i. The moon is behind, and at the full. COLERIDGE, Christ., I, 18. (= Dutch vol.)

ii. This young Columbian was succeeded by another to the full as eloquent as he who drew down storms of cheers. DICK., Chuz., Ch. XXI, 184a. (= Dutch ten volle.)

Accepting to the full his altered situation. Graph.

He meant to the full all that he said. JOHN OXENHAM, Great-heart Gillian, Ch. IX, 69.

Thus also: fed to the full.

gross. Shall only man be taken in the gross? POPE, Mor. Es., I, 17. (= Dutch in zijn geheel.)

They have been able to find few flaws in his nature, and therefore have denounced it in the gross. MOTLEY, Rise, VI, Ch. VII, 902b. (Compare: But the full sum of me | Is sum of nothing; which, to term in gross, | Is an unlesioned girl, unschooled, unpractised. Merch., III, 2, 160.)

loose. i. * Of this (sc. collection of cigar ends) about 1½ cwt. was sold in the loose to a tobacco manufacturer at 1 s. per lb. Westm. Gaz.¹⁾ (= not made up into or prepared in a particular form, Dutch in ruwen staat.)

 In the loose both packs did well, but the Oxford men were more brilliant. Ib.¹⁾ (loose = that part of the game of Rugby football in which the ball travels freely from player to player, as distinguished from the 'scrimmage'.)

ii. Having to appear at the police court in order to give evidence for one of your fast friends who has been out upon the loose. Punch.¹⁾ (= on the spree, Dutch aan de rol.)

main. In the main he has devoted himself to an analysis of the Free Trade case. Times, No. 1808, 683b. (Dutch in hoofdzaak.)

offensive. It is clearly evident that Kuropatkin in his own half-hearted fashion, nourished an intention of assuming the offensive. Westm. Gaz., No. 5249, 14a. (= Dutch een aanvallende houding aannemen.)

Thus also: to be on the offensive, to keep on the offensive, to stand on the offensive, to act on the offensive.

mean. To observe the golden mean. Proverb. (= Dutch de gulden middelmaat.)

ordinary. So far there was nothing out of the ordinary. Westm. Gaz., No. 5060, 1c. (Dutch buitengewoons.) Compare: common and usual.

right. It is certain that, whoever might originally have been in the right, Prussia had submitted. MAC., Fred., (666a). (= Dutch het bij het rechte eind hebben.)

right about. If it (sc. the arrangement) don't act well, or don't quite accord with our mutual convenience, he can easily go to the right about. DICK., Cop., Ch. XV, 111a (= Dutch rechtsomkeert.)

Professor Emanuel had sent me to the right about. Ch. BRONTË, Villette, Ch. XX, 258.

rough. * (He was) a good and gallant but unpolished man, a sort of diamond in the rough. Ch. BRONTË, Villette, Ch. XIV, 165. (= Dutch in ruwen staat.)

 Contemplating people in the rough. WEBST., Dict. (= Dutch in het algemeen.)

¹⁾ MURRAY.

 My objections to certain parts of it (sc. the Budget), when it was outlined in the rough, were exactly in proportion to my belief in other parts of it. Westm. Gaz., No. 5277, 4a. (= Dutch in ruwe trekken.)

Note. Sometimes without the definite article: Such in rough is the Draft Constitution. ib., No. 4925, 1c.

sly. i. He had cunning ways of doing you a mischief by the sly. G. ELIOT, Mill, II, Ch. III, 145. (= Dutch in het geniep.)

I can hardly bear to think of all the rough work she did with those lovely hands all by the sly. Id., Scenes, I, Ch. VII, 55. (= Dutch in stilte.)

ii. This diversion was enjoyed on the sly and unknown to the ladies of the house. THACK., Virg., Ch. XVI, 157. (= Dutch in stilte.)

sudden. Following the fliers at the very heels, | With them he enters; who upon the sudden, | Clapp'd to their gates. Coriol., I, 7, 52.

Then Galahad on the sudden and in a voice | Shrilling along the hall to Arthur, call'd [etc.]. TEN., Holy Grail, 288.

Oliphant grew hot on the sudden. HAL. SUTCL., The Lone Adventure, Ch. II, 34.

Note. Apparently only archaic and literary, (all) on a sudden, and, more frequently, (all) of a sudden being mostly used instead.

usual. My request is so out of the usual that I feel an embarrassment. Eng. Rev., Aug. 1912, 31. (= Dutch iets buitengewoon.) Compare: common and ordinary.

worse. Lord's on the Eton and Harrow match-day has suffered a change for the worse. NORRIS, My Friend Jim, Ch. VIII, 54. (= Dutch ten kwade.)

Either it (sc. Liberalism) or Europe, or both, have gravely changed for the worse, since the middle-aged men of to-day were young. For the worse, we say, but not for the worst. Nation (Westm. Gaz., No. 5255, 16). (Observe the nonce-formation for the worst.)

wrong. He has forgiven it, although he was in the wrong. THACK., Sam. Titm., Ch. XIII, 178. (= Dutch het mis hebben.)

Nor was the public much in the wrong. MAC., Fred., (671b).

Note also: He had a nose inclining to the aquiline. SMOL., Rod. Rand., Ch. XXII, 148.

He thought the story a little on the extravagant. WASH. IRV., Legend, Postscript.

22. Obs. I. Sometimes the converted adjective denotes at once a quality in a generalizing way and all the objects in which this quality is found. Thus in He admires (is always in quest of etc.) the beautiful and the picturesque we think not only of beauty and picturesqueness in a generalizing way, but also of all things beautiful and picturesque.

He (sc. Scott), the adorer of the old, . . . saw in the fresh movement of humanity that which would destroy all he loved. STOPFORD BROOKE, Stud. in Poetry, Ch. II 1, 63.

The language is, however, scarcely capable of expressing a purely concrete generalized idea by a converted adjective. Thus for the Dutch Het oude is somtijds meer waard dan het nieuwe we could not say The old is sometimes more valuable than the new*. The English for this would run (The old things are sometimes more valuable than (the) new. (For the use of the article see Ch. XXXI, 33, a.)

Also when the generalizing must be understood with some limitation (Obs. IV), the construction with the converted adjective is mostly unavailable. Thus the Dutch Hij verkocht het oude en behield het nieuwe would be translated by He sold what(ever) was old (everything that was old, all the old things), keeping what(ever) was new (everything that was new, all the new things); not by He sold the old, keeping the new*.

Some converted adjectives, however, admit of expressing a notion which resembles a generalized concrete idea with some limitation.

fat. All the way down from London, I had a rogue of a fellow in front of me, eating the fat of the land before me. BLACKM., Lorna Doone, Ch. XXIII, 132. They live on the fat of the land. Graph.

mortal. The black earth yawns: the mortal disappears. TEN., Ode on the Death of the Duke of Wel., IX, 269 (= all that is mortal of him). This application of mortal seems unusual.) quick. He bites his nails to the quick. FOWLER, Conc. Oxf. Dict.

Stung to the quick. ANNAND., Conc. Dict.

The powerlessness of the strong man touched my heart to the quick. CH. BRONTË, Jane Eyre, Ch. XXXVII, 54.

These creatures had now found out a way of galling him to the very quick. MAC., Fred., (678a).

In truth, his misfortunes had now cut to the quick. Ib., (690a).

raw. If he accuses me of this monstrous and almost heroic vulgarity, he will have hit me on the raw. CHESTERTON, (Il. Lond. News, No. 3684, 751c).

Special mention may be made of certain superlatives, such as:

best. Eliza... now came trying to sit on my knee, and kiss me, and give me the best of the pan. BLACKMORE, Lorna Doone, Ch. XXII, 126.

worst. When they hear 'king's service' cried, they give me the worst of everything. Ib., Ch. XXIII, 132.

II. Instead of the converted adjective we sometimes find:

a) a noun indicating a person or animal which is regarded as the embodiment of the quality. Such a noun may stand with or without the definite article.

i. Again I might desert fair virtue's way: | Again in folly's path might go astray; | Again exalt the brute and sink the man. BURNS, Stanzas in the Prospect of Death.

But 't was a face more frank and wild | Betwixt the woman and the child. SCOTT, Brid. of Triermain, II, xiv.

The woman in her was yet deeply asleep. AGN. & EG. CASTLE, Diam. cut Paste, I, Ch. II, 29.

ii. An alarming amount of devil there. G. ELIOT, Mill, VI, Ch. II, 348.

He held that a revolutionary fanatic was a mixture of fool and scoundrel. LESLIE STEPHEN, George Eliot, Ch. I, 2.

And in that mystery | Where God-in-man is one with man-in-God, | Prayed for a blessing on his wife and babes. TEN., Enoch Arden, 187.

β) an abstract noun, which, when denoting a generalized quality, normally stands without the definite article. (Ch. XXXI, 34, a.)

Then the inspiring love of novelty and adventure came rushing in full tide through his bosom. WASH. IRV., Dolf Heyl. (STOF., Handl. I, 124).

There were many striking contrasts in the character and behaviour of Shelley, and one of the most remarkable was a mixture, or alternation, of awkwardness with agility — of the clumsy with the graceful. SYMONDS, Shelley, Ch. II 24. (Note the varied practice.)

At last it was the turn of the good old-fashioned dance which has the least of vanity and the most of merriment in it. G. ELIOT, Mill, VI, Ch. X, 407.

- III. Sometimes the abstract noun is identical in form with the adjective. In this case the absence or use of the definite article alone determines the character of the word, abstract nouns standing as regularly without it when denoting generalized ideas as adjectives in this function stand with it. (Ch. XXXI, 31, a; 34, a.) Thus my own conception of right or wrong (SHELLEY) = my own conceptions of the right or (the) wrong. Compare: my own apprehensions of the beautiful and just (SHELLEY).

- IV. As in the case of a class of persons (14, a, Note), the generalizing of a quality is sometimes to be understood with some limitation, which finds expression in an adverb, an adnominal word-group containing a preposition, or an adnominal clause, or must be understood from the context.

i. The sole aim of art is to attain the supremely beautiful.¹⁾

ii. For indeed I knew | Of no more subtle master under heaven | Than is the maiden passion for a maid, | Not only to keep down the base in man, | But teach him high thought [etc.]. TEN., Guin., 476.

O Loyal to the royal in thyself. Id., To the Queen, 1.

Never dissociate your ideas from the real of life. G. MEREDITH, (Athen., No. 4434, 438a).

He has all the best of me without the bad of me. HARDY, Tess., VII, Ch. LVIII, 514.

Charlotte rubbed her smooth cheek affectionately against the rough woollen of her sister's frock. MAR. CRAWF., Kath. Laud., I, Ch. XII, 229.

iii. The poet might as wisely and as easily determine that his mind should no longer be the mirror of all that is lovely in the visible universe, as exclude from his contemplation the beautiful which exists in the writings of a great contemporary. SHEL., Pref. to Prom. Unbound.

iv. In recording the doings of a large school the bad has to be told with the good. Mrs. WOOD, Orv. Col., Ch. VI, 92.

It is the sweet and bitter mixed that gives life its flavour. JOHN OXENHAM, Great-heart Gillian, Ch. VII, 52.

In conclusion, I think from the foregoing I have proved how futile it is for statesmen to continue the controversy regarding the fiscal policy of this country. Eng. Rev., Sept. 1912, 280.

Note. Adjectives before the names of such generalized qualities seem to be usually continuative; adverbs in this position may correspond to sentence modifiers:

i. Presently the rude Real burst coarsely in — all evil, grovelling and repellent as she too often is. CH. BRONTË, Vilette, Ch. XII, 134.

His (sc. Sott's) force had made the beautiful dead alive. STOPFORD BROOKE, Stud. in Poetry, Ch. II, 1, 66.

And he would have looked round for the eternal feminine for an explanation. Westm. Gaz. No. 6135, 3b.

ii. The clearly inevitable has duly happened in Parliament.¹⁾ (= what is clearly inevitable, not what is clear inevitableness.)

- V. But for some special cases, for which see Obs. VI, the converted adjective is mostly replaced by another construction when the limitation is one that is or would be expressed by an adnominal word-group or clause. This construction is:

¹⁾ WENDT, Die Syntax des Adjectivs, 39.

a) an abstract noun:

He was much struck by the novelty of this idea. DICK., Ol. Twist, Ch. V, 57.
They laughed and jested at the absurdity of the notion. MAC. CLIVE, (513b).
We expected that the Dutch should recognize as instantaneously as ourselves the wickedness of the institution. FROUDE, Oceana, Ch. III, 44.

β) a word-group consisting of all (or everything) + adnominal clause, or a substantival clause introduced by what(ever).

He was liberal in his commendations of all that he thought beautiful in the poem.

In every venerable precedent they pass by what is essential, and take only what is accidental, they keep out of sight what is beneficial and hold up to public imitation all that is defective. MACAULAY.¹⁾

Thousands who were incompetent to appreciate what was really valuable in his speculation eagerly welcomed a theory which [etc.]. Id.¹⁾

Death is there associated ... not ... with everything that is most endearing in social and domestic charities; but with whatever in darkest in human nature and in human destiny. MAC., Hist., II, Ch. V, 195.

Grant me, I pray you: have your joys apart. | I doubt not that however changed, you keep | So much of what is graceful. TEN., Lanc. and El., 1212.

γ) an adjective followed by thing by way of prop-word.

The next thing I remember is waking up with a feeling as if I had had a frightful nightmare. CH. BRONTË, Jane Eyre, Ch. III, 16.

The strangest thing about it was that from the crown of its head there sprung a bright, clear jet of light. DICK., *Christm. Car.*⁵, II, 34.

The very first thing that I saw on entering the drawing-room was a little group composed of Hilda, Lady Mildred Bracknell and Jim. MORRIS, My Friend Jim, Ch. IV, 29.

The strange thing is that even in this he has no real fire. STOPFORD BROOKE, Stud. in Poetry, Ch. II, II, 68.

I thought that the Government had done the right thing. Times.

VI. The special cases referred to in the preceding Observation are the following:

a) The converted adjective is used for epigrammatic effect. This is especially done when there are two placed in juxtaposition expressing opposite notions.

i. The long and short of the matter is that, if I cannot procure 5000 l. before Saturday, our concern is ruined. THACK., Sam. Titm., Ch. X, 131.

Note. Also with the order of the adjectives reversed, and in Older English the short of the thing (matter):

* Indeed, the short and the long is, I serve the Jew. Merch. of Ven., II, 2, 135.

The short and the long is, our play is preferred. Mids., IV, 2, 35.

And the short and the long of the matter was that ... not one would help us to defend the inn. STEVENSON, Treas. Isl., Ch. IV, 31.

 The short of the thing is, that if you like me, and I like you, we may chance to swing in a hammock together. CONGREVE, Love for Love, III, 3 (250).

ii. As to arguing with himself about the right and wrong of the matter, such a notion never occurred to him. EDNA LYALL, Hardy Norseman, Ch. VI, 49.

¹⁾ WENDT, Die Synt. des Adj., 39.

- β) The converted adjective appears in a materially modified meaning in certain locutions.

the dead of night. At the dead of night a sweet vision I saw. THOM. CAMPB., The Soldier's Dream, II.

the dead of winter. In the dead of winter, when nature is without charm. WASH. IRV.¹⁾ the full of the season. Very good time to come — the very full of the season. THACK., Newc., L, Ch. VI, 70. (Compare: arrayed in the very height of fashion. lb.)

the thick of a town, a crowd etc. Good Heavens! have I often and often thought in the midst of a song, or the very thick of a ball-room, can people prefer this to a book and a sofa, and a dear, dear cigar-box? THACK., Fitzboodlee, Pref. (219).

If you rode straight away from my door here at a round trot for an hour and a half, you would still be in the thick of London. W. MORRIS, News from Nowhere, Ch. X, 72.

I gave him the flat of my hand on his head, and down he went in the thick of the milk-pans. BLACKM., Lorna Doone, Ch. XXII, 126.

I don't like to think of that child in the thick of such a crowd. NORRIS, My Friend Jim, Ch. IX, 59. (Compare: I am for going into the throng of temptations. WYCHERLEY, Gent. Danc. Mast., I, 1 (140).)

- γ) The adjective is one of certain superlatives. As is evidenced by the following quotations, the conversion seems to depend with most of them on the presence of an adjunct containing the preposition of, the proposed thing being mostly required when there is no such adjunct.

best. i. * It is sufficient to add in general terms, that he did the best he could for Mr. Pickwick; and the best, as everybody knows, on the infallible authority of the old adage, could do no more. DICK., Pickw., Ch. XXXIV, 319.

The best I can wish my readers is, that they may be mercifully preserved from finding it anywhere. F. ANSTEY, Vice Versa, Ch. XIX, 383.

This, of course, offers no immediate redress to Turkey, but it is the best that can be done and by no means a bad best. Westm. Gaz.

We have done the best we could to your kind order. Bus. Let. Writer, IX. (= Dutch Wij hebben van uw vriendelijke bestelling gemaakt wat wij konden.)

 Our books contain the best of us. G. MEREDITH (Athen., No. 4434, 437c). You have so plainly here the best of it. BROWNING, Luria, I, 1.

 The fathers and the mothers laugh; but the young ones have the best of them. BLACKM., Lorna Doone, Ch. XXXIV, 206.

And now both Annie knew, and I, that we had gotten the best of mother. lb.

* To make the best of a bad matter, he formed a project in his head to call an assembly of the rest of the foxes. Æsop's Fables, LXVI, 145.

To make the best of a bad matter [etc.] CH. KINGSLEY, Hyp., Ch. I, 8b. When things are inevitable, what can a wise man do but make the best of them? NORRIS, My Friend Jim, Ch. V, 36.

 He made the best of his way for town as soon as the bats began to flit about in the twilight. WASH. IRV., Dolf Heyl. (STOF, Handl., I, 112.)

The two brothers made the best of their way towards Bristol. FREEMAN, Norm. Conq., II, Ch. VII, 154.

1) MURRAY, s. v. dead, B, 2.

 To the best of his means and ability he comments on all the ordinary actions and passions of life almost. THACK., Eng. Hum., Swift, 2.

A whole crowd formed to see me dance, which I did to the best of my power. Id., Sam. Titm., Ch. V, 52.

I will obey you to the best of my ability. NORRIS, My Friend Jim, Ch. IX, 62.

- ii. One way or other all would turn out for the best. WASH. IRV., Dolf Heyl. (STOF., Handl., I, 124).

I dare say all will work out, somehow or other, for the best. Ib., 143.

She did not hesitate to aver that all was for the best. NORRIS, My Friend Jim, Ch. IV, 26.

All is for the best in the best of possible worlds. Ib., 32. (An adaptation of the French: Tout est pour le mieux dans le meilleur des mondes possible.)

I did it all for the best. JAMES PAYN, Glow-Worm Tales, II, D, 55.

I know; you meant for the best. AGN. & EG. CASTLE, Diam. cut Paste, III, Ch. VI, 277.

first. We shall be able to stem the first of the flood. MARRYAT, Poor Jack, XXII.¹⁾ Note. According to MURRAY (s.v. first, II, 5, c), now obsolete in this application, except in the phrases the first of the ebb, flood or tide.

highest. i. We heard from him when the ship stopped at Queenstown, when he was in the highest of hope. DICK., Uncom. Trav., Ch. II, 25.

- ii. His fury was wrought to the highest. CH. BRONTË, Jane Eyre, Ch. XXVII, 389.

hottest. Snatching a shield from a soldier, and otherwise unarmed, Cæsar throws himself into the hottest of the fight. MOTLEY, Rise, I, Ch. I, 7a.

last. * When Gladys came back after seeing the last of her two visitors, she found her mother alone. EDNA LYALL, DONOVAN, I, 216.

Francesca was just in time to see the last of the planet. Id. Knight Er. Ch. X, 86. Few had come to see the last of one who had left none to mourn him. HALL CAINE, The Christian, II, 298.

I should like to see the last of him. CH. READE, It is never too late to mend, I, Ch. II, 38.

 That was the last they saw of Svengali. G. DU MAURIER, Trilby, II, 176.

 In the last of May. WEBST., Dict.

* In carrying that on, he lost the last of his money. TROL., Thack., Ch. I, 8.

least. It was unlucky, to say the least of it, that he should have taken such a long time to discover her beauty. NORRIS, My Friend Jim, Ch. VIII, 56.

strangest. This is strange: and yet the strangest is behind. MAC., Mach., (30a).

thickest. He through the thickest of the fight had led | The fearless on to Victory and to fame. BERNARD BARTON, Sir Philip Sidney, V. (Compare: Thus at seventy-two years of age he fell in the thickest battle. MAC., Fred., (689a).

ut(ter)most. i. The utmost I can say for him in this respect is that he performed those functions with undeviating attention to brevity and despatch. G. ELIOT, Scenes, II, Ch. I, 73.

It was the utmost I could do, to look at him half-gravely. BLACKMORE, Lorna Doone, Ch. XXI, 120.

Let the utmost possible be done to show everything at its best. Rev. of Rev., CCXXII, 538b.

- ii. I hope you are . . . enjoying your holiday to the utmost. G. ELIOT, Letters. (Times, No. 1809, 703d.)

¹⁾ MURRAY.

In him woke | With his first babe's first cry, the noble wish | To save all earnings to the utmost. TEN., EN. ARD., 86.

Had he not striven to the utmost? EDNA LYALL, DONOVAN, II, 213.

I trust you will give me credit for having exerted myself to the utmost. BUS. LET. WRITER, XVII.

Its splendid fighting qualities have been largely neutralized by want of foresight on the part of those whose business it was to utilize the fighting qualities to the utmost. TIMES.

Even when relations between this country and other States have been strained to the utmost, Lord Salisbury has, with scarcely any exceptions worth mentioning, been spoken of with undeviating respect. IB.

worst. i. *The worst that could have happened to him would have been no such serious matter in his case. NORRIS, MY FRIEND JIM, Ch. I, 10.

 The enemy seem to have had the worst of it. TIMES.

Note. For this SCOTT has the worse: I believe the Clan Chattan will have the worse. FAIR MAID, Ch. XXVI, 274.

ii. * He feared the worst. ANSTEY, VICE VERSA, Ch. XVIII, 358.

The general view seems to be that the worst had been experienced. TRUTH, No. 1802, 93b.

 If the worst come to the worst, ye can but walk the two days back again and risp at the manse door. STEV., KIDNAPPED, Ch. I, 1.

(I hoped) that she might have to hold by me, when the worst came to the worst of it. BLACKM., LORNA DOONE, Ch. XX, 117. (Note the unusual addition of of it in the last quotation.)

This also after the following words that have the value of superlatives:

chief. She could perceive that the chief of it was overheard by Mr. Darcy. JANE AUSTEN, PRIDE AND PREJ., Ch. XVIII, 102.

She was never satisfied with the day unless she spent the chief of it by the side of Mrs. Thorpe. ID., NORTH. ABB., Ch. V, 24.

extreme. Sam was . . . waving his hat about, as if he were in the very last extreme of the wildest joy. DICK., PICKW., Ch. XXIV, 219.

The use of next without the prop-word thing, as in the following quotation, seems to be rare.

The next he knew, he was dimly aware that his tongue was hurting. JACK LONDON, THE CALL OF THE WILD, I, 17.

VII. The suppression of the specializing element has in some cases almost reduced the converted adjective to an ordinary noun, the definite article being the only trace of its original function. This applies especially to some applications of certain superlatives, such as first, highest, last and lowest and to future, past and present. For a discussion of at (the) first and at (the) last see Ch. XXX, 38.

first. * This is the first I've heard of it. SHER., SCHOOL FOR SCAND., III, 3.

 Marjory has been my enemy from the first. MRS. ALEX., A LIFE INTEREST, I, Ch. IV, 76. (= from the beginning.)

When I remember how good you have been to me from the first, I could cry to think of the answer. HALL CAINE, THE CHRISTIAN, II, 302.

highest. Glory to God in the highest (An adaptation of the Latin in excelsis). Hosanna in the highest. TEN., EN. ARDEN, 501.

last. * Puertorico will be next considered, the Philippines being reserved for the last. TIMES.

 Be patient till the last. JUL. CÆS., III, 2, 12.

It was not until the last that he expressed the wish. DICK., Little Dorrit, Ch. III, 19a.

Madame de Bernsteyn stayed at the assembly until the very last. THACK., Virg., Ch. XXXVIII, 402.

 She would to the last fain have married Pen. TROL., Thack., Ch. IV, 111.

It is certain that he was, to the last, honoured by his soldiers. MAC., Hist. Ch. I, 137.

To the last he declared he would never consent to make peace with John. HALL CAINE, The Christian, II, 297.

His composure remained undisturbed to the last. NORRIS, My Friend Jim, Ch. V, 37.

To struggle to the last against the new and vulgar superstitions. CH. KINGSLEY, Hyp., Ch. I, 6b.

Cronjé says he will fight to the last. Daily Chronicle.

* Towards the last the pain seemed to leave him, and his end was very peaceful. MURRAY, S. v. last, 9, e.

lowest. The Bright one in the highest | Is brother of the Dark one in the lowest. TEN., Dem. and Pers., 94.

future, past, present. Till the future dares | Forget the past, his fate and fame shall be | An echo and a light unto Eternity. SHELLEY, Adonais, I.

It was part of their plans, for the present and the future. DICK., Bleak House, Ch. XIV, 112.

He did not seem disposed to dwell upon the subject, nor indeed any other that was connected with the present or future. NORRIS, My Friend Jim, Ch. XVII, 112.

Note. Of particular interest are the phrases:

for the present = as for, or as regards the present, Dutch voorloopig.

Monmouth declared that he could prove himself to have been born in lawful wedlock, and to be, by right of blood, king of England, but that, for the present, he waived his claims. MAC., Hist., II, Ch. V, 144. (Compare: How I have thought of this, and of these times, | I shall recount hereafter; for this present, | I would not, so with love I might entreat you, | Be any further moved. JUL. CÆS., I, 2, 165.

For the future (= as for, or as regards the future); in the future (= a) in the time subsequent to some moment of the past or the moment of speaking or writing; β) at an indefinite time or date of the future; γ) from the present moment); in future (= a) from the present moment, henceforth; β) at some or any time or date of the future).

For the future can, in practice, hardly be distinguished from in the future (γ) and in future (a). Instances of in the future (γ) and of in future (β) seem to be infrequent.

The ordinary Dutch equivalents of for the future, and also of in the future (γ) and in future (a) are in het vervolg or voortaan; of in the future (a) in de toekomst; of in the future (β) mettertijd, and of in future (β) te eeniger tijd.

i. The insinuation put me upon observing the behaviour of my mistress more narrowly for the future. SMOL., Rod. Rand., Ch. XIX, 125.

The sky, though far from cloudless, was such as promised well for the future. CH. BRONTË, Jane Eyre, Ch. XXII, 297.

I'm going to be a good boy for the future. NORRIS, My Friend Jim, Ch. XVII, 111.

I turned again and again on my pillow and said that my life for the future would be little more than a curse to me. HUGH CONWAY, Called Back, Ch. I, 3.

Will you undertake to behave better for the future. F. ANSTEY, Vice Versa, Ch. XIX, 377.

He had better be careful for the future. W. W. JACOBS, Odd Craft, H, 145.

He promised amendment for the future. PUNCH, No. 3709, 129c.

- ii. * There seemed no order in these latter visions, save that they were in the future. DICK., Christm. Car.⁵, IV, 101.

In the future, as in the past, Germany and Britain will never meet on the field of battle, save as comrades and as allies. REV. OF REV., CCXXVIII, 522b.

Attempts to combine contradictory methods will lead in the future as they have led in the past, to confusion and failure. FROUDE, O.C., Ch. III, 62.

 All that will be altered in the future. TIMES.

However great the relief may be when martial law ceases, some of its restrictions are likely to be adopted in the future. Ib.

Lord Kitchener told Botha not only that even a modified form of independence could not be discussed, but that anything of the kind was barred as likely to lead to renewed war in the future. Ib.

 I will be better in the future. MRS. ALEX., A Life Interest, I, Ch. I, 29.

I trust... that you will bear my protest in mind and regulate your actions by it in the future. ETH. M. DELL, The Way of an Eagle, II, Ch. XII, 95.

- iii. * I promised them that never a week should pass in future that I did not visit them. CH. BRONTË, Jane Eyre, Ch. XXXIV, 478.

Here they proposed to reside in future. NORRIS, My Friend Jim, Ch. IV, 27.

I hope you will behave yourself properly in future. MRS. ALEX., A Life Interest, I, Ch. I, 29.

 Whenever, in future, you should chance to fancy Mr. Rochester thinks well of you, take out these two pictures and compare them. CH. BRONTË, Jane Eyre, Ch. XVI, 194.

VIII. The converted adjective is largely used in certain adverbial phrases in which the loss of the definite article has obliterated almost all trace of the converted nature of the adjective. Some of these are found in various shades of meaning, for which see the dictionary. It may be observed that the preposition has so closely coalesced with the following word as to have become little more than a prefix.

in brief. In brief, (he) had no imperfection but that of keeping light company at a time. SCOTT, Wav., Ch. XIV, 53b. (Compare: In very brief, the suit is impertinent to myself. Merch. of Ven., II, 2, 146.)

in common. The odour of whisky-and-water was even more decided than in common. THACK., Pend., I, Ch. IX, 102. (= commonly, ordinarily.)

at full. Yet I thy hest will all perform at full. TEN., Morte d'Arthur, 43.

in full. If on receiving the oil paintings they are not according to your taste, you will be at liberty to exchange them for others, or if preferred, the money will be refunded in full. Correspondence.

in general. Edmund might still look grave, and say he did not like the scheme in general, and must disapprove the play in particular. JANE AUSTEN, Mansf. Park, Ch. XVII, 164.

Note. In the older writers we often find in the general, occasional instances occurring somewhat archaically in Present English (FRANZ, Shak. Gram.², § 268).

Your observation, in the general, is undoubtedly just. RICH., CLAR., VII, 337.¹⁾
 What boy at school ever is a coward, — in the general? TROL., THACK., CH. IV, 110.

at large. i. He spoke at large of many things. TEN., MIL. DAUGHT., XX.
 (= Dutch in den breede, breedvoerig)

If we went at large into this most interesting subject. MAC., POPES, (655*b*).
 Compare: The Academy largely described. SWIFT, LAPUTA, CH. V, ARG.
 He expatiated largely on its having been done 'after dinner'. DICK., PICKW.
 CH. III, 28.

Compare also: in broad outline (= Dutch in breede trekken): It might be instructive to trace briefly, in broad outline, the development of that branch of study. TIMES.

ii. You are speaking of London, I am speaking of the nation at large. JANE AUSTEN, MANSFIELD PARK, CH. IX, 96. (= Dutch in het algemeen).
 In his own day he was the poet of England at large. GREEN, SHORT HIST., CH. VII, § 7, 415.¹⁾

iii. I think it might be done, if you really wished to be more at large. JANE AUSTEN, MANSF. PARK, CH. X, 103. (= Dutch vrij in zijn bewegingen, in vrijheid.)

in large. i. There I saw my name in large. BLACKMORE, LORNA DOONE, CH.
 XXIII, 133. (= Dutch in groote letters.)

ii. Where the strong and the weak, this world's congeries, | Repeat in large what they practised in small. BROWNING, OLD PICTURES IN FLORENCE, XXI.¹⁾ (= Dutch in het groot.)

in little. i. The quintessence of every sprite | Heaven would in little show. As you like it, III, 2, 129. (= Dutch in een klein bestek).
 A miniature of loveliness, all grace | Summ'd up and closed in little. TEN.,
 GARDENER'S DAUGHT., 13.

ii. Those that would make mows at him while my father lived, give twenty, forty, fifty, an hundred ducats a-piece for his picture in little. HAML., II, 2, 388.
 (= Dutch in miniatuur.)

iii. They call Brussels Paris in little. JEROME, DIARY OF A PILGRIMAGE, 46.
 (= Dutch Parijs in miniatuur, Parijs in het klein, klein Parijs.)
 Here in the land of Craven a civil war in little was imminent. HAL. SUTCL., PAM THE FIDDLER, CH. II, 27.

of old. In the times of old. PSALM, XLIV, 1.

From of old they had been zealous worshippers. CARLYLE, HERO WORSHIP, 145.

In the brave days of old. MAC., LAYS, HOR.

in ordinary. i. A physician or chaplain in ordinary is one in actual and constant service. An ambassador in ordinary is one constantly resident at a foreign court. ANNAND., CONC. DICT.

ii. A ship in ordinary is one not in actual service, but laid up under the direction of a competent person. Ib.

iii. Their talk took place in the wainscoted parlour where the family had taken their meals in ordinary for at least two centuries past. THACK., VIRG., CH. IV, 42.
 (= on ordinary occasions, in this sense now obsolete.)

in particular. One obelisk in particular signalized itself from all others by its exceeding grace and beauty. TYNDALL, GLAC. OF THE ALPS, I, CH. I, 14.

at short. It is, of course, impossible to deal in anything like a comprehensive manner with this huge mass of material, or to offer at short anything in the way of a considered judgment of its general bearing. TIMES. (= at short notice, Dutch voetstoots.)

¹⁾ MURRAY.

for short (12, e).

in short. In short she adopted without reservation the doctrine that whatever is is right. NORRIS, My Friend Jim, Ch. IV, 26.

in small. See in large.

Note. Numerous are the combinations of the preposition at with a superlative, the latter sometimes with, sometimes without the definite article (Ch. XXX, 41).

i. Life is at best very short. WEBST., Dict.

ii. The thing must have weighed three pounds at the least. JEROME, Sketches.

IX. a) East, west, north and south and their compounds such as north-east, etc., as used in the following quotations, are adverbs turned into quasi-nouns, the intermediate step being that of adjectives.

i. * The Wind just shifted from the East. POPE, Ep. Cobham, 64.1)

 Barking is 7 miles to the east of London. MURRAY.

To the north Rhodesia extends into the heart of the continent; but S. Rhodesia, bounded on the north by the Zambesi, may be included in S. Africa. HARMSWORTH ENCYCL., s. v. South Africa.

 In the same East men take off their sandals in devotion. ROBERTSON, Sermon, Ser. III, III, 38.1)

Heavy clouds hang over the Near East. Westm. Gaz.

ii. The blustering East shall blow. BRYANT, Return of Birds, IV.1)

Note. Instead of to the east (etc.) of we also find east (etc.) of. The traces left by ages of slaughter and pillage were still distinctly perceptible many miles south of the Thames. MACAULAY.2)

The viceroy has sanctioned the construction of 550 miles of tramway-railways in the districts north and south of the North-West provinces. Times.

β) Thus also eastward, westward, etc. as in to the eastward, etc. are adverbs used as quasi-substantives. The definite article is occasionally suppressed.

i. The ship had passed them during the night and was now a good ten miles to the eastward. CH. KINGSLEY, Westw. Hol, Ch. XIX, 140a. Don Guzman sailed to the eastward. Ib., 141a.

They were to attempt their original plan of landing to the westward of the town. Ib., 142b.

ii. The hurricane roars past them to northward. Ib., Ch. XVIII, 135a.

Note. In this collocation eastwards, etc. sometimes appears for eastward, etc.

The Olympic . . . had turned out into the Solent from Southampton Water, shaping her course for Spithead to the eastwards. Times, No. 1812, 2b. (Compare in the sequel of the sentence: and the Hawke was coming into Spithead from the westward.)

23. Certain superlatives partially converted into nouns, and in their altered function denoting a quality thought of substantively, may be modified by a possessive pronoun, sometimes in several shades of meaning.

i. I knew his best and his worst. THOM. W. GORING.1)

ii. She is conscious of looking her best. MELVILLE BROOKES.1)

iii. I did my best to hold my peace. BLACKM., Lorna Doone, Ch. XX, 114.

1) MURRAY.

2) FOELS.—KOCH, Wis. Gram., § 265.

iv. Dressed in her best she went to church. THACK., Van. Fair, II, Ch. III, 29.
He dressed himself in his very best. Id., Pend., I, Ch. XXVIII, 298.
He dressed himself "all in his best" and at last got into the street. DICK., Christm. Car. 5, V, 107.

v. Mr. Warrington always asked everybody to sit and drink, and partake of his best. THACK., Virg., Ch. XXXVII, 387.

first. Many unrough youths that even now | Protest their first of manhood. Macb., V, 2, 11.

highest. Lord Randolph probably reached his highest at Dartford on October 2nd 1886. Rev. of Rev., CXCI, 92a.

last. i. Some time after the receipt of your last, I embarked for Bordeaux. GOLDSM., Letter.

In my last I tried to divert thee with some half-forgotten humours of some old clerks defunct. CH. LAMB, Elia, Oxford in the Vacation.

ii. She (sc. the cat) left the cares of life behind, | And slept as she would sleep her last. COWPER, The Retired Cat, 44.

Here thy Wisest look'd his last. BYRON, Cors., III, 1.

The dying day breathes out her last. JEROME, Three Men in a Boat, Ch. II, 15.

iii. Have you heard Professor X's last. MURRAY, s. v. last, 3, d.

worst. i. Do your worst. BROWNING, Pied Piper.

ii. Even if Thackeray's idea of nabobs be taken at its worst, the comforting fact remains that nabobs must have been scarce. Times, No. 1808, 683a.
(See also under best.)

ut(ter)most. i. Try your utmost. ANNANDALE, Conc. Dict.

ii. Nerves and brain were strained to their uttermost. Mrs. WARD, Rob. Elsm., I, 226.

Note I. Here mention may also be made of:

a) word-groups consisting of at + possessive pronoun + superlative, which are equivalent to predicative superlatives, whether or no preceded by the definite article (Ch. XXX, 36, b);

β) the same word-groups mostly without at, which are used to express the highest effort in the matter of an action (Ch. XXX, 37).

i. The dock was now at its busiest. STEPHENSON, Treas. Isl., 67.

ii. * The birds were singing their loudest. Punch.

 He led me, in a courtly manner, stepping at his tallest, to an open place beside the water. BLACKM., Lorna Doone, Ch. XXI, 119.

II. Finally we call attention to the peculiar idiom on one's lonesome (= Dutch op zijn eentje), as in:

With the advent of the holiday season the old, old conundrum as to whether a married man should enjoy his annual vacation on his lonesome or in the society of his friends is cropping up once more. Pick-me-up, 8/8, 1903.

24. The superlatives first and last and the comparatives former and latter are often used to refer to one particular matter out of a series (of two), mentioned in a preceding part of the discourse. They are then preceded by the definite article, or, less commonly, by a demonstrative pronoun. (Ch. XXX, 11.)

i. * They yield bear and potatoes, much of the first is used in distillation. PENNANT, Tour in Scotl. in 1772, 238.1)

1) MURRAY, s. v. first, II, 5, a.

 The age was either eagerly republican, eagerly patriotic or eagerly materialist, and as the last conquered in the end, the age became not sad, but contentedly apathetic to ideas, to anything but peace and pride and a full purse. STOPP. BROOKE, Stud. in Poetry, Ch. II, II, 69.

 Civilities were exchanged; Brooke opened the door, and Tremaine rang the bell. "Come, Tremaine," said the former, "we two have been trespassing on Mrs. Rashleigh's time". Mrs. ALEX., For his sake, I, Ch. II, 31.

* They would try a new venture with new hopes, perhaps new dangers; they were inured to the latter. CH. KINGSLEY, Westw. Hol., Ch. XXIII, 169a.

- ii. * "Oh, they liked you well enough, I daresay. I like you, but I like to get rid of you sometimes." There could be no doubt as to this last. JER., Paul Kolver, I, Ch. I, 14a.

Presently therefore I slipped away from the noise, and mirth and smoking (although of that last there was not much). BLACKM., Lorna Doone, Ch. XXIX, 174.

I don't think we believed this last, quite. JOHN MASEFIELD, Lost Endeavour, I, Ch. II, 13.

 I have had a great deal to do both with English and American locomotives, and the result of this experience shows that in point of fuel economy the English are the better, but for facility of erection and running repairs, the Americans stand first. This latter is owing to the complication in the English, due to the use of plate framings and inside cylinders. Times.

25. Partially converted adjectives are used to indicate an indefinite number of persons only when they occur in pairs of opposites. In this application they stand without any modifier.

Great and mean | Meet massed in death. SHELLEY, Adonais, XXI.

High and low, all made fun of him. THACK., Van. Fair, I, Ch. V, 41.

There must be classes — there must be rich and poor. Id., II, Ch. XXII, 241.

I am not surprised at young or old falling in love with her. Id., Pend., I, Ch. XI, 117.

Worst and best alike vow themselves to the pursuit of an object which can be attained only by purity. G. C. MACAULAY, Pref. to Tennyson's Holy Grail, 14.

An attempt is being made to bridge the abyss that at present separates brown from white. Rev. of Rev., CCXIII, 218a.

Upon the whole the tyranny of the world is that of male over female rather than that of rich over poor. CHESTERTON, (Il. Lond. News, No. 3718, 124c).

Gentle and simple came to him with their plans. HAL. SUTCL., Pam the Fiddler, Ch. IV, 55.

Note I. Thus also when one of the words is a noun.

What was the connection of employers and employed. SPENCER, Education, Ch. I, 29a.

The key-note of the entire system, whether as applied to teachers or to taught, is organisation. ESCOTT, England, Ch. XVI, 299.

II. In the following quotation the adjective may be understood to be totally converted (11, b):

The butler is especially warned not to allow noble or simple to go into the cellar. THACK., Four Georges, I, 3.

Conversely there is only partial conversion in:

I always said the gentle had all the frolic, while the simple had to sit and nurse the bairns at home. HAL. SUTCL., Pam the Fiddler, Ch. VIII, 119.

26. More varied is the use of partially converted adjectives to indicate an indefinite number of things. We find them in this application:

a) in certain sayings in which they occur in pairs (of opposites).

I take thee . . . to my wedded wife, to have and to hold from this day forward, for better for worse, for richer for poorer, in sickness and in health, to love and to cherish till death us do part. Book of Com. Pray.
And such as I am love indeed | In fierce extremes — in good and ill.
BYRON, Ma z., V (319a).

I started — seeming to espy | The home and sheltered bed, | The sparrow's dwelling, which, hard by | My father's house, in wet or dry | My sister Emmeline and I | Together visited. WORDSWORTH, The Sparrow's Nest, 8.
O'er rough and smooth she trips along. Id., Lucy Gray, XVI.
Away they went through thick and thin. WASH. IRV., Legend, Sketch-Book, 372.

He was determined to throw his lot for good or ill with Maud's brother. Mrs. CRAIK, John Hal., Ch. XXXIX, 423.

Then after a long tumble about the Cape | And frequent interchange of foul and fair, [etc.]. TEN., En. Ard., 529.

And over rough and smooth he rode. W. MORRIS, Earthly Par., The Man born to be King, 41b.

Just after something has befallen us which, for good or ill, will make a great change in our lives, what a totally new aspect the common everyday things about us are apt to wear! ANSTEY, Vice Versa, Ch. XIII, 252.
If the present administration were indeed the only possible one, the plain duty of all Liberals would be to support it through thick and thin. Daily News.

What we are witnessing is a stubborn fight between old and new. Westm. Gaz., No. 6153, 4a.

For good or ill I should have weighed all the political consequences before voting. Ib., No. 6141, 4c.

b) archaically after partitive of preceded by the interrogative what (Ch. XXXVIII, 8, b), the relative what (?) (Ch. XXXIX, 24, d), certain indefinite pronouns or numerals: all (Ch. XL, 3, Obs. III), enough (?) (Ch. XL, 47, b, Note), little, less, least (?) (Ch. XL, 67, Obs. II; 77, Obs. I; 83, Obs. I), much, more, most (?) (Ch. XL, 93, Obs. III; 100, Obs. II; 105), ought (Ch. XL, 24, Obs. IV), something, anything (?), everything (?), nothing (?), Ch. XLIII, 38, Obs. II), or by the compounds whatever (?) and whatsoever (Ch. XLI, 10, Obs. I).

Up to the time of writing no instances have been found after the words marked with a (?). It may, however, be safely assumed that a more prolonged search would have brought some to the light.

i. What is there of ill in't? WYCHERLEY, Plain Deal., II, I.

What is there of good to be expected? JANE AUSTEN, Pride and Prej., Ch. XLIX, 295.

That unutterable something which springs from the soul, and which our sculptors have imparted to the aspect of Psyche, gave her beauty I know not what of divine and noble. LYTON, Last Days of Pomp., I, Ch. I, 12b.

(I) could hear the lips that kiss'd | Whispering I knew not what of wild and sweet. TEN., Tithonus, 61.

O what to her shall be the end? | And what to me remains of good?
Id., In Memoriam, VI, xi.

- ii. You shall hear all I have learnt of extraordinary in other countries. DRYDEN, Marriage à la Mode, I, 1.

For all of wonderful and wild | Had rapture for the lonely child. SCOTT, Lay, VI, xxi.

Conversant with speculations of the sublimest and most perfect natures, the vision in which he embodies his own imaginations unite all of wonderful, or wise, or beautiful, which the poet, the philosopher, or the lover could depicture. SHELLEY, Alastor, Preface.

All of great, | Or good, or lovely, which the sacred past | In truth or fable consecrates, he felt | And knew. Ib., 72.

From the Capitol to the Lateran swept, in long procession, all that Rome boasted of noble, of fair, and brave. LYTTON, Rienzi, IV, Ch. V, 175.

And when the heat is gone from out my heart, | Then take the little bed on which I died | For Lancelot's love, and deck it like the Queen's | For richness, and me also like the Queen | In all I have of rich, and lay me on it. TEN., Lanc. and Elaine, 1113.

Of all that such a recollection implies of saddest and sweetest to both of us, it would become neither of us to speak before the world. ELIZ. BARRETT BROWNING, Dedic. To My Father.

He taught his friend all that he knew of good, brave and generous. SYMONDS, Sir Ph. Sidney, Ch. IV.

- iii. Stones like those at Stonehenge have but little of new or marvellous for him who has seen the rocks beyond the Atlantic. MOORE, Mem., VI, 337.

For that inscription there, | I think no more of deadly lurks therein, | Than in a clapper clapping in a garth. TEN., Princ., II, 208.

His eyes had more of gray and less of blue in them. EDNA LYALL, Hardy Norseman, Ch. II, 15.

Pilgrim... became again... the tender patient nurse who had mothered the lonely child so many years and to whom she had stuck, as the gaying goes, through so little of thick and so much of thin. BARONESS VON HUTTEN, What became of Pam, I, Ch. XIV, 102.

- iv. I would not ought of false. TEN., Princ., V, 392.

- v. The other answers as if something of extraordinary had past betwixt us. DRYDEN, Marriage à la Mode, IV, 4.

That fulness and luxuriance of life's life . . . has in it something of divine. LYTTON, Rienzi, I, Ch. VII, 51.

- vi. Whatsoe'er of strange | Sculptured on alabaster obelisk, | Or jasper tomb, or mutilated sphinx, | Dark Æthiopia in her desert hills | Conceals. SHELLEY, Alastor, 112.

Our bond is not the bond of man and wife. | This good is in it, whatsoe'er of ill, | It can be broken easier. TEN., Lanc. and El., 1200.

27. Obs. I. In most of the above quotations the converted adjective may also be understood as an abstract noun (12, c). This view finds corroboration in the use of indubitable abstract nouns in the same position, and mostly in practically the same meaning. He has, I know not what, | Of greatness in his looks. DRYDEN, Marriage à la Mode, IV, 3.
Your looks have more of business than of love. Ib., V, 5.
All earth can give, or mortal prize | Was mine of regal splendour. BYRON, Hebrew Melodies, All is Vanity, I.

II. When any of the above words is followed by an adjective without partitive of, there is no conversion, the adjective having the value of an undeveloped clause: anything (everything, nothing or something) beautiful = anything (everything, etc.) that is beautiful. See Ch. IV, 17, c. Thus also in:

- i. What is there real in either (sc. life and the stage) to live or care for? DICK, Pickw., Ch. III, 23.
What lovelier of his own had he than her? TEN., Aylmer's Field, 22.
What better could a poor lady do? CH. KINGSLEY, Herew., Ch. VIII, 48a.
What worse can you say of English Ministers than that they should be led by a woman? MRS. WARD, Sir George Tres., Ch. II, 8b.
- ii. To thee whose temple is all space, | Whose altar, earth, sea, skies, | One chorus let all being raise; | All nature's incense rise! POPE, Univ. Pray., XIII.
- iii. There was little grand that I could see in this journey. FROUDE, Oceana, Ch. XX, 330.
 There was indeed little new to be communicated. W. BLACK, Sunrise, II, 57.
 There was little praiseworthy in the cricket. Daily News.
- iv. I had a belief she loved me even when she left me: that was an atom of sweet in much bitter. CH. BRONTË, Jane Eyre, Ch. XXXVII, 546. (Bitter like the preceding sweet, may also be apprehended as the name of a substance [8].)
- v. Whatever there had been which was disastrous in her fortune — whatever there was miserable in her dwelling, it was easy to judge... that neither years, poverty, misfortune, nor infirmity had broken the spirit of this remarkable woman. SCOTT, Bride of Lam., Ch. III, 45.

III. The comparative worse, perhaps on the analogy of its positive ill or evil, is frequently used to denote an indefinite number of things independently of the constructions mentioned in 26 a) and b).

God grant, that some, less noble... | Deserve not worse than wretched Clarence did. RICH. III, II, 1.

Never so rich a gem | Was set in worse than gold. Merch. of Ven., II, 7, 55.
 And me and mine he spared from worse than woe. BYRON, Cors., II, XIII.

And one, in whom all evil fancies clung | Like serpent eggs together, laughingly | Would hint at worse in either. TEN., En. Ard., 478.

This was bad enough, but there was worse to follow. HALL CAINE, The Christian, I, 268.

If this was bad, worse was to come. ANSTEY, Vice Versa, Ch. VI, 131.

Happy for him if he does not learn worse from me. CH. KINGSLEY, Herew., Ch. XV, 64a.

Note I. The comparative better, apparently, occurs less frequently in this application.

I never look'd for better at his hands. RICH. III, III, 5, 50.

There is no hope of better left for him | No place for worse. TEN., Queen Mary, IV, 3 (630b).

This truth within thy mind rehearse, | That in a boundless universe | Is boundless better, boundless worse. ID., Two Voices, IX.

II. The use of bad in this application, as illustrated by the following quotations may be due to its being coupled with good or worse:

i. If God sends us good, he seems to send bad too. G. ELIOT, Adam Bede, I, Ch. II, 19.

ii. Thus bad begins and worse remains behind. HAMLET, III, 4, 179.

So bad proceeded propagated worse. WORDSWORTH, Son. Liberty, II, XLVI.

III. In the following quotation worse seems to be used absolutely, the prop-word one which occurs after the preceding bad, supplying the place of a noun.

He's a bad 'un; but there's worse that put him on. STEVENSON, Treas. Isl., Ch. III, 27.

IV. This seems to be the most suitable place to mention the curious idioms in to make light of (= to treat, consider or represent as of small or no importance), and to make short of a long story (= to make (cut) a long story (tale) short). (Ch. XVIII, 24, Obs. V.)

i. Making light of what ought to be serious. JANE AUSTEN, Emma.¹⁾

It seemed to Mark as though Mr. Forrest made very light of the whole transaction. TROL., Framl. Pars., Ch. XII, 117.

ii. To make short of a long story, I am afraid I have wanted an object. DICK., Bleak House, Ch. LI, 425.

Note. With to make light of compare to make little of (Ch. XL, 67, Obs. VI) and to make much of (Ch. XL, 93, Obs. IX):

Mr. Forrest had made so little of the whole transaction that he felt himself justified in making little of it also. TROL., Framl. Pars., Ch. XII, 118.

He made as little of his real wound as he made much, the day before, of his imaginary one. CH. KINGSLEY, Westw. Hol., Ch. XVIII, 139a.

28. The adjective own, preceded by a genitive or a possessive pronoun, is used as a partially converted adjective both with regard to persons and things, mostly in a collective sense.

According to MURRAY (s. v. own, 3) this use of own is, except for certain phrases, archaic.

i. * And pass his days in peace among his own. TEN., En. Ard., 47.

Like one who does his duty by his own. Id., 329.

The cup from which our lord | Drank at the last supper with his own. Id., Holy Grail, 47.

Keats was a Cockney, and Cockneys claimed him for their own. Blackw. Mag.
The moor loves her own, as human mothers do. HAL. SUTCL., The Lone Adventure, Ch. I, 9.

 We both have undergone ! That trouble which has left me thrice your own. Id., Ger. and En., 736.

Within a few days Francesca might be his own. EDNA LYALL, Knight Errant, Ch. I, 10.

ii. * My gracious lord, I come but for mine own. Rich. II, III, 3, 191.

Is it not lawful for me to do what I will with my own? Bible, Matth., XX, 15.

An honest man may rob himself of his own at any time. GOLDSM., She Stoops, III, (199).

When rogues fall out, honest men come by their own. THACK., Sam. Titm., Ch. X, 117.

Others observed with a shrug that if the devil did carry off the youngster, it would but be taking his own. WASH. IRV., Dolf Heyl. (STOF., Handl., I, 126).

"Well," said the first. "Old Scratch has got his own at last, hey?" DICK., Christm. Car., IV, 88.

To them he (sc. Monmouth) was still the good Duke, the Protestant Duke, the rightful heir, whom a vile conspiracy kept out of his own. MAC., Hist., II, Ch. V, 145.

1) MURRAY.

And here enters the railroad rebate — the modern battering-ram for crushing those who fight to save their own. Miss TARBELL (Rev. of Rev., CXCVI, 417b).

 If she gives you the garnets, take what you can get. The jewels are your own already. GOLDSM., She Stoops to Conquer, III, (201). (= in your possession.)

 Charity ... seeketh not her own. Bible, Corinth., A, XIII, 5. (= her own profit or interest.)

* And if the fool should come again, I would tell him his own, I warrant you, cousin. WYCHERLEY, Gent. Danc. Mast., I, 1, (138). (= his own shortcomings.)

Note I. Of especial interest are to hold one's own (= to maintain one's position or standing against opposition or rivalry. MURRAY), the colloquial or vulgar on one's own (= on one's own account, responsibility or resources), and to come into one's own (= to come into one's element).

- i. I had much ado to hold mine own against old Gurth. TEN., Har., I, 1, (657b).
Until now the boat barely held her own. DICK., Our Mut. Friend, I, Ch. I, 3.

She had quite spirit enough to hold her own. THACK., Newc., I, Ch. XXVIII, 318.
Compare: You — Gentlemen! by dint of long seclusion | From better company, have kept your own | At Keswick. BYRON, Don Juan, Dedication. V.

- ii. One can greet the play 'on its own', to borrow a popular phrase, *Westm. Gaz.*¹⁾
The Times... appear to have inserted the notice on their own. *Law Notes.*¹⁾
- iii. With the founding of the "Overland Monthly" Bret Harte began to come into his literary own. Acad. and Lit.

Little Billee would have come into his own again. DU MAURIER, Trilby, II, 31.
And shall we ever come into our own again? HARDY, Tess, I, Ch. I, 6.

- II. In address we also find own, after my, indicating a single person, very much in the same sense as dear or sweet (14, d, Note II).

Did you speak, my own? CH. BRONTË, Jane Eyre, Ch. XXVII, 214.

My own heart's heart and ownest own, farewell. TEN., Maud, I, XVIII, 74.

- III. In such turns of expression as This is a house of my own; He has several houses of his own; She has no children of her own; we have to deal with an adjective used absolutely.

- IV. In the following quotations own may be understood as either absolute or substantival:

Her faults were mine — her virtues were her own. BYRON, Manfred, II, 2.

The poem is written in Spenserian stanzas, with a rapidity of movement and a dazzling brilliance that are Shelley's own. SYMONDS, Shelley, Ch. V, 96.
(Compare: There is a richness and energy in this passage (sc. Byron, Childe Har., III, xxxiii), which is peculiar to Lord Byron. JEFFREY.)

Here at least his thoughts were his own. BARRY PAIN, The Culmin. Point.
His house is his own. SWEET, N. E. Gr., § 2116.

¹⁾ MURRAY, s. v. own, 3, c.

CHAPTER XXX.

DEGREES OF COMPARISON.

1. Degrees of comparison are observed in:

a) adjectives and adverbs denoting:

- 1) a quality or state (DEN HERTOOG, Ned. Spraakkunst, III, § 9, Opm. 5, b): quick, quickly; sick.
- 2) a distance in space or time: near, far, early, soon. Here also belong the prepositional adverbs in, up, etc.

b) the indefinite numerals much (many) and little (few).

Note I. For nouns that have a comparative or a superlative see Ch. XXIII, 4, II; and 17, d.

II. A quality or a state is often expressed by a word-group having for its chief component parts a preposition and a noun, e. g.: at liberty, at leisure. Such a word-group is often furnished with the intensive adverbs more or most, which does not essentially differ from placing it in the comparative or superlative degree.

As soon as I am a little more at leisure, I mean to look in at their rehearsals too. JANE AUSTEN, Mansf. Park, Ch. XVIII, 173.

2. There are two ways of forming the degrees of comparison, viz. the Germanic way, which is effected by the suffixes er and est, and the French way, which is effected by the adverbs more and most. The first mode may be called terminational, as opposed to the periphrastic, by which term the second is commonly designated.

Note I. To express different degrees of a quality in a falling line the language has no terminations, but mostly applies the adverbs less and least. These forms with less and least may, of course, with equal justice be called periphrastic comparison as those with more and most, but present no features requiring any comment in this connection.

II. Some adjectives belonging to the foreign element of the language have the value of comparatives or superlatives, without either of the above suffixes. Such are a) major, minor; anterior, posterior; inferior, superior; and other Latin comparatives in ior; β) chief, principal, premier, extreme, supreme.

Some of these are sometimes understood as positives (30).

The major part of the conversation was confined to Mrs. Weller and the reverend Mr. Stiggins. DICK., Pickw., Ch. XXVII, 244.

None but a few very privileged visitors were allowed to go near the sheds. Therefore, the honour of seeing some of the premier flying-men of the world, as it were, at home was all the more appreciated by those able to do so. II. Lond. News, No. 3679, 565.

The razor, which excels all others, ... has attained and kept its premier position by virtue of its reliable qualities. Ib., No. 3777, 427*b*.

Whichever (course) is adopted, it is of supreme importance that it should be accepted whole-heartedly by the Liberal and Labour Party. Westm. Gaz., No. 5225, 1*c*.

3. In Old English the comparative was usually formed by or (ur), the superlative by ost (ust, ast, est). The full termination or (ur) was only found in the comparative of adverbs; in the comparative of adjectives the o was elided; thus: lēof (= dear) — lēofra, lēofre, lēofre — lēofost.

A few words showed vowel-mutation, of which only eald — ieldra — ieldest; nēah (adv.) — nēarra, nēar (adv.) — nēahst, nēhst, nēxt (adv.) have left traces in Modern English.

In some English words we find the relic of another comparative suffix, viz. ther; thus in other, either, neither, whether, further. These forms are only used when two (groups of) persons or things are thought of.

In a few superlatives, whose positives only occur as adverbs, we find an older termination m; thus in forma (= first). When the meaning of this ending was forgotten, the other, viz. ost (est), was superadded, and the new double ending mest was at an early date written mæst, through confusion with mæst, the superlative of much. Hence fyrmost was made into formest, foremost; ȳtemest, utemest into utmost, etc. In these and others (see below) most is not, therefore, to be regarded as the superlative of much, though all these compounds arose under the direct influence of this superlative. STOF., Taalstudie, I, 30; SWEET, N. E. Gr., § 1043; COOK—SIEVERS, Old Eng. Gram., § 314, Note II. For illustration see below.

For Old English æftmost (= last) and niþmost (= lowest) Middle English severally substituted aftermost and neþmost, the forms after and neþer, although originally comparatives, being understood as positives. Undermost was formed on the analogy of neþmost. Other superlatives of place now came to be formed directly from comparatives by adding most; thus furthermost, innermost, lowermost, uppermost. From furthermost was formed the double comparative furthermore.

The ancient forms innerest, utterest, etc. are occasionally met with archaically.

And all of them redder than rosiest health or than utterest shame. TEN., The Voyage of Maeldune, 65. (The reference is to apples.)

In the Modern English former the comparative suffix er was added to the old superlative form(a).

CHAUCER has forme-fader for Present English fore-father.

And moreover whan our lord hadde creat Adam our forme-fader, he seyde in this wyse [etc.]. Tale of Mel., § 15, Cant. Tales, B, 2292.

4. Some adjectives and adverbs undergo a slight modification in spelling before the suffixes er and est.

a) Final e is dropped: large — larger — largest, free — freer — freest.

b) Final y preceded by a consonant is changed into i in the case of all adjectives or adverbs of two or more syllables: pretty — prettier — prettiest.

Of adjectives of one syllable the y is usually retained: sly — slyer — slyest, spry — spryer — spryest, shy — shyer — shyest.

In the comparative and superlative of dry, however, the y is mostly changed into i: dry — drier — driest.

The y is, of course, regularly retained when preceded by a vowel, as in gay — gayer — gayest.

- c) A final consonant when single and preceded by a stressed vowel is doubled: big — bigger — biggest.

The l is also doubled when preceded by an unstressed vowel: cruel — crueller — cruellest.

5. Some adjectives and adverbs, many of which are among those most frequently met with, form the degrees of comparison in an irregular way. This is also the case with the numerals much (many) and little. We may distinguish the following groups:

- a) words that have the comparative and superlative derived from an obsolete base different from that of the positive: bad(ly), il(ly), evil(ly) — worse, worser, badder — worst; good — better — best; little — less, lesser, littler — least, littlest; many — more — most.
- b) adjectives and adverbs that have the comparative and superlative formed from the positive, but show epenthesis, contraction or vowel-change. Some of these have also regular forms with different meanings, one has cumulative formations in more and most (3): far — farther, further, farthermore, furthermore — farthest, furthest, farthermost, furthermost; late — later, latter — latest, last; near — nearer — nearest, next; old — older, elder — oldest, eldest.
- c) adverbs that are also used as prepositions either of the same form or with some prefix, and have the superlative formed by most, which is attached either to the positive or the comparative (3): (be)fore — former — foremost, flrst; (be)hind — hinder — hind(er)most; in — inner — in(ner)most; (be)neath — nether, nethermore — nethermost; off (originally af) — after — aftermost; out — outer, utter — out(er)most, ut(ter)most; (ab)ove — over — overmost; up — upper — up(per)most.

Note. Superlatives like the above are sometimes formed of words which are ordinarily compared regularly. Thus the ordinary degrees of comparison of low are lower — lowest, but besides lowest we also meet with lowermost as in:

It (sc. the bladder) is situated at the lowermost point of the abdomen. Pears' Cycl., s.v. bladder.

- d) adjectives and adverbs, which have one or other degree wanting: ere — erst; mid — middest, midst, midmost; middle — middlemost; under — undermost; eastern — easternmost, etc.

To these we may add rath(e) — rather — rathest, ratherest, of which only the comparative is now in common use in standard English.

In the following discussions the observations under a) deal with the form and grammatical function, those under b) with the meaning of the respective adjectives and adverbs.

6. Bad (badly, ill, illy, evil, evilly) — worse — worst.

a) 1) Illy is now only met with in dialects. MURRAY.

2) In Middle English worse was pronounced in two syllables, as in: Now is my prison worse than befor. CHAUC., Cant. Tales, A, 1226.

The dissyllabic worse may afterwards have suggested the form worser, which is repeatedly found in SHAKESPEARE, mostly as an adjective, but also as an adverb.

i. QUEEN. — O Hamlet thou hast cleft my heart in twain. HAML. — O throw away the worser part of it. HAML., III, 4, 154.

I wis your grandam had a worser match. Rich., III, 1, 3, 102.

ii. "How do you now, lieutenant?" — The worser that you give me the addition | Whose want even kills me. Oth., IV, 1, 105.

Is he married? | I cannot hate thee worser than I do, | If thou again say 'yes'. Ant. & Cleop., II, 5, 90.

In Late Modern English worser is used archaically in poetry, and in the language of the illiterate. FRANZ, E. S., XII; id., Shak. Gram.², § 217.

i. Or at the worser end (sc. of life) | A quiet grave till doomsday rend the earth. W. MORRIS, The Earthly Par.; Prol., 6a.

Nay, friends, believe your worser life now past. Ib., 15a.

Lest unto thee there fall a worser thing. Id., The Proud King, 93a.

ii. "Who, Joe? None of the servants, I hope." — "Worser than that," roared the fat boy in the old lady's ear. DICK., Pickw., Ch. VIII, 68. But in sooth Mr. Slope was pursuing Mrs. Bold in obedience to his better instincts and the Signora to his worser. TROL., Barch. Tow., Ch. XXVII, 225. (Here, evidently, due to the preceding better, the sentence not being the utterance of an uneducated man.)

3) Originally worse and worst belonged only to ill and evil, bad being compared badder — baddest. The latter forms were supplanted by worse and worst when bad had assumed the meaning of evil, its original sense being, probably, hermaphrodite. Badder and baddest occur in the literature from the 14th to the 18th century (in Defoe, 1721). MURRAY. In Present English it is still found in dialects.

He is very bad, sir; badder than ever, I do think. MRS. CRAIK, John Hal., Ch. XIII, 130.

b) Worse is sometimes used in the meaning of less, in like manner as better sometimes stands for more. (7, b, 1, a.)

I hadn't the pleasure of knowing his distresses till he was some thousands worse than nothing. SHER., School for Scand., III, 1.

7. Good (well) — better — best.

a) Down to the end of the 16th century, and archaically in occasional instances after that date, we meet with the form bet as a comparative, both as an adverb and as a predicative adjective. Compare the Dutch betweter, betovergrootvader.

i. We deserve full bet then they. FERNE.¹⁾

1) MURRAY.

ii. Bet is to dyen than have indigence. CHAUCER, Cant. Tales, B, 114.

Bet is to be wedded than to brinne. Ib., D, 52. (brinne = to burn.)

Best shows the same contraction as last.

Gooder is sometimes jocularly used for better. MURRAY does not acknowledge this form.

It's gooder to be back. RUDY. KIPLING, The Light that failed, Ch. XI, 151.

- b) 1) Better is sometimes used in the meaning of a) more or longer (STOF., E. S., XXXI, 264), β) greater in the better part, half. Compare b, 3.
- i. Lady B. is better than three months advanced in her progress to maternity. BYRON (LYTTON, Life of Byron, 22a).
"Wy, Sammy," said the father, "I han't seen you for two year and better."
Dick., Pickw., Ch. XX, 177.
Rather better than twelve years ago. Id., Little Dorrit, Ch. X, 61.
 - ii. * But were I not the better part made mercy, | I should not seek an absent argument | Of my revenge, thou present. As you like it, III, 1, 2.
The better part of valour is discretion. Henry IV, A, V, 4, 121.
 Forced to sell the better half of his estate. SWIFT, Let.

Note also the following idioms:

- i. * And be good to her, do you hear? Else I'll let you know better.
G. ELIOT, Mill, I, Ch. V, 30.
They would know a great deal better than to insult a sister of mine.
BLACKM., Lorna Doone, Ch. XXX, 177.
I hope you know better than to tempt her to disobey me. CH. READE,
It is never too late to mend, I, Ch. I, 18.
 If I let you shriek your abominable little throat hoarse, you'll learn better than to torment your uncle. JOHN HABBERTON, Helen's Babies, 39.
For further instances see also Ch. XVIII, 7, Note; 28, e.
- ii. Mr. Acland appeared disconsolate at the breakfast-table, feeling keenly his utter dependence on his better half. Mrs. ALEX., A Life Int., I, Ch. V, 79.

Of the following idiomatic applications no Late English instances have been found:

- iii. His health was never better worth than now. Henry IV, A, IV, 1, 27.
(= more worth.)
The very train of her worst wearing gown was better worth than all my father's lands. Henry VI, B, I, 3, 89.
- iv. He damns himself to do and dares better be damned than to do it. All's Well, III, 6, 96. (= dares rather.)
Surrey durst better have burnt that tongue than said so. Henry VIII, III, 2, 253.
- v. I can be no better. Meas. for Meas., V, 189. (= It must, alas! have been been so.)
- 2) Bettermost formed on the analogy of uppermost, uttermost, etc., although by MURRAY pronounced to be a colloquialism, seems to occur also in ordinary literary English. Its meaning is rather that of a comparative than a superlative. MURRAY's definition is "best (relatively rather than absolutely)".
Others, — those that work with their hands, even the bettermost of such workers — could live in decency and health upon even such provision as he could earn as a clergyman. TROL., Framl. Pars., Ch. XIV, 139.
- 3) Best is used in the sense of greatest or greater in the collocation the best part (33). Compare b, 1.

Admiral Bowster stared during the best part of the service, his very hardest. Miss BRADDON, My First Happy Christm. (STOF., Handl., I, 70). She will sit up wth him best part of the night. Mrs. CRAIK, John Hal., Ch. XIII, 130.

STOF. (E. S. XXXI, 264) observes that best has the sense of most in the epithet best-abused, as in the best-abused statesman in the United kingdom.

8. Little — less, lesser — least.

- a) Except for lesser, which now occurs almost exclusively as an attributive adjective, these forms are used as adjectives, indefinite numerals and adverbs.

Little as a predicative adjective is uncommon (Ch. XXVIII, 7, c), its place in this application being mostly taken by small. As an indefinite numeral it is used both attributively and predicatively.

Less, both as an adjective and an indefinite numeral, is applied both attributively and predicatively.

Least as an adjective is used only attributively, as an indefinite numeral both attributively and predicatively.

SHAKESPEARE has lesser also as a predicative adjective and as an adverb. Lesser-known occurs as a rhythmical variant of less-known.

- b) As adjectives less and least mostly refer to significance, seldom to size, i. e. they correspond rather to the Dutch geringer and geringste, than to the Dutch kleiner and kleinste. The line of demarcation between significance and size cannot, however, always be strictly drawn. According to MURRAY (s. v. less, A, I, 2, a) the use of less in the sense of "of lower station, condition or rank; inferior" is now obsolete, except in phrases like "no less a person than". Late Modern English instances cannot, however, be said to be infrequent. According to the same authority (s. v. least, I, 2) the use of least in the sense of "lowest in power or position; meanest" is now archaic.

With regard to size, smaller and smallest are the ordinary substitutes, littler and littlest being occasionally met with, chiefly archaically and dialectically, sometimes to express some emotional notion.

Small and its degrees of comparison are quite frequently used to denote significance, small and especially smallest sometimes in a way which makes it difficult to distinguish them from little and least as indefinite numerals, i. e. as equivalents of the Dutch weinig en minste.

Smaller is also used as a variant of lesser.

In some combinations slight and its superlative slightest are in especial favour when an idea of significance is to be expressed. Also such superlatives as faintest, remotest, etc. are in some combinations practically equivalent to least.

Lesser mostly denotes one (group) of two (groups of) persons or things which is of minor importance or significance as compared with the other. It is, accordingly, mostly preceded by the definite article, which, indeed, when occasion requires, is replaced by another modifier: a demonstrative pronoun, or a genitive or possessive pronoun. Less frequently does it denote the least important of a larger number than two, in which case we may find it preceded by the indefinite article, or, if the following word is a plural or an abstract noun without a plural, by a numeral or no modifier at all. Not infrequent is the use of lesser to denote size, i.e. in the sense of the Dutch kleiner.

In some cases lesser may have been preferred to less, and vice versa, for the sake of rhythm or metre. Compare FIJN VAN DRAAT, Rhythm in Eng. Prose, The Adj., § 34.

For illustration of little, less and least as indefinite numerals and adverbs see Ch. XL, 64 ff. For the application of less with reference to a plural see Ch. XXVI, 16.

little. She was called tall and gawky by some and a Maypole by others of her own sex, who prefer littler women. THACK., Pend., I, Ch. XXI, 213.

The littler the maid, the bigger the riddle to my mind. HARDY, Under the Greenwood Tree, II, Ch. V, 109.

littlest. Where love is great, the littlest doubts are fear. Hamlet, III, 2, 183.

To hold | The poorest, littlest page in reverence. BEAUM. and FLETCH., Queen of Corinth, IV, 1.

It wants constant attention in the littlest things. DICK., Our Mut. Friend, III, Ch. V, 84.

I suppose in these days anybody who held such a doctrine as that would have been saluted as the littlest Roman. Sir W. HARCOURT (Times).

I have lost him now for ever . . . and he will not love me the littlest bit ever any more — only hate me. HARDY, Tess, VII, Ch. LVI, 497.

less, as an adjective, used a) attributively, 1) to denote significance: You may be assured I'd not sell my freedom under a less purchase than I did my estate. FARQUHAR, The Recruiting Officer, IV, 1, (306).

I meekly told the waiter that I had bought beer at Jerusalem at a less price. THACK., Notes on a Week's Holiday (PARDOE, Sel. Eng. Es., 450).

To have seen her, quiet in her coffin, would have been a less surprise. DICK., Chuz., Ch. XXVIII, 232a.

It would probably be a rare exception to find any large property in the present day on which the contract system does not exist to a greater or less extent. ESCOTT, England, Ch. III, 28.

Some forty others were injured in greater or less degree. Il. Lond. News, No. 3777, 412.

When a country is conquered by a new tribe or race, its earlier inhabitants are rarely entirely supplanted by the invaders, a greater or less number of the former usually being preserved in the more remote and inaccessible places. Westm. Gaz., No. 6035, 13a.

2) to denote size: If he were ever a big old man, he has shrunk into a little old man; if he were always a little old man, he has dwindled into a less old man. DICK., Little Dorrit, Ch. XXXI, 187a.

3) in the sense of lesser: So doth the greater glory dim the less. Merch. of Ven., V, 1, 93.

What great ones do the less will prattle of. Twelfth Night, I, 2, 33.

James the Greater . . . James the Less. COBHAM BREWER, Dict. of Phrase and Fable, s.v. apostles.

Add together the sum, difference, product and quotient (the greater being divided by the less) of $\frac{3}{4}$ and $\frac{7}{8}$. YOUNG, Arithmetic.

b) predicatively, 1) to denote significance: "But is the fever less?" — "Sometimes less and sometimes more, I imagine." TROL., Framl. Pars., Ch. XXXVI, 346.

- 2) to denote size: Or ask of yonder argent fields above, | Why Jove's satellites are less than Jove. POPE, Es. on Man, I, 42.

Little as she had always looked, she looked less than ever when he saw her going into the Marshalsea lodge passage. DICK., Little Dorrit, Ch. IX, 53a. In stature it (sc. the quagga) is rather less than the well-known zebra. Cassell's Conc. Cycl.

The average size of the antlers of wild stags to-day . . . is considerably less than it was even a few years ago. Westm. Gaz., No. 6035, 13a.

- lesser used a) attributively, 1) denoting significance, a) with regard to two:

- i. the Lesser Antilles, the Lesser Bear.

And God made two great lights; the greater light to rule the day, and the lesser light to rule the night. Bible, Gen., I, 16.

Woman is the lesser man. TEN., Locksley Hall, 151.

As the more important schemes could not be commenced at a moment's notice, she would begin with the lesser. WALT. BESANT, All Sorts and Cond. of Men, Ch. VI, 39.

Perpetrators of larcenies of the Lesser kind. ESCOTT, England, Ch. IV, 48.

In comparing two words A and B, belonging to the same language, of which A contains the lesser number of syllables, A must be taken to be the more original word, unless we have evidence of contraction or other corruption. SKEAT, Etym. Dict., 23.

Note. In Lesser Asia (now mostly Asia Minor) the definite article is dropped. (Ch. XXXI, 28, a.)

- ii. Lear rebuked him and said that these lesser evils were not felt, where a greater malady was fixed. LAMB, Tales, Lear, 160.
- iii. England's lesser colonies, our lesser poets.

- β) with regard to more than two: i. If I had had a lesser bribe to offer you at the moment, I should only have given you that. THACK., Sam. Titm., Ch. VII, 81.

By taking one third you would only get a lesser share. JOHN BLOUNDELLE BURTON, The Hispaniola Plate, Ch. XXXIV, 108.

The majority who took up arms at the second call, were men who shouldered a rifle at 5 s. a day, considering it a lesser evil than semi-starvation in the seaboard towns. Times.

The power of feeling without actually touching . . . seems to be present to a greater or lesser extent in most animals accustomed to moving in the dark. Westm. Gaz., No. 6047, 13a.

- ii. It (sc. the king's majesty) is a massy wheel, | Fix'd on the summit of the highest mount, | To whose huge spokes ten thousand lesser things | Are mortised and adjoin'd. HAML., III, 3, 19.

- iii. * In wearing mine (sc. my favour) | Needs must be lesser likelihood, noble lord | That those who know should know you. TEN., Lanc. and El., 365.
-  Lesser officials of all kinds, fifty years ago, affected Primness as a part of Personal Dignity, which has been since so largely lost. WALT. BESANT, Bell of St. Paul's, I, Ch. II, 41.

Such genius as his (Shakespeare's) has its own laws and privileges, and cannot very well be brought in as an element when discussing the procedure of much lesser men. Westm. Gaz.

The far-reaching questions which Burke raised before the High Court of Parliament are now raised almost daily by lesser Burkes in the High Court of the Press. Times, No. 1808, 683b.

- 2) denoting size, Dutch kleiner. Which of the two was daughter of the duke | That here was at the wrestling — Neither his daughter, if we judge by manners; | But yet indeed the lesser is his daughter. As you like it, I, 2, 284.

Laurence saw before him a young man of his own age, but of slighter build and lesser stature. WALT. BESANT, The Bell of St. Paul's, I, Ch. II, 31.
Her breathing now was quick and small, like that of a lesser creature than a woman. HARDY, Tess, VII, Ch. LVIII, 516.

b) predicatively: Lesser than Macbeth and greater. Macb., I, 3, 65.

c) adverbially: Some say he's mad, others, that lesser hate him, | Do call it valiant fury. Id., V, 2, 13.

He has since travelled in New Guinea, the Solomons and many of the lesser-known islands which lie north and north-east of Australia. Athen., No. 4467, 627a.

It is to the Zoological Gardens that one must go to get into contact with the lesser-known species. Westm. Gaz., No. 6264, 13a.

Note. In the following quotation lesser, like greater, is merely used as a vocable:

We rejoice at the common-sense which clears away notions of greater or lesser in such matters. Westm. Gaz., No. 5501, 2a.

least: a) denoting significance: Not in the least degree. MASON, Eng. Gram.³⁴, 34.

How strange that she should never had the least idea. Miss BRADDON, Captain Thomas.

A stanza is the least group of lines involving all the peculiarities of metre and arrangement of rhymes, characteristic of the piece where it enters. BAIN, Eng. Composition, 241.

The system ... contains nothing the least cranky. Punch, No. 3712, Advertisement.

b) denoting size: "Upon my life, the whole social system is a system of princes' nails!" said this least of women. DICK., Cop., Ch. XXII, 164b.

Little Emily was sitting by my side on the lowest and least of the lockers. Ib., Ch. III, 16b.

Little Dorrit seemed the least, the quietest, and weakest of Heaven's creatures. Id., Little Dorrit, Ch. IX, 50a.

c) denoting station or rank: "Thy fear," said Zephon bold, | "Will save us trial what the least can do | Single against thee, wicked, and thence weak." MILTON, Par. Lost, IV, 865.

In these days Mrs. Proudie considered herself to be by no means the least among bishops' wives. TROL., Framl. Pars., Ch. XVII, 163.

small, denoting quantity, corresponding to the Dutch weinig: Thyrsis and Menalcas would have had hard labour to count them, and small time, I fear, for singing songs about Daphne. LYTTON, Caxtons, XVII, Ch. I, 449.

The little volume... gave small promise as to his Lordship's future hours being well employed. Id., Life of Lord Byron, 15b.

So with small food and much of Homer and the accordion, a week passed over the heads of the outcasts. BRET HARTE, Outcasts, 29.

smallest, denoting quantity, corresponding to the Dutch minste: She had not the smallest remorse or compunction for the victim whom her tongue was immolating. THACK., Van. Fair, I, Ch. XIX, 199.

There was not the smallest hope now. EDNA LYALL, DONOVAN, I, 190.

He took not the smallest spoken notice of her. MRS. WARD, Rob. Elsm., II, 301.

smaller, as a variant of lesser: Our smaller colonies. Graph.

slight. He was suffering from a slight indisposition.

This is only a slight mistake.

slightest, faintest, remotest, etc. i. * I don't think he has the slightest idea where she is. W. BLACK, The New Prince Fortunatus, Ch. XXIV. There cannot be the slightest doubt that Mr. Gladstone's words inspired the Boers with new courage and new hope. JUST. MCCARTHY, The Transvaal.  Your lady and mistress is not at all impressed by your cleverness and talent, my dear reader — not in the slightest. JEROME, Idle Thoughts, XXIII, 229.

ii. You never gave me the faintest hint that you had a wife. BERN. SHAW, Overruled (Eng. Rev. No. 54, 183).

iii. I haven't the remotest idea how old you are. BAR. V. HUTTEN, Pam, V, Ch. V, 264.

9. Much (many) — more — most.

a) These words are now used only as indefinite numerals or as adverbs, and as such are, therefore, discussed in Ch. XL. Here we may observe that much represents the Old English micel, which was used in the sense of both great and much, the modern many being the equivalent of the Old English manig and fela. The degrees of comparison of micel were māra (mā) — māest, the form māra being chiefly applied as an adjective, mā as a numeral or adverb, māest either as an adjective or as a numeral or adverb.

b) 1) The use of much as an adjective is now quite obsolete. When modifying certain abstract nouns, it often varies, however, with adjectives, especially great. It is, perhaps, owing to these adjectives being felt more or less as indefinite numerals that the indefinite article is sometimes dropped before the nouns they modify. See, however, Ch. XXXI, 38, f.

i. There does not seem to have been much harm done. TROL., Framl. Pars., Ch. XXI, 206.

A difficulty which had not caused him much dismay at that period. ib., Ch. XXIII, 219.

Lord Brock and the gods had had much fear as to their little project. ib., 222.

ii. * I think wit is out of place where there's great beauty. THACK., Newc., I, Ch. XXV, 278.

I had great pleasure in hearing Mr. Brough . . . declare a dividend of six per cent. Id., Sam. Titm., Ch. VII, 84.

If he does do so (sc. admire you very much), . . . it would give me very great pleasure. TROL., Framl. Pars., Ch. XX, 200.

 You seem to take a great interest in Mr. Middlewick. H. J. BYRON, Our Boys, I.

Some fathers set too great a value on books. ib.

I had a great respect for Mr. Meadows. CH. READE, It is never too late to mend, I, Ch. IX, 97.

iii. I replied that I was a young gentleman of large fortune. THACK., Barry Lyndon, Ch. III, 51.

iv. He bared his head, as it was always his custom to do, when he saw my aunt, for whom he had a high respect. DICK., Cop., Ch. LI, 360a.

Note. The semi-adjectival much is sometimes preceded by a possessive pronoun, especially in Early Modern English.

Thanks for thy much goodness. Meas. for Meas., V, 534.

I am sorry for thy much misgovernment. Much ado about nothing, IV, 1, 100.

I pray thee that thou blot from this sad song | All of its much mortality and wrong. SHELLEY, Epipsychidion, 36.

The King in utter scorn | Of thee and thy much folly hath sent thee here | His kitchen-knave. TEN., Gar. Lyn., 899.

- 2) Also more as a pure and indubitable adjective is now quite obsolete. Instances are, however, frequent enough in Early Modern English. In SHAKESPEARE (the) more and less is a standing expression.

i. O, take his mother's thanks, a widow's thanks, | Till your strong hand shall give him strength | To make a more requital to your love. King John, II, 1, 34.

ii. Both more and less have given him the revolt. Macb., V, 4, 13.
Now, when the lords and barons of the realm | Perceived Northumberland did lean to him | The more and less came in with cap and knee. Henry IV, A, IV, 3, 68.

And more and less do flock to follow him. Henry IV, B, I, 1, 209.

The more part is still in use as an archaism.

The more part of them perished by falling over the rocks. FREEMAN, Norm. Conq., IV, XVIII, 117.¹⁾

I led ashore the more part of our men. W. MORRIS, The Earthly Par., Prol., 16b.

Thus also in (the) more is the pity and the more fool (you) we may consider more as an equivalent of greater, i. e. as a kind of adjective.

There's no amends I can make ye, lad — the more's the pity. G. ELIOT, Adam Bede, V, Ch. XXXVIII, 349.

It is true enough, more is the pity. EDNA LYALL, Knight Errant, Ch. I, 8.
The more great big blundering fool you, for giving the gold piece to him. THACK., Barry Lyndon, Ch. III, 54.

Before the names of certain abstractions more varies with greater etc., in like manner as much varies with great, etc. Thus in: He had more respect for his father than anybody else we could replace more by (a greater or (a higher or a word of like import.

Also in the applications illustrated by the following quotations more may be understood as adjectival.

i. Kind hearts are more than coronets. TEN., Lady Clara Vere de Vere, 55.

Honour and shame were scarcely more to him than light and darkness to the blind. MAC., Hist., II, Ch. I, 168.¹⁾ ii. These doubts that grew each minute more and more. W. MORRIS, Atalanta's Race, LXXXV.

And the individual withers, and the world is more and more. TEN., Locksley Hall, 142.

- 3) Most as an indubitable adjective has also disappeared from the language, except in the common phrase for the most part. (Ch. XXXI, 19.) The combination most and least is a poetic survival.

i. So grace and mercy at your most need help you, | Swear. Haml., I, 5, 180.
The sense of death is most in apprehension. Meas. for Meas., III, 1, 78.
For I was sunk in silence — lost | In this last loss, of all the most. BYRON, Pris. of Chil., VIII.

¹⁾ MURRAY.

- ii. Boys and women are for the most part cattle of this colour. As you like it, III. 2, 435.

How many thousands of people are there, women for the most part, who are doomed to endure this long slavery. THACK., Van. Fair, II, Ch. XXII, 242.

The currents for the most part set in towards the French coast. Times.

- iii. Forth he spurred, | Taking no thought of most or least. W. MORRIS, The Earthly Paradise, The Man born to be King, 41b.

And nigh him in his glorious hall | (he) Beheld his sages most and least. Ib., 40a.

Before the names of certain abstractions most varies with greatest etc. in like manner as much varies with great etc. Thus more could be replaced by the greatest or a word of like import in:

This was the part of his life on which he afterwards looked back with most pride. MAC., Clive, (530a).

10. Far — farther, further, farthermore, furthermore — farthest, furthest, farthermost, furthermost.

- a) 1) Further and furthest are not, probably from forth, as is sometimes believed, but from fore. Further was formed from fore by the comparative suffix ther, and the notion that it is the comparative of forth has sprung from the false assumption that fur—ther was to be divided furth—er. SWEET, N. E. Gr., § 1047; SKEAT, Et. Dict., s. v. further; FRANZ, Shak. Gram.², § 220. The th in farther and farthest has intruded through analogy with further and furthest. The vowel in further and furthest happens to coincide with the vulgar and dialectal form for far = fur.

And all as we've got to do is to trusten, Master Marner — to do the right thing as fur as we know, and to trusten. G. ELIOT, Sil. Marner II, Ch. XVI, 126.

- 2) Far, farther, further, farthest and furthest are used both as adjectives and adverbs. As an attributive adjective far is freely used to denote that of two (groups of) things which is farthest removed from the speaker: the far end, corner, etc., varying with the farther end, corner, etc.; the Far East, West, etc.; all of them distinctly suggesting the existence of the opposite, the near end, etc. In other applications the current use of the attributive far is confined to certain combinations, such as a far traveller, a far stretch, a far cry, at far intervals. Collocations like far countries, far relatives are either unusual or impossible, far being replaced by far-distant, far-off or far-away, or by such synonyms as distant, remote.

Farthermost and furthermost are used only as attributive adjectives.

- b) Farther and further are to a large extent used indifferently. UHRSTÖM (Stud. on the Lang. of Sam. Rich., 13) observes that they are used by RICHARDSON without the least distinction. According to MURRAY "farther is usually preferred in standard English where 'the word is intended to be the comparative of far, while further 'is used where the notion of far is altogether absent.'" Both farther and further are sometimes used to indicate that side of a river, canal, lake, sea, street, etc. where the speaker is not standing, i. e.

as a synonym of other; the ordinary alternative being this and the literary hither (Ch. XL, 165, a). For this the Dutch has in ordinary language de ander(e), in literary language gene.

As a conjunctive adverb further is used almost to the exclusion of farther, and it is decidedly preferred to the latter in the meaning of more, other.

Finally we may observe that further is sometimes used substantively in the sense of more.

Furthermore varies with further. (Ch. VIII, 64, e; Ch. X, 14.) Farthermore is quite obsolete.

Furthest and farthest are used in the same shades of meaning, but the latter is the ordinary word.

Furthermost and farthermost are comparatively rare, and seem to be used indiscriminately.

far, as an attributive word: Mrs. Reed, herself, at far intervals, visited it (sc. this room) to review the contents of a secret drawer in the wardrobe. CH. BRONTË, Jane Eyre, Ch. II, 9.

In that far land. Mrs. CRAIK, Dom. Stor., E, Ch. II, 114.

In the centre of the church seats were raised in an amphitheatre, at the far end of which was a scaffolding a little higher than the rest. LYTTON, Rienzi, Ch. III, 91.

It is not a far cry from Flifeshire to East Lothian. Pall Mall Mag.

It is a far cry from humanity to the cochineal insect. T. P.'s Weekly, Vol. XVIII, No. 467, 492a. (= Dutch een heele sprong).

Women who go with their menfolk to far corners of the Empire [etc.]. Westm. Gaz., No. 5137, 15b.

The outer door is in the wall on the left at the near end. The door leading to the inner rooms is in the opposite wall, at the far end. BERN. SHAW, The Doctor's Dilemma, III, 53.

far-away, etc.: i. They gave a cheer that started the echo in a far-away hill. STEVENSON, Treas. Isl., Ch. XIII, 97.

ii. The bard . . . was then pursuing on far-distant shores that mysterious career, which excited almost as much of the marvel as of the admiration of his countrymen. LYTTON, Life of Byron, 11a.

His mind goes back to the far-distant days when he talked over the same kind of thing under different conditions with the English Marquis of Carabas. Eng. Rev., No. 53, 122.

iii. The far-off places in which he had been wandering. DICK., Barn. Rudge, II, xiv. ¹⁾ farther. a) used adjectively 1) in the ordinary meaning: Farther India. The British Colonial Pocket Atlas.

I stood at the farther end of the table. SWIFT, Gul. II, Ch. I, (141a).

He had still three more boys to help at the farther end of the table. BARRY PAIN, The Culminating Point.

2) in the meaning of other: Just below our encampment flowed a little stream on the farther side of which was a strong slope. RIDER HAGGARD, King Solomon's Mines, 61.

3) in the meaning of additional: Let us leave the house this instant, for fear he should ask farther questions. GOLDSM., Good-nat. man. IV. However, I am very sorry you have put any farther confidence in that fellow. SHER., School for Scand., I, 1.

¹⁾ MURRAY.

Moses shall give me farther instructions as we go together. Ib., III, 1.
 My lord, the farther tidings are heavy for me to tell. SCOTT, Quent.
 Durw., Ch. XXVII, 351.
 I hope there will be no farther delay. JANE AUSTEN, Mansf. Park, Ch. VI, 59.

- b) used adverbially, 1) in the ordinary meaning: Fanny could listen no farther. JANE AUSTEN, Mansfield Park, Ch. XII, 123.
 Tell me in the first place, if you will, — and upon my honour it shall go no farther — about this Insurance Company of yours. THACK., Sam. Titm., Ch. VII, 79.

A skilful artist will make a few simple pleasing phrases go farther than ever so much substantial benefit-stock in the hands of a mere bungler. Id., Van. Fair, I, Ch. XIX, 197.

You can, if you please, decline to pursue my story farther. G. ELIOT, Scenes, I, Ch. V, 39. (Another edition has further.)

- 2) in the meaning of more: I will ask no farther. GOLDSMITH, The Good-nat. man, IV.

In that case, I should have no fear of your not caring to know what farther befell the Rev. Amos Barton. G. ELIOT, Scenes, I, Ch. V, 39.

further, a) used adjectively, 1) in the ordinary meaning: Further India. Cassell's Conc. Cycl.

The British and French possessions in Further India. Westm. Gaz., No. 6017, 10b.

All the young men take their places at the farther end of the table. THACK., Newc., I, Ch. XIII, 154.

He stepped across to the farther window. CON. DOYLE, The Refugees, 8.

- 2) in the meaning of other: And looking round (he) beheld a brook right fair, | That ran in pools and shallows here and there, | And on the farther side of it a pool. W. MORRIS, The Earthly Par., The Proud King, 93a.

- 3) in the meaning of additional: I found on farther investigation that this was so. DICK., Cop., Ch. XVII, 124b.

I am very sorry to make any farther objection. Id., Pickw., Ch. XIX, 164.
 His farther remarks were cut short by the sound of the front-door bell. MRS. WARD, Rob. Elsm., I, 271.

If ever poet were a master of phrasing, he was so, and the fact that he was so is quite unaffected by the farther fact that he was sometimes unconsciously indebted to his predecessors. A. C. BRADLEY, Com. to Ten. In Mem., Ch. VI, 75.

A farther British blue-book. Times.

Note the use of further in: Mr. Preston did not take any notice of her letter, further than to return it. THACK., Sam. Titm., Ch. X, 123 (= beyond returning it).

- b) used adverbially, 1) in the ordinary meaning: Stop! said Mr. Pickwick, after they had gone a few yards further. DICK., Pickw., Ch. XIX, 164.
 Reuben did not know what to make of him — However, a mile further on he made another attempt. MRS. WARD, David Grieve, I, 112.
 I didn't get home till near one, and some of us had further to go. SWEET, Railway Excursion.

- 2) in the meaning of more: Tell me now further, what the things are. BUNYAN, Pilg. Prog., (146).

Mr. Casaubon did not question further. G. ELIOT, Mid., V, Ch. XLIV, 324.

It is to be hoped that his policy may be allowed to pass over without inflaming still further the international jealousies connected with the Moroccan question. Rev. of Rev., CCXVIII, 132b.

The Germans, however, are understood to desire to reduce it still further. Ib., CCXIX, 232b.

- c) used substantively in the meaning of more: Here is one fytte of Harold's pilgrimage: | Ye who of him may further seek to know | Shall find some tidings in a future page. BYRON, Childe Har., I, xciii.

farthest. It has become a holiday pastime to ride on a bicycle from the Land's End to the farthest shores of Scotland. Arch. Geikie.

We should see straggling huts built of wood and covered with thatch, where we now see manufacturing towns and seaports renowned to the farthest ends of the world. MAC., Hist., I, Ch. III, 277.

furthest. If the fame of that treatise were to extend to the furthest confines of the known world. DICK., Pickw., Ch. I, 3.

The very furthest end of Freeman's court. Ib., Ch. XX, 171.

At the furthest end of the room. W. MORRIS, News from Nowh., Ch. IX, 57.

At Morton's furthest point he was able to discern on the opposite of Smith Sound a lofty mountain. Il. Mag., 1803, 738.

His two companions were much younger men, the one furthest from Donovan was faring badly. EDNA LYALL, Don., I, 232.

farthermost. The farthermost expansion of Smith's strait. KANE, Arct. Expl.

furthermost. He instantly sets himself, to flee to the then furthermost West. PUSEY, *Min. Proph.*¹⁾

We find demands on native villages for so much rubber per month, ... meaning attempted flight into the furthermost recesses of the forest. Athenæum, No. 4452, 211c.

hither. On the hither side of thy dark grave. W. MORRIS, The Earthly Par., The Proud King, 95a.

She delighted in having discussions which turned ... upon such things as seem to promise a link between the hither and the further side of death's boundary.

MAR. CRAWF., Kath. Laud., I, Ch. V, 91.

The Hainault is still called the Hainault upon stamped paper beyond the frontier line, while on the hither French side living speech alone recalls it. H. BELLOC, Mons (Westm. Gaz., No. 5317, 5a).

11. Late — later, latter — latest, last.

- a) 1) Last, from latst, syncopated from the Old English latost, affords an illustration of the law that the t is apt to be assimilated to a following sibilant. Cf. best from beġst.

- 2) Late, later, latest and last are used both as adjectives and as adverbs, latter occurs chiefly as an attributive adjective. We find it also used absolutely and as a partially converted adjective.

- b) 1) The positive late is often used in the sense of recent, i. e. without any notion of a series, where the Dutch commonly has the superlative laatste, e. g.: the late storm = de laatste storm, de storm van onlangs. Note especially of late years (= these last few years = in de laatste jaren), which admits of no such variation as of late days, weeks, months, etc. Instead we find in these later (latter or last) days, weeks, months, etc., a construction which is, of course, also used with years. In late years is an occasional variant of of late years. Of later days is met with in THACKERAY, of latter years in TROLLOPE. In these late days, as a metrical variant of in these later (etc.) days, occurs in BYRON.

Thus also of late answers to the Dutch in den laatsten tijd.

- 2) Later, both as an adjective and as an adverb, is used only with regard to time.
- 3) Latter is now chiefly used with regard to position in a series, i. e. to denote what has been mentioned last in a series of two, rarely of a larger number. As such we sometimes find it preceded by this. (Ch. XIX, 19, 24.) Its opposite is former, also (the) other(s) is occasionally met with as such (Ch. XL, 165, Obs. 1, d), but frequently it stands without either of these alternatives. For latter in this application we also find in some connections last-named (-mentioned). Sometimes latter simply means the last of two, without any distinct notion of things placed in a series, as in: exploit is accented on the latter syllable.

More or less archaically we also find latter in the sense of subsequent or more (or most) recent. In this shade of meaning it is now especially common in the collocation latter days, and before part, half and end, where it is used practically to the exclusion of either last or latest. Compare the latter half (part, end) of the 19th century, etc. (of a sultry afternoon, etc.) with the last quarter of the 19th century, etc. and the later portion of the letter S (MURRAY); also the latter half, part or end with the first half, part or end (rarely former half, etc.), and the latter days of July etc. with the last days of Pompeii, etc.

Latter days or years sometimes stands for last days or years of a man's life (= Dutch laatste levensjaren); latter end for death.

Note furthermore Latter-day Saints, the name by which the Mormons call themselves. Similarly by analogy Latter-day Philistines, etc.

In the Authorized Version the Latter Day = the Last Day = the Day of Judgement.

From latter in its archaic meaning the adverb latterly has been formed: latterly = a) later on, afterwards β) lately, sometimes very lately (= Dutch in den allerlaatsten tijd).

- 4) Latest is now chiefly used with regard to time, both in the sense of most late, i. e. as the opposite of earliest, and in the sense of most recent, i. e. as the equivalent of the Dutch jongste, nieuwste. In the latter sense it implies that the end of a succession or line of things has not yet been attained. In literary English it is frequently met with to denote position in a series, i. e. as the opposite of first. In this case it seems to be equivalent to last, from which it is, perhaps, only distinguished in being more solemn and more emphatic: latest = very last. Thus the two last lines of the Introduction to the first canto of SCOTT's The Lay of the Last Minstrel run: And, while his harp responsive rung, | 'T was thus the Latest Minstrel sung. Here as well as in other passages latest may have been preferred simply for the sake of the metre. Compare FIJN VAN DRAAT, Rhythm in Eng. Prose, The Adj., § 34.

Thackeray has to his latest day and up to his last day in one and the same §. See below.

Latest also varies with last in the expression the latest word, in which it means final. Instances, however, appear to be rare.

Occasionally, we find it, in literary language, denoting a pure relation of place: the last in point of place.

- 5) Last mostly refers to position in a series. As an adjective it occurs chiefly in two meanings:

a) following all the others in a series mostly of more than two, occasionally of two. In connection with a numeral last is now commonly placed first, the order being reversed before the 17th century. When used as part of the name of a period in connection with such words as days, months, years, etc., it is mostly followed by either a definite numeral or the indefinite few. The latter seems to be superfluous and is, perhaps, sometimes inserted for the sake of rhythm. Compare the similar use of few with first (14) and next (12). Few appears to be mostly absent in such names of periods as contain the demonstrative these. Except for these last combinations, past sometimes replaces last in names of periods.

Note the Last Day = the Day of Judgement; the Last Supper = the Eucharist.

β) immediately preceding (= Dutch voorgaande, verleden). In this sense it is used mostly with regard to the moment of speaking or writing, less commonly with regard to a moment in time past. Note especially the frequent last year, half, quarter, month, week or night without the definite article, in which last corresponds to the Dutch verleden. Last evening instead of last night is unusual. Also last century would appear to be rare, the ordinary expression being in (during) the last century. Likewise the last night etc. for the night before, etc. occurs only occasionally.

Further meanings are: γ) lowest (in rank); δ) only remaining, often with the secondary notion of 'most unlikely, most unwilling, most unsuitable'; ε) final, chiefly in last word; ζ) utmost, chiefly in of the last importance or consequence (= of the first importance, 14), in the last straits, in the last degree; η) farthest, uttermost; θ) most recent (= Dutch jongste, nieuwste). In this last meaning latest is much more common.

late, a) corresponding to the Dutch laatste: The late sad event has, I feel, made me more apprehensive. Mrs. GASK., Life of Ch. Brontë, 278. I remember well wishing my lot had been cast in the troubled times of the late war. Ib., 266.

The late events in the south of India had increased the financial embarrassments of the Company. Mac., War. Hist., (629b).

After his late mistake about the cow he thought he had better consult his mother first. Jack and the Beanstalk (GRONDH. and ROORDA, Eng. Leesb., I, 68).

— Compare: The recent fire. Times.

The recent great fire in the City. Il. Lond. News.

- b) in the collocations of late years, of late days, in late years:
i. The public appetite for the consumption of memoirs has been wonderfully sharpened of late years. W. P. COURTNEY.¹⁾

¹⁾ MURRAY.

Compare: Of recent years the American learned book has shown a perilous tendency towards the involved periods and the dryness of statement and method characteristic not of the best, but of the average, German practice. P. J. HARTOG, The Writing of English, 103.

Of recent years the bad feeling upon both sides has increased. Times, No. 1813, 783.

- ii. The tone of freedom and almost impertinence which young George Esmond had adopted of late days towards Mr. Washington had very deeply vexed and annoyed that gentleman. THACK., Virg., Ch. IX, 91.
- iii. I have heard allude, in late years, to Lord Palmerston as one who had often been associated with him then in the mimic military duties which they had to perform. Mrs. GASK., Life of Charl. Brontë, Ch. III.
- c) in the collocation of late: Everything beautiful in form or colour was beginning of late to have an intense fascination for me. CH. KINGSLEY, Alton Locke, Ch. IV, 72.
In their education the useful has of late been trenching on the beautiful. SPENC., Educ., Ch. I, 10a.
- d) in the collocation in these late days: Yet this existed long before, and never | Till in these late days did I see you thus. BYRON, Mar. Fal. II, 1, (361a).

later, a) used adjectively, 1) in miscellaneous combinations: Milton alone was of a later age, and not the worse for it. HAZLITT, Lect. Eng. Poets, Ch. III, 59.

The change of opinion seems to have taken place between the composition of the earlier and later cantos of Childe Harold. TOZER, Childe Harold, Intr. 18.

During the later months of his life the Prince Consort had been busy in preparing for another great international Exhibition to be held in London. MCCARTHY, Short. Hist., Ch. XVIII, 251.

We should have liked a more liberal citation of Windham's strangely introspective Diary, published in 1866, particularly during his later years. Athen., No. 4448, 85a.

Volumes IX, X will contain the later portion of the letter S, and the letters T—Z. MURRAY.

- 2) in the collocations in these later days, etc. Soon shall thy voice be lost amid the throng | Of louder minstrels in these later days. BYRON, Childe Har., II, XCIV.

(You) have never walked forth with the younger members of my family; meaning (for I am very young) my elder brothers born in these later years. DICK., *Christm. Car.*⁵, III, 58.

It is difficult for us in these later days to conceive the profound and stirring influence of such an alteration on thought and literature. G. H. MAIR, Eng. Lit.: Modern, Ch. 1, § 1, 13.

We have restored Egypt to a position of prosperity, such as she has never known in these later centuries. Times.

- 3) in the collocation of later days: Mr. Esmond often rode to Windsor, and especially, of later days, with the Secretary. THACK., Henry Esmd., III, Ch. II, 327.

b) used adverbially: The Admiral ran up the signal . . . and later on sent the Bittern and Beacon to assist in the work. Times, 1882, 12 July, 5.

latter, a) denoting position in a series of two, 1) preceded by the: i. Alfieri thought Italy and England the only countries worth living in: the former because there nature vindicates her rights, and triumphs over the evils inflicted by the governments; the latter because art conquers nature, and transforms a rude, ungenial land into a paradise of comfort and plenty. EMERSON, Eng. Traits, 83a.

ii. His hands and wristbands were beautifully long and white. On the latter he wore handsome gold buttons given to him by his Royal Highness the Duke of York, and on the others more than one elegant ring. THACK., Pend., I, Ch. I, 1.

iii. He and Foker drove down in the latter's cab one day to the Grey Friars. Ib., I, Ch. XVII, 174.

Dobbin accommodated Mr. Osborne with a few pound notes, which the latter took after a little faint scruple. Id., Van Fair, I, Ch. XIII, 125. Dick followed Torpenhow wherever the latter's fancy chose to lead him. RUDY. KIPL., The Light that failed, Ch. II, 21.

The day after I had been introduced to Busl, the latter asked us to dine with him. West. Gaz., No. 5388, 8c. (Here the use of the latter instead of he (or this gentleman) seems uncalled for.)

2) preceded by this (these): There were shabby people present, besides the fine company, though these latter were by far the most numerous. THACK., Virg., Ch. XXXVIII, 396.

I have had a great deal to do both with English and American locomotives, and the result of this experience shows that in point of fuel economy the English are the better, but for facility of erection and running repairs the Americans stand first. This latter is owing to the complication in the English, due to the use of plate framings and inside cylinders. Times.

3) denoting one of two without any distinct notion of things placed in a series: Exploit, accented on the latter syllable. DEIGHTON, Note to Jul. Cæs., II, 1, 317.

The latter end of the Rhine is not so romantic as its earlier career in Germany. G. E. MATHESON, About Holland, 10.¹)

b) in a series of more than two: Mr. Gunter, of Berkeley Square, supplied the ices, supper, and footmen, — though of the latter Brough kept a plenty. THACK., Sam. Titm., Ch. V, 50.

c) in the meaning of subsequent, or more (or most) recent, 1) in miscellaneous combinations: I do not doubt, | As I will watch the aim, or to find both, | Or bring your latter hazard back again. Merch. of Ven., I, I, 151.

One is somewhat at a loss to what cause we may ascribe so sensible a decline in eloquence in latter ages. HUME, Es. XIII, Of Eloquence, 102.

There seemed no order in these latter visions. DICK., Christm. Car., IV, 101.

Pale as grass, or latter flowers. SWINBURE, Atalanta, 1397.

2) in the collocations latter days, (years, months, etc.) end, part and half.

i. Mansions which have in latter days been subdivided into several tenements. WASH. IRV., Sketch-Bk., XXV, 242.

— In the latter days of July in the year 185—, a most important question was for ten days hourly asked in the cathedral city of Barchester. TROL., Barch. Towers, Ch. I, 5.

Objection might be raised to the inclusion of naturalists of so recent a date as the latter years of the eighteenth century. Athen., No. 4422, 95a. A fine proof of the prosperity of Australia is made available from the returns of the revenue paid to the States during the latter six months 1906/7. Rev. of Rev., CCXX, 392a.

ii. I will sing it in the latter end of the play. Mids., IV, 1, 223.

1) MURRAY.

At the latter end of the spring of 588. M. PATTISON, E. s., I, 17¹).

Quietist. One who believes in or practises quietism; especially applied to one of a sect of mystics originated by Molinos, a Spanish priest in the latter end of the seventeenth century. ANNANDALE, Conc. Dict.

- iii. We can only hope that the gentle reader has not found the latter part of the last chapter extremely tedious. SCOTT., Pirate, Ch. V, 49.

It was in the latter part of a calm, sultry day, that they floated gently with the tide between these stern mountains, WASH. IRVING, Dolf Heyl. (STOF. HANDL., I, 125).

- iv. Masque. A form of amateur histrionic entertainment, popular at Court and amongst the nobility in England during the latter part of the 16th. c. and the first half of the 17th. c. MURRAY. (Note the use of first as the opposite of latter.)

- 3) in the collocation in these (few) latter days:

- i. They were rough, but they had rude virtues, which are not the less virtues, because in these latter days they are growing scarce. FROUDE, Oceana. Ch. III, 46. In these latter days of civilisation, however, we see that in the dress of men the regard for appearance has in a considerable degree yielded to the regard for comfort. SPENCER, Education, Ch. I, 10a.

Manifestly toys are becoming too elaborate and far too costly in these latter days. Times, No. 1826, 1049d.

- ii. Liddy seemed literally to have dwindled smaller in these few latter hours. HARDY, Far from the Madding Crowd, Ch. LIV, 451.

- 4) in the collocation of latter years: Mr. Plomacy had never worked hard, and of latter years had never worked at all. TROL., Barch. Tow., Ch. XXXV, 305.

- 5) in the collocation latter days or years, meaning the last days or years of a man's life (= Dutch laatste levensjaren): Our good Colonel's house had received a coat of paint, which, like Madame Latour's rouge in her latter days, only served to make her careworn face look more ghastly. THACK., Newcomes, I, Ch. XIX, 205.

She has retired into private life in her native town of Newcome, and occupies her latter days by the management of a mangle. Ib., I, Ch. XIV, 167.

The time had been — in the latter days of his father's life-time — when he was the greatest man of the close. TROL., Framl. Pars., Ch. XL, 385.

All the latter days of aged men are overshadowed with its gloom. JEFFERSON.¹)

- 6) in the collocation latter end, meaning death: Would'st thou thy every future year | In ceaseless prayer and penance drie (= endure, suffer); | Yet wait thy latter end with fear — | Then daring Warrior, follow me. SCOTT, Lay, II, V. It was time for me to lay by and think o' the latter end. G. ELIOT, Mill, I, Ch. III, 10.

- 7) in the combination Latter-day Saints, etc.: Alas, alas, it is very hard to break asunder the bonds of the Latter-day Philistines. TROL., Framl. Pars., Ch. IX, 88.

- 8) in the collocation the Latter Day: For I know that my Redeemer liveth, and that he shall stand at the Latter Day upon the earth. Bible, Job, Ch. XIX, 25.

latterly. i. I must introduce myself to you as Captain Frewin — formerly of the steamer Astick, latterly of the Metora. EDNA LYALL, DONOVAN, I, 245.

Beauchamp had latterly favoured me with a good deal of his company. NORRIS, My Friend Jim, Ch. XVI, 109.

¹) MURRAY.

When separated from the Red Cross Knight, a lion fawns on her and becomes her attendant. Latterly she is married to the Red Cross Knight. ANNANDALE, Concise Dict., s. v. Una.

Latterly, there was a rude attempt to decorate this bower with flowers and sweet-smelling shrubs. BRET HARTE, The Luck of Roaring Camp, 12.

- ii. He was a meeker man latterly than he used to be. CH. KINGSLEY, Westw. Hof. She has latterly suffered the worst tortures that American newspaper notoriety can bring upon a sensitive person. Morning Leader.

Latterly officials have been breaking into closed stores, and removing whatever they thought necessary. Times.

It (sc. serviette) may now be regarded as naturalized, but latterly has come to be considered vulgar. MURRAY, s. v. serviette.

- latest, a) as an adjective, 1) in the ordinary meaning of most late: Every group fresher than the last and bent on staying to the latest moment. DICK., Chuz., Ch. XXII, 188a.

He was rescued from the chronic state of impecuniosity in which, despite constant literary work, he had long lived, by a Crown pension and some other assistance in his latest days. SAINTSBURY, Nineteenth Cent., Ch. II, 98.

The passengers in all except the latest trains are, as a rule, orderly enough. Graph.

- 2) in the meaning of most recent: The last word of Count Tolstoy — at least the latest word in which he sums up his message to his generation — was published in the Times of August 31st, 1905. Rev. of Rev., Annual 1906, 38b.

'Stronger than Love', by Mrs. Alexander . . . The latest and last of this well-known writer, whose death occurred shortly after she had revised the final proofs. Times.

Compare: Robert Allitsen showed her all the newest improvements. BEATR. HAR., Ships, I, Ch. XII, 64.

All who give books are recommended to apply to Messrs. Methuen for details of their newest volumes. Advertisement.

The newest plea is that, since the proportion of raw materials in our exports to manufactured goods grows higher, the exports are in consequence deteriorating in character. Westm. Gaz.

- 3) as a literary, metrical or rhythmical equivalent of last: I still had hopes my latest hours to crown | Amidst these humble bowers to lay me down. GOLDSMITH, Des. Vil., 20.

As my first glance | Of love and wonder was for thee, then take | My latest look. BYRON, Manfred, III, 2.

May you rule us long | And leave us rulers of your blood | As noble till the latest day! TEN., To the Queen.

For thou, the latest-left of all my knights, | In whom should meet the offices of all, | Thou wouldst betray me. Id., The Passing of Arthur, 292.

Even as she dwelt upon his latest words. Id., Enoch Arden, 451.

The mournful legend relates how the chief of the Fatimites, when all his brave followers had perished round him, drank his latest draught of water and uttered his latest prayer. MAC., Clive, (507a).

To his latest day he sang, with admirable pathos and humour, those wonderful Irish ballads which are so mirthful and so melancholy: and was always the first himself to cry at their pathos. Poor Cos! he was at once brave and maudlin, humorous and an idiot; always good-natured, and sometimes almost trustworthy. Up to the last day of his life he would drink with any man, and back any man's bill: and his end was in a spunging-house, where the sheriff's officer, who took him, was fond of him. THACK., Pend., I, Ch. V, 58 (Note the varied practice.)

Skeat has now performed the like service for the work, which next to the 'Canterbury Tales' is the latest and ripest fruit of the poet's genius. Athen. The present deponent ... found an interest... in its pages as an investigation of the testimony as to all the circumstances attending the production of Dickens's latest work. It abounds in documentary evidence, it reveals with singular suggestiveness the evolution of Dickens's latest manner. THOM. SECCOMBE (Bookman, No. 254, 113a).

This is characteristic of Shakespeare's latest manner. Note to Temp., I, 2, 1 (Clar. Press.).

- 4) as a variant of last in the expression the latest word: The latest word in hotel comfort. II. Lond. News, No. 3859, 450b.
- 5) denoting a relation of place: For Philip's dwelling fronted on the street, | The latest house to landward. TEN., En. Arden, 728. (Possibly only for the sake of the metre.)
- b) as an adverb: He who comes latest is sometimes best served.
Nursing the sickly babe, her latest born. TEN., En. Ard., 150.
There rode | Full slowly by a knight, lady, and dwarf; | Whereof the dwarf laggd latest. TEN., Mar. of Ger., 188.
- last, a) as an adjective 1) referring to a series larger than two: A hundred times | In that last kiss, which never was the last, | Farewell, like endless welcome, lived and died. TEN., Love and Duty, 65.
The kettle had had the last of its solo performances. DICK., Crick., I, 6.
He (sc. Mr. Lewes) used the beautiful walking-stick in the last days (sc. of his life). G. ELIOT, Letters (Times, No. 1809, 703d).
- 2) said of a series of two: I can so clearly distinguish between the criminal and his crime, I can so sincerely forgive the first while I abhor the last. CH. BRONTË, Jane Eyre, Ch. VI, 66.
Very important are the researches at the 'Kolonial Institut' and the Tropical Diseases Hospital. At this last I made the acquaintance of Dr. Fülleborn. Sir H. H. JOHNSTON, Germany in 1910 (Westm. Gaz., No. 5531, 5a).
- 3) followed by a numeral: The 'Spectator' cannot doubt that good will come from the crisis through which the nation has been passing in the last ten days. Westm. Gaz., No. 4961, 16c.
The last two volumes of their new edition of Macaulay's History. Daily News.
I am not going to discuss education; we have had enough of that, perhaps, for the moment, in the House of Commons in the last three days. Times.
- 4) preceded by a numeral: Chaucer, Spenser, Shakespeare, and Milton. The two last have had justice done them by the voice of common fame. HAZLITT, Lect. Eng. Poets, Ch. III, 60.
I think he's walked a little slower than he used, these few last evenings. DICK., *Christm. Car.*⁵, IV, 98.
- 5) followed by few: I. * This is only one proof more, if proof were needed, that for the last few hundred years physicians have been idiots. CH. READE, The Cloister and the Hearth, Ch. II, 11.
Here then we have the issue made plain, shorn of all the verbiage of the last few days. Westm. Gaz.
Mr. David T. Day writes upon the petroleum resources of the United States, how largely they have been drawn upon during the last few years. Rev. of Rev., CCXXX, 171b.
 The cavalry and artillery ... have made great progress these last few years. T. P.'s Weekly, No. 468, 528b.

- ii. * Fate had dealt him some severe blows the last years. Westm. Gaz., No. 5107, 2a.
 Sacheverel's dark face, grown a little heavier in the last years, softened as the beautiful music wore on his senses. BAR. VON HUTTEN, Pam, II, Ch. I, 77.
  I do not know what has come over George in these last days. THACK., Virg., Ch. IX, 93.
 I have scarcely seen Harry at all in these last days. Ib., Ch. XVI, 169.
 The ancient Empire of Persia has been witness in these last days to events in which England once would have had something to say. ROSEBERRY.
 I've let many an 'if' slip in and frighten me during these last days. HAL. SUTCL., Pam ihe Fiddler, Ch. III, 44.
- 6) replaced by past: The heat of the past few weeks had worn 'her down. RUDY. KIPL., The Light that failed, Ch. XI, 138.
 Of all the many cheap series of standard works to the production of which so many publishers have, during the past few years, devoted themselves, it is not invidious to say that "Everyman's Library" maintains its triumphant lead. Daily Telegraph.
 Inter-urban trolleys have made greater progress in the past few years in America than the railways. Rev. of Rev., CCXXXI, 240a.
- 7) in the meaning of immediately preceding the present (Ch. XXXI, 19): This edition contains about 90 pages more than the last edition. The Bookman. In your last issue. Academy.
 The avowed Boulangists outnumbered by 18 those in the last Parliament. Graph.
 Parties are balanced pretty much as they were in the last Chamber. Id.
 Your conduct of last evening. DICK., Pickw., Ch. II, 16.
 I was there late last evening. Mrs. ALEXANDER, For his Sake, I, Ch. X, 162.
 'Balcony', 'crystalline', 'recondite' . . . in the last century were stressed on their second syllables. SWEET, Short Hist. Eng. Gram., § 253.
- 8) in the meaning of immediately preceding (a night, etc.) in the past: He made a scanty breakfast on the remains of the last night's provisions. WASH. IRV., Dolf Heyl. (STOF., Handl., I, 123).
 The answer at several shops was, either that they were just out of them (sc. the books), or that they never kept them, or that they had had a great many last month, or that they expected a great many next week. DICK., Domb., Ch. XII, 111.
 They went down to the landing-place where they had left their goods last night. Id., Chuz., Ch. XXIII, 195a.
 Mine (sc. my eyes) encountered the personage who had received me last night. CH. BRONTË, Jane Eyre, Ch. V, 51.
 The next day, at ten o'clock, Tom was on his way to St. Ogg's, to see his uncle Deane, who was to come home last night. G. ELIOT, Mill, III, Ch. V, 204.
 I reflect that it would have been much better if I had stopped up last night. JEROME, Idle Thoughts, VI, 77.
- 9) in the meaning of lowest (in rank): The last of nations now, though once the first. COWPER, Expost. I, 242¹⁾.
- 10) in the meaning of only remaining: We ready are to try our fortunes, | To the last man. Henry IV, B., IV, 2, 44.
 There can be no doubt that rebellion is the last remedy against tyranny. BUCKLE, Civiliz.¹⁾.
 She was the last person to be approached with undue familiarity. PRESCOTT, Ferd. and Is.¹⁾.

¹⁾ MURRAY.

- 11) in the meaning of final: The personal régime has not said its last word. Spectator.

If you have not investigated the merits of the Blickensderfer Typewriter, you do not know the last word in typewriter conveniences. Advertisement.

The German Government, which has been schooled in the school of Bismarck, and which is the last word of efficiency and scientific method [etc.]. Westm. Gaz.

The letters . . . are certainly not to be described as the acme of perfection, or the last word in style. Id., No. 6029, 4b.

The Empress Hotel here (sc. in Victoria, British Columbia) spells the last word in luxury. T. P.'s Weekly, No. 469, 581.

- 12) in the meaning of utmost: i. It was of the last importance to her to confer with him. Mrs. ALEX., A Life interest, II, Ch. XVIII, 291.

An express of the last importance. BROWNING, A Soul's Tragedy, II.

ii. Such proved weapons were of the last consequence to their owner. SCOTT, Fair Maid, Ch. XXXIV, 361.

iii. To fighting he was averse from his earliest youth, as indeed to physic, the Greek Grammar, or any other exertion, and would engage in none of them, except at the last extremity. THACK., Pend., I, Ch. II, 25.

iv. He was in the last straits. II. Mag.

v. His lame attempt to seem composed was melancholy in the last degree. DICK., Chuz., Ch. XXX, 240b.

It was tantalizing in the last degree. W. BLACK, The New Prince Fortunatus, Ch. IX.

Compare also: I think the advantages by the proposal which I have made are obvious and many, as well as of the highest importance. SWIFT, Modest Proposal, (477a).

- 13) in the meaning of farthest, uttermost: Her — over all whose realms to their last isle, | Commingled with the gloom of imminent war, | The shadow of His loss drew like eclipse, | Darkening the world. TEN., Dedic. Id. of the King, II.

- 14) as a variant of latter before part: He has permitted his work, or the last part of it, to be translated into English by one whose knowledge of the language is imperfect. Westm. Gaz., No. 6111, 11b.

- 15) as a variant of latest in the meaning of most recent (Dutch jongste, nieuwste): Your suit is not of the very last fashion. THACK., Virg., Ch. XXV, 256.

He always brought him the last news of the nobility. Id., Pend., I, Ch. II, 23. She (sc. Elizabeth) could turn from talk of the last fashion to pore with Cecil over despatches and treasury books. GREEN, Short Hist., Ch. VII, § 3. The last news from this region was that [etc.]. Westm. Gaz., No. 4977, 1b.

- b) as an adverb, 1) in the meaning of after all others: Love thyself last. Henry VIII, III, 2, 444.

2) in the meaning of on the last occasion before the present: When did you see him last? SHELLEY, Cenci, V, 2, 22.

3) in the meaning of as the last thing to be mentioned or considered: Last, but not least, is it not the very property of man that he is a spirit invested with flesh and blood? CH. KINGSLEY, Yeast, Ch. XVII.

4) in the meaning of in the end: The King | Mused for a little on his plea, but last, | Allowing it, the prince and Enid rode | . . . to the shores | Of Severn. TEN., Mar. of Ger., 42.

last-named. This flow of quotation and hospitality in Wegg indicated his observation of some little querulousness on the part of Venus. "Why, as to friendly move", observed the last-named gentleman [etc.]. DICK., Our Mut. Friend, III, Ch. VI, 90.

12. Near — nearer — nearest, next.

a) 1) Near is properly a comparative, the descendant of the adverb nēar (nēor), or the adjective nēarra, the Old English positive nēah (nēh) being represented by Modern English nigh, which survives in archaic, especially poetic, and dialect use. Note the literary well nigh. The transition from the comparative to the positive sense, which was furthered by the analogy of here, there and far, seems to have begun with verbs of motion, such as to go and to come, with which even now near is more or less felt as a comparative. Thus also with the Dutch naar, originally the comparative of na. Except for dialects traces of near as a comparative hardly go beyond the beginning of the 16th century. FRANZ, *Shak. Gram.*², § 218; SWEET, N. E. Gr., § 1048.

The near in blood, the nearer bloody. Mac b., II, 3, 146.

Still creeping near and near the heap. CHAPMAN, Iliad, XXIII, 206.

2) Near, nearer, nearest and next are partly adjectives, partly adverbs. When followed by a (pro)noun they largely partake of the nature of prepositions. For the use of to after these words see Ch. III, 14, Obs. III. Next is also used as a conjunctive adverb. See Ch. X, 17.

As an adjective near, unlike the Dutch na, is also used attributively. The premier was seating himself in a chair in his near neighbourhood. Punch.

b) 1) Nearest is used to denote proximity as to place, or as to kinship, friendship, or any other emotional tie. We also find it in the sense of shortest, most convenient or direct, especially in the collocation the nearest way. In Early Modern English it sometimes stands for most malignant (Dutch ergst, mostly before foe or enemy). Sometimes it is equivalent to next.

2) Next is now chiefly used in indicating proximity as to order or rank, or as to time. When denoting proximity as to time, it is used with regard to the moment of speaking or writing, or to some moment in the past. In the former case the definite article is almost regularly dropped, in the latter it is more commonly retained. The dropping is chiefly met with in adverbial adjuncts, only occasionally in adnominal genitives and their periphrastical equivalents. (Ch. XXXI, 19.)

Note the following idioms: What next! (as an exclamation of surprise); next after (= coming immediately after), next to (= coming immediately after, almost); next-door, next-door neighbour; the next room (= the adjoining room); (with) in (for, etc.) the next few days (in which next is mostly followed by few. Compare last and first).

In Early Modern English next is often used where present practice would require nearest. The language of the law preserves the ancient practice. There is, accordingly, a difference between next-of-kin and nearest-of-kin; the former designating mere claims of succession, the latter also claims of blood or family feeling.

Thus also we say my next brother to indicate the brother succeeding in a line of brothers (= Dutch de broer die op mij volgt).

In the following illustrations the purely adverbial applications have been passed over as exhibiting no remarkable features.

nearer. "Before I draw nearer to that stone to which you point", said Scrooge, "answer me one question". DICK., Cristm. Car., IV, 102.

You must be much nearer together. EDNA LYALL, Don., II, 119.

Never was there a time when the Navy was nearer to the people's heart. T. P.'s Weekly, No. 466, Y 51b.

nearest, a) denoting a relation of place: Mrs. Gamp took the chair that was nearest the door. DICK., Chuz., Ch. XXV, 207a.

b) denoting a tie of kinship, etc.: These nearest-of-kin were naturally impressed with the unreasonableness of expectations in cousins. G. ELIOT, Mid., IV, Ch. XXXV, 243.

Vendetta. A blood-feud: the practice of the nearest-of-kin executing vengeance on the murderer of a relative. ANNANDALE, Conc. Dict.

The next three months were marked by anguished mental struggle, by a consciousness of painful separation from the soul nearest to his own. MRS. WARD, Rob. Elsm., II 203.

He could gratify all his nearest wishes. MISS BURNETT, Little Lord, 62.

One misty June evening Sir Michael . . . took an opportunity . . . of speaking upon the subject nearest to his heart. MISS BRADDON, Lady Andley's Secret, I, Ch. I, 13.

c) in the sense of most malignant: But wherefore do I tell these news to thee? | Why, Harry, do I tell thee of my foes, | Which art my near'st and dearest foe? HENRY IV, A, III, 2, 123.

d) in the sense of next: Of the numerous Oracles of Apollo in Asia Minor, that of the Didymæan Apollo . . . was of great importance, ranking nearest in reputation to the Delphian. II. Lond. News, No. 3777, 406.

next. a) indicating proximity as to order: Next to Sir Andrew in the Club-Room sits Captain Sentry. Spectator, II.

Paul's chair was next to Miss Blimber. DICK., Dombey, Ch. XII, 105.

b) indicating proximity as to rank: Next to the capital, but next at an immense distance, stood Bristol. MAC., Hist., I, Ch. III, 330.

One man is next to another in excellence. WEBSTER.

One is next in rank or dignity. Id.

c) indicating proximity as to time with regard to the moment of speaking or writing: Next week (next year, next meeting, etc.) everything will be arranged.

In Scotch use 'next' is employed to designate the days of the following week; thus next Friday, the Friday of next week, is contrasted with this Friday, that of the present week. MURRAY.

d) with regard to so some moment in the past: I * 'T was the next day my aunt found the matter out. SHER., Riv., I, 2, (217).

The next Sunday Susan was busy preparing two rooms for Mr. Eden. CH. READE, It is never too late to mend, I, Ch. VIII, 82.

 The next day was a Sunday, when there was no business to be looked for. STEVENSON¹⁾.

- ii. That day the indefatigable Gus was obliged to run post haste for doctor Salbs, and next morning a little boy was born. THACK., Sam. Titm., Ch. XII, 163. Susan was up betimes next day. Ch. READE, It is never too late to mend, I.

Compare: On the following morning Mr. Loftus caused Paradyne to be arrested. Mrs. WOOD, Orville College, Ch. III, 50.

- e) in certain idioms: i. Well, I'm sure! What next, I wonder! PUNCH²⁾.

- ii. He was, next after Lucy, by far the best news-gatherer of the country side. Miss MITFORD, Our Village²⁾.

- iii. Poulterers and grocers' trades became a splendid joke: a glorious pageant, with which it was next to impossible to believe that such dull principles as bargain and sale had anything to do. DICK., Christm. Car.⁵, I, 16. Ships, they had few; trained seamen, yet fewer; wealth, next to none. GROTE, Greece²⁾.

- iv. Trying to hide himself, behind the girl from next door but one. DICK., Christm. Car.⁵, II, 45.

The idea is next-door to blasphemous. SPURGEON, Sermons, XXIV²⁾.

 Persons who live two or three miles' distance in the country are considered as next-door neighbours. FIELDING, Tom Jones, IV, Ch. XII, 58b.

- v. She is only in the next room. SHER., Riv., IV, 1

- vi. If we can be the means of . . . keeping up her spirits for the next few weeks, I shall think our time well spent. JANE AUSTEN, Mansfield Park, Ch. XIII, 131. Nothing will be done in the next few weeks which will conflict with this plain declaration. Westm. Gaz., No. 5237, 1b.

Within the next few days the programme must be arranged for a fight or for a surrender. The Nation.

- f) in Early Modern English: i. They say, when a Fox is very much troubled with Fleas, he goes into the next pool. ADDISON, Tatler, CCXXIX²⁾. He was obliged to make a short confession to the next priest that was at hand. GOLDSMITH, Hist. Engl. II, 257²⁾

All the trading and maritime towns next the continent. Ib., I, 23²⁾.

Mr. Rushworth . . . had still more to say on the subject next his heart JANE AUSTEN, Mansfield Park, Ch. VI, 56.

- ii. To mourn mischief that is past and gone | Is the next way to draw new mischief on. Othello, I, 3, 204.

Peas and beans are as dank here as a dog, and that is the next way to give poor jades the bots. Henry IV, A, II, 1, 9.

The next way from that place to Mr. Harrison's house. Cries of Blood²⁾.

- g) as a law-term: Wastes when improved are to be assessed to all parochial rates in the parish next adjoining. BLACKSTONE, Comm., I, 113²⁾.

Placing wooden rails on the side next the glebe land, and field stakes on the side next the plaintiff's field. Law Times, XC, 395²⁾.

Infants may sue as plaintiffs by their next friends. Rules Supreme Court²⁾.

- h) in expressions designating proximity of kinship: And Naomi said unto her, The man is near of kin unto us, one of our next kinsmen. BIBLE, Ruth, II, 20.

Having previously communicated his intentions to his five next-of-kindred. GOLDSMITH, Hist. Rome, I, 13²⁾.

The betrothal shall be made by the next-of-kin. JOWETT, Plato, V, 91²⁾.

1) GÜNTHER, Man., § 419.

2) MURRAY.

His next brother William, heir-presumptive, or rather in truth heir-apparent, to the throne . . . could not refrain from lamenting his own fate and that of the house of Hohenzollern. Mac., Fred., (689b).

For this (sc. his victory at Aboukir) he received a pension of 2000 a year (to be continued to his two next heirs). Cassell's Conc. Cycl., s. v. Nelson.

13. Old — older, elder — oldest, eldest.

a) 1) Elder and eldest show vowel-mutation, and are the original forms.

2) Elder and eldest are now used only attributively. Elder is, consequently, never followed by than. The latest quotation with a predicative elder given by MURRAY is of the year 1683; but instances may still be met with in writers of the earlier half of the 18th century. SATTLER, E. S., VI, 36.

In such sentences as He is the elder (or eldest) of the brothers, She is about four years the elder (an unusual construction for She is about four years older), She is the eldest of the family, the two words cannot properly be regarded as predicative adjectives. In the first and the third they are used absolutely, in the second elder is partially converted into a noun.

3) Elder is mostly preceded by a definite modifier, chiefly the definite article or a possessive pronoun, such constructions as an (no, some, any), elder brother of his or elder brothers of theirs being uncommon. Nor is elder possible after an intensive, such as far, still, much, as in a far (much, still) elder brother of his*. It is hardly necessary to add that both eldest and oldest, like all superlatives, normally have a definite modifier.

b) 1) Elder and eldest are now chiefly used as opposites of younger and youngest, less commonly of earlier and earliest, and rarely of newer and newest, more modern and most modern, more youthful and most youthful. They are, therefore, chiefly applied to persons. Before the names of things we find them only in the case of personification or as literary archaisms.

In the rare case that they are used with regard to animals, the reference is mostly to a tie of companionship.

a) Elder is now used to indicate:

aa) the senior(s) of two (groups of) persons that are thought of as belonging together by reason of some tie of kinship, friendship or companionship, or on account of identity of name.

ββ) the earlier of two persons bearing the same name, or of two (groups of) persons or things, belonging to different periods.

When a tie of kinship is in question, elder is used almost to the exclusion of older. More frequent is the latter when persons are spoken of as friends or companions, or connected in some other way. In American English, and in the language of the uneducated, there is a tendency to replace elder by older. STORM, Eng. Phil.², 904, 1036.

Before proper names of persons elder, whether in the sense of senior or earlier, is used to the exclusion of older.

Elder varies with older before the names of things more or less distinctly thought of as persons, such as church, country, institution, university, etc., and also before such words as generation, branch, line, etc. designating persons.

β) Eldest is now used to indicate that (those) person(s) of a group of persons belonging to the same family that exceed(s) all the others as to age. In contradistinction to elder it is not usually applied to persons that are connected by a tie other than that of kinship, but like elder it is found almost to the exclusion of oldest before nouns denoting family relationship. Instances of oldest for eldest are, however, more frequent than those of older for elder.

2) Older and oldest now replace elder and eldest in all connections not mentioned above, but as they have come into use only slowly, we frequently find in Early Modern English the irregular but original forms in cases where present usage has regular comparison. It is hardly necessary to observe that traces of the earlier practice are still met with as archaisms. Also the use of the irregular forms when years of standing, experience or membership are in question, which was still common about the middle of the 19th century, may be said to be now obsolescent.

It may further be observed that older and oldest, merely point to duration of life or (non)existence, as opposed to elder and eldest, which also imply some of the concomitants or characteristics that are commonly associated with these ideas, such as superiority in rank or station, precedence as to a right, a responsibility, etc. Hence oldest is the ordinary word in such combinations as express mere superiority as to age: next oldest, second oldest, oldest surviving, etc.; but eldest-born. See also page 401.

elder, α) used attributively, 1) denoting superiority as to age, α) before common names of persons when the reference is to some tie of kinship: There were two brothers on board, and there not being room for both of them in the only boat that wasn't swamped, neither of them would consent to go, until the elder took the younger by the waist and flung him in. DICK., Domb., Ch. IV, 31.

When his elder brother died — elder seems a strange word for he was only seven year old — I remember this one took it sorely to heart. Id., Old Cur. Shop, Ch. LV, 203b.

Lieutenant Colonel Newcome, C. B., a distinguished Indian officer, and elder brother of our respected townsman and representative, Sir Brian Newcome, Bart. THACK., Newc., I, Ch. XIV, 167.

Jane, the elder sister, held that Martha's children ought not to expect so much as the Waules. G. ELIOT, Mid., IV, Ch. XXXV, 243.

There was a strong contrast in the children. The elder, who was about fifteen, seemed older than he was. The younger son had scarcely told his ninth year. LYTTON, Night and Morning, 22.

My elder brother is five years older than I am (than me). SWEET, N. E. Gr., § 2087.

β) before common names of persons when the reference is to some tie of friendship, companionship, etc.: He replied to the bullying look of his father with another so indicative of resolution and defiance that the elder man quailed in his return. THACK., Van. Fair, I, Ch. XXI, 221.

When they parted for the night, they shook hands with the greatest cordiality; the younger gentleman promising the elder not to leave Chatteris without a further conversation in the morning. Id., Pend., I, Ch. X, 110.

They stood a moment looking at one another, the tall, stalwart young man, so graceful and free in bearing, and the old man, languid, sickly, prematurely broken down. "Sir," said the elder, "I have to thank you" [etc.]. Mrs. CRAIK, John Hal., Ch. XII, 123.

"But really now," urged the younger of the two (sc. Englishmen) with some warmth, "you can't possibly maintain such a notion. Do you think we are not improved — vastly improved — in the last two hundred years?" — "The increase of civilization gives us a better appearance, I grant," said the elder, "but I do not believe the sum-total of evil is lessened". EDNA LYALL, Knight-Errant, Ch. I, 9.

Two ragged little Neapolitans were sauntering along the Chiaja; the elder had flung his arms caressingly round the other's neck; the younger held in his hand a ragged cap full of cherries. Id., Ch. XIV, 115.

You may have seen a younger and an elder boy at school, walking in some grassy spot of the playground with that tender friendship for each other which the age inspires. SYMONDS, Shelley, I, 10.

At Eton Shelley was not popular either with his teachers or his elder school-fellows. Id., Ch. II, 12.

The elder boys are expected to take care of the younger ones. SWEET, N. E. Gr., § 2090.

Eve seemed to be the elder of the two girls. GEORGE GISSING, Eve Madeley's Ransom, Ch. V.

Two or three minutes after the train had started, the elder man looked forward, moved slightly and spoke. Id., Ch. I.

In a reserved first-class compartment were two ladies. The elder woman had snow-white hair, the other, her niece, was a pretty girl with a slim figure. CROKER(?), Pour Prendre Congé, Ch. I.

- γ) before or after proper names of persons: On these facts, too, William had insisted strongly in his conversation with the elder Osborne: and had thus been the means of reconciling the old gentleman to his son's memory, just at the close of the elder man's life. THACK., Van. Fair, II, Ch. XXXI, 346. Pendennis the elder had a proper and constant dread of the opinion of his neighbour. Id., Pend., I, Ch. XV, 153.
- δ) before such words as church, country, institution, university, etc.: There are few things to me more affecting in the history of the quarrel which divided the two great nations than the recurrence of that word Home, as used by the younger towards the elder country. THACK., Virg., Ch. I, 7.
The change I mean is an amalgamation with the Infirmary, so that the Hospital shall be regarded as a special addition to the elder institution. G. ELIOT, Mid., VII, Ch. LXVII, 506.
A solemn law, long in vogue in the elder university, prohibits the use of the colleges during vacation to the undergraduates. *Graph.*¹⁾
- ε) before such words as branch, generation, line: Of this Younger line we shall have enough to write in time and place; we must at present direct our attention to the elder line. CARLYLE, *Frederic the Great.*¹⁾
She and her sons were of the elder branch of the Esmonds. THACK., *Virg.*¹⁾
His favourite gods are those of the elder generation. MAC., Milton, 25.¹⁾
- ζ) before the name of an animal: Gabriel had two dogs. George, the elder, exhibited an ebony-tipped nose [etc.]. HARDY, Far from the Madding Crowd, Ch. V, 38.

¹⁾ SATTLER, E. S., VI.

- 2) denoting more years of standing, experience or membership: The younger clerks were miserably paid, the elder enriched themselves by trading on their own account. MAC., Clive, (499a). She was anxious that the parish vicar should be one with whom she could herself fully co-operate . . . Should she appoint an elder man, this might probably not be the case to the same extent. TROL., Framl. Pars., Ch. I, 3. The Society was started with the idea of increasing the stipends of the elder curates. Graph., 1881, 26 March, 303. Captain Arthur Wellesley Clarke is an Elder Brother of Trinity House. 11. Lond. News, No. 3812, 716a. Note. The use of elder in the following quotations, where there is not, apparently, any reference to any tie, is archaic: There being present, besides the bride and bridegroom, an elder mariner and his wife. All the Year Round.¹⁾ He was still an object of great attention and some hope for the elder damsels of the vicinity. LYTON, Eug. Aram.¹⁾ The elder inhabitants pished and pshawed at the folly of the new shopkeeper. G. ELIOT, Broth. Jac., 169.¹⁾ The characters of journalist and novelist are joined also in elder men. MORLEY, Eng. Lit., 413.¹⁾ Thus, seemingly, also in: They were more like a lot of elder children than servants. HUGHES, Tom Brown, I, Ch. II, 21.
- 3) denoting earlier existence, a) before or after proper names of persons: Great Commoner: a name given to the elder William Pitt. MURRAY. The time has long gone by when, as in the days of the elder Pitt, British commerce could be made to flourish in and by means of a war. Times. "Taxes," said the elder Pitt, "are a voluntary gift and grant of the Commons, and of the Commons alone." Westm. Gaz., No. 5173, 1b. The death of Pliny the Elder by suffocation. 11. Lond. News, No. 3857, 330. The prose of his (sc. John Lyly's) school . . . owed its inspiration, in its form, ultimately to Cicero, and in the decorations with which it was embellished, to the elder Pliny and later writers of his kind. G. H. MAIR, Eng. Lit.: Modern, Ch. I, § 2, 17.
- β) archaically before common names of persons: The forms of it are maintained by the elder authors. BULWER, Kenelm Chillingly.¹⁾ The elder writers understood but little of the pathetic. THACK., Virg.¹⁾ 'Nugget' very nearly in its present form occurs in our elder writers. TRENCH, English Past and Present, 81.¹⁾
- γ) archaically before names of things: Hear then, attentive to my lay | A knightly tale of Albion's elder day. SCOTT, Marm., Introd., I, xvii. Are you such a wretched Christian as to suppose I would in the present day levy war against the Ashton family, as was the sanguinary custom in elder times. SCOTT, Bride of Lam., Ch. VIII, 185. The mystic action of the drama recalls, not the human stir and passion of our modern tragedy, but the solemn movement of the stories of the elder world. VIDA D. SCUDDER, Introd. to Shelley's Prom. Unbound, 3. His style as a poet was but weakly imitative of our elder drama. MORLEY, Eng. Lit.¹⁾

¹⁾ SATTLER, E. S., VI.

'Hum-bugg' may be, after all, the elder form of the term. II. Lond. News.¹⁾ Compare: The earlier dictionaries seem to have been less fortunate than usual in their collection of comparatively uncommon words. Athen., No. 4460, 421a.

- b) used predicatively, now obsolete: How much more elder art thou than thy looks. Merch., IV, 1, 251.

One of them, who was elder and more sunburnt than the rest, told him that he had a widow in his line of life. Spect., CXXX.¹⁾

She is George's eldest Princess — next elder to our poor Amelia. CARL., Fred., V, 211.¹⁾

There were few amongst them elder than Angelo. LYTTON, Rienzi, IV, Ch. I, 154. (Compare: And at her feet lay one older than the rest. Ib., IV, Ch. I, 155.)

In the following quotation elder is essentially predicative:

I might have raised romantic ideas in elder minds than those of Joseph and Fanny. FIELDING.¹⁾ (= minds older than.)

- older, a) used attributively 1) denoting superiority as to age
a) before names of persons when the reference is to some tie of kinship: The office had passed out of the family on the death of an older brother of his father. MASSON, Chatterton.¹⁾

- β) before names of persons when the reference is to some tie of friendship, companionship, etc.: i. This act of freedom inspired the older pupils with admiration and envy. ARNOLD, Life & Corresp.¹⁾

Although so much senior to Roberts, there was fellowship between them almost from the first. The older man recognized, no doubt, in the younger that same ardent longing to achieve distinction which dominated himself. Graph.

The younger of the two men wondered ... whether Athena was aware of how dramatic had been her announcement of a singularly insignificant fact. As to the older man ... he had turned and deliberately looked away as the door opened. Mrs. BELLOC LOWNDES, Jane Oglander, Ch. III, 50.

Note. In the opening chapter of Mrs. HUMPHRY-WARD's Lady Rose's Daughter, the senior of the two persons introduced is twice referred to by the older, subsequently by the elder:

An elderly gentleman flung himself out of his cab, and hastily went to meet a young man, who was at the same moment stepping out of another hansom.

The pleasure in the older man's voice rang clear, and the younger met him with an equal cordiality ...

The older man paused outside the line of servants waiting at the door ... "What a charming house!" said the elder, looking round him.

- ii. A still older friend than Lord Jeffrey wrote of him in not less affectionate language. TREVELYAN, Macaulay.

- γ) before such words as church, country, institution, university, etc.: These exercises have never been adopted at London, as, indeed, they have slowly gone out of fashion at the older universities. Academy.¹⁾
The ill-suppressed exultation in the faces of their neighbours of the older religion affected them with terror. All the Year Round.¹⁾

¹⁾ SATTLER, E. S., VI.

- δ) before such words as branch, generation, line, etc.: Differences of pronunciation between the older and the younger generation are not only possible, but inevitable. SWEET, Prim. of Phon., § 7.

The older generation and the younger do not speak exactly alike. RIPPMAUN, The Sounds of Spoken English, § 17.

It is easy to love a man who belongs to an older generation. MAC., *Let.*¹⁾

- ε) before other nouns not denoting persons or personified things: The painters have no longer the stimulus of attacking the older and more established order of things. Athen., No. 4459, 409a.

Note. In the following quotations older could hardly be replaced by elder, because there is no notion of any tie of friendship, companionship, etc.

He was the man of whom the older inhabitants of Dillsborough still thought and still spoke, when they gave vent to their feelings in favour of gentlemen. TROL., Amer. Sen., I, 12.²⁾

Younger boys than he had triumphantly redeemed older girls than Florence. DICK., Dombey.¹⁾

When boys see older people smoking, no amount of severe orders will prevent them from doing likewise. Graph.¹⁾

- 2) denoting more years of standing, experience membership, etc.: You are an older hand at this than I thought you, Tupman, you have been out before. DICK., Pickw., Ch. XIX, 166.

His name in gilded letters still attests his victory over many older competitors. MAC., *War. Hist.*¹⁾

Ah! the truth is a thing I get rid of as soon as possible! Bad habit, by the way. Makes one very unpopular at the club . . . with the older members. OSCAR WILDE, An Ideal Husband, I.

- 3) denoting earlier existence, α) before common names of persons: i. the older philosophers, dramatist, writers etc. (Instances with a definite modifier, although, probably, not infrequent, are not available at the moment of going to press.)

ii. Many instances are found in Shakespeare and still older writers. Notes and Quer.¹⁾

- β) before names of things: The distinction is quite of modern introduction. The older use of the word was more correct. FRENCH, Glossary.¹⁾

The older banks appear to have shunned that dangerous kind of business which has involved two modern establishments in destruction. Chamb. Journ.¹⁾

b) used predicatively: She is ten years older than her sister. MURRAY.

eldest, α) denoting the greatest age, 1) before names of persons, α) when the reference is to some tie of kinship: Infante, any son of the king, except the eldest, or heir apparent. WEBST., s.v. infante.

Carlyle was the eldest of nine children. R. GARNETT, Carlyle.³⁾

I am your eldest-born. WORDSWORTH, White Doe of Rylstone, I, 54.

- β) when the reference is to some tie of friendship, companionship, etc.: Of all the girls at the school I was the youngest, and you were the eldest, or nearly the eldest. WILKIE COLLINS.¹⁾

¹⁾ SATTLER, E. S., VI.

²⁾ STORM., Eng. Phil., 706.

³⁾ MURRAY.

Examined closely, that group was far from insignificant; for the eldest, who was reading in the newspaper the last portentous proceedings of the French parliaments, and turning with occasional comments to his young companions, was as fine a specimen of the old English gentleman as could well have been found in those venerable days of cocked-hats and pigtails. G. ELIOT, Scenes, II, Ch. II, 85.

- 2) before such words as generation, dynasty, etc. Instances seem to be rare: In my blood she venerates the eldest dynasties of earth. LYTTON, Last Days of Pomp., I, Ch. IV, 22b.
- b) denoting the most years of standing, experience, membership, etc.: the eldest member of a club, the eldest partner of a firm, etc. (No instances have been found in Late Modern English; this use of eldest may have become extinct.)
- c) denoting earliest existence. Now quite obsolete: O, my offence is rank, it smells to heaven; | It hath the primal eldest curse upon't, | A brother's murder. HAMLET, III, 3, 37.

oldest, a) denoting the greatest age, before names of persons,

- 1) when the reference is to some tie of kinship: i. As far as I remember, the oldest was about ten years of age, and the youngest about four. MRS. GASK., Life of Charl. Brontë, 41. Willie Stead, my first-born and oldest son, was suddenly summoned hence on December 14th, 1907. Rev. of Rev., CCXVII, 18a.

"I guess he means 'trunk,'" said my oldest nephew. JOHN HABBERTON, Helen's Babies, 41.

It was not long before he came to the oldest brother's house. JOSEPH JACOBS, More English Fairy Tales, LXXI, 138. (Compare: He flung the ball, and off he goes as quick as lightning, and comes to the eldest brother's house. ib., 135. In this tale oldest and eldest are used indifferently.)

- ii. Off he went as fast as the wind, ... until he came to the second oldest brother's house. ib., LXXI, 134.

They have a jolly shake-hands, and off he goes to the next oldest brother. ib., 139.

The first-born, or the oldest surviving (member of a family, son, daughter, etc.). MURRAY, s. v. eldest, 2.

- 2) when the reference is to some tie of the companionship: He was one of the oldest of Prince John's followers. SCOTT.¹⁾ He was the oldest monk of all. LONGFELLOW¹⁾.

The oldest of the tenants on Lord Derby's Estates welcomed their Majesties. II. LOND. NEWS, No. 3873, 47.

Note. When there is no notion of any tie, oldest is now regularly used.

In a word, it was one of those unparalleled storms that only happen once within the memory of that venerable personage, known in all towns by the name of "the oldest inhabitant". WASH. IRV., The Storm-Ship (STOF., Handl., I, 83).

Methuselah was the oldest man that ever lived. ALFORD, The Queen's English, § 215.

There should be a pause of at least five minutes in the winter, and at least ten in the summer between consecutive periods of teaching, the periods themselves not exceeding fifty minutes, even in the case of the oldest pupils of school age. RIPPMMANN, The Sounds of Spoken Engl., § 5.

¹⁾ MÄTZN., Eng. Gram., I, 293.

- b) denoting the most years of standing, experience membership,
 1) before nouns denoting friendship or enmity(?): If any man but you insulted her, I would tell him what I thought; but as you are my oldest friend, I suppose you have the privilege to doubt my honour. THACK., Pend., I, Ch. VI, 77.
 The insoluble question whether he was Veneering's oldest friend, or newest friend. DICK., Our Mut. Friend, I, Ch. II, 9. (Note the contrast: oldest—newest.)
 His own neighbour was Mrs. Vandeleur, one of his aunt's oldest friends. OSCAR WILDE, Dorian Gray, Ch. II, 53.
 Yesterday-evening you wrote me a very beautiful, womanly letter, asking me for my help. You wrote to me as one of your oldest friends, one of your husband's oldest friends. Id., An Ideal Husband, IV.
 Portugal is the oldest of all our allies. Times, No. 1811, 743c.
 He would sacrifice his oldest friend to his newest dog. Times.
 Compare: Eternal blessings crown my earliest friend. GOLDSMITH, Traveller, II.
- 2) before other nouns: The company was only three years old, and the oldest clerk in it had not six months more standing in it than I. THACK., Sam. Titm., Ch. VI, 65.
 He made very few foolish bets with the jolly idle fellows round about him and the oldest hands found it difficult to take him in. Id., Virg., Ch. XXIX, 299.
 During fifty days the young captain maintained the defence with a firmness, vigilance, and ability, which would have done honour to the oldest marshal of Europe. MAC., Clive, (506b).
 The oldest Parliamentary hands confess themselves baffled by the present situation. Westm. Gaz., No. 6135, 1c.
- c) denoting earliest existence: The oldest historian of the Conquest is William of Poitiers. CHAMB., Sketches, I, 79.¹⁾
 The oldest historical document in which Arthur is mentioned by name is the famous 'Historia Brittonum' ascribed to Nennius. W. LEWIS JONES, King Arthur, Ch. I, 14.
 Note the alternate use of oldest and earliest in: The oldest documents of Finnish date back only a few centuries. Those of Hungarian are older; but even the earliest of them are less conservative on the whole than Modern Finnish. SWEET, Hist. of Lang., Ch. VII, 133.

14. (Be)fore — former — foremost, first.

- a) 1) As to the formation of the comparative and the superlative see above (3).
- 2) Fore as an adverb occurs now only as a nautical term as the opposite of aft, the form before having taken its place in other applications. As an adjective it is always attributive; its opposites are back and hind. Both as an adverb and as an adjective it is found in innumerable compounds, being, indeed, a kind of prefix, used as a living formative. Note also the expression to the fore, in which fore is an adjective partially converted into a noun.
Former is used as an attributive adjective and may be partially converted into a noun. A very common derivative is the adverb formerly.

¹⁾ SATTLER, E. S., VI.

Foremost and first are found as adjectives, chiefly attributive, and as adverbs or predicative adnominal adjuncts. First often occurs partially converted into a noun.

- b) Fore both as an adverb and as an adjective is now used only to denote a relation of place.

Former is used with reference to time and to order or position in a series of two. In the former application it now mostly points merely to a period or occasion anterior to that in question (Dutch vroeger); in the sense of the earlier of two (Dutch eerste) we now find it only before half and part, earlier or first being, however, the ordinary word. MURRAY, s. v. former, 1. In the latter application it is now almost exclusively used to denote the person or thing mentioned first in a discourse, i. e. as the opposite and correlative of latter; in the more strictly local meaning of standing or occurring before the other it is comparatively rare.

Former in the sense of foremost is now quite obsolete.

Foremost is especially used to denote a pure relation of place (Dutch voorste) or of rank (Dutch voornaamste), as opposed to first, which points rather to time and to order or position in a series (Dutch eerste). The two ideas are not always clearly discriminated, and in some combinations the words are, apparently, used indifferently. Thus MURRAY does not distinguish between head first and head foremost.

Note the regular use of first in the meaning of utmost before importance, a sense which differs but little from that of foremost, most important. Compare last. Sometimes the two words are used in succession for more emphasis: first and foremost. Note also that we say the first few days, months, years, etc. for the Dutch de eerste dagen, maanden, jaren, enz. Compare the similar use of few with last and next.

fore. i. Fore and aft. MARRYAT.¹⁾

ii. The fore part of the tongue. SWEET, Prim. of Phon., § 14

The fore part of a garment. WEBSTER, Dict. *

to the fore. i. If he has not me to the fore to prove what I said, he can do nothing. LEVER, Daltons, II, Ch. XXXV.²⁾ (= on the spot, within call.)

ii. The steward . . , though stricken in years, was still to the fore. J. PAYN, Myst. Mirbridge, Ch. VI.²⁾ (= still surviving.)

iii. How many captains in the regiment have £ 2000 to the fore? THACK., Van Fair, I, Ch. XXV, 257. (= ready to or at hand, to the good, forthcoming, available.)

iv. In Paris the Panama Canal Question has again been to the fore. GRAPH. (= in full view, conspicuous.)

There is no fear of politics becoming stagnant as long as Lord Randolph Churchill is to the fore. lb. (Compare: And in truth, though politics were always well to the front among Moore's interests, they never dominated his life. STEPH. GWENN, Thom. Moore, Ch. I, 16.

Here was the wily self coming to the fore again. EDNA LYALL, Donovan, Ch. II, 147.

1) FLÜGEL.

2) MURRAY.

former, a) in the sense of the Dutch vroeger: A new letter was written in the precise terms of the former. SCOTT, Bride of Lam., Ch. XXX, 291.

I was observing to Mr. Jarndyce and Miss Summerson that you had had two former husbands, both very distinguished men. DICK., Bleak House, Ch. XVIII, 107.

In former years he had been the terror of all the careful mothers of the neighbourhood. EDNA LYALL, Donovan, II, 118.

Though it (sc. the uniform spelling) represents the pronunciation of a former age, we still use it. RIPPMANN, The Sounds of Spoken English, § 17.

b) in the sense of the Dutch eerste: (They pass) their evenings at cards among each other; while the former part of the day is spent in spleen and envy, or in vain endeavours to repair by art and dress the ruins of time. SWIFT, Letter to a young Lady on her Marriage, (474b). The government of Rome during the first half of the tenth century. MURRAY, s.v. pornocracy.

Compare: It is in the earlier half of the fourteenth century that my story opens. LYTTON, Rienzi, I, Ch. I, 9.

c) in a strictly local meaning: Of dissyllables, formed by affixing a termination, the former syllable is commonly accented. MURRAY, Eng. Gram., I, 348.¹⁾

d) in the sense of first-mentioned: Two treaties were drawn up, one on white paper, the other on red, the former real, the latter fictitious. MAC., Clive, (517b).

e) in the sense of foremost: Coming from Sardis, on our former ensign | Two mighty eagles fell. JUL. CÆS., V, 1, 80.

foremost, a) denoting a relation of place, 1) used as an attributive adjective: The king himself fought and fell in the foremost ranks of the battle. GIBBON, Decline and Fall, II, Ch. XXVI, 41.¹⁾
The foremost row: Punch.

2) used as a predicative adjective: The giant was foremost now, but the dwarf was not far behind. GOLDSMITH, Vicar, Ch. XIII.

3) used as an adverb or predicative adnominal adjunct: I am — or rather was — a prince, | A chief of thousands, and could lead Them on where each would foremost bleed. BYRON, Maz., VII.

To put one's best foot foremost. MRS. WOOD, Orv. Col., Ch. II, 37.

He got out of bed with the wrong foot foremost. EDNA LYALL, Knight Errant, Ch. XIX, 169.

He fell from his whole height, face foremost to the floor. STEVENSON, Treas. Island, 36.

b) denoting pre-eminence, 1) used as an attributive adjective: If this man could be raised up now, what would be his foremost thoughts? DICK., *Christm. Car.*⁵, IV, 96.

He carried home the pleasing illusion that a confectioner must be at once the happiest and the foremost man. G. ELIOT, Brother Jacob, 346.

When Petrarch was crowned, it was a solemn act of homage to the foremost poet of the world. BOOKMAN.

Southey honestly thought himself what Wordsworth, when he succeeded him, was, the foremost poet of the day. Ib.

Johnson was the foremost man of his age. GRAPHIC.

(These books) won for Messrs. (?) and Gillen a foremost place among anthropological observers. MACMILLAN AND CO'S ANNOUNCEMENTS, 1911, Autumn, 9.

¹⁾ MURRAY.

- 2) used as an adverb or predicative adnominal adjunct: Young, handsome: these he puts last; but I put them foremost. GOLDSM., She Stoops to Conquer, I.

first, a) denoting a relation of time or of position in a series, 1) used as an attributive adjective: Edmund Spenser was the first Poet Laureate.

followed by few. For the first few weeks she spoke only to the goat. RUDY. KIPLING, The Light that failed, Ch. I, 5.

- 2) used as an adverb or predicative adnominal adjunct Mr. Weller and the guard squeeze the cod-fish into the boot, first head first and then tail first. DICK., Pickw., Ch. XXVIII, 245.

He was pitched out of his gig and knocked, head first, against a milestone. Ib., Ch. XLIX, 447.

Thus saying, Mr. Bumble put on his cocked-hat wrong side first. Id., Ol. Twist, Ch. V, 58.

- b) denoting pre-eminence, 1) used as an attributive adjective: The old fogies, as you call them, at Baga's are some of the first gentlemen in England. THACK., Pend., II, Ch. VII, 72.

Among his political works the Freeholder is entitled to the first place. MAC., Addison, (766b).

He fully expected to play a first part in Parliament. Ib. (763b).

He was opposed by the first captains of the age. MOTLEY, Rise, VI, Ch. VII, 900a.

If they (sc. Mexico and Argentina) continue progressing at the same rate, they will soon rank among the first nations of the world. Rev. of Rev., CCXXXI, 266b.

- 2) used as a predicative adjective: For street lightning the electric arc-light was still easily first. Rev. of Rev., CCXXIV, 139. (= excelling all competitors, practically equivalent to best.)

- c) in the sense of utmost. The climate is of first importance. Times, 1898, 610a.

This accession of strength in the matter of long-range guns is of the first importance to the Ladysmith garrison. Jl. Lond. News.

- d) as the correlative of latter: Whatever be the reason, it is commonly observed that the early writers are in possession of Nature, and their followers of Art; that the first excel in strength and invention, and the latter in elegance and refinement. JOHNSON, Rasselas, Ch. X, 59.

- e) in connection with foremost: Till her boy was twelve years old, she had lived for him first and foremost. MRS. WARD, Rob. Elsm., I, 79.

15. Hind — hinder — hind(er)most.

- a) The mutual relations between these words is uncertain: only this much is an established fact that hind(er)most is not a double superlative like foremost. MURRAY.

- b) All these words occur only as attributive adjectives, the corresponding adverb of the first always having the prefix be : behind.

- c) Hind, the opposite of fore, is especially said of things existing in pairs, front and back, as the limbs of quadrupeds, the wheels of a wagon, etc. MURRAY.

Hinder, notwithstanding its comparative form, does not differ in sense from hind, but is more frequently used. Cf. yon, yonder. MURRAY. It is not restricted in its application to things that exist in pairs. Hindmost and hindermost have the same meaning, but the latter is archaic.

hind. the hind legs of a quadruped; the hind toes, the hind shoes of a horse; the hind part of an animal. WEBST., Dict.

hinder. the hinder part of a ship; the hinder part of a wagon. Ib.

hind(er)most. i. The hindmost wheels of Phoebus' wain. MILTON, Comus, 190.

But until we all agree to cry halt, it is each for himself and the devil take the hindmost. Rev. of Rev., CCXIX, 232*b*.

ii. Then Hereward came in, and sat down on the end of the hindermost bench. KINGSLEY, Herew., Ch. IV, 33*a*.

16. In — inner — in(ner)most.

a) 1) For the formation of innermost see above (3).

2) In is only used as an adverb or a preposition; but in the former function it is often found adnominally, usually making up a kind of compound with its head-word, as in in-patient, inmate, the in party (= the party that is in office). The adverbial in has been converted into a noun, as in the ins and outs (= the party in and out of office), the ins and outs of a garden (= the nooks and corners of a garden), the ins and outs of a road (= the windings or turnings of a road), the ins and outs of a character (= the particulars of a character), etc.

Inner, inmost and innermost are practically used only as attributive adjectives: the first is totally converted into a noun when denoting the centre of a target, the two last may be partially changed into nouns. As a term of phonetics inner is occasionally met with as an adverb.

The forms inly and innerly are found used both as adjectives and adverbs; only inly as an adverb is at all used in ordinary standard English of the present day.

b) Inner in its literal sense is especially said of rooms, courts, recesses etc.; metaphorically it is chiefly used in the sense of spiritual, mental, as opposed to physical (cf. outer). Note the inner man (= the inner or spiritual part of man, the soul or mind), which is humorously applied also to the stomach or 'inside', as in to refresh (fortify, strengthen) the inner man (= Dutch den inwendigen mensch versterken.)

Inmost and innermost are used indifferently, literally of rooms, courts, recesses, etc. (as inner), and metaphorically of the human heart.

ins and outs. Juan stood well both with Ins and Outs. BYRON, Don Juan, XIII, XXIV.

He knew the ins and outs of the road better than any of us. BOLDREWOOD, Robbery under Arms, XXII.¹⁾

His father-in-law knew the ins and outs of his character. BARONESS VON HUTTEN, Pam, Ch. VIII, 43.

inly. He chuckled inly. LYTTON, The Caxtons, II, Ch. IV, 47.

Here were the covert taunt . . . the careless exaction of respect in trifles, which could not outwardly be resented, but which could not inly be forgiven. Id., Rienzi, IV, Ch. I, 157.

¹⁾ MURRAY.

inner. i. * The 'sacred inner room. W. BLACK, The New Prince Fortunatus, Ch. V.

She was still in the inner apartment. Ib., Ch. XX.

And hurrying into the inner room, she left him waiting. Mrs. WARD, Rob. Elsm., I, 246.

Compare: She locked... both the inward and outward door of the tower. SCOTT, Mon., Ch. XXVIII, 308.

 She had been conscious of a strange inner restlessness, as they all stood waiting for the vicar of Elsmere. Ib., 157.

In this outer life Carlo went through the series of farewell performances at New York, in his inner life he fought a terrible battle and came out conqueror. EDNA LYALL, Knight Errant, Ch. XXXIII, 328.

 The living product of the whole inner man. FARRAR, Orig. Lang., I, 32.¹⁾

* Opera-glasses are allowed in the Galleries, but the appearance of a newspaper brings the attendant down on you very quickly; nor are you allowed to refresh the inner man. Graph.

Being thus fortified in the inner man, and exhilarated in the spirit, I venture to suggest a short railway journey. Punch.

ii. Beginning with two inners, he then put together five successive bull's-eyes. *Daily News.*¹⁾

iii. Hence although \int , \int_2 are naturally formed more inner than S, Z, both classes can be retracted as well as advanced without being confused. SWEET, The Sounds of Eng., § 125.

in(ner)most. i. In front of the second enclosure... there ran another fosse, and a third... was led between the second and the innermost enclosure. SCOTT, Quent. Durw., Ch. III, 50.

In the New Thames Street the air was like that of the innermost chamber in the Turkish Bath. WALT. BESANT, The Bell of St. Paul's, II, Ch. XVI, 53. It is possible, although not natural, to form inner—or rather, innermost— β , δ as far back as the arch-rim. SWEET, The Sounds of Eng., § 120.

ii. Desperately and breathlessly did Philammon drive this speech out of his inmost heart. CH. KINGSLEY, Hyp., Ch. I, 3b.

The flourish of the guard's horn went to the inmost hearts of the pupils from Demarara and myself. Miss BRADDON, My First happy Christm. (STOF., Handl., I, 68.)

In his inmost heart there was a passionatè wish to do his duty to Sandy's orphans. Mrs. WARD, Dan. Grieve, I, 66.

To be the strength, the inmost joy of a man who within the conditions of his life seems to you a hero at every turn — there is no happiness more penetrating for a wife than this. Id., Rob. Elsm., I, 261.

17. (Be)neath — nether, nethermore — nethermost.

a) 1) For the formation of nethermost see above (3).

Neath although an aphetic form of aneath, is understood as a shortened beneath, and, accordingly, often written with the apostrophe: 'neath. Aneath is the northern form for beneath; cf. afore, ahind, the northern forms of before and behind. Neath is only met with as a word of poets and in dialects, the ordinary form in standard English being beneath.

2) Beneath is used only as an adverb or as a preposition. The comparative and superlative forms, on the other hand, occur only as attributive adjectives.

¹⁾ MURRAY.

- b) Nether, the opposite of upper, is especially said of the lip or jaw, the legs or their clothing, and of the earth or world when contrasted with heaven or the upper regions, in this latter combination mostly preceded by this. It is most frequently met with, however, before regions or world to denote what lies, or is imagined as lying, beneath the earth. For the rest it is rare and only literary, lower or under, also in the combinations mentioned above, being mostly used instead.

Nethermore is very rare; also nethermost is uncommon and merely literary, its ordinary substitute being lowest.

nether. * A nether jaw protruding so hideously that his teeth could never meet. BUCKLE, Civiliz., II, Ch. VIII, 469.¹⁾

 His nether garments were of a bluish grey. DICK., Chuz., Ch. IV, 23b.

 Neptune, besides the sway | Of every salt flood and each ebbing stream, | Took in by lot 'twixt high and nether Jove, | Imperial rule of all the sea-girt isles. MILTON, Comus, 20.

So slow | The growth of what is excellent, so hard | To attain perfection in this nether world. COWPER, Task, I, 85.

Chance people on the bridges peeping over the parapets into a nether sky of fog. DICK., Bleak House, Ch. I, 1.

The greath reservoirs of melted matter . . . in the nether regions. LVELL, Princ Geol., I, 397¹⁾.

nethermore. The heavens expelled them; | Nor them the nethermore abyss receives. LONGFELLOW, Transl. of Dante, Inf., III, 41.¹⁾

nethermost. A scoundrel from the topmost hair of his head to the nethermost atom of his heel. DICK., Chuz., Ch. XIV, 123b.

18. Off — after — aftermost.

- a) 1) Off appears in the oldest English as af, later as æf in the strong and of in the weak form. The termination ter in after is a modification of ther see above (3). Aftermost is now understood as a formation of after or the nautical aft, on analogy of foremost, hindmost, etc. The discussion of the form-history of aft, after and aftermost, and of their mutual relations, lies beyond the scope of this book.

- 2) Off is used as an adverb, a preposition, and an adjective.

After is used as an adverb, a preposition, a conjunction, and an adjective.

Aftermost occurs only as an adjective.

- b) The enumeration of the innumerable meanings and applications of off and after belongs to the department of lexicography. We shall, therefore, confine ourselves to some few illustrations. Aftermost is only met with as a nautical term.

off. i. to beat (keep, ward, etc.) off; far off; to shake (take, etc.) off; to break (leave, etc.) off; to clear (drink, pay, polish, etc.) off; well (ill, comfortably, etc.) off.

ii. off the table, my hands, etc.; to dine (breakfast, etc.) off beef (pork, etc.); off duty.

iii. the off-bow of a ship, the off horse (foot, leg, wheel) [= the right, as opposed to the near, nigh or left side].

¹⁾ MURRAY.

after. i. Put your own first and let these come after: MURRAY.

Jack fell down and broke his crown | And Jill came tumbling after.

I never spoke to him after. MURRAY.

I was never so treated either before or after. Id.

Soon (a day, a year, etc.) after; the day (the year, etc.) after.

ii. to bawl (run, etc.) after a person or animal; to look (see) after a person, animal or thing; to ask (seek, etc.) after something; after three months (a year, etc.); after the custom (fashion, manner, etc.); to name after a man.

iii. After he had come.

iv. In after days (years, etc.); the after effects; the after cabin (guns, masts, yards, etc.).

To the friendship thus early begun Thackeray, in long after years, paid a gracious tribute. HALLAM LORD TEN., Ten. and his Friends, 89.

aftermost. We found a cluster of people at the aftermost part of the felucca. SCOTT, Cruise of Midge, 63.¹⁾

Poop. The aftermost part of a ship; the stern; also the aftermost and highest deck, often forming the roof of the cabin built in the stern. MURRAY.

19. Out — outer, utter — out(er)most, ut(ter)most.

a) 1) For the formation of the superlatives see above (3).

The forms utter and ut(ter)most are older than outer and out(er)most. These latter came into use when the older forms ceased to show clear relationship to out. They are not common until the 18th century.

2) Out is used as an adverb, as a preposition (only when preceded by from), and as an adjective. The adverbial out has been converted into a noun, which occurs in several shades of meaning, mostly corresponding to those of the substantive in. Note gentleman of three outs (i. e. out of pocket, out of elbow, and out of credit).

Outer and utter are almost exclusively used as attributive adjectives; as a term of phonetics outer is also applied as an adverb. In the language of archery outer occurs totally converted into a noun. Out(er)most and ut(ter)most are also chiefly used as attributive adjectives; outermost as an adverb is instanced by one quotation in MURRAY. Utmost and uttermost are often partially converted into nouns. Utterly is a frequent derivative of utter.

b) For the different applications of out see the dictionary.

Outer and utter are now fully differentiated; the former being used in describing a relation of place, the latter having the meaning of absolute. Utter in the sense of outer occurs as an occasional archaism.

The differentiation between out(er)most and ut(ter)most has been less strictly carried out. Outmost and outermost, which are used indifferently, refer to position with regard to a central place. Utmost and uttermost, which also are practically interchangeable, are found in a spatial meaning, and in a more abstract sense. In the former they refer to position with regard to a place near the speaker and are practically equivalent to farthest or furthest, in the latter they are synonymous with greatest, last or extreme. As quasi-nouns utmost is the usual form, uttermost being, apparently, restricted to poetic language.

¹⁾ MURRAY.

outer. i. * Mr. Higgs looked exceedingly grave as he came into the outer rooms.

THACK., Van. Fair, I, Ch. XXIV, 250.

 But the children of the kingdom shall be cast out into outer darkness.

Bible, Matthew, VIII, 12.

And cast ye the unprofitable servant into outer darkness: there shall be weeping and gnashing of teeth. Ib., XXV, 30.

Its shrill, sharp, piercing voice resounded through the house, and seemed to twinkle in the outer darkness like a Star. DICK., Crick., I, 6.

 The child was more beautiful than ever, but in other outer respects the Rose of Whindale had undergone much transformation. Mrs. WARD, Rob. Elsm., I, 268.

* The outer world was forgotten. Ib., II, 198.

Now that war has broken out, the two hostile states will be cut off from communication with the outer world. Times.

ii. We distinguish between inner and outer back. SWEET, Sounds of Eng., § 98.

iii. Bewildered with talk going on all around them of outers and centres and bull's eyes. Macm. Mag.¹⁾

outmost. This murderous Chief, this ruthless man, | This head of a rebellious clan, | Hath led thee safe, through watch and ward, | Far past Clan-Alpine's outmost guard. SCOTT, Lady, V, xii.

Beyond the outmost wall she stood, | Attired like huntress of the wood. Id., Brid. of Trierm., II, ix.

In the temple all might enter the outmost court. FARRAR, Early Chr., I, 422, Note.¹⁾ outermost. They have likewise discovered two lesser stars or satellites which revolve about Mars, whereof the innermost is distant from the centre of the primary planet exactly three of his diameters, and the outermost five. SWIFT, Gul., III, Ch. III, (170a).

Longstone (is) one of the outermost of the Farne Islands. Mrs. McCUNN, The Story of Grace Darling.

The outermost of these lines, which were three in number, ran from the sea by Torres Vedras to Alhandra on the Tagus, a distance of 29 miles. ROWE & WEBB, Select. from Tennys., Note to line 104 of Death of the Duke of Wellington.

Primum mobile. The supposed outermost sphere, added in the Middle Ages to the Ptolemaic system of astronomy, and supposed to revolve round the earth from east to west in twenty-four hours, carrying with it the (eight or nine) contained spheres. MURRAY.

utter. i. He confided to me his opinion that Clavering was an utter scoundrel.

THACK., Pend., II, Ch. XXXII, 351.

He rolled that box back and forth with the most utter unconcern. HABBERTON, Helen's Babies, 67.

ii. Arthur's slow wain his course doth roll | In utter darkness, round the pole. SCOTT, Lay, I, xvii. (Compare the two quotations from MATTHEW, higher up.)

utmost. i. So that he was renowned into the utmost part of the earth. Bible, Maccabees, A, III, 9.

Then we will go together to the utmost reaches of the earth. HALL CAINE, Deemster, Ch. XXXI, 232.

¹⁾ MURRAY.

ii. Fifty-two or fifty-three (sc. years) is the utmost. SHER., School for Scand., II, 2.

"How, reverend father!" said the knight, with an air of the utmost surprise. SCOTT, Mon., Ch. XXVII, 292.

Since the author of Tom Jones was buried, no writer of fiction among us has been permitted to depict to his utmost power a man. TROL., Thack., Ch. IV, 108.

uttermost. i. Is he not yonder in those uttermost | Parts of the morning? TEN., Enoch Arden, 223.

People come from the uttermost ends of the earth, though, of course, there are many Londoners here. BEATR. HARRADAN, Ships, I, Ch. I, 4.

They were the men and women who dared to leave moderate comfort behind and go to the uttermost ends of the earth to seek gold. Daily Mail.

France found herself overwhelmed with demonstrations of sincere sympathy, not merely from the uttermost parts of the Earth, but more especially from those powers which she chooses to regard as her hereditary foes. Rev. of Rev.

ii. Verily I say unto thee, Thou shalt by no means come out thence, till thou hast paid the uttermost farthing. Bible Matthew, V, 26.

If he married her before his father's death, he was to forfeit the whole to the uttermost farthing. MAR. CRAWF., Adam Johnstone's Son, Ch. XIII.

They have proved themselves to be fighting material upon which a general can rely to the uttermost limits of human endurance. Times.

20. (ab)ove — over — overmost.

a) 1) The positive ove does not seem to have been ever used by itself in any English of which we have any record.

Over is not now felt to be a comparative. For the formation of overmost see above (3).

2) Over is used as an adverb, as a preposition, and as an attributive adjective. The adverb over has been converted into a noun. Overmost is found only as an attributive adjective.

b) For the different meanings and applications of over see the dictionary. Overmost is seldom met with. MURRAY's latest instance is dated 1649.

21. Up — upper — upp(er)most.

a) 1) For the formation of uppermost see above (3).

2) Up is used as an adverb and as a preposition. The adverbial up appears converted into a noun in the colloquial collocation ups and downs (= alternate states of prosperity and adversity).

Upper occurs only as an attributive adjective; it is converted into a noun in uppers, i. e. the leather used for the upper part of boots or shoes, in contradistinction to that used for the heels or soles.

Uppermost and upmost are mostly predicative adjectives. They are capable of being turned into quasi-nouns.

b) For the different meanings and applications of up see the dictionary.

Upper is used with regard to place and social rank or status.

Upmost seems to be rare. Uppermost is used to denote a relation of place or superiority.

upper. i. Tom cast a hasty glance at the upper part of the house as he threw his reins to the hostler. DICK., Pickw., Ch. XIV, 119.

The lower windows were shuttered, in the upper ones the blinds were pulled closely down. MRS. WARD, David Grieve, I, 106.

- ii. The upper house of a legislature; the upper ten thousand. WEBST.
 You and your like have your fixed ideas of the upper class and the lower.
 Mrs. WARD, Rob. Elsm., III, 205.
 Note the idiom in: If he come by the upper hand, he will have Julian's head. SCOTT, Mon., Ch. XXXIII, 358.
 She had the upper hand of the whole house. THACK., Van. Fair, I, Ch. XI, 100.
- upmost. Ye skum | That still rise upmost when the nation boils. DRYDEN, Don Seb., IV, 3.¹⁾
- uppermost. It is our profession to turn the world upside down; and we live ever the blithest life when the downer side is uppermost. SCOTT, Mon., Ch. XXIV, 266. (Note the curious nonce-formation downer.)
 'Well I don't mind', said poor Winkle, turning his gun-stock uppermost. DICK., Pickw., Ch. XIX, 164.
 Down came the sovereign with the Dragon uppermost. Ib., Ch. II, 12.
 The desire of earning fame in the sports of the field, the air, and the water was uppermost in the breast of his friend Winkle. Ib., Ch. I, 3.

22. Ere — erst.

In Standard English ere is now used only as a preposition and as a conjunction, in the latter function now only archaically.

Erst is in standard English met with only as an adverb with its superlative force highly dimmed, its meanings being that of at one time (formerly, of old), and not long ago (a little while ago). In the former sense it is now archaic or poetic, in the latter almost quite obsolete. For or as a secondary form of ere, and for such combinations as or ere, and or ever see Ch. XVII, 21.

erst. i. Thy company, which erst was irksome to me, | I will endure. As you like it, III, 5, 94.

Forth skipp'd the cat, not now replete | As erst with airy self-conceit. COWPER, The Retired Cat, 100.

Beneath yon eastern ridge . . . | Stand yet, but, Stranger! hidden from thy view, | The ivied Ruins of forlorn Grace Dieu; | Erst a religious House, which day and night | With hymns resounded. WORDSWORTH, Inscription for a seat in the groves of Coleorton, 5.

In the "Ours", or "sincere lover", I saw Dr. John. Did I pity him as erst? Ch. BRONTË, Villette, Ch. XIV, 174.

ii. This . . . horrid spectacle, | Which erst my eyes beheld, and yet behold. MILTON, Samson Agon., 1543.

From the half-opened door there streamed | The light that erst far off had gleamed. W. MORRIS, The Earthly Par., The Man born to be King, 42a.

23. Mid — midst, midst, midst.

Mid is now only used as an adjective, which mostly forms a kind of compound with its head-word or with which it is commonly hyphenated: midday, midland, midnight, midriff, etc.; mid-air, mid-current, mid-ocean, mid-September, mid-wicket, etc. Also in combinations with adjectives, such as mid-arctic, mid-oceanic, mid-monthly, mid-Victorian, etc., it is rather an adjective than an adverb.

Middest, an uncommon word, is also used only as an adjective.

Midst is chiefly found as a noun, as an adverb it is rare, as a preposition it is understood as an aphetic form of amidst. For a comparison between in the midst of and in the middle of see a subsequent chapter.

¹⁾ MURRAY.

Midmost is an adjective, which may be converted into a noun, and into an adverb. The adverb in its turn may be used as a preposition.

middest. The moon was at her middest height. LYTTON, Pilgr. Rhine, Ch. II.¹⁾ midst. i. In the midst of his enormous labours, he has found time [etc.]. MURRAY.

From the midst of those smiling heavens he had seen a sword hanging. G. ELIOT, Romola, II, Ch. XXI, 182.

ii. On Earth join all ye creatures to extol | Him first, him last, him midst, and without end. MILTON, Par. Lost, V, 165.

iii. Midst others of less note, came one frail Form, | A phantom among men. SHELLEY, Adonais, XXXI.

midmost. i. High on the midmost bark the king appear'd. POPE, Iliad, VIII, 270.

The midmost and the brightest (sc. of the stars) lent a ray sympathetic and attent. CH. BRONTË, Villette, Ch. XXXI, 289.

ii. We are made to feel the young girl's enjoyment . . . even in the midmost of her grief. *Edinb. Rev.*¹⁾

iii. Then midmost in the battle was I led in spirit. COLERIDGE, Pic., V, III.

iv. And pardon me, | Who strive to build a shadowy isle of bliss | Midmost the beating of the steely sea. W. MORRIS, The Earthly Par., Apologue, VI. It stands midmost a marsh-country. *Longman's Mag.*¹⁾

24. Middle — middlemost.

Middle is used as an adjective, only attributively, and as a noun. It forms frequent compounds, such as Middle Ages, middle class, middleman.

Middlemost, now somewhat rare, is also used only as an attributive adjective.

middlemost. Folding gates, the middlemost of which is of iron. J. BIGLAND, Beauties Eng. and Wales, Ch. XVI, 517.¹⁾

25. Under — undermost.

a) 1) For the formation of undermost see above (3).

2) Under is used as a preposition, as an adverb and as an attributive adjective. In the latter function it mostly forms a kind of compound with its head-word: under-officer, under-sheriff, etc.

Undermost is only found as a predicative adjective.

b) For the varied meanings of under in its different functions see the dictionary. Undermost is uncommon.

undermost. The well-filled lips had something of the artificially compressed look which is often the sign of a struggle to keep the dragon undermost. G. ELIOT, Scenes, III, Ch. III, 209.

My best ideas get undermost — out of use, you know. Id., Mid., I, Ch. IX, 56.

By all the Valkyrs, they are down and Smid undermost. CH. KINGSLEY, Hypatia, Ch. III, 16a.

26. Eastern, etc. — easternmost, etc.

These words are only used as attributive adjectives. Eastern, northern, etc. may be converted into nouns, varying with easterner, northerner, etc. The noun southren is often spelled southron.

¹⁾ MURRAY.

Instead of northernmost we also find highest northern.

eastern, etc. i. Eastern question: a general term for the political problems relating to Eastern Europa. MURRAY.

ii. * These degenerate Easterns, who rush at and devour French novels of the lowest type. Graph.¹⁾

Sir Walter Scott is our common countryman. He made us northerns and us southerns conscious of one flesh and blood. Daily News.¹⁾

 One hears such not seldom among us Easterners. LOWELL, Biglow Papers.¹⁾

earsternmost, etc. i. The railway crosses this road close by the earsternmost end of the cottage. SMILES, Stephenson, 51.¹⁾

The southernmost of the mountains. RID. HAG., King Sol. Mines, 29.
The northernmost of these islands they called Kotelnoi, or Kettle Island, from the fact of a kettle having been found there. Illustr. Mag.

ii. Undoubtedly to Lieutenant Lockwood belonged the honour of having penetrated to the highest northern point on the globe which has ever been reached by a human being. Id.

27. Rath(e) — rather — rathest, ratherest.

a) 1) Ratherest has been formed from the comparative.

2) Rathe (a and th as in lathe) and rath (a and th as in lath) are met with as adjectives, rathe also as an adverb. Rathe as an adjective is the least uncommon, rath being, apparently, exceedingly rare.

Rather now occurs almost exclusively as an adverb; as an adjective it seems to have been uncommon at all times.

Of the superlatives, which are instanced in MURRAY, both as adjectives and adverbs, only the adjective rathest is not marked as obsolete or dialectal.

b) The adjective rathe is used with regard to rapidity or eagerness of action, and with regard to time. For the different meanings of rather see the dictionary.

rath. The rath sower ne're borrows o' th' late. RAY, Prov., XXII.¹⁾

Laying his head in a rath grave. SCOTT, Antiquary, Ch. XXXIX.¹⁾

Beginning thy rath orisons here. HOGG, Allan of Dale.¹⁾

rathe. i. Art there, lad? — ay youth's aye rathe — but look to thy sell. SCOTT, Rob Roy, Ch. VII.¹⁾ ii. Bring the rathe primrose that forsaken dies. MILTON, Lycidas, 142.

Where...the rathe primrose decks the mead. SCOTT, Rokeby, IV, II.
Thy converse drew us with delight, | The men of rathe and riper years.
TEN., In Memoriam, CX. (Some editions have rather.)

iii. Why ryse ye so rathe. CHAUC., Cant. Tales, Mil. Tale, 582.

Thus is my Harvest hasten'd all too rathe. SPENSER, The Shepheard's Calendar, December, 98.

Till rathe she rose, half-cheated in the thought | She needs must bid farewell to sweet Lavaine. TEN., Lanc. and El., 338.

rathest. i. Blackberries in their rathest immaturity, JANE BARLOW, Irish Idylls.¹⁾

¹⁾ MURRAY.

ii. The enemy not knowing which to pursue rathest, he might the better escape.
HUME, Hist. Douglas.¹⁾

ratherest. His untrained, or rather unlettered, or ratherest unconfirmed fashion.
Love's Labour's Lost, IV, 2, 19.

28. Terminational and periphrastic comparison were for a long time used indiscriminately, but by degrees the former has come to be applied chiefly to the shorter and familiar, the latter to the longer and more unfamiliar words. Terminational comparison is still the only one in use of all words that are compared irregularly.

In Present English the choice between the two forms of comparison is chiefly a matter of euphony, rhythm, convenience and diction, partly one of meaning. FRANZ, E. S., XII; id., Shak. Gram.², § 215; KLAPPERICH, E. S., XVII; ELLINGER, E. S., XX; id., Verm. Beit., 24; MÄTZ., Eng. Gram.³, I, 299; STORM, Eng. Phil.², 682; LOUISE POUND, The Comp. of Adj. in Eng. in the XV. and the XVI. Cent.; LANNERT, An Investigation into the Lang. of Rob. Crus., Accid., III, A; UHRSTRÖM, Stud. on the Lang. of Sam. Rich., A, 2. See also MURRAY, s. v. more, C, 1, b and c.

a) 1) It is euphony which causes inflectional comparison to be avoided:

a) of words ending in a harsh consonant-group, i. e. one that offers some difficulty in articulation. This applies not only to disyllabics, such as modest, robust, etc., but with scarcely less force to monosyllabics, such as just, lax.

But there is nothing harsh in such forms as kinder, -est, limper, -est, profounder, -est, pleasant, -est, owing to the vowel-like nature of the nasals. It may also be observed that there are different degrees of harshness. Thus there is less difficulty in uttering two successive stops as in abrupt, strict etc. than in pronouncing a sequence of a sibilant and a stop as in crisp, robust, just, etc., a sequence in the opposite direction as in lax being a shade easier than the latter.

β) of words ending in one, and especially more than one, unstressed syllable. The tendency of the language being to throw the stress on the initial syllable, it follows that the majority of polysyllabic words prefer periphrastical comparison.

aa) As to such as have more syllables than two, this practice is observed with great regularity, at least in standard English. Inflectional comparison is least uncommon with such tri-syllabics as are (felt to be) opposites of disyllabics with which inflectional comparison is usual, e. g. unhappy, ignoble, impolite, unpleasant.

ββ) As to such as are made up of only two syllables, usage is much more variable. Inflectional comparison is, however, usual enough with those in which before the endings the vowel in the unstressed syllable is reduced to a mere glide or, at least, loses much of its sonority and length, so that the number of syllables is not really or sensibly extended beyond two. This is in greater or less degree the case with adjectives ending in al, el, il, er, le (preceded by a consonant), on, ow, y; in a less degree with such as end in ed, et, id, ful, and some: dismal, cruel, civil, bitter, able, common, narrow, pretty; wicked, quiet, vivid, painful, handsome. Compare JESPERSEN, Elementarbuch der Phon., 13, 43.

1) MURRAY.

It must be observed that terminational comparison is not equally frequent with all adjectives ending in the above terminations. Thus it is common enough with: bitter, clever, and tender, but rather infrequent with proper, and, apparently, impossible with eager and real.

Thus also adjectival derivatives in ly, such as cleanly, goodly, lowly, kindly; princely, etc. prefer periphrastic comparison. But early, which is not, of course, a similar formation, mostly has terminational comparison.

Adjectives in ing, such as charming, taking, etc., now admit only of periphrastic comparison, at least in ordinary written and spoken English. This applies with even greater strictness to participial adjectives in (e)d, such as pleased, tired, staid, etc., even when monosyllabic.

Terminational comparison is also practically impossible with adjectives in le preceded by a vowel, such as agile, docile.

There is nothing unharmonious in terminational comparison of adjectives of two syllables that have the stress on the last syllable, unless they end in a harsh consonant-group. It is, accordingly, quite usual with such words as complete, divine, polite, remote, severe, sincere, etc.

These observations apply in particular to superlatives and attributive comparatives, terminational comparison being less common with predicative adjectives. It is even non-existent in the case of disyllabic adjectives with the prefix a (Ch. XXVIII, 8, b), even when they end in only one consonant-sound. Thus only more (most) apart (awake, etc.).

- 2) It is also euphony which mostly causes the same form of comparison to be preferred with all of a number of adjectives that modify one and the same noun, or with different adjectives placed in parallel positions in a compound or complex sentence. In the case of periphrastic comparison the adverb more or most is sometimes placed only before the first of a series of adjectives. FRANZ, *Shak. Gram.*², § 216; § 222.

i. No system . . . was ever wiser than that of the ancient epicureans . . . ; nor foolish her than that of their opposites. FIELDING, Tom Jones, XV, Ch. I, 98a.

My uncle . . . was one of the merriest, pleasantest, cleverest fellows. DICK., Pickw., Ch. XLIX, 446.

Who has not remarked the readiness with which the closest of friends and honestest of men suspect and accuse each other of cheating when they fall out on money matters. THACK., Van. Fair, I, Ch. XVIII, 186.

He looked up with the solemnest, tenderest smile. MRS. WARD, Rob. Elsm. II, 285.

She can do nothing but sing and strut about the stage in the boldest, horriddest way. MISS BRADDON, The Venetians, II, 215.¹⁾

1) ELLINGER, E. S., XX.

And thus Fate plucks from me my noblest friend and my justest counsellor. LYTON, Rienzi, V, Ch. III, 207.

The latter youth . . . was the quietest, the clumsiest, and, as it seemed, the dullest of all Dr. Swishtail's young gentlemen. THACK., Van. Fair, I, Ch. V, 40.

- ii. The musicians . . . now directed the melody into a more soft, a more gay, yet it may be a more intellectual strain. LYTON, Last Days of Pomp., I, Ch. III, 17a.

Within the limited territory comprised by a portion of the British Isles has grown up a language, which has become the speech of the most free, the most energetic and the most powerful portion of the human race. SHAW, Hist. of Eng. Lit., Ch. I, 1.

You really are without exaggeration the most beautiful, the most good, the most charming, the most divine, the most perfect human creature that ever trod this earth. JEROME, Idle Thoughts.

No man was more foolish when he had not a pen in his hand, or more wise when he had. GRAPH.

Gabriel was paler now. His eyes were more meditative, and his expression was more sad. HARDY, Far from the Madding Crowd, Ch. VI, 43.

- iii. I dare appeal to any clergyman in this kingdom, whether the greatest dunce in the parish be not always the most proud, wicked, fraudulent, and intractable of his flock. SWIFT, Letter to a Young Clergyman, (471b).

A shrew from Billingsgate would be a more easy and eligible companion. Id., Letter to a Young Lady, (472a).

Thus also periphrastic comparison may be occasioned by a combination with less or least following in the sequel.

London is the most wealthy and one of the least commodious capitals in the world. ESCOTT, England, Ch. V, 69.

"Likko" has made me more fit and less fat already. PUNCH, No. 3705, 22b.

It is hardly necessary to add that the laws of euphony often practically forbid this uniformity in the mode of comparison. When several adjectives with different forms of comparison modify the same noun, euphony requires those that have periphrastic comparison to be placed last.

He is the falsest, craftiest, meanest, cruellest, most sordid, most shameless of men. DICK., Chuz., Ch. XXXI, (250a).

It was the completest and most desirable bedroom ever seen. Id., Cop., Ch. III, 15b.

Dare any soul on earth breathe a word against the sweetest, the purest, the tenderest, the most angelical of women. THACK., Van. Fair, I.

- 3) Euphony being a matter of taste, it naturally differs with different persons, insomuch that we often meet with instances in which variety of comparison seems to have been deliberately aimed at. Not infrequently the variety seems to have been a matter of metre or rhythm (b), or indeed, of mere chance.

Christianity always made the most easy and quickest progress in civilized countries. SWIFT, Letter to a Young Clergyman, (171a). (Observe the exceptional precedence of the periphrastic superlative.)

Since the new system of feeding has come in, the coffins are something narrower and more shallow than they used to be. DICK., Ol. Twist, Ch. IV, 47.

In London one may spend the day in walking through streets, squares, and entire neighbourhoods, without encountering any, or many, visible signs that the wealthiest and most luxurious capital of the world is also the scene of the most numerous and, in the aggregate, busiest human industries ever collected together. ESCOTT, England, Ch. VI, 79.

Never had she been kinder, more gentle. Mrs. WARD, Rob. Elsm., I, 157. His clear-cut, slightly reddish face was smooth-shaven, and the mouth was at once its most interesting and its handsomest feature. BAR. VON HUTTEN, Pam., I, Ch. I, 77. (Note the exceptional precedence of the periphrastic superlative.)

The brilliant face had grown . . . more tender, and the smile gentler, than of old. Ib., Ch. II, 9.

No cap was ever simpler, nothing could be more easy to make, or to copy. Mrs. BELLOC LOWNDES, Mary Pechell, Ch. III.

- b) 1) Instances of the choice of one or the other mode of comparison being determined by metre or rhythm are, of course, chiefly afforded by poetry. But attentive reading will show that these factors are also potent enough in prose. In several of the preceding quotations their influence can be traced. Thus also in:

It was only for a very brief space that the mother's sobs were apparently softer, and her grief more mild. SCOTT, Mon., Ch. XXVII, 299.

I find there is a slipperier step or two. BYRON.

There are in London several old inns, once the headquarters of celebrated coaches in the days when coaches performed their journeys in a graver and more solemn manner than they do in these days. DICK., Pickw., Ch. X, 78. Here his step grew quicker and more light. LYTTON, Rienzi, I, Ch. X, 61. In the reign of Aurungzebe the inhabitants of those regions . . . began to descend on the possessions of their wealthier and less warlike neighbours. MAC., War. Hist., (620a).

For thro' that dawning gleam'd a kindlier hope. TEN., En. Ard., 828.

Our bond, as not the bond of man and wife, | Should have in it an absoluter trust | To make up that defect. Id., Lanc. and El., 1185.

I would have all officers of state chosen by lot out of the wisest and most fit. KINGSLEY, Westw. Hol., Ch. XIX, 144a.

Next morning when Meriem came round to the tent, Le Marchand met her with a sadder and more anxious face than usual. GRANT ALLEN, The Tents of Shem, Ch. XIII.

- 2) It is especially comparatives placed after their head-words which for the sake of metre or rhythm prefer periphrastic comparison.

A foot more light, a step more true, | Ne'er from the heath-flower dash'd the dew. SCOTT, Lady, I, xviii. (Compare: A prettier foot, a gayer heart, a more dimpled face, or a smarter form, never bounded so lightly over the earth they graced, as did those of Maria Lobbs. DICK., Pick., Ch. XVII, 151).

(This) gives me now a pang more keen than I can express. SHER., Riv., V, 1. Scarcely a year but some new discovery found itself surpassed and in its turn discarded, or lessened in significance by something still more new. G. H. MAIR, Eng. Lit.: Modern, Ch. I, § 1, 13.

But the rhythm would be destroyed if terminational comparison were substituted for periphrastic in:

There, do you ever desire to see any body madder than that? SHER., Critic, III, 1 (481).

- c) 1) It is chiefly a matter of convenience that periphrastic comparison is preferred of relative adjectives, i. e. such as make complete sense only when followed by some adjunct. (Ch. XXVIII, 4.) Thus terminational comparison is impossible of averse, exempt and many other adjectives: Such chaps are more fit to be sent to school, and well disciplined with a cat-o'-nine tails, than to poke their heads into a play-house. Miss BURNEY, Evelina, XXIII.

There is sometimes a regret expressed that we have not kept our language more free from the admixture of Latin. TRENCH, Past and Present.¹⁾ The house seemed to my sister and to me warmer, more full of interest and peace in her sitting-room than elsewhere. Lady RITCHIE (Book m., No. 246, 285a). Thus, apparently, regularly with like.

I wonder at sister Deane — she used to be more like me. G. ELIOT, Mill, I, Ch. VII, 45.

But this factor often takes no effect on monosyllabic adjectives. I have been fonder of you than you know. BARONESS VON HUTTEN, Pam, II, Ch. IV, 103.

When shall we think it worth while boasting of an Empire with the happiest, brightest, most cheerful people, freest from poverty, from distress, from misery. LLOYD GEORGE (Times, No. 1853, 522c).

The following are metrical deviations of which it would be difficult to find parallels in ordinary prose.

And earthly power doth then show likest God's | When mercy seasons justice. Merch., IV, 1, 196.

Nor feel (I) much liker to a God | Than when beside my sheep I trod. W. MORRIS, The Earthly Par., The Man born to be King, 40b.

- 2) Convenience also causes periphrastical comparison to be used of groups of adjectives forming a kind of unit, such as free and easy, neat and attractive, etc.

Tongues were vastly more free and easy. THACK., Virg., Ch. XVI, 158.

She was not, as some people pretended, more clever and sensible than the elder sister. G. ELIOT, Middlemarch.

Mrs. Glegg's front to-day was more fuzzy and lax than usual. Id., Mill, I, Ch. VII, 45.

Scotland is more rugged and hilly than England. CHAMBERS.²⁾

Its cottage-homes and hamlets are considered more neat and attractive than those of any other nation.²⁾

(This) brought a gleam and a giggle to the faces of even the most sad and tired. Westm. Gaz., No. 6111, 7b.

Note. When each of such a group of adjectives would require periphrastic comparison, the adverbs more or most are not repeated. "Oh no..." said Mrs. Jamieson in her most delicate and ladylike tone. AGN. & EG. CASTLE, Diam. cut Paste, II, Ch. II, 135.

- d) 1) Periphrastic comparison being more artificial than terminational, we find it especially in literary style, and applied to the longer words. Thus prone, jocose, morose, verbose, supine, and many other adjectives which are used only in literary diction, are never found in terminational comparison. The colloquial, and especially the vulgar language prefers terminational comparison even of adjectives in ing and the longer words. Unusual terminational comparison is sometimes applied to produce a ludicrous effect. Instances of terminational comparatives of adjectives of three or more syllables are, however, very rare.

i. He had not reached his fourteenth year before he was pronounced by all the neighbourhood to be a wicked dog, the wickedest dog in the street. WASH. IRV., Dolf Heyl. (STOF., Handl., I, 104).

ii. "Curiouser and curiouser!" cried Alice (she was so much surprised, that for the moment she quite forgot how to speak good English). LEWIS CARROLL, Alice's Adventures in Wonderland, Ch. II, 19.

¹⁾ SATTLER, E. S., IV.

²⁾ FOELS.—KOCH, Wis. Gram., § 100, 3.

- 2) It is, perhaps, to preclude any notion of familiarity that the Most High is preferred to the Highest as a denomination of the Supreme Being. (Ch. XXIX, 17, a.)
- i. Thou hast begun to reject the Counsel of the Most High. BUNYAN, Pilg. Prog., (154).
 - ii. Let us remember that Nature, though heathenish, reaches at her best to the footstool of the Highest. The Pilgrim's Scrip. (Motto to 'Health and Holiness' by FRANCIS THOMPSON).
- e) 1) Difference in meaning between terminational and periphrastic comparison is chiefly exhibited in comparatives used predicatively: the former directing the attention to the quality expressed by the adjective as compared or contrasted with that denoted by another, the latter to the excess of the quality as found in one of two (groups of) persons or things. Thus This division of the profits would have been fairer may suggest some such subaudition as although not, perhaps, so profitable to the directors; while This division of the profits would have been more fair may call forth such a notion as than the one effected by the directors. Compare also This made him happier, if not richer with This made him more happy than he could express in words.
- i. It is both juster and more economical that we should apply the money at the beginning. Westm. Gaz., No. 5607, 1c.
 - ii. "Shall we spend it (sc. the hour) in the library or in the drawing-room?" ... — "The library; it is more cosy." EL. GLYN, Refl. of Ambrosine, II, Ch. XIV, 263.
- It follows that, when a contrast is to be expressed between a positive and a comparative, the latter, also owing to the awkwardness of stressing the suffix, is mostly formed by more. Thus:
- The tyrant thinks he is free, because he commands slaves: the meanest peasant in a free state is more free than he is. LYTTON, Rienzi, I, Ch. VIII, 53. If evil is strong, good is more strong. EDNA LYALL, Knight Errant Ch. XXXIV, 340.
- 2) A further possible difference is, that periphrastic comparison, as being more explicit, is more emphatic than terminational.
- In this connection it may also be observed that more sometimes has a meaning which differs but little from that of rather (Ch. XL, 103, Obs. I). It stands to reason that a combination of this more and a positive does not bear being replaced by a terminational comparative. Such chaps are more fit to be sent to school... than to poke their heads into a play-house. MISS BURNEY, Evelina, Ch. XXIII, 112.
- 3) With some adjectives terminational comparison is quite common, or not uncommon, in one (or some) application(s), while it is unusual, or even impossible, in (an)other(s). Thus ready in the sense of prompt, quick is ordinarily compared readier — readiest, but hardly brooks terminational comparison in the senses of prepared, willing, inclined. The quickest, or, as they are called in the trade, the readiest hands. J. DEVLIN, Shoemaker, I, 43.¹⁾

¹⁾ MURRAY, s. v. ready, 5.

- f) As to the adverbs that admit of comparison it is not necessary to say much.
- 1) Those of one syllable have practically only terminational comparison.
 - 2) As regards those of two syllables it is only a few with which terminational comparison is more or less common. This form is the usual one with early and is not unfrequent with often. The latter, however, is mostly replaced by frequently when there is occasion to use the degrees of comparison.
- The numerous adverbs in ly have periphrastic comparison in ordinary language, poets sometimes using the terminational form for the sake of metre or rhythm. It must, however, be observed that in colloquial language the termination ly is often thrown off, so that the adverb is reduced to its adjectival base, and is compared like it. SWEET, N. E. Gr., § 1524 TEN BRUG., Taalst., V. Prose-instances of terminational comparison of adverbs in ly are rare.
- 3) With adverbs of more syllables than two periphrastic comparison is practically the only form.
- g) The factors which determine the choice of the form of comparison are not of equal potency, that of meaning being apparently the weakest and subservient to the others.

The following quotations, for a considerable part exhibiting exceptional rather than normal practice, may be acceptable as affording illustration not always readily accessible. For convenience of reference the alphabetical arrangement has been chosen.

Adjectives of one syllable.

brief. The ceremony of the installation could hardly be more brief. Times, No. 1812, 766a.

chaste. Adornment refined with perfect harmony and the chastest good keeping. Dick., Pickw., Ch. V, 131.

dear. I constantly think of him as of my most dear friend. Mrs. OLIPHANT, Ad. Graeme, I, 57.¹⁾ dull. His history is more dull, but by no means so dangerous, as that of Mr. Hume. THACK., Van. Fair, I, Ch. V. 93.

fine. His head is as the most fine gold. Bible, Sol. Song, V, 11.

fit. I challenged the Times to say who is the man they have in their eye more fit than I am. Morn. Chron.

gay. Mr. Crawford and Miss Bertram were much more gay. JANE AUSTEN, Mansf. Park, Ch. X, 109.

glad. i. The young girl was gladder than she could quite explain, even to herself. BAR. VON HUTTEN, Pam, III, Ch. I, 112.

ii. In truth Mrs. Quilp did seem a great deal more glad to behold her lord than might have been expected. Dick., Old Cur. Shop, Ch. L, 182b.

hard. Most men find it more hard to break through a green sod than a grated door. SCOTT, Mon., Ch. XXX, 330.

kind. It would have been more kind and more just, sir. Dick., Cop., Ch. VII, 48b.

just, a) comparative, 1) attributive: There cannot be a juster and more concise definition of fine writing. HUME, Es., XX, 196.

¹⁾ ELLINGER, Verm. Beitr. 25.

No juster or more open-minded censor — none kinder, more capable or more considerate — ever sat in the seat of Aristarchus.¹⁾

See also the first quotation under e), page 479.

- 2) predicative. * About the middle of the eighteenth century it (sc. the Academy in France) altered the spelling of five thousand words. Perhaps it would be juster to say that it indicated, in the case of a number of these, what one should be adopted of several forms which were then in use. LOUNSBURY, Eng. Spel. and Spel. Reform, Ch. I, 51.

 Nature was more just than that. G. ELIOT, Mid., II, Ch. XVII, 123.

Nowhere have these complaints been more just than in the China trade. Times.

- b) superlative. I am the more earnest in this matter, because it is 'a general complaint, and the justest in the world. SWIFT, Let. to a Clerg., (466a).

See also the first quotation on page 476.

keen. The enthusiasm stirred by the celebration of the fiftieth year of Italian unification and the prospect of a French protectorate in Morocco have doubtless helped... to make the Italian desire for territorial acquisition more keen than before. Times, No. 1813, 783b.

lax. Martha, more lax on the subject of primogeniture, was sorry to think that Jane was so 'having'. G. ELIOT, Mid., IV, Ch. XXXV, 243.

The rules which govern comic verse are not more lax than those which sway serious composition. TOM HOOD, Eng. Vers., 54.

mad. We were mad with blood; and none more mad than I. CH. KINGSLEY, Westw. Hol., Ch. XXV, 187b.

odd. Amongst the many peculiar methods of fishing in the South Seas there is one that has been noticed as being, perhaps, the most odd: that is fishing by means of a kite. II. Lond. News, No. 3777, 393.

proud. A Christian, said Luther, "is the most proud lord of all and subject to no one". Eng. Rev., No. 54, 309.

rare. She is of the most rare beauty. LYTTON, Last Days of Pomp., I, Ch. III, 18b.

rife. Nowhere on earth are race ambition, race hatred, ancestral feuds, and blood-thirsty vendettas more rife (sc. than in the Balkan States). Eng. Rev., No. 50, 1913, Jan. 184. (Alternative practice, apparently, non-existent.)

right. She's been more right than you're aware of. AGN. & EG. CASTLE, Diam. cut Paste, III, Ch. IX, 308. (Alternative practice, apparently, non-existent.)

stern. One (sc. man) ... whose pale brow and stern features seemed by that light yet paler and yet more stern — appeared to be concluding some address to his companions. LYTTON, Rienzi, I, Ch. XII, 71.

strict. By the strictest computation it is very near a million to one that you have none (sc. wit). SWIFT, Let. to a Clergyman, (468b).

I found it needful, according to the strictest good sense and honour, to visit Lorna. BLACKM., Lorna Doone, Ch. XXXV, 210.

true. i. It is a theory of mine that each... forms a more true estimate of his work than his keenest critic. HOLME LEE, The Beautiful Miss Barrington, II, 175.²⁾

ii. "People are all so different," replied the artist. "I find that more and more true every day. MAR. CRAWF., Kath. Laud., I, Ch. VI, 105.

wan. Laura saw with alarm that the dear friend became every year more languid and weary, and that her pale cheek grew more wan. THACK., Pend., I, Ch. XXI, 221. (Alternative practice, apparently, non-existent.)

¹⁾ KRUSINGA, Gram. of Pres. Day Eng., I, § 584.

²⁾ ELLINGER, Verm. Beitr., 25.

warm. The Crawfords were more warm on the subject than Mr. Yates. JANE AUSTEN, Ch. XIX, 181.

wild. Pen used to come day after day, rushing in and galloping away, and growing more wild about the girl with every visit. THACK., Pend., I, Ch. VI, 70.

Adjectives of two syllables.

able. i. Indeed, in such a matter as this, Mrs. Grantly was a more able woman than Lady Lufton. TROL., Framl. Pars., Ch. XVI, 153.

ii. Many of the best and ablest philosophers, who have been perfect lights of science in matters of theory, have been wholly unable to reduce them to practice. DICK., Pickw., Ch. XIX, 166.

agile. I, whom Vincentio Saviola termed his nimblest and most agile disciple. SCOTT, Mon., Ch. XXVII, 290.

ancient. One of the ancientest seats belonging to the Lord of Ormond. CARLYLE, Cromwell, II, 191.

angry. i. * Angry letters to his angrier mistress. BURTON, Scot. Abr., I, IV, 191.¹⁾

 I felt a little angrier with myself. SPOFFORD, Harp. Mag., 1883, 130/1.¹⁾

ii. * He would have been sorry even in his angriest moods for any harm to happen to his grandfather. G. ELIOT, Adam Bede, I, Ch. XII, 106.

 He never failed . . . to confront the states or the people in their most angry hours. MOTLEY, Rise, VI, Ch. VII, 901a.

biting. I have always found him the bitingest and lightest screw in London. DICK., Our Mut. Friend, III, Ch. XIII, 227.

bitter. i. * At other times his resentment at his fate showed itself in language of even more bitter contempt against his race. T. P.'s Weekly, No. 466, 450a.

 No wind that blew was bitterer than he. DICK., *Christm. Car.*⁵, I, 7.

To ask a loan of neighbour, and be denied — it is bitterer than death. READE, It is never too late to mend, I, Ch. I, 15.

ii. The next three months were the bitterest months of Elsmere's life. MRS. WARD, Rob. Elsm., II, 203.

careful. You'll have to be a great deal carefuller than most people. E. ROBINS, The Florentine Frame, 87.

charming. The charmingest of morning robes. MRS. HUNGERFORD, Phyllis, II, 28.²⁾ cleanly. It was imagined that by living apart, they would be much cleanlier. ANSON, Voy., II, II, 135.¹⁾ clever. She was very accomplished, too, and more clever than was always quite agreeable to her father. MRS. WARD, Marc., I, 45.

common. Their eyes and souls were tortured by the sight of sufferings which they were unable to relieve for want of the commonest appliances of the hospital. MCCARTHY, Short Hist., Ch. XI, 152.

The horses distrusted the commonest objects. PUNCH.

cruel. i. He went on to be more cruel than ever. CH. KINGSLEY, The Heroes, I, I, 25.

ii. His coming just at this time is the cruellest piece of ill fortune. SHER., School for Scand., V, 2, (424).

If I moved in the least, she gave me the cruellest poke with her foot. DICK., Cop., Ch. V, 36a.

The cruellest looks would not have wounded him more than the glance of hopeless kindness. THACK., Van. Fair, I, Ch. XXXV, 393.

She reproached herself for the cruellest of women. CH. KINGSLEY, Westw. Hol., Ch. XI, 91b.

¹⁾ MURRAY.

²⁾ STORM, *Eng. Phil.*², 684.

deadly. The beating rain crushed me with a deadlier paralysis than I had experienced while the air had remained serene. CH. BRONTË, Villette, Ch. XV, 195.

dismal. The festival was the dismallest of all the entertainments which Amelia had in her honeymoon. THACK., Van. Fair, I, Ch. XXVIII, 299.

divine. The Host, in the eyes of the Catholics, is the divinest object in the world. Rev. of Rev., CCXXVI, 310a.

eager. No evolutionist was ever more eager to find the missing link than was I on attempting to return home from the theatre in the dense fog last Wednesday. (?) Mr. Graham sees in Russia a Power more eager for conquest than any other country. Athen., No. 4461, 453b.

easy. * I have decided that we must not meet again. To make this easier I shall go away to-morrow. BAR. V. HUTTEN, Pam, V, Ch. IV, 261.

 Mamma is more easy about him. Miss YOUNGE, Heir of Redc., I, Ch. VIII, 133. It is about time something was done to make arbitration more easy. Rev. of Rev., CCXXVI, 311a.

foolish. i. I see people are much foolisher two and two than when there are more. E. ROBINS, The Florentine Frame, 261.
See also the first quotation on page 475.

ii. Upwards of five-hundred-thousand two-legged animals without feathers lie round us, in horizontal position, their heads all in nightcaps, and full of the foolishest dreams. CARL., Sart. Res., Ch. III, 15.

handsome. i. She was perfectly beautiful when she was a girl; much handsomer than some fine ladies I've heard of. BAR. V. HUTTEN, Pam, IV, Ch. IX, 221.

ii. The coachman was instructed to purchase for him the handsomest pony which could be had for money. THACK., Van. Fair, II, Ch. XXI, 229.

happy. i. * I think nobody could be happier than we are. G. ELIOT, Sil. Marn., III, Concl., 158.

Her letter to me about you has made me happier than I have been for years. BAR. V. HUTTEN, Pam, III, Ch. VIII, 156.

 I was never displeased with those harmless delusions that tend to make us more happy. GOLDSMITH, Vic., Ch. III, (253).

An old bachelor is far more happy than either a bad husband or a bad wife. Rev. E. J. HARDY, How to be happy though married, Ch. II, 27.

ii. The most happy being in the household was a plump, blooming lass. WASH. IRV., Dolf Heyl., (Stof., Handl., I, 140).

haughty. And the knight | Had vizor up, and show'd a youthful face, | Imperious, and of haughtiest lineaments. TEN., Mar. of Ger., 190.

healthy. I assure you riding is the most healthy of exercises. G. ELIOT, Mid., I, Ch. II, 12.

honest. i. One wordliness is a little bit honester than another. ib., II, Ch. XIII, 92.

ii. Mr. Rawdon's marriage was one of the honestest actions which we shall have to record in any portion of that gentleman's biography. THACK., Van. Fair, I, Ch. XVI, 165.

See also the third quotation on page 475.

idle. i. Never was there a more idle fellow. Miss YOUNGE, Heir of Redc., I, Ch. VII, 111.

ii. I don't think he's more idle than many boys of his age. EDNA LYALL, Don., I, 130.

knowing. Mr. Deane, he considered, was the "knowingest" man of his acquaintance. G. ELIOT, Mill, I, Ch. VIII, 64.

lovely. Just look at that sea, and tell me if in your wildest pipe-dream you ever saw anything lovelier. BAR. V. HUTTEN, Pam, V, Ch. I, 238.

lucky. Jos and Mrs. O'Dowd, who were panting to be asked, strove in vain to procure tickets; but others of our friends were more lucky. THACK., Van. Fair, I, Ch. XXXIX, 310.

mellow. The cuckoo flitted from place to place and uttered its deepest and mellowest notes. SWEET, Old Chap.

modest. He is the modestest man alive. GOLDSMITH, She Stoops, I.

It is certainly the modestest part of the business. JANE AUSTEN, Mansf. Park, Ch. V, 51.

pleasant. You have made my life much pleasanter than it could have been without you. BAR. v. HUTTEN, Pam, VI, Ch. VI, 315.

profound. The English have been exposed to greater political changes, and profounder, though quieter, political revolutions than any other nation. MEIKLEJOHN, The Eng. Lang., Ch. II, § 1.

proper. i. * They sometimes use the Adz..., when the Ax, or some other properer Tool, lies not at hand. MOXON, Mech. Exerc., 120. 1)

 What more proper course could any one have adopted? Times, No. 1809, 706d.

ii. Sir ANTH. My process was always very simple — in their younger days, 't was "Jack, do this;" — if he demurred, I knocked him down — and if he grumbled at that, I always sent him out of the room. — Mrs. MAL. Ay, and the properest way, o' your conscience! SHER., Riv., I, 2, (222).

quiet. She has passed a quieter night. Standard.

ready. i. * Gave him credit for...much readier elocution than he really possessed. MAC., Hist., IV, Ch. I, 497. 1)

 Every day thus unemployed was tending to...make him more ready to regret that some other play had not been chosen. JANE AUSTEN, Mansf. Park, Ch. XVIII, 170.

William found a more ready source of revenue in the settlement of Jewish traders. GREEN, Short Hist., II, § 5, 83.

ii. He is the readiest man living to make him sick with good Liquor. E. WARD, Wooden World Diss., 98. 1)

The quickest, or, as they are called in the trade, the readiest hands. J. DEVLIN, Shoemaker, I, 43. 1)

The Sub-prior...hastened to prescribe the readiest remedies which occurred to him. SCOTT, Mon., Ch. XXVI, 280.

real. Just as Lancashire and Warwickshire are more real to their inhabitants than any idea of world politics, so Maryland and Virginia are more essential than the Republic. T. P.'s Weekly, No. 482, 35b.

remote. i. Forbear, forbear. An ancestor, forefather, progenitor (usually more remote than a grandfather). MURRAY.

ii. I haven't the remotest idea how old you are. BAR. v. HUTTEN, Pam, V, Ch. V, 264.

robust. There is a sort of puny sickly reputation, that is always ailing, yet will outlive the robuster characters of a hundred prudes. SHER., School for Scand., I, 1, (370).

severe. i. I am by no means sure that your son, in his recklessness and ignorance — I will use no severer word — has not tried to raise money by holding out his future prospects. G. ELIOT, Mid., II, Ch. XIII, 93.

ii. This year the epidemic has been far more severe than in 1910. Times, No. 1811, 743d.

shabby. Marian was even stouter and redder in the face than formerly, and decidedly shabbier in attire. HARDY, Tess, V, Ch. XLII, 364.

1) MURRAY.

simple. i. Let's discuss some simpler question. BAR. V. HUTTEN, Pam, II, Ch. V, 106.

ii. Let us call things by their proper names. It makes matters simpler. OSCAR WILDE, An Ideal Husband, I.

slender. Being of a more slender figure than Mr. Jarndyce, he looked younger. DICK., Bleak House, Ch. VI, 43.

sober. His poor brother was of a much more sober sort. THACK., Virg., Ch. XVI, 158.

solemn. See the fourth quotation on page 475.

solid. The solidest of men who yield the solidest of gossip. EMERSON.

stupid. You will find me stupider than ever. F. W. FARRAR, St. Winifred's, Ch. XVIII, 72b.

sublime. Mr. Tupman's process, like many of our most sublime discoveries, was extremely simple. DICK., Pickw., Ch. XIX, 166.

subtle. He had ended by seeing a very unsatisfactory reflection of himself in the coarse unflattering mirror which that manufacturer's mind presented to the subtler lights and shadows of his fellow-men. G. ELIOT, Mid., II, Ch. XIII, 94.

The fastidious love for the quieter, subtler sorts of beauty was touched by the Elsmere surroundings. Mrs. WARD, Rob. Elsm., I, 287.

In a way More has less invention than some of his subtler followers. G. H. MAIR, Eng. Lit.: Modern, Ch. I, § 2, 21.

sunny. His countenance beamed with the most sunny smiles. DICK., Pickw., Ch. XIX, 168.

tender. As to Mr. Lincoln's nature he was the kindest man, most tender husband and loving father. Athen.

tidy. He must learn to keep the surgery more tidy. EDNA LYALL, Don., I, 132.

vivid. Rose looked at him, at the black eyes which were much vivider than usual. Mrs. WARD, Rob. Elsm., I, 293.

wholesome. If thou be indeed, so near the day of thy deserved doom, other thoughts were far wholesomer than the vain-glorious ravings of a vain philosophy. SCOTT, Fair Maid, Ch. XXXII, 339.

wicked. They will soon have something wickeder to digest. FITZGERALD (HALLAM LORD TEN., Ten. and his Friends, 113).

yellow. Morecombe came in pinker and yellower than ever. BAR. V. HUTTEN, Pam, III, Ch. VII, 150.

Adjectives of more than two syllables.

absolute. See the seventh quotation under b), page 477.

comfortable. Grief in easy circumstances and supported by the comfortablest springs and cushions was typified in the equipage and the little gentleman, its proprietor. THACK., Pend., II, Ch. XXXIV, 364.

curious. See the second quotation under d), page 478.

excentrical. Of all the excentrically planned things from Bradshaw to the maze at Hampton Court, that room was the excentricallest. JEROME, Idle Thoughts, XII, 208.

generous. George thought he was one of the generousest creatures alive. THACK., Van Fair, I, Ch. XX, 206.

ignoble. But besides the lesser and ignobler robbers, there had risen in Italy a far more formidable description of freebooters. LYTTON, Rienzi, I, Ch. II, 20.

personable. If I could but look personabler. RHODA BROUGHTON, Nancy, I, 264.¹⁾ slippery. See the second quotation under b), page 477.

sociable. Sending them (sc. the children) to a public school and then to a university, does.. produce sociabler men. BERN. SHAW, Getting Married, Pref., (121).

¹⁾ STORM, Eng. Phil², 1047.

unhappy. She looks the unhappiest woman in England. MRS. WARD, Marc., III, 106.
unhealthy. Few of us realize how recently the changes have begun which have made London the healthiest instead of the unhealthiest of cities. Graph.

Adverbs of one syllable.

hard. The general effect of a hot summer, even on children in great towns, on which it naturally presses hardest, is distinctly beneficial. Times, No. 1811, 743c.
high. I do think your grand-daughter might look higher. BAR. V. HUTTEN, Pam, III, Ch. III, 124.

Adverbs of two syllables.

Adverbs in ly: i. Bound am I to right the wrong'd | But straitlier bound am I to bide with thee. TEN., Gar. and Lyn., 785.

For sure no gladlier does the stranded wreck | See thro' the gray skirts of a lifting squall [etc.]. Id., En. Ard., 823.

"Boys!" shriek'd the old king, but vainlier than a hen | To her false daughters in the pool. Id., Princess, V, 318.

He (sc. John Addington Symonds) brooded darkly as a youth, darklier as a man in the prime of early maturity. Acad., 1895, 2 Feb., 95b.¹⁾ ii. All her (Scotland's) sons and daughters think more highly of their country that Burns was of it. W. GUNNYON, Biogr. Sketch of Burns, 50.

often. i. * Then Mrs. Bangham ... began ... to be found, oftener than usual, comatose on pavements. DICK., Little Dorrit, Ch. VI, 38b.

He turned the conversation that way oftener than a well-regulated understanding recurs to any one topic. CH. READE, It is never too late to mend, I, Ch. I, 23.

Poor young man, he seems to come oftener than he need. BAR. V. HUTTEN, Pam, Ch. II, 15.

 Do come to us more often. OSC. WILDE, An Ideal Husb., I.

The heron is perhaps more often seen alone than in company. HOR. HUTCHINSON, The Avine Hermit (Westm. Gaz., No. 5231, 4c).

These sentences often are, but still more often are not, quotations from standard authors. FOWLER, Concise Oxford Dict., Pref.

She is more often unconscious victim than joyous participator in sin. T. P.'s Weekly, No. 498, 642a.

ii. * What oftenest offends me at the houses of married persons where I visit, is an error of quite a different description. CH. LAMB, Elia, Bach. Compl. But the house where he visited oftenest and lay most on the rug, was Lydgate's. G. ELIOT, Mid., V, Ch. XLVI, 343.

 Through the trees ... came Pauline Yeoland and "the man", as Christopher Cazalet had most often heard him called. BAR. V. HUTTEN, Pam, Ch. II, 8.

Adverbs of more than two syllables.

Touched with pathos that appeals directliest to the everyday sentiments of the average man. Rev. of Rev., 1896, 15 Dec., 552a.¹⁾

Adverbs that have thrown off the termination ly and have thereby become capable of terminational comparison.

Easier said than done. Prov.

He couldn't speak finer if he wanted to borrow. G. ELIOT, Mid., II, Ch. XIV, 96.

If you looked closer you saw that the shoulders were narrow. MRS. WARD, Rob. Elsm., I, 42.

As the sun sank low in the heavens, the breath came slower and slower. ANNIE BESANT, Autobiography, 126.

¹⁾ STOF., E. S., XXIX, 90.

29. a) Compound adjectives the first of whose members is an adjective or an adverb, mostly have periphrastic comparison in the manner of polysyllabic adjectives and adverbs: high-minded — more high-minded — most high-minded.

But terminational comparison, particularly the superlative, of the first element is not unusual, if this element is an adjective or adverb that regularly or more or less commonly has terminational comparison. This is especially the case when the component parts of the compound are used in their primary, literal sense, and, accordingly, present to the mind distinctly separate notions and functions: thus kinder-hearted and kindest-hearted as well as more and most kind-hearted; broader-chested and broadest-chested as well as more and most broad-chested; but only more and most far-fetched, more and most near-sighted.

Sometimes only the terminational form is current: thus only better-behaved and best-behaved, better-regulated and best-regulated, larger-sized and largest-sized.

Sometimes the superlative has only one form, while the comparative has two: thus most well-to-do, but better-to-do by the side of more well-to-do.

Sometimes only the comparative is in actual use, the corresponding superlative, whether terminational or periphrastical, being wanting: thus only better-off, the form best-off or most well-off being, apparently, never used.

The compounds are of various descriptions: i. e. they may be made up of:

- 1) adjective + substantive + formative suffix ed. These formations, which can practically be freely made, often have terminational comparison of the first element, especially in the case of superlatives. Very frequent are those with better and best, most of which can hardly be replaced by their periphrastical equivalents.

- i. * I would wish you to be an utter contemner of all distinctions which a finer petticoat can give you; because it will neither make you richer, handsomer, younger, better-natured, more virtuous or wise than if it hung upon a peg. SWIFT, Letter to a Young Lady, (474a).

Isabella ... was higher-hearted than any one had seen her since her girlhood. E. ROBINS, The Florentine Frame, 79.

 "Oh yes you will, my dear soul," said Tom Smart, letting fall a shower of the largest-sized tears, in pity for the widow's misfortunes. DICK., Pickw., Ch. XIV, 126.

Here were swarthy fellows — giants in their way — doing such little acts of tenderness for those about them as might have belonged to the gentlest-hearted dwarfs. Id., Chuz., Ch. XV, 128a.

You are the son of my old friend Leofric of Chester; and the hottest-hearted, shrewdest-headed, hardest-handed Berseker in the North Seas. CH. KINGSLEY, Hereward, Ch. IX, 51a.

Duly after long companionship they had elected Pambo for their abbot — the wisest, eldest-hearted and -headed of them. Id., Hyp., Ch. I, 3b.

He was one of the biggest-chested and longest-armed men I ever saw. RID. HAGGARD, King Sol. Mines, 14.

He was one of the noblest-minded men I ever saw. PHILIPS, Mrs. Bouv., 83. Wilderspin is one of the noblest-minded men now breathing. THEOD. WATTS-DUNTON, Aylwin, XV, Ch. VI, 429.

The kindest-hearted and gentlest of men. Punch, 1889, 101a.

"Gifford," George Eliot wrote, "though the best-tempered of men, is terribly severe with his pen." Athen., 1892, 451b.

It is evident to the dullest-witted observers, that the aéroplane has conquered. Rev. of Rev., CCXXVI, 314a.

Man is the shortest-lived of the beasts. Il. Lond. News, No. 3831, 428a.

Messrs. Brinsmead's latest achievement is the lowest-priced Semi-Cottage. Id., No. 3832, Advert.

- ii. * Both expressed their opinion that a more independent, a more enlightened, a more public-spirited, a more noble-minded, a more disinterested set of men than those who promised to vote for him, never existed on earth. DICK., Pickw., Ch. XIII.

We live together, and a better or more kind-hearted fellow does not exist. THACK., Sam. Titm., Ch. III, 26.

We were more mean-minded than other people. E. ROBINS, The Florentine Frame, 96.

 He was always the sweetest-tempered, most generous-hearted boy in the world. JANE AUSTEN, Pride and Prej., Ch. XLIII, 243.

He is without an exception the highest-minded, the most independent spirited man I know. DICK., Chuz., Ch. IV, 24b.

Swift's life has been told by the kindest and most good-natured of men, Scott. THACK., Eng. Hum., Swift, 4.

The formations in the following quotation are used only for fun:

Even the ugliest, reddest-faced, and turnedest-up-nosed girl looked pretty. BESANT, Ready Money Mortiboy.¹⁾

- 2) adverb + past participle of transitive verb. Also these compounds, which like the above can be freely formed, frequently have terminational comparison of the first element, particularly as regards superlatives. Formations with better, and especially best, are again those most frequently met with.

- i. * To cumber our better-advised devotions. SCOTT, Abbot, Ch. XXIII.²⁾

To learn his change of opinion... from her better-informed child. Mrs. GASK., North and South, Ch. V.²⁾

The personality of the elder sister, Miss Miranda Hill, whose life flowed parallel with that of her better-known junior, shines through the comparatively small and secondary references to her. Athen., No. 4463, 515b.

 Best-regulated families. DICK., Pickw., Ch. II.

She made the oldest-established families in the country... to pay the bride and bridegroom honour. THACK., Virg., Ch. LXXIII, 773.

I had time... to take out my work, and to commence it amidst the profoundest and best-trained hush, ere M. Emanuel entered. CH. BRONTË, Vilette, Ch. XXI, 300.

Our forefathers were by far the best-governed people in Europe. MAC., Hist., I, Ch. I, 24.

The path now lay straight forward to the accomplishment of his longest-cherished wishes. G. ELIOT, Sil. Marn., I, Ch. XV, 117.

1) KRUISINGA, Gram. of Pres.-Day Eng., § 592.

2) MURRAY.

Book-lovers . . . should write for free booklet describing the least expensive, best-made, handsomest, and only perfect Sectional Bookcase. Eng. Rev., 1912, May, Advert.

Simplicissimus . . . is one of the widest-read journals in the Empire. Id., No. 51, 485.

The same summer saw the bond drawn tighter by the marriage of Lushington to the Poet's youngest and best-loved sister. HALLAM LORD TEN., Ten. & his Friends, 91.

It (sc. Rubáiyát of Omar Khayyám) is now certainly one of the best-known pieces of the kind in the language. Ib., 103.

These three organs (sc. the liver, the kidneys and the bowels) are the hardest-worked of any in the body. Advertisement.

The latest-created Knight of the Garter. Il. Lond. News, No. 3873, 52a.

- ii. Her coming there was the most unfortunate, the most ill-judged thing in the world. JANE AUSTEN, Pride and Prej., Ch. XLIII, 246.

I should expect 'All Awry' to be one of the most widely-read books of the year. T. P.'s Weekly, 6 Oct., 1911, 421a.

- 3) adverb + past participle of intransitive verb. These compounds, which are limited to some few combinations, seem to have terminational comparison wherever the first member admits of it.

* There was not a better-behaved young woman in the whole parish. BENTHAM, Wks., X, 276.¹⁾

 He is the pleasantest-spoken gentleman you ever heard. DICK., *Christm. Car.*⁵, IV, 100.

Lord Robert declares he has the best-behaved army in the world. Times.

What? You an Englishman — native of the most-bathed country in the world — and you don't know the joys of a mustard-bath? Il. Lond. News, No. 3849, 117.

- 4) adverb (or adjective) + present participle. These compounds which are fairly frequent, seem for the most part to prefer periphrastical comparison.

- i. * A harder-working woman or a better mother never lived. DICK., Old Cur. Shop, Ch. LIX, 215b.

She had to admit that she was much better-looking than Lady Fan. MAR. CRAWF., Adam Johnstone's Son, Ch. IV.

Oh, younger than M. le Curé, and better-looking, ever so much better-looking. JOHN OXENHAM, Great-heart Gillian, Ch. II, 16. (Compare: He was good-looking — none better in Guelgoat. Ib., 18.)

Children are . . . so much harder-working than their parents. Westm. Gaz., No. 6123, 5b.

 The quietest and easiest-going car I have ever been in. Il. Lond. News, No. 3804, 416a.

These tyres are the easiest-running, longest-lasting, best-looking tyres it is possible to procure. Id., No. 3832, Advert.

- ii. * I have seen many a face that was more good-looking — never one that looked half so good. MRS. CRAIK, John Hal., Ch. XI, 114.

 His most far-reaching stretches of imagination. M^CCARTHY, A Hist. of Our Own Times, V, 309.

Other compounds with an adjective or adverb for one of their component parts, that admit of comparison, occur only in some few isolated instances, for some part only as more or less humorous nonc-formations.

1) MURRAY.

- i. * The reforms in process of execution operate chiefly to the advantage of the better-to-do peasants. Rev. of Rev., CCXXIV, 127a.
Every group should have their own helper, confidant and visitor from among the better-to-do neighbours. Ib., CCXXVIII, 517b.
 They were the sons of his most well-to-do parishioners. SWEET, Old Chapel.
- ii. That would enable her to leave Johnny better-off. KATH. TYNAN, Johnny's Luck.
- iii. In a few moments a large circle of "most mousy-quiet" small people, ranging from four to fourteen, listened for full twenty minutes to the tale of "Snow-White and the Seven Dwarfs". Westm. Gaz., No. 6141, 4b.
- iv. Children almost always are more wide-awake than their parents. BLACKM., Lorna Doone, Ch. XXXIV, 206.
- v. It's the old girl's birthday; and that is the greatest holiday and reddest-letter day in Mr. Bagnet's calendar. Dick., Bleak House, Ch. XLIX, 409.
- vi. It was not so with our fortunate (or, at least, earth-happier) ancestors. FRANCIS THOMPSON, Health and Holiness, 22.

b) Compounds that contain no adjective or adverb normally have periphrastical comparison.

The commonest and most out-of-fashion colour she can think of. Punch, No. 3666, 252b.

"T. P.'s Magazine" maintains its unique position among English Magazines as the most up-to-date illustrated review. Advertisement.

Sometimes the ending is simply added at the end, as if the compound were an ordinary adjective. Such formations are, however, used merely for fun.

He's the best-natur'dst, pains-taking'st man in the parish. FARQUHAR, Recruiting Officer, V, 5.

It is the latest and up-to-datest woman paper. Lit. World, 1895, 13 Dec. He's the stuck-uppest thing I ever saw. G. ATHERTON, Am. Wives and Eng. Husb., 20.

We believe it is the United States which claim to be "the go-to-meetingest" country in the world. Newspaper.¹⁾

The most earnest student of the fourpenny-halfpenniest of magazines barely believes in him or takes him seriously. Periodical.¹⁾

30. In the older writers we find numerous instances of terminational and periphrastic comparison occurring together. This use has to a large extent been preserved in vulgar English. FRANZ, E. S., XII; id., Shak. Gram.², § 217; STORM, Eng. Phil.², 778, 949; LANNERT, An Investigation into the Lang. of Rob. Crus., Acc., III, B.

- i. I am more better | Than Prospero. Temp., I, 2, 19.

This was the most unkindest cut of all. Jul. Cæs., III, 2, 187.

I have not art to reckon my groans: but that I love thee best, O most best, believe it. Hamlet, II, 2, 121.

Why do we wrap the gentleman in our more rawer breath. Id., V, 2, 126.

He's the best-natur'dst, pains-taking'st man in the parish. G. FARQUHAR, The Recruiting Officer, V, 5 (338).

- ii. Vell, p'raps it is a more tenderer word. Dick., Pickw., Ch. XXXIII, 297.
Of all the artful and designing orphans that ever I see, Oliver, you are one of the most bare-facedst. Id., Ol. Twist, Ch. III, 42.

¹⁾ WENDT, Synt. des heut. Eng., 147.

(I) made myself quite conspicuous enough as it is, and if I tried to talk from the platform, I sh'd only make myself more conspicuouser than before. W. PETT RIDGE (Westm. Gaz., No. 6011, 9a).

On a par with this is the vulgar accumulation of suffixes, as in: He fixed his eyes on Mary, and replied: "I knows a nicerer". DICK., Pickw.¹⁾ You knows much betterer than he. Id., Chuz.¹⁾ "He is, ma'am," says I, "very miserable indeed — nobody could be miserablerer." THACK., Misc., IV, 138.²⁾

For the use of worser see 6; for that of lesser, which is not in any way felt as a vulgarism, see 8. Decidedly vulgar, on the other hand, is leastest.

Mother there, if she do have the leastest bit o' headache, she's to lay still and have a cup o' tea took her. M. E. FRANCIS, Honesty, Ch. II.

Such forms as chiefest and extremest are common enough also in ordinary literary English.

- i. And you all know security | Is mortals' chiefest enemy. Macb., III, 5, 32. Must man, the chiefest work of art divine, | Be doomed in endless discord to repine? FARQUHAR, The Beaux' Stratagem, III, 3, (410). To execute any caprice or order of her patient's was her chiefest joy and reward. THACK., Pend., II, Ch. XVI, 164.

For the first few weeks she spoke only to the goat, that was her chiefest friend on earth. RUDY. KIPLING, The Light that failed, Ch. I, 5.

- ii. He died in the extremest misery. MASON, Eng. Gram.³⁴, § 113. Another performance was painfully interrupted by Farmer Boldwood's appearance in the extremest corner of the barn. HARDY, Far from the Madding Crowd, Ch. XXII, 170.

Also junior is, evidently, sometimes felt as a positive. Thus:

the juniorest assistant. Pall Mall Mag., 1904, Nov., 389b. (Compare: He was too junior to be placed in supreme command. Sat. Rev., 1899, 23 Dec.)

In the following quotation the use of the comparative after less seems to be due to mere carelessness:

This precious stone set in the silver sea, | Which serves it in the office of a wall | Or as a moat defensive to a house, | Against the envy of less happier lands. Rich. II, II, 1, 49.

31. In the older writers one of two successive adjectives to be placed in the superlative is sometimes kept in the positive, when modifying one and the same noun. ABBOT, Shak. Gram.³, § 398.

i. The generous and gravest citizens. Meas. for Meas., IV, 6, 13.

- ii. The dearest friend to me, the kindest man, | The best-conditioned and unwearied spirit. Merch. of Ven., III, 2, 290.

32. When two qualities are compared, periphrastic comparison is the rule, usage being, perhaps, equally divided with monosyllabics. When terminational comparison is used, the second member of the comparison is always a full clause in English. Ch. XVII, 128, Obs. III.

i. He is more witty than wise. MAS., Eng. Gram.³⁴, § 109.

- ii. The wall was in some places thicker than it was high. MISS BRADDON, Lady Audley's Secret, I, Ch. I, 1.

¹⁾ FRANZ, E. S., XII.

²⁾ STORM, Eng. Phil.², 778.

33. When two persons or things are compared, the comparative is preferred to the superlative by careful speakers and writers. But the superlative is mostly used in ordinary spoken English. The latter is, perhaps, sometimes preferred as the stronger form. Thus She is the worst of the two approximates to She is much worse than the other, while She is the worse of the two is almost equivalent to She is rather worse than the other. SWEET, N. E. Gr., § 2081; STORM, Eng. Phil.², 707; FRANZ, Shak. Gram.², § 215, Anm. 2.

i. This line is the longer of the two. MASON, Eng. Gram.³⁴, § 112.

If anything, Miss William was the better of the two. SARAH GRAND, The Heavenly Twins, I, 25.

Angelica was the dark one, and she was also the elder, taller, stronger and wickeder of the two. Ib., I, 9.

If you have reason to choose between two styles of versification, select the more difficult. TOM HOOD, Eng. Versific., Pref., 13.

The case for gold ought to be far and away the stronger of the two. PUNCH.

ii. We'll see which is the strongest, you or I. GOLDSM., She Stoops to Conquer, I.

Here are two men, to whom Sir Peter has acted as a kind of guardian since their father's death; the eldest possessing the most amiable character, and universally well spoken of — the youngest, the most dissipated and extravagant young fellow in the kingdom. SHER., School for Scand., I, 1.

'He's come to himself', cried the youngest Miss Pecksniff. DICK., Chuz., Ch. I, 6b.

"He speaks again", exclaimed the eldest. Ib.

Angelica is much the worst of the two. SARAH GRAND, Heav. Twins, I, 54.

Here are two roads; I wonder which is the shortest. SWEET, Spok. Eng., 35.

Note I. But the comparatives hinder, inner, lesser, nether, outer, upper and utter can hardly be replaced by superlatives. First and last are, however, occasionally used for former and latter (11, 14).

We must distinguish between fortune-hunters and fortune-stealers. The first are those assiduous gentlemen who employ their whole lives in the chase without ever coming at the quarry. SPECT., CCCXI, (287).

Glory and danger go together. And I am as ready to share the last as the first. LYTTON, Rienzi, IV, Ch. II, 162.

"You know, sir, I can't resist a card or a bottle," says Mr. Sampson. "Let us have the last first and then the first shall come last. THACK., Virg., Ch. XXXI, 318.

II. The comparative is also fixed in the idiom illustrated in the following quotations:

a) Silence would surely have been the better part. TIMES. (In allusion to: The better part of valour is discretion. HENRY IV, A, V, 4.)

But in other meanings also best part. (7, b).

During the best part of it (sc. the month) I religiously followed the doctor's mandate. JEROME, Idle Thoughts, VI, 73.

He (sc. Disraeli) had a nervous breakdown in his twenties, which lasted the best part of three years. WESTM. GAZ., No. 5448, 9c.

β) Once I had the better end of the staff. FARQUAR, The Beaux' Stratagem, III, 3, (397).

III. The comparative is the usual form in the collocation the greater part (9), and, apparently, the only form in the synonymous phrase the greater number.

- i. * At the period of his death he had reduced the number of obedient provinces to two; only Artois and Hainault acknowledging Philip, while the other fifteen were in open revolt, the greater part having solemnly sworn their sovereign. MOTLEY, Rise, VI, Ch. VII, 900a.

Throughout the greater part of the dinner my opinion of the young man rose steadily but surely. GRANT ALLEN, That Friend of Sylvia's.

 How is the consternation of the party to be described? To the greater number it was a moment of absolute horror. JANE AUSTEN, Mansfield Park, Ch. XIX, 179.

- ii. The greatest part of it (sc. my little fortune) was left me by my uncle. GOLDSMITH, She Stoops, II, (187).

During twenty-eight years a rivalry subsisted between Francis I and the Emperor Charles V, which involved not only their own dominions, but the greatest part of Europe, in wars. GIBBON (BEST, Extr. for Transl., No. 40).

The greatest part (sc. of Scripture) would be unintelligible to them. GEORGE BORROW, The Bible in Spain, Ch. I, 8.

Compare with the above also the collocations illustrated by:

- i. The clergy are lost in the crowds of their parishioners. They are known to the largest part only as preachers. JANE AUSTEN, Mansf. Park, Ch. IX, 97.

The best and by far the largest part of his work is prose. SAINTSB., Ninet. Cent., Ch. II.

- ii. Mr. Gumbo proposed to ride by the window for the chief part of the journey. THACK., Virg., Ch. XX, 202.

- iii. The major part of the conversation was confined to Mrs. Weller and the reverend Mr. Stiggins. DICK., Pickw., Ch. XXVII, 244.

His very first step would of necessity be the transfer of the major portion of this immense responsibility to other shoulders. Rev. of Rev., CXCI, 496a.

IV. Conversely the superlative could not be replaced by the comparative in such a sentence as:

He came in first of the two. SWEET, N. E. Gr., § 208.

34. A predicative superlative mostly stands without the. When the is used, the following superlative is mostly to be understood as an adjective partially converted into a noun. This latter construction would seem to be the rule when a restrictive adjunct or clause follows. The is always indispensable when the superlative is emphasized by very.

Before a periphrastic superlative the may sometimes be placed to prevent its being understood as absolute. (44.)

- i. Plain speaking is best when the mind is made up. CH. READE, It is never too late to mend, I, Ch. I, 18.

Only such specimens have been chosen as seemed worthiest. COURTH. BOWEN, Stud. in Eng., Pref., 6.

It is evident, therefore, that from a grammatical point of view it is not only simplest and easiest, but also most correct to regard 'but' in 'he is tall but not strong' as a word-conconnector. SWEET, N. E. Gr., § 405.

My mother was merriest, for over Victoria and myself there hung a veil of unreality. ANTH. HOPE, The King's Mirror, Ch. II, 34.

First impressions are deepest, freshest and most permanent. Rev. of Rev., 1892, 352b.

- ii. He is gone on the mountain, | He is lost to the forest, | Like a summer-dried fountain, | When our need was the sorest. SCOTT, Coronach, I.
The churches were the freest from it (sc. the stare of the blazing sun). DICK., Little Dorrit, Ch. I, 2a.

The notion of its being Sunday was the strongest in young ladies like Miss Phipps, who was going to accompany her younger sister to the confirmation. G. ELIOT, Scenes, III, Ch. V, 218.

He kept the sheep he had stolen till his neighbour 'grew the strongest and stole them back again. Mrs. CRAIK, A Hero, 39.

Saturn gave the deepest tone, as being the farthest from the earth; the Moon gave the shrillest, as being nearest to the earth. LEWES, Hist. Phil., 53. (Note the varied practice.)

Now and again he (sc. Thackeray) paused and blessed amid the torrent of his anathemas . . . But his anathemas are the loudest. TROL., Thack., Ch. IX, 208.

The caps (sc. percussion caps), being such a small item, were the most apt to be forgotten. HOR. HUTCHINSON (Westm. Gaz., No. 6011, 2c).

- iii. * Plain speaking is the best you can do.

Small holders . . . have been the loudest of any in their complaints. Graph., No. 2257, 336.

 And she was fairest of all flesh on earth. TEN., Coming of Arthur, 3.

- iv. I doubt whether the actions of which we are the very proudest will not surprise us, when we trace them, as we shall one day, to their source. THACK., Pend., I, Ch. XXXI, 330.

Note I. In such a sentence as First impressions are the deepest the second superlative is, perhaps, best considered as an adjective used absolutely, the noun impressions, which is understood, being the nominal part of the predicate. A similar interpretation may be put on the superlatives in:

And beware of despising or neglecting my instructions, whereon will depend, not only your making a good figure in the world, but your own real happiness, as well as that of the person who ought to be the dearest to you. SWIFT, Letter to a Young Lady, (472a).

II. The as used in some of the above sentences may be considered as the definite article. But this is impossible in such a collocation as the actions of which we are the (very) proudest.

35. The bare superlative is also the rule with adverbs, but the is not infrequently met with, especially before periphrastical superlatives, which without it might be apprehended as absolute. (44.)

- i. Frequently we are understood least by those that have known us longest. BAIN, H. E. Gr., 96.

Things hardest to define are mostly those which are least in need of definition. EARLE, Phil., § 423a.

I came to this town where least of all I thought to pitch my tent for life. CH. READE, It is never too late to mend, I, Ch. I, 9.

They admire most what they least understand. Graph., 1891, 552a.

The new Government desires to keep in touch with the Powers, and with Great Britain not least. Westm. Gaz., No. 4931, 2a.

- ii. Alarm and distress were the emotions she felt the most and which most were impressed upon her speaking countenance. LYTTON, Rienzi, I, Ch. VI, 47. (Observe the varied practice.)

Of all my books I like this the best. DICK., Cop., Pref.

I see that good and faithful servant whom of all the people upon earth I love the best. Ib., Ch. IX, 66a.

He was the greatest patriot in their eyes who brawled the loudest and who cared the least for decency. Id., Chuz., Ch. XVI, 141a.

All the stout people go off the quickest. Id., Ol. Twist, Ch. IV, 47.

It was he who was the most moved, sudden as the shock was to her. THACK., Van. Fair, I, Ch. XVIII, 183.

It was difficult to say which of the young men seemed to regard her the most tenderly. Id., Pend., II, Ch. XX, 222.

Of all these boys William writes the worst. MAS., Eng. Gram.³⁴, § 274.

But the mother of the king hid away the weakest child, which was born the last. RID. HAG., Sol. Mines, 112.

This passage led back into that very part of the house from which you thought yourself the farthest. MISS BRAD., Lady Audley's Secret, I, Ch. I, 3.

Don't you think, Eustace, good people are always the least understood and the most persecuted. GRANT ALLEN, Tents of Shem., Ch. XVI.

Note. The before an adverbial superlative can hardly be considered as the definite article.

It is, however, an indubitable article in the adverbial phrase the least used as a variant of in the least, which looks like the original expression. In the least and the least are used indifferently before adjectives, but only the former is used as a verb-modifier. Note that the least always stands before its head-word, and that this is also the ordinary place of in the least when modifying an adjective.

- i. * All that I wished for was that one of those saucy, grinning footmen should say or do something to me that was the least uncivil. THACK., Sam. Titm., Ch. III, 37.

I do not recall them (sc. these sick experiences) to make others unhappy, or because I am now the least unhappy in remembering them. DICK., Bleak House, Ch. XXXV, 300.

 Everything in the house that was in the least pretty or ornamental had been carried together in this apartment. DOR. GERARD, The Etern. Wom., Ch. XV.

I am not in the least tired. Ib.

It is not in the least likely that Lord Staines would have been angry with any one. NORRIS, My Friend Jim, Ch. I, 8.

Though he has been writing for 30 years, he has never become in the least old-fashioned. Times.

 He is a comely youth and not proud in the least. LYTTON, Rienzi, I, Ch. III, 25.

- ii. If I moved in the least, she gave me the cruellest poke with her foot. DICK., Cop., Ch. V, 36a.

That does not concern me in the least. ANSTEY, A Fallen Idol, Ch. VIII, 118.

Thus also the is an indubitable article in for the + superlative as used in: I think that all will agree with me that I acted for the wisest, in withdrawing to my shelter. BLACKMORE, Lorna Doone, Ch. XXXII, 196.

36. a) In comparing the different intensities of a quality in either substances, or in states or actions, as they appear in different places, at different times or in different circumstances generally, the English has a predicative or an adverbial superlative, as the case may be, almost regularly without the.

Before a periphrastic superlative the use of the may sometimes be due to a desire of preventing its being understood as absolute. (44.)

- i. * The raw afternoon is rawest, and the dense fog is densest, and the muddy streets are muddiest near the leaden-headed old obstruction. DICK., Bleak House, Ch. I, 6.

At such times the hurry-scurry of the storm was always greatest. WASH. IRVING, The Storm Ship (STOF., Handl., I, 88).

Madame d'Arblay was most successful in comedy, and indeed in comedy which bordered on farce. MAC., Mad. d'Arblay, (727b).

Once when the church was coldest and the draught most piercing, he in the very middle of the vicar's sermon winked deliberately at us three boys. MISS BRADDON, My First Happy Christm. (STOF., Handl., I, 70).

When the sorrow is highest, then is the remedy nighest. SKEAT, Dict., s. v. next.

The waters of a river are often shallowest there where they cover the widest area. EARLE, Phil., § 42.

 Then his conduct was the most execrable. DICK., Christm. Car. 5, III, 71.

The rooks settle where the trees are the finest. LYTTON, My Novel, I, Ch. V, 24.

My affections are always the warmest when my friends are within attainable distance. ELIOT'S Life, I, 137. 1)

I find him the most excellent on a Sunday. CH. BRONTË, Vil., Ch. III, 29.

- ii. * Religion is a plant that flourishes best where life is happiest. BESANT, All Sorts and Cond. of Men, Ch. IX, 82.

I like the river best when the tide is nearly at its full. Id., The Bell of St. Paul's, II, Ch. XIII, 11.

The indomitable spirit of Civilis flamed most brightly when the clouds were darkest around. MOTLEY, Rise, Hist. Introd., 8a.

 With waves in wild motion we love it (the sea) the most.

The green banks where the dew falls the thickest. Lit. World.

Observe the idiom in:

I am happy where you are, but we were happiest of all at Walcote Forest. THACK., Henry Es., I, Ch. I, 8. (= het allergelukkigst.)

Note. The exact grammatical function also of this the is hard to determine. It may be understood as the definite article before the predicative superlative of an adjective; but this cannot possibly be its character when it stands before an adverbial superlative.

- b) Instead of the bare superlative of the adjective we also find a superlative preceded by at + possessive pronoun. This latter construction is usual only with terminational superlatives. It does not seem to differ materially from that mentioned under a), but has a wider sphere of application, being the only available one in other functions than that of the nominal part of the predicate. WENDT, E. S., IV; id., Synt. des Adj., 41; STOF., E. S., XXVIII.

1. The dock was now at its busiest. STEPHENSON, Treas. Isl., 67.

People are never at their best in a crowd. SARAH GRAND, Our manifold Nature, 84.

When the subject of the ball was at its highest, there seemed to be an extra shine on its glossy surface. Ib., 63.

In the luncheon hour the house-boats are at their gayest and the laughter at its earliest. Graph., 1891, 70c.

Just when I am at my most diabolical. ISR. ZANGWILL, A Dict. in Distress (WEERSMA, Col. of Stor. and Sketches, 79).

- ii. Even at his ungainliest and his most wilful Mr. Thompson sins still in the grand manner. Academy.¹⁾

In 'Doctor Dick' we have the author at his most useful. Lit. World.¹⁾

It shows the writer at his best and liveliest. Athen., No. 4455, 308c.

Burke at his best is English at its best.²⁾

It was Emerald Fanny at her most effective, who responded. AGN. & EG. CASTLE, Diam. cut Paste, II, Ch. IV, 147.

At his most sensational you are never aware of invention. Punch (Westm. Gaz., No. 6047, 1a).

Note. In this construction the neuter singular possessive pronoun is sometimes replaced by the, which, as the following superlative is felt as an adjective converted into a noun, may be considered as the definite article. (Ch. XXIX, 21, 23.)

She is of the house of Douglas, a house that has intermarried with mine, even when its glory and power were at the highest. SCOTT, Bride of Lam., Ch. XIX, 191.

The first Roman wall was built between the two Friths of the Clyde and the Forth, just where the island of Britain is at the narrowest. Id., Tales of a Grandfather, I, 4.

It was now sunset — the throng at the fullest. LYTTON, What will he do with it?, I, Ch. I, 1.

Things, however, were not yet at the worst. MAC., War. Hast., (630b).

Instances of the preposition at falling out in this construction, as in the following quotation, seem to be very rare:

The mater had been her crossdest, and Bicky her silentest. BAR. VON HUTTEN, The Halo, I, Ch. I, 13.

Such nouns as height and full sometimes do practically the same duty as the superlative.

- i. * The sport was at its height, the sliding was at the quickest, the laughter was at the loudest, when a smart crack was heard. DICK., Pickw., Ch. XXX, 271.

While the fire was at its height, a tank containing 16 tons of creosote became ignited and burst. Times.

 In the most interesting moment of his passage to England, when the alarm of a French privateer was at the height, she burst through his recital with the proposal of soup. JANE AUSTEN, Mansfield Park, Ch. XIX, 185.

- ii. I like the river best when the tide is at its full. WALTER BESANT, The Bell of St. Paul's, II, Ch. XIII, 11.

Compare also: My fortunes were at their lowest ebb. THACK., Barry Lyndon, Ch. VI, 94.

Three weeks later, when Doricote Mill was at its prettiest moment in all the year [etc.]. G. ELIOT, Mill, V, Ch. VI, 321.

1) STOF., E. S., IV.

2) WENDT, Syn. des Adj., 41.

37. To express the highest effort in the matter of an action, the English, like the Dutch, uses a superlative preceded by a possessive pronoun. The superlative is sometimes preceded by the adverb very for greater emphasis.

i. The two women shrieked their loudest. THACK., Pend., II, Ch. XXXVIII, 409.
The birds were singing their loudest. PUNCH.

The noise reached its loudest when Mr. Bartley . . . declared it to be an outrageous scandal [etc.]. TIMES.

The emissaries from Ulster . . . worked their hardest to alarm the electors about Home Rule. WESTM. GAZ., No. 6311, 1b.

ii. Admiral Bowster stared his very hardest. MISS BRADDON, My First Happy Christmas. (STOF., Handl., I, 70.)

Other stars — even the smallest — scintillated and sparkled their very best. RITA, America — Seen through English eyes, Ch. II, 39.

Note I. Sometimes at appears before this superlative.

He led me, in a courtly manner, stepping at his tallest, to an open place beside the water. BLACKM., Lorna Doone, Ch. XXI, 119.

From six that morning till past noon the huge wood fire in the kitchen roared and sparkled at its highest. HARDY, Far from the Madding Crowd, Ch. LII, 422.

II. The precise grammatical character of this superlative is somewhat hard to define. The most plausible view, apparently, is to consider it an adjective partially converted into a noun. (Ch. XXIX, 21, 23.)

38. Many superlatives form adverbial adjuncts in connection with the preposition at. In the majority of these the definite article is usually suppressed. The suppression is sometimes attended by a modification of meaning, but may also be a matter of metre or rhythm. The grammatical nature of the superlatives is that of an adjective partially converted into a noun. (Ch. XXIX, 22, Obs. VI, β.)

at (the) best. MURRAY gives two meanings, the first of which he marks as obsolete: "a) at the best possible pitch, in the best possible way, manner or condition; b) (taken) in the best circumstances, in the most favourable aspect, making every allowance, at most." In the latter meaning MURRAY mentions only at best, i. e. he does not mention at the best as an alternative form. Instances, however, occur occasionally. SHAKESPEARE has in the best in the sense of at best. FRANZ, *Shak. Gram.*², § 268.

i. * And wel we weren esed atte (= at the) beste. CHAUCER, Cant. Tales, ProL., 29. (= fully at ease.)

Good Brabantio, take up this mangled matter at the best. Othello, I, 3, 171.

 The Orsini are tyrants — and the Colonnas are, at the best, as bad. LYTTON, Rienzi, I, Ch. III, 22.

It is a mad policy at the best. TIMES.

At the best we cannot expect any but a gradual return to normal conditions in France. WESTM. GAZ., No. 5436, 1c.

ii. His pace was at best an awkward one in the street. DICK., Chimes, II, 37.
Life is at best very short. WEBST.

I am not a musician, only a musical box at best. DOR. GERARD, The Etern. Woman, Ch. XVI.

iii. Murder most foul, as in the best it is; | But this most foul, strange and unnatural. Hamlet, I, 5, 27.

at (the) earliest. The article is more frequently used than suppressed.

i. They were not likely to receive an answer for eight or ten weeks at the earliest. Dick, Chuz., Ch. XXXIII, 268*b*.

I cannot hear from Dick at the earliest before Tuesday evening. Mrs. Alex., A Life Interest, II, Ch. XVIII, 291.

ii. I charge thee not to attempt to travel till to-morrow at earliest. Scott, Ivanhoe Ch. XL, 416.

The division won't be till half past ten at earliest. Mrs. Ward, Marc., III, 37.

The little pink bells do not show till June at earliest. John Lloyd Warden Page, The Coasts of Devon and Lundy Island, Ch. II, 12.

at (the) farthest (or furthest). The article is mostly suppressed, at least in Present English.

i. Tranio. Travel you far on, or are you at the farthest? Pedant. Sir, at the farthest for a week or two; | But then up farther, and as far as Rome. Taming of the Shrew, IV, 2, 75.

Let it be so hasted that supper be ready at the farthest by five of the clock. Merch., II, 2, 122.

"I shan't be away more than a day or two, sir, at the farthest" said Sam. Dick, Pickw., Ch. LII, 479.

ii. In two or three days at farthest. Golds., Good-nat. man, III.

The secret complaint will kill him in a few months at furthest. Flor. Marryat, Open Sesame, 105.

A second lieutenant considers himself very badly treated by Fate if he does not attain a lieutenancy within a couple of years at farthest. Graph.

at fewest. No further instances than the following have come to hand.

In all instances which I have yet investigated, the substance of this germ has peculiar composition, consisting of at fewest four elementary bodies. Huxl., Darw., Ch. V, 199.

at (the) first. The expression with the article is found in the sense of a) from the first, at the outset (= Dutch al dadelijk); b) in the earliest times; c) in the beginning (= Dutch in het eerst).

At first is used in the sense of a) in the beginning (= Dutch in het eerst, in het begin), b) the first time (= Dutch de eerste keer), c) at once, directly (= Dutch dadelijk), d) first (= Dutch het eerst), e) in the beginning of life, in like manner as at last sometimes means in the end of life. In the first sense it is found in statements that are thought of as a contrast to another, which, accordingly, often opens with but.

These may be the principal shades of meaning of at the first and at first. Altogether it is often difficult to apprehend their precise meaning. Only at first in the first sense indicated above, is at all common in Present English. See also FRANZ, *Shak. Gram.*², § 268.

i. * Let him that moved you hither | Remove you hence: I knew you at the first | You were a moveable. Taming of the Shrew, II, 197.

O, never was there queen | So mightily betray'd! yet at the first | I saw the treasons planted. Ant. and Cleop., I, 2, 25.

"Did any of them know of your coming?" — "Yes, My Wife and Children saw me at the first, and called after me to turn again." BUNYAN, Pilg. Prog., (151).

For it was thro' me | This evil came on William at the first. TEN., Dora.

 Anything so overdone is from the purpose of playing. whose end, both at the first and now, was and is, to hold as't were, the mirror up to nature. Hamlet, III, 2, 23.

Thy cloud goes up, | As at the first, to water the great earth, | And keep her valleys green. BRYANT, A Hymn of the Sea, 8.

 Dangerous conceits are, in their natures, poisons: | Which at the first are scarce found to distaste. Othello, III, 3, 327.

Lieutenant Smith, her grandfather, had been at the first very much averse to our union. THACK., Sam. Titm., Ch. VIII, 87.

The very position which cripples at the first, often gives authority before the end. LYTTON, Rienzi, II, Ch. III, 88.

The Camp... is intended at the first to accommodate about forty working boys. Westm. Gaz., No. 6011, 8c.

- ii. * Just at first I thought there would be only one course, that of putting Paradyne away. Mrs. Wood, Orv. Col., Ch. III, 46.

 Duke S. Art thou thus bolden'd, man, by thy distress | Or else a rude despiser of good manners, | That in civility thou seem'st so empty? — ORL. You touch'd my vein at first. As you like it, II, 7, 94.

Ruined love, when it is built anew, | Grows fairer than at first. SHAK., Son., CXIX. (Compare the Dutch Op oud ijs vriest het licht.)

 Well was it fit for a servant to use his master so... | Whom, would to God, I had well knock'd at first, | Then had not Grumio come by the worst. Taming of the Shrew, I, 2, 34.

This worthy signior, | I thank him, makes no stranger of me; we are familiar at first. Cymbeline, I, 3, III.

Nothing but your passion and violence, you silly fellow, prevented my telling you at first. SHER., Riv., III, I.

He thought it best to make a stand at first, and civilly refused such dangerous companions among his troops. MAC., Fred., (694b).

* Let's each one send unto his wife; | And he whose wife is most obedient | To come at first when he doth send for her, | Shall win the wager which we will propose. Taming of the Shrew, V, 2, 68.

"True is it, my incorporate friends," quoth he, | "That I receive the general food at first." Coriol., I, 1, 121.

 And (I) abused not my health and my vigour at first | That I never might need them at last. SOUTHEY, The Old Man's Comfort, II.

at the highest. No other instances than the following have been found:

The point-blank range of the French and German rifles is 800 yards, that of the British rifle at the highest is 600 yards. Times, No. 1825, 1031d.

(These) suggestions... at the lowest deserve careful consideration, at the highest, have only to be stated to carry conviction. Times (Westm. Gaz., No. 6264, 3c).

at (the) last. In Early Modern English at last and at the last were used indiscriminately. FRANZ, Shak. Gram.², §. 268. The latter is now rather uncommon and seems to be chiefly applied in the sense of at the last moment; compare to the last (= up to the last moment of life). The discourse does not, however, always bring out this meaning very clearly.

At last is mostly used in the sense of at length (= after the removal of all impediments); but is occasionally found in the meaning of after all. The phrase at (the) long last, now infrequent, represents an emphatic at last.

SHAKESPEARE has in the last in the sense of at last.

- i. * Gad, a troop shall overcome him, but he shall overcome at the last. Bible, Gen., XLIX, 19.

At the last I saw, as it were, a narrow gap. BUNYAN, Grace Abounding, 312. 1)

So that at the last we may come to his eternal joy. Com. Pray., Gen. Conf.

1) FRANZ, E. S., XVIII.

Sleet and rain beat hard upon the mourners, but all was sunshine at the last. GARNETT, Life of Carlyle, 165.¹⁾

She spoke at large of many things, | And at the last she spoke of me. TEN., Miller's Daught., XX.

So you have come back to me at the last. Eng. Rev., No. 52, 597.

 Woman, disturb me not now at the last. TEN., En. Ard., 869.

He was so delighted with the presentation of Dinah, and so convinced that the readers' interest would centre in her, that he wanted her to be the principal figure at the last. ELIOT'S Life, II, 195.²⁾

Sigrid drew aside little Swanhild at the last, and left the father and son to have their parting words alone. EDNA LYALL, A Hardy Norseman, Ch. IV, 39.

It is no uncommon thing for the mind thus to fail at the last. RIDER HAGGARD, Mr. Mees. Will, Ch. XXI, 225.

- ii. * At last, to my great joy, I received notice of his safe arrival. DICK., Uncomm. Trav., Ch. XXVIII.³⁾

 Whether originally of a timid temperament or not, he was certainly possessed of perfect courage at last. MOTLEY, Rise, VI, Ch. VII, 903a. (= in the latter part of his life.)

 They hadn't ate it all at last. DICK., *Christm. Car.*⁵, III, 68. (= after all.)

- iii. * This Woman, I say . . . was at the Long Last prevail'd upon to hear the Will read. R. L'ESTRANGE, Tables, CXC VIII, 168.³⁾

We can find a useful and instructive solace in a hearty abuse of human nature, which at the long last is always to blame. LOWELL, Study Wind, 131.³⁾

 The supremely important thing is that, at long last, the Russian nation is to be supplied with an articulate representative assembly. Rev. of Rev., CLXXXIX, 228a.

By this means I might, at long last, get together the rudiments of a Society in all parts of the English-speaking world. Ib., CXC V, 226.

We learned, at long last, that its career was over. RYAN, Lit. Lond., 28.

Francis was a Norton, at long last. HAL. SUTCL., Pam the Fiddler, Ch. II, 30.

- iv. In the last, | When he had carried Rome, and that we look'd | For no less spoil than glory. CORIOL., V, 6, 43.

at (the) latest. The article is not usually suppressed.

- i. Ordinary bed-time in his mind meant 10 p. m. or 10.30 at the latest. I. Lond. News.

The general belief in town and camp is that the relief column will join hands with us by Monday night at the latest. Times.

- ii. Ready to set sail on the morrow, or next day at latest. LONGFELLOW, Courtship of Miles Standish, I.

Some time that night, or at latest noon of the morrow, we should sight the Treasure Island. STEPHENSON, Treas. Isl., 87.

at (the) least. When attached to a quantitative designation to indicate that the amount referred to is the smallest admissible (= Dutch op zijn minst), the article seems to be regularly used. Conversely suppression seems to be now all but regular, when the expression is used in the sense of at any rate, at all events (= Dutch ten minste). According to AL. SCHMIDT (Shak. Lex.), SHAKESPEARE observes no difference between at the least and at least. See also FRANZ, *Shak. Gram.*², § 268 and id., Eng. Stud., XVIII.

1) TEN BRUG., Taalst., XI.

2) Ib., X.

3) MURRAY.

- i. * She saved 600 l. a-year, at the least, by living with us. THACK., Sam. Titm., Ch. X, 115.

How many have I killed? — Nineteen, at the least. CH. KINGSLEY, Westw. Hol., Ch. XVIII, 138b.

The thing must have weighed three pounds at the least. JEROME, Sketches. I hope to remain for three weeks at the least. PAUL CHESWICK, In the Land of Dreams, Ch. I.

You look eighteen at the least. CON. DOYLE, Rodn. Stone, I, Ch. V, 115.

 Go to thy lady's grave and call hers (sc. her love) thence | Or, at the least in hers sepulchre thine. Two Gentl., IV, 2, 118.

Let it suffice thee, Mistress Page, — at the least, if the love of soldier can suffice, — that I love thee. Merry Wives, II, 1, 11.

At the least this was certain, Miss L. had no fortune or expectations. THACK., Virg., Ch. LXXV, 794.

- ii. At least we'll die with harness on our back. Macb., V, 5, 52.

at longest. The following is the only instance found:

At longest they were only twelve minutes behind another express. Westm. Gaz., No. 6323, 1b.

at the lowest. The article seems to be regularly used.

People who profess accuracy and assume a heavy responsibility, cannot escape condemnation, if they choose to accept ready-made lies from sources that ought to have aroused suspicion, or at the lowest to have suggested caution. Times, No. 1261, 146b.

Every foolish bit of gossip . . . was, of course, put forth by Mr. Dillon either as a fully-substantiated fact, or at the lowest as a strong presumption calling for inquiry. Ib., 146a.

at (the) most. The article seems to be mostly dropped.

- i. Even at the most, Sparta gains nothing by these wars. LYTTON, Paus.¹⁾

- ii. After these entered a tall child, at most but in her thirteenth year. Mrs. F. BROOKE, Old Maid, No. 30, 177.²⁾

At most it increases what they already possess. GOLDSMITH.¹⁾

At most he was sent to make a short trip in a man-of-war. MACAULAY, Hist.²⁾ at the poorest. The following is the only instance found:

It is a challenge to the ordinary Congress-goer, who at the poorest is a seven-and-sixpenny person with a margin for railway-fare and for lodgment during the week, in case local hospitality cannot be found. Times, No. 1814, 803a.

at (the) widest. The only instance found is with the article suppressed. He'll be hanged yet, | Though every drop of water swear against it | And gape at widest to glut him. Temp., I, 1, 55.

at (the) worst. The article is rarely dispensed with.

- i. At the worst or at the best, we should not be divided. LYTTON, Rienzi, II, Ch. VIII, 115.

At the worst, obscure honesty is better than gaudy crime. Ib., IV, Ch. I, 149.

She had probably had some experience in such matters, and felt tolerably certain of being able, at the worst, to manage the old gentleman in the gold spectacles. F. ANSTEY, Vice Versa, Ch. XI, 217.

Even at the worst an emergency service could be carried on. Times, No. 1809, 702d.

- ii. At worst it was scarcely more than an exaggeration of what his state had been for months. KATH. CEC. THURSTON, John Chilcote, M. P., Ch. VI, 61.

¹⁾ SATTler, E. S., XXXI, 349.

²⁾ MURRAY.

Note. In none of the above expressions is the article ever omitted when the superlative is emphasized by very.

At ten o'clock at the very earliest. GRANT ALLEN, Tents of Shem, Ch. III.

39. A gradual increase of some quality is mostly expressed by two comparatives connected by and, the adjective being placed only after the second more or less in the case of periphrastic comparison.

i. By that time Mr. Pickwick and Sam Weller were every succeeding minute placing a less and less distance between themselves and the good old town of Bury St. Edmunds. DICK., Pickw., Ch. XV, 136.

The plan was simply this, to demand larger and larger contributions till the Rajah should be driven to remonstrate. MAC., War. Hist., (629b).

ii. * He grew more and more untractable every day, and lost favour in the eyes of both the doctor and the housekeeper. WASH. IRV., Dolf. Heyl. (STOR., Handl., I, 100).

 The horses became less and less capable of control. DICK., Chuz., Ch. XLII, 328c.

Note I. Either the first or the second comparative is sometimes preceded by ever.

i. She had sunk ever lower and lower. JEROME, Three Men in a Boat, Ch. XVI, 213.

ii. And there | Her constant motion round him, and the breath | Of her sweet tendance over him, | Fill'd all the genial courses of his blood | With deeper and with ever deeper love. TEN., Ger. and En., 927.

II. The placing of ever before the first comparative may occasion the suppression of the second.

The case for the Berlin bust as a genuine work by Leonardo da Vinci gets ever thinner. WESTM. GAZ., No. 5179, 2b.

She was as sweet as before, but more aloof. The condescension was ever more marked, and the appeal for sympathy and pity ever fainter. AGN. & EG. CASTLE, Diamond cut Paste, I, Ch. VII, 97.

III. A similar suppression of the second comparative is quite usual when the sentence contains an adverbial adjunct with every, each (Ch. XL, 54, Obs. III), or one like daily, day by day, constantly.

i. Onward she came, the large black hulk seeming larger at every fathom's length. SCOTT, Pirate, Ch. VII, 83.

I think my pretty cousin looks prettier every day. THACK., Newc., I, Ch. XXVII, 301. (= Dutch ziet er met den dag aardiger uit.)

The old man was drawing nearer to her every day. BEATR. HAR., Ships, II, Ch. II, 119.

Compare: Tom felt more and more every day that he stood alone. HUGHES, Tom Brown, II, Ch. VII, 319.

"People are all so different," replied the artist. "I find that more and more true every day." MAR. CRAWF., Kath. Laud., I, Ch. VI, 105.

ii. I love you, if possible, each day more truly and more tenderly. DISRAELI, (Athen., No. 4438, 578b).

iii. Their path became daily more smooth and easy. MRS. GASK., Mary Barton, Ch. XXXVIII, 367.

iv. The hatred against the Queen seemed to grow deeper day by day amongst the people. MAY WINNE, When Terror Ruled, Ch. III, 31.

She hated the state of tutelage with a hatred that grew more rebellious hour by hour. AGN. & EG. CASTLE, Panther's Cub, I, Ch. VI, 66.

v. Their mutual aversion was constantly becoming stronger. MAC., War. Hast., (624b).

IV. Thus also when there is a series of successive words requiring periphrastic comparison, and + the second more is mostly suppressed. In time Labby (i. e. Labouchere) frequented it (sc. Pope's Villa) less and less, and the invitations came more rarely and more scantily. T. P.'s Weekly, No. 497, 610c. (Instead of more and more rarely and more and more scantily.)

V. For the sake of measure or rhythm:

a) the second comparative is sometimes made periphrastical, a synonymous word being occasionally chosen for the sake of variety.

i. Caleb's scanty hairs were turning greyer and more grey. DICK., Cricket, II, 37.

ii. And pressing closer and more near, | He whispered praises in her ear. SCOTT, Marm., V, XIII.

β) a positive is sometimes substituted for the comparative, chiefly in poetry. FIJN VAN DRAAT, Rhythm in Eng. Prose, Adj., § 37.

Faint, and more faint, its (sc. the hurricane's) failing din | Return'd from cavern, cliff and linn. SCOTT, Lady, I, III, 17.

She gradually drew near and nearer. Id., Mon., Ch. XXV, 270.

And then advanced with stealth-like pace, | Drew softly near her, and more near. WORDSW., White Doe, VII, 105.

Faint she grew, and ever fainter. TEN., Lord of Burl., 81.

And her breath came fast and faster. ROSE H. THORPE, Curfew must not ring to-night, IV.

And the eastern breeze | Grows fresh and fresher. W. MORRIS, The Earthly Par., The Proud King, 96a.

γ) the adverb still or yet is sometimes inserted where most convenient.

And hark! and hark! the deep-mouth'd bark | Comes nigher still, and nigher. SCOTT, Lay, III, xv.

It (sc. the fire) swayed or fell before the mighty gale, only to rise higher and yet higher, to ravage and roar yet more wildly. MRS. GASK., Mary Barton, Ch. V, 46.

As the years passed, we two grew dearer and yet more dear to each other. RID. HAG., She, Ch. II, 20.

Nearer he came, and yet nearer. ETH. M. DELL, The Way of the Eagle, I, Ch. V, 55.

She (sc. the boat) sank lower and yet lower. Westm. Gaz., No. 6023, 3b.

The following quotation seems to show that of adverbs in ly the first may be kept in the positive in this combination.

The carriage moved forward slowly and yet more slowly. Times, No. 1824, 1002b.

δ) the comparatives more or less are sometimes divided by the adjective.

Saint George's banner, broad and gay, | Now faded, as the fading ray | Less bright, and less, was flung. SCOTT, Marm., I, II.

40. A proportional increase of two qualities is expressed by placing the adverb the before two comparatives. See also Ch. VIII, 15d; Ch. XVII, 142; Ch. XXXI, 6, b.

The rougher the billow, | The happier we.

The nearer we drew, the more familiar the objects became that we passed. DICK., Cop., Ch. III, 21a.

The more I reflect, the more I am astonished at the monstrous and wicked impudence of that fellow. LYTTON, Night and Morn., 377.

The more we change, the more we remain the same. BESANT, London, I, 102.

Curious that in lodgings the rule of life is reversed: the higher you get up in the world, the lower you go down in your lodgings. JEROME, Idle Thoughts, XII, 203. The more people earned, the more they spent on beer and spirits. Graph., 1889, 178a.

Note I. In proverbial sayings the is sometimes suppressed.

More haste worse speed. SWEET, N. E. Gr., § 1944.

II. Also in the following quotation the reference seems to be to a proportional increase.

And farther as the Hunter stray'd, | Still broader sweep its (sc. that of the lake) channel made. SCOTT, Lady, I, xiii.

III. The adjective or adverb is sometimes divided from the more by other elements of the sentence.

The more he was calm, the more enraged the mother became. T. P.'s Weekly, No. 468, 522a.

IV. The is also found before a comparative to indicate the dependence of the increase of some quality on what is expressed in an adverbial adjunct or clause of cause. It may interest the foreign student that these adjuncts or clauses may open with a great variety of prepositions or conjunctions, for and because being, however, the usual words. For instances see also Ch. XVII, 39. An exhaustive study of the subject has been given by OLAF JOHNSON in E. S., XLIV, 212—239. For so-called errors in the application of the see the King's English 70—74; UHRSTRÖM, Stud. on the Lang. of Sam. Richardson, 48.

i. * Why man, you don't seem one whit the happier at this. SHER., Riv., IV, 3, (268).

 Mr. R. had shown a very marked interest in Mr. B's daughter — all the more marked because of the reserved manner with which it had to contend. Mrs. WARD, Marcella, I, Ch. III, 29.

 I was not made the less so (sc. sullen, dull and dogged) by my sense of being daily more and more shut out and alienated from my mother. DICK., Cop., Ch. IV, 23.

* She might stand beside any lady of the land and look the better for it. G. ELIOT, Mid., IV, Ch. XXXVI, 252.

A young man with long black hair that seemed the blacker for the whiteness of the bedclothes. DICK., Chuz., Ch. XXV, 210b.

 The storm, though gathering swiftly had not yet come up; and the prevailing stillness was the more solemn from the dull intelligence that seemed to hover in the air, of noise and conflict afar off. Ib., Ch. XLII, 326a.

 Miss Maclean looks as if she would be the better of some sparkling wine. GRAHAM TRAVERS, Mona Maclean, 74.

"By Castor, if a man swears a woman's oath," said another something worse of wine, "let us not lament." WALLACE, Ben Hur, 101.

 I think a little the worse of him on this account. DICK., Chuz., Ch. II, 10a.

ii. * This worthy man found himself not the less attached to Pendennis, because the latter disliked port wine at dinner. THACK., Pend., I, Ch. XXX, 325.

They (sc. the horses) stretch their shoulders up the slope towards the bridge, with all the more energy because they are so near home. G. ELIOT, Mill, I, Ch. I, 2.

 They went about with muffled tread: the rather forasmuch as to entertain any suspicion that they were awake, was to be atheistical and traitorous. DICK., Tale of Two Cities, I, Ch. I, 16.

 The bishop of Orvietto was forcibly impressed by the energy of his companion; perhaps, indeed, the more so inasmuch as his own pride and his own passions were also enlisted against the arrogance and licence of the nobles. LYTTON, Rienzi, I, Ch. V, 42.

* She (sc. Elizabeth) clung, perhaps, to her popularity the more passionately, that it hid in some measure from her the terrible loneliness of her life. GREEN, Short Hist., VII, § III, 375.

 You don't think the country would be the better, if we could do away with game to-morrow. Mrs. WARD, Marcella, 153.

V. Very rare is the practice of replacing the first comparative by longer. Compare the Dutch hoe langer hoe (des te) beter, etc. Pewter is pewter, and grows the longer the duller. SCOTT, Pirate, Ch. XII, 136.

VI. The adjunct or clause is sometimes understood, or implied in the context.

The danger makes the sport only the pleasanter. THACK., Van. Fair, I, Ch. IV, 33.

Too languid to sting, he had the more venom reflux in his blood. G. ELIOT, Mid., III, Ch. XXXII, 226.

The eight or nine weeks' change of scene renders him the fresher and the more capable of work when he returns. ESCOTT, England, Ch. I, 15.

I have passed the Higher Standard, but I don't seem to be any the wiser, RUDY KIPPL., The Gadsbys, 12.

VII. Note the idiom in: a) Why, then, don't stand as if you was afraid, woman; who's the wiser? DICK., *Christm. Car.*⁵, IV, 92. (= Dutch Wie weet er iets van?)

We went away to Germany together, and no one was a bit the wiser. G. DU MAURIER, Trilby, II, 189.

Heartily wishing I could be quietly dropped overboard and so come to an end at once without anybody's being the wiser. Mrs. CRAIK, A Hero, 6.

I could not imagine what it was all about at first, and I was not much the wiser, even when I noticed that there was something in the path. Punch.

β) Fanny in her pity and kind-heartedness, was at great pains to teach him how to learn, . . . learning every word of his part herself, but without his being much the forwarder. JANE AUSTEN, Mansf. Park, Ch. XVIII, 172.

For not the less, nath(e)less, never the less and none the less see Ch. XI, 8. For a further discussion of the idiomatic use of none and its variants before the + comparative see Ch. XL, 143, a.

VIII. The adverb the is sometimes omitted, apparently for the sake of the measure or the rhythm of the sentence.

Yes, it is sweet to be | Awaited, and to know another heart | Beats faster for our coming. LEWIS MORRIS. (Compare: 'Tis sweet to know there is an eye will mark | Our coming, and look brighter when we come. BYRON, Don Juan, I, CXXIII.)

All her (Scotland's) sons and daughters think more highly of their country, that Burns was of it. W. GUNNYON, Biogr. Sketch of Burns, 50.

IX. In the following quotation yet has approximately the same function as the.

How much | Hath Phœbus woo'd in vain to spoil her cheek, | Which glows yet smoother from his amorous clutch! BYRON, Childe Har., I, LVIII.

41. To express how many times a person animal or thing exceeds another as to the intensity of a certain quality the English uses the same turns of expression as the Dutch; i. e.:

a) a comparative preceded by a multiplicative:

He's about twenty times stronger than I am. MAR. CRAWF., Kath. Laud., II, Ch. XIV, 263.

b) a positive preceded by a multiplicative + as.

He is about twenty times as strong as I am.

42. The words denoting the measure by which a person, animal or thing exceeds another as to the intensity of a quality, either precede or follow the comparative or superlative. In the latter case they are always preceded by the preposition by; but when they precede, by is only used with superlatives.

- i. * The other's economy in selling it to him was more reprehensible by half. SHER., School for Scand., III, 2, (394).

He was a better man than I was, this day twenty years — a better man, I should say, by ten thousand pound. THACK., Van. Fair, II, Ch. XXVI, 283. This gave her more trouble by half than many people take to earn a good income. HUGHES, Tom Brown, I, Ch. II, 20.

He is older by two years. MASON, Eng. Gram.³⁴, § 284.

Three turns of the wheel left him richer by twenty pounds. RUDY. KIPLING, The Light that Failed, Ch. III, 33.

The boy is younger than he by five years. MARK TWAIN, Pudd'nhead Wilson, 12.

 He is more than ten years older than his brother.

- ii. * Is this his first offence? Not by a good many. CH. READE, It is never too late to mend, I, Ch. XI, 133.

 The Spyglass was by three or five hundred feet the tallest hill on the island. STEPHENSON, Treas. Isl., 105.

Note. By is similarly used with words which imply a comparative.

To lessen by a third. WEBST., Dict. (= to make less.)

I will not add to or diminish the narrative by any circumstance. SCOTT, Tapestry Chamber. (= make longer or make shorter.)

The fugitive had survived his brother by several months. Graph., 1889, 337. (= lived longer than.)

43. A frequent intensive both of comparatives and superlatives, denoting an indefinite large measure by which any person, animal or thing, exceeds another as to the intensity of a quality, is the adverbial much. (Ch. XL, 95, d).

- i. British India is a pretty big appanage of the English crown, but British Africa promises to be a much bigger. Graph.

On our side a Reciprocal Preference would have become much harder to devise. Times, No. 1813, 783a.

- ii. The Secretary is much the greatest commoner in England. SWIFT, Journ. to Stella, XLII.

It is much the genteel attitude into the bargain. SHER., Riv., V, 2, (280). He writes something like you, but yours is much the best. THACK., Pend., I, Ch. VI, 68.

The quasi-historical part of the work contains much the fullest notice of Arthur's military exploits. W. LEWIS JONES, King Arthur, Ch. I, 14.

It was the eyes that were so much the most expressive feature in his face. T. P.'s Weekly, No. 467, 491c.

Note I. Frequent variants of much are:

a) far, occasionally replaced by by far, when preceding a comparative; mostly replaced by by far, when following a comparative or a superlative; regularly replaced by by far when following a superlative.

i. * He was far more eager than any of his companions. W. BLACK, The New Prince Fortunatus, Ch. VIII.

This year the epidemic has been far more severe than in 1910. Times, No. 1811, 743d.

The Canadian decision is something far deeper than a verdict on an economic dispute. Ib., No. 1813, 782d.

The victory of his opponents after twenty years of Opposition is far more than the victory of a party or a cry. Ib.

 The other boy, who was two years older and by far bigger than he, had by far the worst of the assault. THACK., Henry Esme., I, Ch. VII, 67.

ii. * 'Twere better by far | To have matched our fair cousin with young Lochinvar. SCOTT, Marmion, V, xi.

 Now and then exchanging a facetious snow-ball — better-natured missile far than many a wordy jest. DICK., *Christm. Car.*⁵, III, 59.

You will find it better far to choose the best man among you, and let him fulfil the duties which I demand. CH. KINGSLEY, The Heroes, II, iv, 156.

iii. * Had he been able to carry out his own policy, he would have been by far the greatest minister that England has ever seen. Lit. World.

After C. B. by far the most conspicuous outstanding Minister is John Burns. Rev. of Rev., CXIV, 132.

I think the Lower House by far the greatest blow to a happy married life.

OSCAR WILDE, An Ideal Husband, II.

By far the most important is Mr. Gosse's sketch of Swinburne. Eng. Rev., No. 50, 331.

 The best and far the largest part of his work is prose. SAINTSBURY, Nineteenth Cent., Ch. II.

Three patterns of saddlery, English, Indian and Austrian were sent out, all proving satisfactory, the Indian pattern having the advantage of being far the cheapest. Times.

She was far the noblest Roman of them all. Rev. of Rev., CCI, 238b.

iv. Our service term is the longest by far of any civilized nation in the world. Times.

b) far (and) away, more or less colloquial, chiefly found before superlatives, more rarely before attributive comparatives. Far and away, evidently formed by hendiadys from far away, is much the more frequent form.

i. The delight . . . more far away than I have ever received. MAD. D'ARBLAY, Early Diary, I, 187.¹⁾ ii. * The case for gold ought to be far and away the stronger of the two. Punch, 1893, 181b.

 The Century Dictionary bids fair to be far and away the largest, and best general and encyclopædic dictionary of the English language. Athen.
Of the actors Lieutenant G. N. was far and away the best. Punch.

c) (by) a long chalk, by (long) chalks, only in colloquial language: by long chalks appears to be the ordinary form.

i. As regards the body of water . . . the Indus ranks foremost by a long chalk. DE QUINCEY.²⁾

¹⁾ MURRAY.

²⁾ HOPPE, Sup. Lex.

- ii. * Her second haul was a better one by long chalks than her first. (?) Miss Providence, Ch. XXI.
  They whipped and they spurred, and they after her press'd, | But Sir Alured's steed was by long chalks the best. Ingoldsby Leg.²)
 He flung his glove on the parquet with the remark that, if anybody present said that Lady — wasn't by long chalks the prettiest girl in the room, well — he knew what he could do about it. Punch, 1912, 17 July, 50.
- d) by all odds, apparently somewhat rare, not instanced in MURRAY.
 It is the best by all odds of any magazine published. Chamb. Journal (Westm. Gaz., No. 5219, 1a).
 These companies are to-day by all odds the greatest power in the world. Rev. of Rev., CXCVI, 419b.
- e) (by) a long way, apparently unusual.
- i. The President made a speech too — a jolly good one; better than Parkinson's really, by a long way. Punch, 1912, 17 July, 50b.
- ii. There has been no difficulty at all in awarding the prize. N. N. is a long way first. Westm. Gaz., No. 5027, 6c
- f) easily, especially before first, after the Latin facile princeps, but also before other superlatives, and occasionally before a comparative.
- i. * Lord Rosebery is easily the first of the orators of the assembly. Westm. Gaz., No. 5261, 4a.
 Individually, he (sc. Mr. Balfour) was easily first. T. P.'s Weekly, No. 471, 617b.
  Harvard has easily the finest gymnasium in the world. W. BLACKIE (Harp. Mag., 1883, Nov., 997).¹
- ii. The chief issues in the East Edinburgh by-election are Home Rule and the Insurance Act. If question time statistics are a trustworthy guide, the latter is easily the more absorbing topic. Times, No. 1831, 81c.
 Compare also: The collection of quotations illustrating each word is a familiar feature of the Dictionary, in which it easily surpasses all competitors. Athen., 4446, 33a.
 M. Mengelberg is known to be a fine interpreter of Strauss's music, and his clear, powerful rendering of 'Also sprach Zarathustra' showed that as such he is 'facile princeps'. Ib., No. 4438, 599a.
- g) a great (good) deal: In truth, Mrs. Qulip did seem a great deal more glad to behold her lord that night, than might have been expected. Dick., Old Cur. Shop, Ch. L, 182b.
 The article . . . aroused a great deal more interest and attracted far more attention, than I had any reason to hope. HOR. HUTCHINSON (Westm. Gaz., No. 6117, 3c).
- h) many times: Two lone women are many times braver than one. JOHN OXENHAM, Great-heart Gillian, Ch. XIV, 99.
 It is always difficult to estimate literary values; but when these are weaved in with other values that we call dramatic, the difficulty becomes many times more perplexed. Bookman, No. 253, 58a.
- II. Other intensives of some interest are:
- Still* and yet, mostly immediately before or after comparatives. Metre or rhythm sometimes causes these adverbs to be shifted to other places.
- i. * You make my bonds still greater. Meas. for Meas., V, 8.

¹) MURRAY.

So severe indeed was his struggle with this disorder (sc. nervous temperament) and the still more perilous condition which resulted from it, that at one time . . . he (sc. Charles Tennyson) was to leave his parish for some months in search of strength. HALLAM LORD TEN., Ten. & his friends, (60).

 He came closer still. CH. KINGSLEY, The Heroes, I, iv, 73.

 O benefit of ill! now I find true | That better is by evil still made better. SHAK., Son., XCX.

But poorly rich, (he) so wanted in his store, | That, cloy'd with much, he pineth still for more. Id., Lucrece, 98.

- ii. * It is not only for the sick man, it is for the sick man's friends that the Doctor comes. His presence is often as good for them as for the patient, and they long for him yet more eagerly. THACK., Pend., II, Ch. XV, 154.

We cannot doubt that her place (sc. that of the "Liberté") will be filled, as soon as may be, by a yet more powerful naval unit. Times, No 1813, 783c.

 In this respect his acquaintance with Italian opened him yet a wider range. SCOTT, Wav., Ch. III, 31a.

Foggier yet and colder. DICK., Christm. Car., I.

very, before superlatives: When the pheasants came, which the Major praised as the very finest birds he ever saw, her Ladyship said they came from Logwood. THACK., Pend., I, Ch. XVII, 176.

Admiral Bowster stared his very hardest. MISS BRADDON, My First Happy Christm. (STOF., Handl., I, 70).

44. In the higher literary style, especially in the older writers, the superlative is sometimes used absolutely, approximately in the meaning of most + positive.

See whe'r their basest metal be not mov'd. JUL. CÆS., I, 1, 76.

Hail, divinest Melancholy! MILTON, II Penseroso, 12.

The bright blue sky of Rome, and the effect of the vigorous awakening spring in that divinest climate, and the new life with which it drenches the spirits even to intoxication, were the inspiration of this drama. SHELLEY, Prom. Unb., Pref.

All the northern downs | In clearest air ascending, showed far off | A surface dappled o'er with shadows flung | From brooding clouds. WORDSW., Excurs., I, 4.

And first with nicest skill and art | Perfect and finished in every part, | A little model the Master wrought. LONGF., The Building of a Ship, 17.

The Queen's eye, however, was her own; and pity, goodness, sweet sympathy, blessed it with divinest light. CH. BRONTË, Villette, Ch. XX, 268.

A stronger lens reveals to you certain tiniest hairlets, which make vortices for these victims. G. ELIOT, Mid., I, Ch. VI, 41.

I owed her deepest gratitude. EL. GLYN, Refl. of Ambr., III, Ch. V, 320.

The friendship with Lushington . . . had quickly ripened into closest intimacy. HALLAM LORD TEN., Ten. and his Friends, 91.

Note I. An ordinary superlative preceded by the definite article, often has the value of an absolute superlative.

In the most high and palmy state of Rome, | A little ere the mightiest Julius fell. HAMLET, I, 1, 114.

I valued a man according to his proficiency and taste in classical literature, and had the meanest opinion of all other accomplishments unaccompanied by that.¹⁾ The letter was written in the kindest terms. KATH. TYNAN, Johnny's Luck.

II. The modern way of forming an absolute superlative is by means of intensive adverbs of degree very, highly, largely etc. Also the superlative most is often employed for this purpose.

¹⁾ KRUISINGA, Gram. of Pres.-Day Eng., § 609.

Finally (he) accepted Mrs. Pendennis's most kind offer. THACK., Pend., I, Ch. VI, 69.

III. Equivalent to an absolute superlative is a word-group consisting of of + the + superlative, as in:

Although the court was of the narrowest, the houses opposite were mere phantoms. DICK., *Christm. Car.*⁵, I, 5.

Inside the shop was of the roughest. MRS. WARD, Day Grieve, I, 311.

Spear-heads of the finest, swords of the stoutest. WALT. BES., London, I, 46.

His whole attire is of the frowsiest. GRAY.

The information he picked up in that country was of the slightest. PUNCH, No. 3729, 520.

Occasionally we find this word-group followed by a positive:

His shirt was of the finest fine. EL. GLYN, Refl. of Ambr., II, Ch. IX, 187.

IV. Also the construction illustrated in Ch. XXXI, 33, b: English is the easiest of languages, in which the generalizing definite article is suppressed before a plural noun preceded by a superlative + of, has the value of an absolute superlative.

45. The comparative may, in a manner, be said to be used absolutely, when it approximately expresses the same meaning as rather or very + positive, as in:

'Tis dangerous when the baser nature comes | Between the pass and fell incensed points | Of mighty opposites. HAMLET, V, 2, 60. (= those of rather inferior courage and address.)

Hark, how each giant-oak, and desert cave, | Sighs to the torrent's awful voice beneath! | O'er thee, oh King! their hundred arms they wave, | Revenge on thee in hoarser murmurs breath. GRAY, The Bard, I, II.

But in the fishersman's cottage | There shines a ruddier light. LONGFELLOW, Twilight, II.

Then the great stars that globed themselves in Heaven; | ~~The hollower~~ bellowing ocean, and again | The scarlet shafts of sunrise — but no sail. TEN., En. Ard., 694.

He (sc. Wycherley) was, indeed, a worse Congreve. MAC., Com. Dram., (578a).

The following lists comprise all the strong verbs that occur in the texts given in this book, together with several others of the commoner ones. SWEET, A. S. Prim., 24.

The mist, like a fleecy coverlet, hiding every harsher outline. HAL. SUTCL., Pam. the Fiddler, Ch. I, 1.

In the following quotation it may have the force of too + positive, the construction being due to classical influence:

Helpe then, O holy virgin chiefe of nine, | Thy weaker novice to perform thy will! SPENSER, Faery Queene, Prol., I, II.

46. The use of such forms as the topmost mountain for the top of the mountain is due to classical influence. Thus summus mons = culmen montis.

Draw them (sc. all the poor men of your sort) to Tiber banks, and weep your tears | Into the channel, till the lowest stream | Do kiss the most exalted shores of all. J. M. CÆS., I, 1, 64.

A drawer impending o'er the rest | Half open in the topmost chest, | Of depth enough and none to spare, | Invited her (sc. the cat) to slumber there. COWPER, The Retired Cat, III.

Behind the valley topmost Gargarus | Stands up and takes the morning. TEN., Cenone, 10.

47. In Early Modern English we sometimes find the superlative used in connection with a word-group of an excluding import: the greatest of captains since born, a man the strongest of his sons, the greatest error of the rest, the best of all other medicines, the best medicine of all others, etc.

This is the greatest error of all the rest. Mids. Night's Dream, V, 250.

Of all other affections it is the most importune. BACON, Es., Envy.

So passed they naked on, nor shunned the Light | Of God or angel, for they thought no ill: | So hand in hand they passed, the loveliest pair | That ever since in love's embraces met; | Adam the goodliest man of men since born | His sons, the fairest of her daughters Eve. Par. Lost, IV, 319-324.

It (sc. the Sentimental Comedy) is of all others the most easily written. GOLD-SMITH (Eighteenth Cent. Lit., Clar. Press, 1909).

Note. This construction, which it has been proposed to call inclusive superlative (STOF., E. S., XXXI, 260 ff) bears a close resemblance to that instanced in the following quotations, in which also the excluding word-group seems to be used erroneously. For further discussion see Ch. XL, 11, Obs. IV.

Of all men else I have avoided thee. Macb., V, 8, 4.

I rejoice to say that the young man, whom of all others I particularly abhor, has left Bath. JANE AUSTEN, North. Abbey, Ch. XXVII, 208.

There was no particular reason to expect that he should be irregular on that particular day of all others. MAR. CRAWF., Kath. Laud., I, Ch. XV, 277.

CHAPTER XXXI.

THE ARTICLE.

FORM.

1. As in Dutch there are two articles in English: the definite article the, and the indefinite article a or an.
2. The definite article has but one form in the written and printed language; but it is pronounced in at least three different ways, i. e. with the e as the ee in see when full-stressed, with the e as in the second syllable of picnic when unstressed and followed by a vowel, and with the e as in the second syllable of father when unstressed and followed by a consonant. SWEET, N. E. Gr., § 1130.

Note 1. In Early Modern English and, archaically, in later poetry, the is often shortened to th before vowels and h, as in th' enemy, th' hilt, and even before other consonants, as in th' world, where the w was probably dropped. Compare Present English he'll for he will, he'd for he would. SWEET, N. E. Gr., § 1129; JESPERSEN, Progr., § 199; MÄTZN., Eng. Gram.³, I, 340.

i. Th'one sweetly flatters, th'other feareth harm. SHAK., Rape of Lucr., 172.
If he should speak o' th'assnigation, I should be ruined. FARQUHAR, The Recruiting Officer, III, 2, (294).

Th'applause of list'ning senates to command, [...] Their lot forbad. GRAY, Elegy, 61. (Thus throughout the works of this poet.)

In th'olden time | Some sacrifices ask'd a single victim. BYRON.¹⁾

ii. "Thou hast not," quoth th' miller, "one groat in thy purse." The King and the Miller of Mansfield, V (PERCY, Rel., VIII, xxi).

I changed o' th' sudden from the most fickle lover to the most constant husband in the world. FARQUHAR, The Recruiting Officer, III, 1, (288).
Ay, there's a pattern for the young men o' th' times! Id., The Constant Couple, I, 1, (44).

In the language of the uneducated the practice of curtailing the into th or t has not yet become extinct.

i. My missis is in labour, and, for the love of God, step in while I run for th' doctor, for she's fearful bad. Mrs. GASK., Mary Barton, Ch. III, 17.

One day, th' butcher he brings us a letter fra George. Ib., Ch. IV, 28.

¹⁾ Mätzn., Eng. Gram.³, I, 340.

ii. But the girls were intensely shy and reserved. As "t vicar's daughters" they taught regularly in the Sunday-school, and a certain amount of visiting fell to their share. FLORA MASON, The Brontës, Ch. VI, 33.

II. The forms tother (ʔother) and the tother (the ʔother) have arisen from that other, in which that represents the old neuter definite article. When the had become the usual form for the three genders, that other and its correlative that one (the w now heard in one was not developed before the 15th century) kept their ground for some time. Owing to the gradual beginning of initial vowels the t was then understood to belong to other and one, which gave rise to the tother and the tone.

In an analogous manner the n of the indefinite article has joined itself to some words with initial vowel in some dialects. In Whitby (Yorkshire) apron, aunt and ointment are severally represented by nappron, naunt and nointment. In newt from ewt, a variant of evet or eft, and in nickname from eke-name, the n has found its way in literary language.

In the 18th century tother or ʔother was very common in colloquial English, innumerable instances being found in SWIFT, ADDISON, STEELE, LADY MONTAGU, etc. In the second half it became more and more vulgar, and at the present day it is only heard from the uneducated. FRANZ, E. S., XII and XVII; id., *Shak. Gram.*², § 269; MÄTZN., *Eng. Gram.*³, I, 340; STORM, *Eng. Phil.*², 779; LANNERT, An Investigation into the Lang. of Rob. Crus., Acc., V, B, 1; JESPERSEN, Elementarbuch der Phon., 621.

Sometimes we find ʔother preceded by another modifier, e. g.: your ʔother.

i. And so bifel, that in the tas (= heap) they founde, | Thurgh-girt (= pierced through) with many a grevous bloody wounde, | Two yonge knightes ligging by and by (= in due place), | Bothe in oon armes, wroght ful richely, | Of whiche two, Arcita hight (= was called) that oon | And that other knight hight Palamon. CHAUC., Cant. Tales, Knights Tale, 156.

ii. No man may serve two lordis, forsothe ethir he shal haat the toon, and love the tother; other he shal susteyn the toon, and dispipe the tothir. WYCLIFFE, Matth., VI, 24.¹⁾

O' the ʔother side, the policy of those crafty swearing rascals ... is not proved worth a blackberry. Troll. and Cres., V, 4, 8.

Now, serjeant, I shall see who is your captain by your knocking down the ʔother. FARQUHAR, The Recruiting Officer, III, 2 (300).

"What's the tother name?" said Sam. DICK., Pickw., II, 47.²⁾

When you mentioned the ʔother's name, you see he couldn't stand it. THACK., Virg., Ch. I, 6.

iii. I'll lean upon one crutch and fight with ʔother. Coriolanus, I, 1, 246.

She vaunted 'mongst her minions ʔother day, | The very train of her worst wearing gown | Was better worth than all my father's lands. Henry VI, B, I, 1, 246.

A young poet is liable to the same vanity and indiscretion with a young lover; and the great man who smiles upon one and the fine woman who looks kindly upon ʔother, are both of them in danger of having the favour published with the first opportunity. CONGREVE, Love for Love, Dedication.

When her love-eye was fixed on me, ʔother, her eye of duty, was finely obliqued. SHER., Riv., IV, 3.

1) STORM., *Eng. Phil.*², 780.

Ib., 779.

There's a barrow t'other side the hedge. DICK., Pickw., Ch. XIX, 163.
Will, what a pity it was you had not George, instead of t'other, to your hand! THACK., Virg., Ch. LXI, 630.

We saw the Scotch play, which everybody is talking about, t'other night. Ib., 631. (Thus very frequently in this work.)

"Who's t'other man, then?" said Mrs. Tall. HARDY, Far from the Madding Crowd, Ch. LVII, 472.

iv. Let me see your t'other hand. FARQUHAR, The Recruiting Officer, IV, 3, (314).

When the affairs of women come under my hands, I advise with my t'other friend. Ib., IV, 3, (319).

3. The indefinite article has two forms, a and an, the former being used before a consonant-sound, the latter before a vowel-sound.

i. a man, a yard, a ewe, a unit, a European, such a one, a once-admired beauty, etc.;

ii. an enemy, an uncle, an aunt, etc.

Note I. The preservation of the n before vowels (8) is due to the gradual beginning of initial vowels. JESPERSEN, Elementarbuch der Phon., 6, 21.

II. An is, of course, also used before silent h, i. e. before heir, honour, honest, hour, hostler (also spelled ostler) and their derivatives: an heir, an heiress, an honour, an honourable action, etc.

Usage is divided before weakly aspirated h in unstressed syllables, but the ordinary practice is to keep the n. It must, however, be observed that Americans and speakers hailing from the North of England are said to aspirate this h distinctly, and this is often done also by over-precise speakers from the south, especially ladies, who are anxious to avoid the taint of vulgarism attaching to the dropping of the aspirate. To these people the use of the shortened form of the article would naturally seem preferable. RIPPIMANN, Sounds of Spoken Eng., § 35.

There is no valid reason for substituting an for a before h in syllables with secondary stress, as in a hippopotamus, a hypothetical clause.

i. an historian [FREEMAN¹], an historical Arthur [J. S. MILL¹].

ii. a hysterical fit [SCOTT¹], a historical professor [FREEMAN¹], a hysterical manner [G. ELIOT, Sil. Marn., II, Ch. XVI], a hypothesis [ib., II, Ch. XVII, 139], a hypothesis [HUXLEY¹], a historian [MACAULAY²], a hereditary possession [MAC., Fred., (663b)], a habitual drunkard [ANNAND., Conc. Dict., s. v. sof], a hotel [JEROME, Three men in a Boat, Ch. V, 52; SHAW, Getting Married, I, (210)], a historian [Westm. Gaz., No. 5329, 9c].

iii. a hypothetical clause [MASON, *Eng. Gram.*³⁴, § 438], a horizontal position [R. C. LESLIE, Sea-painter's log, 192³], a hippocentaur [MUIRHEAD, Gaius, III, § 97³].

III. The form an was longer retained before sounded h than before any other consonant, the h being, perhaps, less strongly aspirated in earlier English than it is now. In SHAKESPEARE a is the usual form, but the opposite is the case in the Authorized Version (1611).

¹) MURRAY. ²) FOELS—KOCH, Wis. Gram., § 80, N.

³) MURRAY, s. v. horizontal, 2.

By the middle of the 18th century the present practice of using a before sounded h seems to have been observed by the majority of writers. Occasional instances of an before sounded h are, however, met with even in the latest English. SWEET, N. E. Gr., § 864 ff; STORM, Eng. Phil.², 1003; AL. SCHMIDT, Shak. Lex.; W. A. WRIGHT, Bible Word-Book; THUN, Eng. Stud., VIII; LANNERT, An Investigation into the Lang. of Rob. Crus., Accid., I; UHRSTRÖM, Stud. on the Lang. of Sam. Richardson, 35.

The following cutting from the Westm. Gaz. (Sat. Ed.), No. 6141, 4b may be acceptable:

"To the Editor of the "Saturday Westminster".

Sir,—I was sorry to notice, in the leading article of the Westminster Gazette of yesterday, a solecism, general in America, but from which our first-class journals have usually kept themselves free, namely, putting the article a instead of an before such words as heroic. Euphony demands that in cases where the syllable beginning with h, even though aspirated, is not accentuated, an and not a shall be used as the preceding article. Thus we say: a hóvel, but an hotél; a history, but an histórical novel; a héro, but an heróic action. The error, which is very distressing to a cultivated ear, no doubt arose from imperfectly instructed persons modelling their language on the precepts of a Grammar Primer instead of the practice of people of education and refinement.—Yours faithfully, FRANCIS W. CAULFIELD, B.A., Oxford."

Interesting is the extract from a letter written by HUME to ROBERTSON, quoted by THUN (Anmerkungen zu Macaulay's History VI, Eng. Stud. VIII). "But what a fancy is this you have taken of saying always an hand, an heart, an head? Have you an ear? Do you know that this n is added before vowels to prevent the cacophony, and ought never to take place before h when that letter is sounded? It is never pronounced in these words: why should it be wrote? Thus I should say a history and an historian, and so you would too, if you had any sense. But you tell me that SWIFT does otherwise. To be sure there is no reply to that, and we must swallow your hath upon the same authority."

Humble was pronounced with the h mute down to the 19th century and, consequently, had an as the form of the indefinite article (MURRAY).

An humble fugitive from Folly view. SHER., School for Scand., V, 3, (438). And (I) from their lessons (sc. from the lessons of the Dead) seek and find | Instruction with an humble mind. SOUTHEY, The Scholar, III.

A correspondent in the Literary World of the year 1894, in page 21 observes that Parliament still presents an humble address to the Queen, but that Uriah Heep and his mother would have made this pronunciation impossible to the present generation, even if it had had any currency among educated speakers at the time when David Copperfield appeared. Compare the following passage:

"I am well aware that I am the umblest person going," said Uriah Heep, modestly; "let the other be where he may. My mother is likewise a very umble person. We live in a numble abode, Master Copperfield, but have much to be thankful for. My father's former calling was umble. He was sexton". Ch. XVI, 117a.

i. An horn (CHAUC., Cant. Tales, Prol., 116), an hundred crowns (Taming of the Shrew, V, 2), an humble heart (Jul. Cæs., III, 1, 35), an Hebrew

(Two Gentlemen, II, 5, 57); an hill (Bible, Matth., V, 14), an house (ib., X, 12), an hundredfold (ib., XIII, 8), an hundred words (Spectator, I), an hundred realms (GOLDSM., Trav., 34), an hundred years (SCOTT, Marm., VI, Intr., viii), an hero's eye (id., Lady, II, xxii), an hundred miles (LYTTON, Night and Morn., 33), an heresy (id., Rienzi, I, Ch. I, 10), an hospital (NUTTALL, Eng. Dict., s. v. lazaret).

- ii. a half (Bible, Exodus, XXV, 10), a hairy man (id., Gen., XXVII, 11), a hammer (id., Jeremiah, XXIII, 29).

IV. The full form an is also occasionally met with in Present English before u or eu, whether stressed or unstressed, and before one. This is keeping up the tradition of Earlier English, in which u was pronounced as a falling diphthong as in the Dutch nieuw, and the lip-back consonant was not heard in one. ABBOT, Shak. Gram.³, § 80; FRANZ, Shak. Gram.², § 270; SWEET, Sounds of Eng., § 200; id., N. E. Gr., § 1137; LANNERT, An Investig. into the Lang. of Rob. Crus., Accid., I; UHRSTRÖM, Stud. on the Lang. of Sam. Richardson, 35.

"In the spoken language the form an is now hardly ever heard" (MURRAY).

"To write an before such words is a gross mistake" (RIPPMANN, Sounds of Spoken Eng., § 45).

- i. an usurer's chain (Much Ado, II, 1, 197), an eunuch (Twelfth Night, I, 2, 56), an union (Haml., V, 2, 283), an uniformly good man (RICH., Pamela, IV, 140¹), an universal good (SCOTT, Brid. of Trierm., Pref.), an unanimous enthusiasm (MAC., Hist., Ch. I, 137), an universal rout (id., Fred., (697a)).

- ii. such an one (RICH., Sir Ch. Grand., VIII, 313¹); CH. KINGSLEY, Herew., Ch. III, 27b, BROWNING, Soul's Trag., II; JEROME, Paul Kever, I, Ch. I, 14b; W. MORRIS, The Earthly Par., Prol., 7a), many an one (W. MORRIS, The Earthly Par., The Doom of King Acris., 73a).

V. Vulgarly the form a is sometimes used before words beginning with a vowel.

'If the law supposes that,' said Mr. Bumble . . . 'the law is a ass — a idiot.' DICK., Ol. Twist, Ch. LI, 481.

I shall take a early opportunity of mentioning it to the board. Ib., Ch. II, 25.

A aged woman of ninety . . . told me that a family of some such name as yours in Blackmoor Vale came originally from these parts, and that 't were a old ancient race. HARDY, Tess, III, Ch. XVII, 139.

Once there was a old aged man over at Mellstock. Ib., 142.

MEANING.

4. The primary and most important function of both the definite and the indefinite article is to indicate that the thing of which we have formed a conception, is marked off or defined, i. e. thought of within certain physical or imaginary outlines or limits.

This must be understood thus. When there is no notion of defining, there is no room for either article; but, as the following discussions will show, there are many cases in which one or the other article is absent, notwithstanding the notion of defining which is conveyed by the discourse.

¹) UHRSTRÖM, Stud., 40.

5. Besides this, its primary function of marking off or defining, which it has in common with the indefinite article, the definite article has the secondary power of denoting:

a) that the thing(s) we are speaking of, is (are) individualized or specialized, i. e. connected in our thoughts with (a) particular person(s), animal(s) or thing(s). This individualizing or specializing is mostly expressed by (a) word(s) used for the purpose, but it is often indirectly indicated by the context, or even left unexpressed altogether, as being readily understood or unimportant. In the function here described the definite article is practically a weak determinative.

i. The wine which he drank was sour.

ii. He was armed with a rapier and a dagger, the rapier he held in his right hand, the dagger in his left. MASON, Eng. Gram.³⁴, § 126. (i. e. the rapier with which he was armed, etc.)

I plucked a flower; this is the flower. MURRAY. (i. e. the flower that I plucked.)

iii. And God said: Let there be light: and there was light. And God saw the light, that it was good: and God divided the light from the darkness. And God called the light Day, and the darkness he called Night. Gen., I, 3-5. (i. e. the light that he had created.)

The air was full of the sweet smell of the hay. THACK., Sam. Titm., Ch. IV, 45. (i. e. the air of a certain district; the hay that had been made.)

When vessels are about to founder, the rats are said to leave 'em. DICK., Chuz., Ch. XVI, 133a. (i. e. the rats that are in them.)

The Queen is still in London. (i. e. the Queen of England.)

The bride is dressed. (i. e. the bride who is in our midst, who is going to be married, etc.)

Observe the idiom in: Prince Michael had observed to the letter the instructions of the will. Westm. Gaz., No. 5382, 2c.

They were willing to be hanged or shot or die at the stake if their beloved lord would but give them the word. Ib.

Note I. Things that are single in their kind, such as world, sun, universe, etc., although not, of course, admitting of individualizing in the same sense as others, may yet be thought of in relation to other conceptions. Their names are, therefore, preceded by the definite article under the same conditions as ordinary class-nouns.

II. It may be observed that classifying adjuncts (Ch. IV, 1) do not imply any notion of defining, and are, accordingly, of no influence as to the use of the definite article.

Civil strife, as usual, distracted the energies of Northumbria. GREEN, Short Hist.

Blue ink is not so much in favour as black.

Honest men marry early, wise men not at all. Lit. World.

One of his accusations against modern opera is that it does not give a chance to the human voice. Il. Lond. News, No. 3816, 879a.

III. Individualizing or specializing adjuncts, on the other hand, mostly connote a notion of defining. (4)

Various additions have been made to the systems of the main lines to provide adequate facilities for the Durbar traffic. Times, No. 1814, 799d.

Here follow a few sentences showing that this connotation of defining may be absent in an individualizing adjunct.

At one end of Tynemouth a new building has been constructed, with adjacent pleasure-grounds and picturesque walls; it is a winter garden and aquarium, built by the inhabitants of the place on ground which is given them by the benevolent despot of the district, the Duke of Northumberland, for a nominal rent. ESCOTT, Eng., Ch. III, 30.

Mr. Sumner was mistaken in concluding that love of slavery and hatred of the Union dictated the foolish things that were often said and the unrightful things that were sometimes done by England. McCARTHY, Short Hist., Ch. XXIV, 375. The story of his hair-breadth escape, and how it was thought of her that had nerved him to endurance, would move her he was sure. JOHN OXENHAM, Great-heart Gillian, Ch. XIII, 90.

From inquiries made at the India Office, it appears that [etc.]. Times, No. 1814, 799d.

Visitors from Europe will be well advised to obtain, as soon as may be, . . . the official handbook of information on the Delhi Durbar railway. Ib.

Readers who appreciate this paper, may give their friends an opportunity of seeing a copy. Ib.

The absence of the definite article is, of course, quite natural when the specializing adjunct assumes a classifying nature (Ch. XXIII, 13, Obs. II and III), as in:

Family life is the root of empire. Nineteenth Cent., No. CCCXCXVI, 258.

Do not let us rush to the conclusion that treaty law and international obligations are useless, because they break down under some emergencies. Westm. Gaz., No. 4961, 1b.

The only safe hypothesis for us, to whom sea-power is vital, is that what a competitor can do, he will do or may do. Ib., No. 4961, 1c.

b) that the conception we have formed is generalized. Ch. XXIX, 14 and 21. See also SWEET, N. E. Gr., § 38.

i. The blind are objects of compassion, not of sorrow. ANNIE BESANT, Autobiography, 342.

ii. The beautiful can never die. CH. KINGSLEY, Hypatia, Ch. II, 6b.

iii. The steam-gauge is an instrument for indicating the pressure of steam in a boiler. WEBST. Marine Engineering.

iv. As the Germans see the Kaiser; as the British see the Kaiser. Westm. Gaz. Note I. A specialized conception may in its turn be generalized. (Ch. XXIX, 14a, Note I.)

The African elephant is taller than the Indian.

The care which covers the seed of the tree under tough husks and stony cases, provides for the human plant the mother's breast and the father's house. EMERSON, Domestic Life (ELIZ. JANE IRV., Lit. Read., III, 238).

II. A generalized conception must not be confounded with an indefinite number of individuals of the same class indicated by a singular noun preceded by the definite article, as in The king went out to hunt the wild boar.

I this application the definite article has the same function as under a. EILERT EKWALL, The Unchanged Plural in Eng., 4.

III. A conception generalized sometimes approximates to a conception of a thing that is single in its kind. Thus in the following sentence the field representing a generalized conception, and the air and the water indicating conceptions single in their kind, are understood in the same way:

The desire of earning fame in the sports of the field, the air, and the water, was uppermost in the breast of his friend Winkle. DICK., Pickw., Ch. 1, 3.

- c) that the most eminent specimen is meant of whatever is expressed by the noun. In this function the definite article has strong stress. (2.)

I am alone the villain of the earth. ANT. AND CLEOP., IV, 6, 30.

Clive was eminently the Nabob, the ablest, the most celebrated, the highest in rank, the highest in fortune, of all the fraternity. MAC., Ess., Clive, (535a).

He is the pianist of the day. ONIONS, Adv. Eng. Synt., § 270.

This hero, so well-known that his name need not be mentioned, because he is the champion, the victor — who should he be except Siegfried? VERNON LEE, The Victor of Xanten (Westm. Gaz., No. 4961, 3b).

The Young Men's Christian Association would not deny that humility is a virtue. It is because there are some people who think it the virtue, that the row begins. CHESTERTON (Il. Lond. News, No. 3677, 495c).

"Good Housekeeping". The Magazine for the Home. Advertisement.

Observe the use of the thing, as in: Miss Pole clutched my arm, and begged me not to turn, for "it was not the thing". What "the thing" was I never could find out, but it must have been something eminently dull and tiresome. MRS. GASKELL, Cranford, Ch. IX, 172.

He really looked quite the genteel thing, and was taken by everybody to be a person of consideration. THACK., Sam. Titm., Ch. II, 22.

QUEST. Why was Richard the First called Coeur the Lion? — ANSW. Because it was rather the thing to talk French in those days. PUNCH.

NOTE I. This full-stressed the differs but little from another, which has the force of marking that of all possible specimens or varieties a particular one of special importance or significance is meant.

We spoke of many subjects, but not of the subject. (i. e. the subject which was nearest to my heart, etc.)

This is also the force of the definite article in the Shakespearean expression to die the death when, what is mostly the case, it is applied to the death inflicted by law.

She hath betray'd me, and shall die the death. ANT. AND CLEOP., IV, 14, 26. Either to die the death or to abjure | For ever the society of men. MIDS., I, 1, 65.

For God commanded, saying, Honour thy father and mother; and, He that curseth father or mother, let him die the death. BIBLE, Matth., XV, 4.

II. Strong-stressed the may be used absolutely.

"How goes it?" — "All well," said Mr. Gills, pushing the bottle towards him. He took it up, and having surveyed and smelt it, said with extraordinary expressions: "The?" — "The," returned the instrument-maker. DICK., Dom b., Ch. IV, 32.

III. When it has become conventional to denote a particular person animal or thing in the above way, the definite article loses its strong stress, while the noun assumes the character of a proper name. (23.)

This is the case in The Lord (= God), The Bible, the Scriptures, the Nativity, the Conquest, the Reformation, the Peninsula, etc.

She thinks of nothing but the Isle of Wight, and she calls it the Island, as if there were no other island in the world. JANE AUSTEN, Mansfield Park, Ch. II, 17.

When London people talk of the river, they always mean the Thames. GÜNTHER, Leerb., 76.

IV. To emphasize the notion of particular importance the noun is sometimes followed by an adjunct made up of of + the plural of the same noun.

The land question is the question of questions in Russia. Rev. of Rev., CCXXIV, 308a.

- d) that a person, animal or thing, in all their eminent characteristics is meant. A similar idea may also be expressed by the indefinite article. (7, d.) The definite article seems to have this function only after an intensive, mostly quite.

She was quite the woman of business, and always judged for herself. Mrs. GASKELL, Cranford, Ch. XIII, 238.

I was going on behind the screens, when a gentleman (quite the gentleman, I can assure you) stepped forwards and asked if I had any business he could arrange for me. ib., Ch. IX, 167.

He is quite the gentleman. LYTTON, Night and Morning, 315.

Babcock was too much the gentleman to mention it again. ANSTEY, Fallen Idol, Ch. XVI, 209.

Compare with this also the construction in: Enrico was of the Germans, German. EDNA LYALL, Knight-Errant, Ch. I, 8.

6. a) The definite article is the descendant of the Old English neuter demonstrative pronoun þæt, which was used also as a definite article. Even in Present English the definite article sometimes has the force of either this or that as a demonstrative, or of that as a determinative.

Cæsar said to me, Darest thou, Cassius, now | Leap in with me into this angry flood, | And swim to yonder point? — Upon the word, | Accoutred as I was, I plunged in. JUL. CÆS., I, 2, 104. (the = this.)

He meditated curse more dread, | And deadlier, on the clansman's head, | Who, summon'd to his chieftain's aid, | The signal saw and disobeyed. SCOTT, Lady, III, xi, 6. (The article before clansman's head is determinative, that before signal is demonstrative.)

And from his place on the coach-roof the eager young fellow looked down upon the city, with the sort of longing desire which young soldiers feel on the eve of a campaign. THACKERAY, Pend., I, Ch. XXVIII, 297.

In some combinations the use of the definite article instead of the demonstrative pronoun has become the rule. Thus in:

for the day. The hammering of the Steam-Boiler Works had stopped for the day. WALT. BES., The Bell of St. Paul's.

upon the instant. Light flashed up in the room upon the instant. DICKENS, Christm. Car., II, 33. (The meaning of this phrase passes into that of at the same instant, immediately. It has another meaning in: Important decisions which have to be taken on the instant, are not likely to offer no occasion for criticism. Spectator, Westm. Gaz., No 5388, 16c.)

of the kind. Nothing of the kind could happen to the heiress of Katzenellenbogen. WASH. IRV., Sketch-Bk., Spectre Bridegr., 164. Needless to say we do not anticipate anything of the kind happening. Westm. Gaz., No. 5219, 1b.

at (for) the moment. i. At the moment it (sc. the structure) has a somewhat incomplete appearance. II. Lond. News, No. 3832, 452.

ii. He looked down upon the basket, which he had for the moment forgotten. DICK., CHUZ., Ch. XXXVI, 285a.

He cannot for the moment recall it to mind. Notes and Queries.

For the moment we are over-supplied. Westm. Gaz., No. 5382, 2a.

for the purpose. i. The young Count Von Altenburg had been recalled from the army for the purpose. WASH. IRV., Sketch-Bk., Spectre Bridegroom, 155.

By an Order in Council, passed for the purpose, he has been promoted to the rank of an Admiral of the Fleet. Times.

ii. The fiddler plunged his hot face into a pot of porter, especially provided for that purpose. DICK., Christm. Carol, II, 46.

I occupy my place in the Cathedral, where we all went together, every Sunday morning, assembling first at school for that purpose. Id., Cop., Ch. XVIII, 132b.

at (for) the time. i. * There was a heavy gale at the time. A Ship on Fire (STOR., Leesb., I, 3).

 My aunt and I were at that time vacating the two cottages at Highgate. DICK., Cop., Ch. LV, 391a.

ii. (She had) her darlings about her (for the time neither quarrelling nor crying). CH. BRONTE, Jane Eyre, Ch. I, 1.

The definite article is also a full determinative in:

Slowly and sadly Enoch answer'd her. | "His head is low, and no man cares for him. | I think I have not three days more to live; | I am the man". TEN., En. Arden. 897. (i. e. that man whom we are speaking about.)

b) The definite article, as the descendant of the old instrumental case þȳ of the neuter demonstrative þæt, is used adverbially before comparatives as in the more the merrier, the worse for liquor. Ch. XXX, 40.

c) The exact grammatical function of what appears as the definite article before certain predicative superlatives and before adverbial superlatives, as in the actions of which we are the very proudest, he writes the worst, is hard to define. Ch. XXX, 34—36.

7. The indefinite article has the special function of marking that our conception is one that has not yet been mentioned, and that it is not specialized. Its force may furthermore be:

a) that of a weak one, especially before the names of measures, as in: a foot high, wait a minute.

b) that of a weak some or a certain as in:

There is a tide in the affairs of men, | Which, taken at the flood, leads on to fortune. Jul. Cæs., IV, 3, 218.

Let a man go down with the proper messages, let a servant carry a note. THACK., Virg., Ch. II, 18.

Once upon a time there was a youth named Kilwyck. Now Kilwyck set out on a gray steed strong of limb. ONIONS, Adv. Eng. Synt., § 274.

Note. In Early Modern English some often appears to have the value of the indefinite article, especially in connection with certain. FRANZ., Shak. Gram.², § 355; MÄTZN., Eng. Gram.³, III, 272.

i. Gentle Lucetta, fit me with such weeds | As may beseem some well-reputed page. Two Gentleman, II, 7, 43.

A man is never undone till he be hanged, nor never welcome to a place, till some certain shot be paid and the hostess say 'Welcome!' Ib., II, 5, 6.

c) that of a weak any as in:

I know no man who has ever paid me a particular attention, whom I would not prefer to Mr. Surface. SHER., School for Scand., III, 1, (391).

She was scrupulous in her devotions, good to the poor, never knowingly did anybody a wrong. THACK., Virg., Ch. IV, 37.

An island is a piece of land surrounded by water. ONIONS. Adv. Eng. Synt., § 175.

Note I. Compare with the above the following quotations in which any appears with weak stress, and, consequently, hardly differs from the indefinite article:

And so she sobbed on like any child. CH. KINGSLEY, Herew., Ch. XIX, 84b. Shakespeare foresaw the difficulty of representing a merchant... as executing a bond so hazardous in its conditions, that any child would shrink from signing it. FURNESS, Note to 'Merch. of Ven.', I, 1, 2'. (Macm. Eng. Clas.)

He bathed her face with a care equal to any woman's. ETH. M. DELL, The Way of an Eagle, I, Ch. IV, 48.

Sometimes weak any is merely a metrical variant of the indefinite article.

Or, if there were a sympathy in choice, | War, death or sickness did lay siege to it (sc. love), | Making it momentary as a sound, | Swift as a shadow, short as any dream. Mids. Night Dream, I, 1, 141-144.

But the meek maid | Swiftly forbore him ever, | being to him | Meeker than any child to a rough nurse, | Milder than any mother to a sick child. TEN., Lanc. and El., 850-2.

Conversely the indefinite article sometimes has the value of strong any. There a dozen girls in this dead-alive neighbourhood, who are a thousand times prettier than you, and who can play, or paint, and all that, while you can't do a thing, and yet a fellow can't get you out of his head. BAR. VON HUTTEN, Pam., VI, Ch. VI, 311.

For a comparison of the indefinite article with any see also MÄTZN., Eng. Gram.³, III, 276, FRANZ., Shak. Gram.², § 352, Anm. I.

II. As a weak any, the indefinite article is sometimes hardly distinguishable from the generalizing definite article. (5, b.) Thus it is difficult to see any difference between. A lion is a beast of prey and The lion is a beast of prey. (The indefinite article before beast is a weak some.) Compare MÄTZN., Eng. Gram.³, III, 191. Similarly in the following quotations the meaning would hardly be changed by the use of the other article:

- i. One eye had lost its pupil, and was glaring and spectral; but the other had a gleam of a genuine devil in it. WASH. IRV., Sketch-Bk., XXXII, 359. Charles was more of a gentleman than a king, and more of a wit than a gentleman.¹⁾

¹⁾ I. SCHMIDT, Eng. Gram., § 304.

A cigarette is for the trivial moments of life; a cigar for its fulfilments, its pleasant comfortable retrospections; but in real distress — in the solving of a question, the fighting of a difficulty — a pipe is man's eternal solace. KATH. CECIL THURSTON, John Chilcote, M. P., Ch. XII, 130.

- ii. I was ever of opinion that the honest man who married and brought up a large family, did more service than he who continued single, and only talked of population. GOLDSMITH, Vicar, Ch. I.
Old and broken-down as he (sc. the horse) looked, there was more of the lurking devil in him than in any young filly in the country. WASH. IRVING, Sketch-Bk., XXXII, 359.
By disposition, perhaps, he was more of the politician than the lawyer. Westm. Gaz., No. 4919, 2b.

Note the varied practice in: Until pride be subdued, there is more hope of a fool than of the sinner. SCOTT, Abbot, Ch. IV, 53.

Thus also in the following quotation we may assume the suppression of either the indefinite or the generalizing definite article (31, b, Note IX). See also the latter part of the first sentence on this page.

In difficulty a silent tongue and a cool head are usually man's best weapons. KATH. CECIL THURSTON, John Chilcote, M. P., Ch. XV, 164.

III. Sometimes it is open to question whether the indefinite article is to be understood as a weak any or a weak one. Thus the following sentence is ambiguous:

You are not listening to a word I am saying. OSCAR WILDE, Dorian Gray, Ch. V, 89.

IV. Some nouns preceded by the indefinite article in the meaning of weak any, are equivalent to indefinite pronouns: Thus a man, a fellow, etc. are approximate equivalents of the Dutch men. (Ch. XL, 195, a.)

- d) to indicate that a person, animal or thing in all their eminent characteristics is meant (5, d), as in:

So was it when my life began; | So is it now I am a man. WORDSWORTH.
A man is never a man, till he can defy wind and weather, range the woods and wilds, sleep under a tree and live on hunter's fare. WASH. IRV., Dolf Heyl. (STOF., Handl., I, 133).

But teach high thought, and amiable words | And courtliness, and the desire of fame, | And love of truth, and all that makes a man. TEN., Guin., 480.
Since the author of "Tom Jones" was buried, no writer of fiction among us has been permitted to depict to his utmost power a Man. THACK., Pend., Pref. (The author has man printed in capitals.)

Note. Also in this function the indefinite article to a certain extent interchanges with the definite. (5, d.) This is shown by their alternative use in:

When you durst do it, then you were a man; And, to be more than what you were, you would | Be so much more the man. Macb., I, 7, 51.

"You are too much a man of the world not to see with the eyes of the world. If other people think Sotherton improved, I have no doubt that you will." — "I am afraid I am not quite so much the man of the world as might be good for me in some points." JANE AUSTEN, Mansfield Park, Ch. X, 102.

8. a) The indefinite article is the descendant of the Old English an, which was used both as a numeral and as the indefinite article. Even in Late Modern English a(n) often has practically the same value as the numeral one. The use of a(n) instead of one causes the sentence stress to be thrown forward on to the following noun, which, as unity is the prominent idea in our minds, seems to be contrary to sense. It is especially frequent after:

1) the negative not. (Ch. XL, 119, Obs. I.)

He lay in the dark empty house, with not a man, a woman, or a child, to say he was kind to me in this or that, and for the memory of one kind word I will be kind to him. DICK., *Christm. Car.*⁵, IV, 96.

2) certain prepositions. In this combination a(n) often has the secondary meaning of the same. For instances in SHAKESPEARE see ABBOT, *Shak. Gram.*³, § 81; FRANZ, *Shak. Gram.*², f 270. The prepositions referred to, are especially:

at. Seven at a blow. ANDREW LANG. The Blue Fairy Book, The Brave Little Tailor.

The tide of human progress is raised at intervals to higher levels at a bound. SARAH GRAND, The Heavenly Twins, I, 128.

He emptied the glass at a draught. DICK., Pickw., Ch. XXVII, 243.

It see it all at a glance. BYRON, Our Boys, I, (12).

To catch a hundred fish at a haul. WEBST., s. v. haul.

O proud Death! | What feast is toward in thine eternal cell, | That thou so many princes at a shot | So bloodily hast struck? HAMLET, V, 2, 377.

Martha ... told them ... how many hours she worked at a stretch. *Christm. Car.*⁵, III, 72. (Also, but less frequently (up) on a stretch, see below).

Its (sc. of the Budget) rejection by the Lords would at a stroke reduce the House of Commons to an inferior place in the Constitution. Westm. Gaz., No. 5137, 1c.

Two at a time. MURRAY.

How long do you keep him out at a time? DICK., Pickw., Ch. I, 5.

They saw that he sat for a few minutes at a time like one in a brown study. Id., Old Cur. Shop, Ch. XXIV, 91a.

For months at a time (they lived) on the most amicable terms. THACK., Virg., Ch. XXXVIII, 393.

He had transmuted the subject at a touch. MRS. WARD, Rob. Elsm., I, 149.

in. At this point the Republicans rose in a body and shouted "Vive la République." Times.

"How delightful!" cried Marian and Christie in a breath. PHILIPS, Mrs. Bouverie, 73.

They were crying, keening and laughing in a breath. ANNIE BESANT, Autobiography.

Loder realised in a glance that the most distinguished of women could wear such ornaments and not have her beauty eclipsed. KATH. CECIL THURSTON, John Chilcote, M. P., Ch. XIII, 142.

In a word it was one of those unparalleled storms. WASH. IRV., The Storm-Ship (STOR., Handl., I, 83).

of. You'll find two of a face as soon as of a mind. Prov.

Birds of a feather flock together. Id.

The gentleman of the profession ben't all of a mind. SHER., Rivals, I, 1.

We are of a mind once more. Id., School for Scand., III.

At Spa no two guests are of a nation. Id., II, 2.

All their proceedings were of a piece with this demand. MAC., Hist., I Ch. II, 232.

I detest people who are always doing 'outré' things like that — it's all of a piece with their fads about no stays and Jaeger's woollen clothes. EDNA LYALL, A Hardy Norseman, Ch. XIII, 110.

The power of these princes was much of a size with that of the Kings of Sparta. SWIFT.¹⁾ on. They were both tall and their eyes were on a level. G. ELIOT, Mid., V, Ch. XLIII, 319.

I don't put myself on a level with you. DICK., Chuz., Ch. XL, 319b.

Our prudery in this respect is just on a par with the artificial blushes of a courtesan. SHER., Critic, I, 1.

We always played seven hours on a stretch. THACK., Sam. Titm., Ch. I, 2. (Also, apparently with no appreciable difference (up) on the stretch, as in If he goes to London for months upon the stretch. MRS. WOOD, East Lynne, III, 50.²⁾ Compare also: He then sleeps for six weeks on an end. PUNCH. (= a an één stuk).

to. He always succeeded in being accurate to a figure. T. P.'s Weekly, No. 482, 130a.

The very gold and silver fish ... to a fish, went gasping round and round their little world in slow and passionless excitement. DICK., Christm. Car.⁵, III, 61. (= not one fish excepted.)

The monks were Danes to a man. CH. KINGSLEY, Herew., Ch. XXVI, 108b.

If the men wavered at all, the women, to a woman, were on Johnny's side. KATH. TYNAN, Johnny's Luck.

without. Mrs. Bretton ... desired me to open my drawers and show my dresses; which I did without a word. CH. BRONTË, Villette, Ch. XX, 258.

Note I. The following quotations may show that the numeral one is also used in some of the above collocations. Thus after:

at. You do not know what it is, at one blow, to be deserted by a lovely and fascinating creature. DICK., Pickw., Ch. XI, 89.

The appointment of the Bishop of Stepney at one bound to the Archbishopric of York has startled many people. Rev. of Rev., CCXXVIII, 517a.

These myriads of cows stretching under her eyes from the far east to the far west, outnumbered any she had ever seen at one glance before. HARDY, Tess, III, Ch. XVI, 133. (Also in one glance: The young stranger, comprehending in one glance the result of the observation ... answered [etc.]. SCOTT, Quent. Durw., Ch. II, 43.)

If we can dispense with physical force, let us abolish the Navy altogether and save £ 32 000 000 at one stroke. Rev. of Rev., CCXIX, 232a.

If the Peers are determined not to assent to the Licensing Bill in anything like its present shape, then it is better that it should be disposed of at one stroke. Westm. Gaz.

Go = a quantity of anything supplied at one time. MURRAY.

Scripture subjects; such as I have never seen since in the hands of pedlars, without seeing the whole of Peggotty's brother's house again, at one view. DICK., Cop., Ch. III, 15b.

in. In one word things between Sir William and me must be behind the curtain. GOLDSMITH, Good-nat. man, V.

of. He has conspired against me, like the rest, and they are but birds of one feather. DICK., Chuz., Ch. III, 22b.

The Bishops who lately met at Lambeth, were of one mind with the Trade Unionists. Rev. of Rev., CCXXVI, 311a.

1) MURRAY.

2) FLÜGEL.

Compare with the above also: i. Mr. Pickwick and his followers rose as one man. DICK., Pickw., Ch. XXIV, 218.

All western and south-western England rose as one man. GREEN, Short Hist., Ch. II, § 5, 82.

Spain rose as one man against the stranger. ib., Ch. V, § 4.

The camp rose to its feet as one man. BRET HARTE, The Luck of Roaring Camp, 6.

ii. They (sc. the birds) will rise, when they finally do go, like one bird, will cross the sea in a large and various crowd [etc.]. Westm. Gaz., No. 5454, 3a.

iii. She wondered by what gift he could be sleepless and saddlesore, serene and temperately gay, all at the one time. HAL. SUTCL., The Lone Adventure, Ch. II, 36.

iv. She said in the same breath that it would be ungenerous not to marry Boldwood, and that she couldn't do it to save her life. HARDY, Far from the Madding Crowd, Ch. XX, 150.

Quesada, the conqueror of New Granada, ... cannot be named in the same breath with Vasco Nunes de Balbao. Athen., No. 4451, 183a.

v. That you should make fun of his infirmities and vulgarities in the self-same breath... is simply unendurable. JAMES PAYN, That Friend of Sylvia's.

ii. Instances of the indefinite article being used in the sense of the numeral one or the same when no preposition precedes, seem to be very rare. The following is the only one to hand at the moment of writing:

These foils have all a length. Hamlet, V, 2, 276.

b) Sometimes the indefinite article has the full force of an indefinite pronoun. It is then practically equivalent to some or a certain. We find it in this meaning especially:

1) in certain expressions such as:

a) after a sort (kind), after a fashion, for a time, in a manner, in a measure, in a sense, of a kind (sort), (up)on a day;

β) to have a way, to have a trick.

i. * The Nationalists, indeed, have a policy, after a sort, though even they are not by any means agreed, either in their objects or in their methods. Times.

 The hotel ... has separate bedrooms and beds of a sort, and the traveller is done for (or more frequently "done") after a fashion. Westm. Gaz., No. 6311, 3a.

 The effect of the successes of Edward the First and of Henry the Fifth was to make France, for a time, a province of England. Mac., Hist., I, Ch. I, 18.

On the south of the Ebro the English won a great battle, which for a time decided the fate of Leon and Castile. ib., 19.

Flying-fish = a fish which can sustain itself in the air for a time by means of the long pectoral fins. ANNAND., Stud. Dict.

* He complained loudly of thus being in a manner dispossessed of his territories by mere bugbears. WASH. IRV., Dolf. Heyl. (Stof., Handl.), I, 114).

Torture in a public school is as much licensed as the knout is in Russia. It would be ungentlemanlike (in a manner) to resist it. THACK., Van. Fair, I, Ch. V, 44.

 Goodness in a measure implies wisdom. SMILES, Charac., I, 8.1)

 This was in a sense compulsory upon the writer. MRS. GASK., Life of Ch. Brontë, 403.

1) MURRAY, s. v. measure, 14, b.

It was in a sense, the great event of his life! EDNA LYALL, Hardy Norseman, Ch. IV, 39.

In a sense it is true; in another sense it is false. Athen., No. 447, 67b. (Here the indefinite is even used in contrast with another.)

 He had, of course, predecessors of a kind. Athen.¹⁾

He held convictions of a kind, but what these convictions were, nobody knew. NORRIS, My Friend Jim.²⁾

 It was upon a day, a summer's day. BYRON, Don Juan, I, CII. Now on a day — about the year 1054 — ... Lady Godiva sat ... in her bower with her youngest son, ... at her knee. Ch. KINGSLEY, Herew., Ch. I, 9a.

- ii. * Brown Major, had a trick of bringing up unpleasant subjects. Mrs. WOOD, Orv. Col., Ch. VI, 94.

 The carrier had a way of keeping his head down, like his horse. DICK., Cop., Ch. III, 14b.

He had a way of suggesting, not teaching—putting things into my head, and then leaving them to work out their own problems. LYTTON, Caxtons, I, Ch. IV, 19.

Note I. There can be little doubt that some or a certain could be substituted for the indefinite article without detriment to idiomatic propriety in most or all of the above collocations. Sufficient documentary evidence is not, however, to hand at the moment of writing to prove this.

She was perhaps unconsciously wishful that he might in some measure be subject to her influence. TROL., Framl. Pars., Ch. I, 3.

II. Sometimes the indefinite article would seem to be preferable to some, when the latter might be understood in the sense of some considerable. (Ch. XL, 178, Obs. II). Thus in the combination for a time.

III. Also one, partly as a numeral, partly as an indefinite pronoun, sometimes appears as an approximate equivalent of the indefinite article in the above sense.

"Are they all brothers, sir?" inquired the lady who had carried the "Davy" or safety lamp. "In one sense they are, ma'm", replied Squeers. DICK., Nich. Nickl., Ch. VI, 29a.

- 2) before the proper name of a person preceded by a title. When the title is absent, one takes the place of a. (Ch. XL, 159.)

She is engaged to be married to a lieutenant Osborne, a very old flame. THACK., Van. Fair, I, Ch. XIV, 145.

He inquired for a Mr. Maldon. Miss BRADDON, Lady Audley's Secret, I, Ch. V, 57.

Before abstract nouns the indefinite article often has the value of the indefinite numeral some. (38—40.)

I find a knowledge of the Greek and Roman types of mind a help, not a hindrance to a study of the conditions of modern life. T. P.'s Weekly, No. 469, 578a. Of late years, the value of a knowledge of natural science has become generally recognized as a potent force in our educational system. Bookman, No. 261, 103.

- d) Further pregnant meanings of the indefinite article may be observed in:

1) Scrooge was not a man to be frightened by echoes. DICK., Christm. Car., I, 20. (= a kind of (a) man, the word-group a man being a kind of prop-word. Ch. XL, 195, a.)

2) His habit is to regale his readers with four false quantities to a page. MAC., Add., (736a). (= to each page.)

1) TEN BRUG., Taalst., X. 2) ROORDA, Dutch and Eng. comp., I, § 17.

- e) The indefinite article is sometimes found before a numeral (+ plural noun) to remove its definiteness or to express an approximate estimate. This usage, which at one time was as common in English as it is in Modern Dutch, is now usual only when the numeral is preceded by good (Ch. XXVI, 17, a, Note II), and before many and few (Ch. IV, 6). See also MURRAY, s. v. A, adj.², 2.
- f) What appears as an indefinite article now in such expressions as twice a day, is in reality a worn-down proclitic form of the Old English preposition an or on. It was at first used only before nouns denoting time, but, when its meaning as a preposition was no longer felt, it came also to be placed before other nouns denoting measure, as in a penny a mile, sixpence a pound, tenpence a hundred, so much a head. This distributive use of the indefinite article appears now as a modification of the numerical meaning. (7, a.) Compare MURRAY, s. v. A, adj.², 4; prep.¹, 8, b; SWEET, N. E. Gr., § 2046; MÄTZN., Eng. Gram.², III, 191.

Note I. The following quotations may show that other idioms with approximately the same meaning as that of the indefinite article in the above combinations, and corresponding to those used in Dutch, are current in English also:

- a) with the definite article: i. Wheat was at twenty shillings the quarter. MAC., Hist., I, Ch. III, 409.

- ii. Favoured spots are pointed out in Manitoba in which wheat has given 60 bushels to the acre. Times.

The average yield of the district this year is 30 bushels to the acre. Ib.

The amount of dirt in the Chicago atmosphere, at a height of 35 ft., is six tons to the acre. Westm. Gaz.

Oxford were rowing at about 34 to the minute. Times, No. 1839, 259b.

- iii. He bullied and punished me; not two or three times in the week, nor once or twice in the day, but continually. CH. BRONTË, Jane Eyre, Ch. I, 5.

Two or three evenings in the week he used to disappear mysteriously for several hours. CH. KINGSLEY, Alt. Locke, Ch. VI, 68.

He devotes one day in the week to receiving the widows and the orphans. LYTTON, Rienzi, IV, Ch. I, 151.

Twice in the week, however, under the graceful direction of Stella, there were public days at the deanery. D. LAING PURVES, Life of Swift, 27.

Give him ten drops of this in a little water, every thirty minutes; that is to say twice in the hour. BUCHANAN, That Winter Night, Ch. XI, 95.

How many posts have you in the day here? MURRAY, s. v. post, 4.

- β) with the indefinite article: i. The trees blew steadfastly one way, never writhing round, and scarcely tossing back their boughs once in an hour. CH. BRONTË, Jane Eyre, Ch. XXV.

He comes in his cab twice or thrice in a week. THACK., Pend., II, Ch. V, 51.

They (sc. the old bay posters) were drawing my aunt's yellow chariot, in which she never went out but thrice in a year. d., Sam. Titm., Ch. VIII, 91.

My dear girl has been to see us lately every day, sometimes twice in a day. DICK., Bleak House, Ch. LX, 500.

- ii. His habit is to regale his readers with four false quantities to a page. MAC., Add., (736a).

- γ) with each: Among the musical disciples who assembled, one evening in each week, to receive his instructions in psalmody, was Katrina van Tassel. WASH. IRV., Sketch-Bk., The Legend of Sleepy Hollow, 350.
- δ) with every: i. Twice every Sunday did we march down the centre aisle of St. Mary's church. MISS BRADDON, My First Happy Christm. (STOF., HANDL., I, 66).
- ii. This medal is to be awarded once in every five years. Times.
- II. Also the Latin per is frequently used in a sense similar to that of the above a, especially in language referring to the paying or receiving of money. In this combination day, month and year are mostly severally replaced by diem, ensem and annum.
- i. * They begin, about fifty, to attend twice per diem at the polite churches and chapels. FIELDING, Jos. Andr., I, Ch. VIII, 16.
-  The salary is Rs. 500 per mensem, rising by annual increments of Rs. 50 to Rs. 750 per mensem. Athen., No. 4398, 145c.
-  This unlucky page engaged in an evil hour at six pounds ten per annum, was a source of continual trouble to me. DICK., Cop., Ch. XLVIII, 343b. Her (Lady Byron's) sole income at this time was £ 130 per annum. Life of Byron (Chamb., Childe Harold).
- ii. The works of George Eliot... in 19 Volumes. Also sold separately, price 5 s. per volume. Cabinet Edition.
- The writer suggests various methods of preventing waste of what is still the cheapest source of light per candle power. Rev. of Rev., CCXXX, 171b. The production per head sank in Victoria from £ 26 in 1871 to £ 25 in 1901. Ib., CCXXXI, 256a.
- The remuneration will be on a scale of 1s. 6d. per paper examined. Acad. and Lit.
- Mr. Wyndham promises us a tax of 2s. per quarter on corn and flour. Westm. Gaz.

USE.

9. When our conceptions are of a nature as described above, the article, whether definite or indefinite, is yet often suppressed. Though the suppression is sometimes simply a matter of arbitrary usage, and any attempt to account for it would often seem to be futile, yet it will be found that in the majority of cases there are certain well founded reasons for it.

These reasons are chiefly the following:

- a) The noun from the nature of its application denotes a conception thought of within certain limits, and cannot be accompanied by any specializing adjunct, so that there is no need for either article. This is the case with proper names when used in their ordinary function, as in John is a lazy fellow, England is a mighty empire. For those cases when proper names, owing to a peculiar application, are accompanied by either the definite or indefinite article, see 22 ff.

The omission of the article is often extended to ordinary common nouns, when they are applied in a way which causes them to resemble proper names, as in Will you help me, father? There's father coming. For details see 16, 43.

- b) The grammatical character of the noun is modified so as to resemble that of other parts of speech which have no adnominal modifiers:
- 1) The noun used as nominal part of the predicate or as predicative adnominal adjunct often approximates more or less to an adjective, with the result that the article is omitted (Ch. XXIII, 16). For details see 44—52.
 - 2) The noun has assumed the character of an indefinite pronoun or numeral, the modification often entailing the loss of the article. Thus we find Things had come to this, He has plenty of money, because things and plenty are respectively synonymous with the indefinite it and much. For details see 57—60.
- c) The specializing is vague, so that there is no call for a word whose chief function is to announce the fact that the conception indicated by the noun should be understood in a specialized way. Thus we find After dinner he went for a walk, He was taken to hospital, because the specializing notions are but dimly thought of. For details see 15.
- d) The noun is part of an expression whose component parts are not thought of separately, but are understood as denoting a kind of unit. Thus we say to drop anchor, to change countenance, to say grace, etc. because these expressions stand for one idea. For details see 63.
- e) To the above causes, which make themselves felt in ordinary language, literary as well as colloquial, we may add the universal vis inertiae, i. e. the desire of saving time, space and trouble, which is especially prevalent in commercial language, and in a still higher degree in the language of telegrams and advertisements. The article being the part of speech, which of all others can be best dispensed with, it is but natural that it should be the first to be dropped. Thus for at foot of bridge, tram-terminus and facing main entrance to palace, which is a portion of an advertisement, ordinary language would have at the foot of the bridge, the tram-terminus, and facing the main entrance to the palace.
- f) It stands to reason that, when the noun is preceded by a modifier which, besides other functions, has the power of indicating specialization, there is no occasion to use the definite article. Thus we say this book, my book, John's book, not the this book*, the my book*, the John's book*. Thus also the king's book, in which the definite article belongs to the modifier, and where the use of an additional definite article as a modifier of the head-word alone would occasion an incongruous accumulation of articles. But there is no such reason to drop the article in the periphrastic equivalent of the last-mentioned collocation: the book of the king, in which, on the contrary, its absence would result in an impossible construction book of the king*. Similarly when an attributive genitive is modified by a demonstrative pronoun, a possessive pronoun or another genitive, as in this boy's book, my brother's book, my master's mistress's maid, usage invariably rejects the definite article.

In a collocation containing a classifying genitive (Ch. XXIV, 44, Obs. V), the definite article may, however, belong to the head-word:

The ladies' umbrellas which I sold that day, fetched a higher price than the gentlemen's umbrellas. Compare also SWEET, N. E. Gr., § 2059.

- g) Finally it must be observed that in verse the article, whether definite or indefinite, is often discarded, when it would interfere with the measure.

i. Sweetest nut has sourest rind. As you like it, III, 2, 115.

ii. There rode | Full slowly by a knight, lady, and dwarf. TEN., Mar. of Ger., 187.

Conversely it is, for the same reason, sometimes used in verse, where ordinary prose would reject it.

It is not that I dread the death. BYRON, Parisina, XIII.

He goes on Sunday to the Church. LONGF., Vil. Blacksmith, V.

His hair is crisp, and black and long, | His face is like the tan. Ib., II.

The above seem to be the principal causes that may be responsible for the suppression of the article. They operate both in Dutch and in English, but frequently take effect in one language, not in the other. It is especially the definite article that is more frequently dropped in English than in Dutch, chiefly owing to the fact that in English it has retained more of its original demonstrative or determinative force than in Dutch. It is hardly necessary to observe that when strong-stressed (5, c), its suppression is out of the question.

Conversely it will be seen that the indefinite article is often found in positions in English, where the Dutch idiom rejects it.

In both languages, however, the use or suppression of either article often seems to be quite arbitrary, and presents a great many inconsistencies, which baffle all explanation.

Owing to the multiplicity and uncertainty of the causes that may be assigned for the use or suppression of the articles, it is particularly difficult to discuss the details with any degree of method. The following is the order of discussion which at the moment of writing seemed to be the most rational and convenient.

THE USE OF THE INDIVIDUALIZING DEFINITE ARTICLE IN DETAIL.

THE DEFINITE ARTICLE BEFORE COMMON NOUNS.

10. Conceptions primarily undefined, may become defined through being individualized or specialized. This may, or may not, occasion the use of the definite article, according to the nature of the specializing adjunct.
11. When the individualizing is expressed by an adnominal clause, the definite article is used almost regularly.

He forgot to return the money I had lent him.

The circumstances recorded in this story, took place some score of years ago. THACK., Sam. Titm., Ch. II, 10.

Note the usual absence of the article in the phrase. Time was (came) [when (or that) etc.].

- i. Time was he would have envied the dandies their fine horses in Rotten Row. THACK., Pend., I, Ch. XXIX, 311.

Time was when you called him better names than rogue and swindler. Id., Van. Fair, I, Ch. XXIV, 244.

Time came when you might stand in the little bare stone church on the hill in rapt admiration of that lovely face, wondering what manner of man it was that painted it. JOHN OXENHAM, Great-Heart Gillian, Ch. VII, 49.

- ii. The time had been when no such exhortations would have been necessary. SCOTT, Mon., Ch. XXXIV, 367.

The time was when we might have a good piece of salmon up from London for you. W. MORRIS, News from Nowhere, Ch. XXII, 167.

Compare also: There was a time when the two were inseparable. ROORDA, Dutch and English Comp., § 12.

12. When the individualizing is expressed by a prepositional word-group, the omission of the article is more common.

Apart from the defining being sometimes more or less vague or uncertain (57), this seems to be chiefly owing to the fact that the prepositional word-group, if not containing the preposition of, is felt more or less as an adverbial adjunct. Compare: events in South Africa (Times) with the events of the last few years. Thus also Boulevards in Paris were thronged at night is practically identical with In Paris Boulevards were thronged at night (Graphic).

Also adjuncts with of are often incapable of causing the article to be used, when they form a kind of unit with their head-word: Members of Congress. When there is no such unity, the suppression is much less usual. See the quotations marked with a †.

For convenience of comparison with later quotations the following arrangement has been made alphabetical, the singulars having been divided from the plurals.

Singulars.

force. All these studies help to an understanding of the relationship of national life to force of arms. T. P.'s Weekly, No. 473, 690a.

literature. † In English literature of the eighteenth century, Berkeley and Butler and Hume are greater names than Gray and Collins. *DOWDEN*¹⁾.

love. † You think I will risk my life and liberty for love of the old gentleman. R(OBERT) L(EWIS) S(TEVENSON).¹⁾ opinion. Opinion in Austria Hungary is clearly in a very unsettled state. Westm. Gaz.

If opinion in the press is to be taken, both sides are rather nervous at what is suggested. Ib., No. 6329, 1c.

trade. i. Durban lives simply on the up-country trade — the trade of the two Republics, whose annexation is now demanded. Morning Leader.
The trade of the city is at a standstill. Westm. Gaz., No. 6353, 1c.

ii. Trade with the United States is decidedly better than it was. Ib., No. 4977, 2b.
They have been hailing the Underwood tariff as a new opportunity for British trade with the United States. Ib., No. 6353, 2a.

war. In the war of the future civilization itself may disappear. Rev. of Rev., CCXXVIII, 513a.

1) WENDT, Synt. des heut. Eng., 171.

Plurals.

events. i. The events of the last fortnight in Tripoli show that the Italian occupation even of the coast towns is not to be effected by a mere military promenade. Times, No. 1818, 882d.

That fear had been dispelled by the events of recent years. Ib., No. 1819, 904a.

ii. This is the most valuable lesson taught to us and to others by events in the Mediterranean. Ib., No. 1814, 803a.

I want you to understand how impossible it is, after recent events in Canada that your present system can be maintained. Ib., No. 1815, 820a.

members. As in every other crisis, Members of Congress are trimming to the political demagogues who shout the loudest. Times.

Members of the Liberal Party will have read with the greatest satisfaction the words in which the Prime Minister declared [etc.]. Westm. Gaz., No. 5459, 1b.

reviews. Weekly reviews of the home and foreign situation... reveal clearly the profound concern and dissatisfaction with which all classes of society regard the international outlook and the present situation of Germany. Times, No. 1815, 815c.

trade returns. It seems safe to predict that the trade returns for the remainder of the year will not come up to the average of the first seven years. Times, No. 1814, 799c.

Note I. Sometimes the absence of the article may be due to the stressless nature of the noun, as part of an expression that has the value of a mere preposition. (65, c.) See especially ELLINGER, Verm. Beitr., 31.

* He was at first... somewhat annoyed with himself, at feel of the thrall of her beauty. KATH. CECIL THURSTON, John Chilcote, M. P., Ch. VIII, 59.

 Here at sound of their voices, madame came bustling in from the back. JOHN OXENHAM, Great-heart Gillian, Ch. IV, 35.

And suddenly at sound of quiet footsteps, you might turn and blink your startled eyes in amazement, as they fell on the living image of the pictured face. Ib., Ch. VII, 49.

He turned at sound of a step over-stream. HAL. SUTCL., Pam the Fiddler, Ch. VII, 101.

At sound of her words, his secret ambitions quickened to stronger life. KATH. CECIL THURSTON, John Chilcote, M. P., Ch. XXII, 233. (Thus passim, throughout the book, always without the article.)

 M. le Curé... (was) gratified at thought of this mighty widening of her outlook. Ib., Ch. IX, 67.

II. In the following quotations the absence of the article seems to be due to the demands of measure. Compare ABBOT, *Shak. Gram.*³, § 89; FRANZ., *Shak. Gram.*², § 267.

Who comes so past in silence of the night? Merch. of Ven., V, 1, 25.

If you would walk in absence of the sun. Ib., 128.

Will you be pricked in number of our friends. Jul. Cæs., III, 1, 216.

The 'why' is plain as way to parish church. At you like it, II, 7, 52.

13. When the individualizing is indicated by an adnominal noun in the common case (Ch. XXIII, 3, b; 12), the definite article is frequently dropped.

This seems to be due to a variety of causes:

- a) These adjuncts often partake more or less of the character of classifying adjuncts (Ch. XXIII, 13, Obs. II and III), which, as has been pointed out in 5, Note II, are of no influence as to the use of the definite article. Thus in London tailors have raised their prices the absence of the definite article may be partly due to the fact that, perhaps, more is meant than simply tailors that carry on business in the metropolis, there being, possibly, an intention to refer to a certain degree of superior skill by which these representatives of the tailoring trade are distinguished.
- b) The defining notion is sometimes more or less vague. (57.) Thus in the above sentence the adnominal noun London marks off the representatives of the tailoring trade of the metropolis with less distinctness than would be done by the prepositional word-group of London, the employment of which, accordingly, would entail the use of the definite article.
- c) The adjunct is often felt as an equivalent of a noun in the genitive. (9, f.) Thus in the same sentence London stands practically for London's.
- d) The adjunct is often more or less adverbial in import (Ch. XXIII, 12, c): London tailors as used in the above sentence may also be interpreted as tailors in London.

Singulars.

interest. Douglas owed his appointment to Court interest. STEPHEN GWENN, Thom. Moore, Ch. II, 33.

life. How proud he would be, if he could show his young friend a little of London life! THACK., Virg., Ch. XVI, 168.

postage. Previous to the inauguration of penny postage... the cost of sending a letter from London to Edinburgh or Glasgow was 1 s. 3½ d. T. P.'s Weekly, No. 471; 634b.

practice. The German, Paul Haenlein, constructed a dirigible balloon much more on the lines of present day practice. Rev. of Rev., CCXXIX, 30a.

trade. Nowhere have these complaints been more just than in the China trade. Times.

Similar circumstances exist in the New Zealand and in the South Africa trade. Id.

Plurals.

men. He 'is ... a Cork man, and Cork men are a race apart. T. P.'s Weekly, No. 496, 577b.

people. i. The Edinburgh people are, indeed, the most responsible of all God's creatures. Id. No. 471, 620a.

ii. Edinburgh people have a way of their own. Ib.

politics. Cape politics had been so disagreeable a subject that persons in authority at the Colonial Office dismissed them from their minds. FROUDE, Oceana, Ch. III, 48.

streets. He was a wanderer in London streets. T. P.'s Weekly, No. 472, 652b.

14. Also when the individualizing is effected by an adjective (Ch. XXVIII, 2, b; 3), the definite article often remains absent.

This is due, in the main, to the same causes as those which are responsible for the dropping of the article in the case of the individualizing being expressed by an adnominal noun in the common case. (13.) Thus in All men are swayed and chained by public opinion (LYTTON, Rienzi, II, Ch. III, 86),

- a) the adjective public is more or less classifying;
- b) the notion of defining implied by the adjective is more or less vague;
- c) the adjective is practically equivalent to a genitive.

In The year 1907 was a boom year for British and European trade (The Nation, in Westm. Gaz., No. 4961, 16c), the adjectives British and European are distinctly adverbial in import, as may be seen by comparing the above sentence with The year 1908 was a year of gradually declining trade in Great Britain. Trade at home remained fairly good until May (ib.).

The suppression is, apparently, regular in many word-groups such as English, French, etc., history, literature (but the English language), policy, influence, commerce, trade; English (French, etc.), public opinion, public feeling (but the popular or general sentiment), popular liberty and, probably, many more in which the adjective has coalesced into a kind of unit with the noun it modifies.

Singulars.

blood. But Matilda, though of the royal Saxon blood, was not the their to the monarchy. SCOTT, Ivanhoe, Ch. XLII, 448.

commerce. It has been the fashion for some time now to decry British Commerce at every conceivable opportunity. Times.

diplomacy. The whole basis of German European diplomacy has been founded on the idea of Turkey in Europe as an institution. Eng. Rev., No. 49, 148.

drama. Our leading dramatist has some interesting and curious remarks attributed to him concerning American and English drama. West. Gaz., No. 5231, 7b.

feeling. In the ten days since the affair of the caravans had been reported from Persia, public feeling had run high. KATH. CECIL THURSTON, John Chilcote, M. P., Ch. XXV, 275. (Compare sentiment.)

government. For all practical purposes the great machine of German government remains in fact and in theory what it was before. Westm. Gaz.

history. In this by-place of nature, there abode, in a remote period of American history, ... a worthy wight of the name of Ichabod Crane. WASH. IRV., Sketch-Bk., XXXII, 344.

influence. German influence has made rapid strides during the last few weeks. Westm. Gaz., No. 5024, 2c.

interest. Public interest in it (sc. the National Insurance Bill) has rather increased than diminished during the months it has been before the public. Times, No. 1816, 843b.

learning. Erasmus embodied for the Teutonic peoples the quickening influence of the New Learning. GREEN, Short Hist., Ch. VI, § 4, 306. (Thus regularly before the name of this movement in this book.)

liberty. Ghent was what it ought always to have remained, the bulwark, as it had been the cradle of popular liberty. MOTLEY, Rise, VI, Ch. VII, 900a.

opinion. Public opinion, in these cases, is always of the feminine gender — not the world, but the world's wife. G. ELIOT, Mill, VII, Ch. II, 455.

Mr. Redmond understands Irish opinion as we cannot pretend to understand it, but there are some points about British opinion which we hope he will bear in mind. Westm. Gaz., No. 5231, 1c.

No student of the French Press can have failed to detect the existence of a similar spirit among influential sections of French opinion. Times, No. 1819, 903b. (Thus, apparently, regularly.)

policy. British policy was admirably expounded by the Prime Minister. Westm. Gaz. It was reported that my right hon. friend... had in a public speech used language attacking German policy. Times, No. 1819, 893c.

pressure. They hold together against the Imperial pressure. Westm. Gaz.

recollection. His leadership of the Opposition in the trying years that followed during the ministries of Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman and Mr. Asquith, will be fresh in the general recollection. Times, No. 1819, 894a.

ritual. Her (sc. Elizabeth's) taste revolted from the bareness of Protestant ritual. GREEN, Short Hist., Ch. VII, § 3, 378.

sentiment. This is in tune with the popular sentiment. Rev. of Rev., CCV, 27b. We find an admirable summary of the general sentiment in the felicitous speech which Lord Rosebery made. Westm. Gaz. (Compare feeling.)

trade. (This) would not compensate him for what he must lose, if the European trade should be driven by his violence to some other quarter. MAC., Clive, (513a).

Plurals.

affairs. The prominence... given to Canadian affairs will be of service to Canada. Times, No. 1816, 943b.

circumstances. It cannot be said too often in present circumstances that the credit of the Government is an asset of all parties. Westm. Gaz., No. 5231, 1c.

conditions. In existing conditions it seems fairly certain that only after a victorious war can Austria hope to gain her ends. Westm. Gaz.

events. Recent events... have drawn the eyes of the world to Canada. Times, No. 1816, 843b.

elections. A number of Canadian correspondents have written, complaining of opinions alleged to have been expressed by the Times on the result of the Canadian elections. Times, No. 1815, 819c.

magazines. "T. P.'s magazine" maintains its unique position among English magazines. Advertisement.

politics. It was an innovation in American politics. Westm. Gaz.

The following quotation may further illustrate the arbitrariness of usage: If the gap between intelligent native opinion (= the opinion of intelligent natives) and the official bureaucracy is to be bridged, official India must necessarily revise some of its traditions. Westm. Gaz.

Note especially:

in due time (season, course, course of time). The party was landed at the Royal Gardens in due time. THACK., Van. Fair, I, Ch. VI, 54.

In due course of time they got into the hot air of London. W. BLACK, Madcap, V, Ch. VII, 69.

(the) old(en) time(s) (days). i. * A good old gentleman, one of the olden time. THACK., Pend., II, Ch. XXIV, 260.

 The talking was about the olden times. Mrs. CRAIK, A Hero, 35.

In the old days... our legislators seem to have had more staying power. Westm. Gaz., No. 4967, 4b.

ii. The heavy drops fall drip, drip, drip, upon the broad flagged pavement, called, from old time, the Ghost's Walk. DICK., Bleak House, Ch. II, 6.

 If not of those goodly proportions that Maypoles were wont to present in olden times, (it) was a fair young ash. Id., Barn. Rudge, Ch. I, 1b.

We'll talk over Boniface and old times. THACK., Pend., I, Ch. XXIX, 316.

In old days men managed by hook or crook to publish Scandals of the Court or Horrible Revelations of High Life. CHESTERTON. (Il. Lon'd. News, No. 3684 A, 741.)

Compare with this in ancient times, which does not, apparently, admit of a similar variation.

This quarter derives its appellation from having been, in ancient times, the residence of the Dukes of Brittany. WASH. IRV., The Sketch-Bk., XXV, 242.

15. Some nouns denoting conceptions primarily defined (4), may yet stand without the definite article, when not accompanied by any specializing adjunct (5), the omission being partly a survival of Old English practice (SWEET, N. E. Gr., § 2061), partly the outcome of the factors mentioned in 9, c, d, and e. Compare also 63.

Omission is especially common:

- a) before the names of certain localities, institutions and establishments, such as bed, chapel, class, college, confessional, court, church, dock, (ex)change, harbour, home, hospital, jail, market, port, prison, school, town, when the reference is rather to the proceedings carried on there than to the material thing. MURRAY, s. v. at, 5; in, 1, b; MÄTZN., *Eng. Gram.*², III, 214; ELLINGER, Verm. Beitr., 35.

The altered application sometimes causes some of these nouns to be practically abstract nouns, and the suppression is favoured by the specializing being often so vague that the noun appears almost used in a generalizing sense. (7.) It is, accordingly, sometimes open to question, whether it is the individualizing or generalizing definite, or the indefinite article which is suppressed. (7, c, Note II.) Compare also 36 and 63.

The omission of the article seems to be favoured, and in the case of some nouns even conditioned, by the presence of prepositions denoting a relation of either place or time.

To the above nouns we may add certain names of actions, which resemble them in their altered meanings, and also under the same conditions more or less regularly reject the definite article. Such are auction, council, lesson, mass, meeting, office, rehearsal, service, term, trial, etc.

Town, without the article, means the town where we live or the large town, often the metropolis, referred to in our daily conversation. The town indicates the place referred to in a narrative with which we have no further connexion, and also an aggregate of buildings, institutions, etc., rather than a place of human residence. MÄTZN., Eng. Gram.², III, 214; ELLINGER, Verm. Beitr., 35.

auktion. Last year a single article sold for £ 10.000 at auction. Times, No. 1809, 701c.

The captain sells the fish by auction. Daily News, 1881, 29 Dec. 6/4.¹⁾

These... were put up from time to time to auction. ROGERS, Pol. Econ., XIII, 21.¹⁾ bed. i. It would have been in vain for Scrooge to plead that the weather and the hour were not adapted to pedestrian purposes; that bed was warm, and [etc.]. DICK., Christm. Car.⁵, II, 35.

In due course there was bed; where, but for the resumption of the studies which took place in dreams, were rest and sweet forgetfulness. Id., Domb., Ch. XII, 110.

ii. To be (lie, stay, etc.) in bed. To go retire, etc. to bed.

She has not been out of bed since. Mrs. ADAMS, Lett., 349.¹⁾

I won't go to bed. DICK., Pickw., Ch. VIII, 66.

His companions remained in bed. Ib., 67.

I gave Gus a lecture about spending his Sundays idly; and read out one of Blair's sermons before we went to bed. As I turned over in bed, I could not help thinking about the luck the pin had brought me. THACK., Sam. Titm., Ch. IV, 46.

Compare: The two gentlemen moved away from the bed. Mrs. WOOD, Orville Col., Ch. II, 23.

To lie or sleep in the bed one has made = to accept the natural fruits or results of one's own conduct. MURRAY, s.v. bed, 5, c.

camp. How is the ordinary citizen to acquire either this discipline or this skill from a few afternoons in a drill-hall and a fortnight at the outside in camp once a year? Times, No. 1825, 1031.

The artillery are back in camp. Punch, No. 3712, 172b.

chapel. i. Men and women might lie another ten minutes in bed... without reprobation, because chapel was missed. JANE AUSTEN, Mansf. Park, Ch. IX, 90.

ii. Lamb never stirred out of the hall that night after chapel. Mrs. WOOD, Orv. Col., Ch. V, 66.

He read the service in chapel when his turn came. MORLEY, Crit. Misc., Pattison, III, 156.¹⁾

Compare: When mass was ended, they retired together from the chapel. SCOTT, Quent. Durw., Ch. II, 48.

church. i. To attend church.

I hope none of you forget church. THACK., Sam. Titm., Ch. II, 17.

ii. To be at church. After (before, during) church. To be (stay, etc.) in church. To come (go, etc.) from (to, out of) church.

But soon the steeples called good people all to church and chapel. DICK., Christm. Car.⁵, III, 62.

Compare: He told me, coming home that he hoped the people saw him in the church. Ib., III, 66.

Note I. In to go into the Church (= to take holy orders, to become a clergyman); to be in the Church (= to be in holy orders, to be a clergyman); to leave the bar for the Church and similar expressions, church has a collective meaning, and the article has a generalizing function. (32, a.)

II. In the following quotation the article is used merely for the sake of the metre: He goes on Sunday to the church. LONGF., Vil. Blacks., V.

¹⁾ MURRAY.

class. Isn't Yeats the poet the Yeats who was in class with us at school? T. P.'s Weekly, No. 408, 709c.

college. i. That patrimony he dissipated before he left college. MEREDITH, Ord. of Rich. Fev., Ch. I, 2.

ii. I remember Allworthy at college. FIELDING, Tom Jones, IV, Ch. X, 56a (Compare: "I thought", said the Parson, "he had never been at the University." ib.) At my father's death I paid what debts I had contracted at college. THACK., Pend., II, Ch. XX, 216.

After college he hung about his mother's house. THACKERAY.¹⁾ confessional. He communicated a curious account; that you had been to him that evening at confessional. CH. BRONTË, Villette, Ch. XVII, 230.

I went and sought them (sc. companionship, friendship and counsel) in church and confessional. ib., 231.

Compare: The secrets of the confessional. FOWLER, Conc. Oxford Dict.

council. The Signory is in council. BYRON, Mar. Fal., I, 1.

Perhaps it is true to say that as yet his weight in council has not been felt. Times. Note by order in Council (= Dutch: bij Koninklijk Besluit.)

court. i. * For Arthur on the Whitsuntide before | Held court at old Caerleon upon Usk. TEN., Mar. of Ger., 146.

 If thou never wast at court, thou never sawest good manners. As you like it, III, 2, 71. (Compare: Those that are good manners at the court are as ridiculous in the country as the behaviour of the country is mockable at the court. ib., III, 2, 47.)

Our director, his lady, and daughter were presented at court. THACK., Sam. Titm., Ch. VII, 84.

A friend at court is always an advantage. T. P.'s Weekly, No. 468, 529a.

ii. A photograph of the prosecutrix was produced in court. Times.

If they had seen that this would be the outcome of the proceedings, they would not have been in such a hurry to go into Court. ib.

The proceedings in Court. ib., No. 1816, 1b.

In these cases it is Mr. A., the plaintiff, who brings the complaint into court. ANNA BUCKLAND, Our Nat. Instit., 43.

Out of court they (sc. the judges) had human minds like yours and mine. W. J. LOCKE, The Glory of Clem. Wing, Ch. III, 45.

Compare: i. Out west they would never have left the court alive. ib., Ch. V, 70.

ii. My poor wife and I walked out of the court, and back to our dismal room in the prison. THACK., Sam. Titm., Ch. XII, 157.

Silence in the court there! ib., Ch. XII, 151.

divan. They had rather a grumpy time of it in divan that night. LOCKHART, I, 187.²⁾ dock. He (sc. the American interviewer) and his notebook are on the spot as the "liner" comes into dock. RITA, America—Seen through Eng. eyes, Ch. III, 63.

exchange. Scrooge's name was good upon 'change. DICK., Chrism. Car., I, 5. But there they were, in the heart of it (sc. the city); on 'change, amongst the merchants. ib., IV, 87.

hall. After hall they went to Mr. Buck's to take wine; and after wine to chapel. THACK., Pend., I, 168.³⁾

Then they went to hall. W. J. LOCKE, The Glory of Clem. Wing, Ch. XVII, 180. On the same evening, his Royal Highness dined in hall. II. Lond. News, No. 3835, 566.

Soon as the meal was over, she stole out of hall. HAL. SUTCL., Pam the Fiddler, Ch. IV, 62.

¹⁾ FOELS-KOCH, Wis. Gram., § 273. ²⁾ ELLINGER, Verm. Beitr., 36.

³⁾ MURRAY, s. v. chapel.

harbour. The South African Constitution may now, we think, be reckoned as safely in harbour. Westm. Gaz., No. 5001, 1c.

I woke to hear we were in harbour. Ib., No. 6347, 5a.

headquarters. He had no quarrel with Mr. Cadogan, but only with those at head-quarters, who had belied him. THACK., Henry Esmond, II, Ch. XV, 284.

home. i. There is no place like home. Prov.

Home is home, be it ever so homely. Id.

ii. I am wandering from my story, and must get back to home. THACK., Barry Lyndon, Ch. I, 19.

At one hour he was sure to be at church; at another, at market; in his office at a third; and at home when respectable men should be at home. CH. READE, It is never too late to mend, I, Ch. I, 5.

A minute later we were in the street and walking for home. CON. DOYLE, Mem. of Sherl. Holm., II, B, 77.

I walked towards home. TH. WATTS DUNTON, Aylwin, II, Ch. X, 113.

She is at home, as usual, — every evening for a few people. MRS. WARD, Lady Rose's Daught., I, Ch. I, 9b.

hospital. i. They will be allowed to proceed to their homes, instead of being made prisoners, as soon as they can leave hospital. Times.

ii. My father died of his wounds in hospital. MEREDITH, Lord Ormont, Ch. III, 50. Nobody could live in hospital like Edward Hallin and his sister. MRS. WARD, Marcella, III, 33.

A patient I had been nursing for weeks, had to be removed to hospital. Ib., III, Ch. IV, 354.

I am going to take this child to hospital. Id., Sir George Tres., I, Ch. IV, 28b. (Compare: As they went into the hospital, George caught a few of the things she was saying to the porter. Ib.)

Lord Hardinge was taken to hospital. Westm. Gaz., No. 6111, 1c. (Compare: The Viceroy said manfully, on being taken to the hospital, that this attempt on his life had made no change in his feelings towards India and her people. Ib.) jail. To be in jail. To let out of jail. To send to jail. MURRAY.

He had been arrested or suspicion of the crime of Arson and lodged in jail. MEREDITH, Ord. of Rich. Fev., Ch. V, 34.

lesson. Never before and never again, while Tom was at school, did the Doctor strike a boy in lesson. HUGHES, Tom Brown, I, Ch. VIII, 156.

I shall get floored to a certainty at second lesson, if I'm called up. Ib., II, Ch. VII, 316. Tom renewed the discussion after second lesson. Ib.

market. i. He attended market and sessions. THACK., Pend., I, Ch. II, 20.

ii. But yet I run before my horse to market. Rich. III, I, 1, 160.

In the first place, I shall be seen, and that is no small advantage to a girl who brings her face to market. GOLDSM., She Stoops to Conquer, III, (203).

The eggs we had counted on selling at market were broken. THACK., Virg., Ch. LXXX, 847.

Bathsheba said very little to her husband all that evening of their return from market. HARDY, Far from the Madding Crowd, Ch. XLI, 317.

There rode by a butcher with a basket of meat hastening to market. Robin Hood (GÜNTH., Handbook², 24).

If you could take a cup of tea with us on your way home from market, my father would be glad to see you. READE, It is never too late to mend, II, Ch. VI, 65.

Compare: i. When the market was over, one of them invited Robin Hood to dine with their company. ROBIN HOOD (GÜNTH., Handbook², 25).

ii. I was first at the market. LYTTON, Rienzi, I, Ch. IX, 55.

On reaching the town, Robin Hood put up his horse at an inn, and then went into the market. ROBIN HOOD (GÜNTH., Handbook², 25).

My poor dear nother's own sherry was in the market then. DICK., Cop., Ch. I, 2a. (Thus regularly in this collocation.)

A larger pen with a very flexible nib, . . . has this year been put upon the market. Rev. of Rev., CCXXXI, Advertisement. (Thus regularly in this collocation.)

mass. i. To say (sing, hear, attend etc.) mass. MURRAY.

When mass was ended, they retired together from the chapel. SCOTT, Quent. Durw., Ch. II, 48.

Mass had been said in the grey old church among the trees. HAL. SUTCL., Pam the Fiddler, Ch. IV, 55.

She heard mass at a very early hour. Times, No. 1818, 887a.

ii. To be (stay etc.) at mass. To come (go, etc.) from mass. To go to mass. MURRAY. We had all been to mass at the Cathedral. Westm. Gaz., No. 4949, 9a.

The maids were slow on their feet from Mass. Ib.

office. i. To take (leave, etc.) office.

ii. To be (stay, etc.) in office. To come (go, etc.) into (out of) office. Jack in (out of) office. MURRAY.

For the fourth time in succession Sir Wilfrid Laurier has been returned to office by a General Election. Rev. of Rev., CCXXVII, 403a.

Neither is it well for the same party to remain continuously in office. Ib, Compare: When I came back to the office, I pretty soon let the fellows know [etc.]. THACK., Sam. Titm., Ch. II, 20.

port. i. Doubt was expressed . . . as to the possibility of the measure reaching port this year. Echo, No. 3273, 2.¹⁾

Is there any doubt, Master Pathfinder, that we shall reach port in safety. COOPER, The Pathfinder.²⁾

ii. The boats perhaps had sighted some rare vessel, and compete the prize of towing her up to port. Westm. Gaz., No. 6023, 3a.

He captured two Dutch East Indiamen and brought them safely into port. Ib., No. 6011, 9c.

prison. For having broken prison I am ordered for immediate execution. GAY, Beggar's Op., III, 2.

Compare: She had only just come from the prison, where she learned my address. THACK., Sam. Titm., Ch. XII, 167.

My poor wife and I walked out of the court, and back to our dismal room in the prison. Ib., Ch. XII, 157.

rehearsal. Don't you think it is time to go to rehearsal? THACK., Pend., I, Ch. XI, 116.

When Miss Costigan came home from rehearsal [etc.]. Ib., Ch. XII, 23.

The next day to rehearsal. OSCAR WILDE, An Ideal Husband, II, 43.

A certain orchestral player at Drury Lane Theatre had suffered sundry admonishments at rehearsal from his revered conductor. T. P.'s Weekly, No. 468, 524a.

Compare: My poor Theo had a nice dinner waiting for me after the rehearsal. THACK., Virg., Ch. LXXIX, 842.

school. i. Afternoon school began. Mrs. WOOD, Orville College, Ch. VII, 101.

He liked all to make their appearance on the eve of school. Ib., Ch. I, 9.

ii. To be at school, to go to school, to put (send) to school. MURRAY.

To tell tales out of school. Ib.

About ten minutes before school Martin and Arthur arrived in the quadrangle. HUGHES, Tom Brown, II, Ch. IV.

There had been some talk on occasions of my going to boarding-school. DICK., Cop., Ch. IV.

We will take the Juvenal at afternoon school. THACK., Pend., I, Ch. II, 28.

¹⁾ MURRAY. ²⁾ ELLINGER, Verm. Beitr., 36.

Did you not say you had a sister at boarding-school? Id., Virg., Ch. XXXIX, 407. Compare: The school is not quite deserted... A solitary child... is left there still. Dick., *Christm. Car.*⁵, II, 37.

It was the close of the forenoon school. THACK., Pend., I, Ch. II, 26.

Both Arthur and Mr. John Pendennis had been at the school. ib., 24. (= at this school.)

They saw five or six nearly new balls hit on the top of the school. HUGHES, Tom Brown, I, Ch. IX.

service. I doubt not but you will be honoured with some portion of her notice, when service is over. JANE AUSTEN, Pride and Prej., Ch. XXVIII, 158.

Service concluded, the governor began to turn a wheel in his pew. CH. READE, It is never too late to mend, I, Ch. X, 112.

Stool of Repentance. A low stool placed in front of the pulpit in Scotland, on which persons who had incurred an ecclesiastical censure, were placed during divine service. E. COBHAM BREWER, Dict. of Phrase and Table.

study. One afternoon when he came down from study with Pen, ... she went out and shook hands with him with rather a blushing face. THACK., Pend., I, Ch. XVI, 162.

town. i. Lady Jane is about to leave town immediately. THACK., Sam. Titm., Ch. III, 40.

Town is very dreary. MAR. CRAWF., A Tale of a Lonely Par., Ch. III, 23.

ii. A perfect and celebrated "blood", or dandy about town was this young officer. THACK., Van. Fair, I, Ch. X, 97.

(He) was, I do believe, as happy, whenever his friends brought him a guinea, as he had been during his brief career as a gentleman on town. Id., Sam. Titm., Ch. XII, 159.

With your advantages you might turn the heads of half the girls in town. EDNA LYALL, Donovan, I, 140.

Compare: He gave her all the pleasures of the town. THACK., Pend., I, Ch. II, 19.

trial. Have you authority to put me in the pillory before trial? CH. READE It is never too late mend, I, Ch. I, 18.

Five men and a woman were put on trial for the crime. MCCARTHY, Short Hist., Ch. XXII, 318.

Two days later we were committed for trial at the Central Criminal Court ANNIE BESANT, Autob., 209.

Compare: After the trial it was proved that one of the five prisoners was never near the spot on the day of the rescue. MCCARTHY, Short Hist., Ch. XXII, 317.

It was represented to the jury that this statement substantially corroborated the evidence given by Fletcher and other witnesses at the trial. Times, No. 1814, 803c.

b) They now began to be put on their trials. MCCARTHY, Short Hist., Ch. XXII, 316 before the names of meals, such as banquet, breakfast, dinner, lunch(eon), meat, mess, supper, table, tea, and tiffin when used in a more or less immaterial sense. Also before these nouns the omission of the article is especially frequent, when they are preceded by a preposition denoting a relation of time or place; likewise in many collocations, such as to ask (invite) to (for) dinner, etc. to stay (stop) tea or to tea, etc. (Ch. V, 11), to wait dinner etc. (ib.), to come (go) to (into) dinner etc., to take out (take in) to dinner, etc., in which the omission is so usual as to be almost regular. Conversely the article would appear to be commonly used after prepositions not denoting any relation of either time or place, but the evidence available at the time of writing is too scanty to make this more than a surmise.

- i. Supper's ready, Sir. DICK., Pickw., Ch. VIII, 65.

The entrance of supper opportunely adjourned this difficulty. G. ELIOT, Mill, I, Ch. III, 17.

Dinner was over. Mrs. CRAIK, John Hal., Ch. II, 12.

Dinner will be served almost directly. W. BLACK, The New Prince Fortunatus, Ch. XIV.

"Dinner is served", he announced, in his discreet and well-trained voice. KATH. CECIL THURSTON, John Chilcote, M. P., Ch. XXII, 250.

 She seemed to be engaged in a mental calculation of the probable extent of the pettitoes, in the event of Sam's being asked to stop supper. DICK., Pickw., Ch. XXVI, 236.

I am going to stay tea. Mrs. WOOD, Orv. Col., Ch. VI, 87.

 My master has been waiting dinner for you these three hours. Robin Hood (Günth., Handb., 140).

I never wait supper for anybody. DICK., Pickw., Ch. IX, 73.

- ii. * After tea the young gentlemen withdrew to fetch up the unfinished tasks of that day. DICK., Domb., Ch. XII, 107.

One evening after mess he told Colquhoun that [etc.]. BESANT and RICE, Gold. Butterfly, Ch. XIII.¹⁾

 At breakfast I announced to Diana and Mary that I was going a journey. CH. BRONTË, Jane Eyre, Ch. XXXVI, 519.

He paid Dobbin fifty pounds that evening at mess. THACK., Van. Fair, I, Ch. XIII, 133.

We were talking about it at mess yesterday. Id., Pend., I, Ch. X, 108.

He was absolute master of the life and liberty of all who sat at meat with him. MAC., Fred., (676b).

Till ev'n the knights at banquet twice or thrice | Forgot to drink to Lancelot and the Queen. LANC. and EL., 731.

The father and mother were already at table. Mrs. WARD, Marc., I, 33.

 Before tea they all went for a walk. DICK., Domb., Ch. XII, 106.

* Only once during dinner was there any conversation that included the young gentlemen. DICK., Domb., Ch. XII, 106.

 He invited me for dinner next Sunday in Myddelton Square. THACK., Sam. Titm., Ch. IV, 41.

I just want you to come to my rooms in St. James' Street for tea and dinner. BAR. VON HUTTEN, What became of Pam, Ch. XIII, 92.

They have just knocked off for dinner. CH. READE, It is never too late to mend, I, Ch. I, 5.

 Come into dinner, Phineas. Mrs. CRAIK, John Hal., Ch. I, 12.

 My husband was often invited to dinner. JOHNSON, Idler, No. 47,¹⁾

We ought to ask him to dinner. MURRAY, s. v. ask, 21.

Her fear was lest they should stay to tea. CH. BRONTË, Shirley, I, Ch. VII, 144.

The guest stayed to dinner. LYTTON, Caxtons, III, Ch. VII, 79.

I have come to take Miss Yeoland and you out to dinner. BARONESS VON HUTTEN, What became of Pam, Ch. XIII, 90.

- Compare: i. The dinner was as hearty an affair as the breakfast. DICK., Pickw., Ch. XXVIII, 254.

The supper was ready laid. Ib., Ch. IX, 72.

The supper passed off without any attempt at a general conversation. Ib., Ch. VIII, 66.

On ordinary evenings the supper was served immediately after they came out of chapel. Mrs. WOOD, Orv. Col., Ch. I, 16.

¹⁾ MURRAY

I will go rest here awhile till the breakfast is ready. Westm. Gaz., No. 4949, 9a.

Throughout the greater part of the dinner my opinion of the young man rose steadily but surely. GRANT ALLEN, That Friend of Sylvia's.

Possibly they ate extremely little during the course of the dinner. KATH. CECIL THURSTON, John Chilcote, M. P., Ch. XXIII, 251.

- ii. He had made acquaintance with him at the mess by opening the conversation. THACK., Pend., I, Ch. XXIX, 314.

All during the dinner she was playing the coquette openly, for every one to see. W. BLACK., The New Prince Fortunatus, Ch. XIV.

I am told that it was through you that the boy was invited to the dinner to-night. Ib.

A curious instance of divided usage is:

Tea was served in a style no less polite than the dinner. DICK., Dombey, Ch. XII, 107.

Note I. When these nouns are used in a distinctly material sense, the article is not dropped.

The dinner was not so good as might have been expected.

II. Nor is the article ever wanting when the individualizing is expressed.

He sat down to the dinner that had been hoarding for him by the fire. DICK., *Christm. Car.*⁵, IV, 97.

- c) Before the names of the main divisions of a day, such as day, evening (eve, even, eventide), morning (morn) and night, when the reference is to a natural phenomenon or to an epoch. In either application the article seems to be regularly omitted after such prepositions as at, till (until), towards. The article is not dropped when distinctly a period is meant: consequently it is never absent after the prepositions during and in. It should also be noted that forenoon and afternoon, although frequently denoting an epoch, apparently, rarely lose the article. Compare We won't go home till morning with We won't go home till the afternoon.

- i. Night closed in. WASH. IRV., Sketch-Bk, Spectre Bridegr., 159.

The time was evening. Ib., Ch. VIII, 71.

They watched her breathing becoming more and more difficult, until evening deepened into night and until midnight was past. G. ELIOT, Scenes, I, Ch. VIII, 63.

When day broke, the enemy was no more to be seen. MACAULAY.¹⁾

He read the book calmly but earnestly in the warm air, till day declined. CH. READE, It is never too late to mend, I, Ch. VI, 82.

Evening came. Ib., Ch. V, 55.

It wanted but two hours of day. CH. KINGSLEY, Westw. Hol., Ch. XVII, 133b.

Gloomy day passed into gloomier night. G. GISSING, Eve Madeley's Ransom, Ch. I.

- ii. I slept undisturbed till morning. GOLDSM., Vicar.

In that equivocal kind of weather, when a fire becomes agreeable toward evening. WASH. IRV., Sketches, The Inn Kitchen, 150.

One afternoon it began to freeze, and the frost increased with evening. HARDY, Far from the Madding Crowd, Ch. III, 22.

Gabriel had watched the blue wood-smoke curling from the chimney with strange meditation. At evening he had fancifully traced it down the chimney to the spot of its origin. Ib., Ch. IV, 28.

¹⁾ FOELS.—KOCH, Wis. Gram., § 272.

H. POUTSMA, A Grammar of Late Modern English. II.

The Kaiser at that moment was engaged in sport by day and jollification at night at a country-seat in Austria. Rev. of Rev., CCXXVIII, 509.

We shall be miles away by morning. ETH. M. DELL, The Way of an Eagle, I, Ch. III, 37.

Boats were being got ready for landing parties towards evening. Times, No. 1814, 802d.

Compare: i. The day had been uncommonly sultry. WASH. IRV.¹⁾

The afternoon came on wet and somewhat misty. CH. BRONTË, Jane Eyre, Ch. V, 45.

He had ogled the last girl out of the last church, and the evening was beginning to fall. THACK., Sam. Titm., Ch. IV, 45.

There he stood gazing for some minutes lost in many thoughts while the night fell. Mrs. WARD, Marcella, I, 73.

It seemed as if the morning would never come. SWEET, Old Chapel.

The day was closing in. Westm. Gaz.

ii. What enabled Sir George Cary's illustrious ship, the Content, to fight single-handed, from seven in the morning till eleven at night? CH. KINGSLEY, Westw. Ho!, Ch. XX, 150a.

She stated that two men had attacked her during the night. Times, No. 1814, 787a.

Twice during the morning he drove to the entrance of Clifford's Inn. KATH. CECIL THURSTON, John Chilcote, M. P., Ch. VI, 61.

Note I. The article is also usually dropped when these words are modified by the name of a day, the reference being in this case to an epoch.

On Midsummer Night the emigrants get up an entertainment. FROUDE, Oceana, Ch. II, 41.

Late on Monday night there was a serious disturbance at the British Wagon Works, Swansea. Times, No. 1814, 787a.

II. The definite article, however, appears to be sometimes used when the morning, etc. referred to is distinctly associated in the speaker's or writer's mind with another. Compare e.

i. It was rather expected that he would pay a round of calls on the Monday morning to explain and apologize to the Cranford sense of propriety. Mrs. GASK., Cranf., Ch. II, 27.

Early on the Thursday morning Captain Bretton was roused from a short and uneasy sleep on the sofa in his study by the sound of voices on the staircase. EDNA LYALL, Knight Errant, Ch. XXXVIII, 375.

We reached Dresden on the Wednesday evening, and stayed there over the Sunday. JEROME, Three Men on the Bummel, Ch. VII, 133.

ii. It was Monday night. On Wednesday morning Monmouth was to die. MAC., Hist., II, Ch. V, 191. (Compare: On the Wednesday morning, at his particular request, Doctor Thomas Tenison . . . came to the Tower. Ib., 192.)

III. The article is also frequently dropped before such nouns and word-groups as break of day (= day-break), cock-crow(ing), dawn(ing), dead of night, dusk, midnight, noon, nightfall, peep of day, pudding-time, sundown, sunrise, sunset, twilight, etc., which, like the above, are used to denote a natural phenomenon or an epoch. After a preposition, which is practically the only connection in which the majority of these words and word-groups are found, the article seems to be suppressed almost regularly.

i. Noon approached, and after many adieux and promises to return, he tore himself away. DICK., Pickw., Ch. XVIII, 159.

¹⁾ FOELS.—KOCH, Wis. Gram., § 272.

As twilight deepened, we descended a valley, dark with wood, and long after night had overclouded the prospect, I heard a wild wind rushing amongst trees. CH. BRONTË, Jane Eyre, Ch. V, 45.

Afternoon had made way for twilight, and twilight for dusk. Westm. Gaz., No. 6347, 9a. (Note the distinction made between twilight and dusk.)

- ii. Here he sate on the banks of an unknown lake... and that at deep midnight. SCOTT, Wav., Ch. XVI, 60a.

The fire broke out at dead of night. CH. BRONTË, Jane Eyre, Ch. XXXXI, 524. (In this phrase the definite article occasionally appears, apparently, for the sake of the measure: At the dead of night a sweet vision I saw. THOM. CAMPB., The Soldier's Dream, II.)

I must be on horse before cock-crow. SCOTT, Mon., Ch. XXXIV, 369.

From cock-crow he had been travelling. SOUTHEY, Well St. Keyne.¹⁾

The character would vanish like a ghost at cock-crow. GOLDW. SMITH (Atl. Monthly, No. 268, 208).¹⁾

All this drudgery, from cock-crowing to starlight. EMERSON, Young American, II, 301.¹⁾

I went to bed at day-break. DICK., Cop., Ch. LV, 391a.

He only returned home at dusk. CH. BRONTË, Villette, Ch. XXI, 285.

Doubtless at high noon... the garden was a trite, trodden-down place enough. Ib., Ch. XII, 130.

The band halted at nightfall on this side the Pontine Marshes. LYTTON, Rienzi, III, Ch. I, 123.

Shortly after sunrise they crossed those fatal swamps which had already been partially drained by Boniface VIII. Ib., Ch. II, 123.

It would be better if you were to proceed onward to Fondi, where I will join you at sunset. Ib., 137.

He rode on until sundown. Books for the Bairns, No. 56, 31b.

Dick wanted to be there before dusk. W. MORRIS, News from Nowhere, Ch. XXVIII, 210.

Collation: the light repast or refection taken by the members of a monastery at close of day. MURRAY, s.v. collation, 8.

By early dawn this morning the multitude were already drifting towards the harbour end. Times, No. 1823, 973d.

- Compare: i. Meanwhile the noon was passed, and little impression was made on the iron gate. SCOTT, Mon., Ch. XXX, 329.

- ii. These 'thaumata', or wonders, last... till the boy goes to school, and then, somehow or other, the 'thaumata' vanish into thin air, like ghosts at the cockcrow. LYTTON, Caxtons, I, Ch. VI, 25.

Year after year he took part with excited fancy in the procession of the Magdalen choir boys to the College tower on May day, to sing at the sun-rising a hymn to the Trinity. ALICE S. GREEN, Introd. to GREEN, Short Hist., 5.

Percy asks us to ride out — to-night — at the dawn — well, we'll answer him. HAL. SUTCL., Pam the Fiddler, Ch. IV, 57.

- IV. The following is an exceptional application of midnight:

Then they fall to together in the midnight. THACK., Pend., I, Ch. IV, 51.

- d) before the names of the seasons: winter, spring, summer and autumn, and also before such nouns as Carnival, Lent, harvest, term.

- i. With such sentiments, upon a beautiful day in the latter end of harvest, the king mounted his horse. SCOTT, Quent. Durw., Ch. XXXVI, 446.

Winter came early and sudden that year. Mrs. CRAIK, John Hal., Ch. IV, 36.

¹⁾ MURRAY, s.v. cock-crow and cock-crowing.

Once he stopped to pick up the large brown fan of a horse-chestnut leaf. "It's pretty, isn't it? only it shows that autumn has come." Ib., Ch. I, 10. Carnival ends on the 5th of February. Eng. Rev., No. 58, 225.

- ii. The medical man of the House hoped he might rally in spring. THACK., Newc., II, Ch. XLII, 442.

There are few things that I enjoy so much as the rare invitations which I receive to spend a few days during term at one of the colleges in the University of Oxford. Westm. Gaz.

- Compare: i. The winter was gloomy at home as well as abroad. MCCARTHY, Short Hist., Ch. XI, 151.

As the summer drew on, she passed more of her time in the open air. HARDY, Far from the Madding Crowd, Ch. LVI, 459.

- ii. Bathsheba revived with the spring. Ib., LVI, 459. (Thus probably regularly after with.)

The general election will most probably take place in the autumn. Daily Mail.

I did come here last year, early in the fall. M. E. FRANCIS, Honesty, II, Ch. X.

The following quotations are typical illustrations of divided practice:

It shows that autumn has come... And how shall you live in the winter when there is no out-of-door work to be had. MRS. CRAIK, John Hal., Ch. I, 10.

Through the winter Ælfred girded himself for this new peril. At break of spring his army closed round the town. GREEN, Short Hist., Ch. I, § 5, 48.

The threats of the Montenegrins and Serbs are held in check by the approach of winter, and until the spring comes, they are not likely to make any serious move. Westm. Gaz.

The winter has been long. I am glad spring is coming. BAR. VON HUTTEN, What became of Pam, Ch. IX, 63.

- e) before the names of months, days and festivals. Epiphany, however, from its meaning, seems to stand regularly with the article. (24, c.)

He will return at Christmas.

His taxes are in arrear, quarter-day passes by, another quarter-day arrives. DICK., Sketches, I, 2a.

I did not go to the office till half an hour after opening time on Monday. THACK., Sam. Titm., Ch. IV, 41.

Late in October Pam caught her heel in a hole in the stair-carpet. BAR. VON HUTTEN, What became of Pam, Ch. XIV, 102.

Lord Mayor's Day was observed on Wednesday in London in the traditional fashion. Times.

It was the beginning of wheat-harvest, when I came to Dunster town. BLACKMORE, Lorna Doone, Ch. XXVII, 156.

Note. The definite article is not infrequently met with when the month, day or festival is distinctly associated in the speaker's or writer's mind with another. SWEET, N. E. Gr., § 2032; ELLINGER, Verm. Beitr., 26; TEN BRUGGENCATE, Taalstudie, VI, 26.

It would be easy to catch Will Wilson on his return from the Isle of Man, which he had planned should be on the Monday; and on the Tuesday all would be made clear. MRS. GASK., Mary Barton, Ch. XXIII, 239.

As it was, however, it (sc. the letter) reached Silverbridge on Sunday, and lay there till the Monday. TROL., Framl. Pars., Ch. V, 39. (Note the varied practice.)

On the Saturday Thompson died. HUGHES, Tom Brown, II, Ch. VI, 290. Thompson was buried on the Tuesday. Ib., 201.

16. When a noun is applied to a particular specimen of a conception, so that it partakes of the character of a significant proper name, we sometimes find the specializing definite article dropped.

This applies especially to:

a) nouns that are also used in address, which may be:

1) names of relationship:

"Come, come", says Western, "none of your maidenish airs; I know all; I assure you, sister hath told me all". FIELDING, Tom Jones, VI, Ch. VII, 94b.

If your own horses be ready, you may whip off with cousin, and I'll be bound that no soul here can budge a foot to follow you. GOLDSMITH, She Stoops, V, (224).

Father-in law has been calling me whelp and hound this half year. Ib., I, (174).

Aunt was always at law with her tenants. THACK., Sam. Titm., Ch. IX, 105.

Aunt and Mary used to walk gravely up and down the New Road. Ib., Ch. X, 120.

'There's father coming', cried the two young Cratchits. DICK., *Christm. Car.*⁵, III, 65.

Had it anything to do with father's making such a mommet (= blockhead) of himself in thik (= that) carriage this afternoon? HARDY, Tess, I, Ch. III, 22.

Papa will show you the two counties on the map. SCOTT.¹⁾

Note. It may here be observed that these nouns are usually preceded by a possessive pronoun, when the speaker is not related to the person spoken of in the way indicated by them.

"He (sc. Tiny Tim) was very light to carry", she (sc. Mrs. Cratchit) resumed, "... and his father loved him so... And there's your father at the door". DICK., *Christm. Car.*⁵, IV, 99.

'T was on this account that your father rode home in the vlee. HARDY, Tess, I, Ch. III, 22.

2) certain titles of courtesy, as used in the language of servants, especially:

Madam, now no longer substituted for the name of a lady entitled to be addressed as 'madam' (MURRAY), mistress being used instead, except in the language of shop-assistants.

i. Poor Harry can keep nothing quiet, and then there would be a pretty quarrel between madam and me! THACK., Virg., Ch. VI, 61.

When madam began to write, she gave us brief notices of Harry and his wife. Ib., Ch. LXXXV, 909.

ii. "I want a rose, please; a large pink rose"; — "Yes, madam; certainly, madam; I will get some one to attend to you immediately: "Miss Jones, madam requires a rose." The assistant stepped forward [etc.]. Westm. Gaz., No. 6311, 3c.

Master. i. * Master thought another fit of the gout was coming to make him a visit. SHER., Rivals, I, 1.

Master sent me over with the shay-cart to carry your luggage up to the house. DICK., Pickw., Ch. XXVIII, 248.

¹⁾ FOELS.-KOCH, Wiss. Gram., § 257.

Master says he can't eat no dinner. G. ELIOT, Scenes, I, Ch. VIII, 61.

 But tell us, Mr. Fag, how does young master? SHER., Riv., I, 1. (= Dutch de jongeheer.)

If young master will take a poor mariner's gift, there it is. CH. KINGSLEY, Westw. Ho!, Ch. I, 3b.

- ii. She come and took 'em away last night, but the master says they must be fetched soon. G. ELIOT, Scenes, I, Ch. VIII, 61.

Miss. We got acquainted with Miss while on a visit in Gloucestershire. SHER., Rivals, I, 1.

There was another person besides Miss at my aunt's house. THACK., Virg., Ch. LXXVIII, 825.

He came hither...to pay court to Miss. Id., Ch. LXXXIV, 895.

Mistress (Missis, Missus). i. He's in the dining-room, Sir, along with mistress. DICK., *Christm. Car.*⁵, V, 109.

"Missis is not at home," said the man. THACK., Newc., I, Ch. VII, 81.

Missis always turns off the gas at the main herself at half past ten. MRS. ALEX., A Life Interest, I, Ch. I, 20.

Master and Missis are going out to dinner. Id., 16.

- ii. I have spoke to Mr. Helder, friendly, an' he laughed, an' did me a picture of the missis that is as good as a coloured print. RUDY. KIPL., The Light that failed, Ch. V, 61.

The "missus" could not find it in her heart to bestow such a mark of affection upon him. Tit-bits.

BISHOP (reproving delinquent page): "Wretched boy! Who is it that sees and hears all we do, and before whom even I am but a crushed worm?" —

PAGE: "The missis, my lord." Punch.

Note. Also master and mistress have the possessive pronoun under the same circumstances as the names of relationship. In this case their use is not confined to the language of servants.

"Is your master at home, my dear?" said Scrooge to the girl. DICK., *Christm. Car.*⁵, V, 108.

Where is your mistress? KATH. CECIL. THURSTON, John Chilcote, M. P., Ch. XIII, 139.

- 3) certain names of professions, especially such as are held by domestic servants, the absence of the article expressing good-humoured familiarity.

cabby. i. She sprang out of the carriage before cabby could descend. MRS. ALEX., A Life Interest, I, Ch. I, 15.

- ii. Call the cabby up for my trunk and hat-box! All the Year Round, 1859, No. 34, 177.

coachman. Coachman comes out with his waybill. HUGHES, Tom Brown, I, Ch. IV, 74.

cook. i. You had better go down with Sarah into the kitchen; cook will take care of you. Sarah, my love, take him down to cook. MARRYAT, Jacob Faithful, Ch. II, 7b.

While he operated, the maids, and Buttons and cook...crowded round him. THACK., A Little Dinner at Timmins's, Ch. V, (325).

The second-floor arch in a London house... by which cook lurks down before daylight to scour her pots and pans in the kitchen; by which young master stealthily ascends..., down which miss comes rustling in fresh ribbons...for conquest and the ball. Id., Van. Fair, II, Ch. XXVI, 279.

Would you like to go and see if cook has got your dinner ready? Westm. Gaz.

- ii. For many days did the exhibition continue during which I was domiciled with the cook. MARRYAT, Jacob Faithful, Ch. II, 8b.

She put questions to him regarding baby and the cook's health. THACK., A Little Dinner at Timmins's, Ch. II, (313).

guard. i. Guard emerges from the tap. HUGHES, Tom Brown, I, Ch. IV, 74. Guard looks at him with a comical expression. Ib., 76.

ii. The guard is locking the hind boot. Ib., 75.

(h)ostler. i. Ostler, Boots and the Squire stand looking after them. Ib., 70.¹⁾ "Young gen'l'm'n, Rugby; three parcels, Leicester; hamper o'game, Rugby", answers Ostler. Ib., 69.

ii. Having ordered the Hostler to take Care of my Dog. ELLWOOD, Auto-biog., 20.¹⁾ head-waiter. "Tea or coffee, sir?" says head-waiter, coming round to Tom. HUGHES, Tom Brown, I, Ch. IV, 74.

nurse. i. There was room enough at Framley Court for baby and nurse. TROP., Framl. Pars, Ch. I, 7.

On opening the door she saw a well-ordered comfortable room, lit by the glow of a bright fire, nurse at her needlework beside the large table, and a neat nursemaid sitting on the floor showing a picture-book to a little boy... There was a pause, every one looked up, and then nurse slowly rose, exclaiming, "Law, Miss Marjory". Mr. ALEX., A Life Interest, I, Ch. I, 20. She makes nurse give us jam whenever we want it. BAR. VON HUTTEN, Pam, Ch. X, 54.

ii. The nurse said she was come to nuss (= nurse) Master Fitzroy, and knew her duty. THACK., A Little Dinner at Timmins's, Ch. VI, 327.

The omission of the article before other names of professions seems to be rare or obsolete. Thus in:

Lord keeper and lord treasurer were proposed (sc. at the club). SWIFT, Journ. to Stella, XXV.

Policeman said he'd call again towards evening. Mrs. GASK., Mary Barton, Ch. XXIII, 241.

Sportsman looks on approvingly, and orders a ditto for himself. HUGHES, Tom Brown, I, Ch. IV, 74.

- 4) certain plural nouns denoting the things with which a person is chiefly occupied, or for which he is conspicuous, such as boots, buttons, lamps, etc. STOF., Eng. Leesb., I, 143.

boots. i. Another (sc. of these worthies) buttoned on a pair of gaiters, with many execrations at Boots for not having cleaned his boots well. WASH. IRV., Bracebridge Hall (STOF., Eng. Leesb., I, 7).

Boots looks in and says [etc.]. HUGHES, Tom Brown, I, Ch. IV, 69. "You make use of my name", he added proudly — "Bob, boots at the Lion." LYTTON, Caxtons, V, Ch. I, 106.

ii. "Thank'ee, sir", said the Boots, and away he went. DICK., Pickw., Ch. II, 16.

He asked for the landlady, and missed the old Boots. THACK., Pend., I, Ch. XXVIII, 298.

In setting off the next morning, the Boots . . . good-naturedly informed me [etc.]. LYTTON, Caxtons, V, Ch. I, 106.

Buttons. Little Buttons bounced up to his mistress, said he was butler of the family. THACK., A little Dinner at Timmins's, Ch. VI.

The united strength of the establishment Butler, Footman, Coachman, Lady's maid, Housemaid and Buttons. CUTHBERT BEDE, Adventures of Mr. Verdant Green, I, 16.²⁾

¹⁾ MURRAY. ²⁾ HOPPE, Sup. Lex.

Compare the following quotation containing several denominations of the kind described above, all of them, however, with the definite article:

"I thought you were the King's taxes." "No!" said Mr. Winkle. "I did indeed," responded Bob Sawyer, "and I was just going to say that I wasn't at home, but if you'd leave a message, I'd be sure to give it to myself; for he don't know me; no more does the Lighting and Paving. I think the Church-rates guesses who I am, and I know the Water-works does, because I drew a tooth of his when I first came here." DICK., Pickw., Ch. XXXVIII, 349.

•The variable practice is strikingly exhibited in:

I tapped the barometer, and it jumped up and pointed to "very dry." The Boots stopped as he was passing, and said he expected, it meant to-morrow. I fancied that, maybe, it was thinking of the week before last, but Boots said, No, he thought not. JER., Three Men in a Boat, Ch. V, 52.

- 5) the noun baby: i. Mrs. Veneering does not expect that Mr. Twemlow can in nature care much for such insipid things as babies, but so old a friend must please to look at baby. DICK., Our Mut. Friend, I, Ch. II, 11. She put questions to him regarding baby. THACK., A Little Dinner at Timmins's, Ch. II, (313).

ii. The baby howled a great deal during the day. Id., Ch. VI, (327).

The usage is sometimes extended to terms of endearment.

What does little birdie say | In her nest at peep of day? | Let me fly, says little birdie [etc.]. TEN.

- b) the names of certain legislative bodies, such as Congregation, Congress, Convocation, Council, Government, Parliament.

Congregation, in the sense of "a general assembly of the members of a University, or of such of them as possess certain specified qualifications." MURRAY, s. v. 3b. The suppression seems to be practically regular.

This week Congregation has passed the preamble to the financial statute setting up an advisory and supervisory Council. Westm. Gaz., No. 5625, 2a.

Congress, in the sense of the Congress of the United States of America. The suppression is decidedly the rule.

- i. Congress is not wiser or better than Parliament. EMERSON, Eng. Traits, Result, 128b.

The president is responsible to the nation and to Congress. FROUDE, Oceana, Ch. XIII, 203.

Congress will not meet till December. Times.

As in every other crisis, Members of Congress are trimming to the political demagogues who shout the loudest. Id.

It is not easy to read a Roosevelt Message to Congress without using a bad word. Saturday Review.

- ii. The Congress shall assemble at least once in every year. Constitution, U. S., I, § 1.1)

The Congress mistrusted him. THACK., Virg., Ch. XCII, 983. (For the rest, apparently, regularly with the definite article suppressed in this novel.)

Convocation, in the sense of a) "in the Church of England: A provincial synod or assembly of the clergy, constituted by statute and called together to deliberate on ecclesiastical matters." MURRAY, s. v. 3;

1) MURRAY.

b) "in the English Universities: At Oxford and Durham: The great legislative assembly of the University, consisting of all qualified members of the degree of M. A.; also a meeting of this body (the earlier sense). In the University of London and the Royal University of Ireland: a body consisting of all registered graduates, having the power of discussing and expressing an opinion on any matter connected with the interests of the University, and of electing certain members of the Senate." Id., s. v. 4. In either meaning the suppression appears to be regular.

- i. As the head of the English Church, he (sc. the king) summons and dissolves Convocation, as the assembly of the clergy of the Church of England is called. ANNA BUCKLAND, Our Nat. Inst., 7.
Convocation is an ecclesiastical Parliament, summoned in each Province by the archbishops under the command of the King. Id., 69.
- ii. Every measure, before it reaches Convocation, must go through Congregation; and Congregation, as the Act finally passed, means the whole body of residents and next to nobody else. Sat. Rev., 1863, 300.¹⁾

I am sorry to see that even if the Resolution allowing an alternative language to be offered in place of Greek at Responsions is carried in Convocation, it is proposed that the Hebdomadal Board should decree that all Passmen, with the exception of certain classes not yet defined, should be forced to offer Greek at the First Public Examination. Westm. Gaz., No. 5466, 4c.

Last week Convocation accepted the compromise on the Greek question, whereby students taking honours in science and mathematics are exempted from compulsory Greek. Westm. Gaz., No. 5625, 2a, Council, when the reference is to a body assisting the governor of a Crown colony or dependency of Great Britain in an executive or legislative capacity, or in both.

Mr. Satyendra Sinha, who is appointed legal member of Council, is a lawyer of high repute and great practice. Westm. Gaz., No. 4961, 2a.

Government, in the sense of the English government. The suppression of the article is unusual.

- i. What changed his nature was the famine and the way in which Government behave in face of it. *Acad.*²⁾ Government must educate the poor man. EMERSON.
This he sent up to Government. HOGG, Life of Shelley, II, 210.
- ii. The Government have acted wisely in laying these important facts before the English people. Times.

Parliament, in the sense of the English Parliament. The article is mostly absent. In GREEN, A Short Hist. of the Engl. People, the article is, perhaps, as frequently used as dropped.

- i. Parliament will be opened by the Queen. BAIN, H. E. Gr., 19.
I wonder you don't go into Parliament. DICK., *Christm. Car.*⁵, I, 12.
- ii. I wonder whether it would be worth any gentleman's while now, to buy that observation (= observation) for the Papers; or the Parliament. Id., *Chimes*³, I, 13.
The Papers is full of observations as it is; and so's the Parliament. Id., 14.
On the 27th of November the Parliament reassembled. MAC., Wil. Pitt.
The Parliament itself rose and bowed to the vacant throne, when his name was mentioned. GREEN, Short Hist., Ch. VII, § 1, 350.
Above all, we see the Parliament destroyed, the business of the nation stopped, its finances thrown into confusion by one exercise of the power now claimed. Westm. Gaz., No. 5207, 1c.

1) MURRAY, s. v. congregation, 3b. 2) TEN BRUG., Taalst., X.

Note. When the word is distinctly understood to denote a period, the use of the article may be the rule.

For the early part of the Parliament the procedure has been to wait on the chapter of accidents, snap divisions [etc.]. Westm. Gaz., No. 6294, 2a.

17. The names of conceptions that are single in their kind are mostly found with the definite article, under the same conditions as in Dutch.

earth. And God saw that the wickedness of man was great in the earth. Bible, Gen., VI, 5.

Moses was very weak above all the men which were upon the face of the earth. Id., Num., XII, 3.

Ye are the salt of the earth. Id., Matth., V, 13.

ecliptic. The path which the earth traverses in its revolution around the sun, is called the ecliptic. Cassell's Conc. Cycl.

sea. Soon the sea became rough and chopping. CH. KINGSLEY, Westw. Ho!, Ch. XIX, 139b.

Supremacy on the sea is vital to this country. Westm. Gaz.

So much is at stake for us in keeping the command of the sea. Ib., No. 4925, 4c.

sun. See under ecliptic.

universe. The greatest object in the universe is a good man struggling with adversity. GOLDSM., Vicar.

Peggotty told me it was well-known that Yarmouth was, upon the whole, the finest place in the universe. DICK., Cop., Ch. XIII, 15a.

world. Ye are the light of the world. Bible, Matth., V, 14.

Note I. Sometimes the article is dropped for the sake of the metre.

Last a heathen horde, | Reddening the sun with smoke and earth with blood ... brake on him. TEN., Coming of Arthur, 37.

II. For the common suppression of the definite article before earth, chiefly after the prepositions of, and on, and before sea, chiefly after the preposition at, by and to, see 63.

18. The definite article is often dropped after all and both, even if the noun they modify is accompanied by a specializing modifier.

all. i. They had given him an opportunity of displaying before the eyes of all nations and all ages some qualities which irresistibly call forth the admiration and love of mankind. MAC., Hist., I, Ch. I, 64.

Of all modern English poets Tennyson has most readers. WALLACE, Gen. Instr. to Ten.'s, Princ., 10.

An inspector came up and asked to see all tickets. Westm. Gaz., No. 5024, 7b.

I did more work in half an hour than he had done all day. JEROME, Idle Thoughts, VI, 75.

ii. The omnibus is in favour with all classes of the community. GÜNT., Leerb., I, 74.

All parties in the Reichstag repudiated the Kaiser's imputation of German unfriendliness to England. Rev. of Rev., CCXXVIII, 509.

All news of the day will be found in 6.30 Final Edition of the Westminster Gazette presented in the most readable form. Westm. Gaz., No. 5277, 13.

This accounts for the universal sigh with which the passing of Mr. Balfour has been received by all parties and sections of the House of Commons. T. P.'s Weekly, No. 471, 617b.

Compare: i. All the five were sentenced to death. MCCARTHY, Short Hist., Ch. XXII, 317.

If the crowns of all the kingdoms were laid at my feet in exchange for my books, I would spurn them all. Westm. Gaz. (after FÉNÉLON).

ii. * These ruffings and patchings will only make us hated by all the wives of our neighbours. GOLDSM., Vicar.¹⁾

Who were the supporters of the Irish people in this demand? All the forces of democracy in this country. Times, No. 1815, 820c.

 Now the man Moses was very meek, above all the men which were upon the face of the earth. Bible, Numbers, XII, 3.

both. i. Both young ladies applied themselves to tending Mr. Pecksniff's wounds in the back parlour. Dick., Chuz., Ch. I, 6b.

She spake for a few minutes to both children. Mrs. ALEX., A Life Int., I, Ch. I, 21.

ii. Both sons of my neighbour over the way have made their fortune in Australia.

Compare: i. Both the prisoners were sent to the Tower by water. MAC.¹⁾ The force of his character . . . enabled him to bid defiance to both the extreme parties. Id., Hist., I, Ch. I, 49.

ii. * Both the Houses of Parliament gave a hearty assent to the measure.

 Both the poets you mention have equally contributed to introduce a false taste into their respective countries. GOLDSM., Vicar.¹⁾

In natural courage and intelligence both the nations which now became connected with England, ranked high. MAC., Hist., I, Ch. I, 64.

19. Common is also the suppression of the definite article before certain nouns modified by last or next, when an epoch is meant.

a) When the modifier is last, the suppression is regular in case the epoch referred to is that immediately preceding the moment of speaking or writing.

i. Last noon beheld them full of lusty life, | Last eve in Beauty's circle proudly gay. BYRON, Child Har., III, XXVIII.

Your conduct of last evening was of a description which no gentleman could endure. Dick., Pickw., Ch. II, 16.

It was only last holidays he had in a manner robbed the great apple-tree. THACK., Pend., I, Ch. II, 31.

All the servants . . . rose up on his entrance and bowed or curtsied to him. They never used to do so last holidays. Ib.

He tamed two snakes last half. HUGHES, Tom. Brown, II, Ch. III, 234.

I was there late last evening. Mrs. ALEX., For his Sake, I, Ch. X, 162.

No such procession was allowed in France even under the monarchy of last century. Rev. of Rev. CCXXVI, 310b.

The following passage . . . is one of the finest pieces of English written last century. Ib., CCXXXI, 277a.

At last Election the Liberal-Labour men were returned by a majority of about 6.000. Rev. of Rev., CCXXVI, 310b.

Last tour everybody was talking about it. Times, No. 1823, 981d.

Thus also in: Because I thought you brave, night before last, was no reason why I should have thought you a coward yesterday. MAR. CRAWF., Kath. Land., II, Ch. XV, 279. (More usual: the night before last.)

ii. Were I but sure the Lady Isabelle were fit for travel after the horrors of the last night, we would not increase the offence by remaining here an instant longer. SCOTT, Quent. Durw., Ch. XXIII, 293.

¹⁾ FOELS-KOCH, Wis. Gram., § 284.

I have lived in Avignon with my aunt until the last year. MAY WYNNE, When Terror ruled, Ch. I, 14.

Note I. The use of these phrases to denote an epoch immediately preceding a moment of the past, is unusual and seems improper. In this case the use of the article may be more common. For instances see also Ch. XXX, 11.

i. They went down to the landing-place, where they had left their goods last night. DICK., Chuz., Ch. XXIII, 195a.

ii. He made a scanty breakfast on the remains of the last night's provisions. WASH. IRV., Dolf. Heyl. (STOF., Handl., I, 123).

She . . . left me sitting in the neighbouring chamber, the scene of the last night's quarrel. THACK., Newc., II, Ch. XLII, 437.

II. In the following quotation the suppression of the article is exceptional, and due to an excessive desire of shortness:

KITE. But, sir, you have got a recruit here that you little think of. — PLUME. Who? — KITE. One that you beat up for last time you were in the country. FARQUHAR, Recruiting Officer, I, 1, (254).

b) When the modifier is next, the suppression is met with chiefly in adverbial adjuncts and adnominal genitives or their periphrastic equivalents. In these it is regular when the reference is to an epoch immediately succeeding the moment of speaking or writing. Usage is divided in denoting an epoch following upon a moment in the past. Ch. XXX, 12.

i. Next week (fortnight, quarter, half, year, century) matters will have greatly improved.

Which day shall we say? Monday in next week? KATH. CECIL THURSTON, John Chilcote, M. P., Ch. XX, 219.

They promise all sorts of dreadful deeds next Session, if the Home Rule Bill goes through. Westm. Gaz., No. 6305, 3b.

There ought to be a General Election before next Session. Westm. Gaz., No. 6329, 2a.

In the Weekly Times of next week a new serial will be begun.

Further details will be found in next week's issue.

ii. * 't Was the next day my aunt found the matter out. SHER., Riv., I, 2, (217). About the middle of the next day . . . a sudden noise below seemed to speak the whole house in confusion. JANE AUSTEN, Pride and Prej., Ch. XXVIII, 159.

That day in private they went into the thing together, and saw that some roguery was being played. The next day it was all out, and ruin stared them in the face. Mrs. WOOD, Orv. Col., Ch. III, 50.

The next morning Mr. Eden visited some of the poorest people in the parish. CH. READE, It is never too late to mend, I, Ch. VII, 83.

The next morning little Capitaine Crépín came back in a great state of excitement. W. BLACK, The New Prince Fortun., Ch. XIV.

 He was early at the office next morning. DICK., Christm. Car. 5, V, 109. Susan was up betimes next day. CH. READE, It is never too late to mend, Ch. XVIII, 244.

Note. Next sometimes occasions the dropping of the definite article also before other nouns than such as express time. Thus:

a) regularly before door, as in:

Trying to hide himself, behind the girl from next-door but one. DICK., Christm. Car. 5, II, 45.

The sound appeared as if it was in our house instead of next-door.
MARRYAT, Olla Podrida.

β) exceptionally in:

You'll cross a lane after next field. HUGHES, Tom Brown.¹⁾

20. The definite article is often dropped also before some other superlatives:

a) It is mostly omitted before the indefinite numeral most. ELLINGER, Verm. Beitr., 27. Sometimes the dropping is attended by a change of meaning: compare He has eaten most apples with He has eaten the most apples. In the first sentence there is a comparison of the apples that have been eaten and those that have been left. In the second there is a comparison of two or more persons as to the number of apples that each has eaten. But, as the following quotations show, the article is often dropped where, according to the principle underlying the distinction between the two above sentences, it ought to be used. In not a few cases the principle cannot be applied at all.

1) The article is not uncommon before the conjoint most.

i. This was the part of his life on which he afterwards looked back with most pride. MAC., Lord Clive, (530a).

Like most writing which is at once very good and very laboured, Junius appears to most advantage in quotations. LECKY, Hist. of Eng., III, 236.²⁾

He said that he could persuade most men of most things and himself of almost anything. Times.

But, if the question is who in his own time, or indeed in any other, gave the world most harmless amusement, there will be but one answer. Id., No. 1832, 111d.

In the production of most vowels the tongue is convex to the palate. JONES, Pron. of Eng., § 20.

ii. What a troublesome world this is, when one has the most right to expect it to be as agreeable as possible. DICK., Cop., Ch. IV, 22b.

It is those who injure women, who get the most kindness from them. THACK., Van. Fair, II, Ch. XV, 158.

Perhaps it was the hardest task of all which Laura had to go through in this matter: and the one which gave her the most pain. Id., Pend., I, Ch. XXVII, 295.

I like to talk with the man who can drink the most beer. Id., I, Ch. XXX, 317.

As for the question of drink, the races that produce the most effect on the world are those that consume the most meat and the most alcohol. MAR. CRAWF., Kath. Laud., II, Ch. X, 181.

Ask the beggar whom he gets the most pence from. LYTTON, Night and Morn., 136.

Which of our kings had the most children? Notes and Queries.

The women who work the most mischief in civilised communities, are supreme egoists. MRS. BELLOC LOWNDES, Jane Oglander, Ch. VIII, 127.

Note the change of meaning which the omission of the definite article in the following quotation would entail:

¹⁾ SATTLER, E. S., XXXI, 341.

²⁾ Id., 345.

The religious belief of the most civilised nations, and the rude traditions of the roughest savages, alike number it (sc. the delight of meeting at Christmas) among the first joys of a future condition of existence. DICK., Pickw., Ch. XXVIII.

- 2) The article is less common before the absolute most than before the conjoint. (Ch. XXVIII, 11.)

i. I lose most of my money, if I marry without my aunt's consent till of age. SHERIDAN, Rivals, I, 2, (217).

Most of the company lounged out one by one to the bar-room in the next block. DICK., Chuz., Ch. XVI, 141b.

He sat most of the evening whistling and talking with Roundhand on the verandah. THACK., Sam. Titm., Ch. IV, 43.

It was four hundred acres, all arable and most of it poor sour land. CH. READE, It is never too late to mend, I, Ch. I, 2.

Most of the assembly were dissolved in tears. MOTLEY, Rise, I, Ch. II, 58.

Most of the work in these departments is done by men especially retained for this purpose. Good Words, 1885 (STOF., Leesb., I, 94).

Miss Wooler's pupils... were most of them daughters of well-to-do families in the neighbourhood. MISS FLORA MASSON, The Brontës, Ch. V, 28.

- ii. The most of them (sc. his followers) answered "There is no contravening that." SCOTT, Mon., Ch. XXXV, 376.

There you must spend the most of your time. JANE AUSTEN, North. Abbey, Ch. XXX, 233.

The most of my patrons are boys. STEVENSON, New Arabian Nights, 30. I believe they (sc. the Jews) have the most of it (sc. your money) already.

TROL., Barch. Tow., Ch. XV, 118.

The millionaire must be regarded as the working bee, the most of whose golden store must at his death be appropriated by the community. Rev. of Rev., CCV, 28.

'Heart' is used in many compounds, the most of which need no special explanation. WEBST., i. v. heart.

'Fellow' is often used in composition, indicating an associate or sometimes equality: as 'fellow-student'. The most of these are self-explaining. Id., s. v. fellow.

You have a great deal more than the most of your fellow-creatures have. Mrs OLIPHANT.¹⁾

He (sc. Quiller-Couch) believed that the most of them (sc. the revisers of the Old Testament) could wonderfully improve 'the talent of the ear', as he would call it. Westm. Gaz., No. 6240, 8d.

- 3) Usage seems to be about equally divided before the substantive most, which is generally used of things, rarely of persons.

i. * Those who know most of Sir Thomas. TROL.²⁾

I think I have done most by sea. LADY BARKER, Lett. 141.²⁾

 He is more generously equipped in the matter than most. ETHEL M. DELL, The Way of an Eagle, II, Ch. XII, 94.

- ii. * They who know the most | Must mourn the deepest o'er the fatal truth, | The Tree of Knowledge is not that of Life. BYRON, Manfred, I, 1.

It was Mrs. Dibble who could tell the most. MISS BURNETT, Little Lord, 240. Of all our dramatists Shakespeare loses the most by a dumb-show performance. Westm. Gaz., No. 6353, 7a.

 Sunk... | Too deep for the most to discern. M. ARNOLD, Youth of Nature, 71.³⁾

1) TEN BRUG., Taalst., VI. 2) SATTLER, E. S., XXXI, 343.

3) MURRAY, s. v. most, A, II, 7, b.

To the most, indeed, he had become not so much a Man as a Thing. CARL., Sart. Res. Ch. III, 11.

To the Editor of these sheets, as to a young enthusiastic Englishman, however unworthy, Teufelsdröckh opened himself perhaps more than to the most. Ib., 13.

- 4) Some cases call for special mention. The indefinite article is never or hardly ever dropped:

- a) when most is modified by by far.

As pre- (præ-) and pro- are great Latin prefixes, it follows that by far the most of the words in this section are of Latin origin MURRAY, Pref. Note to N. E. D., premisal — prophesier.

- β) when most is modified by an adnominal clause.

The rat is almost unteachable; the most that can be taught him being attachment to the person. All the Year Round, 1883, July, 42a.

This is really the most that I can concede. MURRAY, s.v. most A, II, 5.

The most that can be hoped for, is [etc.]. FOWLER, Concise Oxford Dict., Pref.

Note the idiom in: If she knows her letters, it's the most she does. DICK., Our Mut. Friend, I, Ch. III, 27. (= Dutch: zal het mooi zijn.)

- γ) in the phrase to make the most of.

We have not made the most of our victories. SWIFT, Conduct of the Allies, Pref., (421a).

How to make the most of her beauty. GAY, Beggar's Opera, I, 4.

Every pretext for physical recreation was seized and made the most of. CH. BRONTË, Villetta, Ch. XIV, 156.

Let his enemies make the most of it. DICK., Pickw., Ch. I, 3.

We cannot complain if Protectionist writers and speakers make the most of this plum. Westm. Gaz., No. 5543, 1c.

- δ) in the phrase for the most part in the sense of for the greater part. Ch. XXX, 9.

- i. His neighbours are bad for the most part. THACK., Pend., I, Ch. XVIII, 182.

Reviews of books... are for the most part done by outsiders. Good Words (STOF., Leesb., I, 94).

- ii. In Germany as elsewhere, the ninety-and-nine Public Men can for most part be but mute train-bearers to the hundredth. CARL., Sart. Res., Ch. III, 16.

Note I. When not preceded by for, most part seems to stand mostly without the article. The article is regularly dropped before this phrase used adverbially.

- i. * I went and took a view of most part of Hungary. S. L. tr. Fryke's Voy. E. Ind., 2.1)

I was puzzled to bequeath most part of my clothes... to Lorna. BLACKM., Lorna Doone, Ch. XXXVII, 217.

 Mere resin and noise most part. CARLYLE, French Rev., I, 109. 2) Old official gentlemen, military most part. Id., Fred. 2)

His nature was most part a cold one. E. FITZ GERALD. 2)

- ii. My dear little girl was, thank God, unable to understand the most part of their ribaldry. THACK., Sam. Titm., Ch. XII, 158.

1) MURRAY, s.v. most, A, 1, c.

2) SATTLER, E. S., XXXI, 346.

Some few of the younger grovelled at his knees, and kissed his feet, . . . but the most part kept a stolid indifference. CH. KINGSLEY, Westw. Hol., Ch. XXV, 184b.

II. Before most when equivalent to most part, the article seems to be dropped regularly.

It had rained most of October, but November was, though dark, fairly dry. BARONESS VON HUTTEN, What became of Pam. Ch. XIV, 102.

Compare with the above: The personal charms which Tess could boast of were in main part her mother's gifts. HARDY, Tess, I, Ch. III, 21.

- b) What has been said of most most probably applies, in the main, also to least when used as an indefinite numeral. The evidence to hand at the moment of writing is, however, too scanty to justify the drawing of any definite conclusions.

conjunct. i. He showed least mercy to those who had forsaken him. I. SCHMIDT, Eng. Gram., § 223.

Of the well-defined vowels that which is articulated with least effort is [a]. RIPPMMANN, Sounds of Spok. Eng., § 37.

- ii. The fewest words will probably do the least harm in the long run. H. B. MAYOR, The Fallacy of the Elder Brother (Nineteenth Cent., No. 393, 813).

Of all people in the world the English have the least sense of the beauty of literature. OSCAR WILDE, The Pict. of Dor. Gray Ch. IV, 62.

absolute. i. Those who have most virtue in their mouths have least of it in their bosoms. GOLDSMITH, She Stoops to Conquer, II, (190).

- ii. At last it was the turn of the good old-fashioned dance which has the least of variety and the most of merriment in it. G. ELIOT, Mill, VI, Ch. X, 407.

substantive. i. The truly modest and stout say least and are least exceptions. WYCH., The Plain Dealer, II, 1.

The few who are wealthy . . . are the ones who have least to fear. Lit. World 1892, 377a.

- ii. Those who know the least, obey the best. G. FARQUHAR, The Recruiting Officer, IV, 1, (307).

The least said the soonest mended. MARRYAT, Pirate, V. (In this proverb the article is mostly suppressed before both superlatives.)

We, of all the peoples, have the most to lose and the least to gain by war. Eng. Rev., No. 49, 151.

Note. Least never loses the article:

- a) when in negative, hypothetical or interrogative contexts it has the meaning of any however small. (Ch. XL, 18, Obs. IV). In this function it approaches, however, distinctly to an ordinary adjective. (Ch. XXX, 8, s. v. least, a.)

Fire-escape intended to be always ready without the least preparation. II. Catal., Gt. Exhib., 330.¹⁾

I visited all the scenes that were in the least degree associated with Winnie, TH. WARFS DUNTON, Aylwin, XIV, Ch. I, 386.

Have you the least idea of what they are talking about? BERN. SHAW, Getting Married, (241).

- β) in the phrase to say the least (of it).

We hold the moral law to be as much, to say the least of it, the appointment of God as any natural law. McCOSH, Div. Govt., II, ii, 197.¹⁾

¹⁾ MURRAY.

γ) when modified by possible:

"And what will you have for dinner, mem?" — "Oh, the least possible!"
AGN. & EG. CASTLE, Diam. cut Paste, III, Ch. I, 239.

They only wish to do the least possible that will satisfy Wales. Westm. Gaz., No. 6147, 7a.

c) It may reasonably be assumed that fewest exhibits, in the main, the same practice as least as regards the use of the article. Anything like adequate documentary evidence is not, however, available at the moment of going to press.

Of all my acquaintance he has fewest friends. I. SCHMIDT, Eng. Gram., § 223.

Those who have fewest children have fewest cares. SCOTT, Mon., Ch. II, 61.
The present Prime Minister has set an admirable example of forcible, condensed speaking, but he has few imitators, and perhaps fewest on the front benches. Westm. Gaz., No. 5549, 2a.

d) The superlative first often loses the definite article in the adverbial phrase the first thing (place), especially in colloquial language, in which unimportant words are often suppressed for the sake of brevity.

i. Where have you been to, first place? MRS. GASK., Mary Barton, Ch. XII, 133.

What were you fretting about, first place? Ib., Ch. V, 42.

You must pay him first thing. G. ELIOT, Mill, III, Ch. IV, 203.

I meant to have a few words with you on this subject first thing. MRS. WARD, Sir George Tres., III, Ch. XXI, 177a.

You can order a fly first thing, and bring me my breakfast early. Ib., I, Ch. II, 14a.

ii. He must go there the first thing the next day. EDNA LYALL, Hardy Norse., Ch. X, 83.

Go down, the first thing to-morrow, by the six o'clock train. G. MEREDITH, Ord. of Rich. Fev., Ch. LXXI, 251.

I shall go to get news of him, the first thing to-morrow morning. FLOR. MARRYAT, A Beautiful Soul, 18.

Compare: It's a jolly time; a goal kicked by us first day. HUGHES, Tom Brown, I, Ch. VI, 115.

They had done work for first lesson. *Ib.*¹⁾

e) Occasionally we find the article dropped also before other superlatives than the above, mostly as it seems, for the sake of metre or rhythm. Instances are especially frequent in earlier English. Compare 28, a, 3, a, Note II; 64, c; and see DUBISLAW, Beitr., § 9, ELLINGER, Verm. Beitr., 37; EINENKEL, Streifz., 28; FRANZ, Shak. Gram., § 267.

So longest way shall have the longest moans. Rich. II, V, I, 90.

Best safety lies in fear. Hamlet, I, 3, 41.

But grace abus'd brings forth the foulest deeds, | As richest soil the most luxuriant weeds. COWPER.¹⁾

Blighting my life in best of its career. Byron, Lam. of Tasso, IV, 21.

Thus also chief sometimes loses the article:

Caius Marcius is chief enemy to the people. Coriol., I, I, 8.

O Son, in whom my soul hath chief delight. Milt., Par. Lost, III, 168

Stapylton has chief control of its finances. Bar. Orczy, The Case of Miss Elliott, Ch. II, 18.

¹⁾ SATTLER, E. S., XXXI, 341.

H. POUTSMA, A Grammar of Late Modern English. II.

21. The definite article is often suppressed before one, when used as the correlative of the other, another, other or of another one. See Ch. XL, 155-158, and compare also TEN BRUG., Taalst., VI, 28.

a) When it is the correlative of the other (Ch. XL, 155, a).

1) Suppression is practically regular:

a) when the two words are connected by or or nor.

i. * When the question is settled one way or the other, I don't believe Mr. Brough will take any further notice of me. THACK., Sam. Titm., Ch. VII, 81.

My Lady Warrington ... had the faith and health of the servants' hall in keeping. Heaven can tell whether she knew how to doctor them rightly: but, was it pill or doctrine, she administered one or the other with equal belief in her authority. Id., Virg., Ch. XLV, 465.

They want to eat their cake and have it — to escape conscription and cut down the Navy — It cannot be done, gentlemen! It is one or the other, as Cobden saw fifty years ago. Rev. of Rev., CCXVIII, 127a.

The overwhelming majority of the books noted are so prejudiced on one side or the other that they are quite negligible. Westm. Gaz., No. 6147, 11b.

 The tide of battle seemed to flow now toward the southern, now toward the northern extremity of the lists, as the one or the other party prevailed. SCOTT, Ivanhoe, Ch. XII, 123.

ii. It is but two months since you were sighing at her feet — making poems to her — placing them in hollow trees by the river-side. I knew all. I watched you — that is, she showed them to me. Neither one nor the other was in earnest, perhaps; but it is too soon now, Arthur to begin a new attachment. THACK., Pend., I, Ch. XXVII, 294.

β) when the reference is indefinite.

I don't know that he has accused me of stealing Van den Bosch's spoons and tankards when we dine there, or of robbing on the highway. But for one reason or the other he has chosen to be jealous of me. THACK., Virg., Ch. LXX, 743. (The one ... the other would be equivalent to the former ... the latter. See 2, a.) Sometimes they (sc. these chieftains) hired themselves to one state to protect it against the other. LYTON, Rienzi, Ch. IV, 103.

γ) when the two words, connected by and, form a kind of unit standing for each or both.

When Laura appeared blushing and happy, as she hung on Pen's arm, the Major gave a shaky hand to one and the other. THACK., Pend., II, Ch. XXXVIII, 399.

She had taken unfair advantage of him, as her brother had at play. They were his own flesh and blood, and they ought to have spared him. Instead, one and the other had made a prey of him. Id., Virg., Ch. XLVIII, 496.

Thus also the definite article is regularly dropped in the phrase: one way and the other = to and fro.

To flounce = to throw the limbs and body one way and the other. WEBST., Dict.

To wag = to move one way and the other with quick turns. Ib.

Note also the regular absence of the definite article in the saying: six of one and half-a-dozen of the other (= Dutch oud lood om oud ijzer.)

Mostly they come for skill — or idleness. Six of one, and half-a-dozen of the other. DICK., Bleak House, Ch. XXIV, 211.

δ) when the two words are used in reciprocal relation, an intervening preposition having occasioned the substitution of the other for another. (Ch. XL, 156, c, Obs. III.)

i. They walked one behind the other. CONAN DOYLE, Refugees, 317.
We depended one upon the other. BESANT, All Sorts and Cond. of Men, Ch. XVI, 126.

ii. Here the two bodies are inimical the one to the other. Athen., No. 4447, 61c.

2) The article seems to be almost regularly retained before one:

α) when the word-group is used substantively and equivalent to the former . . . the latter.

i. The First Minister of State has not so much business in public as a wise man has in private; if the one have little leisure to be alone, the other has little leisure to be in company. COWLEY, Essays, Of Solitude, 50.
The one vanquished by a single blow, the other by efforts successively repeated. GOLDSM., Vic., Ch. I.

Mr. Bumble had a great idea of his oratorical powers and his importance. He had displayed the one, and vindicated the other. DICK., Ol. Twist, Ch. II, 24.

ii. Warfare and barter in the market came, one as easily as the other, to those who tilled the stormy dale. HAL. SUTCL., Pam the Fiddler, Ch. VI, 7b.

β) in the conjunctive expressions on the one hand . . . on the other, in the one case . . . in the other. (Ch. X, 10.)

i. The acute Roman took care, on the one hand, how he betrayed to the Knight more than he yet knew, or he disgusted him by apparent reserve on the other. LYTTON, Rienzi, II, Ch. IV, 105.

ii. * In the one case there is no limit to the power of the party to pass any legislation in the teeth of any popular movement; in the other the party is to be brought to a full-stop, unless it will submit itself to a plebiscite. Westm. Gaz.

 Guarded by his own conscience on one hand, on the other, by the remoteness of the hamlet, . . . he had maintained the old decencies of worship here. HAL. SUTCL., Pam the Fiddler, Ch. IV, 56.

3) For the rest usage is divided, but there seems to be a distinct tendency to suppress the article.

i. One hand may wash the other, but both the face. Proverb.

You look at it, Arabin, from one side only; I can look at it from the other. TROL., Framl. Pars, Ch. XXXVI, 353.

Of the two rival claimants, one did homage to Philip and the other to Edward. GREEN, Short Hist.

There are two drawers to my table; in one I put my copy-books, in the other my letters. GÜNT., Leerb. der Eng. Taal.

The Commissaire plumped down into the chair, and stared from one to the other of us. CON. DOYLE, Sherl. Holm., The Blue Carbuncle.

ii. They (sc. the twins) were both so exactly alike, that it was impossible to distinguish the one from the other. LAMB., Tales, Com. of Er., 212.

The product of the first year, great or small, shall be divided amongst us. You the one half, I and my men the other half. LYTTON, Rienzi, II, Ch. IV, 105.

The garden was screened by old moss-grown paling, from the neighbouring garden on the one side, and a lane on the other. Id., Night and Morning, 155.

Captain de Catinet had hardly vanished through the one door, before the other was thrown open by Madlle Nanon. CON. DOYLE, Refugees, 85.

- b) When one is the correlative of another (Ch. XL, 156), of other (Ch. XL, 157), or of another one (Ch. XL, 158), it regularly stands without the article.

i. One man must not look at a horse, while another may leap over the hedge. MRS. WOOD, Orv. Col., Ch. V, 76.

One good turn deserves another. PUNCH, 1894, 155.

ii. He tried to reassure himself with an old and favourite maxim of his, that one way or other all would turn out for the best. WASH. IRVING, Dolf Heyl. (STOF., Handl., I, 124).

The longer it goes on, the nearer it must be to a settlement one way or other. DICK., Bleak House, Ch. XIV, 112.

iii. One after one the men got up and bustled out. HALL CAINE, Deemster, Ch. XXIV, 170.

One said this and one said that. BLACKMORE, Lorna Doone, Ch. XXXVI, 213.

22. Partly contrary to ordinary Dutch practice, the definite article stands before nouns modified by such participial adjectives as (afore)said), before-mentioned, etc.

The said face indicated an independent dignity. MRS. CRAIK, John Hal., Ch. X, 109.

Annual subscriptions, which must be prepaid, are received to the under-mentioned periodicals. Times, Adv.

THE ARTICLE BEFORE PROPER NOUNS.

23. Proper nouns in their primary and ordinary application stand without either article.

As in Dutch, proper nouns may assume the character of class-nouns, and, like the latter, take the definite or indefinite article. In their altered application they admit of being used in the plural.

i. The lighter, which might have been compared to another garden of Eden, of which my mother was the Eve, and my father the Adam to consort with, was entered by this serpent, who tempted her. MARRYAT, Jacob Faithful, Ch. I, 3a.

ii. He is a plain John Bull, and has no relish for frippery and nicknacks. WASH. IRV., Sketch-Bk., John Bull, 309.

The lofty alliance had converted the once gentle and dreamy Rose into a very Roxana. CH. KINGSLEY, Westw. Ho! Ch. XIX, 146b.

iii. A supposition at which the two young Cratchits became livid. CHRISTM. CAR., III, 68.

Note in this connection the placing of a before names of persons used as war-cries. This a is now mostly treated as the indefinite article, but is in reality the representative of the obsolete interjection a, which is a dialect form of o and ah. See MURRAY, s.v. A, interjection. DUBISLAW (Beit. zur hist. Synt. des Eng., § 11) explains this a as a survival of the French preposition à.

A Clifford! a Clifford! we'll follow the king and Clifford. Henry VI, B, IV, 8, 52.

"A Hubert! a Hubert!" shouted the populace. SCOTT, Ivanhoe, Ch. XII., 137.

"A Colonna! a Colonna!" "An Orsini! an Orsini!" were shouts loudly and fiercely interchanged. LYTTON, Rienzi, I, Ch. I, 14.

The little town was in an uproar with men running to and fro, and shouting "A Monmouth! a Monmouth! the Protestant religion!" MAC., Hist., II, Ch. V, 142. Such as had possessed themselves of pikes in the city waved pennons in the air and cried: "A Roy! a Roy of Calverton". MAX PEMBERTON, Crown the king, Ch. XVIII, 234.

They were sore weary, laggards in hope, but still they cried: "A Wyat! a Wyat". Ib., 233.

24. Many proper names are distinctly significant, and are, consequently, more or less regularly preceded by the definite article.

The function of the article is twofold, i. e. it suggests a specializing or individualizing element, as in the Channel (= the Channel between England and France) or it indicates pre-eminence as in the Book (= the best book or the Bible). Cf. 5. a) and c). This difference is not however, here insisted on, as being of no importance for any practical purpose.

The following groups of significant proper names may be distinguished.

- a) names of persons and deities: the Devil, the Father, the Lord, the Redeemer, the Saviour, the Virgin, the Speaker, etc.
- b) names of localities: the Channel, the Exchange, the Levant, the Mall, the Mint, the Peak, the Poultry, the Strand, the Tower, etc.
- c) names of institutions and social or political events: the Inquisition, the Synod, the Reformation, the Restoration, the Revolution, etc.

Thus also the Epiphany or the manifestation (sc. of the infant Jesus to the Gentiles in the persons of the Magi), chiefly used as the name of a church festival, also called Twelfth Night.

- d) names of books and other publications: the Bible, the Book, the Standard, the Times, the Globe, etc.

A little illustration must suffice:

book. Swear upon the Book | Not to reveal it, till you see me dead. TEN., Enoch Arden, 834.

With the coming of the new year a minor improvement has been made in the way of administering the oath in the courts. No longer is it necessary to kiss the Book. Westm. Gaz., No. 5201, 2b.

Epiphany. While December 25 came to be universally observed as the day of Nativity, the feast of January 6, twelve days after, was retained as the Epiphany. Harmsw. Enc., s.v. Epiphany. (The absence of the article before nativity seems to be exceptional.)

The First Sunday after the Epiphany. Common Prayer.

Tower. The lions in the Tower. WASH. IRV., Sketch-Bk., XXV, 244.

Note. Devil and its substitutes often lose the article in imprecations.

- i. Devil take you. CONGREVE, Love for Love, II, 2, (235).

O devil on't. Ib., II, 2, (233).

Pox on her! Ib., III, 4, (256).

Deuce take the man! DICK., Cop., Ch. XXXV, 249.

Devil take you! Id., Chuz., Ch. LI, 393a.

Plague take them! THACK., Van. Fair, I, Introd.

- ii. The devil take me! CONGREVE, Love for Love, V, 2, (301).

O' the devil! what damned costive poet has given thee this lesson in fustian to get by rote? Ib., III, 3, (241).

The devil fetch me if I do (sc. fetch it)! G. FARQUHAR, The Recruiting Officer, IV, 3, (320).

Compare with the above: α) Captain Absolute and Ensign Beverley are one and the same person — The devil they are! SHER., Riv., I, 1, (213).

- β) To what the devil does this tend? THACK., Pend., II, Ch. XXXI, 341.

Who the deuce was she? Id., Virg., Ch. VII, 70.

The indefinite article is also found in sentences of this type: What a plague means my niece, to take the death of her brother thus? Twelfth Night, I, 3, 1.

What a pox does this Foresight mean by this civility? CONGREVE, Love for Love, II, 2, (236).

II. Also Lord sometimes loses the article in the language of invocation.

Lord send we may be coming to something better in the New Year nigh upon us! DICK., Chimes³, I, 14.

Lord love you! TROL., Framl. Pars., Ch. VIII, 82.

Lord deliver us! BUCHANAN, That Winter Night, Ch. III, 29.

The article is, of course, regularly dropped before Lord in the vocative.

Ah, Lord, help you! FARQUHAR, The Beaux' Stratagem, III, 3, (398).

25. a) When the significant meaning of such words ceases to be understood, they are apt to lose the article.

This is the case with Christ, God; Eden, Heaven, Hell, Paradise, Purgatory; Elysium, Hades, Orcus, Tartarus.

And a river went out of Edeh to water the garden. Bible, Gen., II, 10.

He descended into Hell; The third day he rose again from the dead. He ascended into Heaven. Common Prayer.

I know not . . . if it (sc. the bird) were in winged guise | A visitant from Paradise. BYRON, Pris. of Chil., X, 34.

In Homer Tartarus is a place beneath the earth, as far below Hades as heaven is above the earth. Cassell's Concise Cycl.

Note I. Christ is sometimes found with the article.

Thou art the Christ. Bible, Matth., XVI, 16.

We have found the Messias, which is, being interpreted, the Christ. Id., John, I, 41.

I made them lay their hands in mine and swear | To reverence the King, as if he were | Their conscience, and their conscience as their King, | To break the heathen and uphold the Christ. TEN., Guin., 467.

Christ is dealt with as an ordinary appellative and may, accordingly, stand with any of the ordinary noun-modifiers, when it denotes an image used as an object of worship.

At a meeting of the paths was a crucifix, and between the feet of the Christ a little red patch of dead poppies. Westm. Gaz., No. 6182, 7a.

II. Usage is divided as to heaven, whether in the singular or the plural.

The singular in its various shades of meaning, mostly stands without the article; apparently, regularly when it denotes the Supreme Being, and when forming a kind of unit with earth in the sense of the Universe.

The plural, on the other hand, in all its varied applications, is almost regularly preceded by the article, except in the vocative. (Ch. XXV, 20.) See also ELLINGER, Verm. Beitr., 26.

i. In the beginning God created the heaven and the earth. Bible, Gen., I, 1. The sun slowly sank in the heaven. W. COLLINS, After Dark, 81.¹⁾ When from the heaven does not smile a listening Father, it soon becomes an empty space. ANNIE BESANT, Autobiography, 133.

ii. * Heaven's high canopy, that covers all. DRYDEN. Ovid's Met., I.²⁾ Better to reign in Hell, than serve in Heaven. MILTON, Par. Lost, I, 263. Trees, | As high as heaven. TEN., Sea Dreams, 100.

Things of great height are said by hyperbole to reach to heaven. MURRAY, s. v. heaven, 1b

The clouds, winds, breath, fowls of heaven. ib., 2.

 (I would) speak with her, if Heaven gives me an opportunity, as Heaven, I feel assured, will give. CH. KINGSLEY, Westw. Ho!, Ch. XIX, 143b.

 There are more things in heaven and earth, Horatio, | Than are dreamt of in your philosophy. Hamlet, I, 5, 166.

Papa ... would move heaven and earth for her, if he could. TROL., Orley Farm, Ch. XIX.²⁾

Nothing in heaven or earth would have stayed her hand now. New Anti-gong, Ch. XIX.²⁾

III. SHAKESPEARE sometimes has the article before Heaven when the supreme Being is meant, and before Paradise when it is not the abode of the blessed, but the Garden of Eden that is referred to. FRANZ, *Shak. Gram.*²⁾, § 265.

The heaven such grace did lend her. Two Gentlem., IV, 2, 41.

Not that Adam that kept the Paradise, but that Adam that keeps the prison. Com. of Err., IV, 3, 15.

IV. God takes the definite article, when preceded by a continuative adjective, but Almighty God is more frequent than the Almighty God.

i. He thanked the good God for all the blessings He had bestowed on him.

ii. * I am the Almighty God; walk before me. Bible, Gen., XVII, 1.

 Great and manifold were the blessings, most dread Sovereign, which Almighty God, the Father of all mercies, bestowed upon us, the people of England. Authorised Version.

On Tuesday in St. Paul's Cathedral the King and Queen rendered thanks to Almighty God for the safe and happy course and ending of their visit to India. Times, No. 1832, 116d.

On the analogy of Almighty God also, perhaps, Almighty Power, as in: The stillness of Almighty Power is here. EBENEZER ELLIOTT, Love, II.

b) The suppression cannot, however, always be accounted for in this way. As is also shown by a comparison of the nouns mentioned in 24 and 25, a, it is sometimes due to no apparent cause, beyond the generally prevailing economy of language.

1) Thus the definite article is mostly omitted before Scripture, notwithstanding the significance of the word. The plural, however, seems to take the article regularly.

1) ELLINGER, Verm. Beitr., 26. 2) MURRAY, s. v. heaven.

- i. * So spoke, in the emphatic words of Scripture, the helpless and beréft father. SCOTT, Fair Maid, Ch. XXXV, 373.

The clergyman . . . read the service in a lively agreeable voice, giving almost a dramatic point to the chapters of Scripture which he read. THACK., Virg., Ch. XV, 148.

We have the authority of Scripture for believing that the unjust steward, though he fears not God and regards not man, nevertheless is roused to action if the importunate widow will but be importunate enough. Rev. of Rev., CCXXVII, 406a.

 The Scripture moveth us in sundry places [etc.]. Common Prayer. I asked the boy whether he or his parents were acquainted with the Scripture and ever read it. GEORGE BORROW, The Bible in Spain, Ch. I, 11.

- ii. Dutch tiles designed to illustrate the Scriptures. DICK., Christm. Car. 5, 1, 21.

Her religion, manufactured in the main by her own intelligence and an ardent study of the Scriptures, was an aid to her in this matter. RUDY. KIPL., The Light that failed, Ch. I, 4.

There's an infallible guide both for you and me, and that's the Holy Scriptures. MRS. WARD, Dav. Grieve, I, 238.

- 2) In the language of the illiterate Bible sometimes drops the definite article.

"Flesh is grass", Bible says. MRS. GASK.¹⁾

26. There are, however, numerous cases in which the article continues to be used, although all significancy in the name is practically gone, or at least forgotten. Thus the article is regularly used:

a) before all plurals (Ch. XXV, 19, i).

b) before the following singulars. Those mentioned in the second group have a Dutch equivalent without the article.

- i. the Carnatic, the Crimea, the Hague, the Herzegovina, the Lindeness, the Lizard (= Lizard Point), the Minch, the Naze (= the Lindeness), the Nore, the Palatinate, the Punja(u)b (= Punjab), the Sahara, the Solent, the Sound, the Sudan, the Ukraine.

- ii. the Deccan, the Grisons, the Morea, the Texel (as the name of an arm of the sea).

Note. Alsace, unlike the Dutch de Elzas, has not the article.

- iii. the Acropolis, the Alhambra, the Capitol, the Pantheon.

A few illustrative quotations must suffice:

Lindeness. The coast of Norway, studded with isles from its southern extremity, the Lindeness, or Naze, to the North Cape. CH. BRONTË, Jane Eyre, Ch. I, 2.

Lizard. It was only on the nineteenth of July that the sails of the Armada were seen from the Lizard. GREEN, Short Hist., Ch. VII, § VI, 418.

Arthur's ship is sighted off the Lizard. GRANT ALLEN, Hilda Wade, Ch. I, 25.

Lieutenant Prowse was washed off the conning-tower platform of submarine "C 37" near the Lizard on Saturday of last week. II. Lond. News, No. 3703, 528a.

Morea. Its modern name, the Morea, . . . was given to it from its resemblance in shape to a mulberry leaf. Harmsw. Encycl., s.v. Peloponnesus.

¹⁾ FOELS.—KOCH, Wis. Gram., § 267.

Punjaub. During his few years of office he annexed the Punjaub. MCCARTHY, Short Hist., Ch. XIII, 175.

The manufacturing industry of the Punjab is more extensive than in any other province of India. Cassell's Conc. Cyclop.

Texel. They (sc. the ships) were said to be in the Texel. MAC., Hist., II, Ch. V, 119.

While his small fleet lay tossing in the Texel, a contest was going on among the Dutch authorities. Ib., 139.

The Dutch fleet from the Texel, which was to protect a French force in its descent upon Ireland, was met by a far larger fleet under admiral Duncan. GREEN, Short Hist., Ch. X, 810.

We may be anywhere between the Texel and Cap Gris Nez. CH. KINGSLEY, Herew., Ch. VI, 40b.

Before some the article has disappeared or is disappearing: the Buenos Ayres, the Carac(c)as, the Hainault, the Honduras, the Mauritius, the Tyrol.

Instead of the Brazils, modern practice has the singular Brazil.

Buenos Ayres. i. She must have been bound from the Buenos Ayres, or the Rio de la Plata, in the south part of America, beyond the Brazils, to the Havana, in the Gulf of Mexico. DEFOE, Rob. Crusoe, 192.

ii. The mean temperature of Buenos Ayres is nearly the same as at Cadiz. Harmsworth Encyclop., s.v. Argentine Republic, 331a.

Carac(c)as. i. (This) was going on, it seemed, to some Señora or other at the Caraccas. CH. KINGSLEY, Westw. Hol., Ch. XXVII, 206a.

How far is it to the Caraccas? Ib., Ch. XV, 124a.

ii. I am to be governor of La Guayra in Caraccas. Ib., Ch. XII, 100b.

Caracas is connected with La Guaira by a narrow-gauge line. Harmsworth Encycl.

Hainault. i. Its fantastic belfry (sc. of Mons) marks it as a capital of the Hainault. H. BELLOC, Mons (Westm. Gaz., No. 5317, 5a).

The Hainault is still called the Hainault upon stamped paper beyond the frontier line. Ib.

ii. From the middle of the 11th century down to 1477, the countship of Hainault was almost continuously united with it. Harmsworth Encycl., s.v. Flanders.

Honduras. i. Don't you mind William Prust, that Captain Hawkins left behind in the Honduras? C. KINGSLEY, Westw. Hol., Ch. XX, 153a.

ii. Honduras is burdened with a heavy external debt. Harmsw. Encycl.

Mauritius. i. The ship bore for the Mauritius. A Ship on Fire (STOF., Leesb., I, 5).

ii. On Thursday she sighted the Island of Rodrigues, and arrived at Mauritius on Monday 23rd. Ib.

He is now the holder of a Government appointment in the island of Mauritius. CON. DOYLE, Sherl. Holmes, II, 280.

The omission of these colonies and some others, such as Mauritius, from the list can only be temporary. Ib.

Tyrol. i. I will send you a guide-book from the Tyrol. BEATR. HARRADEN, Ships, I, Ch. XIX, 107.

The castle, which is the largest in the Tyrol, has fallen from its former high estate. Westm. Gaz., No. 5388, 13b.

Motorists travelling the Tyrol should note the new police regulations regarding motor traffic. Ib., No. 5394, 13b.

ii. The Alps of Switzerland being extended into Tyrol. Cassell's Concise Cyclop., s.v. Tyrol.

The Inn, the Adige, and the Drave have part of their courses in Tyrol. Harmsworth Encycl., s.v. Tyrol.

With its romantic landscape, its many historic associations, and its hospitable, cultured people, Tyrol has an irresistible appeal for every traveller. 11. Lond. New, No. 3816, 891a.

Peloponnesus (Peloponnese). i. Sparta... the chief city of the Peloponnesus. Cassell's Concise Cyclop., s.v. Sparta.

ii. Asclepius was gone into Peloponnese. CH. KINGSLEY, The Heroes, II, ii, 110. The Achæan cities in the north of Peloponnesus consolidated and enlarged their ancient league. Harmsworth Encycl., s.v. Greece, 333a.

Note. According to WENDT (Synt. des heut. Eng., 164) Barbado(e)s, apparently a plural, often stands with the article, Bermuda is getting more and more common for the Bermudas when the whole archipelago is designated, the Bahamas has not yet been ousted by Bahama, the Havana occasionally appears for Havana.

27. An unconscious or dim perception of the significancy that originally attached to all proper names, may also account for the occasional use of the definite article before certain ancient family-names of Scotch or Irish, and more rarely of English history.

The article is said to have the force of representing the bearer of the name as a person of note and (or) as the head of his clan or family, but its use is highly irregular. We find it especially in the old ballads and the romantic tales of SCOTT. Instances also occur in SHAKESPEARE and, indeed, in the oldest literature. In the latest English we also find it before the names of famous beauties, or 'stars'. Sometimes the old practice is revived in mock-heroic poetry.

- i. We will persuade the Duke of Burgundy | To leave the Talbot and to follow us. Henry VI, A, III, 2, 20.

My ancestors did from the streets of Rome | The Tarquin drive, when he was call'd a king. Jul. Cæs., II, 1, 54.

Is there not my father, my uncle and myself? lord Edmund Mortimer, my lord of York and Owen Glendower? is there not the Douglas? Henry IV, A, II, 3, 27.

The Douglas and the Hotspur both together | Are confident against the world in arms. Id., A, V, 1, 116.

Can I not frame a fever'd dream, | But still the Douglas, is the theme? SCOTT, Lady, I, xxxv, 18.

Pour forth the glory of the Graeme! Ib., II, vi, 28.

Take arms, if you love the Stewart. SCOTT, Fair Maid, Ch. XXXV, 373. Robert the Bruce was present, and assisted the English to gain the victory. Id., Tales of a Grandf., 25b.

Baldeary O'Donnel, who called himself the O'Donnel, a title far prouder in the estimation of his race, than any marquissate or dukedom, had been bred in Spain. MACAULAY, Hist., VI, Ch. XVI, 58.

- ii. I've seen the Siddons, sir, and the O'Nale — They were great, but what were they compared to Miss Fotheringay. THACK., Pend., I, Ch. V, 57. Your manner reminded me of Mars. Did you ever see the Mars, Miss Fotheringay? Ib., Ch. XI, 113.

The Fotheringay was uncommonly handsome, in a white raiment and leopard skin. Ib., I, Ch. XIV, 138.

The Sherrick creates quite a different sentiment — the Sherrick is splendid, stately, sleepy. Id., New c., I, Ch. XXV, 278.

I never knew the Bernstein but as an old woman. Id., Virg., Ch. XXVII, 281.
If the Cattarina wrote him billets-doux, I fear Aunt Bernstein would have bade him accept the invitations. Ib., Ch. XXVIII, 289.

The Yarmouth bears no malice. Ib., Ch. XLI, 422.

She had not so grand an appearance as the Symonds. JAMES PAIN, Glow-Worm Tales, I, H, Ch. II, 149.

When the Symonds broke her leg, there was nothing for it but to engage yonder excellent young woman. Ib., 152.

- iii. The Balfour and the Chamberlain | Were walking close at hand; | They wept like anything to see | So great a waste of sand: | "If Asquith would but plough it up", | They said, "it would be grand". Westm. Gaz., No. 5249, 5.

Oh! I mustn't forget — I want to present Mr. Dummer . . . the Dummer, you know. ANSTEE, Voces Populi.

Compare with the above the following quotations: Those who wish to investigate the subject, may consult the chronicles of Winton, and the History of Bruce, by Archdeacon Barbour. SCOTT, Fair Maid, Introd., 16.

Let him arise at your call . . . — the partaker of the illustrious blood of Douglas. Ib., Introd., 14.

Concerning the Exploits of Edward Bruce, the Douglas, and the Death of Robert Bruce. Id., Tales of a Grandf., 39a.

Bruce struck Comyn a blow with his dagger. Ib., 26a.

Douglas went in disguise to the house of one of his old servants. Ib., 32b.

28. Also when a proper name is not significant, we may find it preceded by the definite article. This is often the case, when it is accompanied by an adnominal adjunct, whether restrictive or continuative. DEN HERTOOG, Ned. Spraakk., III, § 34; STOF., Stud., B, § 16; EINENKEL, Streifzüge, 2; KELLNER, Hist. Outl. of Eng. Synt., 137; ELLINGER, E. S., XX; Id., Verm. Beitr., 29; MÄTZN., *Eng. Gram.*², III, 164.

a) Restrictive adjuncts may, or may not, cause the use of the definite article.

- 1) When the adjunct is a clause, the article would seem to be indispensable.

I am referring to the Napoleon who lost the battle of Sedan, not to the Napoleon who died of Saint Helena.

- 2) When the adjunct is a prepositional phrase, the article is seldom absent, unless the phrase is felt as part of the proper name.

- i. Could the England of 1685 be, by some magical process, set before our eyes, we should not know one landscape in a hundred or one building in ten thousand. Mac., Hist., II, Ch. III, 276.

The difference in salubrity between the London of the nineteenth century and the London of the seventeenth century was far greater than the difference between London in an ordinary season and London in the cholera. Ib., Ch. III.

- ii. * The same may be said of the numberless entries . . . applying to London of the last century. Periodical.¹⁾

1) WENDT, Synt. des heut. Eng., 165.

When we look at Italy of the Renaissance, at England of the sixteenth century, we are amazed. FRANCIS THOMPSON, Health and Holiness, 24.

 Frankfort-on-the-Main, Newcastle-on-Tyne, Newcastle-under-Lyne.

Antipholis of Syracuse, Antiphilus of Ephesus. LAMB., Tales, Com. of Er. (Thus throughout the tale, irrespective of grammatical function.)

3) Practice is more varied when the adjunct is an adjective.

a) With quality-expressing (participial) adjectives usage may be equally divided, when they enter into a free combination with their head-words. There seems to be a tendency of omitting the article, when the restrictive force of the adjective is weakened, i. e. when the notion of any alternative is but dimly present to the speaker's mind.

names of persons. i. The other was John Comyn, ... usually called the Red Gomyn, to distinguish him from his kinsman the Black Comyn, so named from his swarthy complexion. SCOTT, Tales of a Grandf., 25a. The goldsmith. . . had given the chain to the wrong Antipholis. LAMB., Tales, Com. of Er., 219.

The married Antipholis had done all the things she taxed this Antipholis with. Ib., 222.

During this time the old Mr. Dickens was confined in the Marshalsea Prison. Miss DICK. (STOF., Leesb. voor Aanvangsklassen, I, 16). The result was his marriage and the adoption of the new Mrs. Acland's son. Mrs. ALEX., A Life Interest, I, Ch. II, 33.

There in a comfortable chair sits the modern Alexander, a map of the battlefield before him. Rev. of Rev., CCXXX, 114a.

ii. It was not so with old Mr. Osborne. THACK., Van. Fair, Ch. XIII, 128. Old Mr. Osborne's scowl, terrific always, had never before looked so deadly to her. Ib., 130.

names of countries, towns, etc. i. I see already rising the liberties and the grandeur of the New Rome. LYTTON, Rienzi, I, Ch. V, 40. They had institutions derived partly from imperial Rome, partly from papal Rome, partly from the old Germany. MAC., Hist., I, Ch. I, 67. The sight of the new Boston. BELLAMY, Look Backw., 38.

Burglary was not among the perils of the modern Boston. Ib., 39.

There is a long chain of lakes, extending from the ancient Phrygia into Cappadocia. Cassell's Conc. Cyclop., s. v. Asia Minor.

The New Egypt. Title of a Book.

Remains of the Ancient Olympia. Rev. of Rev., CCXXIV, 124.

Neither our sympathy with the new Turkey, nor our improved relations with Russia, could justify us in encouraging or helping on this adumbrated Slav Confederation. Westm. Gaz.

The Powers are all but agreed upon the limits of the autonomous Albania. Westm. Gaz., No. 6177, 1b.

ii. * Wherever a language derived from that of ancient Rome is spoken, the religion of modern Rome to this day prevails. MAC., Hist., I, Ch. I, 67.

 New Italy vindicates the memory of every martyr whom the clericals have done to death. Lit. World.

Greater London has got over 100 theatres and music-halls. Graph., No. 2267, 723c.

Note I. But when the adjective forms a kind of fixed or standing combination with its head-word and (or) is understood as part of the proper name, the article is dispensed with.

i. New York, New Orleans, New Zealand, New Caledonia.

Lesser Asia. WEBST., Dict. (more commonly called Asia Minor.)

- ii. Loftus Major, Loftus Minor. Mrs. WOOD, Orv. Col., passim. (with which compare the elder Osborne. THACK., Van. Fair, II, Ch. XXXI, 346; the elder George. Ib., II, Ch. XXI, 227; the younger Brutus. LYTTON, Rienzi, I, Ch. V, 39.)

II. In the following quotations the absence of the article may be due to the superlative being understood as absolute. See, however, 20, e.

I have been in farthest Greece. LAMB, Tales, Com. of Er., 213. Darkest Africa. Times.

- β) When the adjective expresses a relation, the article is but rarely met with, at least before the names of countries, towns, etc.

- i. Northern and central France had by this time fallen into utter ruin. GREEN, Short Hist.

Réaumur's thermometer is used only in North-Western Europe. Cassell's Conc. Dict., s. v. thermometer.

It was supposed that Eastern Roumelia would in reality be restored to Turkey. Rev. of Rev., CCXXVI, 315b.

Of Roman London and of Saxon London little is comparatively known. JOHN DENNIS, Good Words (STOF., Leesb., I, 78).

They had institutions derived partly from imperial Rome, partly from papal Rome, partly from the old Germany. MAC., Hist., I, Ch. I, 67.

All statesmen are agreed that Mahometan Turkey has no right of rule in Modern Europe. Eng. Rev., 1912, Nov., 622.

The Turks ... have not recently taken any special military measures or precautions in European Turkey. Ib.

Mediæval Europe was a camp with a church in the background.

WILLIAM BARRY, The Papacy, Prol., 17.

- ii. Beyond that region lies another vast tract, which may be regarded as the Hinterland either of the Egyptian provinces or of the French Congo. Times. (The use of the article may be due to Congo, although the name of a territory, being still felt as the name of the river.)

The following quotations must be given without comment:

"Tell me about my uncle", cried Virginian Harry. THACK., Virg., Ch. XV, 150.

She brings before us the prudishness of the theatre-going public in eighteenth-century Paris. Athen., No. 4447, 62c.

- b) Usage is equally varied when the adjunct is continuative:

- 1) The article is regularly dispensed with, when the adjunct is a clause or a prepositional phrase.

She's devilish like Miss Catler, that I used to meet at Dumdum. THACK., Van. Fair, I, Ch. IV, 27.

I was quite relieved to find it was only Brooks of Sheffield. DICK., Cop., Ch. II, 12b.

- 2) Usage is highly arbitrary, when the adjunct is an adjective, but there is a distinct tendency:

- a) to use the article, when the adjective is purely descriptive, i. e. intended to give information about what is expressed by its head-word;

- β) to omit it, when it is purely emotional, i. e. expressive of some emotion (mostly of sympathy, pity, or admiration, sometimes of contempt) on the part of the speaker or writer.

It stands to reason that we must meet with variable practice with many adjectives which, from the nature of their meaning, are always more or less emotional. Such, among many others, are beautiful, cruel, fair, great, little, noble.

names of persons. i. The cruel Macbeth. SCOTT, Tales of a Grandfather, I, 86.

Antipholis of Syracuse married the fair Luciana; and the good old Ægeon . . . lived at Ephesus many years. LAMB, Tales, Com. of Er., 228.

On this, as on all other occasions, he (sc. Mr. Pickwick) is invariably attended by the faithful Sam. DICK., Pickw., Ch. LVII, 526.

(This respite) made the timid little Amelia almost as happy as a full reprieve would have done. THACK., Van. Fair, I, Ch. XXV, 264.

It had been as well for Arthur if the honest Foker had remained for some time at College. Id., Pend., I, Ch. XIX, 193.

"Bless me, father", said eagerly the young Pisistratus. LYTTON, Caxtons.

The young Cola bent his mind to listen. Id., Rienzi, I, Ch. I, 11.

So deeply did the young Adrian feel the galling truth of all he uttered. Ib., I, Ch. III, 24.

"Oh, how dull art thou?" answered the fair Irene. Ib., I, Ch. IV, 31.

The inestimable Toots. SAINTSB., Ninet. Cent., Ch. III, 150.

ii. "I am your father!" cried he, "young Rip van Winkle once — old Rip van Winkle now!" WASH. IRV., Sketch-Bk., Rip van Winkle.

"Don't swear, Will. Harry is much better company than you are, and much better ton too, sir!" — "Tong, indeed, confound his tong," growled envious Will to himself. THACK., Virg., Ch. XVI, 169.

"To it again, you little rogues!" says facetious papa. Ib., Ch. L, 518.

"How do you mean?" asks simple Harry. Ib., Ch. LIX, 615.

While poor Caroline is resting in her coffin, dapper little George . . . is dancing a pretty dance with Madame Walmoden. Id., Four Georges, II, 55.

They sent this little spar out of the wreck with their love to good Mrs. Sedley. Id., Van. Fair, I, Ch. XV, 176.

"We'll find means to give them the slip," said dauntless little Becky. Ib., Ch. XXV, 266.

See us at the palace next week, young Cola. LYTTON, Rienzi, I, Ch. I, 16.

As a child and a boy young Tennyson was remarked both for acquisition and performance. ANDREW LANG, Alfred Tennyson, Ch. I, 4.

names of countries, towns, etc. i. The mighty London. WASH. IRV., Hist. of New York.

The place where the British exiles had congregated . . . was the rich and popular Amsterdam. MAC., Hist., II, Ch. V, 118.

The ambitious, pushing Melbourne. FROUDE, Oceana, Ch. VII, 93.

ii. You have persuaded me to leave dear England, and dearer London. THOM. SOUTHERN, Oroonoko, I, I, (161a).

In hospitable Cornwall, especially on such a day, every guest was welcome. CH. KINGSLEY, Herew., Ch. V, 36b.

I was heartily glad, when . . . I was whirled away from gouty consumptive Buxton to London. JEROME, Idle Thoughts, VI, 75.

I fell into a wonder that comfort-loving beings could live in horrible New York. JOHN HABBERTON, Helen's Babies, 34.

Its long struggle with Teutonic Cæsars . . . had daunted the courage even of unwearied Rome. WILLIAN BARRY, The Papacy, Ch. I, 34.

The responsible Ministerial journals do not indulge in ebullitions of this kind against perfidious Albion. Times.

Even in thickly populated London miles upon miles of streets are lined with wage-earners' cottages. Westm. Gaz., No. 5255, 4c.

In happy England six is the ordinary complement of a first-class carriage. Ib., No. 5283, 4c.

Going south through sleeping France the difficulty is to keep them (sc. the foot-warmer) out on a moderately warm night. Ib.

Catholic Spain is as free as Protestant England. Westm. Gaz., No 5561, 15b. Few persons would give a longer expectation to poor Russia than to rich Germany. Id., No. 6059, 3a.

The meeting of the Eucharistic conference in Protestant England. Rev. of Rev., CCXXVI, 309a.

Sometimes the importance of the town itself has declined . . . , but its stately Town Hall survives as a monument of its former commercial importance. Remote Bolsward and shrunken Franeker are instances of this, and a more signal example is the graceful Stadhuis of decayed Veere. Graph., No. 2258, 362a.

Note I. Sometimes the use or absence of the article is conditioned by the metre. Compare the two following pairs of sentences.

i. * Here the noble Antony. Jul. Cæs., III, 2.

 All the conspirators save only he, | Did that they did in envy of great Cæsar. Id., V, 5, 70.

ii. * The ocean queen, the free Britannia, bears | The last plunder from a bleeding land. BYRON, Child of Har., II, XIII.

 Full swiftly Harold wends his lonely way | Where proud Sevilla triumphs unsubdued. Ib., I, XLV.

II. Some adjectives lose (almost) entirely their original meaning, when used as emotional words. This is, for example, the case with old, poor, and, to a large extent, with dear, little. There is, consequently, a wide difference between poor John and the poor John, old John and the old John.

Poor duke of Shrewsbury has been very ill of a fever. SWIFT, Journ. to Stella, XXV, June 25.

As I spoke, poor Mr. Burchell entered the house. GOLDSMITH, Vic.

He would make a gentleman of the little chap, was Mr. Osborne's constant saying regarding little Georgy. THACK., Van. Fair, II, Ch. XXI, 227.

In the following quotations the use of the article seems to be improper:

For it was my honest friend, the poor Jack Wildman, who now lay in this sad condition. BLACKMORE, The Maid of Sker, III, 177.¹⁾

The poor Marie wept for him constantly. Mrs. OLIPHANT, The Laird of Norlaw, II, 133.¹⁾

III. Several of such purely emotional adjectives are sometimes accumulated before one noun.

Poor dear old Bishop Grantly had on this matter been too lenient. TROL., Barch. Tow., Ch. IX, 60.

Poor dear old Dad has just told me that he has had a big loss on 'Change. Westm. Gaz., No. 6101, 6c.

Our reader must now please to quit . . . the humdrum life of poor little Fair Oaks, and transport himself . . . to London. THACK., Pend., I, Ch. XXVIII, 296.

Twinkling in her breast poor old Pen saw a locket, which he had bought of Mr. Nathan in High Street with the last shilling he was worth. Ib., Ch. VI, 74.

IV. Some emotional adjectives are apt to attach permanently to their head-word, insomuch that they are more or less felt as part of the proper name. Thus Little Dick (GOLDSMITH, Vicar), Tiny Tim (DICK., Christm. Car.).

¹⁾ ELLINGER, E. S., XX.

Also distinctly descriptive adjectives which are constantly used before one and the same name in the course of a narrative or in the daily conversation of certain circles, are apt to lose some of their independence, and, consequently, to discard the article. Thus Black Sambo (THACK., Van. Fair), Blind Bertha (DICK., Crick.).

The loss of the article imparts a certain degree of familiarity to the combination, and is, therefore, incompatible with the dignified style of poetry. Hence in TENNYSON's Idylls of the King there is no omission of the article before the permanent epithets given to the principal knights, unless required by the metre. Thus the fine Gawain, the meek Sir Percivale, the pure Sir Galahad, etc., but:

So Arthur bad the meek Sir Percivale | And pure Sir Galahad to uplift the maid.
TEN., Lanc. & El., 1256-7.

Some of such combinations have become traditional. Such are Bloody Mary, Good Queen Bess, Bluff King Hal; Merry England, Old England, Sunny France.

The English are very fond of their country; they call it 'Old England' and 'Merry England'. SCOTT, *Tales of a Grandf.*¹⁾

V. Adjectives that are used as titles, such as honourable, noble, reverend, are not, of course, emotional, and, consequently, do not dismiss the article.

The Right Honourable Francis Goodchild, Lord Mayor of London. THACK.²⁾

The Worshipful Francis Goodchild, Esq. becomes Sheriff of London. *Id.*²⁾

Thus also when the person is indicated by his social status or rank, as in: That refined patron of the arts, and enlightened lover of music and the drama, the Most Noble the Marquis of Steyne. Id., Pend., I, Ch. XIV, 140.

They are Suffolk people, and distantly related to the Right Honourable the Earl of Bungay. Id., A Little Dinner at Timmins's, Ch. I.

VI. This also applies to participles used as adjectives. Note that when such participial adjectives as aforsaid, before-mentioned are placed after the head-word, the article is dispensed with.

i. "Plead you to me, fair dame?" said the astonished Antipholis. LAMB, Tales, Com. of Er., 218.

The said Eliza, John and Georgina were now clustered round their mama in the drawing-room. CH. BRONTË, Jany Eyre, Ch. I, 1.

This association does hereby return its warmest thanks to the said Samuel Pickwick Esq. DICK., Pickw., Ch. I, 1.

The aforsaid Martin, whom Arthur had taken such a fancy to [etc.]. HUGHES, Tom Brown, II, Ch. III, 237.

ii. In default of which issue the ranks and dignities were to pass to Francis aforsaid. THACK., Henry Esq., III, Ch. VI, 380.

VII. Adjectives, especially when purely descriptive, are not often placed before geographical proper names, a class-noun being mostly inserted between them. Thus the populous Amsterdam is less usual than the populous city of Amsterdam.

In the centre of the great city of London lies a small neighbourhood . . . , which goes by the name of Little Britain. WASH. IRV., Sketch-Bk., XXV, 241.

Close upon the village of Clavering before-mentioned. THACK., Pend., I, Ch. II, 19.
My godmother lived in a handsome house in the clean and ancient town of Bretton. CH. BRONTË, Villette, Ch. I, 1.

¹⁾ FOELS.—KOCK, Wis. Gram., § 255.

²⁾ Ib., § 257.

At last we reached the large handsome town of Irkutsk. CONWAY, Called Back, Ch. XI, 130.

VIII. The article is, of course, never used when the head-word is a vocative.

Fair Greece! sad relic of departed worth. BYRON, Child of Har., II, LXXIII.

29. Compound proper names both or all of whose parts are insignificant, reject or take the article under the same circumstances as those made up of only one name.

30. When one or all the parts of a compound proper name are significant, usage is variable.

- a) The definite article is mostly used when the noun modified is a plural.

Thus in: the Kaatskil Mountains, the Rocky Mountains; the Ochil Hills; the Sulu Islands; the Low Countries, the Netherlands, the United States.

The alternative usage is instanced by:

The road which leads across Marlborough Downs in the direction of Bristol. DICK., Pickw., Ch. XIV, 118.

The Armada dropped anchor in Catalis roads. J. R. GREEN, Short Hist., Ch. VII, § 6, 419.

- b) The definite article is mostly used, when the defining part is an adjective.

Adjectives derived from proper names, such as Atlantic, Caspian, Chinese, etc., are considered as significant words:

- i. the Arctic Ocean, the Antarctic Ocean, the Atlantic Ocean, the Baltic Sea, the Black Sea, the Caspian Sea, the Mediterranean Sea, the North Sea, the Pacific Ocean (= the South Sea. CH. KINGSLEY, Westw. Hol., Ch. XVII, 134, b);

- ii. the Argentine Republic; the Holy Land; the Orange Free State; the Transvaal Republic;

- iii. the British Museum, the Inner Temple, the Middle Temple, the National Gallery, the Royal Exchange; the White House.

- iv. the Holy Ghost, the Holy Virgin.

To the N. W. (sc. of the Capitol) are the Treasury, the White House, and [etc.] Harmsw. Encycl., s.v. Washington.

Note I. In some of these names the noun is sometimes or usually suppressed: the (Ant)arctic, the Atlantic, the Baltic; the Mediterranean, the Pacific; the Argentine, the Transvaal; the Engadine.

The United States will increase its fleet in the Pacific, and possibly in the Atlantic also. Westm. Gaz.

There was a remarkable volte-face of the Liberal Press with regard to the Transvaal. Times.

We get beef from the Argentine. Il. Lond. News, No. 3680, 490b.

II. According to WENDT (Synt. des heut. Eng., 166) White House no longer requires the article.

Excepted are a) some names of streets, which are more frequently found without than with the article; the High Street is, however, quite common, especially in referring to the smaller towns.

I was charged seven dollars to go to Central Park from Thirty-second Street and back again. RITA, America—Seen through Eng. eyes, Ch. I, 31.

The Windsor hotel in Fifth-Avenue was destroyed in three hours. Graph. There are shops in Main-Street that would make a good figure in Paris. W. ARCHER (Westm. Gaz., No. 4931, 4a).

I began to wonder whether I were not back among the Vanderbilts and Goulds in Fifth-Avenue. Ib., No. 4967, 12c.

High Street. i. Pen felt a secret pride in strutting down High Street with a young fellow who owned tandems, talked to officers, and ordered turtle and champagne for dinner. THACK., Pend., I, Ch. III, 43.

Alleys which lay between High Street and the Avon. Mrs. CRAIK, John Hal., Ch. III, 29.

ii. He turned into the High Street. DICK., Pickw., Ch. I, 9.

The Messrs Foker and Pen strolled down the High Street. THACK., Pend., I, Ch. III, 42.

We actually boasted a pavement in the High Street of our town of Norton Bury. Mrs. CRAIK, John Hal., Ch. I, 5.

Neither the ignominious procession up the High Street, nor the near view of death had power to disturb the gentle and majestic patience of Argyle. MAC., Hist., II, Ch. V, 131.

Also names of streets made up of an adjective + the noun Road seem to have the definite article as a rule.

Aunt and Mary used to walk gravely up and down the New Road. THACK., Sam. Titm., Ch. X, 120.

β) some names of countries, provinces, districts, towns, boroughs, etc., which regularly stand without the definite article, e. g.: Great Britain, Mid-Lothian, East Anglia, West-Ham, Westminster, Grand Rapids, Green Hill, etc.

Can you tell us the way to Green Hill? SWEET, Country Walk.

γ) some compound names containing Holy, especially Holy Church, Holy Kirk, Holy Week, Holy Writ, which almost regularly lose the definite article.

Holy Church. i. Holy Church is merciful. SCOTT, Quent. Durw., Ch. XII, 174.

Can you expect that the king dare pass over such an offence against Holy Church. CH. KINGSLEY, Herew., Ch. I, 11b.

Was not the blessing of Holy Church upon their union? CH. READE, The Cloister and the Hearth, Ch. XVII, 74.

It was not I, who was intended for Holy Church. Westm. Gaz., No. 4949, 9a.

ii. If I were to let thee go hence at large, I were thereby wronging the Holy Church. SCOTT, Mon., Ch. XXXI, 339. (For the rest, apparently, regularly without the article in this novel.)

Holy Kirk. i. We shall not be wanting...to do whatever may advantage Holy Kirk. Ib., Ch. VI, 94.

ii. Your vassals are obliged to rise for the defence of the Holy Kirk. Ib.

Holy Week. i. In Holy Week all the out-door world is stirred by strange emotions. Westm. Gaz., No. 4967, 15b.

This week being Holy Week, Her Majesty's and the Haymarket will be closed all the week, reopening on Easter Monday. Morn. Leader.

ii. The Pope designs to officiate at some of the Functions of the Holy Week. Lond. Gaz.¹⁾

1) MURRAY.

Holy Writ. Trifles light as air | Are to the jealous confirmations strong | As proofs of Holy Writ. Othello, III, 3, 324.

It is all foretold in Holy Writ. CH. KINGSLEY, Herew., Ch. XXVI, 108a.

The immeasurable advancement of the negro, manifested in character, courage, and cash is confirmation strong as proof of Holy Writ that [etc]. Westm. Gaz., No. 4937, 5a.

- c) The definite article is mostly used, when the defining part is a class-noun.

Thus regularly in the names of hotels, inns, etc., and of theatres, as the Swan hotel, the Bull Inn; the Court Theatre, the Blackfriars Theatre, the Globe Theatre, the Criterion Theatre; and also almost regularly in the names of some other buildings, such as the Queen's Hall, the Guildhall, the Mansion House, the Crystal Palace, etc.

- i. The stranger continued to soliloquise, until they reached the Bull Inn, in the High Street, where the coach stopped. Dick., Pickw., Ch. II, 9.

The lad and three others were discovered making a supper off a pork pie and two bottles of prime old port from the Red Cow public-house in Grey Friars Lane. Thack., Newc., I, Ch. VI, 68.

- ii. Mr. N. N.'s new comedy was produced at the Court Theatre on Tuesday. Times.

The Tyranny of Tears at the Criterion Theatre. Graph.

The Gay Lord Quex at the Globe Theatre. Ib.

- iii. Compounds with Hall: * It (sc. the Mayor's Court) is held at the Guildhall before the recorder. Harmsworth Encyclop., s.v. Mayor's Court. Among them (sc. the famous buildings) may be mentioned the Guildhall, ... St. Paul's Cathedral; the Mansion House etc. Ib., s.v. London.

Sir Harry Johnston will be received by the Mayor and Corporation at the Guildhall. Westm. Gaz., No. 6177, 8b.

Herr Havemann gave a recital at the Queen's Hall, Truth, No. 1802, 105a.

The memorable occasion of last week at the Queen's Hall. Times.

In Free Trade demonstration at the Queen's Hall. Westm. Gaz., No. 4949, 1b.

 The wooden giants in Guildhall. WASH. IRV., Sketch-Bk., XXV, 244. At a great Free Trade meeting in Queen's Hall on March 9 Lord Avebury presided. Westm. Gaz., No. 4949, 5.

Among the coming musical events ... there are two very interesting concerts, fixed for the afternoons of Oct. 3 and 10 at Queen's Hall. II. Lond. News, No. 3777, 394b. (In the same article a few lines further down: One of the signs that tell of the autumn season is the reopening of the Queen's Hall on Sundays.)

- iv. Other compounds. * The musical performances given at the Crystal Palace have attained a great reputation for their high standard of excellence. Hazell's Annual, 1894.

One (transparency) represented a moonlit landscape, the other the Houses of Parliament and Clock Tower at Westminster. W. ARCHER (Westm. Gaz., No. 4967, 12c).

Funds are collected at the Mansion House for distribution among sufferers from war, pestilence, floods and other misfortunes. Harmsworth Encyclop., s.v. Mansion House.

 The Dalai Lama the next day drove to Government House. II. Lond. News, No. 3703, 535.

The alternative usage is found:

- a) in some names of institutions: All Souls College, Queen's College, University College.

Sir W. Anson, Warden of All Souls College, has been nominated as Vice-Chancellor for the ensuing year. Times.

Dr. Mayrath, Provost of Queen's College, laid down the office of Vice-Chancellor. Ib.

Professor Osbert Chadwick delivered an address at University College. Ib.

β) in names of towns: Cape Town, Cedar Rapids, etc.

A meeting of Africander members of Parliament was held in Cape Town. Times.

Speaking at Cedar Rapids Mr. Mc Kingley observed that [etc.] Ib.

γ) names of streets: Bow Street, Dock Lane, etc.

An old woman that lives in Bull-and-Mouth Street. WASH. IRV., Sketch-Book, XXV. 244.

The steeple of Bow-Street. Ib., XXV, 244.

The Red Cow public-house in Grey Friars Lane. THACK., Newc., I, Ch. VI, 68.

He (sc. Disraeli) outdandied every other dandy in London, and drew after him bewildered crowds as he walked down Regent Street or up Bond Street, in garments of colours too glittering for anything but the melodramatic stage. T. P.'s Weekly, XVIII, No. 466, 450a.

Note, however, the Haymarket: He took four sporting sketches to a printseller in the Haymarket. THACK., Newc., I, Ch. XXVII, 300.

Walking down the Haymarket the other day, I paused and looked into that delightful old bow-windowed shop. Graph.

Instances of divided usage are:

Cape Colony (the most usual) and the Cape Colony.

i. An old Boer hunted in Cape Colony so far back as the end of the last century. Lit. World.

A detachment of troops was sent to secure the line of communication between Cape Colony and the British territories to the North. Times. The real danger is in Cape Colony. Ib.

The British possessions in South Africa comprise Cape Colony, Natal, the Orange River Colony, the Transvaal and [etc.] Harmsworth Encycl., s.v. South Africa.

ii. The Cape Colony was originally a Dutch colony. Froude, Oceana, Ch. III, 42

Land's End and the Land's End, usage being, perhaps, equally divided.

i. There is still extant in the neighbourhood of Land's End a tradition that the Scilly Isles were once part of the mainland. F. J. ROWE, Note to Tennyson's Lanc. and E.I., 35.

Mr. Tregarthen has added to his studies of wild life at Land's End. Westm. Gaz., No. 6147, 14c.

ii. The invaders doubled the Land's End and ravaged Cornwall. FREEMAN, Norman Conq., I, Ch. V, 295.¹⁾

Does this 'bus go to the Land's End? Westm. Gaz.

Regent's Park (the most usual) and the Regent's Park. i. The society's collections of living animals are lodged in the Zoological Gardens in Regent's Park. Harmsw. Encycl., s.v. Zoological Society.

ii. Baines represents the house in the Regent's Park. THACK., Newc., I, Ch. XXVII, 299.

I hired a furnished house in the Regent's Park. *DICK, Letters*²⁾.

¹⁾ MURRAY, s. v. double, 9.

²⁾ TEN BRUG., Taalst., VI.

d) The definite article is now used now dropped, when the defining word is a proper name.

- 1) It is mostly dropped before the names of buildings, bridges and other structures: Buckingham Palace, Westminster Abbey, Victoria Station, St. Paul's Cathedral, Lincoln's Inn, Gray's Inn, Exeter Hall, Magdalen College, Richmond jail, London Bridge, Waterloo Bridge.

Stephens was committed to Richmond Prison. MCCARTHY, Short Hist., Ch. XXII, 314.

So Aldred . . . sat in York keep. CH. KINGSLEY, Herew., Ch. XXIV, 103a. "You will not burn York? O God! is it come to this? — "And why not York town, or York minster, or Rome itself with the Pope inside it, rather than yield to barbarians? Ib., 103b.

A sermon was preached in Westminster Abbey by the Archbishop of Canterbury. Times. (Compare with this: the Westminster Cathedral, the name of the seat of the Roman Catholic Archbishop of Westminster.)

Exeter Hall was crowded on Saturday afternoon. Times.

The annual meeting was held at Grosvenor House. Id.

The Emperor William devoted Thursday morning to this duty at Buckingham Palace. Graph.

Irregularities: If you like, we can telegraph to some friend to meet you at the Christiania station. EDNA LYALL, A. Hardy Norseman, Ch. XVII, 156. His father, John Dickens, was at this time stationed in the Portsmouth dockyard. FORSTER, Life of Ch. Dick., I, Ch. I, 1b. (Compare: Their home, shortly after, was again changed, on the elder Dickens being placed upon duty in Chatham dockyard. Ib., I, Ch. I, 2b).

The definite article is, however, almost regularly used in the names of hotels, museums and theatres, but names of hotels with the name of the proprietor in the genitive stand without the article: the Clarendon Hotel, the Windsor Hotel; the South Kensington Museum; the Garrick Theatre, the Savoy Theatre; but Claridge's Hotel.

Thus also in the Alexandra Palace, the Albert Hall, the Fleet Prison, the Marshalsea Prison and in certain foreign names, such as the Mont Valérien.

- i. * The Budget Protest League held a dinner at the Ritz Hotel on Thursday to commemorate the close of its work. Westm. Gaz., No. 5179. 1b. One of the most disastrous fires of recent years was that by which the Windsor hotel in Fifth-Avenue was destroyed. Graph.

 I am at Claridge's Hotel. MAX. PEMB., Doctor Xavier, Ch. VI, 29a.

- ii. Sir Norman Lockyer last week distributed prizes at the South Kensington Museum. Times.

- iii. * 'Halves' at the Garrick Theatre. Times.

Mr. N. N. has decided to revive H. M. S. Pinafore, which will be produced at the Savoy Theatre. Ib.

The new play at the St. James's Theatre. II. Lond. News.

 On Sundays Mrs. Hoggarty used to go to Saint Pancras Church, then just built, and as handsome as Covent Garden Theatre. THACK., Sam. Titm., Ch. X, 120.

There is a tale to the effect that a certain orchestral player at Drury Lane Theatre had suffered sundry admonishments at rehearsal from his revered conductor. T. P.'s Weekly, No. 468, 524a.

- iv. The Alexandra Palace is not far from Charing Cross.

The frequenters of the Albert Hall were exacting as ever in the matter of encores. Times.

It was late before the Emperor and Empress reached the concert at the Albert Hall. Graph.

The Fleet Prison is pulled down. DICK, Pickw., Pref.

There had been taken to the Marshalsea Prison a debtor, with whom this narrative has some concern. DICK., Little Dorrit, Ch. VI, 29b.

He was confined in the Mont Valérien pending the Esterhazy trial. Times.

Curious is the following quotation, as exhibiting the different practice of father and daughter: The most notable event of last month in the Revival of the Drama was the production at Worthing Theatre of "Julius Caesar" by the Sompting Village Players. My daughter, has written the following report of the performance. — "I have just returned from witnessing a unique dramatic performance given at the Worthing Theatre." Rev. of Rev., CCXXXI, 267a.

Here follow some instances of divided usage; the head-word is:

university, college, school, etc. i. When he met the Princess, he was a student at Bonn University. Times.

In a Convocation of Oxford University Dr. Meyrath, Provost of Queen's College, laid down the office of Vice-Chancellor. Ib.

ii. Cuff, on the other hand, was the great chief and dandy of the Swishtail Seminary. THACK. Van Fair, I, Ch. V. 41.

A meeting of the canvassing committee of the Birmingham University was held last week. Times.

At a court the Victoria University held in Liverpool the degree of Doctor of Science was conferred on Lord Lister. Ib.

Dr. Saundby, Professor of Medicine at the Mason University College, delivered the address at the opening of the Cardiff Medical School. Ib.

hall. i. A great public meeting was held in St. James's Hall, London. MCCARTHY, Short Hist., Ch. XXII, 316.

In the evening the imperial party heard a sacred concert in St. George's Hall. Graph.

The only recital announced by M. Paderewski this season, drew a large audience to St. James's Hall on Tuesday afternoon. Times.

ii. Mr. Louis de Rougemont gave his first public lecture on Monday in the St. James's Hall. Id.

I note with satisfaction that you have abandoned the idea of holding the meeting in the Ulster Hall. Id., No. 1831, 83a.

hospital. i. Edinburgh has some noble hospitals and charitable institutions. Among these are . . . Heriot's Hospital . . . Watson's Hospitals. Penny Cycl., IX, 275/1. 1)

ii. A curious position of affairs has arisen at the St. John's Hospital for Diseases of the skin in Leicester Square. Truth, No. 1802, 75a.

Note I. The noun modified is sometimes dropped in the names of buildings that are preceded by the definite article.

The father of the Marshalsea. DICK., Little Dorrit, Ch. VI, 29b.

The marriages were subsequently celebrated in any building within the Liberty of the Fleet. Harmsworth Cycl.

Few have been privileged to assemble so large and distinguished an audience as that which gathered at the last night of the season at the St. James's. Graph.

1) MURRAY.

It is thoroughly characteristic of modern politics, at least on the Unionist side, that this eminent breaker of Parliaments should be dined at the Ritz and presented with a cigar-box for a trophy. Westm. Gaz., No. 5179, 1b.

"The Servant in the House", at the Adelphi. Il. Lond. News, No. 3680, 630b. Mme Sarah Bernhardt produces at the Adelphi the Hamlet, in which she appeared here last night. Times.

He did not wait long to try to put in practice the lessons he had learned at the St. James's. Rev. of Rev., CCXXVI, 303a.

II. In the names of hotels the two nouns are sometimes transposed.

He is staying in London at the Hotel Métropole. Times.

A farewell dinner was given by Dr. Carl Peters on Monday at the hotel Cecil. lb.

The great fire at the hotel Windsor, New York. Graph.

This is rarely done in the names of other buildings:

Castle Lowestein taken by stratagem. MOTLEY, Rise, III, Ch. V, 445a (Compare: On the western verge of the isle of Bommel stood the castle of Lowestein. lb).

Near it (sc. Apeldoorn) is Castle Loo, the summer residence of the royal family. Harmsworth Cycl.

- 2) The definite article is almost regularly dropped before the names of streets, squares, parks, etc., i. e. proper names containing such nouns as circus, crescent, cross, field(s), garden(s), park, square, street, terrace; e. g.: Oxford Street, Queen's Street; Finsbury Circus; Charing Cross, Soho Fields; Covent Garden; Hyde Park; Russell Square, King's Square, etc. But: the Thames embankment.

i. * We had a temporary lodging in Covent Garden. DICK., Cop., Ch. LV, 391a. The Emperor was in Buckingham Palace Gardens by eight the next morning. Graph. (with which compare: The weather cleared up and showed the Marlborough House grounds to advantage. lb.)

He crossed Fleet Street from Clifford's Inn to Middle Temple Lane. KATH. CECIL THURNSTON, John Chilcote, M. P., Ch. XII, 131.

 The Captain... gave a dinner at the Kildare Street. THACK., Pend., I, Ch. V, 59.

ii. He turned up the Thames Embankment. W. J. LOCKE, Glory of Clem. Wing, Ch. V, 70.

Note I. Compounds of road mostly drop the article when a street is meant, and retain it when denoting a track for travel forming a communication between one city, town, or place and another.

i. * They crossed from the Angel into St. John's Road. DICK., Ol. Twist, Ch. VIII, 83.

Its (sc. that of the North-East London Railway) city terminus is at the Monument, whence it runs to Hackney Road in tube. Harmsworth Encycl., s. v. London, 26c.

Some 500 vehicles per hour pass the junction of Oxford Street and Tottenham Court Road. lb., 26a.

Sussex-Gardens itself is apparently a subsidiary highway, and the traffic in that direction from Edgware-Road to Bayswater, passes three quite unimportant crossings. Westm. Gaz., No. 6317, 8c.

 That the book furnished a hint for which the time was ripe, was seen by the success of the movement which had for its result the People's Palace in the Mile-end road. Times.

I picked it (sc. my pink toque) up in the Edgware Road. AGN. & EG. CASTLE, Diamond cut Paste, II, Ch. II, 119.

The den of the occult one was dim, and eastern of the Tottenham Court Road. lb.

Going into a large house near the Bayswater road, she went upstairs to her daughter's bedroom. Westm. Gaz., No. 6311, 3c.

The Marble Arch was reached; there, still oblivious of his surroundings, he had crossed to the Edgware Road, passing through it to the labyrinth of shabby streets that lie behind Paddington. KATH. CECIL THURSTON, John Chilcote, M. P., Ch. III, 26.

- ii. Panting and crying, but never stopping, (I) faced about for Greenwich, which I had understood was on the Dover Road. Dick., C. p., Ch. XXII, 90a.

I doubt if I should have had any (sc. notion of going back), though there had been a Swiss snow-storm in the Kent Road. Ib., Ch. XIII, 90a.

II. Observe also the frequent absence of the definite article in the names of other localities as in:

As for the suburban mothers and daughters, their envy is reserved for the processions, between Hyde Park Corner and Marble Arch, later in the day. Westm. Gaz., No. 5607, 8d. (The Marble Arch would be a reference to the monument as in: (He moved) rapidly till the Marble Arch was reached. KATH. CECIL THURSTON, John Chilcote, M. P., Ch. III, 26.)

- 3) Usage is divided in geographical names, some regularly taking the definite article, some as regularly rejecting it.

- a) Those which take the article are especially such as contain any of the following nouns: basin, channel, district, pass, peninsula, range, reef, river, rock, valley.

basin. The Thames basin may be divided into two parts.

The Congo basin. Times.

channel. The Severn turns out a noble river by the time it reaches the King's Roads, and forms the Bristol Channel. Mrs. CRAIK, John Hall, Ch. II, 18.

district. The cattle of the Calgary district. Times.

pass. Describing his visit to the Khyber Pass, Mr. Fisher writes [etc.]. II. Lond. News, No. 3875, 141a.

peninsula. Singapore, a British settlement off the southern extremity of the Malay Peninsula. Cassell's Conc. Cycl.

range. This morning the Drakensberg Range is draped in snow. Times.

reef. The Manacles Reef. Id.

river. One summer morning in the year 1756... the Young Rachel... came up the Avon river on her happy return from her annual voyage to the Potomac. THACK., Virg., Ch. I, 4.

It is the Severn River, though at this distance you cannot perceive it. Mrs. CRAIK, John Hall, Ch. II, 18.

The Peace river flows nearly due east for a couple of hundred miles. Times. Thus also: And the fog rose out of the Oxus stream. MATTH. ARNOLD, Sohrab and Rustum, 2.

rock. The Inchcape Rock has been the death of many a sailor.

valley. The Nile Valley. Times.

Note I. Except for some newly coined names, such as Peace-river, the noun river is now mostly dispensed with: the Severn, the Rhine, the Thames, etc.

II. The definite article is sometimes suppressed before such bare names of rivers:

regularly in English names of towns, such as Newcastle-on-Tyne, Stratford-on-Avon; German names of towns retaining the article: Frankfort-on-the-Main, Frankfort-on-the-Oder (Cassell's Conc. Cycl.). The article is not, of course, suppressed in such collocations as London on the Thames, Liverpool on the Mersey, the name of the river not forming part of the proper name.

occasionally, in earlier or archaic English. FRANZ, Shak. Gram., § 119; MÄTZN., Eng. Gram.², III, 169.

And when you saw his chariot but appear, | Have you not made an universal shout, | That Tiber trembled underneath her banks? Jul. Cæs., I, 1, 46.

Bring us not over Jordan. Bible, Numbers, XXXII, 5.

E'er since a truant boy I pass'd the bounds | To enjoy a ramble on the banks of Thames. COWPER, Task, I, 115.

Peace waits us on the shores of Acheron. BYRON, Child Har., II, vii.

I little thought, when first thy rein | I slack'd upon the banks of Seine [etc.].

SCOTT, Lady, I, ix, 12.

Before Shakespeare's resting-place, under the tall spire which rises by Avon. THACK., Virg., Ch. I, 7.

A large part of the country beyond Trent was, down to the eighteenth century, in a state of barbarism. Mac., Hist., I, Ch. III, 249.

Through the black Tartar tents he pass'd which stood | Clustering like bee-hives on the low flat strand | Of Oxus. MATTH. ARNOLD, Sohrab and Rustum, 14.

There was already river pollution: dyes and dirt floated down from mills and towns. Teviot, below Hawick, was a vulgar Styx; and below Galashiels, Tweed was little better. But from Teviot Stone to Hawick, the water was clearer than amber; so was Ettrick, almost till it joins Tweed; so was Yarrow; so was Ail; and they were not over-fished. II. Lond. News, No. 3618, 882a.

III. When, what is often done, the proper name is placed after the noun river, it has not, of course, the article: the river Danube. While on the subject, it may be observed that anciently appositional of was placed between the class-noun and the proper name: the river of Thames. MURRAY, s. v. of, 23. Thus also archaically in:

He had a tedious but easy water-journey down the river of Rhine. THACK., Henry Esmond, II, Ch. X, 230.

And then, behold, beneath him was the long green garden of Egypt and the shining stream of Nile. CH. KINGSLEY, The Heroes, I, iv, 70.

- β) Those which reject the article are especially such as contain any of the following nouns: bay, bill, city, cliff, harbour, haven, head, hill, island, mountain, plain, sea, sound, strait(s), town.

bay. This district stretches from Hudson's Bay to the Great Lakes. Times. England at the present moment is directing a very keen, critical eye upon Delagoa Bay. Id.

bill. Portland Bill (also the Bill of Portland).¹⁾ city. Kansas City at the mouth of the Kansas river. Harmsworth Encyclop.

cliff. To the right the white curve of Ramsgate cliffs looks down on the crescent of Pegwell Bay. GREEN.¹⁾ harbour. Drake dropped anchor again in Plymouth harbour. GREEN.

haven. Milford Haven, a land-locked arm of the sea. Harmsw. Encyc.

head. Beachy Head rises to a perpendicular height of 564 ft. Id.

¹⁾ FOELS.—KOCH, Wis. Gram., § 263.

island. You will see Ram Head and Cawsand Bay and Drake's Island. MARRYAT.¹⁾ The Khalifa was last heard of at Baha, three days west of Abbah Island. Times. mountain. We stumbled down Penmaenmaur Mountain. Westm. Gaz., No. 6311, 3a.

plain. The road lay right across Salisbury plain. MAC., Hist., II, Ch. V, 170 strait(s). The British India line (London and Brisbane via Torres Straits). Harmsworth Encycl., s. v. Brisbane.

sea. From Behring Sea to the Gulf of Pe-chi-li stretches her (sc. Russia's) sea-base. Times.

sound. The Prince of Wales, who is serving as a midshipman in the battleship Hindustan now in Plymouth Sound, paid a visit to Devonport Dockyard last Friday. Times, No. 1807, 660a.

- 4) The article is now practically regularly suppressed before geographical names in which any of the nouns cape, fort, lake (loch, lough), mo(u)nt, port precede the proper name.

cape. From Cape Comorin to the Himalayas. MAC.

fort. Fort St. George had risen on a barren spot. Id., Clive.

lake. Lake Lemán lies by Chillon's walls. BYRON, Pris. of Chil., VI, 1. The rapids between Lakes Lindemann and Bennett. Graph.

loch. Loch Katrine lay beneath him rolled. SCOTT, Lady, I, xiv, II.

lough. He had brought from the neighbourhood of Lough Erne a regiment of dragoons. MACAULAY.²⁾ mount. At Mount Edgumbe you will behold the finest timber in existence. Id.

mont. There are places in which Mont Blanc might be sunk without showing its peak above water. HUXL., Col. Es., VIII, I, 12.

port. Port Arthur was ceded to Japan.

Note I. Mount is often dispensed with: An eruption of Vesuvius. Times. Such is Vesuvius, and these things take place in it every year. LYTTON, Last Days of Pomp., Motto.

Parnassus, Ida, Athos, Olympus, Ætna. BYRON, Childe Har., IV, LXXIV.

Observe the exceptional suppression of the article before Caucasus in: And they knew that they were come to Caucasus, ... Caucasus, the highest of all mountains. CH. KINGSLEY, The Heroes, II, iv, 152.

Compare: Kazbek, volcanic mountain in the Caucasus. Harmsworth Encycl., s. v. Kazbek.

Trans-Caucasia ... lies between the Caucasus on the north and Turkey-in-Asia and Persia on the south. CAS. CONC. CYCL., s. v. Trans-Caucasia.

II. The ancient names of mountains in England, Wales and Scotland are never preceded by mount, and stand without the article.

'T were long to tell... | When rose Benledi's ridge in air. SCOTT.²⁾

The Cambrian Range includes all the Welsh mountains, the highest of which is Snowdon.²⁾

III. Early Modern English sometimes has the article before mount. FRANZ, *Shak. Gram.*²⁾, § 265; MÄTZN., *Eng. Gram.*²⁾, III, 162.

ANT. Where lies he? — CÆS. About the Mount Misenum. ANT. and CLEOP., II, 2, 164.

I am going to the Mount Zion. BUNYAN, Pilgr. Progr., (160).

¹⁾ FOELS.—KOCH, Wis. Gram., § 263.

²⁾ Ib., § 261.

The following is a Late Modern English instance:

In other ways... he (sc. Blake) was also a forerunner; striking into the light and air high up on the mount Parnassus new fountains of song, which were in the future to become rivers of fresh emotion, thought, and imagination. STOPFORD A. BROOKE, Stud. in Poetry, Ch. I, 2.

IV. German names of mountains usually have the definite article: the Brocken, the St. Gothard, etc.

Two parties from the Monchjoch and the Finsteraarhorn had anticipated us. Westm. Gaz., No. 6311, 3a.

The Breithorn, the Glandegg and the Théodul are no place for you and me. Ib.

Thus also in the foreign names instanced in the following quotations:

i. Of course there is not that sort of excitement in store for us as we make for... the Monte Rosa at Zermatt. Westm. Gaz., No. 6311, 3a.

ii. The inn (is) as remarkable in some respects as its neighbour at Nant Borant, on the other side of the Col de Bonhomme. Ib.

iii. The snowy summits of the Sierra Nevada shone like silver. *WASH. IRV.*¹⁾

V. Names of promontories ending in head, ness or point never stand with the article: Beachy Head, Fife Ness, Corsill Point, etc.

5) The definite article is regularly retained before the names of ships, or other means of locomotion.

i. Over the little mantel-shelf was a picture of the Sarah Jane lugger. DICK., Cop. Ch. III, 25b.

On the 14th of October following the Rodney cutter arrived with the sad news in England. THACK., Virg., Ch. LXXIV, 788.

The Phæton frigate on which Moore had procured a passage, left Spithead on Sept. 25th. STEPHEN GWENN., Thom. Moore, Ch. II, 29.

The Boston frigate took him to New York. Ib.

ii. Under pretence of going to read a Greek play with Smirke, this young reprobate set off so as to be in time for the Competitor down coach. DICK., Pend., I, Ch. VI, 67.

Note I. The noun modified is often dispensed with: the Osborne the Mauretania.

The owner of the Young Rachel... gave the hand of welcome to Captain Franks. THACK., Virg., Ch. I, 3.

II. When, what is often done, the proper name is placed after the class-noun, the former loses the definite article: the ship Good Fortune (TEN., Enoch Arden, 523).

A wireless call for help... came from the steamship Niagara. Times No. 1842, 1d.

THE USE OF THE GENERALIZING DEFINITE ARTICLE IN DETAIL.

31. The definite article is normally used:

a) before adjectives partially converted into nouns, which denote either a class of persons or a quality in a generalizing way (Ch. XXIX, 14—15; 21).

i. * The blind are objects of compassion, not of sorrow. ANNIE BESANT, Autob., 342.

 The Dutch are slow to move, but when moved are moved effectually. FROUDE, Oceana, Ch. III, 51.

ii. The beautiful can never die. Ch. KINGSLEY, Hyp., Ch. II, 6b.

¹⁾ FOELS-KOCH, Wis. Gram., § 261.

Note I. Also when an adjective denotes a single person in a generalizing way after such verbs as to commit, to do and to play, the definite article is regularly used. (Ch. XXIX, 16.)

He had always a great notion of committing the amiable. DICK., Pickw., Ch. XIV, 125.

II. When in denoting an abstraction a pure noun is used instead of a partially converted adjective, the article is regularly absent (Ch. XXIX, 22, Obs. II, β). See, however, 35.

Then the inspiring love of novelty and adventure came rushing in full tide through his bosom. WASH. IRV., Dolf Heyl. (Stof. Handl., I, 124).

b) before singular nouns denoting persons, animals or things spoken of in a generalizing way.

i. We often had the traveller or stranger visit us. GOLDSM., Vic., Ch. I, (236). Those who see the Englishman only in town, are apt to form an unfavourable opinion of his character. WASH. IRV.¹⁾ ii. The fox, whose life is, in many counties, held almost as sacred as that of a human being, was considered as a mere nuisance. MAC., Hist., II, Ch. III, 307.

The lion is a beast of prey.

iii. God made the country and man made the town. COWPER.²⁾

What comes by the wind goes by the water. CH. READE, It is never too late to mend, I, Ch. I, 23.

It was war to the knife between Marjory and myself. MRS. ALEX., A Life Interest, I, Ch. IV, 76.

Remarkable exceptions are man, whether denoting the human species or the male human species, and woman. The absence of the article may be due to the fact that these nouns, when used in a generalizing way, assume more or less the character of indefinite pronouns. (57.)

i. * Universal History, the History of what man has accomplished in the world, is at bottom the History of the Great. CARLYLE, Hero Worship, 10. Man everywhere is the born enemy of lies. Ib., 4.

Of all living creatures none are created so unequal in strength, size, courage, skill, in anything: as man. WALT. BESANT, St. Kath., II, Ch. I, 1.

 Man's love is of man's life a thing apart, | 'Tis woman's whole existence. BYRON, Don Juan, I, cxciv.

ii. Woman forgives but too readily, Captain. THACK., Van Fair, I, Ch. XXIII, 237, Play is not so fatal as woman. Id., Newc. I. Ch. XXVIII, 308.

Of all this and much more, the rosy landlady of the Blue Dragon took an accurate note and observation, as only woman can take of woman. DICK., Chuz., Ch. III, 156.

Ay, though he loved her from his soul, with such a self-denying love as woman seldom wins. Ib., Ch. XXXI, 251a.

Woman's love is a robe that wraps her from many a storm. LYTTON, Rienzi, III, Ch. III, 142.

Who loves wine, loves woman. TEN., Beck., Prolog., (694b).

Fear not the face of man, but look not on the face of woman. CH. KINGSLEY, Hyp., Ch. I, 5a.

¹⁾ FOELS-KOCH, Wis. Gram., § 267.

²⁾ WEBST.

Note I. Sometimes the article is used, mostly when syntactically connected with another noun which has the generalizing article, or a plural without the article.

- i. * Every age produces those links between the man and the baboon. MACAULAY.¹⁾
A French man of letters has just published a most curious and valuable work on Mad Dogs, which demonstrates the continuity, not only of madness in the Dog, but of folly in the Man. Newspaper.¹⁾
 The woman looms much larger in the world of books than the man, and she reads more sociological works than the other sex. Fortn. Rev., 1912, 164.²⁾
- ii. It is almost impossible to realise the prejudices which existed in Crimean times against giving either authority or responsibility to women in what was regarded as the man's sphere. Westm. Gaz., No. 6377, 11a.

II. In such sentences as The child is father of the man (WORDSWORTH), You can see the woman in the little girl, quoted by MURRAY (s.v. the, II, 19) as exceptions, the reference is rather to a quality than to a person understood in a generalizing way. (Ch. XXIX, 22, Obs. II, a.)

"The childhood," said Milton, "shows the man, as morning shows the day. EMERSON, Domestic Life (ELIZ. JANE IRV., Lit. Read., III, 238. (In this quotation the suppression of the definite article before morning, which is at variance with the meaning conveyed and with accepted usage, improves the rhythm.)

III. In the following quotation the definite article is, apparently, used for the sake of the metre. It may have been dropped for the same reason before men in the preceding line.

Your beauty is no beauty to him now; | A common chance — right well I know it — pall'd — | For I know men: nor will ye win him back, | For the man's love, once gone, never returns. TEN., Ger. and En., 330—3.

IV. Classifying adjuncts sometimes cause the definite article to be re-established, but continuative adjuncts have no such effect.

- i. * The idea of the Universal Man did not exist in Pope's time. STOPFORD BROOKE, Theol. in the Eng. Poets, Ch. I, 17.
The gentle art of doing nothing appears to be one of those which education has taken from the modern man. Westm. Gaz., No. 4967, 5a.
Strange—strange are the ways of the modern woman. MRS. BELLOC LOWNDES, Jane Oglander, Ch. XX, 268.
Of course, there are other instances (sc. of the way in which over-elaborated societies end up with their tails in their mouths; in a posture not merely twisted but inverted), at which I have already glanced. There was the primitive man, whom we left offering sacrifice to the gods. CHESTERTON (II. Lond. News, No. 3801, 271b.)
How wisely has the modern Confessor adapted himself to the modern Man. FRANCIS THOMPSON, Health and Holiness, 19.
 The nobler conceptions of human life ... are necessarily totally incomprehensible to primitive man. Times, No. 1826, 1049b.
So far, no trace of Neanderthal man has been discovered in England. Id., No. 1832, 109b.
Mr. Munro was well advised in selecting prehistoric man as the subject of the first course of the Munro Lectures. Athen., No. 4433, 419a.
Man, especially English man, is so very afraid of doing a new thing. Westm. Gaz., No. 6299. 4c.

1) WENDT, Synt. des heut. Eng., 168-9.

2) PRICK VAN WELY, E. S., XLVI, 336.

ii. Much may be learned with regard to lovely woman by a look at the book she reads. THACK., Men's Wives, Ch. II, (328).

It was long indeed since an English sovereign had knelt to mortal man. MAC., Hist., III, Ch. VIII, 97.

All the people in Seriphos said that he was not the son of mortal man. CH. KINGSLEY, The Heroes, I, Ch. II, 31.

V. The article cannot be dispensed with before the combination adjective + man, when man is used as a prop-word. (Ch. XXIX, 14b.)

If there is a man in the world needs the love and sympathy of a wife, it is the literary man. T. P.'s Weekly, No. 478, 4a.

Even in Ireland, which has a reputation for witty sons, the Cork man is held to be supreme for his wit. Id., No. 496, 577b.

VI. In the following quotation the suppression, due to the measure, seems to be rather that of the possessive pronoun than the definite article:

Do what you can for fellow-man. CH. MACKAY, There's Work for all to do, I.

VII. The definite article is regularly placed before man and woman in the collocations to play the man or woman. (Ch. XXIX, 16, Note III.)

I told him he had better play the man a little more. CH. KINGSLEY, Westw. Hol., Ch. XVIII, 137a.

There will be fearful vengeance taken on those tyrants, unless they play the man to-day. Id., Ch. XX, 153a.

VIII. The use of the definite article before man in the Authorised Version, Gen. II, 15, 16, 18 and, perhaps, more places, may be due to some specializing element, such as (the man) which I (he) have (had) created, being understood.

And the Lord God said, It is not good that the man should be alone. Bible, Gen., II, 18. (Compare: God created man in his own image. Id., I, 4.)

IX. It may have been observed that in some of the above quotations it seems as plausible to assume the absence of the indefinite as of the generalizing definite article, the function of the one being sometimes practically the same as that of the other (7, c, Note II). This will also become apparent from a comparison of a midge and man in the following quotation:

As a midge before an elephant, so is man when opposed to Fate. J. D. BERESFORD, Force Majeure (Westm. Gaz., No. 6299, 9a).

32. The definite article is less regularly used before collective nouns in a generalizing sense.

a) Some of these, especially such as express a class, a sect or a section of society, never reject it any more than their Dutch equivalents. For illustration see also Ch. XXVI, 9.

aristocracy. Who says that the aristocracy are proud? Mrs. GASK., Cranf., XI, 206.

bar. The dinner to be given by the English Bar to M. Berryer. Times.

church. The death of dean Stanley is a loss to the Church. Lit. World. Dr. MacLagan has done good service in the Church. Westm. Gaz.

clergy. The new Protestant clergy were often unpopular. GREEN, Short Hist., Ch. VII, § III, 378.

The publican has thrown his weight into the same scale, and the clergy certainly have not remained at home. Westm. Gaz., No. 5219, 2a.

commonalty. He may look very well on the outside, but I detect at once in his speech the flavour of the great unwashed, the mob, the commonalty. GRANT ALLEN, That Friend of Sylvia's.

community. The omnibus is in favour with all classes of the community. GÜNTHER, Leerb. (According to BAIN, H. E. Gr., 60, the Americans say: Community thinks so too.)

democracy. I think that the democracy would be with them (sc. the Liberals) as in 1910. Westm. Gaz., No. 6305, 7a.

gentry. The gentry rode their own horses or drove, in their own coaches. THACKERAY, Barry Lyndon, Ch. III, 50.

herd. The herd has been eating and drinking and marrying as usual. CH. KINGSLEY, Hypatia, Ch. II, 7b.

laity. That is the essential part of a book which we do not hesitate to describe as a medical manifesto of real importance addressed equally to the medical profession and the laity. Westm. Gaz., No. 5231, 10b.

The appeal . . . is as much to the medical man as to the laity. Ib.

mass. All great regenerations are the universal movement of the mass. LYTON, Rienzi, I, Ch. VIII, 52.

mob. Is the mob more bold, more constant? Ib., I, Ch. VIII, 52.

multitude. To me, all great regenerations seem to have been the work of the few, and tacitly accepted by the multitude. Ib., I, Ch. VIII, 52.

nobility, people, priesthood. In Gaul were two orders, the nobility and the priesthood, while the people, says Cæsar, were all slaves. MOTLEY, Rise, Hist. Intr., 4b.

peasantry. The peasantry go barefooted. BAIN, H. E. Gr.

people. Tell the people how much I have loved them always. ANNIE BESANT, Autobiography, 331. (See also under nobility.)

priesthood. See under nobility.

public. Do you suppose that the public reads with a view to its own conversion. G. ELIOT, Mid., V, Ch. XLVI, 343.

rabble. The rabble call him lord. HAMLET, IV, 5, 101.

town. The town has asserted that I never yet patronized a man of merit. GOLDSMITH, Good-nat. man, IV.

world. The world have paid too great a compliment to critics. FIELDING, Tom Jones, V, Ch. I, 63.

- b) But the definite article is suppressed, contrary to the Dutch practice, before many other nouns of a similar collective sense, such as Christendom (= the christians, or the christian countries collectively), humanity, humankind, manhood, mankind (with the accent on the second syllable = the human species, with the accent on the first syllable = the male sex) maturity, posterity, royalty, society, womankind; and also before the names of abstractions and of religious philosophical and artistical systems that have a collective meaning, such as childhood, infancy, youth; barbarism, Catholicism, Christianity (= the Christian faith); Islam, Mohammedanism, Paganism, philosophy, Protestantism, Romanism.

The suppression of the article is, apparently, due to the original abstract meaning of these words, which, indeed, pervades their altered application also in a more or less degree (34), partly also, perhaps, to their having to a certain extent the character of indefinite pronouns. (57.) The first of the following quotations aptly illustrates their different treatment, as compared with that observed with the collective nouns mentioned higher up. For illustration see also Ch. XXVI, 9.

barbarism, philosophy. The struggle is not even between philosophy and barbarism. The struggle is one between the aristocracy and the mob. CH. KINGSLEY, Hypatia, Ch. II, 8a.

Catholicism, Protestantism. We often hear it said that the world is constantly becoming more and more enlightened, and that this enlightenment must be favourable to Protestantism, and unfavourable to Catholicism. MAC., Es., Popes, (542b). Jerusalem, after all, is the cradle of the faith, not of Protestantism, nor of Catholicism, but of Christendom at large. Times.

childhood. The two real interests of childhood and play (Miss Austen's opinion of children). II. Lond. News.

Childhood is poetic and creative. T. P.'s Weekly, No. 483, 193a.

christendom. He would rather you addressed the populace than the best priest in Christendom. LYTON, Rienzi, I, Ch. VIII, 52.

The eyes of all Christendom will be directed hither. Ib., II, Ch. III, 84.

christianity. See under paganism.

humanity. Thus the rascally tailors were to be put down, humanity clad and the philanthropists rewarded with a clear return of 30 per cent. LYTON, Caxtons, II, Ch. II, 32b.

His mode of life has very much resembled that of Tom Jones, Roderick Random, specimens of humanity whom I hold in peculiar and especial detestation. SARAH GRAND, The Heav. Twins, I, 109.

The difficulty to keep so poor a specimen of humanity as Richard Boyce in his place. Mrs. WARD, Marcella, I, 194.

humankind. Her separation from her parent had reconciled her to all human-kind. DICK., Chuz., Ch. XLVI, 353b.

Her brother and her nephew represented to her the flower of humankind. Mrs. WARD, Marcella, I, 159.

Compare: One lingering sympathy of mind | Still bound him to the mortal kind. SCOTT, Lady, III, vii, 16.

Islam. The Caliph of Islam is said to be considering whether in response to this attack by a Christian Power upon the Moslem Empire in Africa, he ought to proclaim a Jihad in defence of endangered Islam. STEAD, Letter to the Times (quoted in Weekly Times, No. 1814, 796c).

manhood. English manhood is not peculiar in being lectured from time to time on its manners. Westm. Gaz.

mankind. i. Courage becomes the first quality mankind must honour. LYTON, Caxtons, III, Ch. II, 59.

Honour is the foundation of all improvement in mankind. Ib., 60.

Only queens should rule mankind. CH. KINGSLEY, Westw. Ho!, Ch. XVI, 130a.

ii. Should all despair | That have revolted wives, the tenth of mankind | Would hang themselves. Winter's Tale, I, 2, 99.

The infinite simplicity and silliness of mankind and womankind at large. TROL., Lady Anna, Ch. IX, 67.1)

¹ MURRAY.

Compare: You don't know human nature, male human nature! AGN. & EG. CASTLE, Diam. cut Paste, II, Ch. I, 114.

maturity. Youth suffers and howls with pain, while maturity suffers and smiles at the futility of howling. T. P.'s Weekly, No. 469, 569a.

mortality. Pasteur and Lister have done so much by their genius to alleviate the sufferings to which mortality is heir. Westm. Gaz., No. 6329, 11b.

Paganism, Christianity. Do not fancy that the battle is merely between Paganism and Christianity. CH. KINGSLEY, Hyp., Ch. II, 8a.

posterity. Posterity has not yet confirmed honest Hogarth's opinion about his talents for the sublime. THACKERAY.

Protestantism. See under Catholicism.

Romanism. To-day's issue of the Nuova Anthologia contains an article upon the progress of Romanism in England. Times.

Royalty. Royalty in most countries is fond of the stage, but merely as a spectator II. Lond. News.

society. i. This one thing is clear — Society must deal with the unemployed, or the unemployed will deal with Society. ANNIE BESANT, Autobiog., 319.

If you choose to associate with the scum of society, you may do as you like. GRANT ALLEN, That Friend of Sylvia's.

ii. The causes of this improvement in the productive powers of labour, and the order according to which its produce is naturally distributed among the different ranks and conditions of men in the society, make the subject of the first book of this Inquiry. ADAM SMITH, Wealth of Nations, Introd., 2.

What have been the effects of those debts upon the real wealth, the annual produce of the land and labour of the society? Ib., 4.

womankind. She was at any rate their natural guardian in those matters, relating to womankind. Mrs. WARD, Marcella, I, 194.

youth. What follies will not youth perpetrate! THACK., Pend., I, Ch. XVIII, 187. But he was young and youth is curious. CH. KINGSLEY, Hyp., Ch. I, 1b.

Note I. Continuative adjectives do not cause the article to be used before the above nouns, but restrictive adjectives may.

i. Fortunately — most fortunately for erring humanity — no dog cares two wags of his tail about your moral character. Westm. Gaz., No. 4967, 6b.

The inestimable benefits conferred upon suffering humanity by Lord Lister. Ib., No. 6329, 11a.

ii. * He had been at the Treasury, and for a month or two at the Admiralty, astonishing official mankind by his diligence. TROL., Framl. Pars., Ch. II, 15.

 The Christian idea of the New Mankind. Westm. Gaz., No. 6329, 7a.

II. It seems difficult to account for the regular use of the generalizing definite article before Papacy, a noun which is, apparently, of a similar collective meaning as the other names of ecclesiastical systems.

The Republic of Venice was modern when compared with the Papacy, and the Republic of Venice is gone and the Papacy remains. The Papacy remains, not in decay, not a mere antique, but full of life and youthful vigour. Mac., Popes, (542a).

Dr. Windhorst's task as the Champion of the Papacy was anything but an easy one. Graph.

All that Byzantium lost, the Papacy won. WILLIAM BARRY, The Papacy, Prol., 16. The Papacy fell into unspeakable degradation. Ib., 18.

III. Creation seems to take the definite article, when the reference is to living beings, and to throw it off, when it has the wider sense of all things created. When not used in a collective sense, but denoting the beginning of the world, it seems to take the article regularly: creation standing for creation of the world.

- i. I will not enlarge this quaint saying to the most beautiful part of the creation in general. FIELDING, Tom Jones, XV, Ch. II, 98*b*.

A fine girl is worth all the priestcraft in the creation. GOLDSM., Vicar, Ch. VII.

My life has been chiefly spent in a college or an inn, in seclusion from that part of the creation that chiefly teach men confidence. Id., She Stoops, I, (180).

(His horse was) sweating and terrified, as if experiencing that agony of fear with which the presence of a supernatural being is supposed to agitate the brute creation. SCOTT, Bride of Lam., Ch. XXII, 227.

He is fond of hearing stories how the mightiest of the brute creation may be deceived by the wiles employed against them. DEIGHTON, Note to Jul. Cæs., II, 1, 203-7.

The landlady ... had already given vent to an indignant inquiry whether Mr. Wardle considered himself a lord of the creation. DICK., Pickw., Ch. X, 85.

The Lords of the Creation are ripe for reform. Westm. Gaz., No. 5277, 4*b*.

- ii. No change, no degradation, no perversion of humanity, in any grade, through all the mysteries of wonderful creation, has monsters half so horrible and dread. DICK., Christm. Carol. III, 84.

Acknowledged history is but a grain of sand on the shore of creation. Good Words.

While there is another town left in creation, I'll never trouble you again, Tergou. CH. READE, The Cloister and the Hearth, Ch. XI, 60.

But ever and anon his childish prattle recurred to what impressed his imagination even more deeply than the wonders of creation. HARDY, Tess, I, Ch. IV, 35.

- iii. The simple words in which the writer of Genesis records the proceedings of the fifth and sixth days of the Creation. HUXLEY, Col. Es., VIII, 1, 35.

- c) Collective nouns of the second kind, i. e. such as denote conceptions without limits (Ch. XXVI, 7), like material and abstract nouns (34), regularly reject the definite article.

Infantry (foot) seldom resists cavalry (horse).

33. Before plural nouns when denoting a class of persons, animals or things in a generalizing way, the definite article is mostly used.

- a) Thus we find it normally in the following quotations:

And Jesus said unto them, The foxes have holes, and the birds of the air have nests; but the Son of Man hath not where to lay his head. Bible, Matth., VIII, 20.

Then you're no friend to the ladies. GOLDSM., She Stoops, II, (194).

The fact is, that the cigar is a rival to the ladies. THACK., Fitzboodile, Pref., (204).

From indulging in that simple habit of smoking, I have gained among the ladies a dreadful reputation. Id., (209).

A shy man's lot is not a happy one. The men dislike him, the women despise him, and he dislikes and despises himself. JEROME, Idle Thoughts, IX, 143.

While man is very little higher than the beasts, he is also very little lower than the angels. MALET, Mrs. Lorimer, 209. 1)

Sir Robert Peel's apostrophe to the Conservatives was reproduced by Mr. Bal-four in his speech at the Primrose League demonstration at Hatfield. Graph.

1) TEN BRUG., Taalst., X, 218.

If only the ladies could all have their own way in this world, and never be thwarted, then were the Millennium near at hand. Ib.

It is necessary that the nationalists shall be absolutely independent. Ib.

The Extremists ask for nothing less than the establishment of complete Ministerial responsibility, while the Moderates are willing to be content with some assurance that the Chancellor will in future be responsible to the Reichstag. Westm. Gaz.

Note I. When what is meant is not a class in a generalizing way, but an indefinite number, the article is not, of course, used.

The stranger who would form a correct opinion of the English character, must sojourn in villages and hamlets; he must visit castles, villas, farmhouses, cottages [etc.]. *WASH. IRVING.*¹⁾

Such plurals correspond to singulars preceded by the indefinite article in its varied functions. (7.)

i. Days elapsed before any one understood what had happened.

ii. Boys showed us the way.

iii. * Islands are pieces of land surrounded by water.

 Lions are beasts of prey.

iv. We want men for such a task.

But in like manner as the indefinite article, as a weak any, is sometimes practically equivalent to the generalizing definite article (7, c, Note II), plurals without the article are sometimes used in, apparently, the same meaning as plurals with the generalizing definite article.

When leaves fall and flowers fade, great people are found in their country-seats. LYTTON, What will he do with it?, V, Ch. I, 242.

The task before Liberals and Free Traders is to drive home the fact that the Opposition policy is one of food taxes as a preliminary to full-blooded Protection. Westm. Gaz.

II. The difference between the generalizing (or indefinite) singular and the indefinite (or generalizing) plural is clearly brought out by the following quotations:

Men die, but Man is immortal. *Periodical.*²⁾

Most thinkers write and speak of man; Mr. Browning of men. *Symons.*²⁾

III. Sometimes the use or absence of the article is conditioned by the metre. Thus in:

Men are God's trees, and women are God's flowers; | And when the Gascon wine mounts to my head, | The trees are all the statelier, and the flowers | Are all the fairer. TEN., Beck., Prol., (694b).

IV. Sometimes the absence of the article may be due to the noun assuming more or less the vagueness of an indefinite pronoun. (57).

Liberals therefore are beginning to ask with much insistence what future is there either for the Government or for the party, if no means can be found of removing the obstruction of the Peers. Westm. Gaz. (= Dutch Van liberale zijde begint men te vragen enz.)

If the English tongue should ever die out, future generations would have to learn English as a dead language in order that they might read Milton. Ib., (= Dutch...zou men voortaan Engelsch moeten leeren, enz.)

¹⁾ FOELS.—KOCH, Wis. Gram., § 267.

²⁾ WENDT, Synt. des heut. Eng., 169.

- b) Regular is the suppression of the definite article before plurals used in a generalizing sense after a superlative, when the notion of comparison with other specimens of the class is obscured, i. e. when little more is meant than a high degree of the quality expressed by the adjective. Thus English is the easiest of languages = English is a very easy language; English is the easiest of the modern languages = Of the modern languages English is the easiest to acquire.

The misses Osborne had had the best of governesses. THACK., Van Fair, I, Ch. XII, 114.

That very evening Amelia wrote him the tenderest of long letters. Ib., Ch. XIII, 133. The best of women (I have heard my grandmother say) are hypocrites. Ib., I, Ch. XVII, 179.

Dare any soul on earth breathe a word against the sweetest, the purest, the tenderest, the most, angelical of young women? Ib., I, Ch. XVII, 188.

They vilipended the poor innocent girl as the basest and most artful of vixens. Ib., I, Ch. XVI, 131a.

Riding is the most healthy of exercises. G. ELIOT, Mid., I, Ch. II, 12.

With his jests and his frankness he made the best of crimps. CH. KINGSLEY, Westw. Hol., Ch. XVI, 131a.

Few of us realize how recently the changes have begun, which have made London the healthiest instead of the unhealthiest of cities. Graph.

Even the healthiest of persons is liable to stomachic derangement sometimes. Westm. Gaz., No. 6029, 13c.

He (sc. the hawfinch) is among the shyest of birds. Ib., 13a.

Compare with the above the following quotations, in which the use of the article has the effect of imparting to the superlative its ordinary meaning of exceeding all others:

(He only procured) a trifle occasionally... by obtaining an appearance at one or other of the commonest of the minor theatres. DICK., Pickw., Ch. III, 24.

The Last of the Barons. LYTTON, name of a novel.

The Last of the Mohicans. FENIMORE COOPER, name of a novel.

Man is the shortest-lived of the beasts. Il. Lond. News, No. 3831, 428a.

The Nation, best and brightest of the Weeklies. (For the absence of the article before the superlative see 20, e. Thus also in: Professor Reinhardt, most popular of theatrical directors, was responsible for the staging. Il. Lond. News, No. 3796, 76b.)

Note I. The article is sometimes suppressed also when there is a distinct notion of comparison with other specimens of the class.

The greatest of faults is to be conscious of none. CARLYLE, Hero Worship, II, 43.

Rotterdam is the most enterprising of Dutch cities. Lit. World.

II. The same construction may be observed with a singular abstract noun instead of a plural.

Both appeared to be in the best of health. Times, No. 1809, 698c. (= in excellent health.)

This would be denounced... as the rankest of treason. Westm. Gaz., No. 6389, 1b.

III. Sometimes a noun expressing a high degree of excellence, takes the place of the superlative. Such a noun may be preceded by the indefinite article, and the preposition of may be replaced by among.

i. The prince of charioteers. SHER., Riv., I, 1.

Archibald Forbes, the prince of war correspondents. T. P.'s Weekly, No. 4971, 613b.

- ii. I lived with a king of men and did not know his greatness. ZANGWILL, The Next Religion, III, 157.
A prince of dreamers. F. A. STEELE, name of a novel.
- iii. She (sc. Lady Mary Wortley Montagu) was a queen among women. T. P.'s Weekly.

IV. A singular noun identical with the plural sometimes has the value of a superlative: the sin of sins = the greatest of sins.

Acquiescence in things as they are is the sin of sins. Rev. of Rev., CXCV, 138b. (That is) the gift of gifts. II. Lond. News, No. 3844, 945a.

Compare with this A Whig of the Whigs, he (sc. Lord John Russell) proved typical of a period which [etc.]. Bookman, No. 262, 162a (= a Whig to the backbone.)

Here mention may also be made of such a collocation as in his heart of hearts (= in his inmost heart), in which the article is suppressed on the same principle.

Like many fond parents I have in my heart of hearts a favourite child. And his name is David Copperfield. Dick., Cop., Pref.

The fact is that the Germans in their hearts of hearts know perfectly well that no one of these neighbours can attack them with any chance of success. Rev. of Rev., CCXXX, 97b.

IV. Partially converted adjectives denoting a class of persons in a generalizing way, never lose the article.

Master Jeremy... fell into the error of supposing that we clods and yokels were the simplest of the simple. BLACKM., Lorna Doone, Ch. XXXVIII, 228.

34. The definite article is rarely used before the names of materials, and of actions, states or qualities (material and abstract nouns) when spoken of in a generalizing way.

a) The Dutch idiom in this case is variable. Although, as a rule, the article is dispensed with, it is not infrequently met with. Thus the article would (or might) be used in translating the following sentences:

i. Money makes the mare to go. Prov.

Money exercises an undue influence in the world. H. J. BYRON, Our Boys, 1, (19).

Besides its commonest use as the working substance in engines, steam is also largely employed for heating. Harmsworth Encyclop. In Scotland gas is governed by the Sale of Gas Act. Ib., s. v. gas, (121c).

ii. Health is above wealth. Prov.

Art is long, life is short. Id.

Time is a file that wears and makes no noise. Id.

'Tis safest in matrimony to begin with a little aversion. SHER., Riv., I, 2, (220).

What an enormous camera-obscura magnifier is Tradition. CARLYLE, Hero Worship, 23.

Charity begins at home, justice begins next-door. DICK., Chuz., Ch. XXVII, 227a.

Self-preservation is the first law of nature. Id., Ol. Twist, Ch. X, 24a.

So long as nature supports me, never, never, Mr. Clump, will I desert the post of duty. THACK., Van Fair, I, Ch. XIX, 201.

Nature, in all its operations, impresses man with the idea of an invisible Power. LYTTON, Caxtons, III, Ch. II, 52.

Marriage is the best state for man in general. REV. E. J. HARDY, How to be happy though married, Ch. II, 26.

Fame and reward are powerful incentives, but they bear no comparison to affection. Ib., Ch. III, 34.

Charity covers a multitude of sins. Lit. World.

Note. Indefinite or vague specializing bears some resemblance to generalization, and, therefore, has the same effect.

On all grounds opinion had better be left to ripen before positive steps are taken on either side. Westm. Gaz., No. 6359, 7a.

Opinion has fortunately moved forward somewhat. Ib., No. 6365, 2a.

His career owes nothing whatever to influence or to circumstances apart from his brilliant ability. Ib., 2b.

b) The generalizing definite article is also rejected before the above nouns.

1) in sentences in which what is considered true at all times, is applied to a special case.

Necessity excused stratagem. G. ELIOT, Mid., IV, Ch. XXXVII, 267.

2) when the ideas they express are personified. Personification of an abstraction is essentially only a modified form of generalizing an abstraction. It is often even difficult to tell how far generalizing has passed into personification. Thus some of the quotations given above might with a fair show of justice be cited as instances of personification. The uncertainty is also shown by the variability of the pronouns used in referring to abstractions. (Ch. XXVI, 38, b.)

The clearest form of personification is that in which a quality is represented as a deity, as when we speak of Chance, Fate, Providence, Fortune, etc.

The names of personified abstractions are practically significant proper names, and also as such would reject the article.

Abundance. It is a time when Want is keenly felt and Abundance rejoices. DICK., Christm. Car. 5, I, 14.

Art. Art is a jealous mistress. STORM, Eng. Phil., 352.

Chance. Chance afforded him an opportunity of making the acquaintance of this class of society. THACK., Pend., I, Ch. XXX, 317.

Death. Death alone parted them. Academy.

Fate. As Fate would have it, the two had stopped just opposite him. CH. KINGSLEY, Westward Ho!, Ch. XIX, 146a.

Fortune. Fortune favours the bold. Prov.

Cursed as I am with more imperfections than my fellow-creatures, kind Fortune sent a heaven-gifted cherub to my aid. SHERIDAN, Riv., V, I, (272). I afraid of Fortune! Why Fortune has done her worst: I defy her to do worse than she has done! WALT. BESANT, St. Kath., Ch. VIII.

History. History, we believe, will do justice to it (sc. this Parliament). Westm. Gaz., No. 5, 173, 2a.

Love. Love looks not with the eyes, but with the mind. Mids., I, 1, 224. Love flies out of the window, when poverty comes in at the door. Prov.

Mercy. Mercy blotted out the accusation. STERNE, Tristram Shandy, VI, 8.

Misfortune. It seemed as if Misfortune was never tired of worrying into motion that unwieldy exile. THACK., Van. Fair, I, Ch. XXXII, 351.

Nature. Nature meant very gently by women, when she made that tea-plant. Id., Pend., I, Ch. XXXII, 347.

Omnipotence. Bright retorted that it was an affliction which not even Omnipotence could inflict on the noble lord. Truth, No. 472, 650c.

Omniscience. He only learned that the more he himself knew, in his little human way, the better he could distantly imagine what Omniscience might know. DICK., Our Mut. Friend, II, Ch. X, 183.

Providence. Providence has been kinder to us than we to ourselves. GOLDSM., Vic.

Rumour. Rumour called her a Spaniard. G. MEREDITH, Lord .Orm., Ch. II, 39.

Rumour had subsequently more to say. Ib.

So it came about that, when on the night of the big row contiguity produced physical conflict, the Colonel was in it. At least, so Rumour says. Westm. Gaz., No. 4943, 5a.

Rumour has run wild during the present week. Ib., No. 5237, 1b.

Time. Time heals many a sore. Prov.

Time will show. DICK., Chuz., Ch. XVI, 133a.

Time and tide wait for no man, saith the adage. Ib., Ch. X, 80a.

35. Both before material nouns and abstract nouns the generalizing definite article is occasionally met with.

a) Sometimes the use of the article may be due to the requirements of metre or rhythm (9, g.) or to a desire to give the sentence a proper balance.

i. How many times shall Cæsar bleed in sport, | That now on Pompey's basis lies along, | No worthier than the dust. JUL. CÆS., III, 1, 116.

A feeling of sadness and longing | That is not akin to pain, | And resembles sorrow only | As the mist resembles rain. LONGFELLOW, The Day is Done, III. (Note the absence of the article before rain, although used in the same grammatical meaning as mist.)

ii. She is as pure as is the ice. OUIDA, Moths, III, 264.¹⁾

iii. Only a little ice where the fire should glow, only a cold look, where the love should burn. REV. E. J. HARDY, How to be happy though married, Ch. 10, 104.¹⁾

But this would hardly account for the use of the article in:

Pray, gentlemen, let me have one honest man in my company, for the novelty's sake. FARQUHAR, The Recruiting Officer, V, 5, (339).

It is evident that as long as the steam power was to be used only as an auxiliary, it would be impossible to reckon on speed and certainty of arrival. MCCARTHY, Short Hist., Ch. I, 13. (Compare: Neither the Sirius nor the Great Western was the first vessel to cross the Atlantic by means of steam propulsion. Ib., Ch. I, 13.)

When everything else falls away, the love will endure because it cannot die while there is any life, if it is true love, for it is immortal. RID. HAG., Jess, I, 86.²⁾

I am not of a mind to venture my life for the truth's sake. MOTLEY, Rise, Hist. Introd., 39a.

She had remained pure as the snow. EL. GLYN, The Reason why, Ch. XVII, 155.

In the following quotation, given by WENDT (Synt. des heut. Eng. 172), the use of the definite article, indeed, makes for rhythm, but the indefinite article would seem to be more appropriate.

¹⁾ TEN BRUG., Taalst., VI, 24.

²⁾ Ib., X, 218.

Admirers of the strenuous life must acclaim Professor Wright, who has just completed his great English Dialect Dictionary. Periodical.

- b) The article is rather common before the names of certain diseases, such as bronchitis, fever, gout, indigestion, rheumatism, whooping-cough and the compounds of ache. This practice, however, is now regarded as more or less vulgar. WYLD, The Growth of English, Ch. V, 65. Before most names of diseases, especially when scientific names, the article is practically never used. Such, among many others, are cholera, consumption, pleurisy, phthisis, diphtheria, paralysis, neuralgia, etc. Before others we mostly find the indefinite article. (41, a.) The definite article is practically regular before plague and pest. It may here be observed that the article is exceedingly common before plural names of diseases. See the illustrative quotations given in Ch. XXV, 19, c.

ache. i. I was to spend the day with Miss Sheridan, who was ill with the tooth-ache. Miss LINLEY (G. G. S., Life of Sheridan, 28).

I am sure you have the head-ache. JANE AUSTEN, Mansfield Park, Ch. VII, 74. I am very much afraid she caught the head-ache there. ib., 76.

Miss Pritchard had the head-ache. THACK., Virg., Ch. LXXX, 848.

He came because I had the tooth-ache. ib., Ch. LXXXIV, 895.

- ii. She laboured under severe head-ache. MRS. GASK., Life of Charl. Brontë, 416.

fever. i. The latter caught the typhus fever. CH. BRONTË, Jane Eyre, Ch. III, 25.

Colonel Washington has had the fever very smartly. THACK., Virg., Ch. XII, 122.

Miss Birch died of the scarlet fever. Id., Van Fair, I, Ch. I, 3.

- ii. His Excellency, Colonel Rawdon Crawley died of yellow fever. THACK., Van Fair, II, Ch. XXXII, 372.

Having gone to bed ill with fever [etc.]. Id., Pend., II, Ch. XVI, 163.

Percie had died of fever. Story of Rob Roy, 45.

Fever and a bad head-ache have prevented me from writing to my adorable friend. Truth, No. 470, 595c.

gout. i. Master thought another fit of the gout was coming to make him a visit. SHER., Riv., I, 1, (213).

- ii. Gout is the chief disease from which rheumatism has to be distinguished. ROBERTS, *Handbk. Med.*³, I, 231.¹⁾ measles. i. Don't you remember dying of the measles and coming here to be buried? Miss BRADDON, My First Happy Christmas (STOF., Handl., I, 77).

- ii. The worthy medical man round the corner has a right to tell me that I have measles. CHESTERTON (II. Lond. News, No. 3817, 869c).

plague. i. During the 19th century the plague in Europe was confined almost exclusively to Turkey and S. Russia. Harmsworth Encyclop. s. v. plague, (382c).

From June 1890 to January 1900 the plague prevailed in Oporto in Portugal. ib.

- ii. At length it seems as if plague was being got over. Westm. Gaz., No. 6299, 2a.

rheumatism. i. If this frolic should lay me up with a fit of the rheumatism, I shall have a blessed time of it with dame van Winkle. WASH. IRV., Sketch-Bk., Rip van Winkle.

1) MURRAY.

- ii. On wet Sundays, or whenever he had a touch of rheumatism, he used to read the three first chapters of Genesis. G. ELIOT, Adam Bede, Ch. XVIII, 161. It was evident from the way he moved, that every one of his poor old joints was stiff with rheumatism. Westm. Gaz., No. 5201, 9a.

small-pox. When my poor James was in the small-pox. THACK., Van. Fair, I, Ch. XIX, 201.

A few quotations containing names of diseases which never take the generalizing definite article, must suffice.

He died of cholera. McCARTHY, Short Hist., Ch. XIII, 181.

She died from inflammation of the lungs. (?), Mad. Leroux, Ch. I.

Thousands of people had perished of starvation. YORK POWELL, Life of Ch. Gordon, (GÜNTH., Leerb., 135).

She possessed a husband whom she had left ill with malaria at Florence. KATH. CECIL THURSTON, John Chilcote, M. P., Ch. VII, 82.

- c) The generalizing definite article is also more or less common before the following abstract nouns:

chase, which has it practically regularly, except for certain expressions, such as to hold chase, to give chase, to be (hold) in chase. Sometimes the use or absence of the article is determined by the measure.

- i. The gentleman is going to the chase. THACK., Van. Fair, I, Ch. XVII, 175.

All the fierce gaiety of his nature broke out in the chivalrous adventures of his youth, ... in his defiant ride over the ground which Geoffrey Martel claimed from him, a ride with hawk on fist, as though war and the chase were one. GREEN, Short Hist., Ch. II, § 4, 75. (Note the different practice before war and chase.)

The Normans made the chase and war the only noble occupations. Suggestive Lessons, IV, 90.

- ii. Spies of the Volscs | Held me in chase. CORIOL., I, 6, 19.

And now the two canoes in chase divide. BYRON, The Island, III, x.

Since long ago that men in Calydon | Held chase. W. MORRIS, The Earthly Par., The Son of Cræus, XXI.

Next day King Helge gave chase to Frithiof. EDNA LYALL, A Hardy Norseman, Ch. III, 28.

light, which regularly has the article in the collocation to see the light = to come into the world, to be brought forth or published. Usage is divided in the collocation to bring to (the) light. The article seems to be regularly suppressed in to come to light.

- i. * Many documents from his hand ... will probably never see the light. MOTLEY, Rise, VI, Ch. VII, 901a.

This book first saw the light in the pages of an illustrated daily paper. Lit. World.

 "Here they are, here they are!" cried Ned exultingly, as he brought two young owls to the light. SWEET, The Old Chapel.

- ii. * Everybody wished to bring to light some of the treasures. MAX MÜLLER, Sci. Relig., 185.¹⁾

 They will stick at nothing to keep the truth from coming to light. Times. To crop out = to come to light. WEBST., Dict.

The fraud came to light. Graph.

death, which regularly has the article in the collocation to the death with to in a temporal meaning. See also FRANZ, *Shak. Gram.*²⁾, § 262; ELLINGER, Eng. Stud., XXXI; id., Verm. Beit., 26.

¹⁾ MURRAY.

I will battle it to the death, and die game at last. DICK., Letters. 1).

I trust thee to the death. TEN., Coming of Arthur, 133.

Lestrangle... vowed to wage war, not only to the death, but after death, with all the mock saints and martyrs. MAC., Hist., I, Ch. III, 386.

They swore a great oath... to obey their officers to the death. CH. KINGSLEY, Westw. Ho!, Ch. XXI, 174a.

Here is seemingly a quarrel to the death, Punch.

Shere Khan knew that Mother Wolf would fight to the death. RUDY. KIPLING, Jungle Book.

They would resent an insult to themselves or one of their family to the death. PHILIPS, Mrs. Bouverie, 96.

A thousand Granitanians swore unsolicited to follow him to the death. Westm. Gaz., No. 5382, 2c.

Note. When to has not a temporal meaning, the article is not used. Thus it is absent in:

He was frozen to death, starved to death, frightened to death. He bored himself to death. He drank himself to death. These terms have been done to death. He was put to death. Sheridan... wounded to death, was removed to the White Hart Hotel. (T. P.'s Weekly, No. 475, 746b.)

In the following quotations the definite article is, apparently, used for the sake of the metre:

I am hurt to the death. Othello, II, 3, 157.

Leave me to-night: I am weary to the death. TEN., Ger. and En., 358.

Tho' he... [... were himself nigh wounded to the death. Ib., 918.

law, which has the article regularly, or almost regularly, in certain applications or collocations, dropping it as regularly in others.

Law has the article:

- a) when denoting the body of enacted or customary rules recognized by a community as binding, often with a notion of personification.

He was at a loss how it should come to pass that the law, which was intended for every man's preservation, should be any man's ruin. SWIFT, Gul., IV, Ch. V. Laws grind the poor, and rich men rule the law. GOLDSMITH, Trav., 386.

Ignorant of the law, the law seemed to him, as it ever does to the ignorant and the friendless, [etc.]. LYTTON, Night and Morn., 120.

"If the law supposes that", said Mr. Bumble, ... the law is a ass — a idiot. DICK., Ol. Twist, Ch. LI, 481.

Combination is an instinct which, as the law cannot eradicate it, it is sound policy on the part of the law to recognize. ESCOTT, England, Ch. X, 156.

In that year the principle was asserted that the law owed its duties of protection to women as well as children. Ib., Ch. X, 138.

The law forbids, allows. FOWLER, Concise Oxf. Dict.

To lay down the law. Ib.

Observe especially to break (infringe, transgress) the law, as in:

Neither will it be necessary for you to break the law in an attempt to deprive us forcibly of the use of property. Times, No. 1831, 83a.

Mr. Pankhurst... (gave) an undertaking not to break the law while her trial is pending. Westm. Gaz., No. 6165, 2c.

Note I. The following quotations may exhibit exceptional practice:

Your late husband's estate will be seized upon by law. DICK., Chuz., Ch. LIV, 419a.

1) TEN BRUG., Taalst., VI, 24.

The regulations prescribed by law. ESCOTT, England, Ch. X, 151.

II. It may be observed that when a branch of the law is meant, as in canon (civil, common, martial) law, the article is absent, although a generalizing sense is meant.

The crown lawyers pleaded against Canon Law. WILLIAM BARRY, The Papacy, Ch. I, 37.

- β) in the sense of binding injunctions in general, especially in the phrase to give the law to (= to impose one's will upon).
Mr. Brady gave the law at Castle Brady. THACK., Barry Lyndon, Ch. I. (Occasionally without the article: In literature she gave law to the world. MAC., Hist., III, Ch. I, 397.)

- γ) when denoting a science: He consults men learned in the law. J. H. NEWMAN, Par. Serm. 1)
I have studied the law. PUNCH. (Occasionally without the article: These chapters were rewritten under the immediate eye of W. H., who studied law 35 years ago. MARK TWAIN, Pud. Wilson, 5.)
Note. The article is absent in the combinations student-at-law, student of law, professor of law:

Simple questions and answers for the use of students-at-law. PUNCH.

- δ) in the sense of judicial remedy, especially in the phrases to take (to have) the law of a person, to take the law into one's own hands, to have the law in one's own hands.
There's a hackney-coachman downstairs, vowing he'll have the law of you. THACK., Van. Fair, I, Ch. VI, 60.

I'll take the law of yer for assault an' battery. MRS. WARD, Mar., I, 152.

The term (sc. lynch-law) is said to be derived from a Virginia farmer named Lynch, who thus took the law into his own hands. WEBST., Dict., s.v. lynch-law.

- ε) in the sense of the legal profession.

Bred to the law. FOWLER, Concise Oxf. Dict.

Law stands without the article:

- α) in the sense of controlling influence of the law.

The Reign of Law. ESCOTT, England, Ch. X, 156, (Compare: the Reign of Terror.)

Law . . . is at each stage the organised public opinion of the country. WESTM. GAZ., No. 6323, 1c.

- β) in the sense of law-courts as providing judicial remedy, especially in the phrase to go to law.
Go to law upon the spot and retain me. DICK., Our Mut. Friend, I, Ch. III, 29.

- γ) in the combinations court-of-law, son-in-law.

Note. In such a sentence as It may be common sense, but is not law, the absence of the article before law is due to its application as a predicative noun. (Ch. XXIII, 16, a.)

peace, which almost regularly has the article when it stands for the King's peace (= the general peace and order of the realm, as provided for by law). MURRAY. Thus in:

- α) the collocations to keep (preserve) the peace, to break (disturb) the peace, and allied combinations, such as preservation (breach, disturbance) of the peace.

1) MURRAY.

- i. We were bound over to keep the peace. THACK., Virg., Ch. LV, 570. Keep the peace, or I'll lay a heavy hand on the pair of you. HAL. SUTCL., The Lone Adventure, Ch. II, 45. Sir Edward Grey may be satisfied of his own ability to keep the peace. Westm. Gaz.

We remain of opinion that, in spite of all these hitherings and thitherings, the Balkan question will eventually be settled without disturbing the peace. Ib., No. 4937, 1a.

I will do the best of my power to cause the peace to be kept and preserved. II. Lond. News, No. 3775, 342.

The Man who defies the law is he who provokes others to a breach of the peace. Times, No. 1831, 91c.

The Constabulary had received instructions . . . to disperse by force assemblies from which a disturbance of the peace might be apprehended.

II. Lond. News, No. 3851, 177.

- ii. The High Commissioner was hoping against hope that peace might be preserved. Times.

A warning that peace must be kept during the bye-election. II. Lond. News, No. 3851, 177.

The venerable Ruler, whose wisdom has helped so much to preserve peace. Ib., No. 3879, 276.

His services in the difficult work of keeping peace on the Indian frontier it would be hard to overrate. Westm. Gaz., No. 6246, 2a.

β) in the collocation Justice of the Peace (formerly also Justice of Peace).

- i. In counties the Court is held before the Justices of the Peace. ANNA BUCKLAND, Our Nat. Instit., 47.

- ii. The clerk . . . doubted whether a Justice of Peace had any such power. FIELDING, Amelia, I, Ch. II.

You talked, for all the world, as if you was before a Justice of Peace. GOLDSMITH, She Stoops, III, (205).

Note. Similarly in constable (officer, conservator, sergeant) of the peace.

- γ. in the collocations: to be sworn of the peace (= to be made a magistrate), the commission of the peace (= the authority given under the Great Seal empowering certain persons to act as Justices of the Peace in a specified district), precept of the peace, sessions of the peace.

I am sworn of the peace. Merry Wives, II, 3, 54.

In England this title (sc. that of Justice of the Peace) was first conferred by an act of 1360, and the commission of the peace in counties became a permanent institution from about that time. Harmsworth Encyclop.

Note. In other combinations peace rejects the article. Thus in to make (to conclude, to bring, to bring about, to secure) peace.

Lord Morley's aim has been not to disturb an existing peace, but to bring peace in disturbed conditions. Westm. Gaz., No. 4937, 2a.

The Powers . . . have at least secured peace among themselves, even if they have not made peace in the Balkans. Id., No. 6341, 2a.

36. The generalizing article is also suppressed:

- a) before some of the names of localities, institutions and establishments, and allied words mentioned in 15, a. For illustration see also that §.

church. Church begins at two. G. ELIOT, Adam Bede, Ch. XVIII, 159.

Church is good for the publican. FROUDE, Oceana, Ch. II, 40.

college. College he seems to have disliked. LYTTON, Life of Lord Byron, 14b.

home. Home is home, be it ever so homely. Prov.

market. A silver fox skin... will fetch in open market between two thousand and two thousand five hundred dollars. II. Lond. News, No. 3877, 211.

prison. Our friend seems to think that prison is a hospital. JOHN GALSWORTHY, Justice, III, 1, (70).

You don't understand what prison is. Ib., IV, (101).

Prison for lads should be the last, and not the first, resort. Daily News, 1897, 30 Aug., 5/1.

school. School would be a complete change. CH. BRONTË, Jane Eyre, Ch. III, 25.

'Would you like to go to school?' Again I reflected: I scarcely knew what school was. Ib., 24.

You've had your holiday and school's begun again. KATH. CECIL THURSTON, John Chilcote, M. P., Ch. XI, 125.

Compare: For those who followed Lister's guidance the hospital ceased to be a slaughter-house. Westm. Gaz., No. 6329, 11b.

b) before the names of meals. (15, b.)

I allowed half an hour for this meal and an hour for dinner. GOLDSMITH, Vicar, Ch. IV, (256).

I never wait supper for anybody. DICK., Pickw., Ch. IX, 73.

Dinner is generally the most substantial meal we take in the course of the day.

c) before the names of certain of the main divisions of a day, when the reference is to a natural phenomenon, or to an epoch. The article is not suppressed, when distinctly a period is meant: hence it is always retained after the prepositions in and during. Nor is it, apparently, ever dropped before afternoon and forenoon. (15, c.)

Ev'n silent night proclaims my soul immortal. YOUNG, Night Thoughts, I, 102.

Evening must usher night, night urge the morrow. SHELLEY, Adonais, XXI.

Night is generally my time for walking. DICK., The Old Cur. Shop, Ch. I, 1a.

d) frequently before the names of seasons. The article seems to be especially common after the prepositions in and during, which help to express a period. (15, d.)

i. Winter is long and harsh; summer is brief and burning. FROUDE, Oceana, Ch. XX, 331.

All the gardeners could not keep the impress of autumn's destroying hand from the grounds about the Court. MISS BRADDON, Lady Audley's Secret, I, Ch. XIV, 152.

In summer the heat of the sun is tempered by the fresh keen air of the mountain. Ib., Ch. IX, 129.

ii. * In the summer I often leave home early in the morning, and roam about fields and lanes all day. DICK., The Old Cur. Shop, Ch. I, 1a.

There were glass houses to protect the delicate plants in the winter. FROUDE, Oceana, Ch. VIII, 121.

The remarkable family gatherings were held every year, usually in the autumn. Times.

It is a pretty sight to see these orchards in the spring. GÜNTH., Leerb., 76.

The squirrel is monogamous, and in the spring rears usually two or three young. Westm. Gaz., No. 6059, 13a.

 People say, it is best to live in the country during the summer, and in town during the winter. Laurie's New Third Standard Reader.¹⁾

The following is a remarkable instance of divided usage:

In the winter this walk is sheltered from the bitter east winds by the belt of wood, and in summer pleasantly over-shaded by the overhanging trees. L. MALET, Mrs. Lorimer, 42.²⁾

Note. When the name of the season is followed by a (continuative) adnominal clause, the article is indispensable.

In the winter, which he spends in Melbourne, this highland home of his is sometimes swathed in snow. FROUDE, Oceana, Ch. IX, 129.

e) almost regularly before the names of months, days and festivals. (15, e.)

i. The inhabitants most religiously eat pancakes on Shrove Tuesday, hot-cross buns on good Friday, and roast goose at Michaelmas; they send love-letters on Valentine's Day, burn the Pope on the fifth of November, and kiss all the girls under the mistletoe at Christmas. WASH. IRV., Sketch-Bk., XXV, 243.

The engines do not observe Sunday, not being human. FROUDE, Oceana, Ch. II, 40.

ii. Why such impress of shipwrights, whose sore task | Does not divide the Sunday from the week? Hamlet, I, I, 76. (The use of the article is, apparently, due to the metre.)

The gallery being shut up on the Wednesday. Eliot's Life II, 182.³⁾

Note. The article seems to be regularly kept before Sabbath.

To keep (break) the Sabbath. MURRAY.

She called upon him categorically to state whether he did not think that travelling on the Sabbath was an abomination and a desecration. TROL., Barch. Tow., Ch. V, 37.

37. The difficulty of deciding whether the conception formed in our minds is specialized or generalized, is often responsible for the vacillation in the use of the article. Thus in:

What the devil signifies right when your honour is at stake? Do you think Achilles, or my little Alexander the Great ever inquired where the right lay? SHER., Riv., III, 4.

He had no doubt as to having right on his side. Mrs. OLIPHANT, I, 175.²⁾

Of special interest is the divided usage in the collocations:

a) to draw, paint, or take, etc. from (the) life; studies, or copies, etc. from (the) life; true to (the) life. Compare TEN BRUG., Taalst., X, 217.

i. * "What is the design?" ... — A cook... with a beautiful muræna (taken from the life), on a spit at a distance. LYTON, Last Days of Pomp., I, Ch. II, 16a.

He had been all the morning at Carrel's studio drawing from the life. Du MAURIER, Trilby, 6.

He had been working for three or four years in a London art-school, drawing and painting from the life. Ib., 103.

Men and women must be studied from the life. Id., Soc. Pict. Sat., 18.

He copied from the life only glaring and obvious peculiarities. BAIN, H. E. Gr., s. v. from.

¹⁾ SCHULZE, Belt. zur Feststellung des mod. eng. Sprachgebrauches, 19. ²⁾ TEN BRUG., Taalst., VI, 26. 23. ³⁾ Ib., X, 219.

 A study from the life. DICK., Crick., I, 24.

 I will put you in my first novel, a little idealised perhaps, but true to the life. BEATRICE HARRADEN, The Fowler, I, Ch. XIII, 68.

ii. * Taken from the life. II. Lond. News.

 Studies from life at the Zoo. Id.

 The characters were overdrawn and untrue to life. W. J. LOCKE, Glory of Clem. Wing, Ch. II, 17.

Note. Compare with the above: studies, etc. from nature, invariably without the article.

b) to speak, say, or tell (the) truth. i. To tell the truth, he did not care to venture there in the dark. WASH. IRV., Dolf Heyl. (STOF., Handl., I, 151).

He was very good-natured, generous, told the truth. THACK., Newc., I, Ch. XXIV, 272.

To say the truth, she certainly was not (sc. an angel). Id., Van. Fair, I, Ch. II, 10.

To speak the truth, you are my child. TEN., Lady Clare, VI.

ii. To say truth, ma'am, 'tis very vulgar to print. SHER., School for Scand., I, 1, (370).

I am engaged as a poetical gazetteer, to say truth, and am writing a poem on the campaign. THACK., Henry Esmond, II, Ch. XI, 245.

No matter what the verses were, and, to say truth, Mr. Esmond found some of them more than indifferent. Ib., II, Ch. XI, 245.

She was a mild and patient creature, if her face spoke truth. DICK., Christm. Car., IV, 97.

Speak truth and shame the devil, that's my motto. LYTTON, Night and Morn., 125.

I tell you truth, sir. CH. KINGSLEY, Westw. Ho!, Ch. XIV, 114a.

To speak truth, if I thought I had a chance to better myself where I was going, I would go with a good will. STEVENSON, Kidnapped, 10.

Note. The article seems to be regularly absent in the absolute infinitive clauses to say truth, truth to say, truth to tell; and to be as regularly used in the absolute infinitive clause to tell you the truth. Compare with these phrases also to say true, to tell one true, and see Ch. XVIII, 24.

i. I have seen him but little, nor, truth to say, esteem him much. LYTTON, Rienzi, I, Ch. VIII, 53.

Truth to tell, good looks are the exception, not the rule, in Naples. EDNA LYALL, Knight Errant, Ch. I, 8.

ii. To tell you the truth, he had some forty stout countrymen of his with him. CH. KINGSLEY, Hypatia, Ch. II, 7b.

iii. You say true. DRYDEN, Love for Love, III, 3, (241).

Sir Nicholas tells you true. TEN., Queen Mary, V, 1, (636a).

c) worth (the) having, living, etc. i. Something which was well worth the having. DICK., Dombey, Ch. I, 2.

Any recipe for catching such a son-in-law was worth the having. Id., Chuz., Ch. XVIII, 157a.

I knew all along that the prize I had set my heart on, was not worth the winning. THACK., Van. Fair, II, Ch. XXXI, 354.

Life might perhaps be worth the living. RIDER HAG., Jess, Ch. IV, 33.

A cheaper and smaller edition might be worth the issuing. Acad.

The secret was hardly worth the telling. WHITEING.¹⁾ ii. He means to give you some present worth having. DICK., Chuz., XXIV, 204a. Domestic felicity, like everything else worth having, must be worked for. Rev. E. J. HARDY, How to be happy though married, Ch. I, 12.

1) KONRAD MEIER, E. S., XXXI, 328.

USE OF THE INDEFINITE ARTICLE.

38. The chief feature of the use of the indefinite article in English, as compared with Dutch, is its frequent employment before the names of actions, qualities or states, to denote that a special variety or instance is meant. (Ch. XXV, 24, a.) Compare also FRANZ, *Shak. Gram.*², § 276. While in both languages the use of the article is quite common, when the nature of the variety or instance is specified by an adnominal clause, it is rather rare in Dutch and frequent in English, when there is no such specifying.

- | | |
|---|--|
| i. Dat is een zelf-opoffering als wij zelden aantreffen. | That is a self-sacrifice such as we seldom meet with. |
| Dat is een zelf-opoffering die achting afdwingt. | That is a self-sacrifice which commands respect. |
| ii. Hij heeft aanleg voor muziek. | He has a turn for music. |
| Dat is jammer . | That is a pity . |

Both English and Dutch are, however, highly variable and arbitrary in the use of the indefinite article before abstract nouns; that is to say, not only do some nouns now take now lose it, but also there are many that, from no cause lying in the nature of their signification, seem to be excepted from the prevailing tendency. Some of these latter are included in the following illustrations for comparison.

It is hardly necessary to say that the subject here raised is one of almost illimited extent, and that, therefore, only a few of the most remarkable points can be touched upon.

39. Two peculiar English idioms may be recorded at the outset:

- a*) the use of the indefinite article before the stem of a verb, which is much more widely spread in English than in Dutch. In colloquial language, indeed, almost any verb-stem expressing an action, may be converted into a substantive and used with the indefinite article.

bite. She never knew she had a bite, till Tom told her. G. ELIOT, Mill, I, Ch. V, 32.

dislike. The consequence of his taking a dislike to us . . . is . . . that he loses some pleasant moments. DICK., *Christm. Car.*⁵, III, 78. (See also page 615.)

escape. You have had a narrow escape with life. BUCHANAN, That Winter Night, Ch. IV, 36.

fix. I'm in a fix. KATH. CEC. THURSTON, John Chilcote, M. P., Ch. X, 118.

laugh. "How kind you all are to me! All," she added with a laugh, "except you, Mr. Joseph. THACK., Van. Fair, I, Ch. IV, 27.

A man must have a laugh sometimes. KATH. CECIL THURSTON, John Chilcote, M. P., Ch. X, 137.

say. As to the concerts for schools, the education committee has a say in the matter. T. P.'s Weekly, No. 484, 210c.

The husband should have a say in the matter. Westm. Gaz., No. 6299, 3b.

shoot. The gentlemen return from a shoot just a little before dinner. Westm. Gaz.

The Indian scene of a tiger shoot is vividly shown in these pictures. Graph., No. 2269, 846.

Compare: (He) has been good enough to invite me to Bareacres for the pheasant shooting. THACK., Pend., I, Ch. II, 23.

talk. There was a talk of his marrying Miss Hunkle. THACK., Pend., I, Ch. II, 23.

wait. There was a wait. KATH. CEC. THURSTON, John Chilcote, M. P., Ch. X, 118.

warm. Sit ye down before the fire, my dear, and have a warm, Lord bless you. DICK., Christm. Car⁵, III, 57.

- b) the use of the indefinite article before gerunds, which also is extended to practically any verb. A few instances must suffice.

hearing. This was a delightful hearing. DICK., Cop., Ch. XXIV, 178a. (= Dutch verrukkelijk om aan te hooren.)

That's a bad hearing. Ib., Ch. IV, 22a.

Sullivan could scarcely obtain a hearing. MAC., Clive, (529a).

The Society is certainly to be commended for bringing a festival novelty to a hearing as quickly as possible. Athen., No. 3135, 719c.¹⁾

Compare: That is good hearing for those of us who [etc.]. Rev. of Rev., CCXXX, 105a. (This seems to be the ordinary construction: the use of the article as in the two first quotations given above is infrequent.)

knocking. A knocking at the door was heard. DICK., Christm. Car.⁵, II, 52.

Compare: There was a knock at the door. BUCHANAN, That Winter Night, Ch. III, 27.

liking. Lady Bellaston had more than once seen Sophia there since her arrival in town, and had conceived a very great liking to her. FIELDING, Tom Jones, XV, Ch. II, 98b.

I began to take a liking for her very soon. MRS. CRAIK, Dom. Stor., I, Ch. IV, 241.

He had taken a liking to Mrs. Aikman's new nurse. DOR. GER., The Etern. Wom., Ch. XVII.

(I) have a liking for him, for precise statement, etc. FOWLER, Conc. Oxf. Dict. (Note the variety of the prepositions with which liking is construed.) Compare: Liking for Great Britain was not too common in the United States in the years from 1865 to 1898. Times, No. 1818, 881b. (This looks like a highly unusual construction.)

misgiving. I had a strong misgiving that his nightly absence was for no good purpose. DICK., Old Cur. Shop, Ch. I, 7a.

Compare: There is great and general misgiving about this measure. Times, No. 1823, 982d.

Note. The plural is often used instead of the singular preceded by the article. (Ch. XXV, 24, a.) sitting. A dismal sitting it was for all parties. THACK., Pend., II, Ch. XV, 154.

wetting. It seemed doubtful whether we should escape a wetting. Times, No. 1809, 701a.

1) TEN BRUG., Taalst., X, 222.

40. Before other abstract nouns the indefinite article is especially frequent, when the noun it modifies is:

- a) the non-prepositional object or the subject of a passive sentence. In this case this noun often enters into a fixed combination with (a) particular verb(s), frequently to feel, to have and to take.
- b) part of a prepositional expression, denoting either an adverbial relation or a state, or representing a prepositional object. For instances see also under in, of and with in 67, and under without in 68.
- c) the subject of an active sentence. Of especial frequency is the use of the indefinite article in sentences opening with there is (was).
- d) the nominal part of the predicate or a predicative adnominal adjunct.

In the following illustrations these functions are distinguished by the letters a), b), c) and d) respectively, others being marked by e). In all of them a modifying adjective furthers the use of the article. Some instances have been included of the use of the indefinite article before nouns that have assumed a more or less distinctly concrete meaning.

If a collocation is given without comment, it may in general be understood to hardly allow of the alternative practice, but the available evidence has often been far too scanty to justify any reliable conclusion.

account. a) When I come again, I will demand from you a strict account. SCOTT, Abbot, Ch. II, 24.

He kept an exact account of his salary. MAC., Clive, (533a).

He felt as if he must now render up an account to Sir Michael of the fate of that woman. MISS BRADDON, Lady Audley's Secret, II, Ch. XIII, 239. Note. Thus also to give, yield or render an account and to ask an account. But to take account.

She was absorbed in the direct, immediate experience, without any energy left for taking account of it and reasoning about it. G. ELIOT, Mill, VI, Ch. VI, 373.

b) i. If he condones the act of the Lords in refusing supplies, he transfers the power from himself to an authority which he cannot call to an account. Westm. Gaz., No. 1207, 1b.

ii. The only check on his tyranny was the fear of being called to account by a distant and careless government. MAC., Hist., II, Ch. V, 200.

Note. The use of the article in the above collocation would appear to be rare. This applies also to to turn to account and to hold to account.

These are advantages which will turn to real account. MRS. GASK., Life of Ch. Brontë, 157.

No working-man shall be held to account for any of the proceedings which are held guiltless in Carson. Westm. Gaz., No. 6383, 7b.

acquaintance. a) i. They are opposite neighbours, and made an acquaintance through Mrs. Fundy's macaw. THACK., A Little Dinner at Timmins's, Ch. I.

The latter would have liked to make a further acquaintance. Id., Pend., I, Ch. XXXII, 346.

ii. He had made acquaintance with him at the mess by opening the conversation. Id., Ch. XXIX, 314.

I made acquaintance with the farmers. LYTTON, Caxtons, XII, Ch. I, 307.

It was his intention to make acquaintance with the neighbours. Id., IV, Ch. IV, 96. Note I. The article seems to be usually absent. Thus, most probably, also after to renew, but here it is rather the definite than the indefinite article that is dispensed with.

He renewed acquaintance with some of their old comrades there. THACK., Pend., I, Ch. XVII, 174.

II. On the analogy of to form an alliance, a friendship etc. the article may be expected before acquaintance after to form. This is not; however, the regular practice. He formed acquaintance with the son of a scene-painter. Lit. World.

III. In to strike up an acquaintance (FOWLER, Concise Oxford Dict., s.v. strike) the article cannot, apparently, be dispensed with.

IV. Instead of the above constructions we mostly find that with a genitive or its equivalent: Where did you make my friend's acquaintance, the acquaintance of my friend, his acquaintance, etc.

Very glad to make your acquaintance. DICK., Nich. Nickl., Ch. V, 24.

Chance offered him an opportunity of making the acquaintance of this class of society. THACK., Pend., I, Ch. XXX, 317.

Observe also: to make the acquaintance of = to form an acquaintance with. MURRAY, s.v. acquaintance.

ambition. b) It is only to inspire you with a proper ambition. LYTTON, Lady of Lyons, I, 1.

antipathy. a) Those were books to which he had taken an antipathy. CH. KINGSLY, Alton Locke, Ch. VI, 67.

She had an antipathy to doing anything useful. MRS. WOOD, East Lynne, I, 17. Note. Compare sympathy.

appearance. a) (He only procured) a trifle occasionally by borrowing it of some old companion, or by obtaining an appearance at one or other of the commonest of the minor theatres. DICK., Pickw., Ch. III, 24.

All men must put in a personal appearance at the Last Assize. SPURGEON, (Christ. Herald, 1883, 24 Oct., 235/1).¹⁾

And you've got to put in an appearance — for party reasons? KATH. CECIL THURSTON, John Chilcote, M. P., Ch. XII, 136.

Note. Thus also to make an appearance = to put in an appearance. FOWLER, Concise Oxf. Dict., s.v. put.

appetite. a) Nothing like dissecting, to give one an appetite. DICK., Pickw., Ch. XXX, 267.

Note. Thus, apparently, with great regularity. Similarly in to have an appetite. Observe, however the absence of the article in the following quotation:

Men must have appetite before they will eat. BUCKLE, Civilis., XI, 629.1)

b) He began to eat with an appetite. DICK., Little Dorrit, Ch. I, 4a:

aptitude. a) He had a singular aptitude for dealing with the difficulties of a crisis. Lit. World.

Note. The alternative practice may be quite as usual. Compare aptness, capacity, facility and faculty.

aptness. a) He showed amazing aptness in mastering other branches of knowledge. WASH. IRV., Dolf. Heyl. (STOF., Handl., I, 111).

Note. The alternative practice may be quite as usual. Compare aptitude, capacity, facility and faculty.

attachment. a) She has formed an attachment to another. SHERIDAN, School for Scand., IV, 3, (412).

1) MURRAY.

audience a) i. He had a right to demand an audience of his sovereign. JUN. Lett. XLI, 216¹⁾.

She hastened to seek an audience with her protector. LYTTON.²⁾

Mr. Balfour had an audience of the king at Buckingham Palace on Wednesday. Times, No. 1819, 893d.

ii. The Bishop retired to the Parsonage, where . . . he was to give audience to the delegates. G. ELIOT, Scenes, III, Ch. VI, 224.

Note. In the sense of 'a formal interview granted by a superior to an inferior' (MURRAY), audience mostly stands with the article in the above combinations. In the more abstract sense of 'the action of hearing, attention to what is spoken' (MURRAY), it always stands without.

Then follow me and give me audience. JUL. CÆS., III, 2, 2.

These teachers easily found attentive audience. MAC., Hist., I, 406.¹⁾

b) i. They came for an audience of the Queen. Graph.

Zara's manner was that of a sovereign graciously receiving foreigners in a private audience! EL. GLYN, The Reason why, Ch. XII, 103.

ii Lord Rosebery was received in audience by the Emperor Francis Joseph at Schönbrunn on Saturday. Times, No. 1821, 938a.

He (sc. Bismarck) certainly did ask to be received by her (sc. the Empress Frederick) in audience. Westm. Gaz., No. 6347, 8d.

Note. Except for the collocation to receive in audience, the article seems to be usually employed.

aversion. a) Make her have an aversion for the booby. CONGREVE, Love for Love, II, 2, (233).

Tom had an aversion to looking at him. G. ELIOT, Mill, II, Ch. III, 145.

awe. a) He is taller by the breadth of my nail than any of his court, which alone is enough to strike an awe into beholders. SWIFT, Gul. Trav., I.

Note. The alternative practice may be as common.

c) A great awe seemed to have possessed his soul. CH. KINGSLEY, Westw. Ho!, Ch. XVIII, 135a.

An awe crept over Nina. LYTTON, Rienzi, IV, Ch. II, 164.

blaze. b) The whole country was in a blaze. MAC., War. Hist., (609a).

From the overgrown village (sc. Turin) . . . proceeded the spark which set the whole of the Italian peninsula in a blaze. RICH. BAGOT, My Italian Year, Ch. II, 20.

breath. a) i. The gentleman drew a long breath. DICK., Chuz., Ch. XXXIX, 310a.

She stopped to fetch a deep breath. DOR. GER., Et. Wom., Ch. III.

She drew another breath very audibly. Ib.

There he paused and drew a long breath. KATH. CECIL THURSTON, John Chilcote, M. P., Ch. XII, 132.

ii. Even the inhabitants of New Amsterdam began to draw short breath. WASH. IRVING, Knickerb., 157.¹⁾

Then spoke King Arthur drawing thicker breath. TEN., Morte d'Arthur, 148.

Note. The construction without the article is only used when repeated action is in question. Thus also when a possessive pronoun takes its place, as in: A simple child, | That lightly draws its breath. WORDSWORTH, We are seven.

buzz. b) In a little time the whole town was in a buzz with tales about the Haunted House. WASH. IRV., Dolf Heyl. (STOF., Handl., I, 114).

capacity. a) i. He manifested an unsuspected capacity for adapting himself to the 'genius loci'. Rev. of Rev., No. 179, 228a.

He had found a new capacity within himself. KATH. CECIL THURSTON, John Chilcote, M. P., Ch. XXV, 285.

¹⁾ MURRAY.

²⁾ SATTLER, Anglia, III.

ii. He appears to have shown extraordinary capacity for acclimatising himself to the American atmosphere. Rev. of Rev., No. 189, 228a.

Note. The two constructions may be of equal frequency.

c) With each yielding on her part had come new capacity for yielding. Mrs. WARD, Sir George Tres., III, Ch. XXIII, 199a.

Note. The construction with the indefinite article may be equally common.

care. a) If of life you keep a care, | Shake off slumber and beware. Temp., II, 1, 301.

Have a care, Joe; that girl is setting her cap at you. THACK., Van. Fair I, Ch. II, 24.

Have a care of him! Id., Sam. Titm., Ch. IX, 107.

Note. To keep a care is now obsolete. The article is in regular use in combination with to have, and is as regularly absent in combination with to take, as in: Take care of the pence and the pounds will take care of themselves. Prov.

I shall take care how I let you choose for me another time. THACK., Van. Fair, I, Ch. IV, 27.

chance. a) If a man never utters his thoughts, I should think they might stand a chance of escaping controversy. SHER., Riv., IV, 3, (266).

Note. Thus practically with any verb forming a rational combination with chance.

c) i. I think there is a (good, fair, etc.) chance of success.

ii. There is good chance that we shall hear the hounds. TEN., Mar. of Ger., 182. (The absence of the article is due to the measure.)

certainty. b) I know for a certainty what he did to bring the arm of the law upon him. BESANT, The World went very well then, II, 283.¹⁾

Mistakes of detail . . . must of a certainty occur in a story which covers so vast a field. ALICE S. GREEN, Introd. to GREEN, Short Hist., 16.

d) And that they (sc. the venereal diseases) will be eventually stamped out is a certainty. Eng. Rev., No. 58, 245.

change. a) The last few years have wrought a complete change in Oxford. ESCOTT, England, Ch. VII, 93.

b) i. This is very good for a change.

ii. He . . . sick of home went overseas for change. TEN., Walking to the Mail, 18.

A proportion at least of the agriculturists are eager for change. Westm. Gaz., No. 6383, 2b.

Note. The suppression of the article is exceptional.

c) A complete change had come on my whole life. DICK., Cop., Ch. XXXVI, 259a.

When the need of a change arises, then does a change come. Eng. Rev., No. 58, 283.

chill. a) He (sc. Bacon) caught a chill, which ended in his death on 9th April 1626. JOHN W. COUSIN, Short Biog. Dict. of Eng. Lit., s.v. Bacon, 19.

You may give a baby a chill which will kill it, . . . without giving it fresh air at all. FLOR. NIGHTINGALE, Nursing, 91.²⁾

c) As he passed through the familiar entrance, a chill fell upon him. KATH. CECIL THURSTON, John Chilcote, M. P., Ch. XXIII, 260.

claim. a) He had a claim indefeasible in justice to the succession. MCCARTHY, Short Hist., Ch. XIII, 184.

He has a claim upon my gratitude. ROORDA, Dutch and Eng. Compared, § 18.

Note. The use of the article after to have seems to be as regular as its absence is after to lay.

Francis I of France laid claim to Savoy. Harmsworth Enc., s.v. Savoy.

cold. a) i. The old man caught a cold at the County-Sessions. ADDISON, Spect., No. 517.²⁾

¹⁾ TEN BRUG., Taalst., X, 222.

²⁾ MURRAY.

Lady Loveit, having got a cold, had complained of some little disorder. ELIZA HEYWOOD, Betsy Thoughtless, IV, 287.¹⁾

Scrooge had a cold in his head. DICK., *Christm. Car.*⁵, I, 21.

Her servant had a bad cold. W. J. LOCKE, The Glory of Clem. Wing, Ch. II, 17.

I have got a bad cold — a fresh cold. SWEET, N. E. Gr., § 2033.

- ii. You will take cold in the evening air. DICK., Pickw., Ch. VIII, 64.

I'm afraid I've caught cold. Id., Ol. Twist, Ch. XII, 27b.

A woman of your years will catch cold in such abominable weather. THACK., Van. Fair, I, Ch. IV, 29.

Note. In combination with to have the article seems to be regularly used; with to catch, to get and to take usage is variable, except when there is an adnominal modifier, as in to catch, get or take a severe cold, when the article appears to be indispensable. See also SWEET, N. E. Gr., § 2047.

comparison. a) It may be doubted whether any equal portion of the life of Hannibal, Cæsar or of Napoleon, will bear a comparison with that short period. MAC., Fred., (690a).

compassion. a) i. I have a compassion for your youth. FIELDING, Jos. Andr., I, Ch. VIII, 17.

- ii. Have compassion on the mighty, whom love hath abased. Lane, Arab. Nts., I, 104.¹⁾

Note. The article is regularly absent in the collocation to have compassion up(on) and the obsolete to take compassion (up)on. Of to have (a) compassion for no further instances have been found.

contempt. a) He had a profound contempt for Summers-Howson. BARRY PAIN, Culminating Point.

courage. a) i. The words of the stout burgomaster inspired a new courage in the hearts of those who heard him. MOTLEY, Rise, IV, Ch. II, 576b.

- ii. Wherever Father John appeared, help entered in the efficacious form of pecuniary assistance, ... cheering words that infused courage and psychic vitality. Rev. of Rev., CCXXX, 132a.

Oftentimes John had to travel thousands of miles to bring relief in misfortune or inspire courage to endure it. Ib.

Note. Apparently it is the adjective which causes the indefinite article to be used. Accordingly only to take (to pluck up, to lose) courage.

deadlock. b) All things are at a deadlock. EDNA LYALL, Hardy Norsem., Ch. XIX, 168.

defeat. a) i. He at last suffered a total defeat. ELPHINSTONE, Hist. Ind., II, 108.¹⁾

In that House of Commons ... the Court had sustained a defeat on a vital question. MAC., Hist., II, 26.¹⁾

- ii. Mr. Cope Cornford draws a picture of the results that would accrue, were the Navy to suffer defeat. T. P.'s Weekly, No. 467, 495c.

Note. MURRAY has to suffer (sustain) a defeat, evidently the ordinary construction. It should be observed that for to suffer or sustain (a) defeat the Dutch has de nederlaag lijden.

delay. c) A delay implies a doubt. THACK., Pend., I, Ch. I, 14.

delight. a) i. He seems to take a great delight in giving me pain. OSCAR WILDE, Dorian Gray, Ch. I, 21.

- ii. You take delight in vexing me. JANE AUSTEN, Pride and Prej., Ch. I, 9.

¹⁾ MURRAY.

Note. The article is, apparently, mostly suppressed. MURRAY mentions only to take or have delight, although he gives two quotations, dated respectively 1300 and 1569, with to have a delight.

departure. a) "Me!" said Joseph, meditating an instant departure. THACK., Van. Fair, I, Ch. IV, 27.

difference. a) * Dress does make a difference, David. SHER., Riv., III, 4.

"As if that could have made any difference", cried she, in superb scorn. — "Ah, but it did make a difference!" AGN. & EG. CASTLE, Diam. cut Paste, III, Ch. VII, 239.

 We have never had a difference. JEROME, The Master of Mrs. Chilvers, I, (44).

b) Here was the toss of the head, here the pout, the flash of the eye, but with a difference. AGN. & EG. CASTLE, Diam. cut Paste, II, Ch. VI, 183.

This is politics—with a difference. Westm. Gaz., No. 5173, 9a. (= Dutch heel andere politiek.)

c) It has never occurred to him that there is a difference between assertion and demonstration. MAC., Southey, (99b).

d) It wasn't a difference in your face. KATH. CECIL THURSTON, John Chilcote, M. P., Ch. X, 116.

difficulty. a) i. He seemed to have a difficulty in answering this question. ROORDA, Dutch and English Compared, § 18.

A difficulty may sometimes be felt in understanding how [etc.]. GEIKIE, Phys. Geog., IV, 232.

ii. They may find difficulty in meeting the cost of the final stage of their military training. Times, No. 1825, 1025b.

There was great difficulty in deciding about the title. Westm. Gaz., No. 6358, 12b.

Note. The article seems to be ordinarily used.

b) In difficulty a silent tongue and a cool head are usually man's best weapons. KATH. CECIL THURSTON, John Chilcote, M. P., Ch. XV, 164.

He spoke with difficulty. Ib., Ch. XXXI, 335.

In dire difficulty he laboured on. Ib.

Note. The construction with the article may be as common. Compare emergency.

d) The children, I admit, are a difficulty. MURRAY, s.v. difficulty, 2, a. disadvantage. b) Our men will be at a disadvantage. Times, No. 1825, 1031a.

disgust. a) It had given him a disgust to his business. JANE AUSTEN, Pride and Prej., Ch V, 21.

Men have a disgust for what offends their sensibilities. WEBST., s.v. aversion.

dislike. a) i. He conceived a dislike to his cousin. LYTTON, Night and Morn., 29.

Mr. Featherstone had an especial dislike to him. G. ELIOT, Mid., IV, Ch. XXXIV, 238.

He had a strange dislike to the Pomeranian. EDNA LYALL, Don., I, 78.

It had been banished, because he had taken a strong dislike to it. ANSTEY, Fal. Id., Ch. IX, 128.

ii. He felt dislike at' applying to a stranger even for casual information. SCOTT, Waverley.

Note. The article is, apparently, rarely absent. (See also page 608.)

disposition. c) There is a disposition in China to accept the...terms. Westm. Gaz., No. 6329, 2b.

Note. Compare (dis)inclination.

doubt. a) The old Sexton expressed a doubt as to Shakespeare having been born in her house. WASH. IRVING, Sketch-Bk., XXVI, 262.

She had had a great doubt and terror lest Arthur should not know her. THACK., Pent., II, Ch. XV, 154.

A delay implies a doubt. Ib., I, Ch. I, 14.

ecstasy. b) i. Meg was in an ecstasy. DICK., *Chimes*³, I, 17.

ii. "Why it's Ali Babal!" Scrooge exclaimed in ecstasy. DICK., *Christm. Car.*⁵, II, 39.

Note. The article seems to be ordinarily used.

effect. a) Every sentence was uttered with an obvious sincerity and feeling, which made a profound effect. Times, No. 1823, 974*b*. embarrassment. a) My request is so out of the usual that I feel an embarrassment. Eng. Rev., 1912, Aug., 3. emergency. b) i. Perhaps as unique a design for "raising the wind" in an emergency as could be had. Tit-bits, 1895, 2 Nov., 74*b*.

On an emergency he would even undertake to measure land. SMILES, Huguenots Eng., II, 22.

Keep these (sc. sovereigns) for an emergency. EL. GLYN, The Reason Why, Ch. III, 23.

ii. The English officers... were not ashamed to care for them to win their friendship, even on emergency to consult their judgment. CH. KINGSLEY, Westw. Hol., Ch. XX, 150*a*.

Note. The article seems to be almost regularly used in these combinations. For in or on an emergency we also find in case of emergency, in which emergency is said by JOHNSON and MURRAY to be used catachrestically.

Ham Peggotty... had been for some days past secreted in the house... as a special messenger in case of emergency. DICK., Cop., Ch. I, 5*b*.

enmity. a) Frederic had succeeded in producing a bitter enmity between them. MAC., Fred., (681*a*). esteem. a) I really had an esteem for Mr. R. G. G. S., Life of Sheridan, 24.

exaggeration. d) It would scarcely be an exaggeration to say that it was a choice between flight or premature breakdown. T. P.'s Weekly, No. 471, 617*c*.

example. a) i. Christians might take an example from him for his lealty. SCOTT, Fair Maid, Ch. XXIX, 309.

ii. Take example by your lady. FARQUHAR, Const. Couple, I, 2, (58).

Take example by this man. TEN., Queen Mary, IV, 3, (630*b*).

Note. Apparently the article is mostly absent. Regular is the use of the article, however, in the phrases to give (leave, set) an example. Compare also pattern.

excitement. b) Scrooge cried in great excitement: "Why, it's old Fezziwig!" DICK., *Christm. Car.*⁵, II, 43.

Note. The article may be common enough, compare: ecstasy, heat, rapture, transport.

expense. b) i. At a heavy expense I procured the rods. MARRYAT, Olla Podrida.

ii. Not so long ago a scientific study of air, water, matter and ether would have been impossible save at great expense. T. P.'s Weekly, No. 471, 622*b*.

Note. The omission of the article seems to be the exception.

extent. b) That did break the monotony to a certain extent. JEROME, Idle Thoughts, VI, 73.

facility. a) Having from my youth a great facility in learning languages. SWIFT, Gul., IV, Ch. II, (192*b*).

Note. The alternative construction may be equally common: compare aptitude, aptness, capacity, faculty.

faculty. a) I can hardly find any trace of my father in myself, except an inborn faculty for drawing. HUXL., Autobiogr., 5*b*.

In his boyhood he had a wonderful faculty for making friends. Rev. of Rev., CXCI, 84*a*.

Compare: One talent, however, displayed itself. The faculty of drawing he inherited from his father. HUXL., Life and Let., I, 6.

fall. a) Pride will have a fall. Bohn's Handb. of Prov. (= Dutch hoogmoed komt voor den val.)

Note. Of this proverb there are many variants and variations; all of them with the article.

Pride must have a fall. G. ELIOT, Mid, VIII, Ch. LXXIV, 553.

Pride was sure to have a fall. CH. KINGSLEY, Westw. Hol, Ch. XV, 122a.

Pride cometh before a fall. WALT. BESANT, The World went very well then, II, 226.

fancy. a) If she were to take a fancy to anybody in the house, she would soon settle. CH. BRONTË, Villette, Ch. I, 9.

Sandy Mackay had a great fancy for political caricatures. CH. KINGSLEY, Alton Locke, Ch. VI, 67.

I don't happen to have a fancy for sitting down on my own little packet of thorns. DOR. GER., Etern. Wom., Ch. XVII.

farewell. a) i. * I dared not even see thee to bid thee a last farewell. SCOTT, Abbot, Ch. VIII, 78.

Harry ran up to bid these ladies a farewell. THACK., Virg., Ch. XX, 203.

He bade a warm farewell to Torpenhow at the station. RUDY. KIPL., The Light that failed, Ch. III, 30.

I am going to bid a long farewell to England. MRS. ALEX., A Life Int., I, Ch. VI, 74.

ii. The guests then bade farewell to the travellers. Times, No. 1820, 924a.

Note. The article is regularly used when there is a modifying adjective; otherwise it seems to be rare.

footing. a) They (sc. the Amazons) gained a firm footing in Greek song and story through Arctinus of Miletus. NETTLESHIP, Dict. Clas. Antiq., s.v. Amazons.

b) It is difficult to see how the money can be found for maintaining the 300.000 on a war footing. Westm. Gaz., No. 6317, 1b.

friendship. a) This poor man for whom I know you professed a friendship. GOLDSM., Vic., Ch. XXXI.¹⁾ (Another edition has professed friendship.)

Miss Sedley...had a friendship for Miss Sharp. THACK., Van Fair, I, Ch. II, 15.

frenzy. b) i. Jack knows that the least demur puts me in a frenzy directly. SHER., Riv., I, 2, (222).

ii. Some hot-headed Roman Catholic, driven to frenzy by the lies of Oates. MAC., Hist., I, 374.²⁾

Note. In neither of the two above combinations does the alternative construction seem to be possible.

fume. b) She went off in a fume. ROORDA, Dutch and Eng. Comp., § 18. All this put the little doctor in a terrible fume. WASH. IRV., Dolf Heyl. (STOF., Handl., I, 114).

funk. b) With all my heroism, I was in a frightful funk. M. COLLINS, Transmigr., II, xi, 183.²⁾

We encounter the miserable Dr. Blandling in what is called... a blue funk. Sat. Rev., 1861, 23 Nov., 534.²⁾

Note. Slang, but very common.

gratitude. a) Her thrift won a general gratitude. GREEN, Short Hist., Ch. VII, p. 3, 374.

Note. The article is probably often dispensed with.

grief. Mrs. Tursey's information had suggested to me a fresh grief. JEROME, Paul Kever, I, Ch. I, 13b.

guard. b) The prisoner was conveyed under a strong guard to Ringwood. MAC.¹⁾

1) MÄTZN., *Eng. Gram.*², III, 193. 2) MURRAY.

3) FOELS.—KOCH, Wis. Gram., § 279.

guess. b) This was a manuscript containing, at a guess, some 5,000 words. Westm. Gaz., No. 6065, 9a.

halt. a) i. They called a halt. CH. KINGSLEY, Westw. Hol., Ch. XIV, 113a.

Here let us make a halt. MURRAY.

Is it not time to call a halt? Times, No. 1842, 311c.

ii. For me, now, to cry halt... would be ridiculous. JEROME, The Master of Mrs. Chilvers, I, (38).

Note. The suppression of the article imparts to halt the character of a quoted word.

b) The cord stretched in front of the escape is designed to bring to a halt young or excitable horses. II. Lond. News, No. 3687, 880.

Seeing them come to a halt above the island. KANE, Arct. Expl., II, XV, 154.¹⁾ harm. a) i. Not one of them... would have gone out of his way to do it a harm.

The Montenegrins appear to have been brought to a halt at Scutari. Westm. Gaz., Na. 6065, 1c.

GALSWORTHY, The Black Godmother (Eng. Rev., Feb. 1912, 445).

ii. I would think you had received harm from the poor boy. SCOTT, Abbot, Ch. III, 27.

He had done no man harm all his days. W. J. LOCKE, Glory of Clem., Wing, Ch. III, 36.

This theory... has done incalculable harm. Eng. Rev., No. 57, 128.

Note. The use of the article seems to be uncommon. Compare wrong.

hatred. b) His heart was burning with a hatred to the whole British race. MCCARTHY, Short Hist., Ch. XXXIII, 184.

Note. Probably the article is often dispensed with.

d) Her most vital trait was a hatred of conventionality. Bookman, 1893, June 86/1.¹⁾ heat. b) Walking about in a heat. SHER., Riv., IV, 2, (264).

holiday. a) i. It chanced at that great English festival, at which all London takes a holiday upon Epsom Downs, that a great number of the personages to whom we have been introduced in the course of this history, were assembled to see the Derby. THACK., Pend., II, Ch. XXI, 222.

They might have a holiday in the evening. G. ELIOT, Mill, II, Ch. V, 160.

In November he took a holiday. Mrs. ALEX., For his Sake, II, Ch. IV, 78.

ii. Lucy shall have holiday. Mrs. WOOD, East Lynne, III, 275.

To feast = to keep holiday. MURRAY, s. v. feast, 1, b.

To make holiday. Id., s. v. holiday, 2, c.

b) i. He had come home on a holiday.

ii. I suppose she was on holiday. HALL CAINE, Christian, I, 276.

There is also a difference between the time that you go to sleep, when you are at work or when you are on holiday. Rev. of Rev., CCXXVIII, 525b.

Note. In its primary meaning holiday is, of course, a noun denoting a defined conception. But it is often applied in an undefined sense, approximately that of vacation or leisure. Also in this application it may stand with the indefinite article: see the second quotation. For further particulars compare also Ch. XXV, 20.

horror. a) Mr. Boniface had a horror of the modern craze for rushing into all sorts of philanthropic undertakings. EDNA LYALL, Hardy Nors., Ch. XIX, 173.

Mrs. Shaw seems to think that an Early Christian would have felt a profound horror about drawing a sword. CHESTERTON (II. Lond. News, No. 3884, 464c).

huff. b) He left the room in a huff. ROORDA, Dutch and Eng. Comp., § 18.

humour. b) When I'm pleased, I'm generally in a good humour. THACK., Pend., II, Ch. I, 9.

¹⁾ MURRAY.

hurry. b) He could not remain passive, when all the world was in a hurry. WASH. IRV., Sketch. Bk., Spectre Brideg., 155.

The brandy was too good to leave in a hurry. DICK., Pickw., Ch. XXX, 267.

ill-will. b) With an ill-will Scrooge dismounted from his stool. DICK., Christm. Car., I, 17.

Note. The expression is pronounced obsolete by MURRAY, who quotes only one instance dated 1601.

importance. I attach a very serious importance to what you say. W. COLLINS, No Name, 226.

(dis)inclination. a) Do not you feel a great inclination to seize such an opportunity? JANE AUSTEN, Pride and Prej., Ch. X, 55.

She was obliged to assume a disinclination for seeing it. Ib., Ch. XLIII, 238.

Note. For further instances see also Ch. XIX, 53, c, page 692.

indignation. b) i. "I will try", said Arthur, in a great indignation. THACK., Pend., I, Ch. XXVII, 203.

ii. Lily was about to reply in great indignation. SCOTT, Abbot, Ch. II, 25.

Note. Usage may be equally divided.

influence. a) i. These family gatherings exerted a considerable direct influence upon European politics. Times.

ii. The press had begun to exercise unprecedented influence on the public mind. MAC., Addison, (738*b*).

I was her medical adviser, and as such I had influence over her. CON. DOYLE, Sherl. Holm.

To influence = to exert influence upon. MURRAY, s.v. influence, v, 1 and 2.

I have always had great influence over Wilderspin. TH. WATTS DUNTON, Aylwin, Ch. XVI, 458.

They wield incalculable influence. Eng. Rev., No. 57.

Note. Apparently usage is equally divided as to the use of the article in these phrases.

injustice. a) You are doing Magdalen an injustice. W. COLLINS, No Name, 226.

insight. a) i. He had gained an insight into all sorts of affairs at home and abroad.

G. ELIOT, Romola, Proem, 4.

My knowledge of Greek language and literature, art, religion and philosophy has given me an insight into the progress of humanity. T. P.'s Weekly, No. 469, 579*a*.

ii. It is evident that the more familiar a sound is, the easier it is to gain insight into its mechanism. SWEET, Sounds of Eng., § 24.

Note. MURRAY has five instances of the article being used in these or similar phrases, none of the article being absent. Hence it seems safe to assume that the omission is infrequent.

interest. a) i. I have an interest in being the first to deliver this message. GOLDSM., Vicar, Ch. VIII, (282).

You have felt an interest in her. DICK., Little Dorrit, Ch. VIII, 41*a*.

Miss Dartie took a great interest in all our proceedings. Id., Cop., Ch. XXIV, 178*a*.

Where the Canadian Pacific has an interest, it usually makes things hum. II. Lond. News, No. 3815, Sup. XI.

(This) has lent an interest to the subject of the value of racehorses. Ib., 3877, 222*a*.

ii. Maiden aunts are apt to take great interest in affairs of this nature. WASH. IRV., Sketch-Bk., Spectre Brideg., 155.

The delightful season of the year for the country-dweller who takes interest in observing the wild things of nature is again with us. Westm. Gaz., No. 5277, 4*c*.

A sermon which aroused very extraordinary interest. II. Lond. News, No. 3886, 555*a*.

Note. Apparently these phrases appear mostly with the article. Compare also: Lord Lyons, the public servant, is, after all, the person in whom the public takes concern. Athen., No. 4487, 445a.

journey. b) I intend to go on a journey. He is on a journey. ROORDA, Dutch and Engl. Comp., § 18.

In a few days, my darling, I must leave you, and go upon a journey. BUCHANAN, That Winter Night, Ch. I, 20.

Note. Thus also before other nouns of a similar meaning.

She had gone, as on a pilgrimage, to the house at Brixton. Eng. Rev., No. 59, 199.

knack. a) I really have a knack for doing those things. Mrs. WARD, Sir George Tres., Ch. III, 21.

knowledge. See 8, c.

leave. a) i. George came and took a tender leave of her the next morning. THACK., Van. Fair, I, Ch. XIII, 133.

ii. When she took leave of me the night before starting. Mrs. CARLYLE, Lett., III, 236.¹⁾

Note. The article is used only when there is a modifying adjective. It may, however, be observed that, when there is no such adjective, leave is not infrequently preceded by a possessive pronoun: to take one's leave.

With an easy and careless grace the Knight of St. John took his leave. LYTTON, Rienzi, II, Ch. I, 8.

lesson. a) Yesterday I had a lesson in Gothic. He gave me a lesson in Gothic.

loose. a. i. She resolved to give a loose to her amorous inclinations. FIELDING, Jos. Andrews, I, Ch. IV, 12.

He gave a loose to guilty pleasure. SMOLLETT, Rod. Rand., Ch. XXII, 150.

They have given a sudden loose to passions they could no longer control. DICK., Barn. Rudge, Ch. II, 9b.

The little boy . . . gave a loose to his innocent tongue. THACK., Virg., Ch. XLIII, 445.

They give a loose to their feelings on proper occasions. Id., Van. Fair, I, Ch. XXI, 216.

Miss Nora giving a loose to her imagination. Id. Barry Lyndon, Ch. I, 26.

ii. Young ladies should not give loose to their affections. TROL., Framl. Pars., Ch. XLI, 399.

You spoke of girls giving loose to their affections. Ib., 400.

Note. This phrase, which, curiously enough, is not illustrated in MURRAY, appears mostly with the article. Compare also: Young ladies should not give play to their affections. TROL., Framl. Pars., Ch. XLI, 400.

I could not withhold giving some loose to my inclination. CH. BRONTE, Wuthering Heights, II.

loss. b) i. * The priest was almost at a loss what to say. BUCHANAN, That Winter Night, Ch. II, 15.

He felt suddenly and strangely at a loss. KATH. CECIL THURSTON, John Chilcote, M. P., Ch. XVII, 183.

 The advertisement was withdrawn at a dead loss. DICK., Cop., Ch. I, 2a.

To sell anything at a loss. (Compare profit.)

ii. I am at loss for words. RICH., Pam., II, 129.

Note. The phrase without the article is now obsolete.

mastery. a) He had acquired a singular mastery over every kind of disease. WALT. BESANT, The World went very well then, Ch. I, 4.

¹⁾ MURRAY.

measure. b) i. The decision of causes was, in a great measure, left to the equity and common sense of the judges. HUME, Es. XIII, Of Eloquence, 102. Their order was now in a great measure suppressed. SCOTT, Abbot, Ch. III, 41. Nature . . . had bestowed on him, in a large measure, the talents of a captain. MAC., Fred., (662*b*).

ii. Mr. Southey brings to the task two faculties which were never, we believe, vouchsafed in measure so copious to any human being, the faculty of believing without a reason, and the faculty of hating without a provocation. Ib., (98*b*). (Observe also the use of the article before reason and before provocation.) His work had been in large measure successful. Westm. Gaz., No. 6111, 11*b*. Her (sc. Holland's) fortunes . . . are in small measure dictated by her own initiative. Ib.

Note. In the Westm. Gaz. the article is, apparently, regularly absent. MURRAY (s. v. measure, 14, b), however, mentions only in a great or large measure. Compare also in a measure (= in a certain measure). (8, b, 1.)

mercy. d) It is a mercy he did not bring us over a black daughter-in-law. THACK., Van. Fair, I, Ch. IV, 30.

It is a mercy he didn't shake his arm off. DICK., Christm. Car.⁵, V, 109.

mind. I always had a great mind to tell lies. CONGREVE, Love for Love, II, 2, (237).

Hast thou really a mind to the service? FARQUHAR, Recruiting Officer, IV, 1, (304).

Francois, have you a mind to escape? DICK., Advent. of a Galley Slave.

I had a good mind to ask an old man, in wire spectacles, who was breaking stones upon the road, to lend me his hammer for a little while. DICK., Cop., Ch. XXXVI, 259*a*.

She had almost a mind to be civil to old Bows. THACK., Pend., II, Ch. XII, 128.

I have a mind to break Mr. Sady's (sc. bones). Id., Virg., Ch. XI, 116.

Silas Marner could cure folk's rheumatism if he had a mind. G. ELIOT, Sil. Marner, Ch. I, 3.

Note. The phrase is somewhat archaic without such an adjective as good or great. Observe also the common to have half a mind.

mischief. a) i. Don't speak to me, or I shall do you a mischief. CH. KINGSLEY, Westw. Hol., Ch. XIV, 125*a*. (= Dutch of ik bega een ongeluk aan je.)

ii. Do not believe | But I shall do thee mischief in the wood. MIDS., II, 1, 237.

Note. The phrase is not mentioned by MURRAY and seems to be rare.

c) You must be on your guard, my poor boys — you must learn your lessons, and not anger your tutor. A mischief will come, I know it will. THACK., Virg., Ch. V, 50.

mock. a) i. I could never forgive her for making a mock of me. CROCKETT, Raiders, 21.¹⁾

Fools make a mock at sin. Prov.

Fools who made a mock at sin. Rev. of Rev., CLXXXIX, 251*b*.

ii. She made mock of Lucy's personal vanity. MRS. WARD, Dav. Grieve, III, 225. He frankly made mock of the whole affair (sc. the Peace Conference). Rev. of Rev., CCX, 577*a*.

Note. To make (a) mock at, according to MURRAY, is now obsolete. To make a mock of is given without the variant with no article by MURRAY, but seems to be less common than the latter.

d) Besides it were a mock | Apt to be rendered, for some one to say, | "Break up the senate till another time, | When Cæsar's wife shall meet with better dreams." Jul. Cæs., II, 2, 96.

Robin Hood . . . changes clothes with the palmer (who at first thinks the proposal a mock). CHILD, Ballads, III, 178/1.¹⁾

Note. In this combination mockery is more usual. See below.

1) MURRAY.

mockery. d) There's a great lord who has been saying that Old-Age Pensions are so paltry as to be but a mockery. Westm. Gaz., No. 4943, 5b.

mood. b) Dear Jack!... don't say you're in a bad mood. KATH. CECIL THURSTON, John Chilcote, M. P., Ch. XXII, 236.

moonlight. c) There was a moonlight. THACK, Pend., I, Ch. III, 42.

need. a) He thought there were always ways and means of getting those high characters furnished, when people had a need for them. Mrs. WOOD, Orv. Col., Ch. VIII, 118.

Note. The construction used in the above quotation appears to be an unusual one, MURRAY not so much as mentioning it. Of to have need of, which seems to be ordinarily used instead, there is, apparently, no variant with the article.

b) Sir William of Deloraine, good at need. SCOTT, Lay, I, xxii.

She (sc. the country) is in urgent need of officers. BUCHANAN, That Winter Night, Ch. I, 16.

A friend in need is a friend indeed. Prov.

noise. a) How could he have got into the house without making a noise? WASH. IRV., Dolf Heyl. (Stof., Handl., I, 117).

Note. Often used figuratively, as in:

Such persons as have made a noise in the world. ADDISON.¹⁾

c) There was a noise as if some person were moving inside. DICK., Old Cur. Shop, Ch. I, 3a.

oath. a) i. They felt secure since the Sheriff of Nottingham had taken an oath to help them at need. Rob. Hood (Grano Ser., 150).

ii. I could have made oath it was you I saw on horseback this morning. THACK., Virg., Ch. XXXVI, 373.

The councillors having made oath to denounce any one of their number who should violate the pledge [etc.]. MOTLEY, Rise.

Rose...made oath to her soul she would rescue him. G. MEREDITH, Evan Harrington, Ch. XLIII, 481.

Note. To all appearance oath regularly drops the article, when used in connection with to make, and retains it, when used in combination with to take. In to take an oath the article is often replaced by a possessive pronoun.

I could take my oath he said "son". DICK., Domb., Ch. IV, 29.

objection. a) i. (He) had an objection to dramatic entertainments. THACK., Pend., Ch. VI, 69.

Ladies as a rule have an insuperable objection to showing their necks. RID. HAG., Mr. Mees. Will, Ch. XIV, 138.

ii. Mr. Mahaffy has taken objection to the breadth of meaning I have given to the word 'motive'. DK. ARGYLL, Reign Law, 426, Note.¹⁾

To this arrangement the publishers made objection. Introd. to 1001 Gems of Eng. Poetry.

Note. Observe the use of the article before objection when combined with to have, and its absence when combined with to take and to make.

occasion. a) i. He seldom lost an occasion of wounding his feelings. DICK., Cop., Ch. VII, 47b.

ii. A mistake which had given occasion to a burst of merriment. JOHNSON, Rambler, No. 141.¹⁾

I once had occasion to go there. G. ELIOT, Adam Bede, I, Ch. VIII, 74.

As we had occasion to note in our last issue [etc.]. II. Lond. News, No. 3879, 292.

Note. As a rule the article seems to be used after to lose and to be dispensed with after to give. After to have it seems to be regularly absent.

c) There would be an occasion for humour, if it were not an opportunity for indignation. BEATR. HARRADEN, Ships, I, Ch. IX, 35.

¹⁾ MURRAY.

Note. For other combinations see 63.

opportunity. a) i. I shall take an early opportunity of mentioning it to the Board. DICK., Ol. Twist, Ch. II, 25.

You have an opportunity that can never come again. KATH. CECIL THURSTON, John Chilcote, M. P., Ch. XXXIV, 368.

Lillian was not the woman to lose an opportunity, whether the space at her command was long or short. Ib., Ch. XXVIII, 306.

The problem of the play (sc. Much Ado about Nothing) is not to show that the two scoffers are in love with each other, ... but to find an opportunity which will force them to admit their love. Athen., No. 4477, 165c.

ii. We must give them opportunity to speak together. SCOTT, Abbot, Ch. X, 97. Lawrence had not opportunity to show in actual result the greatness of spirit that was in him. M^CCARTHY, Short Hist., Ch. XIII, 16.

It was not until half an hour after the votes had been taken that Loder... found opportunity to look for Eve. KATH. CECIL THURSTON, John Chilcote, M. P., Ch. XXV, 282.

I desire to express my thanks to my kinsman, Lord Coleridge, for opportunity kindly afforded me of collating the text of the fragments... with the original MSS E. H. COLERIDGE, Pref. to the Poems of S. T. Col.

Note. In these combinations the article is not usually absent. For further instances and for a comparison with the construction with the definite article see 73.

c) When law and opportunity favoured. G. ELIOT, Mill, III, Ch. VII, 230.

When opportunity offers. G. MEREDITH, Ord. of Rich. Fev., Ch. XXXIV, 305. If opportunity serves. Times.

option. a) The tastes and interests of Frederic would have led him, if he had been allowed an option, to side with the house of Bourbon. MAC., Fred., (687b).

order. b) i. * Her talents and accomplishments are of a high order. THACK., Van Fair, I, Ch. II, 15.

He has by an Order in Council, been promoted to the rank of an Admiral of the Fleet. Times, 1898, 761d.

ii. The promotion of Admiral Richards, by special Order in Council, is a peculiarly significant recognition of his services to the Navy. Ib.

The Prime Minister... told the House that provision would be made by Order in Council for delegating the exercise of certain of the executive functions of the Crown during his Majesty's absence. Times, No. 1819, 900c.

Note. The article seems to be ordinarily absent before Order in Council.

pace. b) The old man proceeded at a measured pace. WASH. IRV., Dolf Heyl. (STOF., Handl., I, 122).

The old man... walked on at a slow pace. DICK., Old Cur. Shop, Ch. I, 6b.

* I walked at a sharp pace. TH. WATTS DUNTON, Aylwin, II, Ch. VI, 90.

Note. Compare run, step and trot.

panic. b) i. All the inhabitants turned out in a panic. WASH. IRV., Dolf Heyl. (STOF., Handl., I, 102).

If the Government yielded in a panic on this question, it is highly probable [etc.]. Westm. Gaz., No. 6359, 2a.

ii. Cæsar's soldiers were seized with panic. FROUDE, Cæsar, XXII, 382. 1)

The sound filled her with panic. KATH. CECIL THURSTON, John Chilcote, M. P., Ch. XXXIII, 360.

For one or two days Calcutta was a prey to mere panic. M^CCARTHY, Short Hist., Ch. XIII, 177.

Note. The article seems to stand after in and to be dispensed with after other prepositions.

1) MURRAY.

c) If he ever showed a little impatience, it was only where panic would too openly have proclaimed itself by counsels of wholesale cruelty. M^CCARTHY, Short Hist., Ch. XIII, 178.

pardon. a) He received a pardon at once. M^CCARTHY, Short Hist., Ch. XXII, 317. (Pardon to be understood in the sense of remission of the legal consequences of crime, Dutch kwijtschelding van straf.)

Note. From what evidence there is in MURRAY, it may be concluded that the article is rarely absent.

part. a) i. * It is also unquestionable that the transactions in which he now began to take a part, have left a stain on his moral character. MAC., Clive, (515a). Lord Kitchener took a leading part in giving effect to a very important political reform in Egypt. II. Lond. News, No. 3876, 187a.

He has played an active part in the saving of a hundred lives from shipwreck. Punch, 1896, 111.

Germany has decided . . . that it will not take a part in the Panama Exhibition. Westm. Gaz., No. 6311, 2b.

 It was well known that she had deeply regretted some violent acts in which her husband had borne a part. MAC., Hist., II, Ch. V, 206.

In these conferences Rumbold had borne a part from which [etc.]. Ib., II, Ch. V, 98.

He had borne a part in the movement. M^CCARTHY, Short Hist., Ch. XXII, 814.

ii. * On the morrow commenced that long quarrel . . . in which all the most eminent statesmen and orators of the age took active part on one or the other side. MAC., War. Hist., (612a).

Many had given up a successful career to take part in what they were led to believe would be the great national uprising of the Irish people. M^CCARTHY, Short Hist., Ch. XXII, 316.

The Princess Louisa took part in three public ceremonies at Oxford on May 25. Times.

I know that the consciousness can leave the body, take part in events going on at a distance. ANNIE BESANT, Autobiography, 26.

 The tragedy in which they bore part cost many an agony of tears. Ib., 27.

Note. MURRAY has to take part, always without the article (His definition of to partake, however, is to take a part in), and to bear a part, always with the article, and this most probably represents the ordinary practice. Only the article is rarely dispensed with in the first combination, when part is accompanied by an adjective: to take an active (leading, etc.) part. See, however, the quotation from MACAULAY.

passion. b) At which words she flew into a violent passion. FIELD., J. O. S. And r., I, Ch. VIII, 19.

I know you are in a passion. SHER., Riv., II, 1.

If he ever flagged in his industry, the doctor would fly into a passion. WASH. IRV., Dolf Heyl. (STOF., Handl., I, 109).

pattern. The Commissioners of Police might take pattern by Berlin. Punch.

To take a leaf out of a person's book = to take pattern from him. MURRAY, S. V. book, 15.

Note. Compare to take (an) example.

pause. a) Here Master Wingate made a pause. SCOTT, Abbot, Ch. IV, 44.

b) "How could you do so, Rebecca?" at last she said, after a pause. THACK., Van. Fair, I, Ch. II, 9.

c) Here there was a pause. Id., Ch. II, 22.

After he spoke, there was a prolonged pause. KATH. CECIL THURSTON, John Chilcote, M. P., Ch. XXVI, 292.

There was a fresh pause. Ib., Ch. XXXI, 339.

perspiration. b) The waiter is in a cold perspiration and well-nigh desperate. JAMES PAYN, Glow-Worm Tales, II, A, 13.

pinch. b) Each of them could at a pinch stand in the shoes of the other. EMERSON, Eng. Traits, Ability, 100*b*.

It will be found that, when it comes to a pinch, we shall always give in. Rev. of Rev.

pity. d) It is a pity you can't come.

I call it a pity that such talents should lie idle.

Note. Formerly, and archaically in Present English, without the article. FRANZ, Shak. Gr.², § 276, Anm.; MURRAY, s. v. pity; UHRSTRÖM, Stud. on the Lang. of Sam. Richardson, 41.

That were pity. Merch. of Ven., II, 2, 209.

'Tis great pity he's so extravagant. SHER., School for Scand., IV, 2, (407).

'Tis pity her temper is something particular. SCOTT, Quent. Durw., Ch. XXIII, 293.

'Tis pity learned virgins ever wed | With persons of no sort of education. BYRON, Don Juan, I, XXII.

'Tis pity though, in this sublime world, that | Pleasure's a sin, and sometimes sin's a pleasure. Ib., I, CXXXIII.

That were pity. CH. KINGSLEY, Westw. Ho!, Ch. II, 18*a*.

And pity that would be. Id., Herew. Ch. II, 24*b*.

pleasure. a) i. They seemed to take a pleasure in indulging that forenoon in a luxury of slovenliness. CH. BRONTË, Villette, Ch. XIV, 160.

I took a pleasure in extracting the young fellow's secrets from him. THACK., Newc., II, Ch. III, 26.

He had a strange pleasure in venturing his person. MAC., Hist., III, Ch. VII, 7.

Mrs. Fursey took a pleasure in the phrases. JEROME, Paul Kelter, Ch. I, 15*a*.

ii. (He) takes pleasure in rearing and collecting birds. WEBST., s. v. bird-fancier. He must pass the night in an abominable tight mail-coach, instead of taking pleasure... in some of the most agreeable and select society in England. THACK., Pend., I, Ch. I, 15.

No Liberal certainly can take pleasure in the fact that an increase in the Navy has been found necessary for national security. Westm. Gaz., No. 4931, 2*a*.

I had great pleasure in hearing Mr. Brough, in a magnificent speech, declare a dividend of six per cent. THACK., Sam. Titm., Ch. VII, 84.

He found that everything could yield him pleasure. DICK., Christm. Car.⁵, V, 108.

He contrived to deliver himself in uncompromising terms which gave sincere pleasure to Radicals. Westm. Gaz., No. 6353, 1*b*.

Note. MURRAY has to take pleasure and to take a pleasure, and gives two illustrative quotations, both with the article. But there can be little doubt that in this and similar combinations the article is mostly absent, even when there is a modifying adjective.

pride. a) i. I had a new pride in my rooms after his approval of them. DICK., Cop., Ch. XXIV, 178*b*.

ii. She took great pride in her descent from them. THACK., Van Fair, I, Ch. II, 11. Their dialect is uncouth, but they take pride in it. ESCOTT, England, Ch. VI, 80.

Note. MURRAY mentions only to take a pride, but in his only illustrative quotation bearing on the subject, pride stands without the article.

profit. b) He was always buying things and selling them at a profit. BESANT, Bell of St. Paul's, I, 71.

Note. Compare loss.

propensity. a) He had a propensity for saving. CH. BRONTË, Jane Eyre, Ch. IV, 28.

protest. a) The British Ambassador has lodged a protest with the Porte against the passage of four torpedoboat destroyers through the Dardanelles to the Black Sea. Times.

quarrel. a) It was clear that the Emperor was resolved to have a quarrel. MC CARTHY, Short Hist., Ch. XXIV, 372.

Note. Thus also regularly with the article: to pick a quarrel.

question. c) There was always a question about James's courage. THACK., The four Georges, II, 34.

rage. b) "You impudent villain!" cries the lady in a rage. FIELD., Jos. Andrews, I, Ch. VIII, 19.

rapture. b) i. Toby took the shortest possible sniff at the edge of the basket, and cried out in a rapture: "Why, it's hot." DICK., Chimes³, I, 16.

ii. You're perfect! she exclaimed in rapture. AGN. & EG. CASTLE, Diam. cut Paste, III, Ch. III, 255.

Whether he liked it (sc. the nickname) or not, we adopted it with rapture. Eng. Rev., No. 58, 191.

Who can look without rapture on the beautiful proportions of the horse? Ib., 261.

Note. Usage may be equally divided. Compare ecstasy.

reason. a) i. They found a reason for dethroning him. MC CARTHY, Short Hist., Ch. XIII, 183.

ii. I had good reason to hope that I was being of use at Roost. F. E. PAGET, Curate Cumberworth.¹⁾

I began this winter by admiring Sir Henry's benevolence... more than I saw reason to do afterwards. HT. MARTINEAU, Brooke Farm, Ch. V, 62.¹⁾

Note. Usage may be equally divided.

c) There is reason to believe that [etc.]. MAC., War. Hist., (607a).

regard. a) I have a regard for Miss Richland. GOLDSM., Good-nat. man, II. I have conceived a great regard for Jenkins. DICK., Chuz., Ch. IX, 69b.

I had a regard for Mr. Eustace Meeson. RID. HAG., Mr. Meeson's Will², Ch. XXI, 223.

For the head-master, Dr. Drury, he conceived a strong regard. TOZER, Introd. to Byron's Child Har.

b) In the death of Laertes we are warned against suffering our passions perfidiously to lead us to seek a secret revenge without a regard to either justice or our own honour. Westm. Gaz., No. 6353, 7a.

Note. This seems to be an exceptional use of the article: it is not recorded by MURRAY (s. v. regard 8, b). Compare respect.

c) A regard for truth forbids us to do more than claim the merit of their (sc. of these adventures) judicious arrangement and impartial arrangement. DICK., Pickw., Ch. IV, 30.

reluctance. a) He felt a reluctance to ask the support of the Newcastle family. MC CARTHY, Short Hist., Ch. X, 129.

repugnance. a) i. She had an extraordinary repugnance to dining in company. DICK., Little Dorrit, Ch. V, 28a.

ii. Scott felt considerable repugnance to acting in any such matter with Whigs and Radicals. LOCKH., Life of Sir Walt. Scott, Ch. VI, 572.

Note. The ordinary practice most probably is to use the article in these combinations.

rescue. a) The prisoners only meditated a rescue. MC CARTHY, Short Hist., Ch. XXII, 317.

resemblance. a) In some respects he (sc. Edmund Gosse) bears a curious resemblance to Andrew Lang. Bookman, No. 261, 112a.

¹⁾ MURRAY, s. v. reason, 8b.

resistance. a) It was the bounden duty of the Opposition to offer a determined and continuous resistance to this proposal. Times.

Methuen reports that the party defeated on 5 April, made a good resistance for four hours. Ib.

The Spaniards opposed a stubborn resistance. Ib.

The rebels offered a stout resistance. Ib., No. 1819, 899d.

(dis)respect. a) i. I have a particular respect for three or four high-backed claw-footed chairs. WASH. IRVING, Sketch-Bk., XXV, 243.

He had a high respect for native sagacity. DICK., Cop., Ch. IV, 28b.

She thought Mr. Riley would have a respect for her now. G. ELIOT, Mill, I, Ch. III, 11.

Human nature is so constituted that it can pay a respect to religious conviction. Westm. Gaz., No. 6347, 1b.

ii. Have respect to mine honour. Jul. Cæs., III, 2, 15.

He was incapable of... supposing that she meant intentional disrespect to him. SCOTT, Abbot, Ch. III, 37.

Note. The use of the article appears to be practically regular. In the quotation from SHAKESPEARE its absence may be due to the demands of the metre. Compare regard.

revenge. a) i. She felt quite sure that he had offended some of his examiners, who had taken a mean revenge on him. THACK., Pend., I, Ch. XXI, 216.

ii. Taking revenge too deep for a transient wrong. TEN., Maud, I, III.

Note. The article is, apparently, only used when there is a modifying adjective.

reverence. b) She spoke of Mr. Pendennis... with an awful reverence. THACK., Pend., I, Ch. II, 24.

risk. a) He lost all he had in the world and... run a narrow risk of being hanged. SCOTT (LOCKHARDT, Life of Sir W. Scott, I, I, 3.¹)

Whatever accommodation he can have, which infers not a risk of discovery,... it is our duty to afford him. SCOTT, Mon., Ch. XVI, 194.

Note. The indefinite article varies with the definite. No instances of either article being absent have been found.

Why am I to run the risk of scarlet fever being brought into the house. F. E. PAGET, Pageant, 38.¹)

c) There was risk that the lawful owner might have parted company therewith (sc. that chain). SCOTT, Mon., Ch. XVIII, 205.

There would be great risk of a lamentable change in the character of our public men. MAC., Hist., III, I, 310.¹) run. b) She came back at a run to meet him. Westm. Gaz., No. 4983, 2c.

d) Suppose the likeness should leak out? It's a risk. KATH. CECIL THURSTON, John Chilcote, M. P., Ch. VI, 69.

Note. Compare pace, step, and trot.

scale. b) There is nothing so troublesome as a hero on a small scale. WASH. IRV. DOLF-HEYL (Stof., Handl., I, 110).

sensation. a) His little expeditions to his lands were attended with a bustle and parade that created a sensation throughout the neighbourhood. WASH. IRV., DOLF HEYL (Stof., Handl., I, 109).

His death created a profound sensation. MCCARTHY, Hist. of Our Own Times, III, XLIV, 333.¹)

b) The gentleman in search of a sensation. LOWELL, Among my Books, Ser. I, Rousseau, 346.

c) A slight sensation was perceptible in the body of the court. DICK., Pickw., Ch. XXXIV, 307.

shame. d) i. * It were a shame to call her back again. Two Gentlem., I, 2, 51.

 Some shook their heads; and thought it a shame that the Doctor should put Dolf to pass the night alone in that dismal house. WASH. IRV., Dolf Heyl. (STOF., HANDL., I, 120).

- ii. * Shame were it to accept the praise of other men's labours. SCOTT, Mon., Ch. XXXIV, 366.

It were shame to our profession, were we to suffer it. Id., Ivanhoe, Ch. XL, 416.
It were shame to think otherwise of a form so noble. Id., Abbot, Ch. III, 28.

 Men thought it shame to dwell at such a time under the shadow of a house. FREEMAN, Norm. Conq. IV, XVIII, 187.¹⁾

Note. The construction without the article survives only as a literary archaism. Conversely there never is an article in other phrases, such as to have shame (poetic), to take shame (to, unto, or upon oneself), to put to shame.

* I take shame to say, that [etc.]. SCOTT, Kenilw., Ch. XV, 176.

You ought to take shame! ARNOLD BENNETT, Hilda Lessways, I, Ch. II, II, 21.

 No young woman of this year has come near her: those of the past seasons she has distanced, and utterly put to shame. THACK., Newc., II, Ch. III, 26.

share. a) It is certain that he was never charged with having borne a share in the worst abuses which then prevailed. MAC., War. Hist., (599b).

Note. Thus also to have and to take a share. The indefinite article is sometimes replaced by a possessive pronoun. MURRAY, s. v. share, 3.

shift. a) i. That's just the place where I could make a shift to do without it (sc. honour). SHER., Riv., IV, I, (256).

He could make a shift to express himself intelligibly enough to King Louis. SCOTT, Quent. Durw., Ch. XXXVII, 468.

- ii. By my other labours I can make shift to eat and drink and have good clothes. GOLDSMITH (R. ASHE KING, Ol. Goldsm., Ch. XI, 123).

I could make shift to chalk a little bit. DICK., Domb., Ch. II, 16.

Note. The absence of the article seems to be the exception.

show. a) I made a show of arranging my papers. JEROME, Novel Notes.

sight. a) i. In his eagerness to catch a sight of the unknown, he flared his feeble candle so suddenly, that it went out. WASH. IRV., Dolf Heyl. (STOF., HANDL., I, 121).

I caught a sight of him over their heads. JOWETT, Plato, I, 193.²⁾

- ii. The trainbands had caught sight of his well-known face. MAC., Hist., I, 580.²⁾
She sent up a shriek as soon as she caught sight of it. JOHN OXENHAM, Great-heart Gillian, Ch. II, 19.

Note. MURRAY (s. v. catch, 46) distinguishes between to catch a sight of (= to get a momentary or sudden view of), and to catch sight of (= to come abruptly in view of, to see all at once). There is not, apparently, a variant with the article of the phrases to lose sight and to have sight of. MURRAY, s. v. sight, II, 4, c. Compare also 63.

silence. c) i. There was a silence. CH. KINGSLEY, Herew., Ch. XIV, 62a.

There was a silence. KATH. CECIL THURSTON, John Chilcote, M. P., Ch. XI, 119; lb., Ch. XV, 167; lb., Ch. XVII, 178; etc.

There was a long silence. lb., Ch. XXXIV, 365.

Again a painful silence filled the room. lb., Ch. XXXIII, 353.

- ii. During the first few moments of the drive there was silence. lb., Ch. XIII, 144; lb., Ch. XV, 163; etc.

There was silence for a few minutes. WIL. J. LOCKE, The Glory of Clem. Wing, Ch. I, 9.

Note. After there is usage seems to be equally divided, when there is no modifying adjective. After a preposition there is no article: In grim silence (she) returned home. ARN. BENNETT, Hilda Lessways, I, Ch. III, 1, 25.

¹⁾ MURRAY, s. v. shame, 9.

²⁾ MURRAY, s. v. catch, 46.

sin. d) I always had a great mind to tell lies: but they frightened me, and said that it was a sin. CONGREVE, Love for Love, II, 2, (237).

'Tis pity though, in this sublime world, that | Pleasure's a sin, and sometimes sin's a pleasure. BYRON, Don Juan, I, CXXXIII.

'Twould be a sin and a shame, if we let her go dirty now she's ill. Mrs. GASK, Mary Barton, Ch. XIX, 202.

skill. a) i. He had a wonderful skill in grazing the edge of treason. MAC., Hist., II, Ch. V, 95.

ii. This author...had good skill in the feeding and ordering of singing-birds. RAY, Corr., 122.

Note. Usage may be equally divided.

spirit. a) These words infused a spirit into Joseph. FIELDING, Jos. Andrews, I, Ch. XV, 39.

spite. a) He seemed to have a spite to Mrs. Gashleigh. THACK., A little dinner at Timmins's, Ch. VI, (339).

stand. a) I suddenly made a stand, lest it (sc. the hill) should fall on my head! BUNYAN, Pilg. Prog., (153).

Sigtryp... made a stand against the Cornish. CH. KINGSLEY, Herew., Ch. V, 38b.

The Turks are unable to make a stand at this point. Westm. Gaz., No. 6071, 1b.

b) Now was Christian somewhat at a stand. BUNYAN, Pilg. Prog., (152).

The business of the Exchange was at a stand. MAC., Hist., II, Ch. V, 335.

It is certain that there is a point at which sympathy with drivers who pass signals must come to a stand. Westm. Gaz., No. 6377, 2c.

standstill. b) Everything is at a standstill. EDNA LYALL, Hardy Norsem., Ch. X, 85.

The trade of the city is at a standstill. Westm. Gaz., No. 6353, 1c.

(This) is to bring the House to a standstill. ib., No. 6347, 7b.

The negotiations between the two Powers have been brought to a standstill. ib., No. 4937, 1a.

stir. a) i. The report created a great stir. Times.

Mr. Keir Hardie tried to make a stir on behalf of the natives of India. Eng. Rev., No. 58, 287.

ii. There are two annual events which produce great stir and sensation in Little Britain. WASH. IRV., Sketch-Bk., XXV, 249.

Note. In the last quotation the absence of the article is probably due to the coupling of the two nouns together.

success. a) They rejoiced when the Americans won a success. Times.

suspicion. a) She had conceived a suspicion at her last interview with her mistress. FIELD., Jos. Andr., I, Ch. VIII, 19.

sympathy. I feel a mysterious sympathy with the tumult of nature. DICK., Barn. Rudge, Ch. II, 9b.

My knowledge of Greek language and literature, art, religion and philosophy, has given me . . . a sympathy with their (sc. humanity's) sorrows and aspirations T. P.'s Weekly, No. 469, 578a. (See also the last quotation under stand and compare antipathy.)

talent. a) He had a natural talent at pleasing the fair sex. WASH. IRV., Dolf Heyl. (STOF., Handl., I, 142).

She had a rare and surprising talent for getting the baby into difficulties. DICK., Crick., I, 12.

thankfulness. My first thought was a great thankfulness. KATH. CEC. THURSTON, John Chilcote, M. P., Ch. XXXI, 339.

Note. It may be assumed that the use of the article is exceptional.

thickness. b) These threads are of an even thickness. ROORDA, Dutch and Eng. Comp., § 19.

thirst. b) i. Better discipline might have converted this desire of amusement into a thirst for knowledge. SCOTT, Wav., Ch. III, 31a.

ii. It may be distinctly traced... either to thirst for money or to thirst for blood. MAC., Hist., V, 1, 657.¹⁾ trade. a) She drove a brisk trade in lollipop. G. ELIOT, Scenes, II, Ch. I, 72.

Note. Usage may be equally divided.

He stuck to his business and drove a thriving trade. BLACK, Adv. Phaeton VI, 81.

train. b) Everything was soon in a fair train. JANE AUSTEN, Mansfield Park, Ch. VII, 67.

trial. a) i. I intend to make a trial of their hearts. SHER., School for Scand., II, 3, (386).

He has strongly recommended me to make a trial of your goods. BUS. LET. Writer, I.

ii. I had a letter from her telling me that I could take three orphan girls of hers to the coast during the holidays, and then make trial of a situation with her as a teacher. G. ELIOT, Mill, VI, Ch. IX, 405.

The temper of the man moves him to conceal for the present the reason which he has, that he may make trial of Enid's love and submission to his desires. G. C. MAC., Note to Ten.'s Mar. of Ger., 761.

Note. The construction with the indefinite article is probably the ordinary one. Compare also: Well, well, make the trial if you please. SHER., School for Scand., III, 1, (388).

trot. b) You may see her on a little squat pony... puffing round the Ring on a full trot. SHER., School for Scand., II, 2, (380).

He went away at a trot into the woods. BUCHANAN, That Winter Night, Ch. V, 49.

He put his horse to a brisk trot. BLACK'S Sir Walt. Scott's Read., Rob Roy, 22.

Note. Compare pace, run and step.

turn. a) Mr. Eugenius Maunder had a turn for oils. JAMES PAYN, Glow-Worm Tales, I, B, 40.

uproar. b) All the district was in an uproar. BUCHANAN, That Winter Night, Ch. III, 30.

use. a) i. Give me back nine pounds, Jane, I've a use for it. CH. BRONTË, Jane Eyre, Ch. XXI, 274.

To find a use for banana-skins. FOWLER, Concise Oxf. Dict.

ii. He made good use of his wealth. WASH. IRV., Dolf Heyl. (STOF., Handl., I, 152).

The Russians made summary use of their advantage. KATH. CEC. THURSTON, John Chilcote, M. P., Ch. XXIII, 253.

He made use of a quibble. Pray make use of my telephone. FOWLER, Concise Oxf. Dict.

value. a) It is not surprising then that such talents should win the affections of a girl who by education was taught to value an appearance in herself and, consequently, to set a value upon it in another. GOLDSM., Vic., Ch. VII, (272).

Friends on whose opinions I set a high value. TOZER, Intr. to Childe Har., 49.

Some fathers set too great a value on books. H. J. BYRON, Our Boys.

¹⁾ MURRAY.

vengeance. a) i. An English army came to their assistance to take a terrible vengeance upon Cawnpore, MCCARTHY, Short Hist., Ch. XIII, 186.

ii. He threatened vengeance on any one who should depreciate his property. WASH. IRV., Dolf Heyl. (STOR., Hand., I, 114).

"My attachment to your person, sir" said Mr. Tupman... "is great — very great — but upon that person I must take summary vengeance." DICK., Pickw., Ch. XV, 130.

(They were) drinking freely at the expense of the peasantry and vowing dire vengeance against the enemy. BUCHANAN, That Winter Night, Ch. V, 45.

Note. The use of the article seems to be rather the exception than the rule.

venture. b) A quack prescribes at a venture. GOLDSMITH (RICH. ASHE KING, OI. Goldsm., Ch. IV, 51).

visit. b) Mr. A... is assisting his wife to show a book of photographic portraits to a girl on a visit. PUNCH.

welcome. a) They gave me a most cordial welcome. POE., Gold-bug. (NAUTA, Stories, I, 79).

She gave a kind welcome to the stranger. Story of Rob Roy, 4.

Note. The article is regularly absent in the phrases to bid welcome and to make welcome, in which however, welcome is not felt as a pure noun.

All who cared to come were made welcome. M. S. FRANCIS, The Manor Farm, Ch. XII.

will. b) "Now, then!" roared Amyas, "Fire, and with a will!" CH. KINGSLEY, Westw. Ho!, Ch. XX, 151b.

If I had a chance to better myself, I would go with a good will. STEVENSON, Kidnapped, 10.

The Pension Officers have all worked with a will. Westm. Gaz.

wind. c) There had been a wind all day. DICK., Cop., Ch. LV, 392a.

witness. a) i. The list of additions to the Department of Manuscripts in the British Museum during the five years 1906—10 bears a witness to the growing scarcity and rise in price of fine manuscripts by the very small number of them it contains. Athen., No. 4448, 91a.

ii. (The shadows beneath his eyes) bore witness to the sleepless night spent in pacing Chilcote's vast and lonely room. KATH. CECIL THURSTON, John Chilcote, M. P., Ch. XXVI, 289.

Note. The construction with the article is the exception.

c) There is witness to a regular and periodical migration. Westm. Gaz., No. 6329, 4c.

d) That any child should be branded as illegitimate is, in itself, witness to the inadequacy of our moral code. Eng. Rev., No. 58, 282.

wrong. i. Who does this, does a wrong. DICK., Chimes³, III, 72.

She was scrupulous in her devotions, good to the poor, never knowingly did anybody a wrong. THACK., Virg., Ch. IV, 34.

I find I have done you a wrong. Ib., Ch. XI, 116.

ii. You have done us wrong. DICK., Chimes³, III, 73.

Note I. The use of the article appears to be very common. It is useful to compare the above quotations with the following, in which not a single but a repeated phenomenon is referred to, and in which, consequently, there is no occasion for the use of the article.

She had suffered great wrong in some of the frequent forays. SCOTT, Abbot., Ch. II, 25.

If I sustained wrong from those you loved and favoured, was I to disturb your place with idle tale-bearings and eternal complaints? Ib., Ch. V, 59.

II. The article does not appear to be ever used, when the word is not used in the meaning of injustice, as in the above sentences.

I have done wrong in loving this poor orphan lad more than other of his class. SCOTT, Abbot., Ch. IV, 49.

He meant to punish her when she did wrong. G. ELIOT, Mill, I, Ch. V, 32.

zest. a) i. This adds a zest to [etc.]. FOWLER, Concise Oxf. Dict.

He has an amazing zest for social pleasure. Graph., No. 2278, 880a.

ii. She tasted a condiment which gave it (sc. the heavy festal mass) zest.

CH. BRONTË, Villette, Ch. XIV, 176.

Note. Usage may be equally divided.

41. The indefinite article is also usual:

a) before the names of certain disorders, especially:

- 1) ache and compounds of ache. For instances of the indefinite article being absent or being replaced by the definite article see 35, b.

* He was not put into better humour either, by the reflection that he had taken it into his head, early in the evening, to think he had got an ache there, and so stopped at home. DICK., Pickw., Ch. XXXVI, 336.

 They awoke with a headache. JANE AUSTEN, Mansfield Park, Ch. IX, 90. (The same writer repeatedly has the headache.)

One day, Amelia had a headache. THACK., Van. Fair, I, Ch. IV, 26.

The mildest form of hysteria often ends in laughter and tears together, and is followed by a headache and a sleep. HARMSWORTH Enc., s.v. Hysteria.

- 2) fever. Compare 35, b.

But Simon's wife's mother lay sick of a fever. Bible, Mark, I, 30. Master Ribstone coming home for the Christmas holidays from Eton, over-ate himself and had a fever. THACK., Pend., I, Ch. II, 16.

The lady... caught cold, took a fever, and died after a very brief illness. CH. BRONTË, Villette, Ch. XXII, 237.

To watch with a man in a fever. WEBST., s.v. watch.

Astrupp had caught a fever in Florence. KATH. CECIL THURSTON, John Chilcote, M. P., XXII, 237.

- 3) those illustrated in the following quotations:

dropsy. There he found himself ill at ease, and no doubt, but in time would have died of a dropsy. ELIZ. MONTAGU, Letters (Westm. Gaz., No. 5201, 5a).

quinsy. Why don't you speak out? do not stand croaking like a frog in a quinsy! SHER., Riv., IV, 2, (261).

rheumatism. (He) has been up all night with a rheumatism. THACK., Pend., I, Ch. VII, 79.

Note. In this connection it may be observed that sore throat is sometimes felt as an abstract noun, as is shown by its discarding the article.

These old-fashioned precautions will not prevent us from catching sore throat. II. Lond. News, No. 3834, 543a.

Every one recognizes (these) as the symptoms of sore throat. Ib.

Compare: This fact should have made every one careful never to neglect a sore throat. Ib.

- b) before time and distance, when preceded by short or long, or adjectives of like import.

i. * In a little time the whole town was in a buzz with tales about the Haunted House. WASH. IRV., Dolf Heyl. (STOF., Handl., I, 114).

The last wolf that has roamed our island had been slain in Scotland a short time before the close of the reign of Charles the Second. MAC., Hist., I, Ch. III, 307.

In Kensal Rise there have been two particularly atrocious murders committed within a short time. Times (= korten tijd na elkaar.)

 At a safe distance from the scene of the action. WILLOCK, Voy., 305. Neiss... is only at a short distance from the Austrian frontier. THACK., Barry Lyndon, Ch. VI, 95.

- ii. * Short time had Angelo to gaze on his comrades that were to be. LYTTON, Rienzi, IV, Ch. I, 154.

Discovering before very long time that he had little taste or genius for the pursuing of the exact sciences [etc.]. THACK., Pend., I, Ch. XVIII, 182.

 The watchman... withdrew himself to good distance. BLACKMORE, Lorna Doone, Ch. XXXVII, 224.

Much of my prudence was forgotten, or at least the better part of courage, which loves danger at long distance. Ib., Ch. XXXVIII, 233.

- c) in some salutations and imprecations. Compare 24.

- i. * A pleasant journey!

A good morning to you! CONGREVE, Love for Love, I, 1 (205).

A merry Christmas and a happy new year! DICK., Christm. Car.⁵, III, 71.

Miss Sharp, I wish you a good morning. THACK., Van. Fair, I, Ch. I, 7.

I wish you a good day. Id., Pend., II, Ch. XII, 130.

A murrain on your tongue! MAX PEMBERTON, I crown thee king, Ch. I, 15.

A mischief upon my bad manners and my pride, if the words I used meant to imply that Lysander was false! DEIGHTON, Note to Mids., II, 2, 54.

- ii. Good morning (afternoon, evening, night)!

Mercy on me! SHER., School for Scand., II, 2, (381).

They wished each other Merry Christmas in their can of grog. DICK., Christm. Car.⁵, III, 75.

He heard them give each other Merry Christmas. Ib., II, 37.

Long life to him! Ib., III, 71.

- d) in titles of books, essays, poems, etc. before the names which indicate the general character of the composition.

An elegy on the Dead of Mad Dog. GOLDSM., Vicar.

A primer of spoken English. SWEET.

A new English Grammar. Id.

A History of English Literature. SHAW.

Our National Institutions, A short sketch for schools. ANNA BUCKLAND.

42. Practice is variable as to the use of the indefinite article before abstract nouns after the determinative such (Ch. XXXVII, 7 ff.) and the exclamatory what (Ch. XXXVIII, 10 ff.).

There is not, apparently, any principle by which the use or omission of the indefinite article in this position is conditioned, beyond, perhaps, that of rhythm or euphony. Before some nouns, such as change, pity and shame, the article is, however, rarely dispensed with. Compare also MÄTZN., Eng. Gram.², III, 195 and 281; ELLINGER, Verm. Beitr., 39.

- i. * The storm continued with such fury, that the seamen themselves acknowledged they had never known a worse. DEFOE, Rob. Crusoe, 10.
 To me it was not easy to sleep after a day of such excitement. CH. BRONTË, Villette, Ch. XIV, 190.
 All of which ornaments set off this young fellow's figure to such advantage that [etc.]. THACK., Pend., I, Ch. III, 41.
 It is a shame to speak with such levity about the character of ladies. Id., Virg., Ch. XXXI, 317.
Such sudden and violent revenge would not have been thought strange in Scotland. MAC., Hist., II, Ch. V, 146.
 I felt such delight at the prospect of the day before me, that I forgot all my scruples. SWEET, Old Chapel.
 What! me spend a month's meal and meat and fire on such vanity as that! CH. READE, The Cloister and the Hearth, Ch. I, 7.
 Mr. Roosevelt is not to see the Pope. That is such bad business for the Vatican that the decision to say "No" almost extorts admiration. Westm. Gaz., No. 5277, 2a.
 To such extravagance does the political temper of the Protectionist lead! Id., No. 5386, 1c.
 There was nothing in his long and-splendid range of parts, which brought him out to such advantage. T. P.'s Weekly, No. 474, 713c.
-  Such a bustle ensued, that you might have thought a goose the rarest of all birds. DICK., Christm. Car., III, 67.
 Lady Clavering was in such a good humour that Sir Francis even benefited by it. THACK., Pend., II, Ch. XXXVIII, 390.
 Gracious God, who was he, weak and friendless creature, that such a love should be poured out upon him? Id., Henry Esmond, II, Ch. VI, 203.
 There is no sin in such a love as mine now. Id., 204.
 The aforesaid Martin, whom Arthur had taken such a fancy for, was one of those unfortunates [etc.]. HUGHES, Tom Brown, II, Ch. III, 237.
- ii. * What affection in her words, what compassion in her repressed tears! DICK., Little Dorrit, Ch. IX, 50b.
What native acuteness in the stealthy eye! What hardened resolve in the full nostril and firm lips! What sardonic contempt for all things in the intricate lines about the mouth! LYTTON, Night and Morning, 321.
 How the mother looks into the doctor's eyes! What thanks if there is light there; what grief and pain, if he casts them down and dares not say "hope"! THACK., Pend., II, Ch. XV, 155.
 Any one can guess with what exultation we got off the dusty road. SWEET, Old Chapel.
 At the mention of it (sc. the Old Chapel) we jumped up and said "What a place! and what weather!" Id.
What taste! what perfection! AGN. & EG. CASTLE, Diam. cut Paste, II, Ch. IV, 150.
-  What a shame! ah, what a fault were this! Henry VI, C, V, 12.
What a pity the carriage should break down in such a spot! LYTTON, Lady of Lyons, III, 1.
What a change between to-day and yesterday! THACK., Van. Fair, I, Ch. VIII, 75.
What a life! Mrs. CRAIK, Dom. Stor., I, Ch. IV, 24.
What a happiness! DICK., Chuz., Ch. XXXIII, 216a.
What a happiness it would be to set the pattern about here! G. ELIOT, Mid., I, Ch. III, 20.

Note. Before the names of substances the indefinite article seems to be regularly absent after both such and what.

I never tasted such wine before.

What capital wine! THACK., Van. Fair, I, Ch. XIII, 131.

II. For the use of the indefinite article before a plural preceded by a numeral, or by what or such see Ch. XXVI, 17.

SUPPRESSION OF THE ARTICLE BEFORE NOUNS IN CERTAIN GRAMMATICAL FUNCTIONS IN WHICH THEIR MEANING IS MODIFIED.

43. In certain functions common nouns assume to a certain extent the character of proper names, and, consequently reject the article more or less regularly.

This is the case:

- a) when they are used in address. Compare SWEET, N. E. Gr., § 2056.

Is this true, widow? THOM. SOUTHERN, Oroonoko, I, 1, (163a).

That's your own fault, mistress. Ib., I, 2, (164a).

I beg, captain, you'll be seated. SHERIDAN, Rivals, III, 3.

"Yes, Lady," said the boy. SCOTT, Abbot, Ch. III, 27.

I do know the reason, Prince. MAX PEMB., Doctor Xavier, VI, 29a.

You cannot regret as he regrets, Highness. Ib.

Here is your rose, pet, and I only hope it is the shade you wanted. Westm. Gaz., No. 6311, 3c.

It ought to take your headache away, darling, it is so lovely. Ib.

I have something to say to you, child. Punch, No. 3759, 88a.

Don't buy clothes for me, woman. Ib.

Note. SHAKESPEARE sometimes had the definite article before a vocative. Compare FRANZ, Shak. Gram.² § 261. Occasional instances may occur in later English.

The Gods! it smites me | Beneath the fall I have. Ant. and Cleop., V, 2, 171.

The last of all the Romans, fare thee well! Jul. Cæs., V, 3, 99.

Sleep thou — the persecuted, the disinherited orphan — the son of an ill-fated mother — sleep thou! SCOTT, Abbot, Ch. VIII, 83.

- b) when they are used as appositions of the third kind. (Ch. IV, 12 ff.)

The precious stone beryl is unique among minerals. Daily Mail.

- c) when they stand after appositional or specializing of. (Ch. IV, 4, Obs. IV.)

- 1) In this position some are also found with the indefinite article, the variable practice being due to the fact that the preposition of may also be understood as denoting a relation of possession. The following illustrations must be accepted for what they are worth. The absence of illustration of one or the other practice must not be understood to mean that it is non-existent.

business. He carried on the business of a vintner. STOF., Handl., III, § 57.

capacity. No doubt, they (sc. the stories) were interesting to her in her capacity of a novelist. RID. HAGGARD, Mr. Mees. Will¹², Ch. V, 50.

character. i. He never really appeared but in one character, that of a philosopher. H. ROGERS, Ess., I, Ch. VIII, 335.¹⁾

- ii. Mr. Wyndham, in the character of postulant for the Chancellorship of the Exchequer in the Tariff Reform Administration, promises us a tax of 2 s. per quarter on corn and flour. Westm. Gaz.

1) MURRAY.

commission. The King gave him the commission of a lieutenant colonel in the British Army. MAC., Clive, (511b).

craft. He did not despise the craft of boat-builder. W. BESANT, Master Craftsman, I, 118.

degree. i. Do you think I would marry under the degree of a Gentlewoman?

HEYWOOD, Fortune by Land, I, II, 1)

ii. The degree of Doctor of Science was conferred on Lord Lister. Times.

dignity. i. He could well support the dignity of a governor. CLARENDON, Hist. of the Great Reb., 1/603.

ii. He (sc. Holcroft) rose... to the dignity of actor. SAINTSB., Ninet. Cent., Ch. I, 38.

name. Thus he bore without abuse | The grand old name of gentleman. TEN., In Memoriam, CXI.

You have brought disgrace on the name of philosopher. MAC., Fred., (691a).

office. We have already seen how low an estimate Cranmer had formed of the office of a Bishop. Id., Hist., I, Ch. I, 74.

part. i. I must play the part of a father here. DICK., Chuz., Ch. LIII, 415a.

He acted something like the part of a deserter. FREEMAN, Norman Eng., III, Ch. XII, 121.

He was resolved to act the part of a man of honour. MISS LINLEY (G. G. S., Life of Sheridan, 27).

ii. He made it clear, ... that we had not played the part of mischief-maker imputed to us by irresponsible critics. Times, No. 1820, 923a.

I shall have to play the part of seducer. VICTORIA CROSS, Six Chapt. of a Man's Life, 133.

A small travelling circus in which he played the part of clown. Times.

position. The position of uncle to Tristram would not have tempted him alone. EL. GLYN, The Reason Why, Ch. XXXII, 302.

He holds the office of Laureate. BOOKMAN, No. 263, 2a.

profession. i. A residential College especially equipped for preparing the sons of gentlemen for the profession of an engineer. Times, No. 1819, 902b.

ii. Mr. Pendennis exercised the profession of apothecary and surgeon. THACK., Pend., I, Ch. II, 15.

An insignificant little person who suffered from the profession of music-teacher. BARRY PAIN, Culminating Point.

M. Steinheil was one of those worthy and timid mediocrities who had adopted the profession of painter. T. P.'s Weekly, No. 493, 481b.

quality. Fanny never made her appearance in the quality of nurse at his chambers any more. THACK., Pend., II, Ch. XV, 156.

rank. i. He has been promoted to the rank of an Admiral of the Fleet. Times. He obtained the rank of a lieutenant. II. Lond. News.

Commoner = One of the common people, a member of the commonalty (Now applied to all below the rank of a peer). MURRAY, s. v. commoner, 2.

ii. To prefer an officer to the rank of general. WEBST.

A commissioned military officer below the rank of captain. Ib.

The sovereign was pleased to advance Colonel Sir Michael O'Dowd to the rank of Major General. THACK., Van. Fair, II, Ch. XXXII, 362.

title. The title of king was not revived. MAC., Hist., I, Ch. I, 132.

The King had taken to himself the title of Defender of the Faith. HAL. SUTCL., Pam the Fiddler, Ch. II, 24.

¹) MURRAY.

- trade. i. He learned the trade of a dyer. STOF., Handl., III, § 7.
 ii. The two ushers at Tom's school were only driving their poor trade of usher to get such living as they could. HUGHES, Tom Brown, I, Ch. III, 59.
 Returning to England, Cromwell continued to amass wealth by adding the trade of scrivener, something between that of a banker and attorney, to his other occupations. GREEN, Short. Hist., Ch. VI, § VI, 332.
 (Note the varied practice.)

Note I. The definite article is sometimes met with in the same position.

They cultivate all trades save that of the armourer. LYTON, Rienzi, II, Ch. I, 78.

II. The indefinite article is, of course, impossible in referring to a station, rank, post, etc. that can be held by only one person at a time.

At the end of this month Captain A. D. Ricardo will vacate, on time limit, the post of Captain of Chatham Dockyard, and go on half-pay. Truth, No. 1802, 76a.

- 2) Regular is the suppression of the definite article, when specializing of is followed by a plural noun, as in the House of Lords, the House of Commons, the Chamber of Deputies, the Book of Proverbs.
44. When a noun is used predicatively, i. e. as nominal part of the predicate or as predicative adnominal adjunct, it often loses some of its substantial character, approximating more or less to an adjective. The result is that it sometimes rejects the article, whether definite or indefinite, according as the circumstances of the case are applicable to only one person or thing, or to one out of a number. As the following discussions will show, there is a marked difference between English and Dutch practice only so far as the indefinite article is concerned. Compare also Ch. XXIII, 16; Ch. XXIV, 36; and see FRANZ, Shak. Gram.², § 277; ELLINGER, Verm. Beitr., 39.
45. a) The definite article is frequently suppressed before a predicative noun denoting a specified family or social relation, or a specified civil, military or ecclesiastical dignity or office. The predicative noun as nominal part of the predicate:
 The child is father of the man. WORDSWORTH.
 The boy is father of the man. THACK., Four Georges, IV, 93.
 The wish is father to the thought. PROV.
 I was nursery-governess in a family where Mr. Copperfield used to visit. DICK., Cop., Ch. II, 5a.
 You are heir to great estates. CH. KINGSLEY, Westw. Hol., Ch. XIX, 143b.
 Wilkins was now member for a mining constituency. MRS. WARD, Marcella, II, 237.
 Boldwood was tenant of what was called Little Weatherbury Farm. TH. HARDY, Far from the Madding Crowd, Ch. XVIII, 136.
 A speech delivered by my right hon. friend who is now Home Secretary. Times, No. 1819, 893c.
 During all this time he was leader of the Irish Party. T. P.'s Weekly, No. 495, 546c.

That (sc. morphia) which had been slave, gradually became master. KATH. CECIL THURSTON, John Chilcote, M. P., Ch. I, 9.

He is...chief of a counting-house. Westm. Gaz., No. 6011, 4c.

Note. Thus also when a superlative or, the adjective having the value of a superlative, or an ordinal numeral is part of the name of the office.

Lord Derby again became Prime Minister. GREEN, Short Hist., Epilogue, 843. I was best man at the wedding. EL. GLYN, The Reason why, Ch. XXI, 194. It was reported that my right hon. friend, then First Lord of the Admiralty, had in a public speech, used language attacking German policy. Times, 1819, 893c.

He became Chief Secretary in 1887. Westm. Gaz., No. 6377, 1b.

The predicative noun as predicative adnominal adjunct, a) of the first kind: It was this little child who commonly acted as mistress of the ceremonies to introduce him to Mrs. Osborne. THACK., Van. Fair, I, Ch. XXXV, 392.

Mr. Whittington served Sheriff of London and was three times Lord Mayor. ANDREW LANG, Blue Fairy Book.

For seven years he wielded power as President of the United States. Westm. Gaz., No. 5323, 1b.

β) of the second kind: Rebecca was now engaged as governess. THACK., Van. Fair, I, Ch. VII, 67.

The directors appointed Clive governor of Fort St. David. MAC., Clive, (511b)

The nation everywhere acknowledged him master. MOTLEY, Rise, V, Ch. IV, 718b.

The gates and bridges of the State should be under the control of whomsoever should be elected Chief Magistrate. LYTTON, Rienzi, II, Ch. VI, III.

For by thy state | And presence I might guess thee chief of those [etc.]. TEN., Lanc. and El., 182.

He was appointed...Latin Secretary to Cromwell. Cassell's Conc. Dict. s. v. Milton.

He was declared heir presumptive to the Danish throne. Times.

With the preceding quotations compare:

i. Purpose is but the slave to memory. Haml., III, 2, 200.

Matilda, though of the royal Saxon blood, was not the heir to the monarchy. SCOTT, Ivanhoe, Ch. XLII, 448.

ii. I will have | My young son Henry crown'd the King of England. TEN., Beck., Prol., (696a).

The following quotations show variable practice:

My father had the sole charge (sc. of the lighter) — he was monarch of the deck; my mother of course was queen, and I was the heir apparent. MARRYAT, Jac. Faithf., Ch. I, 3a. (Compare: I have said that I was heir apparent. Ib., 4a.)

He was the chief now and lord. THACK., Pend., I, Ch. II, 30.

We are glad to hear the Conservative spokesman lay this stress upon the need of making the labourer master of his own house, but whether it is necessary for that purpose to make him the owner is quite another question. Westm. Gaz., No. 6353, 2a.

Mrs. Brooks, the lady who was the householder at the Herons, and owner of all the handsome furniture, was not a person of an unusually curious turn of mind. HARDY, Tess, Ch. LVI, 595.

As the head of the English Church, he (sc. the Sovereign) summons and dissolves Convocation. ANNA BUCKLAND, Our Nat. Inst., 7. (Compare: The King, as head of the nation, is the head of the National Church. Ib., 69.)

- b) Suppression of the article is the rule before such a noun, when it stands adnominally after a proper name, the relation or office being specified.

The suppression of the article changes the grammatical function of such a noun, converting it from an apposition into an undeveloped clause. Compare Ch. IV, 3, Obs. 1; Ch. XXI, 3.

The noun denoting a family or social relation: i. He was the only son of Katharine Ralston, widow of admiral Ralston. MAR. CRAWF., Kath. Laud., I, Ch. I, 7.

The elder was Mrs. Benjamin Slayback, wife of the well-known member of Congress. Ib., 8.

ii. Edward Russell, the brother of Lord Russell. GREEN.¹⁾

The noun expressing a dignity or office: i. Edward the Confessor, King of England. SCOTT, Tales.¹⁾

Mr. White, Minister of Finance, said at a banquet given in his honour [etc.]. Times, No. 1819, 904*b*.

The Ministers were accompanied by Prince Louis of Battenberg, First Sea Lord; Vice Admiral Sir John Jellicoe, Second Sea Lord. Ib. Lond. News, No. 3886, 543.

ii. Denewulf, the bishop of Winchester. GREEN.¹⁾

Malger, the Archbishop of Rouen Ib.

Dr. Kerzl, the Physician to the Emperor of Austria. Athen., No. 4437, 566*a*.

Note I. When the relation, or the dignity, office or trade is not specified, the article is not, as a rule, dispensed with.

i. Thoff (vulgar for though) Jack Gauge, the exciseman, has ta'en to his carrots, there's little Dick, the farrier, swears he'll never forsake his bob. SHER., Riv., I, 1, (215).

It was not . . . to Richardson, the author, that Goldsmith applied for work, but to Richardson, the printer. R. ASHE KING, Ol. Goldsm., Ch. VI, 70.

ii. I should like to see Molly housemaid stealing to the terrace-gardens in the grey dawning to cull a wistful posy. I should like to see Betty kitchenmaid cutting off a thick lock of her chestnut ringlets, which she proposed to exchange for a woolly token from young Gumbo's pate. TACK., Virg., Ch. XX, 199.

Robin postman took the proffered tea, put his dripping hat on the ground, and thanked Jemima cook. TROL., Framl. Pars., Ch. V, 40. To compare Symons poet with Watts-Duntun poet is like comparing chalk and cheese. Periodical.³⁾

II. Also when the noun denotes to doer of a specified action, the article is not suppressed.

Admiral Monk, the restorer of the Stuarts is better known in Dutch history as Duke of Albemarle.²⁾

46. The indefinite article is suppressed, mostly contrary to Dutch practice:

- a) generally before predicative nouns denoting either a relation of kinship or a social relation.

¹⁾ FOELS.—KOCH, Wis. Gram., § 258. ²⁾ KRUISINGA, Gram. of Pres. Day Eng., § 392. ³⁾ WENDT, Synt. des heut. Eng., 161.

The relational meaning of the noun is sometimes symbolized by the preposition to, while the placing of the indefinite article before the relational noun would normally entail the use of the pleonastic genitive (Ch. XXIV, 33), with, of course, an altered meaning: He is son to my neighbour corresponds to He is a son of my neighbour's.

- i. Miss Jenkins was daughter of a deceased rector of Cranford. MRS. GASK., Cranf., Ch. I, 21.
He was an old school-fellow of his, and son of a merchant in that town. CH. KINGSLEY, Westw. Hol., Ch. XVI, 131a.
He is cousin to the Loftus boys. MRS. WOOD, Orv. Col., Ch. II, 23.
- ii. 't Is Clincher, who was apprentice to my uncle Smuggler. FARQUHAR, The Constant Couple, I, I, (53).
It (sc.) the funeral had been that of a boy of Dolf's years, who had been apprentice to a famous German doctor. WASH. IRV., Dolf Heyl. (STOF., Handl., I, 105).

Note I. We find the same practice invariably before nouns constituting undeveloped clauses. (Ch. XXI.)

Sir Dudley North, younger brother of the Lord Keeper. MAC., Hist., II, Ch. IV, 88.
Among the wounded was Colonel F. W. Rhodes, brother of Mr. Cecil Rhodes. Times.

Thus also in descriptions of the 'dramatis personæ' of a play.

Paris, a young nobleman, kinsman to the Prince. Romeo and Juliet.
Romeo, son to Montague. Ib.

Geoffrey, son of Rosamund and Henry. TEN., Becket.

II. When such a relational noun is accompanied by a classifying modifier, it resumes its full character of a noun, and, consequently, requires the indefinite article.

She was a good daughter to you.

b) sometimes before predicative nouns denoting a quality.

Man, "said the Ghost", if man you be in heart, not adamant. DICK., Christm. Car., III, 70.

She gazed at me, as if she really did not know whether I were child or fiend. CH. BRONTË, Jane Eyre, Ch. IV, 27.

Let the boy go with us, lest he prove traitor. LYTTON, Rienzi, Ch. I, 13.

Is Emile Grenat still anglomane? G. MEREDITH, Lord Ormont, Ch. IV, 77.
You are woman through and through. MRS. ALEX., For his Sake, II, Ch. II, 38.

"Fräulein," said Coralie, "you're as wise as you are darling". AGN. & EG. CASTLE, Diam. cut Paste, II, Ch. IX, 222.

Compare with the above the following quotations, which exhibit the more usual practice:

"Why, my dear Copperfield," said the Doctor; "you are a man!" DICK., Cop., Ch. XXXVI, 259b.

He determined to marry her, while he was still a hobbledehoy. TROL., Thack., Ch. IV, 110.

The man's a fool. JAMES PAYN, Glow-Worm Tales, II, D, 58.

When it behoved him (sc. Edward VII) to be a king, he was a king; but always he was a man with a man's heart. LORD ROSEBERY, Speech.

Note I. When nouns in this function make up a series of two or more, the article is often dropped for oratorical effect. (69.)

In this business he was both knave and fool. MASON, Eng. Gram.³⁴, 15, N. II. When such nouns are modified by an adverb of degree, which, indeed, converts them, to all intents and purposes, into pure adjectives, the suppression is regular. (Ch. XXIII, 16, c.)

I was fool enough to buy a stock that cost me five-and-twenty shillings. THACK., Sam. Titm., Ch. V, 49.

She is more child than woman. G. ELIOT, Scenes, II, Ch. VIII, 131. (She is more a child than a woman = She is rather a child than a woman.)

She was thoroughly master of French. ANNIE BESANT, Autobiog., 22.

III. English practice almost regularly has the article before nouns denoting a quality which constitute undeveloped clauses (Ch. XXI), not only if the headword is a noun, but also if it is a pronoun. In the latter case Dutch regularly rejects it.

i. Paris, a young nobleman, kinsman to the Prince. ROM. & JUL. (Observe that the varied practice illustrated by this quotation depends on the different character of the nouns in question.)

ii. * It would ill become me, a sinful and secular man, to complain of a bed as hard as a board. SCOTT, Monastery, Ch. XVI, 184.

God have mercy upon me, a sinner. CH. KINGSLEY, Westw. Ho!, Ch. XXXIII, 247b.

Have pity on me, Sir, an aged and a lonely man. CH. READE, It is never too late to mend, I, Ch. XV, 172.

He was thinking... of the kind, wise words she had spoken to him, an ignorant fellow. BEATR. HARRADEN, Ships, I, Ch. XIII, 69.

 Gracious God, who was he, weak and friendless creature, that such a love should be poured out upon him? THACK., Henry Esmond, II, Ch. VI, 203.

In such a sentence as the following we have not, of course, to deal with an undeveloped clause, but with a vocative:

For what a prodigious quantity of future crime and wickedness are you, unhappy boy, laying the seed! THACK., Pend., I, Ch. II, 27.

c) mostly before master and mistress in the sense of proficient. (Ch. XXIII, 16, d.)

i. He was master of most modern languages. SCOTT, Wav., Ch. III, 30a.

A Jack of all trades is master of none. PROV.

She was mistress of Danish, German, English and French. TIMES.

ii. He's a master of languages. FARQUHAR, The Beaux' Stratagem III, 2, (394).

He is a good scholar, as well as a consummate soldier, and a master of many languages. THACK., Virg., Ch. XXIV, 246.

Note. I. Also when accompanied by an intensive adjective, master and mistress occasionally stand without the article.

i. He spent two-and-twenty years in Egypt and returned perfect master of all science. LEWES, Hist. Phil., 42.

A mode of warfare in which she was past mistress. MRS. WARD, Marc., I, Ch. I, 11.

ii. His daughter was a perfect master of music. FIELDING, Tom Jones, IV, Ch. V, 49a.

There was the weight a man's sayings carry, when he is a real master of one thing. MAR. CRAWF., Kath. Laud., I, Ch. VIII, 188.

I found him to be a thorough master of the Basque language and people. ALG. WEST, Some Remin. of Mr. Gladst. (Ninet. Cent., No. 395, 83).

II. Before master in the sense of a person who has the upper hand, the article is regularly absent.

He had made himself master of Olympia. NETTLESHIP, Dict. of Clas. Antiq., 467b.

III. The use of the definite article in the following quotations seems to mark exclusiveness:

He is the master of his subject. Rev. of Rev., CCIV, 56a.

d) occasionally before such words as foe (enemy) and friend, denoting a person's disposition towards another person or a thing. The ordinary practice is, however, to use the article, even when to follows.

i. And I'll grow friend to danger. Troilus and Cres., IV, 4, 72.

You are foe to the Orsini, yet you plead for him — it sounds generous; but hark you, — you are more a friend to your order than a foe to your rival. LYTTON, Rienzi, IV, Ch. II, 159. (Note the varied practice.)

"You thought me Friend!" he said — "You should have known me Foe!" MAR. CORELLI, Sorrows of Satan, II, Ch. XL, 259.

ii. Not that I am an enemy to love. SHERIDAN, Duenna, I, 1, (310).

He was a friend to me. TEN., The Death of the Old year, III.

47. The indefinite article is mostly used, contrary to ordinary Dutch practice:

a) before predicative nouns denoting a state.

1. The predicative noun as nominal part of the predicate: She will be a mother soon. THACK., Van Fair, I, Ch. XXXV, 390.

She is a widow. TROL., Thack., Ch. V, 130.

I am an orphan. LYTTON, Rienzi, IV, Ch. I, 151.

The Emperor surrendered his sword, and was a captive in the hands of his enemies. MC CARTHY, Short Hist., Ch. XXIV, 372.

When he became a millionaire, of course, that course of conduct became impossible. JAMES PAYN, Glow-Worm Tales, II, C, 39.

For several years she remains a widow. Lit. World.

She was a wife herself. AGN. & EG. CASTLE, Diam. cut Paste, II, Ch. XI, 229.

2. The predicative noun as predicative adnominal adjunct: I will live a bachelor. Much Ado, I, 1, 248.

I have heard him say he would die a bachelor for your sake. GOLDSMITH, Vic., Ch. XXXI, 1, (467).

Sooner than thou shouldst abandon the noble cause to which I have devoted thee, would I see thee lie a corpse at my feet. SCOTT, Abbot, Ch. IX, 89. He comes home now, where he lives a godless old recluse. THACK., Pend., I, Ch. XXIX, 310.

I shall live and die an old bachelor. Ib., I, Ch. II, 23.

He expected to come back a prince at least. CH. KINGSLEY, Westw. Hol., Ch. V, 41a.

Note. The following quotations show variable practice:

bankrupt. i. He was adjudicated a bankrupt. Times.

To be adjudicated a bankrupt. Cas. Conc. Cycl., s.v. insolvent.

ii. The debtor had been adjudicated bankrupt. Times.

party. i. We have never had any quarrel to which I have been a party. DICK., Christm. Car., I, 12.

ii. He was... party to some of the foulest judicial murders recorded in our history. MAC., Hist., I, Ch. II, 270.

prisoner. i. * Her father is a prisoner. Rev. of Rev., CCXXX, 126a.

 Requesting him to keep Rob Roy a prisoner, Black's Sir W. Scott's Readers, Rob Roy, 32.

Geoffrey is made a prisoner. Rev. of Rev., CCXXX, 125b.

The Boers have taken possession of the telegraph office, making the operator a prisoner. Times.

- ii. * The daughter of a Turkish bashaw fell in love with me too, when I was prisoner among the Infidels. FARQUHAR, The Recruiting Officer, III, 2, (294).

Lord Arran was twice prisoner in the Tower. THACK., Henry Esq., III, Ch. IV, 346.

 Water spread itself wheresoever it listed — or would have done so, but for the frost that held it prisoner. DICK., Crism. Car. 5, III, 74.

He was held prisoner. Story of Rob Roy, 29.

He had been made prisoner. JAMES PAYN, Glow-Worn Tales, II, B, 24
They made him prisoner. SWEET, N. E. Gr., § 2060.

witness. i. To witness = to be a witness of. ANNAND., Conc. Dict.

- ii. I have been witness to many mortifications he (sc. Goldsmith) has suffered in Johnson's company. R. ASKE KING, Ol. Goldsmith, Ch. XIII, 157.

Each practice is illustrated in:

I might have been made a knight by many, after the French fashion, many a year ago. I might have been knight, when I slew the white bear. CH. KINGSLEY, Hereward, Ch. XX, 89a.

- b) before nouns denoting a trade, profession, dignity, office, position, station, etc. that may be held by more than one person at a time.

1. The predicative noun as nominal part of the predicate:

He has become a student at the university. THACK., Newc., I, Ch. XXVII, 301.

She is a teacher in a school in Derbyshire. Mrs. WOOD, Orv. Col., Ch. VI, 86.

He was only a captain in the Austrian army. Lit. World.

He had continuously been a Minister of the Crown or Leader of the Opposition in the House of Commons. Times, No. 1819, 893d.

2. The predicative noun as predicative adnominal adjunct:

The King dubbed his son a knight. WEBST, s.v. knight.

They appointed him a member of Council at Madras. MAC., War. Hist., (600b).

Dupleix had not been bred a soldier. Id., Clive, (509a).

He had been elected a member of several fashionable clubs. Mrs. WARD, Marc., I, 94.

He had been born and brought up a Quaker. T. P.'s Weekly, No. 475, 769a.

Note I. Instances of the alternative practice are by no means infrequent.

1. The predicative noun as nominal part of the predicate:

If I were Minister, I would not allow such latitude to any man in office. TREVELYAN, Mac., 227.

He ... rendered an inestimable service to philology by laying the foundation of Greek studies in the University of Cambridge, where he was professor. SHAW, Hist. Eng. Lit., Ch. III, § 6.

Educated at Cambridge, he became fellow of Trinity of College in 1822. WEBB, Intr. to Mac.'s Lays.

He (sc. Holcroft) rose from being stable-boy at Newmarket, ... to quasi-literary positions as schoolmaster and clerk, and then to the dignity of actor. SAINTSB., Ninet. Cent., Ch. I, 38.

2. The predicative noun as predicative adnominal adjunct,

a) of the first kind: They sent him admiral into the narrow seas. CLARENDON, Hist. of Great Reb., I, 379.

The King's Hussars in which his father lived to see him Major. LOCKHART, Scott, II, 57.

She was familiar with Miss Brabazon from having formerly lived servant in the college. MRS. WOOD, Orv. Col., Ch. IV, 90.

β) of the second kind: They call him captain, but anybody is captain. HARDY, Return of the Native, I, 311.

We do him injustice — if we merely call him novelist. CUMING WALTERS, Phases of Dick., 19.

Mr. Satyendra Sinha, who is appointed legal member of Council, is a lawyer of high repute and great practice. Westm. Gaz., No. 4961, 2a.

II. The suppression of the article may be quite usual, when the noun is used in a pregnant meaning, i. e. approaches to a quality-expressing word. (46, b.)

To call him poet would be a gross misapplication of the term. GARNETT, Age of Dryden, 117.

In much of his later work Browning almost ceases to be artist. H. WALKER, Greater Victorian Poets, 155.

Observe the varying practice in: I. Antipholis now lost all patience and calling her a sorceress, he denied that he had ever promised her a chain. LAMB., Tales, Com. of Er., 221.

On this Antipholis became quite frantic, and again calling her sorceress and witch, ... ran away from her. Ib., 122.

ii. I sometimes wish that I were queen — a queen in my own right. JAMES BLYTH, The King and Isabel, 74.

III. The suppression seems to be regular before such nouns when they stand by way of undeveloped nominal clause after a proper name. (Ch. IV, 4, Obs. I; Ch. XXI, 3.)

It was at Newark that Byron, under the superintendence of Mr. Ridge, bookseller and publisher, first appeared as a poet. LYTTON, Life of Lord Byron, 15a.

IV. The fact that sovereign may be understood as an adjective explains the absence of the article in:

If I were sovereign, I would rule that no woman should inherit a fortune of more than five thousand pounds. HOLME LEE, Beautiful Miss Barrington, I, 43.¹⁾ (Compare: No one disputes the fact that the electorate is politically sovereign. Ninet. Cent., No. 395.)

Observe also the absence of the article before lay, which, unlike the Dutch leek, is an adjective.

I am lay to the profession of war on land. Times.

V. Sometimes it is the measure which causes the article to be thrown out.

And jealous Oberon would have the child | Knight of his train. Mids., II, 1, 25.

48. a) Usage is also divided before the nouns mentioned in 46—47, when in the function of predicative adnominal adjunct they are preceded by the conjunction as.

The article seems to be indispensable when as has a temporal or a causative connotation. (Ch. VI, 7, b.) Conversely the suppression is especially common, when as is followed by two or more nouns.

1. The indefinite article after as with a temporal or causative connotation: As a boy, as a youth, thou hast held fast thy faith amongst heretics. SCOTT, Abbot, Ch. VIII, 78.

1) ELLINGER, E. S., XXXI, 153.

Jos went to court as a loyal subject of his sovereign. THACK., Van Fair, II, Ch. XXV, 277.

As a bachelor... nobody cares how poor I am. Id., Pend., I, Ch. II, 23.

You remember, don't you love, how full of play he was as a baby? MRS. GASK. Mary Barton, Ch. XVIII, 199.

As a boy he had been too idle, as a man he soon became too busy, for literary pursuits. MAC., Clive, (500a).

It is a difficult position for me, as an Indian patriot, to assume even in imagination. [etc.]. Rev. of Rev., CCXXVII, 4234.

Compare. To me you owe everything — your life when an infant — your support while a child. SCOTT, Abbot, Ch. IX, 89.

2. The indefinite article used after as without any temporal or causative connotation: Indeed they say the senators to-morrow | Mean to establish Cæsar as a king. Jul. Cæs., I, 3, 86.

At our next annual meeting, I attended in my capacity as a shareholder. THACK., Sam. Titm., Ch. VII, 84.

She did her part as a hostess with much kindness and grace. Times.

We think of him rather as a great journalist than as a politician. Westm. Gaz.

Sir P. M. Warmington was greater as a lawyer than as a politician. Ib.

3. The indefinite article absent after as: I remained an inmate of its (sc. the school's) walls, after its regeneration, for eight years: six as pupil, and two as teacher. CH. BRONTË, Jane Eyre, Ch. X, 98.

If a man can command a table, a chair, pen, paper, and ink, he can commence his trade as literary man. TROL., Thack., Ch. I, 10.

She took a situation as teacher in a school near Halifax. Miss FLORA MASSON, The Brontës, Ch. VII, 40.

Emily was despatched home, and Anne came as pupil in her place. The gentle Anne made out her two years at Roehead, and Charlotte remained there as teacher, with a salary, till early in 1838. Ib., 39.

(They) employed young Hardy as amanuensis. W. L. PHELPS, Es. on Modern Novel, II, 47.

He (sc. Mohammed V) ... spent the better part of his life as prisoner. Il. Lond. News, No. 3834, Sup. VII.

The briefest reference to Wagner as man was all that was necessary in an "essay on Wagnerian drama". Athen., No. 4436, 530a.

The following quotations exhibit divided usage:

On the 29th of July 1835 Charlotte went as teacher to Miss W.'s, Emily accompanied her as a pupil. MRS. GASK., Life of Ch. Brontë, 101.

Neither as Queen of Denmark, nor as a Princess of Hesse-Cassel, could she, indeed, be expected to entertain very cordial feelings towards Russia. Times. (Possibly it is the definite article which is dropped before queen.)

When the time came to separate, one of the four went to Oxford as an assistant in the library, and became a University lecturer, and another went to London to be clerk in a bank, and rose to be manager. HALL CAINE, Prodigal Son, I, Ch. II, 17.

Neilson had re-established himself in Iceland first as factor for a firm in Copenhagen, and afterwards as a merchant on his own responsibility. Ib.

As a philosopher ... he (sc. Shakespeare) was not great. ... Even as painter of character he is greatly overpraised. Westm. Gaz., No. 6353, 7a.

Sometimes the absence of the article may have been furthered by the accumulation of two or more nouns in the same grammatical function. (69.) She had thought and prayed there as girl and woman. MRS. WARD, Rob. Elsm., I, 172.

Perhaps there had been too much tendency in the speeches made during the week to honour Milton as reformer rather than poet. Westm. Gaz. He (sc. Poincaré) has also won fame as orator and as writer. 11. Lond. News, No. 3849, Sup. I.

Compare: Myrddia was famous as both a bard and a magician. W. L. JONES, King Arthur, 112.

b) After the preposition for, used as a variant of as (Ch. VI, 16), the indefinite article is all but regularly used:

i. How the plague shall I be able to pass for a Jew? SHER., The School for Scand., III, 11, (389).

The dogs, too, not one of which he recognized for an old acquaintance, barked at him. WASH. IRV., Rip van Winkle.

He went for a soldier. DICK., Bleak House, Ch. VII, 52.

Arthur Pendennis chose to watch Miss Bell dance her first quadrille with Mr. Pynsent for a partner. THACK., Pend., I, Ch. XXVI, 272.

He will be sold for a slave. CH. KINGSLEY, Hypatia, Ch. XIII, 68b.

ii. Why does your Master pass only for ensign? SHER., Rivals, I, 1, (213).

Observe the absence of the article in the following quotation where to sham is understood in the meaning of to pass for:

Now, if he had shammed general. SHER., Rivals, I, 1, (213).

Note. The indefinite article appears to be practically indispensable before the name of a thing, whether preceded by as or its equivalent for.

i. An old red-brick mansion, used as a school, was in its place. DICK., Cop., Ch. XXXIV, 259a.

I treasured it as a keepsake. Ib., Ch. V, 33b.

I shall esteem it as a favour, my lord, if Colonel Esmond will give away the bride. THACK., Henry Esmond, III, Ch. IV, 355.

This served him as a place of prayer. CH. KINGSLEY, Westw. Hol., Ch. XXV, 187a.

I hold it as a rule that nine men out of ten are unfortunate in their first attachment. MISS BRAD., Captain Thomas.

It was Napoleon who laid it down as a maxim that soldiers had often accomplished most, when their case seemed almost desperate. Times, No. 1819, 897a.

ii. * A plank was laid over the brook to serve for a bridge. Robin Hood (GÜNTHER, Handb.).

Willy has given his fiancée such a beautiful ring for a Christmas present. Mrs. ALEX., For his Sake, II, Ch. III, 49.

 For reply Lady Maria Esmond gives three shrieks. THACK., Virg., Ch. XXXVIII, 398.

Observe the idiom in:

i. We know for a fact that those districts in which the Danes had settled, are precisely those in which English grammar became simplified most rapidly. BRADLEY, The Making of Eng., Ch. II, 32.

ii. For thirty years or so we have taken it as a matter of course that the great London dailies . . . should chastise us as robbers and outcasts. Westm. Gaz., No. 6359, 7a.

iii. As a matter of fact, however, the scene itself was as powerful as it was pathetic. RID. HAG., Mees. Will, Ch. III, 32.

As a matter of fact, every form of irregular union exists to-day, but shamefully and hidden. Eng. Rev., No. 58, 282.

iv. As a rule, I felt much more inclined to weep than to laugh. Westm. Gaz., No. 4967, 12c.

As a rule he was seen only with those who belonged to the same political faith as himself. TRUTH, No. 472, 650b.

49. Usage mostly rejects the indefinite article after to turn, but the article does not appear so rarely as is often believed. It is indispensable, when the noun is modified by an adjective.

i. * You bid me turn a traitor. DRYDEN, All for Love, V, 1, (101).

I'll turn a knave. FARQUHAR, The Constant Couple, I, 2, (57).

Didn't you make him turn a sailor? DOUGLAS JERROLD, Black Ey'd Susan, I, 2.

The Signor Colonna has taken up my old calling, and turned a wit. LYTTON, Rienzi, IV, Ch. II, 160.

 I turned a good fellow. G. ELIOT, Sil. Marner, Ch. XI, 92.

ii. I hope you have no intent to turn husband. Much ado, I, 1, 195.

Here comes another of the tribe: a third cannot be matched, unless the devil himself turn jew. Merch. of Ven., III, 1, 181.

Gibbon, when a lad at Oxford, turned Catholic. MAC., Boswell's Life of Johns., (168b).

I little knew why, or that I should ever turn engineer. CH. KINGSLEY, Herew., Ch. XXV, 106a.

50. Dutch and English practice are uniform as to the suppression of the indefinite article before a predicative noun that is followed by an adnominal clause with the relative that or an adverbial clause with the conjunction as, which contains the copula to be. (Ch. XXXIX, 4.)

i. These little infirmities would not have prevented him, honest faithful man that he was, from being a shining light in the Dissenting Circle of Bridgeport. G. ELIOT, Scenes, I, Ch. II, 21.

'I have encouraged him too much — vain fool that I have been! CH. KINGSLEY, Hypatia, Ch. IV, 18a.

Strange man that he is! G. MEREDITH, Ord. of Rich. Fev., Ch. XLIV, 438.

ii. Mr. Franklin who, printer's boy as he had been, was a wonderful shrewd person. THACK., Virg., Ch. IX, 83.

Ah, grovel in the dust! crouch—crouch! wild beast as thou art! LYTTON, Rienzi, I, Ch. II, 69.

51. Abstract nouns take the indefinite article after to make, or a verb of like import, when they are followed by an adnominal gerund- or infinitive-clause. Compare also Ch. XIX, 39; 49, Obs. V.

boast. Brough made especially a boast of drinking beer. THACK., Sam. Titm., Ch. VII, 75.

feint. He made a feint of putting on the one glove which he usually carried in his hand. DICK., Pickw., Ch. XXXI, 276.

merit. He made a merit of having given the place to his cousin. THACK., Sam. Titm., Ch. VII, 85.

plan. He laid down a plan of restoring his falling fortune. GOLDSM., Vic.

point. i. He usually made it a point to choose his walk in a different direction. SCOTT, Fair Maid, Ch. XXIX, 306.

I made a point to act the fine gentleman completely. THACK., Barry Lyndon, Ch. III, 48.

- ii. Many educated — and many more half-educated speakers, make a point of keeping the h everywhere. SWEET, Sounds of Eng., § 205.

The teacher should make a point of drawing the instructor's special attention to pupils whose breathing is defective. RIPPMAHN, Sounds of Spoken Eng., § 4.

practice. Any country which makes a practice of balancing deficits by borrowing, must come to grief sooner or later, Graph.

pretext. Godfrey made it a pretext for taking up the word again. G. ELIOT, Sil. Marn., Ch. IX, 59.

rule. I make it a rule never to sleep out of my own bed. J. PAYN, Glow-Worm Tales, I, N, 244.

show. I made a show of arranging my papers on my desk. JEROME, Novel Notes.

52. When a predicative nominal occurs both as an adjective and a noun, there is a tendency of dealing with it in the former function in Dutch, and in the latter function in English. This mostly appears by such a word standing without the indefinite article in Dutch, with it in English. Thus: Hij is Protestant = He is a Protestant. But such evidence is mostly wanting after to turn: Hij werd Protestant = He turned Protestant. For further details see Ch. XXIII, 17, Obs. II; and compare 49.

53. A common noun preceding a proper name (or a noun understood as a proper name), which stands in apposition to it, is apt to give up its character as a head-word and become in its turn the adjunct-word to the proper name, with the result that it loses some of its substantival nature and rejects the definite article, or the possessive pronoun. This change takes place, in the main, in the same cases in Dutch as in English. In the details there are, however, some differences which are of some interest. (Ch. IV, 4.) See also SWEET, N. E. Gr. § 90; MÄTZN., *Eng. Gram.*², III, 156; ELINGER, Verm. Beitr., 27.

- a) The suppression is regular, both in English and Dutch, when the noun preceding the proper name denotes some family or social relationship. In this case it is more plausible to assume the omission of the possessive pronoun than the article.

Lilias had rightly read her mistress's temper, who, wise and good as she was, was yet a daughter of grandame Eve. SCOTT, Abbot, Ch. IV, 46.
The bells of St. Paul's... reminded him that friend Sampson was going to preach his sermon. THACKERAY, Virg., Ch. XXXVI, 381.

Wherever Father John appeared, help entered in the efficacious form of pecuniary assistance. Rev. of Rev., CCXXX, 732b.

Note. When the relative is not the speaker or writer, nor the subject of the narrative, the article cannot be dispensed with.

Goldsmith had dealings both with the uncle Newbery and the nephew Newbery.

Thus also when the proper name and the common noun are transposed. Neither could the Newbery nephew, to whom both The Traveller and The Vicar of Wakefield were sold, be truthfully called "the friend of all mankind". R. ASHE KING, Ol. Goldsmith, Ch. XV, 168.

b) The suppression is almost regular, in English as well as in Dutch, when the common noun preceding the proper name denotes a profession or dignity, whether civil, military or ecclesiastical. This practice is also observed before German proper names with von and French proper names with de. Compare SCHULZE, Beitr. zur Feststellung des modernen Englischen Sprachgebrauchs, 19.

i. * When sister Livy is married to Farmer Williams, we shall have the loan of his cider-press for nothing. GOLDSM., Vicar.
Lawyer Clippurse found his patron involved in a deep study. SCOTT, Wav., Ch. II, 28b.

He was glad to ransom himself by making over most of the remaining half (sc. of his property) to Speaker Lenthal. MAC., War. Hast., (596a).
Shepherd Matthew watched his master. HAL. SUTCL., Pam the Fiddler Ch. VI, 90.

The last sacraments were administered to nurse Pecha. Times.
Professor Osbert Chadwick delivered an address. Ib.

The retiring Lord Mayor, Alderman Sir H. D. Davis, entertained at luncheon the Aldermen. Ib.

President Mac Kingley directs that the Americans shall assume the government of Puertorico on October 18. Ib.

Ex-President Porfirio Diaz ... will doubtless have been deeply interested in recent events. Il. Lond. News, No. 3858, 418c.

Senator Quay and his son have been committed for trial. Ib.

Chancellor von Bülow is struggling in advance with the problem which will preoccupy Mr. Lloyd George as soon as Parliament meets. Rev. of Rev., CCXXX, 103a.

On Monday ... the Midland Railway published their reasons for dismissing Guard Richardson. Westm. Gaz., No. 6171, 2a.

 Major Dobbin had joined the ... th regiment at Chatham. THACK., Van. Fair, II, Ch. XXXII, 362.

Marshal Tiptoff had died. Ib., II, Ch. XXXII, 362.

Admiral Sir John Arbuthnot Fisher, K. C. G., was formerly a Lord of the Admiralty and Controller of the Navy. Graph.

Captain the Hon. Charles Bigham. Il. Lond. News, No. 1812, 718.

Lieutenants Walton and Sword. Times.

Generals Buller and Warren. Morning Leader.

 From this decision Archbishop Longley dissented. Graph.

Archbishop Clark reckons that fifty men will be needed. Westm. Gaz., No. 4937, 3a.

In the next year he gave a casting vote in favour of Bishop Wilberforce's motion. Graph.

The Headmasters' Conference was opened last Thursday under the presidency of Prebendary Moss. Times.

ii. * He will open the merchant Abuda's chest. STEVENSON, Walking Tours (PEACOCK, Select Essays, 537).

The nurse Pecha was still alive on Wednesday afternoon. Times.

 The Huguenots had become a formidable party under the guidance of the Admiral Coligni. GREEN, Short Hist., Ch. VII, § 4, 382.

 The syndic Pavillon was announced. SCOTT, Quent. Durw., Ch. XXII, 283.
The correspondence with the solicitor Pyne ... attests the urgency of these troubles. Westm. Gaz., No. 5448, 9c.

* The cardinal Balue is politic and liberal. SCOTT, Quent. Durw., Ch. XIII, 189.

He had engaged in a furious and acrimonious contest . . . with the Abbot Eustatius. Id., Abbot, Ch. I, 11.

The abbot Eustatius is no more. Ib., Ch. X, 95.

Note. Thus also the article regularly falls out before Saint + proper name: Saint Nicholas.

54. When the common noun is a title, usage is divided.

- a) Regular is the suppression when the title is one that is only used in connection with a proper name, and when only one person is referred to: Mr. Johnson, Mrs. Johnson, Miss Johnson, Master Johnson, Sir Walter Scott, Childe Harold, Dan Chaucer.

Note I. When more persons than one are referred to, the ordinary practice seems to be that the article is used, when the persons bear the same name, and that it is suppressed, when the names differ. See also Ch. XXV, 17.

- i. The Misses Osborne . . . wondered more than ever what George could see in poor little Amella. THACK., Van Fair, I, Ch. XII, 117.

John Barton was not far wrong in his idea that the Messrs. Carson would not be over-grieved for the consequences of the fire in their mill. Mrs. GASK., Mary Barton, Ch. VI, 52. (In the same page Messrs. Carson.) The Messrs. Bell desire me to thank you for your suggestion respecting the advertisement. Id., Life of Ch. Brontë, 228.

- ii. Messrs. Dodson and Fogg intreated the plaintiff to compose herself. DICK., Pickw., Ch. XXXIV, 307.

The two gentlemen were Messrs. Frederic and James. THACK., Pend., I, Ch. XXII, 231.

Meanwhile Costigan had not the least idea but that his company was perfectly welcome to Messrs. Pendennis and Bows. Ib., II, Ch. XI, 123. The Colonel of the —th regiment, in which Messrs Dobbin and Osborne had companies, was an old general. Id., Van Fair, I, Ch. XXIV, 251. With Misses P. and W. the tender passion is out of the question. Ib., I, Ch. XII, 119.

Young Masters Alfred and Edward clapping and hurraing by his side. Id., Newc., I, Ch. XVI, 183.

- II. Mr. is often placed before the names of certain civil authorities followed by a proper name, as in:

With this beautiful peroration, Mr. Serjeant Buzfuz sat down, and Mr. Justice Stareleigh woke up. DICK., Pickw., Ch. XXXIV, 311. (Compare Sergeant Buzfuz . . . here paused for breath. Ib., 309.

Thus we also say Mr. Chairman (= Dutch Mijnheer de Voorzitter).

- b) Usage is variable and divided before titles of sovereigns and noblemen, which may also be used by themselves, the general tendency being to use the definite article before the unfamiliar and foreign titles, and also, though less markedly, in dignified style.

The article is, accordingly, found:

regularly, or practically regularly, before Caliph (Calif, Khalif(a), Dauphin, Doge, Emir, Grand Duke, Grand Duchess, Grand Prince, Infante, Infanta, Khedive, Landgrave, Landgravine, Palatine, Rhinegrave, Signor, Signora, Sultan, Sultana.

mostly before Archduke, Archduchess, Baroness, Czar (Tsar), Czarina (= Czaritza), Czarevitch (Czarewich), Elector, Electress, Heer; often before Countess, Emperor, Empress, Marquis, Princess ; sometimes before Lady, Lord ; rarely before Count, Dame, Duke, Earl, King, Queen, Viscount.

Note I. Titles preceding French names beginning with de, mostly stand with the article; while it is mostly suppressed before titles preceding German names with von. Pure foreign titles such as Monsieur, Herr, Senor, Don (Dom), mostly have no article, any more than they have in the original languages, barring occasional exceptions.

II. The apparent anomaly of the common use of the article before princess while it is almost regularly suppressed before Prince, may be due to the fact that Princess is a comparatively modern title, which did not come into use until the 18th century, lady being used before that time. Thus in MAC., Hist., III, Ch. VIII, the daughters of James II are called the lady Anne and the lady Mary. This may also be the reason why many Englishmen (perhaps the majority) pronounce the word with the stress on the second syllable; except when there are no rhythmical or metrical reasons for doing otherwise.

III. Lord and Lady regularly have the article in directions of letters, where, as a rule, they are more formally preceded by distinctive epithets, such as Honourable, Right Honourable, etc. In other positions the article seems to be used before Lady especially, when the fact that the title is one by birth, not by marriage, is insisted on. Also when followed by the name of a dignity which a lady holds on the strength of her husband's office, the word regularly stands with the article: the Lady Mayoress. Lord also mostly has the article, when followed by an appellative denoting an office.

IV. The placing of a defining word before Prince as in Crown Prince, Hereditary Prince, seems to be of no influence as to the use of the article, when the two words form a kind of unit.

V. Titles which occasionally throw off the article in ordinary conversation or newspaper announcements, such as Czar, Emperor, Empress, Princess, regularly keep it in the language of history. Thus only the Emperor Charles V, the Empress Maria Theresa.

VI. Sometimes the use or absence of the article is conditioned by the measure. See the quotations under king.

VII. For details see also MÄTZN., Eng. Gram.² III, 156; O. SCHULZE, Eng. Stud., XXII; XLIII, 138; TEN BRUGGENCATE, Taalstudie, VI; X; ELLINGER, Verm. Beitr., 28.

Archduke. i. Francis Ferdinand of Austria... was born at Graz, and is the son of the Archduke Charles Louis. Harmsw. Encycl., s. v. Francis Ferdinand. It (sc. the picture) was purchased in 1605 by the Archduke Albert. II. Lond. News, No. 3777, 415.

ii. Emperor Francis Joseph is now at the manœuvres in Bohemia, accompanied by the Heir Presumptive Archduke Francis Ferdinand. Graph.

Baron. i. The Baron Hardinge of Penshurst belongs to a famous family of pro-consuls. Id., No. 2269, 836.

ii. It is just two years ago since Baron D'Aehrenthal told me [etc.]. Rev. of Rev., CCXXIX, 3b.

Baron Komura affirms the unalterable determination of his Government to preserve the principle of the open door. Westm. Gaz., No. 4919, 2a.

Baroness. i. Who was the baroness? The Baroness Bernstein, the young ladies' aunt. THACK., Virg., Ch. II, 12.

Under such circumstances met Warren Hastings and the Baroness Imhoff. MAC., War. Hast., (601a).

The Historical Romances of the Baroness Orczy are very suitable as Christmas gifts. Westm. Gaz., No. 5185, 1a.

- ii. The Old Man in the Corner by Baroness Orczy. Ib., No. 4961, Advert. (Thus, apparently, regularly in giving the titles of literary or musical compositions.)

Baroness Bertha von Suttner, née Countess Kinsky, was born at Prague... on June 9, 1843. Graph., No. 2271, 946a.

Begum. (He) was at present in this country trying to negotiate with the Begum Clavering the sale of the Nawaub's celebrated nose-ring diamond. THACK., Pend., I, Ch. XXXVII, 392.

Calif. The Khalif Omar. WASH. IRV.¹⁾

Consul. Long live the Consul Rienzi! LYTTON, Rienzi, II, Ch. VIII, 118.

Count. i. Find me a meet hour to draw Don Pedro and the Count Claudio alone. Much ado, II, 2, 33.

- i. I could not avoid repeating the famous story of Count Abensberg. GOLDSM., Vicar, Ch. I.

Of all these airships the most successful is that of Count Zeppelin. Rev. of Rev., CCXXIX, 30a.

Countess. i. Had I not left the Countess Hameline of Croye to the charge of those whom she herself selected as counsellors and advisers, the Countess Isabelle had been ere now the bride of William de la Marck. SCOTT, Quent. Durw., Ch. XXIII, 303.

The Countess Hatzfeldt... had married a brutal husband. T. P.'s Weekly, No. 466, 450b.

Tell the Countess Shulski I wish to speak to her. EL. GLYN, The Reason why, Ch. I, 8.

- ii. Countess Shulski clasped her hands. Ib., Ch. II, 14. (In this novel usage is about equally divided.)

Czar. i. Princess Dagmar was married to Tsar Alexander III. II. Lond. News.

He became a great favourite of the Tsar Nicholas. Times.

He received a warning as to the precariousness of his own position from the Tsar Alexander III. Ib.

- ii. The death of Czar Alexander III has cast much gloom over Court circles. Graph. Although Czar Nicholas had succeeded to his brother with sentiments somewhat more pacific, the question was further complicated by a French army in the Peloponnesus. Academy.²⁾

Tsar Ferdinand of Bulgaria recently sent a conciliatory telegram to the King of Roumania. II. Lond. News, No. 3875, 142b.

Dame. Dame Magdalen Græme thus addressed her grandson. SCOTT, Abbot, Ch. XII, 105.

Happy are they who are not only subjected to the caprices of Dame Fortune, but [etc.]. Id., Mon., Ch. XXXVI 391.

Never was greater attention paid to Dame Fashion than at present. II. Lond. News, No. 3880, 336c.

(They) exemplify some touches of Dame Nature in her work of animal development. Ib., No. 3814, 795c.

Doge. The conspiracy of the Doge Marino Faliero is one of the most remarkable events in the annals of the most singular government, city, and people of modern history. BYRON, Marino Faliero, Preface.

¹⁾ FOELS-KOCH, Wis. Gram., § 256.

²⁾ TEN BRUG., Taalst., X.

Dom. A monarchical régime under King Manoel or Dom Miguel would be preferred. Times, No. 1824, 1006d.

Don. Don José and his lady quarrell'd. BYRON, Don Juan, I, xxiii.

Donna. i. Don José and the Donna Inez led | For some time an unhappy sort of life. BYRON, Don Juan, I, xxvi.

ii. But that which Donna Inez most desired, | ... Was, that his breeding should be strictly moral. Ib., I, xxxix. (Throughout the poem the use of the article is dependent on the measure.)

Duchess. "This set belonged to George II", said the General, "he gave it to the Duchess Lavinia on her marriage. BARING-GOULD, II, 213.¹)

Duke. i. The Duke Charles is now at Peronne. SCOTT, Quent. Durw., Ch. XVI, 221. He assumed the lofty title of the Duke Werner. LYTTON, Rienzi, I, Ch. II, 20.

ii. Duke Henry is four years older than his bride-elect. Graph. Prince Christian was the sixth child of Duke Frederick William of Holstein-Sondersburg-Glücksburg. Times.

Earl. i. This was the approach of the Earl Douglas. SCOTT, Fair Maid, Ch. XXXIII, 353.

ii. Among those present were Earl Spencer. Times,
The sudden death of Earl Percy is a loss to more than a family or a party Westm. Gaz., No. 5195, 2b.
Earl Grey has been the moving spirit of the scheme. II. Lond. News,
No. 3875, 129a.

Emir. The emir Yakub with his followers gathered in a dense mass round their standard and proudly faced the leaden hail. II. Lond. News.
The emir Mahmoud. Graph.

Emperor. i. The Emperor Charles had an exalted opinion of his capacity for the field. MOTLEY, Rise, VI, Ch. VII, 899b.
The Emperor Francis Joseph received the King Alexander of Servia on Monday morning. Times.

ii. Emperor Francis Joseph is now at the manoeuvres. Graph.
The figure "Nine" has a peculiar connection with the career of Emperor William of Germany. Ib., 1894, 10 Febr., 143.²)

Empress. i. The Duke and Duchess of Edinburgh have been in Berlin with the Empress Frederick. Graph.
I refer to the murder of the Empress Elizabeth of Austria. Times.

ii. The Queen returned to Windsor from Osborne at the end of last week, accompanied by Empress Frederick. Graph.

Grand Duke. The Grand Duke Peter, her nephew, who now ascended the Russian throne, was [etc.]. MAC., Fred., (699a).
Behind the Czar walked the Grand Duke Serge. II. Lond. News.

Grand Duchess. In the mourning coaches that followed sat the Empress, the Grand Duchess Alexandra Feodorowna. II. Lond. News.
The King of the Hellenes was married to the Grand Duchess Olga. Ib.

Heer. i. In (this) valuable kind of lore the Heer Antonie seemed deeply versed. WASH. IRVING, Dolf Heyl. (STOF., Handl., I, 134).
When he had washed it down by two or three draughts from the Heer Antonie's bottle. Ib., 133.

ii. In the midst of his joviality, however, Heer Antonie did not lose sight of discretion. Ib., 133.

¹) ELLINGER, Verm. Beitr., 28.

²) O. SCHULZE, E. S., XXII.

Infanta. The Infanta Eulalia has addressed to the Imparcial... a letter, in which she declares her unaltered affection for Spain and the King and the Queen Mother. Times, No. 1824, 1006d.

King. i. Bare-footed came the beggar-maid | Before the King Cophetua. TEN., Beggar-maid.

The Emperor Francis Joseph received the King Alexander of Servia on Monday morning. Times.

Last month, full of years and full of honours, the old King Christian of Denmark passed away. Rev. of Rev., CXCIV, 120b.

ii. Between them King George and the Emperor Nicholas are rulers of nearly half the world. Graph., No. 2171, 949.

Landgrave. Prince Christian was the sixth child of Duke Frederick William of Holstein-Sonderburg-Glücksburg, and Princess Caroline, daughter of the Landgrave Charles of Hesse-Cassel. Times.

She was the third daughter of the Landgrave William of Hesse-Cassel. ib.

Lady. i. * Looking up he beheld his aunt, the Lady Rockerville and two of her daughters, of whom the one who spoke was Harry's betrothed, the Lady Ann. THACK., Pend., II, Ch. II, 28.

The Queen of Hungary was a worthy descendant of the Lady Mary of Burgundy. MOTLEY, Rise, I, Ch. II, 78b.

When he was gone, the Lady Godiva bowed her head into her lap. CH. KINGSLEY, Herew., Ch. I, 11b.

The Lady Laura is my cousin, and if I choose to give her brevet rank, who shall hinder me. II. Lond. News.

That is the Lady Grace Eveleigh (a duke's daughter). And remember, she is not Lady Grace, but the Lady Grace. A knight's wife is a Lady, you know. 'The' makes all the difference in the world. Cornh. Mag.

 Her Royal Highness was welcomed on arrival at Liverpool by the Lady Mayoress (Lady Derby), and Lady Victoria Stanley presented the Princess with a handsome bouquet. Times, No. 1823, 977d.

ii. Lady Audley pursed up her rosy lips. MISS BRADDON, Lady Audley's Secret, I, Ch. XVI, 186.

Lord. i. * From Robert Beaufort Esq. M. P., to the Lord Lilburne. LYTTON, Night and Morn., 376.

He is too fond of my poor — of the Lord Hereward. CH. KINGSLEY, Hereward, Ch. I, 11b.

 Of the new nobles the most conspicuous were the Lord Treasurer Rochester, the Lord Keeper Guildford, the Lord Chief Justice Jeffreys, the Lord Godolphin and the Lord Churchill. MAC., *Hist.*¹⁾ ii. * Lord Crewe... said that a reduction of the British Army in India was contemplated. Times, No. 1819, 901a.

 Lord Keeper Guildford stole some hours from the business of their courts to write on hydrostatics. MAC., Hist., I, Ch. III, 401.

Note. The following quotation exhibits varied practice, for which there is no apparent reason.

He was assured that the Lord James was coming this road at the head of a round body of cavalry. And, accordingly, Lord James did so far reckon upon him, that he sent this man Warden... to my master's protection. SCOTT, Mon., Ch. XXXIII, 357.

Maharajah. His competitor was a Hindoo Brahmin..., the Maharajah Nuncomar. MAC., War. Hist., (603a).

Marquis. i. The Marquis Ito had been sent to Portsmouth [etc.]. Rev. of Rev., CXC, 375a.

¹⁾ FOELS.—KOCH, Wis. Gram., § 256.

The Convention was signed in the palace of the Marquis Marialva. MORRIS, Note to Byron's Childe Har., I, xxv, 2.

A few days ago, Count Etienne Tisza... met the Marquis George Pallavicini and fought his third duel this year. II. Lond. News, No. 3880, 337a.

The constitution under which Japan is now governed, is the work of the Marquis Ito. Harmsworth Encycl., s. v. Ito.

ii. Japan offered Russia her alliance through Marquis Ito. Rev. of Rev., CXC, 375a.

Pope. i. When the Pope Alexander Borgia issued his Bull, dividing the whole undiscovered non-Christian world between Spain and Portugal, he awarded India to the latter power. A. LYALL, The Rise of the British Dominion in India, 8.

ii. Foremost among them in zeal and devotion was Gian Pietro Caraffa, afterwards Pope Paul the Fourth. MAC., Popes, (549b).

About this time there came to the Wittenberg district the Dominican monk Tetzel, selling pardons and releases from Purgatory, in accordance with the indulgence issued by Pope Leo X. Harmsw. Encycl., s. v. Luther.

Prince. i. * The punch went round; and as many of his attendants as would be dangerous sent dead drunk on shore; the rest we secured; and so you have the Prince Oroonoko. THOM. SOUTH., Oroonoko, I, 2, (165a).

The Academic Committee of the Royal Society of Literature has received from the Princesse Edmond de Polignac the offer of a sum of money for the foundation of a prize for literature to be awarded by the Academic Committee in memory of her husband, the Prince Edmond de Polignac. Times, No. 1814, 803c.

 The imperial couple lost their only son, the Crown Prince Rudolph, in a very sad manner a few years ago. II. Lond. News.

The last two days spent alone by Mary Vetsera and the Crown Prince Rudolph. Graph., No. 2267. 740a.

ii. * Prince Christian was the sixth child of Duke Frederick William. Times.

 On the death of Hereditary Prince Alfred, the Duke of Connaught at once occupied precisely the same position. Graph.

Princess. i. Those are the sons of the Princess Pocahontas. THACK., Virg., Ch. VII, 70.

The Princess Alexandra was provided with an English nurse. Graph.

The Princess Alexandra is by two distinct lines of descent the great-great-great granddaughter of George II. Times.

Prince Waldemar is married to the Princess Marie d'Orleans. II. Lond. News.

ii. Princess Dagmar was married to the Tsar Alexander III. Id.

Princess Marie is most affable and engaging. Graph.

Note. The following quotation exhibits varied practice, for which there is no apparent reason:

The Queen and the Princess Beatrice were present on Saturday at the Confirmation of the Hereditary Grand Duke of Hesse at Darmstadt. Her Majesty also attended the christening of the infant child of Princess Louis of Battenberg, and was one of the sponsors. Times, Weekly Ed., 1885, May 1, 1.1)

Queen. i. This ground belongs to him no more than it does to me, but to the Queen Elizabeth. CH. KINGSLEY, Westw. Ho! Ch. XXI, 162a.

Hitherto the Queen Alexandra has been regarded more or less as an ornamental asset of the Empire. Rev. of Rev., CXCI, 583.

ii. Queen Alexandra... drove to Marlborough House. Times. No. 1819, 900c.

Senor. The Infanta Eulalia has telegraphed to Senor Canalejas, the Spanish premier, as follows. Times, No. 1823, 976d.

1) O. SCHULZE, S. E., XXII, 257.

Sheik. What would the Turkish Ambassador think if the Sheik-ul-Islam was portrayed by Mr. Dan Leno in a patter-song at the London Pavilion? Times.

Signor. i. The Signor Colonna has taken up my old calling, and turned a wit. LYTTON, Rienzi, IV, Ch. II, 160.

ii. Signor Alberto Randegger had a career of extraordinary interest. Times, No. 1825, 1032c.

signora. Having written his letter to Mrs. Bold, he proceeded to call upon the Signora Neroni. TROL., Barch. Tow., Ch. XXVII, 225.

He went to his villa in the Dordogne, where the Signora Stella Ballerina awaited him. Westm. Gaz., No. 5382, 2c.

Squire. She created so much confusion in the congregation, that if Squire Allworthy had not silenced it, it would have interrupted the service. FIELDING, Tom Jones, IV, Ch. X, 55b.

Sultan. i. 300.000000 Mahomedans reverence in him, the Sultan Abdul Hamid, their Khalif. Times.

ii. By this scimitar, — | That slew the Sophy, and a Persian prince | That won three fields of Sultan Solymán, — [etc.]. Merch. II, 1, 26.

Mohammed V... became Sultan of Turkey after the deposition of his elder brother, Sultan Abdul Hamid II. II. Lond. News, No. 3834, Sup. VIII. Negotiations were carried on by Dr. Herzl with Sultan Abdul Hamid. Westm. Gaz., No. 6329, 8c.

Viscount. Among those present were Viscount Chelsea. Times.

Viscount Morley explained to the House of Lords the large scheme of representative government which we are about to concede to India. Westm. Gaz.

Titles before proper names containing the French de:

i. It must be owned that the 'Vieux Souvenirs' of the Prince de Joinville contain a large admixture of small beer. *Graph.*¹⁾

Madame the Staël had fallen out with the Viscount de Choiseul. *Titbits.*¹⁾

Last week it was announced that the Comte de Paris was lying seriously ill at Stowe House. Graph.

ii. Baron de Courcel is well acquainted with English affairs and statesmen. *Graph.*¹⁾

Count de Francigny was an old friend of my brother's. *BARONESS BLOOMSFIELD, Reminiscences.*¹⁾

Titles before proper names containing the German von:

i. The Baron Von Koëldwethout, of Grogzweg in Germany, was as likely a young baron as you would wish to see. DICK., Nich. Nickl., 34a.

ii. Two more volumes contain the essays, speeches and memoirs of Count von Moltke.¹⁾

55. When adjectives not belonging to the title, precede the combinations mentioned in the preceding §§, the definite article is used under the same conditions as before proper names standing by themselves. (28.)

i. Take from me the same horse that was given him by the good Bishop Jewel. GOLDSM., Vic., Ch. III, (247).

If my servants have too little wages, or any husband too much wife: let them repair to the noble Serjeant Kite. FARQUHAR, The Recruiting Officer, I, 1, (251).

Four of the London hospitals have come in for a considerable windfall under the will of the late Professor Hughes.

¹⁾ SCHULZE, Eng. Stud., XII.

- ii. "Now you have no more money to play with, you can come and play with us!" cries fond Lady Fanny. THACK., Virg., Ch. LVI, 578.

56. When the common noun does not belong to any of the groups mentioned above in 53—54, the definite article is regularly used, both in Dutch and in English.

child. Miss Clairmont had known Byron in London, and their acquaintance now ripened into an intimacy the fruit of which was the child Allegra. SYMONDS, Shelley, Ch. IV, 88.

hero. Honour and gratitude which they were conferring on the hero Roberts. Times.

man. Now the man Moses was very meek, above all the men which were upon the face of the earth. BIBLE, Numbers, XII, 3.

woman. As to the woman Gudgeon, who laid claim to be her mother, he thought she was suffering from a delusion. TH. WATTS DUNTON, Aylwin, XVI, 458.

Note. With widow however, practice is variable.

- i. Surely that's better than the careless manner in which the widow Ochre caulks her wrinkles. SHER., School for Scandal, II, 2, (379).

Now in this matter the widow Bold was scandalously ill-treated by her relatives. TROL., Barch. Tow., Ch. XIV, 112.

The Widow Blackacre, beyond comparison Wycherley's best comic character, is the Countess in Racine's 'Plaideurs'. MAC., Com. Dram., (578b).

He (sc. Uncle Toby) is celebrated for his love passages with the widow Wadman. WEBST., s. v. Uncle Toby.

- ii. Enter Captain Driver, teased and pulled about by widow Locket. THOM. SOUTHERN, Oroonoko, I, 2, (163b).

Two little boys had stolen some apples from Farmer Benson's orchard, and some eggs had been missed off Widow Hayward's stall. Mrs. GASK., Cranf., Ch. XI, 207.

57. The generalizing or specializing definite article is dispensed with before certain plural nouns of a more or less vague meaning, when they assume the character of indefinite pronouns. (9, b, 2; 13; 14; 31, b.) This applies especially to:

- a) the colloquial chaps, fellows and persons, and to the literary men; b) affairs, matters and things.

Also the collective noun people, which in every respect is dealt with as a plural, is an instance of the same practice. In colloquial language people is often replaced by folk(s). See Ch. XXVI, 10.

The above nouns occur chiefly as subjects, less frequently as objects, and most of them very rarely, or not at all, in other grammatical functions. Affairs, however, is mostly found after a preposition.

a) chaps. Chaps don't dine at the West-End for nothing. THACK., Sam. Titm., Ch. IV, 46.

fellows. Fellows will understand that I don't care to have you come out on a troop-ship. SARAH GRAND, The Heavenly Twins, I, 145.

folks. Folks don't use to meet for amusement with fire-arms. SHER., Riv., V, 1.

men. * Your face, my thane, is as a book where men | May read strange matters. Macb., I, 5, 63.

Men at some time are masters of their fates. Jul. Cæs., I, 2, 139.

"Tis not for me to state how these doubts arise," said Douglas — "but men say the eagle was killed with an arrow fledged from his own wing". SCOTT, Fair Maid, Ch. XXXIII, 353.

Men said that he was proud. CH. KINGSLEY, Westw. Ho!, Ch. I, 6a.

Men have asked themselves, much more insistently than heretofore, why, if the self-governing principle has had this magical effect in South Africa, and, in a previous generation, in Canada, we should not try what it may do for Great Britain and Ireland. Westm. Gaz., No. 5454, 1b.

 Honours and wealth change men's natures. SCOTT, Quent. Durw., Ch. XII, 172. All this did not alter the settled conviction on men's minds. TROL., Framl. Pars., Ch. XXXVII, 358.

people. * I don't know whether there are ghosts or not, but people say they've seen them. MAR. CRAWF., Kath. Laud., I, Ch. X, 186.

People always recognize the ghost instantly, if it's that of a person they've known. ib., Ch. X, 187.

People can be divorced for incompatibility of temper. ib., Ch. XII, 223.

 Have you been mentioning that to people? W. PETT RIDGE, New Scheme (Westm. Gaz., No. 4983, 3c).

persons. (unusual.) Do not let persons on this account suppose that Mrs. Robarts was a tuft-hunter, or a toad-hunter. TROL., Framl. Pars., Ch. X, 101.

Persons are requested not to sit upon the pier. Inscription on Greenwich Pier.

b) affairs. Such was the state of affairs, as the carriage crossed Westminster-bridge. THACK., Van. Fair, I, Ch. VI, 54.

But a great and sudden turn in affairs was at hand. MAC., Clive, (527b).

The inhabitants of the village, while discussing the position of affairs, had suddenly been startled by the appearance of six mounted Uhlans. BUCHANAN, That Winter Night, Ch. V, 45.

matters. * Should matters become yet more distracted here, ... we will provide for your safe-conduct to Germany. SCOTT, Quent. Durw., Ch. XVIII, 243.

Matters are not so bad as that. READE, It is never too late to mend, I, Ch. I, 18.

 It is difficult to believe that Mr. Asquith and his colleagues can feel that the result of the elections will justify them in pushing matters to extremes. Westm. Gaz., No. 5219, 16c.

things. * After a while things went so far that the Fenian leaders in the United States issued an address. MCCARTHY, Short Hist., Ch. XXX, 314.

Things jarred between them frequently. MRS. WARD, Marc., III, 102.

Things are coming to a pretty pass. H. J. BYRON, Our Boys.

I have seen a pretty while how things are going on here. READE, It is never too late to mend, I, Ch. I, 18.

 We looked at things through a telescope. DICK., Cop., Ch. II, 12b.

We have no desire to exaggerate the dangers inseparable from such a state of things. Times.

Mr. Roosevelt is making things hum in American politics. Westm. Gaz., No. 5406, 1b. (= Dutch: brengt leven in de brouwerij.)

She hadn't the energy to go about and do things. Eng. Rev., No. 58, 199.

Note. The same usage is often extended to other nouns, especially the following among, perhaps, many others (12—14):

a) ministers. From questions recently put to Ministers in Parliament. Times. Mr. Redmond feels for instance that an honest pledge on the part of Ministers to dedicate this Parliament to the House of Lords question is not sufficient for him. Westm. Gaz., No. 5231, 1c. (Thus, probably, the invariable practice in this paper.)

members. Members were really astonished at this display of feeling from a statesman who has the reputation of being extremely reticent. ib.

parties. * Parties in the House are balanced pretty much as they were in the last Chamber. Graph.

 Either the Irish question must be settled by a deal between parties, or the Government must take vigorous measures. Westm. Gaz., No. 6383, 1c.

politicians. Congress will not meet till December, and politicians are still making holiday. Graph.

voters. Voters went early to the polls, and hurried away to make holiday in the fine weather. Graph.

Note. Of particular interest is the frequent noble lords, as in:

They had mingled their tears with those of noble lords opposite in regard to the brevity of the time given to that House for discussion. LORD CREWE, Speech.

The amount of discussion which that measure had received both in and out of Parliament, enabled noble lords opposite to decide to throw the Bill out. Ib.

Fortunately, although noble lords sometimes say very nearly winged words to each other, human emotions and passions seem to be much more under restraint in the Upper than in the Lower House. Westm. Gaz., No. 5107, 4a.

b) appearances. Appearances are at least against you. CH. KINGSLEY, Westw. Hol., Ch. XIX, 146b.

My only chance of success depends on my keeping up appearances. MRS. ALEXANDER, A Life Interest, I, Ch. IV, 72.

circumstances. You will have me back again, should circumstances permit HARDY, Far from the madding Crowd, Ch. LI, 416.

The work is being pushed forward as quickly as circumstances permit. Times.

His career owes nothing whatever to influence or to circumstances, apart from his brilliant ability. Westm. Gaz., No. 6365, 2b.

How could circumstances be so cruel to her? EL. GLYN, The Reason why, Ch. XXXV, 322.

Compare: The Greek and Turkish negotiations are supposed to be going on as smoothly as the circumstances permit. Westm. Gaz., No. 6365, 1c.

This will lead public opinion to consider the one and only form of relief which the circumstances permit. Ib., 2a.

events. Silent, therefore, and passive, Adrian waited the progress of events. LYTTON, Rienzi, II, Ch. III, 88.

times. Times grew worse and worse with Rip van Winkle, as years of matrimony rolled on. WASH. IRV., Sketch-Bk., V, 36.

Times have indeed changed, since the days when the decrees of the Medes and Persians altered not nor were changed. Rev. of Rev., CCXXVIII, 512a.

II. Sometimes the suppression may have been furthered by the nouns standing in juxtaposition in the same grammatical function.

The afternoon studies proceeded as on other afternoons, but neither masters nor boys felt at ease. Mrs. WOOD, Orv. Col., Ch. III, 42.

Neither things nor scholars had shaken down into their routine. Ib., I, 15.

III. Even the presence of a specializing adjunct does not always cause the article to be used before these nouns. (12.)

a) persons. Cape politics had been so disagreeable a subject that persons in authority at the Colonial Office dismissed them from their minds. FROUDE, Oceana, Ch. III, 48.

members. Members of the Opposition saw, or thought they saw, a reflection of it in the exaggerated unconcern on the Ministerial benches. KATH. CECIL THURSTON, John Chilcote, M. P., Ch. I, 2.

b) circumstances. With the aid of a few cartloads of sand, and a little imagination they make the best of circumstances in their back garden. Punch.

Compare. If their action were criticized, it would, he felt sure, be remembered that the circumstances had presented considerable difficulties. Times, No. 1820, 919b.

Thereafter Mr. Long and he forsook the lobbies of the House, feeling that it was no place for them in the circumstances. lb.

58. Certain nouns are apt to assume the character of indefinite numerals, and, consequently, to reject the indefinite article. This applies especially to:

abundance. According to MURRAY 'less correctly' used in reference to number.

There are abundance who want a morsel of bread for themselves and their families. FIELDING, Amelia.¹⁾

Providence had enriched him with abundance of poor relations. WASH. IRV., Sketch-Bk., The Spectre Bridegroom, 154.

galore. Now commonly found after the noun modified. Compare store, below. According to MURRAY (s. v. galore) also: in galore.

Galore of alcohol to ratify the trade. RUXTON, Life in Far West, I, 21.¹⁾

Anthological volumes galore fill the present writer's shelves. T. P.'s Weekly, No. 492, 139c.

legion, in allusion to Bible, Mark, V, 9: My name is legion: for we are many.

Of the Taylors the name is legion. Times.

Of this form of stanza (sc. the quatrain) the name is legion. TOM HOOD, Eng. Versific., 33.

To those who believe in Father John — and their name is legion — the age of miracles is not yet over. Rev. of Rev., CCXXX, 133a.

The number of student-clubs is legion. GÜNTH., A New Eng. Read., 92.

Note 1. This legion is even used as a conjoint indefinite numeral.

When pouring o'er his legion slaves on Greece, | The eastern despot bridged the Hellespont. SOUTHEY, Joan of Arc, X, 443.¹⁾

The poor curate's wife with the legion family clothed from the odds and ends of her rich sister's cast-offs. C. JAMES, Rom. Rigmarole, 148.¹⁾

II. The following application of legion appears to be infrequent:

In Austria, where the lecturer is as legion, nine times out of ten, be the subject what it may, he will drag in a reference to, or a digression on, England. Westm. Gaz., No. 6153, 4b.

multitude. In this application, apparently, rare. The suppression of the article may be due to rhythmical reasons.

In multitude of counsellors there is safety. Bible, Proverbs, XXIV, 6.

number. Instances are rare, and seem to be entirely wanting in Late Modern English. FRANZ, *Shak. Gram.*²⁾, § 277; ABBOT, *Shak. Gram.*³⁾, § 84. Compare the Dutch tal, as in tal van voorbeelden.

Belike you slew great number of his people. Twelfth Night, III, 3, 29. Nor is this present Age void of number of Authors, who have written more on Architecture. GERBIER, Counsel.¹⁾ part. I made part of the journey from Carlow to Naas with a well-armed gentleman from Kilkenny. THACK., Barry Lyndon, Ch. III, 50.

Part of the service was intoned, part read, part sung. Mrs. WOOD, Orville College, Ch. I, 15.

He had brought home a moderate fortune, part of which he expended in extricating his father from pecuniary difficulties and redeeming the family estate. MAC., Clive, (510b).

¹⁾ MURRAY.

Note I. Part, as used in these quotations, is practically equivalent to some. (Ch. XL, 179, b, Note II.) Thus in the two following quotations the two words are used in precisely the same connections:

I wish to spend some of the year in London. Mrs. WARD, Marcella, III, 244.

It would only be for part of the year. Ib.

II. Part may even stand in the place of the conjoint some:

Meanwhile Pam had gone part way down the side of the cloister. BARONESS VON HUTTEN, What became of Pam, Ch. IX, 64.

III. Sometimes some part is used in practically the same meaning as either part or some.

The Chase of Chaldicotes is to vanish from the earth's surface. Some part of it, however, is the private property of Mr. Sowerby. TROL., Framl. Pars., Ch. III, 19.

IV. The suppression of the article seems to be regular in the adverbial expression in part = partly. Observe in whole as the opposite of in part.

If the charge is proved either in whole or in part, we imagine the French public will show itself less sentimental in these matters than ourselves. Westm. Gaz., No. 6377, 2c.

V. Also the collocations great part, large part, and, according to MURRAY, most part, sometimes have the character of indefinite numerals, and, consequently, may dispense with the indefinite article. The omission seems to be regular in the adverbial phrases in great (large) part. Compare for a large (great) part.

i. * Great part of her (sc. England's) wealth is hidden underground. GÜNTH., Leerb., I. We were at Oxford great part of last week. WHEWELL, Life (1881), 512. 1)

 The country (sc. Russia) is still semi-Asiatic in great part. Athen., No. 4482, 271b. They are in large part a stage army. Westm. Gaz., No. 6005, 1b.

The year has been a bad one, but that is in large part due to the fact that in many trades increases in wages were long overdue. Ib., 6377, No. 2c.

ii. * Mrs. Gashleigh had lived a great part of her life in Devonshire. THACK., A little Dinner at Timmins's, Ch. II, (315).

The floods which have laid a large part of Paris under water, have driven thousands of persons from their homes. Westm. Gaz., No. 5219, 2a.

These are the conditions in which a large part of the rural population live. Ib., No. 6359, 1b.

 He had played with secular politics for a large part of his life. Ib., No. 6413, 2a. Compare: During a great portion of the day, Mark found himself riding by the side of Mrs. Proudie. TROL., Framl. Pars., Ch. IV, 35.

V. When part is understood to indicate a distinctly detached portion, the indefinite article is used; but, as a comparison of the two following groups of quotations shows, the distinction between a part and part is often arbitrary.

i. Lambert was obliged to tell a part of what he knew about Harry Warrington. THACK., Virg., Ch. XXVIII, 291.

William by a feint of flight drew a part of the English force from their post of vantage. GREEN, Short Hist., Ch. II, § 4, 80.

Fragment as it (sc. Berwick) was, it was always viewed legally as representing the realm of which it had once formed a part. Ib., Ch. IV, § 6, 216.

The South of Britain became a part of the Roman empire. GEORGE CRAIK, Man. of Eng. Lit., 3.

Dr. Morris has already made the discrimination of the Middle English dialects a part of historical grammar teaching. SWEET, N. E. Gr., Pref. 10.

Explaining the etymology of grammatical terms... is really no more a part of grammar than the etymology of such a word as 'oxygen' is a part of chemistry. Ib., 7.

It is not a part of primary and necessary morality that it is always wrong to hit a man. II. Lond. News, No. 3875, 128c.

1) MURRAY.

It is a part of woman's innermost nature to give of herself to man. Eng. Rev., No. 28, 269.

- ii. Often, as part of his commercial training, a Liverpool youth will pass some years in a foreign land. ESCOTT, England, Ch. VI, 85.
I find it easier to imagine all that ugly past than you dō, because I myself have been part of it. W. MORRIS, News from Nowhere, Ch. XXVIII, 211.
They (sc. these ten volumes) form part of St. Martin's Illustrated Library. Rev. of Rev., CCXXX, 190a.
The Empire of which his country now forms part. Times.
They had played one of those tricks on the Opposition that have become part of their regular Parliamentary weapons. Id., No. 1823, 982d.
He conceives the Irish question as part of a big British Parliamentary problem. Westm. Gaz., No. 6371, 1b.

VI. Sometimes we find the definite article absent before greater part.
She knew by heart | All Calderon and greater part of Lopé. BYRON, Don Juan, I, xi.
After living greater part of my life in a poor working-class district, I am now residing in a genteel suburb. Westm. Gaz., No. 5613, 4a.

plenty. The suppression is now almost regular, the use of the indefinite article being chiefly met with in American writers. MURRAY.

- i. He has plenty of money.
ii. Mr. Gunter, of Berkeley Square, supplied the ices, supper and footmen, — though of the latter Brough kept a plenty. THACK, Sam. Titm., Ch. V, 50.
If her ladyship had six (sc. children), I've a plenty for them all. Ib., Ch. XIII, 172.
A plenty of smoke was delivered from the council of three. Id., Newc., I, Ch. XXVI, 290.
Remember to let it have a plenty of gravel in the bottom of its cage. LONG-FELLOW, Kavanagh, 71.¹⁾

Note I. Plenty is in no way to be distinguished from an indefinite numeral, when it throws off the preposition of. The practice seems to be quite usual in certain dialects. Thus in Modern Scotch: There were plenty folk ready to help. I know of plenty places to go to. MURRAY.

He'd plenty other childer. Mrs. GASK., Mary Barton, Ch. IX, 97.
Out into the darkness, out of night, | My flaring heart gave plenty light. MASEFIELD, The Everlasting Mercy, 76.

II. This also applies to plenty when used predicatively. In this case it is even found occasionally in the comparative and superlative.

- i. If reasons were as plenty as blackberries. Henry IV, A, II, 2, 265.
And what may lawns, cypresses, and ribands fetch, where gold is so plenty? SCOTT, Kenilw., Ch. I, 16.
They (sc. factory girls) can earn so much, when work is plenty. Mrs. GASK., Mary Barton, Ch. I, 7.

- ii. Wherever kicks and cuffs are plentiest. LE FANU, T. O'Brien, 84.¹⁾
Poets would be plentier. LOWELL, Study Wind., 22.¹⁾

III. Of plenty used as an adverb of degree, no further instance than the following has been found:

I'm seventeen, plenty old enough. BARONESS VON HUTTEN, Pam., III, Ch. V, 134.

ruck. The suppression appears to be rare. No instances are given in MURRAY.

Th' carriages went bowling along toward her house, some w' dressed-up gentlemen like circus folk in 'em, and ruck o' ladies in others. Mrs. GASK., Mary Barton, Ch. IX, 94.

¹⁾ MURRAY.

store. Instances of suppression of the article are frequent enough in SHAKESPEARE, even when an adjective or such precedes. Late instances seem to be rare. FRANZ, Shak. Gram.², § 277.

I do nothing doubt you have store of thieves. Cymb., I, 4, 107.

OCT. You may do your will, | But he's, (sc. Lepidus) a tried and vallant soldier.
— ANT. So is my horse, Octavius; and for that, | I do appoint him store of provender. Jul. Cæs., IV, 1, 30.

See also Taming of the Shrew, III, 2, 188; Two Gentlemen, I, 1, 108; Com. of Er., III, 1, 34.

Prithce, Vizard, can't you recommend a friend to a pretty mistress by the by, till I can find my own? You have store, I'm sure. FARQUHAR, The Constant Couple, I, 1, (51).

There were plenty of thistles, which indicates dry land; and store of fern, which is said to indicate deep land. SCOTT, Pirate, Ch. IV, 45.

To make the miracle the more, | Of these feathers there is always store. SOUTHEY, Pilgr. to Compostella, VII, 267.¹⁾

Ah, dear, he took me from a goodly house, | With store of rich apparel, sumptuous fare. TEN., Mar. of Ger., 709.

Note. SCOTT also has store after the noun modified, as in:

And broadsword, bows and arrows store. Lady, I, xxvii.

The race of yore, | Who danced our infancy upon their knee, | And told our marvelling boyhood legends store [etc.]. Ib., III, 1.

Observe also the absence of the indefinite article in the following quotations:

Of language he had more than ordinary share. DIXON, Life of Wil. Penn, I, 33.²⁾

The air was gay with bright-green parroquets flitting about, — very mischievous they are, I am told, taking large tithe of the fruit. LADY BARKER, Station Life in New Zealand, 51.²⁾

59. Half almost regularly loses the (in)definite article, not only when it assumes the character of an adverb of quantity or degree, as in half the sum, half the men (Ch. V, 16, Obs. VII), but also when it partakes of the nature of an absolute indefinite numeral, as in half of the sum, half of the men. (Compare much of the sum, many of the men.)

The preposition of, which is mostly dropped when a noun follows, is never suppressed before a personal pronoun, and rarely before a substantival demonstrative pronoun. Thus regularly half of us (you or them), not half us* (you or them); half of this (these, that or those), rarely half this (these, that or those). Before a substantival clause (Ch. XV) of is regularly omitted, when the relative what is thrown off, while it is rarely dispensed with, when the relative is retained.

In the collocation at half price, half has the same meaning as in half the sum, notwithstanding the absence of the definite article before price, and may, therefore, be regarded as an adverb of degree or quantity. Half is a substantival indefinite numeral in such expressions as too knowing (clever, wild, etc.) by half = Dutch veel te bij de hand (knap, wild, enz.).

Half is also found preceded by the definite or indefinite article and followed by of, in which case it may be further modified by an adjective, as in the (a) half of the estate which fell to his share, the

1) MURRAY S. V. more, A, 1, g.

2) ELLINGER, Verm. Beitr., 38.

latter half of the last century. In this construction, which, so far as the definite article is concerned, is quite common, it denotes a detached portion of whatever is referred to; and is, of course, a pure noun. This holds true also when one as the alternative of other precedes, and of follows, as in One half of the men were seriously ill, the other could not be prevailed upon to do any extra work. It is but rarely and, apparently, only to meet the requirements of the metre that we find half preceded by the definite article (or some other modifier), while of is suppressed.

Compare also Ch. V, 15—16, and see ELLINGER, Verm. Beitr., 17; MÄTZN., Eng. Gram.², III, 180.

1) half not preceded by either article and not followed by of,
a) before a noun or the substitute of a noun: The silver rims won't sell for above half the money. GOLDSMITH, Vicar.

The first blow is half the battle. Id., She Stoops to Conquer, I, (181).

I believe she owns half the stocks. SHER., Riv., I, 1.

I traversed half the town in search of it. Ib., I, 2.

How could he spare half ten thousand pounds? JANE AUSTEN, Pride and Prej., Ch. XLIX, 298.

Then all the Cratchit family drew round the hearth in what Bob Cratchit called a circle, meaning half a one. DICK., Christm. Car.⁵, III, 69.

I never gave more than six guineas for a shawl in all my life. And Cornelia never more than half six. Mrs. WOOD, East Lynne, I, 39.

And yet she held him on delayingly | . . . Trying his truth and his long-sufferance, | Till half-another, year had slipt away. TEN., Enoch Arden, 468.

A reprint of the 'Encyclopædia Britannica' at half price. Il. Lond. News.

β) before a substantive clause without what: Christmas was upon them before half she wanted to do was accomplished. Mrs. ALEXANDER, For his Sake, II, Ch. II, 34.

Half they hear at public meetings is false. Westm. Gaz., No. 5083, 16c.

γ) before a substantive clause with what: The estimates published in the papers place the value of the property destroyed at £140.000.000, or little more than half what the South African war cost Great Britain. Rev. of Rev., CCXXIX, 9b.

2) half not preceded by either article, but followed by of,
a) before a noun: Regan advised him to go home again with Goneril and live with her peaceably, dismissing half of his attendants. LAMB, Tales, Lear, 157.

The black cook spent half of the day at the street pump. WASH. IRV., Dolf Heyl (STOF., Handl., I, 114).

With that fortress half of Silesia . . . had been transferred to the Austrians. MAC., Fred., (698b).

For half of their fleet to the right and half to the left were seen. TEN., Revenge, V.

Note the varied usage in: If she should ever wed, she was sure the lord to whom she gave her hand, would want half her love, half of her care and duty. LAMB, Tales, 148.

β) before a personal pronoun: "I drink your health with cheerfulness, Mrs. Mann;" and he swallowed half of it. DICK., Ol. Twist, Ch. II, 25.
Half of you will be dead this time next year. RUDY. KIPL., The Light that failed, Ch. XI, 155.

γ) before a substantive clause with what: I became sick before I had eaten half of what I had bought. DE QUINCEY, Conf., Ch. II, 32.

There was never believing half of what that Bob said. THACK., Sam. Titm., Ch. II, 18.

- 3) half preceded by the definite article, but not followed by of: And the half my men are sick. TEN., Revenge, I, vi.
And then will I... | Endow you with broad land and territory | Even to the half my realm beyond the seas. Id., Lanc. and El., 953.
- 4) half preceded by other modifiers than either article, but not followed by of: She did not understand one-half the compliments which he paid. THACK., Van. Fair, II, Ch. XXVIII, 305.
It is impossible to muster one-half the nominal strength of the Unionists of all shades. Rev. of Rev., CXCVI, 341b.
- 5) half preceded by either the definite or the indefinite article, and followed by of,
- a) before a noun. She had not forgot the half of the kingdom which he had endowed her with. LAMB., Tales, Lear, 157.
(He) left her the half of his fortune. THACK., Virg., Ch. XCH, 979.
 - β) before a personal pronoun: i. I don't know how much money he has had from your governor, but this I can say, the half of it would make F. B. a happy man. THACK., Newc., I, Ch. XXV, 284.
ii. I have asked about men in my company, and found that a half of them under the flags were driven thither on account of a woman. THACK., Henry Esmond, III, Ch. V, 36.
 - γ) before a demonstrative pronoun: If the half of this be true, I will turn Christian. CH. KINGSLEY, Hereward, Ch. XIV, 60a.
 - δ) before a substantive clause with what: You have got the half of what I have. THACK., Virg., Ch. LV, 568.
- 6) half preceded by another modifier than either article and followed by of: One half of the men were seriously ill. MURRAY.
- 7) half in the adverbial phrase by half: The other's economy in selling it (sc. the house) to him was more reprehensible by half. SHER., School for Scand., III, 2, (394).
He is too moral by half, Id., IV, 3, (418).
Bob was always too knowing by half. THACK., Sam. Titm., Ch. II, 12.
- Note. On the analogy of half-an-hour, quarter-of-an-hour sometimes loses the indefinite article:
Quarter-of-an-hour later the bell rang. JEROME, Paul Kelter, I, Ch. III, 26a.
Inject it (sc. the serum) three times a day, quarter-of-an-hour before meals. BERN. SHAW, The Doctor's Dilemma, I, 24.
60. Also double rejects the definite article, when its grammatical function is changed to that of an adverb of degree or a substantival indefinite pronoun. The preposition of is thrown out before nouns, but mostly retained before substantival pronouns. (Ch. V, 16, Obs. VIII). See also MÄTZN., *Eng. Gram.*², III, 180.
- i. The silver rims will sell for double the money. GOLDSMITH, Vicar.
Instead of having double the strength of our opponent, it is doubtful if we shall have even the equivalent strength. Westm. Gaz., No. 4967, 1b.
The majority which Mr. Asquith can claim is 275 and no more, and we shall not ask him to act, as if it were double that number. Id., No. 5237, 1b.
His (sc. a railway porter's) fees from the public... are equivalent to doctor's fees in the second-class passengers, and double doctor's fees in the case of first. BERN. SHAW, The Doctor's Dilemma, Pref., 26.
 - ii. * She enclosed double of what I had asked. DE QUINCEY, Confessions Ch. II 13.

 In every instance I found the price would be almost double what I should have paid for the same thing in England. RITA, America—Seen through English eyes, Ch. II, 53.

The railway was badly built and cost double what was estimated. ATHEN., No. 4447, 62b.

- iii. You paid me extremely liberally for the lie in question; but I unfortunately have been offered double to speak truth. SHER., School for Scand., V, 3, (435).

61. Many other nouns discard the article owing to a change of meaning. The discussion of the numerous cases that might be mentioned here, falls outside the scope of this book, belonging rather to the department of lexicography. A few instances must suffice. Compare 15, a; 36, a; 62; and also Ch. XXV, 27.

ballet. It was suggested in this place last night that ballet had been rather too much in evidence at Drury Lane. II. Lond. News, No. 3875, 134a. (Compare: This has revived the taste for the ballet in England. lb., No. 3875, 135a).

compliment. Mr. Bonar Law also pays high compliment to the sincerity and courage of the Nationalists. Westm. Gaz., No. 6371, 3c.

head. i. (He did not care) to what extent property was destroyed, or the pursuits of life suspended, so that he did but make head against the enemy. MAC., Fred., (698a).

ii. The unexpected success of the original war with Turkey appears to have caused a deplorable loss of head among (the statesmen). Westm. Gaz., No. 6288, 1c.

The man had heart as well as head. II. Lond. News, No. 3884, 462c.

leaf. Three or four sycamore trees, which were in full leaf,... served to relieve the dark appearance of the mansion. SCOTT, Abbot, Ch. IX, 92.

outline. All these things are made clear to us in broad outline. HUDSON, Stud. of Lit., Ch. III, 248.

rank. Dr. Alfred Russel Wallace... takes rank as one of the greatest figures of the nineteenth century. Westm. Gaz., No. 6377, 2a.

tongue. When papa opened the door, Chubby was giving tongue energetically. G. ELIOT, Scenes, I, Ch. II, 25.

Note. Thus also to throw tongue. FOWLER, Concise Oxf. Dict.

tribute. It is impossible to withhold respectful tribute to his extraordinary skill in turning events to his own advantage. Westm. Gaz., No. 4977, 1b.

Compare: We are unwilling to conclude this notice of Professor Skeat's last piece of work without paying a tribute to the great services rendered by him to the study of English. SEDGEFIELD (Mod. Lang. Rev., VIII, III, 295).

way. The king's resistance gave way. GREEN.¹⁾

Note. Thus also to make way (for others), to make way (= to make progress).

word. * He had himself carried word of the catastrophe to the firm's lawyers the previous day. JOHN OXENHAM, A Simple Beguiler.

 He had left word with little Jack that he was going a long walk. MRS. CRAIK, John Hal., Ch. XV, 143.

 Maria and Sylvia sent down word by the maid that they were tired that morning. JAMES PAYN, That Friend of Sylvia's.

* He went on Tuesday, as I wrote you word. JANE AUSTEN, Pride and Prej., Ch. XLVII, 279.

¹⁾ FOELS-KOCH, Wis. Gram., § 274.

THE ARTICLE SUPPRESSED FOR THE SAKE OF BREVITY.

62. Both the definite and the indefinite article are often omitted where, strictly speaking, they are required by the sense.

The suppression is mostly due to motives of economy, which urge speakers and writers to sacrifice all words of minor significance, but may also arise from the necessities of rhythm or metre or oratorical polish. (9, d; 15.) In many cases it may be a survival of the practice in the earlier stages of the language. (SWEET, N. E. Gr., § 2061.)

Sometimes it is open to question whether it is the definite or indefinite article which is understood. In not a few cases also there is no reason to prevent us from assuming the omission of a weak possessive pronoun. The reader is, therefore, cautioned to consult also Ch. XXXIII, where the supposed omission of the latter is discussed.

In many cases the suppression causes the noun to appear in a modified meaning, or, contrariwise, the modified meaning causes the suppression of the article. See the preceding §.

SUPPRESSION OF THE DEFINITE ARTICLE.

63. The suppression of the definite article is chiefly met with, when the noun stands without any individualizing adjunct, and is:

a) the non-prepositional object, or the subject of a passive sentence.

b) part of a prepositional word-group.

In either position the noun often forms a kind of unit with a preceding verb, e. g.: to balance accounts, to take into account. (9, d.) Of the innumerable cases which offer themselves for discussion, we can present only a few, which seem of particular interest. Some of the instances of suppression mentioned in 15 might also find a place in this §. Compare also MÄTZN., Eng. Gram.², III, 213; ELLINGER, Verm. Beitr., 35; for instances in SHAKESPEARE especially FRANZ, Shak. Gram.², § 267.

account(s). a) to keep accounts. FOWLER, Concise Oxf. Dict. to balance or square accounts. Ib.

b) * A very considerable proportion are shipped for account of the manufacturers. T. TOOKE, Currency, 102.

 The Free Traders are so benighted that they do not take into account the amount of internal trade. Westm. Gaz., No. 6365, 2b.

The Sultan has to take into account the fact that [etc.]. Times.

Those individuals may almost be left out of account. Ib.

Note. MACAULAY has to take into the account and to leave out of the account, probably regularly, instead of to take into account and to leave out of account, the phrases given by MURRAY, s. v. account, 14.

We must take into the account the liberty of discussion. MAC., Southey, (118b). (Thus passim in this essay.)

Nor did any landowner take them (sc. the veins of copper) into the account in estimating the value of his property. Id., Hist., I, Ch. III, 311.

These transactions... must not be left out of the account. Ib., III, Ch. VIII, 132.

alarm. a) i. The timid soul, taking alarm at once, acceded to his desire to stay at home. THACK., Pend., I, Ch. III, 32.

Voltaire's sensitive vanity began to take alarm. MAC., Fred., (679b).

ii. The more bigoted of the clergy were quick to take alarm. GREEN, Short Hist., Ch. VI, § IV, 309.

I cannot find it in my heart to take alarm. Eng. Rev., Febr. 1912, 486. Note I. MURRAY only has to take the alarm, and this seems to be the ordinary expression. After to give and to raise the article seems to be rarely, if ever, dispensed with.

He flung the sentinel over the ramparts, just as he was going to give the alarm. DICK., Adventures of a Galley-Slave.

Ryder instantly gave the alarm. CON. DOYLE, Sherl. Holm., Blue Carb. You rifled the jewel case, raised the alarm. Ib.

II. Very rarely the indefinite article is used after these verbs.

She... ran to Coggan's, the nearest house, and raised an alarm. HARDY, Far from the Madding Crowd, Ch. XXXII, 245.

anchor. a) * They're heaving anchor! Mrs. GASK., Mary Barton, Ch. XXVIII, 278. 'Going on board they hove anchor. CH. KINGSLEY, Westw. Hol, Ch. XVI, 132b.

 He immediately weighed anchor for Deal. Westm. Gaz., No. 5036, 4b.

Last Saturday the steamship Medina, having on board their Majesties, ... weighed anchor at Portsmouth. Times, No. 1820, 922d.

Note. Thus also regularly to cast anchor and to drop anchor, but to slip the anchor (= to let the anchor go by letting the cable slip), the ship drags her anchor. MURRAY.

b) * A little shallop lay | At anchor in the flood. TEN., In Mem., CIII, 20.

A ship rides at anchor, when it is secured at its moorings. Harmsw. Enc. s. v. anchor.

 To anchor = to cast anchor, to come to anchor. MURRAY.

Note. Also to come to an anchor, as in:

Here we were obliged to come to an anchor. DEFOE, Rob. Crusoe, 8.

A great steamer came to an anchor off the town. Three Pretty Maids.¹⁾ arms. a) Bavaria took up arms. MAC., Fred., (668b).

Note. MURRAY, s. v. arm 4, 5 and 6 has: to carry arms (= to wage war), to take up arms, to bear arms (= to serve as a soldier) to lay down arms; to order arms, to port arms, to present arms, to shoulder arms, to slope arms, to trail arms; and s. v. change, 9: to change arms.

b) * All the country and Europe were in arms. THACK., Van. Fair, I, Ch. XXVIII, 297.

 To arms! to arms! the fierce Virago cries. POPE, Rape, V, 37.

Were he himself the son of a belted Earl, he could not be better trained to arms. SCOTT, Abbot, Ch. II, 23.

The whole force stood to arms half an hour before daybreak. Times. (= Dutch stond in het geweer).

The infantry stood to arms on the occasion of Columbus's remains being reinterred in Seville Cathedral. II. Lond. News.

Note. Thus also to rise in arms, to be up in arms, under arms, to appeal to arms, a passage of (or at) arms, an assault of (or at) arms; man of arms, later man-at-arms, (one practised in war, a warrior), man-in-arms (armed man); but: Stand to your arms! (i. e. in order of battle, with arms presented).

bank. b) Such men as Mills and Hodson... offer help to a drowning man only when he has struggled to bank. R. ASHE KING, Ol. Goldsmith, Ch. VIII, 90.

battle. a) Edward resolved to give battle. GREEN.²⁾

Note. MURRAY, s. v. battle, 11, has to have, keep, make, smite, strike, battle (all obs.); to bid (obs.), offer, refuse, accept, take (arch.), battle; to join battle; also, to do battle, (= to fight); to give battle (= to attack, engage).

b) Far liefer had I gird his harness on him, | And ride with him to battle and stand by. TEN., Mar. of Ger., 94.

1) TEN BRUG., Taalst., X.

2) FOELS.—KOCH, Wis. Gram., § 279.

The Liberals will go forth to battle with a foregone assurance of victory. Rev. of Rev.

block. b) i. But the woman answered that so fine a head should never come to block. MAX. PEMB., I crown thee King, Ch. IV, 45.

ii. It was by bills of attainder... that the great nobles were brought to the block. GREEN, Short Hist., Ch. VII, § 1, 341.

The King's uncle, the Earl of Kent, was actually brought to the block. Ib., Ch. IV, § 4, 215.

Note. The omission appears to be rare.

blush. b) At first blush it may seem not only necessary, but even indecent, to discuss such a proposition as the elevation of cruelty to the rank of a human right. BERN. SHAW, The Doctor's Dilemma, Pref.

Note. MURRAY has at, on, etc. (the) first blush (= at the first glance). In none of his quotations is the article absent.

board. b) He volunteered to keep watch and ward on board till noon. CH. KINGSLEY, Westw. Hol., Ch. XVII, 133*b*.

Note. Thus also within board, without board, over board (rarely over the board); but by the board. The phrase above board (often hyphenated) in the sense of open(ly) also regularly without the article.

book. a) Johnson will repeat to me to-morrow morning before breakfast, without book,... the first chapter of the Epistle of Saint Paul to the Ephesians. DICK., Domb., Ch. XII, 107.

Note. MURRAY, s. v. book, 14 and 15, has by (the) book (= in set phrase) to bring to book (= to bring to account).

boot. b) He is as proud and vindictive as a hundred Douglasses and a hundred devils to boot. SCOTT, Bride of Lam., Ch. XXI, 221.

Note. To the boot, and into the boot, according to MURRAY (s. v. boot, 1, b), are Scotticisms.

(You are) on the point of marrying your only daughter to a beggarly Jacobite bankrupt, the inveterate enemy of your family to the boot. SCOTT, Bride of Lam., Ch. XXI, 220.

bottom. a) I do not believe we have touched bottom; I believe the reduction will go on. Pall Mall Gaz., 1886, 22 April, 11/2.

He (sc. Goldsmith) must indeed have touched bottom at Peckham, if Paternoster Row was an improvement upon it. RICH. ASHE KING, Ol. Goldsm., Ch. VI, 74.

b) At bottom the character was severe and stern. Truth, No. 472, 650*b*.

The world is good at bottom. Times, No. 1832, 111*d*.

Note. With at bottom (= in reality, as distinguished from superficial appearances) compare to be at the bottom of (= to be the real author or source of), as in: The Jesuits were at the bottom of the scheme. MAC., Hist., I, 387. ¹⁾ bulk. b) Such knowledge can be obtained only by personal inquiry, directed not to men in bulk, but to the individuals who make up the mass. Times, No. 1822, 963*b*.

For at bottom MURRAY gives at the bottom as a variant, but instances of the latter appear to be rare.

Note. Thus also to sell in bulk (= in large quantities, as it is in the hold). FLÜGEL has by the bulk (= im Ganzen, im Durchschnitt, durchgängig, in Bausch und Bogen). Compare also in the lump, in the mass.

channel. b) The flood was making strongly up channel. BLACKMORE. The Maid of Sker, I, 16. ²⁾ character. b) * But, Moses! would not you have him run out a little against the annuity bill? That would be in character, I should think? SHER., School for Scand., III, 1, (390).

1) MURRAY.

2) ELLINGER, Verm. Beiträge, 36.

She can do justice to it (sc. the Ode to an Expiring Frog), sir. She will repeat it, in character, sir, to-morrow morning. DICK., Pickw., Ch. XV, 129.

 It is always self-ignorance that leads a man to act out of character. G. MASON, Self-Knowl.; I, IV, 41.¹⁾ circuit. b) Pen's neighbours, the lawyers, were gone upon circuit. THACK., Pend., II, Ch. IX, 97.

country. b) He wrote to the chaps at school about his top-boots, and his feats across country. THACK., Pend., I, Ch. III, 33.

He set out for a long aimless ride across country. MRS. ALEX., For his Sake, II, Ch. I, 15.

court. b) She was fined £ 250.... for contempt of court. II. Lond. News, No. 3815, 830a.

daggers. b) Was Marston still at daggers drawn with his rich uncle? R. B. BROUGH, Marston Lynch, XXIV, 257.¹⁾

Note. The phrase at daggers drawn seems to have been evolved from (at) daggers (or daggers') drawing, an expression which appears to have gone out of use. MURRAY. A quarrel in a tavern where all were at daggers drawing. SWIFT, Drapier's Let., VII.¹⁾

At daggers' points is an infrequent variant of at daggers drawn.

Five minutes hence we may be at daggers' points. DICK., Little Dorrit, Ch. XXX, 397a.

date. b) There is preserved at the back of a Lincoln corporation minute-book, under date of the sixth of Queen Elizabeth, a list of stage properties. Athen., No. 4477, 166b.

day. b) Halbert was only awakened by the dawn of day. SCOTT, Mon., Ch. XX, 232. The first sacrifice was offered at the very peep of day. J. PARKER, Apost. Life, I, 118.¹⁾

The classes of passengers will vastly vary according to the time of day. GÜNTH., Leerboek, 74. (Compare: By the clock we tell the time of the day. Ib., 32.)

Though I waited at every hour of day and far into the night, no light footstep came to meet me. BLACKMORE, Lorna Doone, Ch. XXXVI, 216.

Note. The article is practically regularly dispensed with in expressions denoting a point of time.

ear. a) He... even went the length of offering to pitch his broad-brimmed hat and many-buttoned soutane into the bag... if only she would give ear to him. JOHN OXENHAM, Great-heart Gillian, Ch. III, 23.

Some men of sober judgment lent unwilling ear to these reports. DIXON, Life of Wil. Penn, II, 78.²⁾

b) * He must learn to recognize each sound by ear. SWEET, Prim. of Phon., § 1. To sing or play by ear: i. e. without the aid of written music. MURRAY.

 He had played it from ear. EL. GLYN, The Reason why, Ch. X, 85.

Compare: To write down sounds from hearing. SWEET, Prim. Phon., § 59.

earth. b) i. * They must infallibly have all gone rolling over and over together, until they reached the confines of earth. DICK., Pickw., Ch. XIV, 119.

But to return to the things and thoughts of earth. LYTTON, Rienzi, II, Ch. III, 88.

The rulers of earth were fain to swim with the stream. CH. KINGSLEY, Hyp., Pref.

 Nothing on earth can give me a moment's uneasiness. SHER., Riv. II, i, (227).

Dare any soul on earth breathe a word against the most angelical of women? THACK., Van. Fair, Ch. XVIII, 188.

Now, why on earth should you be glad? PUNCH.

Better than aught else on earth. RID. HAG., The Brethren, Ch. II, 20.

* When the storm-time comes, the lower growths grimp close to earth and go unscathed, and the graceful palm may be laid low. JOHN OXENHAM, Great-heart Gillian, Ch. IV, 34.

¹⁾ MURRAY. ²⁾ ELLINGER, Verm. Beiträge, 38.

- ii. * Certainly beyond the river, which was the end of all the earth, lived the Bad Men. RUDY. KIPL., Wee Willie Winkie.

 I love my cousin here better than aught else upon the earth. RID. HAG., The Brethren, Ch. II, 20.

I was not wanted in heaven or upon the earth. JEROME, Paul Kever, Ch. I, 14a. Note. The suppression of the article would appear to be the rule after (upon), regular in the emotional on earth in negative and interrogative sentences. (Ch. XLI, 10, Obs. III and IV.) Also after to the dropping may be practically regular. When, however, no relation of place is expressed, as after of, the omission is less usual. Compare 17. Observe that there is no analogous suppression of the article before globe and world, which are often used in practically the same meaning.

edge. b) He continually keeps his reader on edge. Westm. Gaz., No. 6029, 9c. Note. Thus also to set on edge.

elbow(s). b) * Pay that hardly keeps him in at elbows. G. ELIOT, Mid., IV, Ch. XXXVIII, 281.

 Bessie had seen him out at elbows before. Id., Bessie Costrel, 63.

end. b) Each trunk is made to stand on end. Graph., No. 2271, 964.

ends. a) Many stories are told of the stern economy which the young couple had to practise to make ends meet. T. P.'s Weekly, No. 474, 713c.

Note. The ordinary expression is to make both ends meet.

expectation. a) The second ballots in France on Sunday exactly fulfilled expectation. Graph.

Sir Oliver Lodge's address . . . has not disappointed expectation. Westm. Gaz., No. 6329, 2b.

Note. The construction without the article (or possessive pronoun) is not mentioned in MURRAY. It is hardly necessary to say that the possessive pronoun is frequently met with.

b) Against (beyond, contrary to) expectation the man turned up at the right moment.

fashion. b) i. * In true English fashion they won their markets at the point of the sword. CH. KINGSLEY, Westw. Hol., Ch. XVIII, 135a.

 To be in or out of fashion. To bring, come or grow into fashion. To go out of fashion. MURRAY, s. v. fashion, 11.

The St. Mildred race used to be so much more in fashion. MISS YONGE, Heir of Redc., I, Ch. I, 8.

- ii. * Lord Mayor's Day was observed on Wednesday in London in the traditional fashion. Times.

They opened the shells by fire, instead of leaving them to decay gradually after the Arabian fashion. Rev. of Rev., CCXXX, 97a.

 He dressed usually in the Spanish fashion. MOTLEY, Rise, I, Ch. II, 76b.

Note. To all appearance fashion stands with or without the article in the sense of manner, and to dispense with it in the sense of vogue (= Dutch zwaang). When denoting a mode or style of dress, furniture, speech, etc., as in the phrases to lead or set the fashion, it is the fashion, the article seems to be used regularly. Compare MURRAY, s. v. fashion, 11 and 10.

favour. b) He was out of favour at Court. Athen., No. 4477, 165c.

Note. Thus also to be in favour.

flank. b) They were to attempt their original plan of landing to the westward of the town and taking it in flank. CH. KINGSLEY, Westw. Hol., Ch. XIX, 142b.

flight. To take flight. MURRAY, s. v. flight, 2.

Note. Rarely with the article: My juvenal takes the flight, and leaves me here. SCOTT; Mon., Ch. XXVII, 288.

Both phrases, that with and without the article, are uncommon, the ordinary expression being to take to flight.

b) Thisbe, arriving first, perceived a lioness, which had just torn to pieces an ox, and, therefore, took to flight. DEIGHTON, Note to Mids., I, 2, 12.

Note. Thus also: to betake oneself to flight, to put to flight, to turn to flight (= to cause to flee).

grace. a) At last the dishes were set on, and grace was said, DICK., Christm. Car.⁵, III, 67.

guard. a) * I kept guard at intervals over Hector's room. Mrs. CRAIK, A Hero, 93.

 The two young Cratchits, mounting guard upon their posts, crammed spoons into their mouths, lest they should shriek for goose. DICK., Christm. Car.⁵, III, 67.

Let an intelligent policeman be told off to mount guard. PUNCH, 1872, 21 Sept. 116/1.

 Her dependants one after another relieved guard. THACK., Henry Esmond, I, Ch. IV, 32.

b) The Kaiser ... has ... drawn public attention to the misgivings and apprehensions which prevail in military circles in Germany as to dangers against which they need to be on guard. REV. OF REV., CCXXX, 97b.

Note. The ordinary practice is to place the possessive pronoun before guard: to be, stand or lie (up)on one's guard; to put or set a person on his guard. The possessive pronoun is regular in off one's guard.

hand. b) * He had promised to be at hand in case anything was needed. EDNA LYALL, A Knight Errant, Ch. XXXVIII, 375.

The hour was at hand to which Campion had been looking forward so impatiently. ANSTEE, A Fallen Idol, Ch. VI, 86.

The man with whom the Colonial Office deals at first hand. SPECTATOR.

The custom of adopting Latin words at second hand. BRADLEY, The Making of Eng., Ch. III, 93.

 He was brought up by hand. DICK., Ol. Twist, Ch. II, 22.

 By this time he had himself pretty well in hand. EDNA LYALL, A Knight Errant, Ch. XXIX, 272.

This will be done with much greater ease, if the matter is taken in hand at an early stage. TIMES.

Orders will only be executed to the amount of cash in hand. WHITELEY.

* What have you on hand just now? CON. DOYLE, Sherl. Holm., I, 106.

 He was executed out of hand. HUXLEY, Lect. and Es., 113b, N.

The Turkish troops have got completely out of hand. REV. OF REV.

 The first that comes to hand. GOLDSMITH, Good-nat. man, III.

The latest news to hand is [etc.]. DAILY TEL.

horse. b) I must be on horse before cock-crow. SCOTT, Mon., Ch. XXXIV, 369.

hounds. b) He had lived, all his life, a country gentleman, ... riding to hounds and shooting all things that were to be shot in their season. W. J. LOCKE, The Glory of Clem. Wing, Ch. III, 44.

house. a) Lady Ethelrida Montfichet had kept house for her father. EL. GLYN, The Reason why, Ch. VII, 71.

Note. Compare to keep the house = to stay in the house, as in sickness.

key. b) The excitement of the departure puts him in key for that of the arrival. STEPHENSON, Walking Tours.

leaf. b) The French Renaissance put forth their finest flowers, before the Elizabethan era was well in leaf. SIDNEY LEE, The French Renaissance in England, I, Ch. I, 6.

length. b) * While stretched at length upon the floor, | Again I fought each combat o'er. SCOTT, Marm., III, Intr. viii.

 She now took the occasion of a momentary amelioration in Arthur's disease to write to him at length. LYTTON, Night and Morn., 479.

 At length she spoke, "O Enoch! you are wise". TEN., En. Ard., 210.

Note. For at length in the first application modern practice mostly has at one's full length. For at length in the third application Early Modern English also had at the length: At the length truth will out. Merch. of Ven., II, 2, 72.

letter. b) * What he proposes carries out his promises in letter and in spirit. Westm. Gaz.

Sir Robert Peel's apostrophe to the Conservatives was reproduced in spirit if not in letter by Mr. Balfour in his speech at the Primrose League demonstration at Hatfield. Graph.

 Pres. Wilson's pledge... will be kept in the letter — but only in the letter. Spectator (Westm. Gaz., No. 6383, 16c).

Note. In letter in this application is pronounced archaic by MURRAY, s. v. letter, 5; but seems common enough in conjunction with in spirit. The phrase in the letter is not mentioned by MURRAY.

Note also: to the letter, as in: This threat was executed to the letter. LYTTON, Rienzi, II, Ch. VIII, 104.

measure. b) * My Lady was once vexed beyond measure. BLACK, Adv. Phaeton, XXXI, 414.¹⁾

 In Scotland grain used to be sold by measure alone. STEPHENS, Bk. Farm, II, 394.¹⁾

 The suit is more likely to be bought ready-made than 'made to measure'. MAYHEW, Lond. Lab., I, 476/2.¹⁾ mode. b) At any rate, card-playing is out of mode. THACK., Virg., Ch. XXIV, 253.

Note. Thus also in mode. According to MURRAY (s. v. mode, 10), the definite article may be used in these phrases, which are now obsolete.

night. b) Wo buys flowers at this time of night? GALSWORTHY, The Pigeon, I, (10).

Note. What has been said of day also applies m. m. to night.

occasion. a) He took occasion to inquire about the portrait that hung against the wall. WASH. IRV., Dolf Heyl (STOF., Handl., I, 144).

He had taken occasion to express his opinion of Lady Bracknell in the most unequivocal terms. NORRIS, My Friend Jim, Ch. XVIII, 109.

Who knew the seasons when to take | Occasion by the hand. TEN., To the Queen. Compare: She now took the occasion of a momentary amelioration in Arthur's disease to write to him at length. LYTTON, Night and Morn., 479.

On returning to the inn, Dr. Riccabocca took the occasion to learn from the innkeeper... such particulars as he could collect. Id., My Novel, I, Ch. IX, 33.

I seized the occasion of a promenade. THACK., Henry Esme., III, Ch. XIII, 445. Compare: 40 and 73, and see also Ch. XIX, 49, Obs. VI.

opposition. b) When that gentleman was in opposition. THACK., Van. Fair, I, Ch. X, 97.

Lord Loughborough... was now in opposition. MAC., War. Hist., (651a).

They are in opposition and not in office. Westm. Gaz.

order. b) Mr. Blotton (of Aldgate) rose to order. DICK., Pickw., Ch. I, 3.

The Prime Minister of Great Britain called Europe to order; and Europe recognized the voice of authority. Sat. Rev.

Note. Thus also: The speaker (or motion, etc.) is not in order or out of order. MURRAY.

part. a. To take part | Against Olympius. CHAPMAN, Iliad, I, 570.

There wanted not those who were willing to acquire the favour of the lady of Avenel by... taking part with the youth whom she protected. SCOTT, Abbot, Ch. III, 39.

Steele took part with the Opposition. MAC., Addison, (772a).

1) MURRAY.

Note. MURRAY also has to take the part of, practically in the same meaning as to take part with. Thus also with a possessive pronoun: he took my (your, his, etc.) part.

pickle. b) The Commons House of Parliament has many a rod in pickle for the Peers. Rev. of Rev., CXCVIII, 566b.

Note. Thus, apparently, regularly in this saying. Compare, however: It was only after the last good word of glad tidings had been said, that the rod was taken out of the pickle. Mrs. LYNN LINTON, Rebel of Family, II, vii.¹⁾ pike. a) She saw the boy attempt, with a long stick, to mimic the motions of the warder, as he alternately shouldered, or ported, or sloped pike. SCOTT, Abbot, Ch. III, 27.

possession. a) In the later empire they (sc. the Goths) obtained possession of part of Dacia. DEIGHTON, Note to 'As you like it, III, 3, 9.'

Note. Thus also in to get (take) possession.

post. b) A letter from Lady Florence to her sister had arrived by first post two days before the event. AGN. & EG. CASTLE, Diam. cut Paste, III, Ch. I, 232. Note. This seems to be an exceptional case, although the article is regularly absent, when no ordinal numeral precedes.

practice. b) The Cape Colony, as we ought to know, but in practice we always forget, was originally a Dutch colony. FROUDE, Oceana, Ch. III, 42.

Note. Thus also regularly in to put in (or into) practice, to reduce to practice; to be in (out of) practice.

press. b) * The book is not at press. Acad.²⁾

Second edition now at press. Westm. Gaz., No. 4961, 1a.

 At the moment of going to press the Austrian Government is talking about issuing an ultimatum. Rev. of Rev., CCXXVIII, 507b.

Note. At press seems to be an unusual collocation, in the press being mostly used instead. The definite article regularly stands in other combinations analogous to the above, such as to bring (put, commit, send, submit) to the press; to carry (see) through the press; to come (to pass, undergo) the press; to correct the press (= the printing, or the errors in composing the type). MURRAY, s. v. press, 13, e.

proof. a) Long before this date... Chaucer... had given proof of how far his genius preceded his age by several examples of composition in prose. GEORGE CRAIK, Man. of Eng. Lit., 184.

question. b) * Every crow is a swan to this writer, when Liszt is in question Lit. World.³⁾

 It was not till comparatively a late period that the general accuracy of his narrative... was brought into question. SCOTT, Pref. to 'The Bridal of Triermain'.

I shall not repeat them, lest the veracity of Antonie van der Heyden and his comrades be called into question. WASH. IRV., Dolf Heyl. (STOF., Handl., I, 134). Note. Thus also to come into question (MURRAY, s. v. question 1, d). To bring into question seems to be uncommon: Instead of to call into question we mostly find to call in question. MURRAY, s. v. call, 18.

The article is never dropped in out of the question, as in: Inviting him was out of the question. THACK., A Little Dinner at Timmins's, Ch. I, (306). Observe also: He could not lawfully be put to the question. MAC., Bacon, (371a). (= tortured.)

rein. a) * Rashleigh had long ago drawn rein. MRS. ALEX., For his Sake, II, Ch. I, 17.

Dick drew rein an instant. W. MORRIS, News from Nowhere.

¹⁾ MURRAY. ²⁾ TEN BRUG., Taalst., XI. ³⁾ TEN BRUG., Taalst., X.

 'And yet', thus gave she rein to jeer and gibe. R. BRIDGES, Eros and Psyche, No. XXI.¹)

Note. MURRAY has to give (the) rein(s) to. Apparently the ordinary construction is to give the reins to. The article and the plural form of rein seem to be regularly used in other phrases analogous to the above.

* Bulstrode holds the reins and drives him. G. ELIOT, Mid., V, Ch. XLVI, 334.

 No man ever more completely laid the reins on the neck of his inclinations. OPIE, Lect. on Art, IV, 332.¹)

 He could afford to let the reins loose at times. MRS. CRAIK, A Hero, 24.

* Sir Henry Campbell Bannerman took up the reins of office. Times, No. 1819, 894a.

 To give it that degree of prominence is to throw the reins to one's whim. M. ARNOLD, Es. Crit., II, 82.¹)

Observe also: They gave a fairly loose rein to their criticisms of the policy of the cabinet. Times.

rescue. b) He had undoubtedly been concerned in the attempt at rescue. McCARTHY, Short Hist., Ch. XXII, 317.

Note. Compare the phrase: to the rescue! as in: The Genoese are come—ho! to the rescue! BYRON, Mar. Fal., IV, II, (376b). See also 40.

rest. b) * There the wicked cease from troubling; there the weary are at rest. Bible, Job, III, 17.

Our suspicions can now be set at rest. Mrs. WOOD, East Lynne, II, 71.

Set your mind at rest. CH. KINGSLEY, Westw. Ho!, Ch. VIII.

 Alarbus goes to rest and we survive | To tremble under Titus' threatening looks. Tit. Adr., I, 1, 133.

Four years ago the mortal remains of Francis Thompson were laid to rest. T. P.'s Weekly, No. 472, 652a.

Note. At rest has no variants with a modifier before rest; but for to go to rest and to be laid to rest we frequently find, respectively: to go to one's (long) rest and to be laid to one's (long) rest: Long ere they were within sight of land, Lucy Passmore was gone to her rest. CH. KINGSLEY, Westw. Ho!, Ch. XXVII, 209b. The old warrior was laid to his long rest in the presence of only three people. Times.

He went to his long rest at Kensal Green Cemetery. Rev. of Rev.

risk. a) I scarcely know what thoughts I had; but they ran risk of being hardly more rational and healthy than that child's mind must have been. CH. BRONTË, Villette, Ch. II, 10.

I thought she ran risk of incurring such a careless, impatient repulse. ib., Ch. III, 31.

Note. The suppression of the article seems unusual and is not recorded by MURRAY, who gives to run the risk and to run a risk.

saddle. b) * Kit Norton slipped from saddle. HAL. SUTCL., Pam the Fiddler, Ch. I, 8.

 He gathered the reins into his hand, and got to saddle. ib., 16.

Get up to saddle. ib., Ch. VI, 76.

Note. MURRAY does not mention these combinations, and the dropping of the article or possessive pronoun may be rather the exception than the rule. Observe also the figurative phrases in the saddle, to get into the saddle, to cast out of saddle. MURRAY, s.v. saddle, 2.

He who hath achieved nobility by his own deeds, must ever be in the saddle. SCOTT, Abbot, Ch. III, 30.

sail. a) There was a vessel ready to make sail. WASH. IRV., Dolf Heyl. (STOF., Handl., I, 123).

Note. Thus also to cross (hoist, lower, set, shorten, strike etc.) sail. MURRAY, s.v. sail, 2.

sea. b) He is quite at sea, he does not know what else to do. G. ELIOT, Mid., IV, Ch. XL, 299.

War at sea is analogous to war on land. Westm. Gaz., No. 6288, 11*b*.

Although fairly well acquainted with "Hamlet", I found myself constantly at sea. ib., No. 6353, 7*a*.

 Clouds were far off, sailing away beyond sea. CH. BRONTË, Villette, Ch. XIV, 157.

 He made his way by sea to Naples. DICK., Cop, Ch. L, 355*b*.

Commanders who by sea or land upheld the honour of the country. Times.

* On sea... there are always a countless number of possible communications. Westm. Gaz., No. 6288, 11*b*. (Compare: Hastings was little more than four months on the sea. MAC., War. Hist., (639).

 The land-breeze had blown fresh out to sea. CH. KINGSLEY, Westw. Ho!, Ch. XVII, 1336.

A liner like the New York puts to sea with about 9000 serviettes. Titbits.

Note. MURRAY has beyond (the) sea or seas; on or upon the sea; over (the) sea; to put (put off, put out, stand out) to sea. Compare: over the sea, as in: He could look out over the sea. (JOHN OXENHAM, Great-heart Gillian, Ch. XII, 81), with: By the help of canvas wings...[he] proposes to fly oversea from Dover to Calais (H. BROOKE, Fool of Qual. IV, 2¹), and with: Now living oversea in a quiet farmstead (Daily Chron.)¹⁾

The article does not seem to be thrown out after out of: The outside light striking on her eyes, made them like green stars looking up out of the sea. JOHN OXENHAM, Great-Heart Gillian, Ch. XI, 76.

sentence. a) * You have passed sentence upon and marked with disgrace your officer Lucius Pella. HUNTER, Note to 'Jul. Cæs.', IV, 3, 2'.

 She (sc. Lady Anne Berkeley) opened the Commission, sat on the bench, impannelled the jury, and, when the verdict was given, pronounced sentence. Il. Lond. News, 1895, 786*a*.

Note. Thus, according to FLÜGEL (s. v. sentence) also to give or pass sentence (upon). Compare also: St. Ogg's passes judgment. G. ELIOT, Mill, VIII, Ch. II.

shop. a) to shut up shop. FOWLER, Concise Oxf. Dict.

Note. In the sense of to cease to do business we also find to shut up the shop: He shut up the shop altogether. THACK., Pend., I, Ch. II, 16.

And what will you do with yourself when you've shut up the shop? W. J. LOCKE, The Glory of Clem. Wing, Ch. III, 44.

shore. b) * Built upon a dismal reef of sunken rocks, some league or so from shore,... there stood a solitary lighthouse. DICK., Christm. Car., III, 75.

 Let us be thankful that we are once more on shore.

 Heaven help him!" quoth Lars Porsena, | "And bring him safe to shore. MAC., Lays, Hor., LXIII.

Then the watching boat trailed home to shore. Westm. Gaz., No. 6023, 3*b*.

sight. b) * Payable at (or after) sight.

He liked to create the impression that he could read any classical author at sight. BARRY PAIN, The Culminating Point.

No one would have believed at first sight that he was nine years older. MAR. CRAWF., Kath. Laud., I, Ch. I, 8. (Note the difference with at sight.)

The National Convention has agreed upon a scheme which at first sight seems bold and original. Rev. of Rev., CCXXVIII, 513*a*.

¹⁾ MURRAY.

 We walk by faith, not by sight. Bible, Cor., B, V, 7.

To know a man by sight.

 A ditch or a stretch of newly macadamised road comes in sight. JEROME, Idle Thoughts, VI, 73.

* They ought to be shot on sight. W. J. LOCKE, The Glory of Clem Wing, Ch. III, 48.

 Out of sight out of mind. Prov.

 Though lost to sight, to memory dear. Prov.

Till the bird was lost to sight in the clouds. Titbits.

 Long ere they were within sight of land, Lucy Passmore was gone to her rest. CH. KINGSLEY, Westw. Hol, Ch. XXVII, 209b.

Note I. At the sight and at the first sight do not lose the article, when they have distinctly the value of an adverbial clause of time, as in:

She pointed to the old goat whose legs were hobbled, and so evidently cursed her, that both girls laughed out at the sight. JOHN OXENHAM, Great-heart Gillian, Ch. II, 15. (= when they saw this.)

His timidity struck me at the first sight. GOLDSMITH, She Stoops, III, (197). (= when I first saw him.)

Observe, however, the absence of the article in the prepositional expression at sight of, as in: Sir Roderick... | Reddened at sight of Malcolm Græme. SCOTT, Lady, II, xxvii.

II. At first sight is equivalent to the idioms illustrated in:

i. Nor, strange as it may appear at a first glance, is their contentment hard to understand. Good Words. (STOF., Leesb., I, 74).

ii. It appears at the first blush that [etc.]. LYTTON, Caxtons, XII, Ch. VII, 328.

iii. The present antagonists appeared at the first glance more evenly matched than the last. Id., III, Ch. II, 137.

silence. a) i. "Could you lick three men?" I said, breaking silence. WIL. DE MORGAN, Joseph Vance, Ch. I, 2.

 The playwright (requires) us to suppose that a man would keep silence . . . about facts which could only distress temporarily a dead person's family. II. Lond. News, No. 3879, 274c.

ii. Gabriel broke the silence. HARDY, Far from the Madding Crowd, Ch. VIII, 67.

It was the Queen who broke the silence. HAL. SUTCL., Pam the Fiddler, Ch. VIII, 125.

Note. MURRAY has to keep and to break silence, not mentioning the alternative practice, which may, however, be common enough. Compare also: Still must thy sweeter sounds their silence keep? SCOTT, Lady, I, 1.

spirit. b) i. In spirit, I believe we must have met. CH. BRONTË, Jane Eyre, Ch. XXXVII, 551.

Bayham says he is disturbed in spirit. THACK., Newc., I, Ch. XXV, 281.

He felt that the party were united in spirit. Times, No. 1820, 919a.

ii. I am standing in the spirit at your elbow. DICK., Christm. Car.

Dick had turned northward across the park, but he was walking in the spirit on the mud-flats with Maisie. RUDY. KIPL., The Light that failed, Ch. V, 61.

Note. Both in spirit and in the spirit are used as opposites of in the flesh and in (the) letter, the latter being, apparently the more frequent, except when used in conjunction with either of the last-mentioned phrases. See also under letter.

sport. a) He was not willing to spoil sport. THACK., Van Fair, I, Ch. VI, 54 spur. a) i. * Few were able to make way through that iron wall; but of those few was Dunois, who, giving spur to his horse, . . . fairly broke his way into the middle of the phalanx. SCOTT, Quent. Durw., Ch. XXXVII, 461.

 Setting spurs to his horse. Black's Sir Walter Scott's Read., The Abbot, 48.

 Foker striking spurs into his pony, cantered away down Rotten Row. THACK., Pend., II, Ch. II, 28.

 Carver Doone . . . thrust spurs into his flagging horse. BLACKMORE, Lorna Doone, Ch. LXXIV, 507.

ii. He put the spurs to his horse. HALL CAINE, Deemster, Ch. VI, 52.

Note. The construction with the article seems to be unusual.

stable. b) He put the horse in stable again. HAL. SUTCL., Pam the Fiddler, Ch. V, 74.

Note. The suppression is probably rather the exception than the rule.

stake. b) So much is at stake for us in keeping the command of the sea. Westm. Gaz., No. 4925, 1c.

Note. The suppression of the article is practically regular. In the following quotation it is inserted for the sake of the metre:

Rightly to be great | Is not to stir without great argument, | But greatly to find quarrel in a straw, | When honour's at the stake. HAMLET, IV, 4, 56.

street. b) Working the steam down street as well as he. HUGHES, Tom Brown, 26.¹⁾

Note. The absence of the definite article in this combination appears to be very rare.

tale. b) The clipped crowns . . . were to be received by tale in payment of taxes. MAC., Hist., XXII, IV, 695.²⁾ tiptoe. b) All Europe was on tiptoe with expectation to see how Philip would avenge himself. MOTLEY, Rise.

He followed his cousin on tiptoe. HUGHES, Tom Brown at Oxf., Ch. XXXII. ²⁾

Note. FLÜGEL (s.v. tiptoe) has to be on tiptoe in expectation, to be a tiptoe with expectation, and to be on the tiptoe of expectation. The House is now waiting on the tiptoe of expectation for the Budget. Westm. Gaz., No. 4967, 4c.

Compare also: Do not keep expectation on the tiptoe. FLOR. NIGHTINGALE, Nursing, 38. ²⁾

Mrs. Berry left the room tiptoe. G. MEREDITH, Ord. of Rich. Fev., Ch. XXX, 246.

top. b) His head was small, and flat at top. WASH. IRV., Sketch-Bk., Leg. of Sleepy Hollow, 344.

Note. No further instances of the article being thrown out have been found.

trial. b) * I have him on trial. MRS. ALEX., For his sake, I, Ch. XV, 243.

 He was determined to put their mettle to trial. SMOL., Rod. Rand., Ch. II, 14.

Note. Thus also, according to FLÜGEL: the hour of trial, by way of trial. Compare also: His fortitude was not put to the proof. STEPH. GWENN, Thom. Moore, Ch. I, 12.

It is . . . becoming more common at our public schools for a newly appointed assistant to come at first upon probation. Times.

view. b) * The pack had vanished from view. Graph.

 Directly you hove in view. DICK., Our Mut. Friend, I, Ch. I, 5.

When any national object is in view. Times.

The Government has also in view a system of Labour Exchanges. Westm. Gaz., No. 5107, 2a.

 They passed the Headland and were lost to view. Ib., No. 6023, 3a.

Note. FLÜGEL (s.v. view) also has at first view, to take from view, in full view of the assembly, to keep in view. FOWLER mentions on view = open to inspection.

water. b) * It has kept my head above water. MRS. GASK., Life of Ch. Brontë, 306.

 Sir Roger and the Spectator go by water to Vauxhall Gardens. Spectator No. 383 (Compare: I had promised to go with him on the water to Spring-garden. Ib.)

1) ELLINGER, Verm. Beitr., 36.

2) MURRAY.

 He felt vaguely that if he sprang into the air, he would swim about in it like a fish in water. T. P.'s Christm. Numb. for 1911, 4c. (Note the different practice observed in into the air and in water).

* He took the horses to water. WASH. IRV., Sketch-Bk., XXXII, 346.

window. b) I should throw myself out of window: THACK., Van. Fair, I, Ch. XXIII, 237.

Note. The omission seems to be due to an excessive desire of brevity, and is not usual, except in the phrase to turn the house out of window (= Dutch het huis op stelten zetten). Compare: I threw out of the window everything he possessed. JAMES PAYN, Glow-Worm Tales, II, D, 55.

She looked out from the window. DICK., Christm. Car.⁵, IV, 96.

work. He promptly sets his solicitor to work. Westm. Gaz.

Note. Thus also at work. In the following quotation the use of the article is due to the distinctly specialized meaning of work:

James set himself energetically and methodically to the work. MAC., Hist., III, Ch. VIII, 138.

year. b) There's a good deal of fog always along the Thames at this time of year. W. BLACK, The New Prince Fort., Ch. XIV.

The grass is wonderfully green for this time of year. GÜNTHER, Leerb., 66.

Note. The suppression of the article seems to be confined to the collocation this or that (the) time of year.

64. Some groups of adverbial adjuncts in which the definite article has fallen out, deserve special mention :

a) Such as are made up of a preposition + the positive of an adjective totally or partially converted into a noun; e. g.: after dark; at dark, at full, at large, at present, at random; for good; in common, in full, in future, in general, in little, in particular, in short, in special; of late, of old; on high etc. For illustration see Ch. XXIX, 11; 12, c; 22, Obs. VII and VIII.

b) Such as are made up of the preposition at + superlative of an adjective partially converted into a noun; e. g.: at best, at earliest, at farthest (or furthest), at fewest, at first, at last, at latest, at least, at longest, at most, at widest, at worst, etc. Most of these are also found with the article, the two constructions sometimes expressing different shades of meaning. JESPERSEN (Mod. Eng. Gram., 6,36) ascribes the loss of the article in these combinations to phonetic decay: at representing Middle English atte = Old English at þe. For a discussion see Ch. XXX, 38.

c) Such as are made up of a preposition + superlative + noun. The suppression seems to be rather the exception than the rule. Compare 20, e and see MÄTZN., Eng. Gram.², III, 205; and especially ELLINGER, Verm. Beitr., 37 and DUBISLAW, Beitr., § 9.

Their friendship dated from earliest youth. MOTLEY, Rise, I, Ch. II, 77b.
Here was nerve that was truly wonderful, restoring calm and confidence in an assembly where men's nerves were at highest tension. Westm. Gaz., No. 4967, 4a. (Compare: It is a noticeable fact that, after a full-dress debate, when everybody's nerves have been stretched to the highest pitch, the benches next day are scantily attended. Ib., 4b.)

The realisation of this ambition has received the careful attention of inventors and students from earliest times. Rev. of Rev., CCXXIX, 30a.

From earliest times the Waganda have been a clothed people. Graph., No. 2271, 962b.

65. Sometimes it is the connection of a noun with another noun that appears to be responsible for the suppression of the definite article. Thus it is more or less regularly absent:

a) in many adverbial expressions containing two nouns both preceded by a preposition, from before the first and to, sometimes till, before the second:

1) such as denote a period:

- i. From morn to noon, from noon to dewy eve. BAIN, H. E. Gr. He was tippling and tipsy from morning till night. THACK., Pend., II, Ch. XXXVIII, 404.
Thirty masses consumed the hours from night till morn. LYTTON, Rienzi, II, Ch. VI, 109.
His mouth was filled with texts from morning to night. CH. KINGSLEY, Westw. Hol., Ch. XVI, 131b.
- ii. His eye had been on the work from commencement to close. CH. BRONTË, Villette, Ch. XIX, 247.
- iii. He stayed from first to last. Times. (Sometimes with the article: His work from the first to the last lay chiefly among the Submerged Tenth. Rev. of Rev., CCXXX, 232a.)

2) such as denote a space or distance:

- i. I'll undertake to read you the whole from beginning to end. SHER., Critic, I, 1, (450).
He made a bet of a bowl of punch that he could repeat the whole of the Daily Advertiser from beginning to end. II. Lond. News. (Sometimes with the article: I did not see a fault in any part of the play, from the beginning to the end. SHER., Critic, I, 1, (450).)
- ii. The Northwest territories have an extent from east to west of just 1100 miles. Times.
- iii. My first aim will be to clean down Moor House from chamber to cellar. CH. BRONTË, Jane Eyre, Ch. XXXIV, 479.
- iv. The Academy is Royal from flagstaff to floor. II. Lond. News., No. 1812, 712.
- v. Frank trembled from head to foot. CH. KINGSLEY, Westw. Hol., Ch. XIX, 145b.
He trembled from head to foot. T. P.'s Weekly, Christm. Numbr., for 1911, 4b.
- vi. After perusing the paper he could repeat every word of it from start to finish. II. Lond. News.
- vii. At market he went from pen to stall. THACK., Pend., I, Ch. II, 20.
- viii. From pillar to post (originally from post to pillar) MURRAY, S.V., pillar, 11.

Thus also: To live from hand to mouth: Since then you have lived from hand to mouth. EL. GLYN, The Reason Why, Ch. II, 12.

Note. The above expressions bear a close resemblance to those in which the two nouns standing after from and to (till) are identical, such as:

a) from week's end to week's end. (Ch. XXIX, 24, d).

β) He was sent from school to school. MAC., Clive, (498b).

The tale is from end to end an ingenious invention. R. ASHE KING, O1. Goldsmith, Ch. V, 53.

In these, however, there is rather an ellipsis of one... another (or the other) than of the definite article. (Ch. XL, 155-6.)

- b) in many adverbial expressions of attendant circumstances, consisting of two nouns, only the second of which is preceded by a preposition. Most of them have the value of a nominative absolute. (Ch. V, 10, b, 2.)

i. Doolan's paper was lying on the table cheek-by-jowl with Hoolan's paper. THACK., Pend., I, Ch. XXX, 325.

The Nationalists sat cheek-by-jowl with the Tories. Westm. Gaz., No. 4943, 5a.

ii. Mr. Gladstone was working hand in glove with a Russian lady against the Government of his own country." Rev. of Rev., CCXXXI, 278a.

iii. I heard that Jack was head over heels in love with me. Titbits, 1895, 9 Nov., 92c.

iv. There sat a reporter pencil in hand to take down his words. MURRAY, s. v. hand, 29.

v. He must die some day sword in hand. CH. KINGSLEY, Westw. Ho!, Ch. XIX, 147b.

Note. Also in these expressions, when the two nouns are identical, as in arm in arm, shoulder to shoulder, etc., it is more plausible to assume the ellipsis of one... another or (the other). See Ch. XL, 155-6.

II. An adverb sometimes takes the place of preposition + noun.

The Boers won hands down. Rev. of Rev., CCVII, 232b.

The straddling bowman lost his left foothold and went over head downwards. CHESTERTON, The Free Man (T. P.'s Christm. Numb. for 1911, 4c.)

- c) in many adverbial expressions containing two nouns the first preceded by various prepositions, the second by of as the substitute of a genitive. In many of these the individual meaning of the words is dimmed, so that they approach in value to prepositions. Such are on account of, in advance of, in aid of, in behalf of, on behalf of, in case of, in company of, in consequence of, in consideration of, in contravention of, under cover of, in default of, in defence of, in defiance of, in despite of, by dint of, in favour of, by force of, for (from) lack of, in lieu of, by means of, (up)on pain of, in point of, in praise of, in pursuance of, in quest of, at the rate of, by reason of, in regard of, in respect of, in right of, in search of, in spite of, in time of, by (or in) virtue of, for want of, by way of, etc.

In some, hardly differing from the above, the individual meaning of the component parts is more sensibly preserved, so that they more or less regularly retain the article before the first noun. This is the case with: on (the) charge of, at the cost of, in (the) course of, at (or by) the desire of, for the ends of, in (the) event of, with the exception of, in (the) face of, on the face of, by (the) favour of, in (the) front of, at the hand(s) of, by (the) help of, in the middle of, in the midst of, in the name of, (up)on (the) occasion of, at (or by) the order(s) of, (up)on the part of, in (the) place of, to the point of, in (the) presence of, (up)on (or under) (the) pretence of, in (the) room of, for (the) sake of, on the score of, with a, show of, by the side of, at (the) sight of, in (the) stead of, on the strength of, on the subject of, in the teeth of, on (the) top of, at the top of, at the urgency of, on the view of, by (the) vote of, in the way of, etc.

The discussion of the word-groups belonging to one and the other of the above lists, belongs rather to the chapter dealing with prepositions than to the present. For numerous illustrations see also ELLINGER, Verm. Beitr., 31.

d) in many adverbial expressions containing two (or more) nouns connected by and, which denote things often thought of together or as a whole, or which express two aspects of one and the same thing, or which are put together for the sake of assimilation or assonance or both.

1) Such as do not contain any preposition. These mostly express a relation of attendant circumstances, generally of an intensive import. In many of the combinations illustrated below, we may also assume a possessive pronoun to be understood.

bag and baggage. Here's Klaas Klimmer come in, bag and baggage, from the farm. WASH. IRV., Dolf Heyl. (STOF., Handl., I, 113). (Compare, however: Come, shepherd, let us make an honourable retreat; though not with bag and baggage, yet with scrip and scrippage. As you like it, III, 2, 170.)

body and bones. See Ch. V, 10, b, 1.

body and soul. (Ch. V, 10, b): Body, soul and mind, he belonged to Bismarck. T. P.'s Weekly, 2*b*.

field and road. See Ch. V, 10, b, 1.

hammer and tongs. She was always at it, hammer and tongs, just as hard as ever. BARRY PAIN, Miss Slater.

Before the middle of October we shall be at it, hammer and tongs. Westm. Gaz., No. 6305, 7*a*.

hand and foot. See Ch. V, 10, b, 1.

head and shoulder. See Ch. V, 10, b, 1.

heart and soul. (Ch. V; 10, b, 1): Carlo Emmanuelle III...threw himself, heart and soul, into the national movement towards liberty. RICH. BAGOT, My Italian Year, Ch. II, 23.

hip and thigh. The Saxons would have been smitten, hip and thigh. WALT. BESANT, London, I, 30.

horse and foot. See Ch. V, 10, b, 1.

lock, stock and barrel. He repudiated Protection and Food taxes, lock, stock and barrel. Rev. of Rev., No. CXCVI, 341*b*.

neck and crop. See Ch. V, 10, b, 1.

root and branch. See Ch. V, 10, b, 1.

tooth and nail. As they had fasted since the middle of the day, they did no great violence to their own inclinations in falling on it (sc. the supper), tooth and nail. DICK., Chuz., Ch. XLIII, 333*b*.

I go at it, tooth and nail. Id., Cop., Ch. XLII.

The whole profession in Middlemarch have set themselves, tooth and nail, against the Hospital. G. ELIOT, V, Mid., Ch. XLIV, 325.

Note. I. Sometimes we find two or more of these intensive combinations accumulated together.

To the good cause I devote thee, flesh and fell, sinew and limb, body and soul. SCOTT, Abbot, Ch. X, 94.

Note. There is no intensive import when the the nouns are connected by or, as in:

Only this I know, | That whatsoever evil happen to me, | I seem to suffer nothing, heart or limb. TEN., Mar. of Ger., 472.

III. When the two nouns are identical, as in neck and neck, we may assume the ellipsis to be that of one... the other (Ch. XL, 155-6.)

- 2) such as have a preposition before the first noun, that before the second being mostly suppressed as being identical with the preceding.

body and soul. The reaction has been trying to body and soul. T. P.'s Weekly, No. 478, 3b. (Also soul and body), see below.)

brow and crown. He coloured over brow and crown. G. ELIOT, Adam Bede, Ch. I, 3.

Church and State. "Only Scotchmen need apply" seems to be written up over most of the highest offices alike in Church and State. Rev. of Rev., CCXXIII, 517a.

finger and thumb. (This) can be done mechanically by separating the lips with finger and thumb. SWEET, The Sounds of Eng., § 31.

fire and sword. They had not long since ravaged Romagna with fire and sword. LYTON, Rienzi, I, Ch. II, 20. (= Dutch te vuur en te zwaard.)

flood and field. The holiday season is in full swing and has so far been marked by more than its usual crop of accidents by flood and field. Times.

head and ears. He's over head and ears in debt. THACK., Van Fair, I, Ch. XI, 106.

land and sea. I sought you over land and sea. CH. KINGSLEY, Westw. Hol., Ch. XIX, 146b.

lock and key. Having put under lock and key the greater number of his own staff, he (sc. Huerta) is as near an absolute dictator as a man can be. Westm. Gaz., No. 6377, 2a.

sea and land. Within twenty-four hours they might be at war on sea and land all round the world with the German Empire. Rev. of Rev., CCXXVIII, 505b.

soul and body. The friar was famous for his skill administering to both soul and body. WASH. IRV., Sketch-Bk., Spectre Brideg., 157. (Also body and soul, see above.)

Note I. Repetition of the preposition between is, of course, out of the question.

actor and manager. There was always a certain sympathy between actor and manager, which there can never be between actor and syndicate. T. P.'s Weekly, No. 474, 715a.

body and spirit. The interaction between body and spirit is understood, or at least apprehended (for comprehended it cannot be), as never it was before. FRANCIS THOMPSON, Health and Holiness, 27.

devil and deep sea. Here we are between devil and deep sea. Westm. Gaz., No. 6288, 7b. (The suppression of the article is rare, no instances being given by MURRAY.)

officers and men. Hence...that strong fellow feeling between officers and men. CH. KINGSLEY, Westw. Hol., Ch. XX, 151a.

stem and stern. I would serve the best man so that ever stepped between stem and stern. SMOL., Rod. Rand., Ch. VI, 33. (Compare: In an instant a storm of bar and chain-shot...swept the proud Don from stem to stern. CH. KINGSLEY, Westw. Ho!, Ch. XX, 151*b*.)

II. Also or sometimes figures in such combinations.

tale or history. Ay me! for aught that I could ever read | Could ever hear by tale or history, | The course of true love never did run smooth. Mids., I, 1, 133.

III. Or varies with and in the expression by hook or crook, the preposition being mostly repeated before the second noun.

Do come, by hook or by crook. G. ELIOT, Life, I, 112.¹⁾

In old days men managed, by hook or crook, to publish Scandals of the Court or Horrible Revelations of High Life. II. Lond. News, No. 3684, A, 741. By hook and by crook he managed to raise the necessary funds. JOHN OXENHAM, Great-heart Gillian, Ch. XVI, 119.

66. a) The definite article is mostly dropped before headings in books, essays and other writings.

i. Preface, Prologue, Proem, Introduction, Advertisement, Epilogue, Biographical Sketch, State of England in 1685 (MACAULAY), History of England before the Restoration (id.), Fall of the Melbourne Ministry (M'CARTHY), Fall of the Great Administration (id.), Rise of Municipal Power (MOTLEY), Insurrection at Ghent (id.), Declaration of War by England (id.), Assault upon the City (id.), Extravagance of the Aristocracy (id.), Death of the Grand Commander (id.), Enemy active (TIMES), Prince's Escape (id.).

ii. The Life of Lord Byron (LYTTON), The Afghan War (M'CARTHY), The Indian Mutiny (id.), The Conspiracy Bill (id.), The Civil War in America (id.), The Congress of Berlin (id.).

Note. Almost regularly: The end.

b) Similarly the article is usually suppressed in the language of stage-directions.

Exit into garden. Goes towards desk and puts in bundle. Looking at watch.

SUPPRESSION OF THE INDEFINITE ARTICLE.

67. The indefinite article in the sense of a weak some is apt to be dropped after certain prepositions. For practical purposes the distinction between concrete and abstract nouns is here disregarded. Before the latter there is often, strictly speaking, no need for the indefinite article, so that the term suppression is sometimes out of place.

The indefinite article is dispensed with after:

by, practically regularly when followed by the name of a means of transmission, conveyance or mode of locomotion, etc., as in:

to send (dispatch, forward, etc.), to receive obtain, get etc.), to travel (go, come, etc.) by coach (steamer, omnibus, etc.); to learn (tell, etc.) by letter. She came from the station by 'bus. T. P.'s Weekly, Christm. Num. for 1911, 52*a*.

Having written his letter and despatched it by express [etc.]. EL. GLYN, The Reason why, Ch. XXIV, 218.

¹⁾ MURRAY.

Note. In these collocations we may also sometimes assume the suppression of the definite article, whether specializing or generalizing, or even of a possessive or demonstrative pronoun.

in, especially before such nouns as fashion, style, etc., otherwise only by way of exception.

Mr. Southey brings to the task two faculties which were never, we believe, vouchsafed in measure so copious to any human being, (Mac., Southey, 98b.) In quite remarkable fashion Willie's wish came to be realized. Eng. Rev., No. 59, 443.

The Kaiser...has in very characteristic fashion drawn public attention to the misgivings and apprehensions which prevail in military circles in Germany. Rev. of Rev., CCXXX, 97a.

Under the shock of the waves the external form of marine plants is modified in characteristic fashion. Westm. Gaz., No. 6371, 17a.

Show me a man who has never done that which he ought not to have done, and you will show me...an angel masquerading in moral vesture. W. J. LOCKE, The Glory of Clem. Wing, Ch. III, 40.

He is in frock coat. She is in smart afternoon reception-gown. MRS. BARRY PAIN, The Reason Why, (37).

They had got through the rejoicings in fine style. EL. GLYN, The Reason why, Ch. XXXVIII, 356.

They never allowed their own minds to be seen in undress. R. ASHE KING, Ol. Goldsmith, Ch. XXV, 186. (Thus almost regularly. But DICKENS, Little Dorrit, Ch. IX, 47b has: She was in an undress. Compare also: an officer in undress uniform. DICK., Pickw., Ch. II, 16.)

Note. Observe especially the following collocations with the article, the Dutch equivalents of which mostly stand without it:

So he came in for the following speech, delivered in a loud bold voice. CH. KINGSLEY, Westw. Hol., Ch. I, 2a.

She told him in a low but resolute voice that Doctor James Brown had offered her marriage. MRS. GASK, Cranford.

Compare: If the Doctor...had said in awful voice, "Boy, take down your pant * * *. THACK., Van. Fair, I, Ch. II, 9.

of, a) often when preceded by kind (sort), manner or type:

i. * He was anxious to know what kind of room it was. DICK., Crism. Car. 5, IV, 95.

You're not the kind of man I wanted at all. BERTHA MOORE, Which is it? One has only to realise what kind of man Goldsmith was. R. ASHE KING, Ol. Goldsmith, Introd., 18.

 Sometimes I resigned myself to endeavouring to recall what sort of boy I used to be, before I bit Mr. Murdstone. DICK., Cop., Ch. V, 36.

He has been speculating as to what sort of place Rugby is. HUGHES, Tom Brown.

He is a sort of fellow that's certain to make friends. MRS. ALEXANDER, A Life Int., I, Ch. III, 61.

Gustavus Adolphus is a very good sort of dog. JEROME, Idle Thoughts, VIII, 119.

Note the common idiom that sort of thing (= Dutch zoo iets).

 What manner of man? As you like it, III, 2, 215.

The great calamity which had fallen on Argyle had this advantage, that it enabled him to show...what manner of man he was. MAC., Hist., III, Ch. V, 130.

That will suffice to indicate the manner of man he was. Rev. of Rev., CCXXX, 133a.

* Yet another type of man . . . refrain from seeking any outlet for mere physical desires from what I only know how to describe as "a finer sexual fastidiousness." Eng. Rev., No. 58, 272.

Had he been an ordinary type of official, he might well have delayed the progress of telegraphy and telephony in this country. Westm. Gaz., No. 6377, 2c.

- ii. * What kind of a place is this Bath? SHERIDAN, Riv., I, 2.

It is some kind of a joke. EL. GLYN, The Reason why, Ch. I, 6.

What kind of a nature could his wife have, to be so absolutely mute, and unresponsive? Ib., Ch. XX, 181.

 And the wound was healed in a sort of a way. Mrs. CRAIK, The Laurel Bush, II, 49.

What sort of a man is he? Oh, a very good sort of fellow. SWEET, Elem. Buch, § 26. (Note the varied practice.)

They did not know what sort of a little fellow had come among them. Miss BURN., Little Lord, Ch. IV, 61.

What a very odd sort of a man! JEROME, Paul Kelter, Ch. II, 22b.

Note I. It is interesting to compare a kind of gentleman and a gentleman of a kind (8, b). "The former expresses approach to the type, admitting failure to reach it, while the latter emphasizes the non-typical position of the individual. Hence, a kind of may be used as a saving qualification, as in a kind of knave". MURRAY, s. v. kind, 14, c.

II. Here mention may also be made of the curious phrase of sorts, as illustrated in:

He was shot at Monte Carlo in a fray of sorts. EL. GLYN, The Reason why, Ch. XXIV, 243.

About this phrase a correspondent writes in the Westm. Gaz., No. 6353, 4a: "Then came the plague of the expression of sorts, from "which we are not yet free. He became an errand-boy of sorts. I lately "read He had a religion of sorts, He was a Tory of sorts, and so on "for ever and everywhere. Now what conceivable advantage has of "sorts over a sort of? If I say a sort of Tory, that is intelligible, "for the class contains varieties; but a Tory of sorts should mean "only one who should combine various varieties of opinion which "are always found separate." A week later another correspondent writes: "Again an errand-boy of sorts is different from a sort of errand-boy. A King's messenger is a sort of errand-boy. The obliging youth to whom you give sixpence for taking a note to a friend, and who tears the note up and spends the money, is an errand-boy of sorts."

- b) frequently when used in a description of the physical, mental, moral or social circumstances of a person, animal or thing.

i. These refugees were in general men of fiery temper and weak judgment. MAC., Hist., II, Ch. V, 94.

Wild animals of large size were then far more numerous than at present. Ib., I, Ch. III, 307.

He was of good birth. THACK., Pend., I, Ch. II, 18.

At first he had seemed to her like a being from another world and of superior make. JOHN OXENHAM. Great-heart Gillian, Ch. VIII, 60.

In works of art he was represented as a young and handsome man of strong sinewy frame. NETTLESHIP, Dict. Clas. Antiq., s. v. Ares.

Kiréef was a man of great stature. Rev. of Rev., CCXXXI, 277a.

He was a man of unnatural stature. Times, No. 1818, 881b.

The whole service was conducted by one of them, a man of rather Caucasian features, but of dark brown tint. Westm. Gaz., No. 4967, 13a.

He was of good family. WIL. J. LOCKE, The Glory of Clem. Wing, Ch. I, II.

He was a man of wide culture. Ib., Ch. II, 34.

The room was of medium size. KATH. CECIL THURSTON, John Chilcote M. P., Ch. XXI, 224.

- ii. The boy was naturally of an undaunted temper. SCOTT, Abbot, Ch. II, 19. His present demeanour was of a graver and more determined character. Ib., Ch. V, 56.

The clerk... tried to warm himself at the candle; in which effort, not being a man of a strong imagination, he failed. DICK., Christm. Car., I, 9.

His hair was of a healthy brown colour. THACK., Pend., I, Ch. III, 32.

Harry Webb was a boy of a timid and gentle disposition. SWEET, Old Chapel.

with, a) sometimes when part of an adverbial adjunct of instrumentality or attendant circumstances:

- i. Though Miss Jessie plucked at my gown, and even looked up with begging eye, I durst not refuse to go where Miss Jenkyns asked. Mrs. GASK, Cranf., 26, 1)

A youth entered Mr. Notley's front garden with firm step. T. P.'s Weekly, No. 489, 365a.

A country house, with ample garden, was the proprietor's passion! DIXON, Life of Wil. Penn, II, 137. 1)

The pairs of young men and maidens who flaunted their foolish happiness in places of public resort, she regarded with misanthropic eye. W. J. LOCKE, The Glory of Clem. Wing, Ch. II, 14.

- ii. Roland Græme entered the apartment with a loftier mien and somewhat a higher colour than his wont. SCOTT, Abbot, Ch. V, 56.

They paced through several winding passages and waste apartments with a very slow step. Ib., Ch. X, 96.

Rip had but one question more to ask, but he put it with a faltering voice. WASH. IRV., Sketch-Bk., Rip van Winkle.

She set to work every morning at her daily business with a dogged persistence. MRS. CRAIK, The Laurel Bush, 82.

With a passionate fidelity she remembered all Robert Roy's goodness. Ib., 99. Every sentence was uttered with an obvious sincerity and feeling. Times, No. 1823, 974b.

I will give you a charming wife with a fortune. EL. GLYN, The Reason why, Ch. I, 6.

Observe the varied practice in:

Not as some do with angry grief or futile resistance, but with a quick patience, so complete that only a very quick eye would have found out that she was suffering at all. MRS. CRAIK, The Laurel Bush, 52.

- b) sometimes when used in a description of the physical, mental or moral qualities of a person, animal or thing.

- i. He was a tall, powerfully-built man of forty-five, with erect military carriage, and a face still preserving much of the freshness of youth. BUCHANAN, That Winter Night, Ch. I, 2.

In works of art Achilles was represented as similar to Ares, with magnificent physique, and hair bristling up like a mane. NETTLESHIP, Dict. Clas. Antiq., s.v. Achilles.

- ii. He was a collected, quiet little gentleman in black stockings with a bald head. THACK., Pend., I, Ch. II, 18.

1) ELLINGER, Verm. Beitr., 39.

Ephraim Quixtus, Ph. D., was a tall gaunt man of forty, with a sallow complexion. W. J. LOCKE, The Glory of Clem. Wing, Ch. II, 22. His companion is a well-wrapped clergyman of medium height and stoutish build, with a pleasant, rosy face. GALSWORTHY, The Pigeon, I, (2). Her face... is decided and sincere, with deep-set eyes, and a capable well-shaped forehead. Ib.

Note. The suppression is common enough in enumerations. (69.)

As he stands there with beating heart and kindling eye,... he is a symbol... of brave young England. CH. KINGSLEY, Westw. Ho!, Ch. I, 5a.

68. Of particular interest is the suppression of the indefinite article in the sense of a weak any.

Thus it is wanting:

a) frequently in sentences with sentence-modifying ever or ever that suggest some such phrase as Was there ever a man that, etc. or There never was a man that, etc. (31, b.) The noun before which the article is omitted, is mostly found in the function of the subject, occasionally in that of the object. Sometimes both the subject and the object drop the article. The idiom here referred to is also met with in French, as in: Jamais écrivain ne peignit mieux ses contemporains; and in Dutch, as in: Nooit heeft grooter schelm op een troon gezeten.

The omission of the article seems to give an emotional colouring to these utterances, possibly also it is occasioned, at least in the Germanic languages, by a desire to give a rhythmical flow to the sentence.

i. * Had ever man so hopeful a pupil as mine? FARQUHAR, The Beaux' Stratagem, II, 3, (383).

Did ever mortal hear of a man's virtue? FIELD., Jos. Andr., I, Ch. VIII, 18.

Was ever man so crossed as I am? SHER., School for Scand., III, 1, (391).

Did ever woman since the creation of the world, interrupt a man with such a silly question? STERNE, Tristram Shandy, I.

I have seen him, within an hour of eternity, sleeping as sweetly as ever man did. MAC., Hist., II, Ch. V, 133.

If ever poet were a master of phrasing, he was so. A. C. BRADLEY, Com. on TEN., In Memoriam, Ch. VI, 75.

 Julia sate within as pretty a bower | As e'er held houri in that heathenish heaven | Described by Mahomet. BYRON, Don Juan, I, CIV.

ii. * QUEEN ELIZ. Was never widow had so dear a loss! — CHILDREN. Were never orphans had so dear a loss! — DUCH. Was never mother had so dear a loss! RICH. III, II, 2, 78.

And ne'er did Grecian chisel trace | A nymph, a Naiad, or a Grace | Of finer form or lovelier face! SCOTT, Lady, I, XVIII.

Never man had a more unsentimental mother than mine. CH. BRONTË, Villette, Ch. XX, 264.

Locke maintained such steady silence and composure as forced the tools of power to own with vexation that never man was so complete a master of his tongue and of his passions. MAC., Hist., II, Ch. V, 115.

Never yet | Was noble man but made ignoble talk. TEN., Lanc. and E.L., 1081.

Girl never breathed to rival such a rose; ' Rose never blew that equal'd such a bud. Id., Queen Mary, III, 3, (608a).

On his (sc. Wellington's) death it (sc. the nation) tried to give him such a public funeral as hero never had. MCCARTHY, Short Hist., Ch. X, 126.

Never had heart felt more heavy, never had existence felt more unbearable, than Donovan's. EDNA LYALL, Donovan, I, 86.

The King, in consideration of Whittington's merit, said, "Never had prince such a subject"; which being told to Whittington at the table, he replied, "Never had subject such a king." ANDREW LANG, Blue Fairy Book.

 Since I could distinguish betwixt a benefit and an injury, I never found man that knew how to love himself. Oth., I, 3, 315.

 Faint heart never won fair lady. Prov.

Note. The following quotations show that the omission is not regular.

i. I believe she regards him with as true a love as ever a girl felt for a man. TROL., Framl. Pars., Ch. XLI, 401.

ii. * Never was a father more idolized by his children than was Lyman Beecher. T. P.'s Weekly, No. 483, 163a.

Never was a man more exquisitely sensitive to snubs, slights and insults than Goldsmith. R. ASHE KING, Ol. Goldsmith, Ch. II, 20.

 On a fairer face thine eye never rested. SCOTT, Abbot, Ch. X, 94.

II. Conversely the omission is sometimes extended to sentences of a similar import not containing either ever or never.

When did Knight of Provence avoid his foe, or forsake his love? LYTTON, Rienzi, III, Ch. II, 130.

When was age so crammed with menace? TEN., Locksley Hall, sixty years after.¹⁾

Fully a century has passed, since mason's hand has touched it. HUNGERFORD, Molly Bawn, I, 152.¹⁾

III. The indefinite article is not driven out by ever or never, when the tenor of the sentence is different from that of the above quotations.

* Never was an Englishman more at home than when he took his ease in his inn. MACAULAY.

Never was there a better chance for you. ROORDA, Dutch and Eng. Comp., § 20.

 A better man Rome never lost. LYTTON, Rienzi, V, Ch. III, 207.

IV. Here mention may also be made of ever (e'er) a(n) in the sense of strong any (at all), and of never (ne'er) (a)n, the corresponding negative, the former now only archaic or vulgar, though the latter is in good colloquial use. MURRAY, s. v. ever, 8; ne'er a; never, I, 3; FRANZ, *Shak. Gram.*², § 272.

i. And I'd foot it with e'er a captain in the country. SHERIDAN, Riv., III, 4. He knows every path and alley in the woods as well as e'er a hunter who frequents them. SCOTT, Ivanhoe, Ch. XL, 415.

Fra Moreale seems as much a bugbear to you as to e'er a mother in Rome. LYTTON, Rienzi, Ch. I, 149.

ii. Have we ne'er a poulterer among us? FARQUHAR, The Recruiting Officer, V, 4, (338).

Then by the Mass, sir! I would do no such thing — ne'er a Sir Lucius o'Trigger should make me fight. SHERIDAN, Riv., IV, 1.

Now my Lady...differs therein from my Lord, who loves never a bone in his skin. SCOTT, Abbot, Ch. IV, 44.

And never a saint took pity on | My soul in agony. COLERIDGE, Anc. Mar., IV, III. Never a day passed, but that cruel words were spoken between them. Graph.

1) DUBISLAV, Beiträge, § 8.

- b) sometimes in adverbial clauses which form the second member of comparisons, i. e. such as are introduced by either than or as, and are more or less like those with ever mentioned under a). Indeed, this adverb may occasionally be met with in them. The idiom seems to have been more common in Early Modern English than it is now. Compare also FRANZ, *Shak. Gram.*², § 267; ELLINGER, Verm. Beitr., 40; id. Eng. Stud., XXXI.
- i. Your tongue's sweet air | More tuneable than lark to shepherd's ear. MIDS., I, 1, 183.
Though home is a name, a word, it is a strong one; stronger than magician ever spoke, or spirit answered to, in strongest conjuration. DICK., Chuz., Ch. XXXV, 278.
 - ii. He gives not only a good dinner, but as dear a one as heart can desire. THACK., Men's Wives, Ch. II, (325).
I slept at Carlow as sound as man could sleep. THACK., Barry Lyndon, Ch. III, 49.
He led her to an old-fashioned house, almost as small as house could be. MRS. GASK., Mary Barton, Ch. XXXI, 293.
They came into that wild Black Sea, and saw it stretching out before them, without a shore, as far as eye could see. CH. KINGSLEY, The Heroes, II, iv, 149.
He was as near perfection as mortal man could be. ANDREW LANG, Tennyson, Ch. II, 11.
- c) Sometimes in adnominal clauses modifying either a noun preceded by a superlative, or some such word(-group) as all, anything, nothing, no + noun. The suppression is especially frequent before the noun mortal or before the adjective mortal + noun. See d).
- i. He is thus attempting the greatest task to which poet or philosopher can devote himself. STEPHEN, Pope, 161.¹
There was the chance of being blown up in some of the many experiments which Martin was always trying, with the most wondrous results that mortal boy ever heard of. HUGHES, Tom Brown, II, Ch. III, 237.
 - ii. * All that servant ought to be. SHER. KNOWLES, Hunch., II, 3.²
Mc. Potts is doing all that mortal man can do. HUNGERFORD, Molly Bawn, I, 278.¹
 'It' and 'which' may refer to anything that heart of man can conceive. HODGSON, Errors, 8, 74.
 I hope there may be no degree of age or experience to which mortal may attain, when he shall become such a glum philosopher, as not to be pleased by the sight of happy youth. THACK., Pend., I, Ch. XVII, 173.
- d) Sometimes before the noun mortal or the adjective mortal + noun, in other connections than that mentioned under c).
- i. Nowhere is mortal so much alone as in the heart of a great city. Rev. of Rev.
 - ii. Their forms were invisible to mortal eye. MAC., Hist., I, Ch. I, 5.
It was long indeed since an English sovereign had knelt to mortal man. ib., III, Ch. VIII, 97.
- e) Sometimes after the preposition without.
- i. Here you see an honest young soldier, who is willing to take her without fortune. GOLDSMITH, Vic., Ch. XXXI, (470).
He inherited ... her health without flaw. CH. BRONTË, Villette, Ch. I, 2.

The polite pupil was scarcely gone, when, unceremoniously, without tap in burst a second intruder. Ib., Ch. XXI, 295.

There is booty without end. CH. KINGSLEY, Westw. Hol., Ch. XIX, 144b. (Probably regularly in this combination from association with the liturgical expression: world without end, amen.)

A month which was, without exception, the most miserable I have ever spent. JEROME, Idle Thoughts, VI, 73.

Modern Italy, although a monarchy, is without doubt, the most genuinely democratic of the great countries of Europe. RICH. BAGOT, My Italian Year, Ch. II, 20.

My feelings have been outraged times without number. Westm. Gaz., No. 6383, 4c.

So we were told times without number. Rev. of Rev., CCXXVIII, 520a. (Probably regularly in this combination.)

Sunday passed off without incident in San Sebastian. Westm. Gaz., No. 5382, 1b.

The autumn hues of some of the fruit-trees are almost without rival. Ib., No. 6065, 2c.

The rest (sc. of the Tory newspapers), without exception, found it (sc. Lloyd George's campaign) perilously exciting. Ib., No. 6365, 1b.

The Lansburg incident in the House last week is not without precedent. T. P.'s Weekly, No. 504, 3b.

- ii. I see a vacant seat...and a crutch without an owner. DICK., *Christm. Car.*⁵, III, 70.

His colour changed though, when without a pause it came on through the heavy door. Ib., I, 22.

A novel without a hero. THACK., Van Fair.

When we are struck at without a reason, we should strike back very hard. CH. BRONTË, Jane Eyre, Ch. VI, 64.

Without a military education of any sort Clive led an army like an experienced officer. MAC., Clive, (508b).

There without a doubt, diplomacy will step in. Eng. Rev., 1912, Nov., 623.

He does nothing without a reason. MARJ. BOWEN, I will maintain, I, Ch. X, 116.

Note I. The same variable practice may be observed after beyond, when used in the sense of without.

- i. (These) passages ... prove beyond doubt that a considerable period of time must have elapsed at Cyprus between the landing of Othello, and Desdemona's death. DEIGHTON, Introd. to 'Othello', 13.

With it came the desire ... to know beyond question whether her smiling unconcern meant malice or entertainment. KATH. CECIL THURSTON, John Chilcote, M. P., Ch. XXVIII, 309.

- ii. The appointment ... was cancelled beyond a doubt, because of Goldsmith's incompetence. R. ASHE KING, Ol. Goldsmith, Ch. VII, 87.

The loyalty of the people is beyond a question. MARJ. BOWEN, I will maintain, I, Ch. VI, 66.

II. In the following quotations the indefinite article could not be dispensed with, as being equivalent to the numeral one (8, a, 2):

England was left without an ally save Spain. GREEN, Short Hist., Ch. VII, § 3, 370.

Balliol himself surrendered and passed without a blow from his throne to an English prison. Ib., Ch. IV, § 6, 216.

Balliol found himself at last without an adherent. Ib.

III. It is hardly necessary to observe that in enumerations the suppression is quite usual.

The country lay helpless without army or fleet, or the means of manning one. GREEN, Short Hist., Ch. VII, § 3, 370.

It is the exception to see a man without knife and pistol. ALG. BLACKWOOD, Impressions at Batoum (Westm. Gaz., No. 5335, 2c).

IV. In some of the sentences mentioned under a), b), c) and d) the suppressed article may also be apprehended to be the generalizing definite article (7, c, Note II). Thus, for example, in:

Faint heart never won fair lady. PROV.

They saw it (sc. the Black Sea) stretching out before them, without a shore, as far as eye could see. CH. KINGSLEY, The Heroes, II, IV, 149.

He is thus attempting the greatest task to which poet or philosopher can devote himself. STEPHEN, Pope, 161.¹⁾

Their forms were invisible to mortal eye. MAC., Hist., I, Ch. I, 5.

V. Sometimes a sentence is ambiguous, the sense varying according as the indefinite article or the generalizing definite article is supposed to be understood.

Was ever selfish man so called upon to make a greater sacrifice? THACK., Pend., I, Ch. XVIII, 182.

69. As in Dutch, both the definite and the indefinite article are often suppressed in enumerations, generally to give an emotional colouring to the discourse. Sometimes it is doubtful whether it is the generalizing definite or the indefinite article that has fallen out. (7). Many instances have already been given incidentally in the preceding pages of this chapter, and also in Ch. XXIX, 25; 26, a. We add the following:

i. It was delightful to hear . . . the impracticable feats they were to perform during their six weeks' emancipation from the abhorred thralldom of book, birch, and pedagogue. WASH. IRV., Sketch-Bk., XX, 187.

Pen smoked and joked with guard and fellow-passengers and people along the familiar road. THACK., Pend., I, Ch. XXVIII, 297.

This slender line having to make its way through the forest will be subject to endless attacks in front, in rear, in flank. ID., Virg., Ch. LI, 528.

She sincerely loved and respected the former schoolmistress, to whom she was now become companion and friend. MRS. GASK., Life of Charl. Brontë, 102.

Then stout mother and thin daughter took their leave. G. MOORE, A Drama in Muslin, 111.

The light which came from her, was like the light of sun, moon, and stars rolled into one. BOOKS for the Bairns, LVI, 37a.

ii. That he should really have expected so high-minded a lady to look with favour upon one who is a compound of fool, prodigal, and coward, is hardly to be supposed. DEIGHTON, Introd. to 'Twelfth Night,' 15. Whether as man, as orator or as statesman, Mr. Bright will be long and deeply lamented by the whole of the Anglo-Saxon race. GRAPH.

That he (sc. Leonardo da Vinci) was painter, architect, and sculptor was nothing unusual in the age of Raphael and Michelangelo. But he was musician, engineer, mechanic and a profound and exact investigator into natural science as well. TIMES, No. 1808, 679b.

Some forty others were injured in greater or less degree. 11. LOND. NEWS, No. 3777, 412.

¹⁾ DUBISLAW, Beiträge, § 8.

Note I. Some combinations have become traditional. Many have already been mentioned in 65. Also the following deserve attention:

chapter and verse. People say what they like to say, not what they have chapter and verse for. G. ELIOT, Mid., V, Ch. XLIX, 359.

He was fifty-five, if he was a day. Miss Tabitha could have given you, chapter and verse for it in a second. JOHN OXENHAM, The Simple Beguiler (SWAEN, Selection, II, 138).

Heaven and earth. There are more things in Heaven and earth, Horatio, than are dreamt of in your philosophy. HAMLET, I, 5, 166.

I hold to my judge ... to the King of Heaven and earth. GREEN.¹⁾

He would move Heaven and earth to ferret out a mystery. ALVAREZ, Mexican Bill, 24.

time and tide. Time and tide wait (or tarry) for no man. PROV.

town and country. I see Mr. Beauchamp very often both in town and country. GOLDSMITH (R. ASHE KING, Ol. Goldsmith, Ch. XX, 227).

Sold by all booksellers and newsmen in town and country. ATHEN., No. 4421.

II. Sometimes the singular is made to express a plural notion. (Ch. XXV, 35.)

What British and Boer have done for South Africa, Liberal and Unionist will yet have to do for this country. WESTM. GAZ., No. 5173, 5b.

The huge many-coloured morning clouds went to and fro in the shapes of dragon or of cherub. CHESTERTON, The Free Man (T. P.'s Christm. Num b. for 1911, 4b).

His intense love for bird and beast is well-known. W. L. PHELPS, Es: on Mod. Nov., Ch. II, 53.

70. Also in epigrammatic language, especially when two or more nouns, in whatever grammatical function, express a kind of antithesis, the article, whether definite or indefinite, is frequently dispensed with. Some of the epigrammatic sayings here following have the nature of proverbs. In not a few the omission of the article makes for rhythm.

i. Though body be strong, mind is stronger. CH. KINGSLEY, Hereward, Ch. XV, 66b.

We can no longer set body against spirit and let them come to grips after the light-hearted fashion of our ancestors. FRANCIS THOMPSON, Health and Holiness, 30.

Jew conquered Roman, as Roman had conquered East and West. WILLIAM BARRY, The Papacy, Prol., 11.

Zara, freed at last from eye of friend or maid, collapsed on to the white bearskin in front of the fire again. EL. GLYN, The Reason why, Ch. XXXII 302.

ii. You will never lose fair lady for faint heart! SCOTT, Quent. Durw., Ch. XXXI, 405.

A sinful heart makes feeble hand. PROV.

Use is second nature. ID.

I forbid you to put pen to paper. THACK., Van. Fair, III, Ch. V, 54.

For manners are not idle, but the fruit | Of loyal nature, and of noble mind. TEN., Guin., 333.

It seems that when Turk meets Italian, there is no tug-of-war, but only a worse kind of peace. ATHEN., No. 4433, 404b.

¹⁾ FOELS.—KOCH, Wis. Gram., § 267.

71. Finally we subjoin some instances of the suppression of the article through the influence of metre. See also 9, g; 12, Note II; 31, b, Note III; 33, a, Note III; 35, a, c; 47, Note IV.

O Rome! I make thee promise; | If the redress will follow, thou receivest | Thy full petition at the hand of Brutus! JUL. CÆS., II, 1, 58. (Ordinary practice has to make a promise; see § 73, s. v. promise.)

But, with an angry wafture of your hand, | (You) gave sign for me to leave you. IB., II, 1, 247. (Ordinary practice has to make a sign.)

Some beauties yet no precepts can declare, | For there's a happiness as well as care. POPE, ES. ON CRIT., I, 142. (Note the varied practice.)

Yet pass we that; | the war and chase | Give little choice of resting place. SCOTT, LADY, I, xvi. (In ordinary prose war stands without, chase with the article.)

When late I left Caerleon, our great Queen | ... Made promise, | that whatever bride I brought, | Herself would clothe her like the sun in Heaven. TEN., MAR. OF GER., 783. (See above.)

I doubted whether daughter's tenderness, | Or easy nature, might not let itself | Be moulded by your wishes for her weal. IB., 797.

VACILLATION BETWEEN THE DEFINITE AND THE INDEFINITE ARTICLE.

72. In certain combinations either article may be expected, often with equal propriety, with the frequent result that there is some vacillation in the choice, and that another article is used, or preferred, in Dutch than in English.

73. a) There is often a distinct tendency to use the indefinite article in English, notwithstanding the fact that the noun is accompanied by a specializing adjunct, or that such an adjunct can be supplied from the context.

The following instances are intended to bring out this tendency. Some quotations with the definite article, and a few without either article, are added for comparison and to show the irregularity and arbitrariness of usage. It may not be superfluous to caution the reader that absence of illustration of either practice must not be considered as evidence that it is non-existent, rare or even infrequent.

charge. Breakfast, dinner and supper are provided at a charge of 11 d. per day. TIMES.

chance. i. He stands a chance of rushing unaneled upon purgatory. LYTTON, Rienzi, II, Ch. II, 83.

If I had a chance to better myself where I am going, I would go with a good will. STEV., Kidnapped, 10.

If you have a chance of founding a home for yourself, do not throw it lightly aside. DOR. GERARD, Etern. Woman, Ch. XI.

The War-Office saw a chance to do a little cheese-paring at their expense. TIMES.

All the more intelligent and able boys had a chance of securing good openings. Westm. Gaz., No. 5317, 5a.

- ii. Did you ever hear of anyone who would not escape from prison, if he had the chance? MAR. CRAWF., Tale of a Lonely Parish, Ch. XIII, 102.

I'll hit harder this time, if Heaven gives me the chance. CH. READE, The Cloister and the Hearth, Ch. XX, 81.

Give them the chance of settling everything themselves. EL. GLYN, The Reason why, Ch. XII, 111.

He felt glad he had not given her the chance to snub him again. ib., Ch. XX, 181.

condition. And for the wits, I'm sure I am in a condition to be even with them. CONGREVE, Love for Love, I, 1, (201).

conviction. She felt a conviction that she was hastening to the tomb. WASH. IRV., Sketch-Bk., XXX, 328.

desire. i. I had a desire to see the old family seat of the Lucys. WASH. IRV., Sketch-Bk., XXVI, 264.

I have had a great desire to know something more about her. DICK., Little Dorrit, Ch. VIII, 41a.

I had a new pride in my room after his approval of them, and burned with a desire to develop their utmost resources. Id., Cop., Ch. XXIV, 178b.

He expressed a desire to slumber. W. J. LOCKE, Glory of Clem. Wing, ii. He had rowed the skiff in which he left the castle, to the side of the lake most distant from the village, with the desire of escaping from the notice of the inhabitants. SCOTT, Abbot, Ch. VII, 66.

example. i. To give (leave, set) an example. MURRAY, s. v. example, 6.

That was to set an example. R. ASHE KING, Ol. Goldsm., Ch. XIII, 32.

ii. Walk on your toes, whispered my mother, setting the example as she led the way up the stairs. JEROME, Paul Kever, I, Ch. III, 26a.

NOTE. MURRAY does not illustrate any of the above locutions. Nor does he mention to set (etc.) the example. Compare also 40.

faculty. See 40.

fashion. i. It has even become a fashion to go over to Ireland. Acad.

It is a fashion at present to ascribe the great popularity of 'In Memoriam' entirely to the 'teaching' contained in it. A. C. BRADLEY, Comment. on Tennyson's In Mem., Ch. IV, 36.

ii. It was then very much the fashion ... to publish results and conceal methods. DE MORGAN, Es. Probab., Pref.¹⁾

Compare also 8, b, 1, 63 and 67.

gift. a) If I had a gift for writing like that chap, I'd chuck the old office mighty quick, I can tell you. An Englishman's Home, I, (15).

habit. i. You have a bad habit of jumping at conclusions. MRS. CRAIK, John Hal., Ch. X, 100.

He had a habit of going to sleep in his chair after dinner. Rev. of Rev., CXCIII, 84b.

The chimney has a habit of smoking, when the fire is first lighted. MURRAY, s. v. habit, 9, a.

Some men have a habit of laughing at anything which is said just as they leave the dining-room. MAR. CRAWF., Kath. Laud., I, Ch. VI, 115.

ii. He was little in the habit of resisting importunate solicitation. MAC., Hist., I, 176.¹⁾

NOTE. For further illustration see also Ch. XXIV, 34, Obs. VIII, a.

hope. i. The judge paternally expressed a hope that the combative people would make it up. ROORDA, Dutch and Eng. Comp., § 14.

He had all the time nursed a faint hope of a possible reunion. EDNA LYALL, Don., II, 20.

¹⁾ MURRAY.

- ii. Whatever dangers I went upon, it was with the hope of making myself more worthy of your esteem. FARQUHAR, The Recruiting Officer, II, 2, (268). In the hope that no soldier would venture to outrage a lady, ... she placed herself before the trunk. MAC., Fred., (588a).

Her Majesty expressed the hope that he would soon be perfectly recovered. Daily Chronicle.

I have, therefore, in conclusion to express the hope that our educational authorities will be cautious in introducing phonetics and appointing teachers of it. SWEET, Sounds of Eng., Pref.

idea. I always had an idea that you were at least seven feet high. THACK., Van Fair, I, Ch. IV, 31.

Mrs. Paradyne has an idea that the boys are shunning him. MRS. WOOD, Orville College, Ch. VI, 89.

Compare notion.

impression. I have an impression that I have somewhere met with it before. MURRAY, s. v. impression 17.

knack. Hares and rabbits have a foolish knack of running butt into an advancing train. Titbits.

notion. Some persons have consequently taken up a notion that she was from the first an overrated writer. MAC., Madame d'Arblay, (730b).

She has a notion that a widow should not marry within seven years of her husband's death. HARDY, Far from the Madding Crowd, Ch. LII, 426.

Compare idea.

opinion. Witnessing these things, the collegians would express an opinion that the turnkey, who was a bachelor, had been cut out by nature for a family man. DICK., Little Dorrit, Ch. VII, 35b.

opportunity. i. I was afraid he would never give me an opportunity. SHER., Riv., I, 2.

I should have told you before now, ... but I had not an opportunity. DICK., Cop., Ch. III, 20b.

The great fire of 1666 afforded an opportunity for effective extensive improvements. MAC., Hist., I, Ch. III, 403.

The other day I had an opportunity of introducing N. N. to P. P. Punch.

We are a free people, and we should never neglect an opportunity for impressing that fact on those who may be inclined to doubt it. An Englishman's Home, I, (13).

- ii. One day I took the opportunity of reading to him the first canto. SCOTT, Intr. to 'the Lady of the Lake'.

This was the opportunity to put his new-born resolution to the test. Id., ABBOT, Ch. VIII, 73.

I ought to give her the opportunity. DICK., Cop., Ch. LV, 391a.

What could be better for us than that they ... should give us the opportunity of saying that they are wrecking the national interest for the sake of sticking to office? Westm. Gaz., No. 5277, 4a.

Note. For collocations without either article and for further illustration see 40.

plan. They had formed a plan to get her out of the castle. BLACK'S Sir Walt. Scott's Read., Story of the Abbot, 32.

position. i. We are in a position to state [etc.]. Times.

If she be in a position to carry out her assurances, there must be some form of government. Id., No. 1823, 983a.

- ii. The Tory Party was in the position of a business-house trading under cover of a protective tariff. Westm. Gaz., No. 6359, 7a.

pretence. She made a pretence of using her fork. MAR. CRAWF., Kath. Laud., II, Ch. X, 183.

promise. I readily gave a promise of making the settlement he required. GOLDSM., Vic., Ch. XXXI.

Note. For further illustration see also 71 and Ch. XIX, 49, Obs. IV. MURRAY mentions to give (afford) promise, unfortunately without any illustrative quotations.

propensity. The inhabitants appeared to have a propensity to throw any little trifles they were not in want of, into the road. DICK., Cop., Ch. XXVII, 199a.

question. i. It is a question, whether N. had much to complain of. JAMES PAYN, Glow-Worm Tales.¹⁾

It is even now a question, whether we had not better entrust it to him. ROORDA, Dutch and Eng. Comp., § 15.

It was a great question, if they should see him alive. THACK., Pend., I, Ch. II, 28.

ii. That is the question to which American public opinion demands an answer. Times, No. 1823, 983c.

reputation. He had a reputation of being a model father. JAMES PAYN, Glow-Worm Tales, I, B, 39.

resolution. I have formed a resolution to have no bailiff at all. HARDY, Far from the Madding Crowd, Ch. X, 87.

right. i. A sheriff has a right to arrest a criminal. WEBST., s. v. right.

Gardner had a perfect right to put up a poster. Westm. Gaz., No. 5817, 2a. When I do get a holiday, I think I've a right to spend it how I like. An Englishman's Home, I, (24).

ii. I had no need to enlarge upon it, if I had had the right. DICK., Cop., Ch. LV, 391a.

Those who pay the piper have the right to call the tune. Times.

The thinking public has the right to demand an explanation. Eng. Rev., No. 38, 310.

iii. You have right to say it. SCOTT, Abbot, Ch. II, 21.

scale. The remuneration will be on a scale of 1 s. 6 d. per paper examined. Acad. and Lit.

situation. We are in a situation to offer more than the usual commission. THACK., Sam. Titm., Ch. VI, 69.

view. i. I composed it actually with a horror of the stage, and with a view to render the thought of it impracticable. BYRON, Let. to Mr. Murray.

ii. He left the university without taking a degree with the view of becoming an artist. TROL., Thack., Ch. I, 28.

Note. For illustration see also Ch. XIX, 62, b.

way. i. His mother began to be greatly perplexed how to put him in a way to shift for himself. WASH. IRV., Dolf Heyl. (STOF., Handl., I, 104).

The youngster ... seemed in a fair way to fulfil the prediction of the old gentleman before mentioned. Ib., 116.

ii. The foreign concessionaire is on the way to become a bogey in Belgium. Westm. Gaz., No. 6377, 2c.

wish. i. I expressed to Wordsworth a wish that his poems were printed in the order of their composition. Acad.¹⁾

Sir James expressed a wish to you again in the morning. AGN. & EG. CATTLE, 'Diam. cut Paste, II, Ch. I, 115.

ii. They expressed the wish that we should come to an amicable understanding with Russia. Times.

¹⁾ TEN BRUG., Taalst., X.

- b) Also the use of the indefinite article in the combinations illustrated by the following quotations is of some interest:

average. i. Earthquake-shocks occur, on an average, about three times a week. HUXLEY, Physiogr., 188. 1)

Half a million workers have been affected by these troubles and have lost on an average fourteen days each. Westm. Gaz., No. 6377, 2c.

- ii. And when he (sc. Mr. Pickwick) was knocked down (which happened upon the average every third round), it was the most invigorating sight [etc.]. DICK., Pickw., Ch. XXX, 271.

The agricultural labourer... is still on the average badly paid. Westm. Gaz., No. 6423, 1b.

The wind... blows southwest on the average for 103 days. Ib., 13c.

Note. MURRAY also has at an average, which does not, apparently, occur very frequently. Of (upon the average) no mention is made by either MURRAY or FLÜGEL; the phrase, however, seems to be common enough.

change. We must grow a little more terrestrial for a change. Eng. Rev., No. 57, 129.

end. * Its splendour... was all at an end. WASH. IRV., Dolf Heyl. (STOF., Handl., I, 116).

The energy and the action of my life were at an end. DICK., Cop., Ch. LIV, 383a.

 Whereupon this colloquy came to an end. THACK., Pend., I, Ch. II, 29.

These two cities (sc. New York and San Francisco) cannot cease to grow till... mankind pass off the globe and come to an end. FROUDE, Oceana, Ch. XX, 336.

Note. The indefinite article seems to be regularly used in the above phrases. With to the end, as used in the following quotation, compare to a (the) finish in the same meaning; see below.

The Boers will resist to the end. Times.

finish. i. The Free-Staters do not seem at all inclined to fight to a finish. Daily Chron.

The Government are fond of saying that the country has declared to continue the war in South Africa and fight to a finish. Daily News.

- ii. This time it's a fight to the finish. Punch.

Note. Compare with this the sporting term to be in at the finish.

The old squire was determined to be in at the finish. W. S. HAYWARD, Love against World, 13. 1) living. She was compelled to appear before public audiences for a living. T. P.'s Weekly, No. 474, 714a.

sacrifice. The country would fall a sacrifice to the hostile ambition of the Spanish monarchy. SHER., Crit., III, 1.

victim. Her husband had fallen a victim to his zeal for the public safety. WASH. IRV., Dolf Heyl. (STOF., Handl., I, 102).

Compare: Shortly after this he became the victim of a passionate attachment to a young lady. ARTHUR C. DOWNER, The Personal Hist. of John Keats, 3.

74. In some combinations the definite article is preferred, although the indefinite would appear to be at least equally appropriate.

exception. It is the exception to see a man without knife and pistol. Westm. Gaz., No. 5335, 2c. (See also under rule.)

1) MURRAY.

What a happiness it would be to set the pattern about here! G. ELIOT, Mid., I, Ch. III, 20.

rule. i. Symphonies and symphonic poems are now the rule rather than the exception. II. Lond. News, No. 3775, 326b.

ii. His supposition that usually both the publisher and author share a loss on the ordinary novel is, we fear, more in the nature of an exception than a rule. Athen., No. 4479, 200c.

shoulder. i. Showing the cold shoulder. COBH. BREW., Dict. of Phrase and Fable, s. v.

Casaubon has devilish good reasons ... for turning the cold shoulder on a young fellow whose bringing-up he paid for. G. ELIOT, Mid., V, Ch. XLVI, 341.

ii. He was therefore not willing to give them a cold shoulder. TROL., Barch. Tow., Ch. XXXV, 316.

CORRECTIONS AND ADDITIONS.

Page	4 line	5 from top,	change	world	into	would.
"	7	"	2	"	" , "	Gate " Gates.
"	7	"	27	"	" , "	more " wore.
"	25	"	7	"	" , "	45 " 44.
"	64	"	28	"	" ,	after minutes place (ϑ).
"	64	"	35	"	" ,	change (η) into (ϑ).
"	64	"	4	"		bottom, place (ϵ) after understood.
"	81	"	22	"		top, change head-word into noun in the modifying element.
"	81	"	38	"	" ,	change head-word into noun in the modifying element.
"	81	"	10	"		bottom, change element modified into modifying element.
"	100	"	20	"		top, change Love's Labour Lost into Love's Labour's Lost.
"	112	"	2	"		bottom, change to into do.
"	140	"	13	"	" , "	for stands into stands for.
"	141	"	15	"		top, change trives into frewes .
"	146	"	25	"	" , "	words-groups into word-groups, and strike out the comma .
"	155	"	20	"		bottom, change ashes into ash(es) .
"	164	"	1	"		top, change repectables into respectables .
"	174	"	7	"	" , "	Balcans into Balkans .
"	176	"	4	"		bottom, change somewhat into somewhat.
"	201	"	26	"	" , "	TROL. ² into TROL. ¹
"	203	"	2	"	" , "	A1 " A11.
"	205	"	1	"	" , "	24a " 25, a.
"	206	"	19	"	" , "	39 " 40.
"	231	"	16	"	" , "	at one's wits end into at one's wits' end .
"	234	"	1	"	" , "	XXVI, 5, c, Note into XXVI, 5, Note iv.
"	238	"	13	"	" , "	shorts into sorts .
"	313	heading,		change	CONCORDS	into CONCORD.
"	326	line	9	from bottom,	change	spacing into speaking.
"	343	"	17	"	top,	Old English into Middle English.
"	360	"	11	"	" , "	Tithonius " Tithonus.
"	366	"	21	"	" , "	particular " partial.
"	371	"	26	"	" , "	immorta " immortal.

- Page 384 line 3 from top, place i before disorderly.
- " 401 " 19 " " , change elder born into elder-born.
- " 401 " 21 " " , " eldest born " eldest-born.
- " 410 " 5 " bottom, change Ch. XXXI, 34, a into Ch. XXXI, 31, a; 34, a.
- " 428 " 15 " top, change groudns into grounds.
- " 436 " 26 " top, " 38, f into 40.
- " 437 " 5 " bottom, change Ch. XXXI, 19 into Ch. XXXI, 20.
- " 437 " 6 " " " 19 into 20.
- " 443 " 22 " " add Compare Ch. XXXI, 19, a.
- " 494 " 14 " " change periphrastical into periphrastical.
- " 508 " 1 " top, change Frequent into Interesting.
- " 528 " 12 " bottom, place c) before Before.
- " 559 " 5 " top, change indefinite into definite.
- " 607 " 24 " bottom, strike out to say truth.
- " 650 " 14 " top, change Ch. XXV, 17 into Ch. XXV, 10 and 17.

Page 6, line 4 from bottom. The use of wool instead of woollen, as in a wool hat, cap, jacket, etc. is not rare, but in these combinations the word has a different meaning from woollen: a wool cap, etc. being a cap, etc. made of knitted wool.

Lead, instead of leaden, seems to become more and more the ordinary word in the trade. See also MURRAY, s. v. lead, 10. It is probably the only word, when the reference is to strips or sheets of lead used for roofing or other building purposes; e. g.: a lead flat, a lead roof. MURRAY, s. v. lead, 7.

Page 33, c. So far as Early Modern English is concerned, the suppression of the genitival s after nouns ending in a sibilant may in many cases be considered as a survival of Middle English practice. Compare EINENKEL, Streifzüge, 83.

Page 50. Among the names of things mentioned in 16, a, which in ordinary prose are frequently placed in the genitive, include boat, ship, vessel, etc., and proper names of ships. Thus in the Times, No. 1842, 1d: the Titanic's passengers, the Carmania's decks, the Carmania's captain.

For quotations with boat, ship, vessel, etc. see under 16, d).

Page 71, b. Add: Note. In such a sentence as But we beg pardon of our readers for arguing a point so clear (MAC., Es., War. H. ast., 6096) of is not a genitive equivalent, but part of a prepositional object.

Page 97, line 20 from top. Like all and both, also half may belong to the modifying element alone:

He used to do half the chaps' verses. THACK., Pend., I, Ch. X, 107.

Page 100, Obs. II. Insert mostly between is and felt. Like the noun firm (Ch. XXVI, 9) genitives denoting a firm are occasionally construed as singulars.

Selfridge's admits that Ready-for Service clothes have had a shocking reputation in the past. Westm. Gaz., No. 6147, 1b.

Page 112, 2, Obs. I, line 8—21. For what is here said about the th substitute: In Old English þ became voiced between voiced sounds, according to BÜLBRING (Elementarbuch, § 474) about the year 700.

Thus in āþas, clāþas, mūþas, paþas, baþu (baþo, also baþa, especially in later texts), respectively the plural of āþ, clāþ, mūþ, pæþ, bæþ (Modern English oath, cloth, mouth, path, bath). In Middle English the singular of these words ends in voiceless þ, the plural in ðes, i. e. in voiced ð + es, while, moreover, the short vowel in paþas and baþu was lengthened (before 1200). Hence the rule in Modern English: th at the end of a plural is voiced, if preceded by a long vowel.

If the half-long vowel of the singular is pronounced in the plural as well (new formations), th and s are voiceless. Thus in laths, truths, youths, whereas, if the vowel is lengthened in these words, th and s are voiced. In growths and heaths the vowel seems to be half-long with most, if not all, speakers, so that th and s are breathed.

The rule stated above also accounts for the fact that in such plurals as deaths, months, healths, where the vowel is short, and in others like births, fourths, hearths, in which it is half-long, th and s are voiceless.

Pag. 122. Note II. Add: Swine, both as a singular and a plural, is also used as an opprobrious designation of a man.

i. I was just bringing back your little lad for the second time, when I meets the swine coming out of this window in his Sunday togs and topper. ZANGWILL, The Next Religion, I, (60).

You're a nice, chivalrous, brotherly sort of swine, you are. BERN. SHAW, Getting Married, I, (207).

ii. These beastly swine make such a grunting here, | I cannot catch what Father Bourne is saying. TEN., Queen Mary, I, 3, (582*b*).

Page 125, c, line 28 from top. Add: prima donna — prima donnas — prime donne.

Pag. 130. Note I. Add: Moslem (or Muslim) has in the plural Moslims (or Muslims) and Moslemín, while some writers employ the singular form as a plural or collective. The plural moslemíns is a vulgarism. For illustration see MURRAY.

Pag. 232, s.v. works. Add: Earthwork is also used in the singular.

Sigtryg threw up an earthwork and made a stand against the Cornish. CH. KINGSLEY, Herew., Ch. V, 38*b*.

Pag. 237, s.v. nut. Add: the colloquial to be nuts to (= Dutch een bron van genot zijn voor, een kolfje naar de hand zijn van). Coralie had a tit-bit of information that she knew would be nuts to the old lady. AGN. & EG. CASTLE, Diamond cut Paste, II. Ch. II, 111.

Page 266, c. Change It is, apparently, never preceded by a word denoting number etc. into It may be preceded by a word denoting number etc. It hardly appeared comfortable to the parent that she should have so many prickly offspring cuddling into her side. Westm. Gaz., No. 6276, 13*b*.

Page 328, line 19 from top. The use of the neuter pronouns in referring to grown-up persons is not vulgar, as is here stated, but rather expresses contempt.

"Oh! the poor angry darling, there!" she laughed spitefully, "and was it jealous! Well, it shan't be teased. But what a clever husband to know all about his wife! He should be put in a glass case in a museum. EL. GLYN, The Reason Why, Ch. XXV, 232. (Note the change from it to he.)

Page 329, s. v. Providence. Also the feminine pronouns are occasionally used to refer to Providence.

Providence had given us the British Oak, the finest building material for building ships; why should we fly in her face by actually suggesting not only the sacrifice of our oak forests, but the substitution of a material which would not even float. Eng. Rev., No. 61, 116.

Page 343, b). Observe that youngster is occasionally said of the young of animals:

In turning over the grass in search of a ball, a mother hedgehog and five youngsters were discovered. Westm. Gaz., No. 6276, 13*b*.

Her five youngsters, about the size of small rats, were snuggling on one side of her. ib.

Page 618, before line 7 from bottom insert:

hope. c) i. There is a hope that Great Britain may still participate in the Panama Exhibition. Westm. Gaz., No. 6401, 2*c*.

ii. There is hope yet. Dick., Christm. Car.⁵, IV, 97.

Note. Usage may be equally divided. Compare 73.

University of California
SOUTHERN REGIONAL LIBRARY FACILITY
305 De Neve Drive - Parking Lot 17 • Box 951388
LOS ANGELES, CALIFORNIA 90095-1388

Return this material to the library from which it was borrowed.

QL, DUE

APR 09 2002

Subject to Recall

RECEIVED

FEB 05 2002

SEL/EMS LIBRARY

3 1158 00230 6511

PE

1105

P86g

V.2

UC SOUTHERN REGIONAL LIBRARY FACILITY

AA 000 085 692 2

